Budget appropriations up for discussion

Appropriations for Tennessee's college and universities was a major item of business for the Tennessee Higher Education Commission in its quarterly meeting Nov. 16.

The Commission considered a total higher education operating budget of $1.3 billion, which represents an increase of $254 million, or 24.3 percent, over the 2000-2001 appropriation.

In addition, the Commission recommended $129.9 million for capital outlay projects and $67.1 million for capital maintenance.

The following chart contains information (in rounded numbers) on the suggested appropriations.

Upon approval by the Commission, these recommendations will be forwarded to the Governor.

He, in turn, may incorporate them into the executive budget.

That budget will be presented to the General Assembly for its approval in 2001 and could result in funding by July 1, 2001.

$901 M	Operations, utilities and maintenance (includes faculty salaries)	$30 M	Laboratory equipment
$19.7 M	Centers of Excellence	$20 M	Distance learning initiatives
$1.4 M	Campus Centers of Interest	$12.5 M	Research initiatives (to address qualitative enhancements)
$8 M	Desegregation of student population and personnel	$5.3 M	Tuition discounts and waivers for teachers and state employees
$2.7 M	Undergraduate academic scholarship program	$129.9 M	Capital outlay
$4 M	Additional scholarships	$67.1 M	Capital maintenance

University woman wins Athena award

Reagan recognized for contributions to Clarksville

Dr. Carmen Reagan, dean of Austin Peay State University's college of business, was selected over 15 contenders to receive the 2000 Athena Award Nov. 17.

The award, which was first presented in Clarksville in 1995, recognizes a woman's professional excellence, her community service and her role in helping other women in the community attain success.

Reagan, a Memphis native who came to Clarksville to accept a position of professor of marketing in 1988, serves in three prominent roles: dean of APSU's College of Business, chair of the Gateway Health Systems board of directors and member of the First Federal Savings Bank board of directors.

She also has held leadership positions with the United Way, the Chamber of Commerce, the YMCA, Weems Academy and Leadership Clarksville.

In addition to her leadership, the committee recognized Reagan's role in the establishment of the Women's Resource Center at APSU, her work to integrate women's issues into the university's business curriculum and her support for other women in leadership positions.

Reagan says she learned a lot about business from watching her uncle, who managed the city's first bus line.

On visits to Clarksville, she often went to his office, where bus drivers - coming in with silver dollars to exchange for bills - sometimes shared their loot with the young observer.

"I still have those silver dollars," Reagan says.

Student says Hoppe not concerned with African-American students' issues

by Michael Wall
guest writer

Dr. Sherry Hoppe, interim president of Austin Peay, is not compassionate towards the concerns of student of color, says a student on the presidential search committee.

At the heart of this complaint is that Hoppe has temporarily removed Laverne Walker, the director of affirmative action at Austin Peay, from the president's cabinet meetings and has placed a freeze on hiring a professor to fill an African-American studies position.

"These are very controversial issues," said Lakweshia Tibbs, president of the African American Cultural Center and member of the presidential search committee.

"Dr. Hoppe is a great administrator and number cruncher, but she does not appear to be concerned or compassionate about black student issues," said Tibbs. "I have met with her several times and she always seems to dance around the issues and never give me an answer."

The affirmative action director position had been a member of the president's cabinet for at least five years, according to Walker.

"I still have direct contact with the president, just not through the cabinet," she said.

Hoppe said the director of affirmative action now reports to the department of human resources and said she made the move to establish a well-integrated process for hiring and selecting positions for the university.

"I have heard a number of concerns since my arrival here concerning the affirmative action and human resources processes involved with hiring," Hoppe said.

"Duplication and inconsistencies in both processes must be corrected, and I believe this integration of the two will assist in resolving the problems."

Hoppe said Walker has a dotted line of contact to her and direct access in regards to matters dealing with investigation such as harassment or discrimination. Hoppe anticipates Walker's reporting will revert back to the president on July 1, 2001.

Tibbs said she will review all the candidates' attitudes and stated positions regarding affirmative action and diversity before casting her vote on who should be the next university president.

"I will assess Hoppe exclusively on these issues just because I have been allowed to see her in action," Tibbs said. "I will take a closer look at what all the candidates have to say about these issues and even what they do not say."

"Dr. Hoppe is a great administrator and number cruncher, but she does not appear to be concerned or compassionate about black student issues."

Hoppe defends her decision regarding the position freeze by defining the situation she was in when determining the solution to a statewide higher education budget crisis.

"It was not just a cut-and-dry decision," said Hoppe.

The decision to freeze the academic instruction position within the African American studies program was not based on substance. It was a decision based on numbers.

"I had to freeze seven faculty positions and I chose the African American studies position because it adversely affected fewer people," said Hoppe. "It has nothing to do with the academic discipline and its subject matter."

According to Hoppe, the vice president of academic affairs and the academic deans have released a priority list, which includes the African-American studies professor, along with 26 other faculty spots.

The university will begin researching for candidates for all of these open positions next semester.

