Chain Store Question To Be Argued By Local Orators

Chain Store Question To Be Argued By Local Orators

The Austin Peay Normal debating club will make its official debut in interscholastic competition against the Bethel College team on Friday night April 3. The Negative team will engage the affirmative team of Bethel in the Normal Auditorium at 7:30 o'clock. The subject to be discussed will be, "Resolved that the chain store is detrimental to public progress."

On the following Friday night the Normal affirmatives team will journey over to Russellville and lock horns with the negative team of that institution on the same subject. In all probability Malvin Utsey and Grady Mollison will represent the local institution in the debate here with Shiel Strong acting as an alternate. Miss Alice Cotham, William Glasgow, James Ebbas, George Chubb and others working on the affirmative arguments and the team to go to Bethel will be selected from these students.

Normal Delegates Attend Assembly

Y. M. Christian Association Hold Meeting
at Jackson

On March 27, 28, and 29, the West Tennessee Conference of the Y. M. C. A. will meet at Jackson, Tennessee. This delegation will be the guests of Lambuth College and the citizens of Jackson.

Austin Peay Normal will have at least five delegates at this conference, President Pollard of the local organization said last week. Several others also wish to attend this meeting and the delegation will be headed by Mr. Bond, the sponsor and Mr. Pollard, the president.

It was also thought that several co-eds of the Normal might attend for the gleanings of information necessary for the organization of a Y. W. C. A.

This conference is held for the advancing of religious customs and habits within the colleges and universities of the state. Ramon McCrory of Middle Tennessee State Teachers College is Chairman of this division.

Miss Huff: "Er, Mr. Woodard, are you chewing gum in my class?"

Fred: "Naw, this ain't gum; it's terbacco."

Miss Huff: "Oh, I beg your pardon."

Use the Library

Have you been up to investigate the library lately? Really, a few moments there wouldn't be wasted. There have recently been added many new volumes, and our stock of books is rapidly assuming large proportions—proportions quite in accord with the requirements made in other departments of the institution. In a short time our library will compare favorably indeed with all the other college libraries throughout the state.

The importance of using the library can not be over-emphasized. The text-book should never be the only source of information. One author may be prejudiced, even narrow-minded in his treatment of a subject. It is well to get outside information on each day's lesson. Especially is this true in history. Do not acquire rigid, short-sighted viewpoints. When you take up a new subject, delve deep into the underlying principles. Get the facts from the available sources, and then form your own opinion which you will rely upon. Without the aid of impossible.

In English, education, the sciences—in all your subjects—try a little outside reading. It will be worth the extra trouble to you, and will, incidentally, impress one's instructor quite favorably.

Where Are You Going?

We mortals are easy-going things. We rarely stop to take stock unless jarred out of our complacency by some extraordinary stimulus. Not long ago a dead man, who was just drifted down on the sands of time.

Are we drifting, or have we a clear course defined? Is our voyage carefully charted? This thought came to me, and for weeks has vaguely haunted me.

We are not old yet, we are young, but there lies before us the struggles and failures and triumphs that constitute life. We must decide how to take them. It is in our power to make of life what we will. Rather a tedious thought, isn't it? Awe-inspiring and worthy of contemplation. Stop for a moment. Perceive that it is modern to be hard and cynical and sophisticated. Analyze yourself, your life and your motives.

Are you moulding your life carefully, laying each stone with a clear vision of the final structure in mind? Does each day bring you nearer the goal? Is your choice of companions, amusements, work, constructive or destructive? Perhaps you have no goal.

Perhaps you have not planned your life. Maybe you are drifting. But it is not too late to set your course. The ship is pulling out, though, and the time grows short. Make up your mind, move your shoulders and hitch your wagon to a star. Be with Browning:

"One who never turned his back but marched breast forward, Never doubted clouds would break, Never dreamed, the right were wrong, would come triumph, Held his breath in his belly to fight with baffled sleep to wake."

Extra Curriculum

No longer does education consist merely of Reading, Writing, and Rithmetic. The three Rs are no longer sharing honors with organized athletes, debating clubs, and all manner of other interesting projects. And school life has changed from a dull, unchanging sort of life to an interesting, ever-changing pursuit of knowledge. Each student is given an opportunity to carry his interest in his favorite subjects beyond the walls of the classroom.

