Two Awarded Business Scholarships

Business scholarships have recently been awarded to two freshmen students at Austin Peay State College. Alan Browning of Clarksville, and Kenneth Perkins of Memphis are the recipients of the scholarships.

Browning, an accounting major, received the Clarksville Retail Furniture Association's scholarship for $180 per year. Perkins received the Associate Finance Company's scholarship for $150 per year.

The scholarships, awarded on the basis of scholarship, character, and need, must be reapplied for each year. However, most students do continue to hold them.

Advisor To JFK Visits Kahng

Dr. John Prior Lewis economist from Bloomington, Indiana, visited Professor Michael Kahng of the Economics Department at Austin Peay State College last week-end on his way to Washington, D. C., where he will serve as economic advisor to President Kennedy. He was Professor Kahng's major advisor at Indiana University.

In December the President chose Dr. Lewis to fill a vacancy on his three member Council of Economic Advisors, but according to Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, Dr. Lewis' academic commitments would not permit him to take it.

Campus Mass Held

The Austin Peay State College Newman Club officially began its Winter Quarter activities with a Mass Sunday, Jan. 20.

Rev. Robert Hofstetter, State Chaplain of Newman Clubs, offered the Mass at 10 a.m. in the recreation room of the Memorial Health Building.

Following the Mass, a breakfast for Father Hofstetter and the officers of the club was served at the home of Frances Butler. Fernando Lopez, an exchange student from Brazil, was also a guest at the breakfast.

An informal business meeting was held after the breakfast. Father Hofstetter answered questions and made suggestions as to how the Newman Club at APSC might attain a more active membership.

Father Hofstetter congratulated the officers for the fine job they have done in establishing the Newman Club on campus and expressed the hope that they will continue in their efforts during the remainder of the year.

Combo Dance

On Friday

Feel like dancing? Then get a date and come over to the gym Friday night, when the sophomore class sponsors a dance.

From 8 to 11 the Spinners, a Nashville combo, will beat out the sound for couples and stars. Admission is 50¢ per person.

Burton Presents Music Recital

Alice Burton, senior music education major at Austin Peay State College, was presented in a piano recital at the Clement Fine Arts Auditorium on Friday, January 18, at 8 p.m.

The recital was in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the Degree of Bachelor of Science in Music Education.

The program included selections by Bach, Brahms, Debussy, and Bartok.

Alice, from Sturgis, Kentucky, is presently studying with W. Jackson Hart and has studied with Peter Cook at APSC.

Alice left yesterday for Orlando, Fla., where she has accepted a position in the elementary school system.

'Torch Game' Discontinued

The "Torch Game" between rivals David Lipscomb and APSC has been discontinued, according to college administrative officials here.

Willard Collins, vice-president of David Lipscomb, stated in correspondence with administrators officers here that, "In view of the fact that Austin Peay State has gained admission to the Ohio Valley Conference, and that the 'Torch Game' has not fostered the kind of feeling between the schools that was originally proposed; it would be better for the game to be discontinued."

Administrative officers here complied with his request also feeling that the game would lose its luster since APSC is now a member of the OVC and will soon resign from the Volunteer State Athletic Conference.

Spenser, Miller Receive Awards

Ore Spenser, a 1954 graduate of Austin Peay State College, and Jack B. Miller, long-time supporter of the College, have been given the Distinguished Service Award and the Senior Citizen of the Year Plaque, respectively.

The awards were given at the annual Junior Chamber of Commerce's D.S.A. and Boosters' Night Banquet last Tuesday night.

The Distinguished Service Award is given to the man who has contributed notably to the welfare of the community, who possesses leadership ability, and who promotes progress in his personal and business life. He must be between the ages of twenty-one and thirty-five.

The Senior Citizen Award is given to the Clarksville citizen who has contributed much to his fellowman in both his business and private life.

Miller, 81, one of the boys' dormitories on the APSC campus, was named after Miller.

The "Torch Game," originated in 1957, was patterned after the Olympic Games. The "Torch" was an emblem of victory and the winning school gained the honor of keeping the torch for one year and relaying it, via 110 runners, to the losing campus for the next important battle.

The series of six games concluded with APSC holding a commanding 5-1 margin. The Gavs captured the treasured torch in 1957 and 1958, lost in 1959, and won the last three encounters.

New Cheerleaders Support Gavs

ANDERSON WELKER

Cheering with the Austin Peay State College cheering squad this quarter are two new girls, Jean Anderson and Jan Welker. Both girls are members of the sophomore class. Jean and Jan, formerly alternate cheerleaders, moved up to the regular squad when Judy Garrison and Linda Winders did not return this quarter.

Jean is an elementary education major from Madison, Tennessee. She is secretary of the sophomore class.

Jan, biology major and chemistry minor from Clarksville, is an active member of the Tri Beta and the Methodist Student Movement.