"I approve of this priority list and the criteria the academic deans submitted for their decision," said Hoppe. "Initially, I was concerned by the low student credit hours generated by the African-American studies discipline, but under the extenuating circumstances agreed upon, the position has been granted."

"I am very happy that we are moving forward with a search for the faculty position and I hope that we will be able to clear up other issues related to the matter," said Jackie Wade, director of the Austin Peay African American Cultural Center.

Students must take precaution against theft

by Brittney Carter
guest writer

As the semester nears the end, students at Austin Peay State University must become more aware of the possibility of theft.

Many students leave book bags unattended without thinking, at the library, in class or in the cafeteria.

"We have a big problem with people stealing books at the end of the semester to sell the books back and get the money for them," campus police officer Ron Szlosek said.

Book bags are not the only targets for thieves - vehicles are also ranked high on the list.

According to a brochure from the Tennessee Department of Safety, "Vehicle theft costs Americans approximately $7.5 billion each year and has become the United States' most costly property crime."

"People are careless and leave personal belongings in sight to tempt thieves," Szlosek says. "Purses, phones, and anything of value should be kept out of sight." Carelessness is understandable since most of our concentration is given to final projects or exams rather than dishonest people lurking in the shadows of Austin Peay's campus.

This is the time, however, to test college students' maturity to balance several things at once, including protecting personal assets.

There are precautions to take into consideration when protecting your belongings.

The following are recommended safety precautions given by the Tennessee State Highway Patrol.

- Always park in well-lit areas
- Lock all doors
- Close windows
- Store packages and valuables out of sight

Austin Peay is one of the safest campuses in Tennessee, however, crime is everywhere and prevention is essential to not becoming a victim.

For more information on safety precautions and tips, contact the campus police.

Student travelers need Hepatitis A vaccine

by Ashley Kettle
guest writer

Students who plan to study abroad should receive the Hepatitis A vaccine before leaving the United States.

Those who travel to other countries, male homosexuals, illegal-drug users, and those who have liver disease, should get the vaccine, says the Centers for Disease Control.

The CDC warns the vaccination should be given four weeks before travel.

Hepatitis A is inflammation of the liver caused by a viral infection that is spread from person to person by putting something in the mouth that has been contaminated with the stool of a person with the Hepatitis A virus.

This type of transmission is called "fecal-oral," and for this reason the virus is more easily spread in areas where there are poor sanitary conditions or where good personal hygiene is not observed, says the CDC.

Student Health Services can provide the hepatitis A vaccination as well as the blood test to determine if you have the virus, says Leigh Walling, family nurse practitioner at SHS.

If you have any reason to suspect you may have the Hepatitis A virus, call Student Health Services at 221-7107 to receive more information and to determine whether or not you should be tested.

Signing season benefits various teams

Several teams at Austin Peay State University have signed new recruits recently.

The Lady Govs' basketball and softball teams each added two players while the Govs' baseball and basketball teams signed one.

Lady Govs' Basketball

Austin Peay's women's basketball team has announced the signing of two prep standouts for the 2001-2002 season.

Cassandra Peek, a 5'-5" point guard from Lincoln County High School in Standord, Ky., and Jessica Ezell, a 5'-10" all-state forward/guard from Forrest High School in Chapel Hill, signed letters of intent with the Lady Govs during the November signing period.

Peek averaged 12 points, 4 rebounds, 4 assists and 3 steals per game as a junior at Lincoln County.

She earned all-area and all-district tourney as a junior, along with joining her school's 1,000-point club. A 2000-2001 preseason Kentucky Miss Basketball candidate, she enters the season ranked 23 out of 25 players in the state.

"Cassandra is a great sign for us," says APSU coach Susie Gardner. "The last couple of years we really have only had Kelly (Chavez) at the point.

"Cassandra is the type of player who can make an immediate impact on the team. She really handles the ball well and is great in transition."

"Cassandra can also shoot it very well. She is a great all-around player and person."

"She is thought very highly of in her hometown (Kings Mountain, Ky.) and her school. She is an outstanding role model."

Ezell, meanwhile, averaged 21 points and eight rebounds as a junior to earn first-team Class A all-state honors for a second straight season. She also was named first-team all-midstate and district MVP as a junior.

It was the third straight season she earned first-team all-district honors. She also was won honorable mention all-state as a freshman.

"We recruited her this summer as a post player based upon where she played on her AAU team," says Gardner. "When we went to watch her play with her high school, Jessica was playing point (guard)."

"What we have ended up with is a potential post player who can dribble, pass and shoot the three. We are excited about what she is going to add to our program."

"She is a versatile player and when you watch her play, you would never know if she was right-handed or left-handed...that's how well she uses the left hand.

"We have been excited about Jessica for a long time," says Gardner.

Ezell committed to the Lady Govs in July.

Govs' Baseball

The men's basketball team has announced the signing of Fred Marshall, a 6'-6", 205-pound forward/guard from Stone Mountain, Ga.