For one who likes history, there is a history club, in which he meets with others who are interested in history, and is able thereby to go deeper into the subject than would ever be possible in a regular history class. There are poetry clubs, for poetry lovers, and art clubs, for those artistically inclined. Archery clubs and tennis clubs, for the athletic-minded, not to mention football and basketball, and other forms of organized athletics.

This revolution, like every other, has naturally caused a great deal of criticism, both favorable and adverse. We who are trying this system are very pleased with it. Of course, the criticism remains to be seen, but we are confident that it will prove satisfactory.

Each student should ally himself with one or more of these organizations. Everyone should have interests in his life outside of routine work. Without such interests, one is apt to grow mentally inert. His power to take interest in conversation will lag and die. His zest for his work will grow less. He will have to depend for the surplus energy in those hours when he most desires to forget his workday duties. And as he grows older, his mind must not become sluggish. He must not lose touch with the world. There must be things to absorb his interest, things about which he has had an opportunity to learn a great deal.

Perhaps you may think that is putting the cart before the horse. But no. College students are preparing themselves for the lives they are to lead, and to make the most of the short time we are allowed on this earth, it is necessary that our training be of the most rigid sort. And, as the extra-curricular activities are an integral part of this training, it is well to take advantage of the wonderful opportunities they offer.

A Leaf in a Storm

News came slowly and seldom to the Berens, a small village in the mountains of Norway. He had tried several times to capture this little town.

In the place of Bernadua lived with his grandmother, Reine Allix who was 93 years old. Bernadua was grave, loyal and very kind.

One cold night in November a great sobbing cry rose without—the cry of many voices raised in woe together. Bernadua took his musket in his hand and rushed out into the sky. He knew the red glare was a town burning. Quickly everyone rushed from their homes. Students in the streets was the sound of many horses, screams of women, and flash of steel in the gloam.

Then they were still—a stillness that was more horrible than the lamellations. In silence Reine Allix spoke, "God is good. He shall we not trust him?" With one great shocking sob the people answered, their hearts were breaking. "Let who will run like a hare from a bound," she spoke in a calm voice. "For me and mine, we shall be in our homestead." They were ashamed to be outdone by a woman 93 years old, and none spoke of fight.

Bernadua's lips were white, but he said, "I am not a traitor."

The Prussian gave a sign. There was a sharp report, and Bernadua fell dead. With a shout that rose above the din and cut like steel every human heart there, Reine Allix rushed to her grandson's side. "It is God's will," she muttered and then laughed a laugh so terrible that the blood of the coldest ran cold.

An old man, the nearest neighbor of Reine Allix tried to help her leave the burning town. "Go in peace and save yourself," she said in a sweet, strong tone of an earlier day. "As for me, I am old, I and my deed will stay together."

The man fled and left her to her fate. The tide of war rolled on and smothering her with a blackened waste, a smoking ruin where not so much as a bird may nest or moss may creep. It is gone forevermore.

Who is he there to care? It was only a leaf which the great storm withered as it passed.

Phoney Letters

Mable dear—

The basketball season is over for once again. The school is peaceful. But then track, spring football, baseball and tennis begin, nothing like it.

I wrote you a letter two weeks ago, but I misplaced it. I told you about Pentress, but I will write more on such an interesting subject. Pentress (the great lover of basketball) went to Murray instead of playing in game of basketball at Ashland City. What caused such a calamity? It was no great grand scheme, only a Duke. You would like her, she's a blonde—little Nancy Duke.

We have been having quite an enjoyable time at school. We went to chapel the other day and had the best ole time. The legislature had talked about three hours. Now when I was in Tulsa and Savannah they didn't have such short chapel programs and such interesting speeches!

All I know

So long, Lydia.

Bob dear—

Are you very fond of Stones? There are two students here at Normal that are Stone collectors. "Slim" Mallory is collecting that Eva type and Cratty is fond of the Alla D. Stone. There is no accounting for tastes.

Have you ever heard of the absent-minded professor that was a Scotchman? One in our school. The other night the staff was invited to a banquet by the "Bum" Club to be given at the Kampus Kabin.

The night of the banquet! Sev-Bernadua was seated and dared to give the leader sat on a white charger.

"You have arms here!" the leader mumbled.