Costume Winners Selected

One of the strangest announcements in the history of Austin Peay State College was made during student assembly on Wednesday, January 16. It was made by a seven foot creature infamously known as Frankenstein's Monster (Warren Chance).

The announcement was concerned with a certain Playboy Costume Ball, sponsored annually by the APSC Playhouse, which was to take place that night on the stage of the Clement Auditorium.

The stage was decorated with pinpoints of gayly colored lights focusing upon a stage over which a giant Playboy Rabbit stood and observed the costumes that passed beneath.

The night was highlighted by an entertaining program and the judging of the costumes. Furnishing the entertainment for the evening were the Five Freshmen, a female singing group with vocalists Anita Needham and Ann Pettie. Judging the contest were Dr. and Mrs. George Ackley and Mr. and Mrs. Charley Sheppard. Doug Tidwell, master of ceremonies, announced the winners. They are: best dressed costume, couple, Yan Gi Pac and Jean Gibson, both of whom came disguised as Korean peasants; best dressed costumed female, Sandra Davenport, who came as a "French Madame"; and the winning male costume award was awarded to Warren Chance, who came as the "Mummy."

PLAYBOY PARTY — Costume winners at the Playboy Party were Yan Gi Pac, Jean Gibson, Warren Chance, and Sandra Davenport.

Don't Kill A Club

Have you ever seen a large group of people shivel into a paltry few? Have you ever watched enthusiasm decay and become passiveness? Have you ever seen a club die?

Take a look around the Austin Peay State College campus. It is littered with the remains of dying organizations. A most every night of the week you can find one in some classroom, tired and emaciated. One of the causes of this condition is obviously a severe lack of responsible students.

We are a great bunch of joiners. Whether a cause develops in a dorm bull session or it comes from one of the faculty, we are ready to sign our name to the list of members. There the effort ends on our part. If we occasionally attend a meeting, one of three things usually happens. We either never have anything to say at the meetings, but wait until we get back to the dorm to express our opinions; we vote to do everything and then do nothing; or if we're asked to do something, we say that we don't have time.

Not only has this affliction engulfed many of the clubs on campus, but it has also infected the Student Council. The unifying power that stands between the students and the faculty and administration was compelled to enforce a rule for compulsory attendance in order to maintain a quorum at the meetings. It should be unnecessary to go to such lengths.

Before you join another club, stop and consider -- Do you have the time to attend another meeting? Can you afford to pay more dues? Will you serve on committees? Are you willing to exert more time, effort and suggestions and criticize less? Answer these questions objectively, and let your conscience be your guide.

Dorm Named
For Alleyne

By MARTY ARNOLD

Jerry G. Alleyne, senior at APSC, has been honored by having a dormitory named after him in Deland, Florida. The dormitory is named The Jerry G. Alleyne Hall.

In 1957, Jerry was one of three class officers in Deland where he attended the Deland High School. When three new dormitories were added to the campus, each building was named for one of these officers.

While formerly stationed at Fort Campbell, Jerry became associated with the college. In 1960, he enrolled here. He previously attended the University of Florida.

Jerry and his wife are widely known for their work with the mentally retarded children in and around Clarksville.

Upon receiving his degree, Jerry plans to teach in Deland. Also, he will coach the swimming team there. Jerry will graduate in August with a major in history and a minor in both English and psychology.

Mr. and Mrs. Alleyne presently reside in one of the married couples' apartments here on campus.

Dr. Henry Speaks
To English Club

Dr. J. Milton Henry, Professor of History at APSC, referred to Edgar Allan Poe as a master of the detective story at a recent meeting of the English Club.

Henry said that he feels that Poe excels Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, the creator of Sherlock Holmes. He also considers Poe superior to Daniel Defoe and Jonathan Swift as a creator of logical sequence.

Dr. Henry spoke on his favorite literary character in the first of the series of similar talks which is being sponsored by the English Club.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

Underwhelming Utterances

Step right up! Get your supply of yells and school spirit! Don't miss the great feeling you get after using it only one time. With just one memory of the APSC - David Lipscomb game, you'll be convinced that no one should be without a can.

In case of a party raid go to your nearest bomb shelter, which is located in the basement of the Fine Arts Building. Go in orderly fashion at the first alarm. Do not panic. Your friendly campus policemen will be on hand to assist.

Masses arise and unite! Become as one! Shed your individuality and CONFORM! Doesn't that make everything so much simpler. Now there's no problem of which one has the Toni.

The big sophomore prez, T. Curtis, says: "Put a little fun in your life, go to the combo dance Friday night." From 11 you can forget that English exam that you've got next week. Besides, they need the money.

"Eek - Eek! Stamp-e-e-ede!" Crunch. Well, there goes another.

other one. They'll just never learn. Remember when in the girls' dorm, never be caught in the hall when the telephone rings, or have on your speedy U. S. Keds. The life you save may be the one who gets the next phone call.