Marshall averaged 14 points, 8 rebounds and 3.5 assists per game as a junior for Padeia High School, a private school in Atlanta. He was an all-DeKalb County selection for Efram Jackson a year ago as Padeia went 25-5 and advanced to the final eight in Georgia's Class AAA state tournament.

APSU first saw him last spring and followed him closely with Atlanta Celtics, one of the nation's top AAU programs.

He chose Austin Peay over Appalachian State and Tennessee Tech. He also was recruited by Tulsa and South Carolina.

Marshall was the Govs' only signee during the November recruiting/signing period.

The Govs will have five scholarships potentially available next year, although both seniors Nick Stapleton and Trenton Hassell could return next season.

As academic non-qualifiers as freshman, both now are on track to graduate and could regain their fourth season of eligibility if they desire to return.

Govs' Baseball

Tommy Smith, a senior catcher for Murfreesboro Oakland's 1999 and 2000 Class AAA state championship teams has signed a letter of intent to play baseball for Austin Peay.

Smith batted .383 as a junior and threw out a remarkable 75-percent of would-be base stealers. He was named to the Class AAA all-tournament team.

"(Assistant) coach (Brain) Hetland and I both saw him at different times," says APSU coach Gary McClure. "I had him go back from the first time he saw and pull out his card on Tommy...We both had listed 'sign' by his name."

"He is a guy when you first see you might have some questions about because he doesn't have the great size of the pro-type catchers you see today. But the more we watched him, the more we just fell in love with him."

"He just does all the little things you love to see in a catcher. He is outstanding in blocking balls (in the dirt). He is exceptional throwing out base stealers."

"He just does a tremendous job in working with the pitchers. I think a lot of the success Murfreesboro Oakland has had would have to be attributed to him...same with his summer team (Twitty City Classics)."

He was selected to the Tennessee Baseball Coach Association all-star team. He batted .425 for Twitty City this summer.

"Tommy's biggest intangible is he's a winner," says McClure. "He is a tremendous competitor. He is the type of guy who we think can step in and help us out as a freshman, especially from a defensive standpoint."

"We will have A.J. (Ellis) back and we expect him to be our No. 1 back there but we expect Tommy to play a lot."

"He swings the bat okay right now but he will become better later on during his career."

"Another positive he is a very good student. Tommy is an excellent sign for us."

Lady Govs' Softball

APSU's softball team has signed two new players.

Jennifer Travis, from Northeast High School in Clarksville and Lydia Money from Fulton High School in Knoxville are the most recent additions to the team.

Travis, who has started three years at Northeast, was selected all-district and all-area as a junior. She is a utility infielder who primarily plays first base.

Travis finished her junior season with a batting average of .356 and an on-base percentage of .425.

"Jennifer has good power and also hits for average," says head coach Tom Csernecky.

"She will provide us with needed depth in the infield and should challenge for starting position."

Travis is the younger sister of former Austin Peay standout, Amanda Travis.

In addition, Money is expected to challenge for a spot on the Govs' pitching rotation and can also play second base.

"Lydia will give us added depth at the pitcher position and will hopefully give us a lot of innings," says Csernecky.

Mens' basketball team prevails, womens' fails

Austin Peay State University's mens' basketball team won two games while the Lady Govs fell to Belmont and Boston.

The men's team went to 4-0 for the first time since 1985-1986 as it downed IUPUI, 79-76, Saturday night.

The Govs really could never shake the determined Jaguars, who fell to 1-2 on the season. APSU led by as many as six points in the first half but the Jaguars rallied to take a 35-33 halftime advantage.

The game was tied seven times in the second half before a Theanthony Haymon jumper in the middle of an 8-0 run put the Govs up for good, 62-60, with 5:51 left.

Then it became a matter of free throws in the game's remainder. APSU made just three more baskets down the stretch while connecting on 11 of 14 free throws.

Trenton Hassell, MVP of last weekend's Top of the World Classic, scored 17 of his game-high 19 points in the second half. He also had 10 rebounds.

Haymon also had a double-double with 16 points and 10 rebounds.

Earlier in the week, senior guard Nick Stapleton scored a game-high 28 points, leading the men's basketball squad to a 80-76 overtime victory against Utah State (2-1) in the championship game of the BP Top of the World Classic.

The Governors brought home their second straight in-season tournament championship trophy, having won Wisconsin-Green Bay's Oneida Bingo and Casino Classic last year.

Hassell added 23 points in the victory and earned tournament "Most Valuable Player" honors. Stapleton also earned recognition on the all-tournament team.

Austin Peay (3-0) survived an offensive barrage by Utah State in the first half. The Aggies shot 65 percent from the field to take a 43-23 lead at the half.

The Governors found another gear in the second half combining an improved offensive performance with a strengthened defense.

APSU shot 55 percent from the field in the second half, improving on their first half 42 percent. However, it was the defense, led by sophomore guard Matt Jakeway that proved to be the turning point, allowing the Aggies just 24 points in the second half.

Jakeway held the Aggies leading scorer, Tony Brown, to eight points on two-of-five shooting from the field. Brown entered the contest averaging 21.5 points per game.