"We had."

"What have you done with them?"

"I had my way, you would know."

He forget it, I suppose, but everyone said he found himself short of funds. So, we have a proved Scotchman, multiplied by a fortunate professor equals One Aughtintend Scotch Professor.

Be good

Lydia.

Bob dear—

Charles Foust is on his way to another school. We rarely miss him. Charles (as you recall from past incidents) was an unusually smart, and very well liked. He is an exception to a Normal rule. He managed to keep free from entanglements with the fairer and weaker sex. Good luck, Foust, and don't forget your good friends at Austin Peay Normal.

Pentress is such a case! A wonderful and unbelievable thing has happened. Miracles can happen even at A. P. N. Rumor says that Pentress has fallen for—not a duchess, but—a duke. This high person hails neither from France or England but from Ashland City. Bob, you would like this cute blonde—Nancy Duke.

Say, forget your fair lady for a moment and come visit us.

Not yours,

LYDIA.

son, Tenn., on March 27, 28, and 29.

One of the most interesting chapel programs of the season was given by Mr. Mudrock, noted musician of this section and one of his pupils. Mr. Mudrock played on the piano and his pupil accompanied him on the piano. Several solos were also played upon the piano by his talented pupil. Several prayers were necessary to please an appreciative audience.

Miss Grace Stacker and Miss Ann Jo Condon attended the Junior Prom given by the junior students of Vanderbilt University in Nashville last night.

The Home Economics department of Austin Peay Normal entertained in Chapel last Monday with a Review of the year styles in dressing. The program was arranged by Miss Evelyn Wallace and the girls of the department. Many quaint old dresses of our grandmothers day were portrayed by the charming co-eds of the Normal. Also a few of the styles that our grandfathers had to contend with.

Plans are being made for the annual banquet to be given to the boys and girls, basketball teams at an early date. This is a gala affair and all the hard-worked athletes look forward to a square meal and the letters which will be awarded to the deserving players.

Mrs. W. B. Anderson spoke at the regular meeting of the Art Club last week and her talk was based on Art Appreciation and the famous artists. A large crowd was present and much enthusiasm was brought about through Mrs. Anderson's speech.

Proceeding the Legislative Committee speeches last week in Chapel, a one act play was given by Lucy Page and Virginia White. The title of the play was "Lima Beans". The audience enjoyed the act immensely.

NORMAL WILL PLAY BASEBALL THIS SEASON

Good Schedule Arranged At Late Date, Strong Team Expected

Coach Alden will start baseball practice Monday afternoon at the old diamond. He has over a dozen candidates for the team, but is not yet making up his mind as to which ones he will select. He is getting their arms up and getting their eyes on the old horse hide. If these boys live up to their reputation there will be a real strong team to represent the Red and White on the diamond this spring. The games will be played on the Normal field on the same diamond that was used by S. P. U. when that institution was in sway in Clarksville.

Already games are being scheduled by the coach with the best teams through this district. The majority of these will be played with nearby colleges, but it is thought that some semi-pro teams will have to be added to the schedule in order to complete it. This is due to the fact that it was only last week that it was decided that Normal would have a base ball team, and the majority of colleges had completed their schedule, and their open dates did not correspond with the ones offered by the Normal coach.

Games with Murray, Ky., Bethel college, of McKenzie, Vanderbilt, David Lipscomb, West Kentucky, Murfreesboro Teachers and Bethel of Russellville are on the schedule at present, while others are pending. Several independent teams from Nashville will also play before the local fans this season.

Coach Alden has a wealth of material from which to select his regulars. The opening series of games will be announced at an early date. Come on fans! Let's give the team our 100% support.

Malvin "Red" Uteley

People that have been reading the local and Nashville

Newspapers will notice numerous accounts of the various baseball training camps throughout the south where the major league teams are getting in shape for the great American pastime. However, at present there is no organization in the local township that supports the hit-and-run game; so it is up to A. P. N. to produce a good team.

We've got some excellent baseball material here and could put out a strong team to represent the Normal on the diamond. Mr.

Gower already started a campaign for $500, with which to finance the team and several of the local business men pledged themselves to support the movement.

If we can get a start, we can make the people at up and take notice. Come on, Normal fans!

Let's have a baseball team!

