Barbara Heller to speak

One of the nation's leading authorities on energy and natural resources will share her views on politics, women's issues, energy and resources this morning at Austin Peay State University.

Barbara M. Heller, former deputy under secretary for the U.S. Department of the Interior, will speak at 11 a.m. in Austin Peay's Clement Auditorium. The public is invited.

Heller, now a resident of Crowheart, Wyo., was instrumental in development of the Trans-Alaska Pipeline when she served with the Department of the Interior from 1977 to 1979.

Legislation and administration policy reconciling the national interest in the Outer Continental Shelf energy was a major accomplishment for her while serving as deputy under secretary.

Heller served as departmental representative to various organizations, including the Steering Committee of the United Nations Conference on Science and Technology for Developing Countries and the White House Task Force on Women.

Presently Heller serves as consultant to the Secretary of the Interior on water resource management and to the Congressional Office of Technology Assessment on resource and economic impacts of the Missile System.

Admission to today's lecture, sponsored by Austin Peay Visiting Artists and Speakers Series committee is free. Classes and groups are encouraged to attend. For more information contact Arthur Goldsmith, 648-7348.

Music convention set for APSU

Austin Peay State University's music department will host the 21st annual meeting of the South Central chapter of the American Musicological Society April 15 and 16.

The organization consists of university musicians working in the fields of music history and theory. Representatives from Tulane University, Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Boston University, Georgia and Arkansas will attend the meeting with sessions to be held in Clement Auditorium.

A roundtable discussion on musicology and music criticism will be held during the two-day meeting with David Fellows of Manchester University in the United Kingdom serving as guest participant. Guest speaker for the banquet April 15 will be Hugh Ackerman, professor of history at Austin Peay.

The central presentation of the meeting will be made by the chapter's special guest, Gerhard Herz, professor emeritus of music history at University of Louisville. Herz is an internationally known authority on the music of Johann Sebastian Bach. His lecture will deal with the use of the chorus in Bach's cantatas.

The performance will be at Trinity Episcopal Church at 8:15 p.m., April 15. Herz will give an introductory talk before the musical program. The public is invited to the admission-free event.

Briefly

Geology talk offered

The next speaker in "Geology as a Profession" will be Don Rima, Ground Water Resources, Department of Public Health, Nashville. The talk is scheduled for April 19, at 1 p.m. in Ziegler Building, room 201. Everyone is welcome.

AMG to hold election

The Gamma Iota Chapter of Alpha Mu Gamma, the national collegiate foreign language honor society, will hold an election of officers Friday, April 15, at 3 p.m. in the Clement Building room 342.

Make-up offered

Students who are graduating in June or August and are seeking professional teacher certification are asked to contact Rachel Tate at Claxton room 201 by April 18 if they missed the National Teacher Examination Core Battery Tests. A date will be set for special administration of the tests.

Recruiters needed

The University School Relations office will have two openings for graduate assistants during the 1983-84 academic year. Students selected will be actively involved in student recruitment, attending college-day programs, high school visitation and other duties, according to Dick Littleton.

Interested students should make application to the graduate office or contact Littleton or Charles McCorkle about the openings. The University School Relations office is currently in the process of moving to the first floor of Ellington Hall.

$300 Women's prize

The Warioro chapter of the American Business Women's Association is offering a $300 scholarship for a female student at Austin Peay who demonstrates a financial need.

Interested women are asked to submit a letter citing their grades and need to Rachel Rushing, c/o the Clarksville Credit Bureau, by April 26. The recipient will be announced May 10.

10K run April 16

The Cumberland Run for Easter Seals, sponsored by Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity and Miller High Life is slated for Saturday, April 16 at Vanderbilt University.

The 10,000 meter race begins at 9:00 a.m. in the parking lot north of Dudley Field on the Vanderbilt campus.

T-shirts will be provided for all runners and trophies will be awarded in the usual age categories.

Entry fees are $5 in advance and $6 on the day of the run.

Persons interested in participating can register by calling 1-615-292-6639.

Writers' Workshop April 21

by Margaret Langford
Associate Editor

The department of languages and literature will host the Fifth Annual Writers' Workshop April 21 through 23.

Fiction writers Robert Herring of Murfreesboro and Steve Stern of Memphis will conduct the workshops and hold readings during the weekend.

Students interested in having their work read and discussed at one of the workshops should submit a typed piece of fiction to Malcolm Glas, department of languages and literature, by April 18.

Students should also indicate if one of the two sessions is preferred, and bring eight to 10 copies of their stories to the workshop. Institutional absences will be granted to students attending.

Glass says, "Students may leave stories in my mailbox, CL 332, or slide them under my office door, CL 346, or send them by carrier pigeon."