The Governors 3-0 start was their first since the 1988-1989 season. Colorado defeated South Florida, 100-72, for third place, while APSU defeated Colorado 91-86 in the second round. Jackson State, who Austin Peay defeated 85-63 in the first round, ended the tournament with a 77-68 loss to Davidson.

Prior to the tournament, Utah State was ranked 34 and Colorado 69 by the Sporting News, while Austin Peay was ranked 102.

The Lady Govs, however, did not get such a good start.

Sophomore guard Paige Smith scored a game-high 23 points against Belmont University. However, it wasn't enough as the Lady Govs fell at Belmont, 84-72, in the season opener for both squads.

Austin Peay (0-1) started the contest with a 5:57 scoring drought, during which Belmont (1-0) grabbed a 17-0 lead.

Smith scored the Lady Govs' first four points, with a field goal at the 14:03 mark and a pair of free throws at the 13:32 mark. She went on to score 16 of APSU's 37 first-half points.

The Lady Govs then made a late first-half charge, grabbing a 37-36 lead with 40 seconds remaining. However, a buzzer-beating putback by Belmont's Miranda Jones ended the half with Belmont holding a 38-37 lead.

The second half saw Belmont take control as the Austin Peay defense allowed 46 points on 62 percent shooting from the field.

Austin Peay mustered its only charge early in the half, tying the game twice, but never grabbing the lead.

After tying the game at 43-43 with 17:28 remaining in the contest, APSU allowed the Bruins to stretch the lead to as many as 18 before settling on the final margin.

The Lady Govs also received offensive help from junior forward Jocelyn Duke, who recorded the Lady Govs first double-double of the season with a 14-point, 10-rebound effort. Freshman Gerlonda Hardin was the only other APSU player to score in double-digits, recording 10 points and nine rebounds.

Later that week, the women's basketball team finished fourth in the First Tennessee Classic with a 98-80 loss to Boston University.

The tournament took place Sunday afternoon.

The Lady Govs, now 1-3 overall, endured an 88-68 loss to Miami (Ohio), in Saturday's first-round game.

Sophomore guard Brooke Armistead followed up Saturday's 25-point outing against Miami with a 27-point effort against Boston.

Smith was APSU's only other double-figure scorer with 16 points.

For the second straight day the Lady Govs struggled from the field, shooting just 39.7 percent after hitting for 35.2 percent Saturday.

Other than Armistead's 25-point outing Saturday, Kelly Chavez added 13 points.

Football team spirit goes undefeated

by Ronnie Blair
guest writer

The season's record has already been decided, but the Austin Peay State University football team looks to the future for reasons to continue to play hard.

Several players on the APSU football team feel that the hard work put into this season will make the team stronger next season. One of the players who is extremely happy with the way the future looks is junior quarterback Brian Baker.

Baker rewrote the APSU football record book in his sophomore year and was expected to do the same this season until he was injured in the first game.

"I think that when the spring comes we will be a lot hungrier that we were this season"

"I think that when the spring comes we will be a lot hungrier that we were this season and we now know what it takes to turn this thing around," Baker said.

Next year seems to be a common thought among returning players. But not everyone excited about next season will remain on the team. Mike Allen, a senior offensive lineman, also feels that the governors are on the verge of change APSU's football program around.

At the season ending bonfire, Allen expressed his excitement about what's in store for the governor's football program.

"I really don't talk that much but I hope that you guys will continue to work hard to get this program a winning season next fall," said Allen.

With one game remaining on the schedule, the APSU football team is hoping for a win over a nationally recognized opponent will be the step in the right direction. There is one thing that's for certain; they will not go down without a fight.

Tennis team prepares for 2001 season

by Matthew Gregory
guest writer

Austin Peay State University men's and women's tennis teams are currently preparing for the 2001 tennis season, which begins Jan. 19.

The teams have been issued training regimes for each week, which are mostly made up of running and weight lifting exercises. The teams train from Monday to Thursday.

Coach Tim Pleasant is confident the hours his teams are putting in will pay off next year when the season begins.

"Some matches we played last year, such as the close Middle Tennessee Tech or Murray State, all got down to physical fitness. We either won because we were stronger or lost because we were weaker."

or lost it because we didn't have enough gas left in our tanks."

Volleyball squad ends season with split

Austin Peay State University's volleyball team closed out the 2000 campaign with a split at the Ohio Valley Conference tournament, Friday.

The Lady Govs opened the tournament with a four-game victory (15-8, 15-7, 14-16, 15-12) against Morehead State in the first round.

Austin Peay then ran into the top-seed and eventual champion Southeast Missouri and put up a fight before falling in three games (15-5, 15-6, 16-14).

The tournament split ends the Lady Govs season with an 18-15 overall record, including an 8-8 fourth-place finish in the conference.

Freshman outside hitter Amy Walk was named to the all-tournament squad after recording 22 kills and a .422 hitting percentage against Morehead State and 14 kills and a .440 percentage against Southeast Missouri.