Have you got a little knitting to do or a book you've been wanting to read? Haven't got time for your hobbies? Take them to the cafeteria. While you stand in line to feed the ulcers, you can knit a whole wardrobe of clothes and read a library of books. It's just great the things you can accomplish as you wait. By the time you reach the trays you can have the girl in front of you dated up for the next month and be going steady by the time you pay the bill.

Thought for the day--Remember to stand at least 15 feet inside the door and KEEP MOVING!
Bosanova everybody!

Jesse Lamberth, vice-president of the Austin Peay State College student body, has been chosen "Man of the Month" for January.

Jesse, who is from White House, Tenn., is an example of a small town, ambitious young man who has selected and already begun a satisfying career.

A senior, Jesse completed his first year at Austin Peay State in 1954. In 1955 he was married and began working for Bell Telephone Company in Tennessee until he was transferred in 1957 to Gainesville, Fla. "When I began work at the telephone company, I received several breaks, and I had the opportunity to move up," Jesse related.

After working with the same company six years, Jesse decided to return to college, and he chose Austin Peay State again because, "I knew the school well and liked the people there," he stated.

I must conform, I must conform
I really ought to find a norm

And not above and not below,

But right upon the dot you know.

Perhaps some day we'll all conform

And lives will be secure and warm.

Then life and death will be one link

And men will neither live nor think.

Concerning his return to college after an absence of six years Jesse said, "I now have a more serious attitude concerning my academic work and my responsibilities, and I have my mind on what I am studying."

Although Jesse prefers rural life to the city, his ideal-size city is Gainesville with a population of approximately 30,000. He is only away from his job there on a leave of absence; therefore, upon graduation, he and his wife will return to Florida. "I really enjoy my work there, and it is what I wanted to do," he concluded.

Presently Jesse drives a Montgomery County high school bus every morning and afternoon.

Sideline Views

By

Ed

Fredette

It is always a pleasure to write when a team such as coach George Fisher's "Splendid Splinters" are winning and doing it in such fine fashion. I can earnestly say that I was skeptical before the roundball season began. I thought we were really in need of that "Big Man." Looks as if the scene has changed and my pessimism was in vain. The Govs aren't a tall squad, by any means, but they possess is much more enjoyable to watch as a spectator. They possess determination and desire. They never quit and are the closest-knit group of athletes I have ever seen. They are undoubtedly a team that is all for one. They are serious-minded on the hardwood and off the court they are joyful and laughable characters.

Naturally, I am prejudiced as I am a loyal fan and ardent follower of basketball, but coach George Fisher, in my opinion, is the finest coach in the Ohio Valley Conference and Volunteer State Athletic Conference. We should all be proud that we are blessed with such a fine head mentor.

Seldon "Frog" Stead is the silent man on our Govs basketball team. In case you are wondering, I have chosen the name "Frog." It is obvious when you see him go up for one of his many rebounds. It is "look out, rafters." He rarely comes down without something in his hands.

Among his many duties as trainer and assistant to Dennis Vaughn, head manager of the basketball team, Nick Nichols is starting early this year working out for his specialty in track. Nick is a splendid 400 yard-dash man on the track team. He works out in Pettus Park, so if you happen to pass the park and see a man in a "Red Riding Hood" outfit, it's Nick doing his road work. It is never too early to be a winner — even if track starts in April — is Nick's philosophy.

Surprising as it might seem, girl's basketball isn't played in the North in high school competition. Up North, a man may breeze by a conversation with a woman as a woman's knowledge on the game isn't too broad. I would like to warn Northerners attending APSC, don't talk basketball with a woman down South. Invariably, you'll end up with your foot in your mouth.

Here's a chance to see the fastest game on Ice. The P. E. Club is sponsoring a trip to Nashville on Feb. 1 to see the much improved Nashville hockey team in a match against Knoxville. The trip, plus admission to the game, is only $175. Ordinarily it costs anywhere from $1.50 to $3.00, just game admission. Tickets are on sale in the Student Center now, so for an enjoyable evening, bring a date and enjoy a wonderful sport on ice. This might be an eye catcher. The girls have late permission, providing they go on the bus. Remember that's Feb. 1, bus leaving at 5:30.

Anyone for badminton? Once again our fine P. E. Club has presented a challenge to anyone interested in extracurricular activities. If interested in improving your skill in badminton, your entry must be in by Feb. 1. This is a single tournament and the champion will receive a trophy for his skill and ability.