The Saturday talk and discussion by Stern and Herring will be held at the Clarksville-Montgomery County Public Library at 9:30 a.m.

Glass says, "We're trying to include the community in this event, so we've scheduled one discussion for Saturday at the Public Library. We hope to reach beyond the student population."

The Tennessee Literary Arts Association held a fiction writers competition to choose the writers to conduct this workshop. "A panel of judges at the

Rape seminar Thursday

"Your best defense against rape is prevention," according to organizers of a rape seminar to be held at Austin Peay State University.

Avoiding situations that might lead to a rape and defending yourself will be focal points of the seminar, "Rape: Awareness and Self-Defense." Three sessions are planned for Thursday's seminar in Austin Peay's University Center Ballroom.

Master-of-fact and common sense information about how to protect yourself from a potential rapist will be shared by Austin Peay police officers Loris Ellsworth and Steve Liebach.

Ellsworth said simple things can be used for defense, such as car keys, if handled properly. "That will be the type of self-defense we'll be sharing with those coming to the seminar," she said.

Offered by Austin Peay's Counseling and Testing Center and university police, seminar sessions are 9-10:30 a.m., 2-3:30 p.m. and 7-8:30 p.m.

Army camp tests cadets

Doing things never thought possible before was the trademark of Reserve Officer Training Corps summer basic camp for five Austin Peay State University students.

The five ROTC cadets participated in six weeks of rigorous summer training at Fort Knox, Ky., as part of the requirements for the ROTC program. They agree that summer camp actually gave them some insight into whether an Army career was really what they wanted.

Debbie Boardman, due to graduate from Austin Peay this spring with a commission as a second lieutenant, already held a bachelor's degree when she approached the Austin Peay ROTC cadre about attending summer camp.

"My husband is in the Army and we moved here," she explained. "I had been a probation officer before and just couldn't find a job in Clarksville. That commercial-'Be all you can be'-was a glimmer of hope so I decided to look into becoming an officer myself."

Boardman wanted to make sure of her decision and summer camp gave her that insight to Army life. Capt. Bryan Wiles, who teaches military science at Austin Peay, said the camp does not commit a student to serving with ROTC, but it does allow them to enter the program directly at the beginning of their junior year.

"Other students choose to take the courses we offer while freshmen and sophomores," he explained. "Then, they do not have to go to summer basic camp."

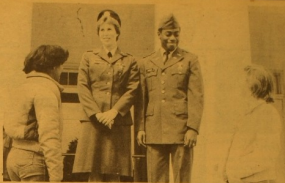

Boardman and her fellow cadets feel summer camp has advantages over courses, too. "We wore uniforms, and it was just a more realistic impression of the Army to go through summer camp than going through classes," Boardman said.

Calvin Gager of Hopkinsville, Ky., agrees with Boardman. "I thought about going into ROTC when I was a freshman, but decided it would be better to go through basic camp," he said.

Wiles, military science instructor at Austin Peay, said camp also prepared cadets for the ROTC labs held each Thursday during the school year. Military skills are learned during those labs, with the cadets completing summer basic camp acclimating quickly to what is being taught.

He said ROTC competitive scholarships are available through summer basic camp.

For more information about Austin Peay's ROTC program or attending summer basic camp, telephone Wiles at 648-6155.

SHARING RECOLLECTIONS—ROTJ summer basic camp are Catherine Roberts of Memphis, Deborah Boardman of Clarksville, Calvin Gager of Hopkinsville and Cornelia Krebe of Clarksville.

Congressman Don Sundquist Reports...

from Washington

Congress has enough difficulty dealing with domestic economic problems, much less coming to grips with politically and morally sensitive issues. That's particularly true with questions surrounding crime - specifically capital punishment, a subject that will continue to be controversial as long as crime exists.

As a member of Congress, my influence on the capital punishment issue is limited to those crimes under federal jurisdiction. But we congressmen can and should set an important example for the rest of the nation by developing specific, Constitutional, and effective legislation on this subject.

Capital punishment, indeed, is a difficult and perplexing issue. But I'm absolutely convinced that it works to save the lives of innocent people by serving as a deterrent to heinous crimes. If that is so, then refusing to execute killers in certain kinds of cases amounts to refusing to prevent the deaths of innocent persons - and that, clearly, would be immoral.

Sophisticated research I've seen strongly suggests that the death penalty is a deterrent. Furthermore, the principal argument against the deterrent effect is weak. The argument is that in jurisdictions where capital punishment has been abolished, there has been no immediate or sharp increase in what had been capital crimes. But in those jurisdictions, the actual act of abolishing the death penalty was insignificant because for years the death penalty had been imposed rarely, if at all.

Common sense dictates that the fear of death can deter some premeditated crimes, including some murders.