Before the tournament, all-conference awards were announced. Senior outside hitter Becky Sowinski earned first-team All-OVC recognition, senior setter Annie Gieber earned second-team honors and Walk was an honorable mention candidate.

APSU offers international experience

Austin Peay State University's Center of Excellence for the Creative Arts is offering a rare opportunity for lovers of the arts.

The chance to experience the theatre, music and art of three cultural centers of Europe with fellow Clarkvillians and other Tennesseans is right around the corner.

This first-class trip is being offered July 7-18, 2001.

The total cost for the trip is $2,995 and includes round-trip travel from Nashville, first-class hotels, travel by rail among cities and by motor coach within cities.

The price also includes tickets to theatres and concert halls and admission to museums. Breakfast is included daily, and one dinner party is included in each of the three cities.

Passport fees as deemed necessary, tips to guides and/or motorcoach drivers and meals not listed in the itinerary are not included in the total price.

The trip may be taken as a course for graduate or undergraduate credit through APSU.

The first stop on the trip is London, where some of the trip coordinators have arranged a "welcome dinner," featuring typical English dishes. The stay in London will last four days.

Other features of the London visit include a full English breakfast, a sightseeing tour of England's historic capital city, a major West End show and a day to explore the city on your own. Trip coordinators can help plan various events if you are interested or you can plan your own events.

Some of the highlights of the sightseeing tour are the Tower Bridge, Buckingham Palace, Houses of Parliament, St. Paul's Cathedral, the Tower of London, Kensington Palace, Piccadilly Circus, Hyde Park and Harrods. The tour will end at Westminster Abbey, where the travelers will hear a choral concert.

In addition, during the stay in London, the participants will visit the National Gallery, which features some of the world's most famous paintings. Works by Titian, Van Gogh, Monet, Botticelli, Holbein, Constable, Rembrandt and da Vinci are featured. There is no entry charge to the gallery.

The second stop on the trip is Amsterdam.

Features of this part of the trip are a walking tour of the city, which includes stops at the house where Anne Frank wrote her diaries and Rembrandt's House, dining in some of the city's oldest restaurants, a visit to an art museum, an orchestral concert and a day of leisure.

Three days will be spent in Amsterdam.

From there, the group will travel to Paris, where they will spend four days.

Included in the activities for this city are a fireworks display at the Eiffel Tower, a half-day tour of the city that includes such locations as Arc de Triomphe, Notre Dame Cathedral and Tocadero Pompidou

Centre, a guided tour of the Musee d'Orsay and a dinner cruise.

The Musee d'Orsay is France's gallery of 19th century art that features the work of such artists as Monet, Matisse, Degas, Van Gogh, Sisley and Picasso.