To continue an argument, it might be well to mention some of the seller diamond performers now enrolled at A. P. N.

"Yenni" Gardner who hailed from White Bluff wields a wicked throw from the armpit of the plate, and as an outer gardener, he is without a peer. Changing long flies labeled for extra base hits and pulling them out of the cone for outs, is a speciality of his.

Yoder Breunlich is a classy infielder and performs best around the shortfield. He is fast on the path, a good hitter, and has a good throwing arm.

Hugh Miller, who hails from Nashville, also patrols the outer garden and hits the ball on the nose with much gusto. He has also played the infield and throws the old apple from the hill-top if the occasion demands

it. Pentress is a catcher by trade and is unusually adept at putting down runners at second.

He hits well and can handle a pitcher in fine style.

In Clay Hargis also dons the mask and breast protector and does quite a bit of catching.

Hart is a husky fellow and should give a good account of himself.

Harvey Cotton performed in the outfield for Battle Ground

Academy and gave a good account of himself as a fielder and as a hitter. "Gee" has a good arm and can peg the old apple to the catcher in fine style.

"Slim" Mallory plays first base and the outfield, and his six feet and six inches of bone and muscle should come in handy as the season progresses.

Jack Mayes of Guthrie plays

the keystone position and is a fast fielder and a good hitter.

Amos Acree is a hard-hitting outfielder and will come in handy when a long hit is needed.

Buster Hile performs in the outfield and is a good hitter and can throw the apple in good fashion.

At present Claude Garrison is the only hurler on hand. Claude has a good fast ball, a fair curve with plenty of control and can be depended upon to give opposing batter plenty of trouble.

It is reported that Way Mc-

Clearen, a crack semi-pro hurler

from Hohenwald will be here to prove that his reputation as a pitcher must be deserved.

The above argument may have plenty of others to add to it in a few days after the spring

Freshmen Win In Tournament With the Sophs

Freshmen Flash Fancy Act, Tack To Win in Straight Games

The interclass basketball tournament held at A. P. N. was won by the Freshmen both boys and girls. The Freshmen team took four straight games from the Sophomores and then they won the title. There isn't a much better winning four game straight that must be being good.

The games were characterized by extreme roughness, there being members of the variety squad on both teams. Each man was trying to get away with as much as possible without being sent by the referee, whose work he liked or ragged according to his personal prejudices. The referee held an unenviable position trying to hold down the game, with friendly animosity running at fever heat.

The freshmen girls had Duke, Cocke, Brown, Taylor, Smith, Blusky, Hogan and Dunn to lay the blame on for winning their games. The Sophomores, who played a good game but lost, had Tucker, the star of all the variety games, Wooten, Condon, G. Duke, Addison, McMillan, White, Cochran and Nichols.

The boys teams consisted of, for the Freshmen, Pentress, Alden, Mallory, Cotton, Miller, Hudson, Hart, Pollard and Thomas, an excellent bunch of basket toppers, to be given careful consideration for next year's hardwood team. These boys held a pitiful standard of the Freshmen class in putting the skills beneath their rivals, the Sophomores class.

Crow, Galbreath, Hunter, Uteley, Norflett, Woodward, Trotter, and Golding put up a stiff fight for the Sophomores, but they were unable to hold their own against the Freshmen players.

Freshman News

At the last class meeting, Prof. Alden asked the class to re-elect the freshmen members to the Student Council. Every one was urged to bring his five cents to put in on the student fund. The Freshman treasury has continued to grow. This Freshmen are paying $21. of the $30, paid this month for the basketball uniforms. The classes are paying for these uniforms.

ING TALL.

"The following morning I didn't feel so well. It wasn't my head that ached; it wasn't my back that was sore; it wasn't my legs. Well, anyway, I ate my meals off the mantelpiece for several days."

Katherine Beaumont in—LEARNING TO SKATE.

"If one should go to the African jungles, one would doubtless find the tigers bluffing the monkeys into gathering fruit for them."

Nancy Duke in—THE GENTLE ART OF BLUFFING.

If you don't feel just right
If you can't sleep at night
If your throat is dry
If you moan and sigh
If you can't smoke or cheer
If your grub tastes like glue
If your grub doesn't beat
If your head's in a whirl
For Heaven's sake
Marry the girl!