Capital punishment undeniably is horrible. But the fact that it is horrible is why it can deter, and why - deterrence aside - it is a proper expression of virtuous sentiments.

One specific piece of legislation I support would enable the death penalty to be used as punishment for the assassination of the President or Vice President. The supreme penalty is an appropriate response to the supreme crime.

The debate over the precise deterrent effect of capital punishment promises to continue. But it is difficult to imagine that each execution fails to deter at least one murder of an innocent victim. This alone justifies its use.

Walter Berns, a writer put it appropriately: "Capital punishment, like Shakespeare's dramatic and Lincoln's political poetry, serves to remind us of the majesty of the moral order that is embodied in our law and of the terrible consequences of its breach. Criminal law must remind us of the moral order by which alone we can live as human beings, and in our day the only punishment that can do this is capital punishment."

Security wasting tax dollars

Dear Editor:

Recently, the APSU campus police have been a topic of debate in the All State and around the campus in general. Most comments regard the police and enforcement of university parking rules, and tickets received.

Well, violators are going to be caught and ticketed, that is the way life works. Break the rules and you must accept the consequences.

I have no complaint in the matter of parking tickets, however, I do find the attitude of some of the officers hard to take. They do not see themselves as just instruments enforcing the rules, but above the rules. Repeatedly, one of the female officers has parked her vehicle, a state owned and fueled vehicle, behind the McCord building while checking for the infamous parking violators.

She jumps out, ticket book in hand, and leaves the engine running in her automobile. Would she do this if she were paying for the gasoline?

I dare say she wouldn't. Her attitude is that, being a cop, she doesn't need any advice on how to be a little more efficient.

The world is still running out of gasoline and petroleum products, and this lady cop lets her engine idle several minutes at a time while out walking her beat.

This type of wastefulness, especially from public workers, is a great part of our national circumstance.

I would suggest that the people who work for APSU and allied services, should be damn glad to have a job. Yet all we hear about is how bad things are for the public employee. There is an interaction here that cannot continue to go on.

How much longer is the general public going to be willing to support such outlandish waste? After all, when graduated, college students with their greater economic opportunity and income bracket will be required to pay more taxes, once they become gainfully employed.

If the public worker attitude of "waste it, I don't have to pay for it," continues there won't be enough money generated from taxes to pay for campus police, maintenance and groundskeepers (who pick up the trash students so thoughtlessly spread around), or the teachers, which is what the college is about.

Enough is enough! The campus cops are only one part of the problem, but that doesn't excuse the wholesale waste of resource and capital an idling police car represents.

If the campus police want respect, I suggest they earn it, not expect it merely because they wear a uniform, badge, and a loaded .357 magnum on their hip.

The car with the engine running is only an example, and it is up to the people who foot the bill, the taxpayers, to tell the cops we expect better use of our hard-earned money taken from us in taxes. Public waste has to stop, and the idling cop car is a real good place to start.

Pikes thank dignitaries

Dear Editor:

On Tuesday evening, April 5th, the brothers and little sisters of the Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity (PIKES) served dinner for Governor Lamar Alexander, Mayor and Mrs. Ted Crosier, Senator and Mrs. Halbert Harvill, President and Mrs. Robert O. Riggs, and many more statemen and guests.

It was an honor to be a part of the tribute to Senator Harvill who played a vital part in the administration of APSU for many years.

Immediately following the dinner, the brothers of Pi Kappa Alpha held our Spring Quarter Formal Snoker at the Pike House. We would like to express our thanks to Governor Lamar Alexander for the cordial remarks about our house and hope the entourage of aides and supporters enjoyed the evening and visit.

Editor breaks away to study beaver

OUTDOORS! No matter how hard I try to stay inside and do my job as the administration says I should (or wishes I would), I hear over and over again the calls of the great outdoors beckoning me.

I went an entire quarter without writing about the outdoors. It's been about six months since Pafford and Ewan ran our golf cart into the sink hole. I'm going through withdrawal. The outdoors sun is shining and the grass needs mowing. What's this? Standing outside my office (or in the Lamar Alexander theology "it's not my office, it's your office. I only get to occupy it for two quarters. Ya'll make yourselves at home."), I spot yet another migration in the beaver population amongst the roots of Drane Street.

A little more than six months ago I chronicled the migration of five dens of beaver from the area of campus beyond the bowl to Drane Street. Today I see signs of another den having dug its trough in this area while efforts are underway to obliterate another from its home.

Local game officials, particularly those directly involved with beaver control, were instrumental in the migration. While great attention was paid to bringing the more popular den of beaver into the Drane Street domain, nobody gave deleted about the specie which has habitually drawn the lowest membership.

Yes, my friends, this does prove that game wardens are subject to political pressure. For some dens to be in favor, others must be out of favor.