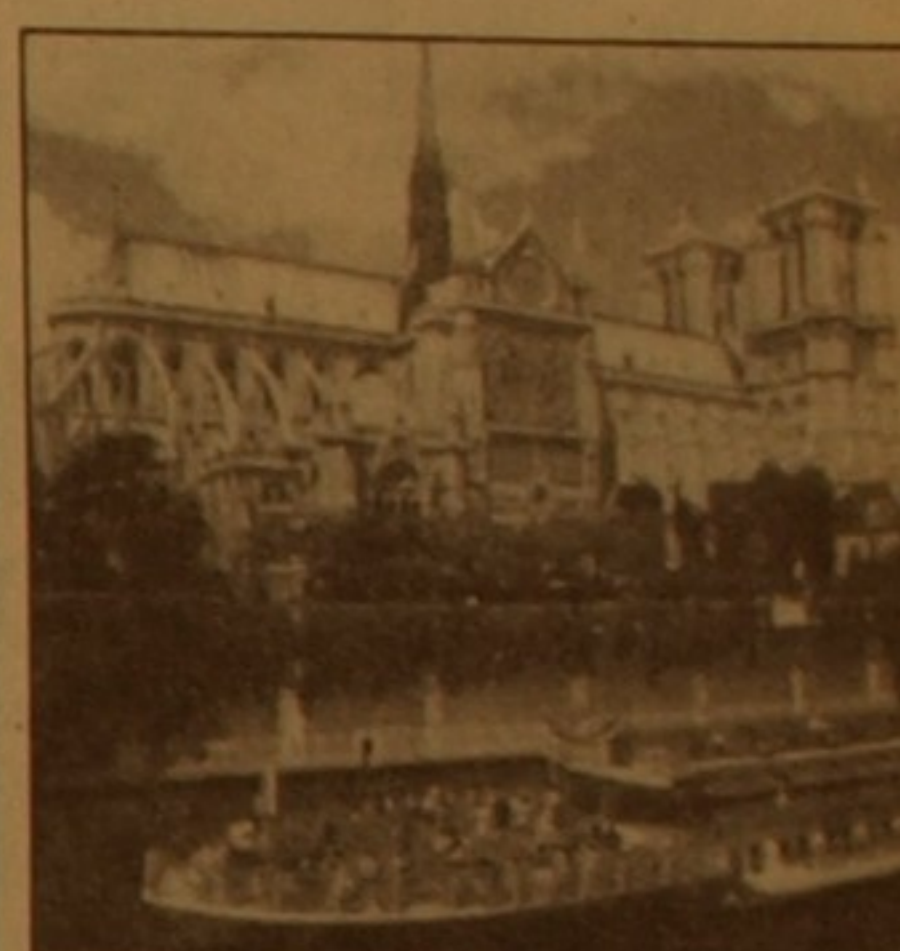

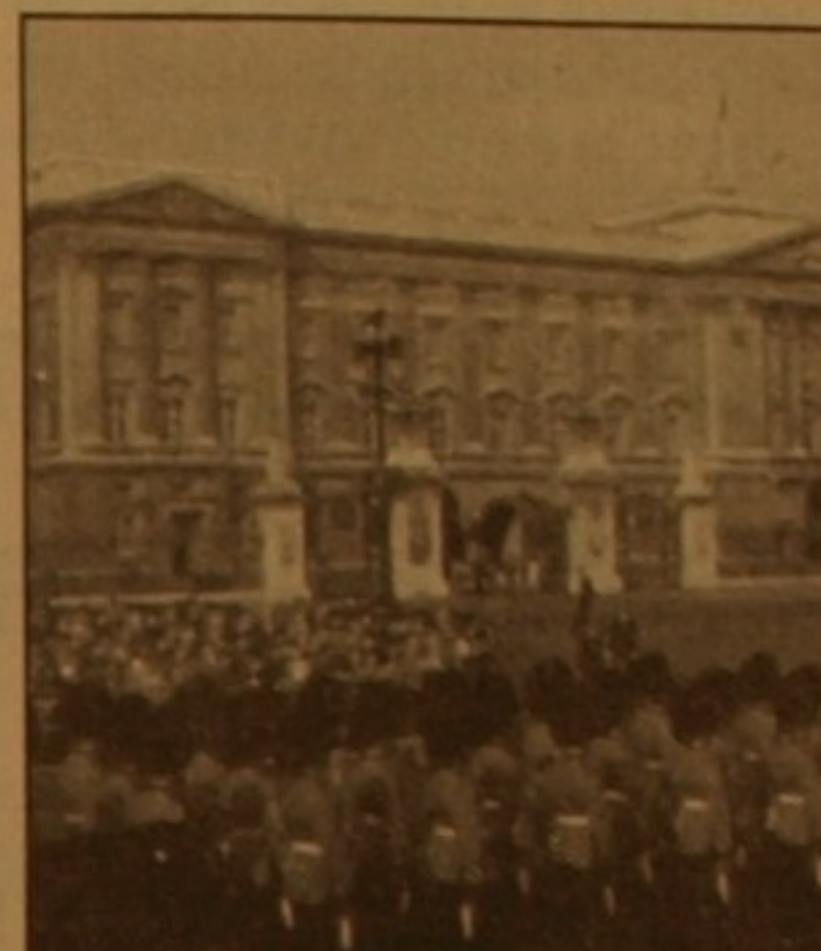

In addition, travelers will visit La Louvre and a Paris Opera performance (pending final schedule of Paris events for the 2001 Calendar - to be received in January 2001).

The deadline for registration for the trip has been extended until Jan. 15, 2001.

Help with trip planning is provided by International Travel, Inc. who also offers trip insurance if interested.

Wesley Foundation has something for everyone

by Carlos Chavez
guest writer

Next to Johnny's Big Burger is a weird shaped building with brown siding.

The sign in front of it reads "The United Methodist Student Center." On campus it is known as the Wesley Foundation.

It is the Wesley Foundation at Austin Peay State University. Many people know the Wesley Foundation as the $2 Tuesday lunch place.

It, however, is more than that. Students of all different backgrounds come to relax, join in conversations, play games, study or just hang around.

There are also three ministry teams students can participate in.

There is Operation Wesley (Missions), A.C.T.S. Drama Troupe and the Wesley Singers.

This semester began well. The new campus minister, John Young, and the residents have set the pace. Throughout the first few weeks of the semester there was an increase in students compared to years past.

Young and the Wesley members have worked hard to create a schedule accessible by all students at Austin Peay.

The Wesley Foundation stays busy throughout the semester.

A group of students joined other organizations to help students settle in on Move In

Day in August. There are always Wesleyans at the Call to Worship on campus.

Wesleyan students also built a float for the Homecoming Parade. Students had a volleyball team participate in the Sango United Methodist Church Volleyball league.

The ministry teams have been on the move since September.

The singers and drama have performed at eight churches and Wesley's Hot Topic Night. On those nights, the drama troupe performs skits or a play on a social issue for discussion.

The Operation Wesley has done yard work, a church clean up, a canned meat drive and sponsored an Angel from the Salvation Army Angel Tree.

Along with the activities at the Wesley Foundation, they also host Voices of Triumph practices, the Fellowship of Christian Athletes meetings and Chi Alpha Prayer and Feasting.

The Wesley Foundation is also proud it was host to the Chi Omega Sorority Annual Bar-B-Que Luncheon.