I have talked to many individuals who were so-called authorities on statistics, but our own Sherman Clift, director of public information, is one individual you "can't pull the wool" over his eyes. Mr. Clift and his hearty staff of Tony Boehms, John Martin, Buzz Stone and Corky Carbone, who cover our football, basketball and spring sports events are known for their speed, accuracy and efficiency. I have visited many press boxes, both in the VSAC and the OVC, and have yet to find a more competent crew than our own. Mr. Clift, undoubtedly, takes his work home with him at night, as no other publicity man can compare with him in his department.

BOB TURNER

Sophomore center, Bob Turner, has been selected for the remainder of the season. Bob suffered a fractured ankle during the holiday practice session. We hope Bob's ankle mends satisfactorily and he will be back stronger than ever next year.

Little Man With A Big Job

By TONY BOEHMS

The average sports viewer will attend game after game and never realize what a job the little man with the towels in one hand and a medicine chest in the other hand really has to do to keep the team on the floor in top shape. Dennis Vaughan, head student basketball manager at APSC, will be glad at any time to have someone attempt to keep up with him as he performs his duties.

When 16 enthusiastic, gangling basketballers come charging into the little room, which Dennis would like to call his private office, with several hundred requests, what is a little man to do but supply their demands.

Dennis is in charge of supplying all such equipment as basketballs, tape, towels, jerseys and all essentials that the team might need during a game or practice session.

His work requires every minute of his spare time, in addition to the time that either the varsity or freshmen teams are playing a competitive game or practicing.

Among his other duties are the responsibility of supplying the visiting team's needs, driving the team on road trips, locking the gym after games, changing the scoreboard between games and keeping uniforms clean and ready for action.

Dennis, a junior business education major, carries a lighter load during the fall and winter quarters of about 14 hours, in order that he can perform his duties and slip in some study time in between.

When Dennis was asked to compare his two years of managing in high school with his experiences in college, he said, "There is a much greater responsibility, and I am on my own so much more than I really enjoy my job better than I did in high school."

So the next time you see coach George Fisher pat one of his boys on the back for a job well done, remember there is another man on the bench that is just as proud of his boys as the coach.

Govs Stretch Win Streak

By JOHN MARTIN

The Governors stretched their win streak to six straight by winning three games last week.

The victories were over the Florence State Indians, the David Lipscomb Bisons and the Union University Bulldogs.

GOVERNORS 89 -- INDIANS 85
The Govs were led by Doug Stamper (25 points), Steve Miller (23 points), Seldon Stead (13 points) and Jim Sugg (11 points).

Led by Miller (16 points), Stamper and Sugg (12 points each) and Jim DeForest (11 points), the Govs defeated arch rival David Lipscomb for their fifth straight win.
GOVERNORS 85 -- BULLDOGS 83

The "Big Red" were victorious again. Stamper (24 points), DeForest (21 points) and Henry Murray (15 points and 16 rebounds) led the Govs.

Sportlight

Steve Miller, 6-5 forward, has been selected for the Sportlight this week for his outstanding play in the Govs' games against Florence State and David Lipscomb. Steve averaged 19.5 points and 10.5 rebounds in the two games.

Freshmen Win Six Straight

By JOHN MARTIN

The freshman basketball team, coached by former Gov cage star Fred Overton, has compiled a 7-4 record for the season. At first glance, this record appears to be only an average one. However, since the Christmas holidays, the record reads 6-0. Leading the baby Govs is Ken Rose, a 6-3 195 pound forward from Oxford, Ohio. Rose has scored 287 points for an average of 26.1 points per game. He has also been the leading rebounder, sweeping the boards at an 11.6 per game average.

Giving Rose ample support in the scoring column are: Dave Hohl (124 points, 11.3 avg.), Jerry Sizz (110 points, 10.0 avg.), Virgil McElfresh (100 points, 9.1 avg.) and Roger Purty (108 points, 9.4 avg.).

For the first time the freshmen are averaging 81.7 points per game while giving up an average of 73.7 points. During the six game win streak the freshmen have been averaging 83.0 points while yielding only 68.3 points per game.

Commenting on the current success of the team, coach Overton said: "Most of our suc-

The freshmen play prior to each of the varsity home games, starting at 5:30. Some of the future home opponents of the freshmen are: Western Kentucky, Vanderbilt University, Kentucky Wesleyan and Murray State.

Govs Travel To Lipscomb

By TONY BOEHMS

The Governors will be shooting to add two more victories to their credit this week when they travel to David Lipscomb Thursday and return to host Arkansas State Saturday night.

The Govs will invade the Lipscomb court for another one of the traditional hard fought contests between the two schools. The Governor crew should be ruled a slight favorite after their resounding victory last week, but the home court factor should have some effect on the final score.

The Governors will return Saturday night after a week on the road to host the Arkansas State Indians at 7:30 p.m. The Govs will be out to better a 75-71 overtime victory over the Indians who hold impressive wins over Tulane, New Mexico State and Mount Oklahoma.

The Baby Govs will play pregame contests prior to both varsity games.