This is especially true when external forces highly favor the den of beaver noted by it's blue and white markings over the den known for its purple and white markings.

What can you say? Even environmentalists have their favorites. Those are the breaks, tough luck, too bad, sorry to see you go, etc., etc....

Nevertheless, we would like to wish the new den property in the Drane Street sanctuary. May you long enjoy the favoritism of the game control experts, whoever they may be next season.

Charles McCorkle in University/School Relations has been after me all quarter to say something good about him. So far I haven't been able to think of anything.

I even talked to Charles' friends (yes, both of them, and that wasn't any help. If you know of anything good I can say about Charles, please let me know.

With him and Dick Littleton moving their office in down the hall from us in Ellington, I know I'm not going to get any peace until I think of something.

This week the Feeble Folly goes to those who told me the N.C. State Wolfpack didn't stand a chance to win the NCAA Championship. are my addiction, the lucrative appeal of one more fix.

I can't stand it anymore! Call me weak. Call me a sniveling coward, I've had enough. The outdoors are my life, damn it (Sorry, I forgot the power tower doesn't like me to use those damn words).

I'm going outdoors. I'm not going to a budget meeting or a committee hearing. Those things bore the expletive out of me!

A day in the life of two journalists

Journalists have been known to be slightly bizarre and at most times introverts. I was once told by a particular female that journalists were the worst dressers. Come on Dan Rather, with CBS News, is a preposter!

Anyhow, the common myths journalists portray are mostly lies. The reporters and photographers I know are straight-forward deep thinking individuals. This leads me to tell you of what happened this past weekend with a journalist I know of.

Sitting at the office this weekend I was trying to Mike threw the tissue into the April wind as I watched it glide easily. I, following my editor and mentor, sailed out the window to join him in his timely much needed fun. I retrieved the tube of paper and sent it through the atmosphere to greet Mike.

After several throws, Mike felt he must show an even greater gesture. He took the remaining roll of tissue and charged up the hill toward the Browning administration building.

I, without question or protest, followed him. Sneaking up to the side doors of the Browning building, Mike proceeded to wrap toilet paper around the railing and doors. I never once uttered protest or discouragement. I was only a witness to a Sunday afternoon prank.

My thoughts centered around the possibility that one of our campus police would suddenly scream, "Hold it punk! Drop that toilet paper."

This scene never occurred, instead a local politician did walk by and looked at Mike as he rolled toilet paper around the doors that led to our noteworthy administrators. I, helpless and worried, only gave a look of confusion.

If you have read this far into my column it only means two things. One, you actually think this crazy episode of journalists is funny, or two, you are waiting for a simple conclusion.

I must pause and say "THANK YOU" for staying tuned to this column. Please write and give me any suggestions you may have to live up our newspaper or my column in particular.

Anyway, Mike and I climbed back into our office to finish preparations for this week's newspaper.

My original intention of this column was to illustrate to you that even journalists are human and enjoy a little goofing-off. You may do your goofing-off by watching T.V. or drinking, but I humbly say that We journalists enjoy our own type of relaxation.

Thank you again and have a good day!

work on a few things for this issue. Mike Lynch, you know him as editor of The All State, was busy on his own projects for the issue when he started to get restless.

Mike suddenly grabbed a roll of toilet tissue off his desk and jumped out the office window. This may sound like the beginning of another wild, bizarre tale of insane journalists, but it is actually an account of the down to earth things journalists as well as other students, participate in.

WE'LL PAY YOU TO GET INTO SHAPE THIS SUMMER.

If you have at least two years of college left, you can spend six weeks at our Army ROTC Basic Camp this summer and earn approximately $600.

And if you qualify, you can enter the ROTC 2-Year Program this fall and receive up to $1,000 a year.

But the big payoff happens on graduation day. That's when you receive an officer's commission.

So get your body in shape (not to mention your bank account).

Alpha Kappa Alpha

We the sorors of Alpha Kappa Alpha would like to announce our Week which will begin April 24 and continue until April 30. The highlight events will include the following: Block Party, Fashion Show, Toga Party, Step Show and Dance, Mr. Esquire Contest, Picnic and Pink and Green Ball.

Look for the posters and flyers which will be put up at a later date.

Alpha Tau Omega

The brothers of Alpha Tau Omega are looking forward to Spring Camp-out '83. We have planned a canoe trip on the Buffalo River. The dates set for the campout are April 15, 16, and 17. We will camp at Beech Bend Park at Perryville, Tenn., and on the 16th we will take a 25 mile canoe trip on the Buffalo. All alumni, actives and little sisters are welcome to go. We give a special thanks to Whit Lewis, from Linden, Tenn. who is a freshman here at APSU, for organizing arrangements for the campsites and canoe rental.