The Wesley Foundation is a place where anyone can go. There is always something going on.

To find out more, visit their website at apsu01.apsu.edu/~wesley/team.html or call the Wesley Foundation at 647-6412.

Guitar Ensemble performs

Under the direction of Dr. Stanley Yates, the Austin Peay State University Guitar Ensemble will appear in concert at 7:30 p.m. in the Concert Theatre of the Music/Mass Communication Building on Thursday.

The concert is presented by the APSU music department and Center of Excellence for the Creative Arts. The concert is free and open to the public.

Members of the Ensemble are Yates, George Avitua, Aaron Beckendork, Tyler Cook, Greg Hickman, Ken Hummer, Jessi Koons and John David Sayle.

NTSO holds pot luck dinner

by M. Janae Watson
guest writer

The Non-traditional Student Organization will have a "Try Out the Recipe Before the Holidays" pot luck dinner at the Austin Peay State University Child Learning Center.

The pot luck dinner will be held Friday from 6-8 p.m. Guest speakers will give students information about resources and programs available to them on campus.

Wendy Nelson-Wycoff, president of NTSO, says she wants to raise the awareness of the programs that are available to them on campus.

She says many students do not know what is available for them.

Since the meeting will be held at the APSU Child Learning Center, there will be free child care for that night. There will also be a lot of food, information and fun.

Blanche Wilson, director of the APSU Child Learning Center, is also an advisor for the NTSO.

She agrees that students are unaware of what is available for them on campus and supports providing more information for the non-traditional students.

Two scholarships established for international studies students

Two local restaurant owners have contributed $1,000 to fund two scholarships at Austin Peay State University.

One scholarship will go to an international student, while the other will be for a student involved in international studies or activities.

Mary Smart and her daughter, Alice Chan, each presented a $500 check to Dr. Sherry Hoppe, APSU's interim president, to establish the scholarships.

Smart has lived in Clarksville and operated several small restaurants since 1989, and Chan, a 1992 APSU graduate, each presented a $500 check to

Police take new approach to reach students

by Brittney Carter
guest writer

Austin Peay State University's campus police have practiced community policing for the past several years to better protect the students on campus.

Placing officers on bikes has been successful for Austin Peay, making it easier for the campus and its police force to interact.

Currently there are two officers patrolling the night shift on bikes.

With expansion in mind, campus police hope to acquire two bike officers for each shift.

"Of course it's good for the community since it makes the officers more approachable," said Officer Ron Szlosek. "People feel more comfortable letting these officers know what's going on around our campus."

Officers on bike patrol are more open to the public, since the intimidation of the patrol car is not present.

Having community policing allows the officers to be more aware of what takes place on campus by getting to know the students in their own atmosphere.

"The bike patrol definitely sees more than officers in patrol cars," Szlosek says. "They're quiet and most people don't expect to be approached by an officer on a bike. And it doesn't hurt that it saves on fuel."

Although community policing has been effective for Austin Peay, it has not replaced the patrol car and both have similar characteristics.

The duties of all campus police are equal, including the bike patrol, and they deserve and obtain the same respect as their officers.

APSU senior Christopher Holt says, "I really haven't noticed the police on bikes until this year. I think it's great the campus police are trying to get to know us."

The advantages of community policing are limitless; however, it has been difficult finding people young enough to ride the bikes, according to Szlosek.

To ensure improvement, campus police have bought two new bikes and plan to send bike patrol officers to additional training on how to use the bike as defense.

"People feel more comfortable letting these officers know what's going on around our campus"

Career services and chemistry club sponsor seminar series

Are you a high school student with questions about college courses and career opportunities, or are you a college student who wants to increase your success in pre-professional programs, improve your chances of attending the professional school of your choice and obtain employment?

Austin Peay State University can answer your questions and provide you with information to help you achieve your goals.

To do so, a seminar will be held at 5 p.m., Monday, Dec. 4 in the McCord Building.

APSU's Office of Career Services and the Chemistry Club are sponsoring the Pre-Professional Seminar Series, addressing such programs as nuclear medicine, radiological technology, optometry, medicine, nursing, pharmacy, medical technology, physical therapy, veterinary medicine, dentistry and industry.

Information on standardized entrance exams, clinical volunteer work, licensing and internships will be provided through presentations and question and answer sessions.

For more information, call the APSU chemistry department at 221-7626 or e-mail, Dr. Ron Robertson, associate professor of chemistry, at robertsonr@apsu.edu or ShaRee McIntosh at shareemcintosh@hotmail.com

Student square dances for award-winning team

by Heather Lyles
guest writer

A student at Austin Peay State University is a member of an award-winning square-dance team.

Cynthia Durdin, a sophomore at APSU, has been a member of the Rocky Top Revue for eight years.

Durdin, who took clogging lessons as a child, was discovered by the traditional square dancing team at a barn dance.

The Rocky Top Revue took first place at this year's Square Dance state championships in Smithville.

They have won the competition seven times.

After winning at the state level, the team competed against 50 other teams in the regional championship, which took place Oct. 28 in North Carolina.

The Rocky Top Revue took first place in their division and finished fourth in the overall competition.

"It's an unusual hobby but it's rewarding and fun," says Durdin. "It is the only activity outside of school that I have time for, but I enjoy it."

The team has also performed at the Opryland Hotel, a fan club party for country singer John Berry and a charity auction for diabetes at the Wildhorse Saloon.

Basketball head coach "perfect fit" for APSU

by Yvette Throgmorton
guest writer

The coach of Austin Peay State University's mens' basketball team is said to be the "perfect fit" for APSU, providing exciting basketball for Gobs' fans.

Coach Loos became the 11th head coach for the mens' team on July 14, 1990.

He is also in his fourth year as Austin Peay's athletic director. Loos came to APSU after four seasons as Memphis State's top assistant.

At Memphis State, Loos helped direct his team to an 85-43 record and two NCAA tournament berths.

Loos is the second coach to lead the Governors to an OVC regular-season co-championship and NCAA Division I tournament berth.

His Gobs played for the OVC tourney title three of the last four years and have advanced to at least the OVC tourney semifinals in the last four seasons.

In 1994-1995, APSU finished the regular season at 12-15 and pulled two upsets in the OVC tournament. In 1995-1996, the Governors held an 8-2 record in February, including six straight victories. The Gobs entered the NCAA tourney with a four-game winning streak before losing to Georgia Tech.

In 1996-1997, APSU finished 17-14 overall with All-American Bubba Wells missing the season's first 12 games.

They won six of their final eight games, including a four-game-winning streak that helped clinch a regular season OVC co-championship. In 1997-1998, despite a rebuilding season, the Gobs finished the season with a surprising 17-11 record and took fourth-place in the OVC.

In 1998-1999 the Gobs finished third-place and last season the Gobs held an 18-10 record. The 18 wins represented the most regular-season wins by the Gobs since 1976-1977.

"We are very excited about the upcoming season. We think this is our best chance to contend for the OVC Championship in several years. Our team returns several proven veterans and some promising newcomers. It should be an exciting season," Loos said.

Weight lifting relieves stress

Students work out to stay healthy physically and mentally

Mike Lewellen
Staff writer

As cold weather comes rolling in, some Austin Peay State University students are not only with last-minute homework and finals, but also with trying to stay healthy throughout the winter season.

A good way to keep healthy and battle stress is to stay in shape through exercising and weight lifting.

"I go to the YMCA about four to five times a week and it keeps me in shape and helps me deal with the stress that school brings," said Eric Hawkins.

Working out with a partner helps tremendously in the motivation process of working out and keeping fit. "You always have someone there in case help is needed with an exercise or just to keep you in tune with your workout," said Hawkins.

"It's nice to have someone there to talk to and help out during spots during your workouts. It makes exercising not feel like such a task by creating a more social environment," said Chase Smith.

Studies show that many college students who exercise regularly feel less stress during their years in school.

Exercise relieves tension and anxiety and also helps to promote concentration and health.

"When I workout I just let go of everything that has happened during the day and focus on exercising," said Bryan Bryant. "Staying in shape makes me sleep better and I just simply feel better about myself as a whole."

Exercising is a great way to promote self-health.

Regular physical activity is not only good for your body, but it is also just as great for your mind.

Exercising helps some Austin Peay students stay sane and healthy, while battling classes, work and social life.

Students have free access to a student weight room in the Dunn Center where the concessions used to be located on the second level.

When the new University Center is complete, the cafeteria and food court will move into it, the current cafeteria will be turned into the bookstore and the bookstore will be made into a state-of-the-art weight room for students.

dents.

In addition, currently, classes and activities are available at the Red Barn for all students. Hours for classes, when the pool is open and when the gym is open are posted in the Red Barn. For more information about this, contact the Office of Intramurals at 221-7564.

anks," said Pleasant.

Steven White, who is one of two current seniors in the men's team is in rehabilitation nursing an injured rotator cuff he had surgery on over summer. He has been one of the strongest doubles player's the team over the past two years and the team has surely missed him, especially this past fall season. He says he cannot wait to get back into training.

"I hate sitting on the sidelines and seeing my teammates out there playing and training without me, especially in my senior year. My shoulder is not really healing as fast as I would like it to but I am hoping that I will be 100 percent for the spring season in January," said White.

The men's and women's tennis teams will continue to train until the last week of school, and by then, they should be showing signs of increased strength and stamina.

Award

International Education Center.

"We hope that these scholarships will motivate and encourage students' educational efforts in international pursuits," he says.

Smart is owner of May's Woks Restaurant on Wilma Rudolph Boulevard and Chan is owner of Hong Kong Wok on Madison Street.

The first scholarships will be awarded next spring and recipients should have a minimum GPA of 3.0. Other stipulations will be determined as established by the International Education Scholarship Committee.

The award isn't renewable, but applicants may re-apply.

For more information about the scholarships, contact Fung at 221-7175 or call the APSU Office of University Advancement at 221-7127.