The Taus hope you enjoyed the previous rush parties, Casino, Inside Out, Southern Rock, and Preference. We had a good time at the parties and are looking forward to more social events through the rest of the quarter.

There has been a change in officers, Joe Jellison is the new vice president and Lynn Hollingsworth is the Historian. We congratulate these men and also congratulate the change in little sisters offices and installation of the new little sisters. Officers are Julie Leaser-President, Susan Johnson-Vice-President, Brenda Featherstone-Treasurer, and Lynn Takacs-Secretary. The sisters installed are Kim Adcock, Carolyn Boring, Betsy Christoph, Cathy Cronover, Cindy Johnson, Becky Harris, Patay Littleton, Carol Rubin and Jodie Smith.

Kappa Delta

Congratulations Kappa Delta sorority for working so hard to win Sigma Chi Derby Week last Friday night. Also congratulations to Chi Omega for coming in second and Little Signs for coming third.

We also just celebrated our tenth anniversary and Emerald Ball last Saturday night.

Sigma Chi

Last week Sigma Chi lived up the campus with Derby Week. In charge of Derby were our "Derby Daddies" Phil Daniela, and Mark Boone, both of which did an excellent job. Derby is an annual event on campus across the U.S. in which sororities compete against each other in order to raise money for Sigma Chi's Wallace Village, a home for children with minimal brain damage.

Last Sunday we had our yearly elections of officers. Johnny Miller, Keith Norris and Bob Heriges were re-elected to their offices of Consul, Quartermaster and Rush Chairman respectively. New officers are: Louis Smith, Pro Consul; David Gass, Annotator; Terry Delgado, Magister; Chuck Dudas, Tribune; Greg Clement, Kustos and Rollow Welch, Historian.

Coming events: Luan, Chi Pledge Class initiation and our 10th anniversary White Rose.

She Stoops runs course on even keel

When reviewing any form of artistic expression, the work usually has one or two major flaws or attributes which the critic can focus his comments on, and often pick to death.

This is not the case with last week's production of Oliver Goldenmith's She Stoops to Conquer by the Austin Play Playhouse.

While the production was, for the most part, entertaining, it lacked any glaring strengths or weaknesses. This is not necessarily bad (sometimes an even keel is the ideal), however it does tend to limit the awkwardness of several actors who often found themselves fumbling to handle their clothing and assorted hand props. Nevertheless, this was not the fault of the costumes.

Griffin assembled as strong and experienced a cast as one could reasonably hope for in a local production. However, the performers were dealing with a brand of drama which few, if any, have experienced before.

The fabled dialects often led to inarticulate conversation. Nevertheless, I admire the attempt at achieving the proper dialect instead of passively shrugging it off and saying "gee, we can't do that, let's just speak Tennesseean."

Having worked with most of the cast on numerous occasions in other productions, it's hard for me to objectively evaluate the quality of acting. Based on the applause of the Saturday night audience, it seems safe to say they were well pleased with the individual performances, especially those of James Anderson, Tom Griffin, Lori Petty and Eddie Powers.

I found the individual performances entertaining (fading my personal prejudice into account), and spanning a broad spectrum of characteristics and personalities, from the irrepressible energy of Tom Griffin's Tony Lumpkin, to the rather sedate portrayal of Hastings by S.A. Winkley, to James Anderson's exaggerated pomp as Young Marlow.

Still, I couldn't help asking myself if I hadn't seen most of the actors do these same characters in different plays, as different characters, with different lines. The answer I keep hearing is a resounding "yes."

The Playhouse production of She Stoops to Conquer was a refreshing addition to the 1983 season which has thus far brought us Inherit the Wind and The Subject Was Roses, and will culminate with J.B. The show ran its course well, veering neither too far to the left nor the right, and resulting in an enjoyable, though not outstanding, production.

criticism to a general checklist of the production's elements.

She Stoops to Conquer and other plays of the restoration genre should carry a strong warning for 20th century audiences, "Realists Beware!"

Logic and realism have no place in the highly-stylized plays of this period. Drama is a reflection of life and restoration authors deliberately used a slightly distorted mirror.

The Playhouse production, under the direction of John Griffin, was appreciative of this fact. Nowhere was restoration technique better utilized than in Dr. Tom Pallen's scene design. The set provided a basic structure to house the action of the play, with adornments to delineate the different settings.

The most appealing part of the visual aspect was the costumes by Lila Rogish. Mrs. Rogish's work is rarely confused with that of other costumers for local theatre groups because she constructs more than costumes.

Her creations are well-designed pieces of clothing which could as easily be worn as everyday clothing were it in the appropriate period.

The only noticeable drawback to the costumes was

OIL AND WATER-COLOR paintings by artist Jim Cantrell are on exhibit now in Trabern Gallery.

Marquez's life subject of April 29 lecture

The life and accomplishments of Nobel prize-winner Gabriel Garcia Marquez will be the focus of an April 29 lecture at Austin Peay State University.

Dr. Harley D. Oberhelman, professor of romance languages at Texas Tech University, will speak about Marquez at the 11 a.m. lecture in the College of Business Gentry Auditorium. The lecture is free and open to classes and the general public.

Offered in conjunction with Foreign Language Week at Austin Peay, Oberhelman's talk is part of the languages and literature department's Literature of the Americas Symposium.

Students from throughout the area have been invited to submit papers about Marquez for the symposium, which will be held following Oberhelman's lecture.

Oberhelman holds a Ph.D. in romance language from the University of Kansas and has been involved in the instruction of languages since 1960. He chaired Texas Tech's Latin American Area Studies until 1976.

In addition, Oberhelman served as associate editor of "Hispania" and was director of Oficina Nacional de Correspondencia Escolar from 1963 until 1965.

He has been a lecturer in linguistics in Argentina and was a Fulbright lecturer in English as a foreign language in 1961 at the National University of Tucuman, Argentina.

Listed in "Outstanding Educators of America," Oberhelman's principal fields of research and teaching are modern and contemporary Spanish American literature, River Plate literature, and applied linguistics and methodology of foreign language teaching.

The topic for Oberhelman's lecture, Marquez, worked as a journalist in Latin America, Europe and the United States before devoting his full attention to writing in 1965.

National signing day:

Austin Peay hopes to ink big men

This is the week in which college basketball games can be won or lost. Nary a jump shot will be taken or a turnover committed, yet today looms as one of the most important days of a college coaches' life. It's all or nothing. Make it, take it. Today is national letter-of-intent signing day.

FROM
GREEN

by Steve Harmon
Sports Editor

On this day, eras are born. High school and junior college standouts determine who will get to play in front of Al McGuire's broadcasts next year. The recruiting efforts have been 24 hours per day for weeks at a time. And today is payoff. It's all win—there's no place or show.

National signing day is equally important in the Austin Peay basketball offices as in the "major" powers. The efforts of head-to-head recruiting with the big schools may be rewarded today. At an Ohio Valley Conference school, landing a blue-chipper can bring immediate recognition to a league that, for the most part, is relegated to regional exposure.

According to Ron Bargatzke, APSU head coach, the recruiting war is unpredictable.

"It changes hourly. But I doubt seriously that we'll sign more than one or two players Wednesday," Bargatzke said from his office Monday. "There's some kids we really want who won't commit until after Wednesday."

"We were hoping (Wednesday) would be our big day. The only guys you usually get on your first day are your first choices—obviously you're not going to sign those down the list," Bargatzke said.

The Governor skipper, who recently completed a 11-16 campaign in his fourth year at the APSU helm, said his staff will sign "four to five" recruits.

At the top of their list of priorities, the APSU staff will go after big men.

"You always look for big players regardless of what you have coming back," Bargatzke said.

Austin Peay has contacted about 400 prospects. Sixty of those have been recruited, with 17 of those offered grants-in-aid.

Of the 17 prospects under consideration, 11 are high school seniors and six are enrolled in junior colleges. Four of the recruits are post players, standing 6-feet-8.

"We're recruiting kids that other people want which tells us we're barking up the right tree," Bargatzke said.

What's at the top of the tree may well determine how successful the 1983-84 Gobs become.

CALM DOWN—Words of encouragement are offered to freshman pitcher Larry Miller from Joe Baxter, Austin Peay head baseball coach. Miller picked up a win against Belmont Monday, Apr. 4. See page 15 for story.

PBR tourney starts Thursday

The Pabel Blue Ribbon softball tournament starts tomorrow afternoon on the Dunn Center field. Women's play begins at 4 p.m. with the men scheduled to play at 5 p.m. The tournament will run through Saturday.

According to Intramural Director Drew Simmons, team openings are still available. Simmons expects to have "six to eight women's teams and eight to ten men's teams" entered.

The Pikes will defend the men's title while Lil' Darlings return to defend the women's crown.

An IM softball team captain's meeting will be held Wednesday, Apr. 20 at 6 p.m. in room 107 of the IM Complex.

A clinic for intramural softball officials is scheduled for Thursday, Apr. 21 at 6 p.m. in room 107 of the IM Complex. The meeting is mandatory.

Lady Gobs host MTSU today

by Steve Harmon
Sports Editor

League rival Middle Tennessee will challenge the Austin Peay Lady Gobs tennis team in a 2 p.m. Ohio Valley Conference match on the APSU courts today. The teams met on Mar. 8 in Murfreesboro with MTSU claiming a 9-0 verdict.

The Lady Gobs are 4-6 on the season entering Tuesday's match at Western Kentucky.

"We played them at their place the first match of the (spring) season," Coach Cheryl Holt recalled of the MTSU match. "They're good. Overall, they're stronger than we are. We've got to be in top form."

"They're real strong at Nos. 2, 3 and 4," Australian Michele Girle is expected to be a strong test for Austin Peay's T.J. Kleynhans at the No. 1 singles spot," Holt said.

"For some reason I think we'll do better," Holt previewed. "Linda Hyllton has come in and done real well at No. 6 for us. Elana (Callis) and Miriam (Brown) have been hurt and Linda stepped in and beat the Western Kentucky girl last week (in the Murray four-team tournament). That was a good win for her."

"If we have everybody at full strength Wednesday, this match could be an indication of how well we'll do in the OVC," Holt said.

Along with Kleynhans at No. 1 singles, the Lady Gobs are expected to start Cynthia McGuffee at No. 2, and Sandy Cross at No. 3. Callis, Brown and Diane Koch are expected to fill the Nos. 4, 5 and 6 singles spots, respectively.

The Lady Gobs lost three matches in a quadrangular tournament at Kenlake Resort in Aurora, Ky. Friday and Saturday.

APSU fell to Western Kentucky 5-4 Friday before dropping matches to Murray State and Western Illinois by identical 7-2 scores Saturday.

Kleynhans won two of three singles matches on the weekend to improve her dual record to 8-5. The native South African teamed with Cross to win two of three doubles matches, also.

Women thinlies place fifth at Murray

by Michael L. Tharpe
Staff Reporter

The Austin Peay Lady Gov track squad placed fifth in the Murray State Invitational Saturday at Murray, Ky., while the men's squad advanced to the finals of only three events at the Dogwood Relays Friday and Saturday at the University of Tennessee at Knoxville.

According to Coach Mike Howard the Lady Goves could have finished higher, but key injuries slowed the squad down.

The 400 meter relay team of Kim Duncan, Cynthia Miller, Pat Avery and Marvella Williams placed second with a time of 47.8 seconds. Avery also finished first in the long jump with a 18'10.5" leap. The jump qualified her for the division II Nationals to be held later this spring.

Distance runner Mary Johnson won first place in the mile run with a 4:42.1 clocking. Debbie Colveta finished sixth in the mile in a time of 4:51.7.

Other top finishes for the Lady Goves included Marvella Williams with a third place finish in the 100 meter dash in a time of 11.8 seconds. The time qualified Williams for the Division II Nationals.

Kim Duncan and Renee Lowe finished third and fourth, respectively, in the long jump. Duncan turned in an 18'6" jump while Lowe jumped 15'4".

Alicia Lloyd had a fourth place finish in the 900 meter run with a time of 2:21.1. Debbie Colveta finished sixth in the run with a time of 2 minutes and 23.1 seconds.

Sophia McClellan and Williams finished fourth and fifth respectively with times of 25.7 and 25.9 seconds in the 200 meter dash and Cindy Weathers placed sixth in the javelin with a toss of 103'3" to complete the scoring for the Lady Goves.

Western Michigan won the meet with 189 points, followed by Illinois St. 127, Murray St. 123.5, S.E. Missouri 101, APSU 70.5, Bradley 17, and MTSU 10 to round out the scoring.

At the Dogwood Relays the APSU men qualified for the finals in three events.

The 800 meter relay team and the sprint medley relay team were the only relay teams to qualify for the finals for the Goves. Roland Scruggs placed fifth in the 100 meter dash at 10.71 to highlight the action for the men's squad.

The 800 meter relay team of Prentice McGlory, Ron Springer, Mike Henderson and Roland Scruggs ran a 1:25.0 time in the sprint medley relay.

McGlory, Scruggs, Springer and Terry Taylor combined for a 3:25.0 time in the sprint medley relay.

Both APSU squads will be in action again this weekend. The Lady Goves will compete in a dual meet at Murray State Thursday. Both squads will travel to Nashville to compete in the Vanderbilt Invitational Saturday.

Tennis team set for busy week

by Steve Harmon
Sports Editor

Austin Peay's men's tennis team is scheduled to play four Ohio Valley Conference matches this week as the spring season points toward the April 28-30 league tournament to be held on the APSU courts.

The Governors enter this week's action at 2-7 in dual matches.

Following a match with two-time defending OVC champion Murray State Tuesday on the Racor courts, the Governors entertain Morehead State Thursday before playing Youngstown State and Akron dates are tentative, according to Billy Henry, APSU coach.

"I don't know anything at all about Morehead," Henry said of Thursday's 2 p.m. match. "I haven't seen them play. But they've got everybody back, so they should be strong."

Carlos Claveria, Hartmut Junghahn, Robert Boag, Fred Hall, Kurt Angell and Myles Van Urk will man the top six singles spots for APSU, respectively. Boag, a newcomer to the team, is a freshman from Perth, Australia enrolled in his first academic quarter at Austin Peay.

"Playing at home, I hope our kids will respond to the challenge," Henry said.

The four conference matches slated for this week will be used for seeding purposes in the league tournament. Henry said, "If you finish with a poor record in the conference, you have to start out against the No. 1 players (in the OVC tournament) and that's tough to do."

Sophomore distance runner Mary Johnson ran a 4:42.1 mile to win the event at the Murray State Invitational track meet Saturday. Johnson also posted a 10:36.0 time in the 3,000 meter run to finish third.

The next day, Johnson toured the 10,000 meter course at the Queen City Road Race in 40:24.0 to win the women's division championship.

Johnson is a graduate of Stratford High School in Nashville.

APSU golfers finish second in Lee College Invitational

—Steve Harmon

A GENTLEMAN'S GAME—Brad Van Kirk of Austin Peay tends the flagstick during the Lee College Invitational. Van Kirk finish as runner-up in the individual standings.

Austin Peay finished second in the nine-team Lee College Invitational golf tournament Thursday and Friday at Waterville Park in Cleveland, TN.

The Governors posted a 302-300-602 total for two trips around the waterlogged 6,200-yard layout.

Ohio Valley Conference member Tennessee Tech, leading wire to wire, carded a 298-290-588 aggregate to claim first place.

Tech's Bill Hickey fired a 73-69-142 total, two-under-par, to win the individual medal.

Brad Van Kirk of Austin Peay, who held a share of the lead going into the final hole, shot a 73-70-143 total to place second.

Paired with Hickey and first-round leader Bill Hodges of University of the South, Van Kirk and Hickey stood in the ninth tee—their 18th hole after teeing off on the back side—deadlocked at two-under-par through 35 holes.

However, Van Kirk pushed a five-iron right of the 160-yard, par-3 hole and failed to save par. Hickey's approach stopped about 10 feet from the flagstick, where he proceeded to two-putt for the title.

"I thought I had the momentum," said Van Kirk, who gained a share of the lead after Hickey had bogied No. 8. "But I hit it (five-iron) like I had hit some of my drives today. I left it out to the right.

Hodges slumped to a closing 79 to finish eighth individually at 149.

The closing two-under-par 70 posted by Van Kirk represents the Warsaw, Ind. junior's lowest round as a collegian.

"I just wanted to hit greens today," Van Kirk said of his strategy. "I was confident with my putting because I had been putting well lately."

Johnny Miller, APSU athletic director and interim golf coach, says his team is making progress.

"I thought our improvement from the two previous tournaments was tremendous," Miller said, referring to Peay's superb outings in the Shorter College and Smoky Mountain invitational the past two weeks.

"We still need more depth. We've got to get stronger as a team," he said.

Other Governor scores included Harry Tarpley 75-73-151, Steve Harmon 73-81-154 and Kevin Corriveau 81-80-161.

The Gova travel to Sewanee Thursday morning for the Tennessee Intercollegiate. The 36-hole tournament will be played Friday and Saturday at the University of the South golf course.

Govs edge Belmont to gain revenge

by Michael L. Tharpe
Staff Reporter

Inclement weather permitted the Governor baseball squad to play only on a game last week, but the Govs made the best of it with a 6-5 victory over Belmont College in Nashville Monday, April 4. Belmont had beaten the Govs earlier in the season.

The win improved the Governors record to 8-14.

Freshman hurler, Larry Miller, picked up the win for the Govs, who used five pitchers in the game. Michael "Mo" Tharpe started the game, before Tommy Walsh, Larry Miller, Dennis Martin and Clayton Dahl provide bull pen support.

Junior centerfielder, Robert McCutcheon, who is batting .380, went 3-for-4 to aid the winning cause.

Due to the extended rain, the Govs had to postpone games against Vanderbilt, Tennessee Tech and Murray State last week.

Austin Peay travels to Murfreesboro Thursday for a 1 p.m. doubleheader against Middle Tennessee.

APSU hosts Tennessee Tech in a 1 p.m. twinbill Saturday at Governor Park before North Alabama challenges for a 1 p.m. doubleheader Sunday.

Bulletin—Austin Peay split a baseball doubleheader with Murray State Monday at Johnny Reagan Field in Murray, Ky.

The Govs plated three runs in the top half of the seventh inning to win the opener, 4-3, but dropped the nightcap, 4-1 on a three-run Racer homer in the eighth inning.

The split gives APSU a 9-15 mark, 1-1 in the OVC.
