Pikes continue Greek Follies reign

Pi Kappa Alpha continued its reign of first place as they won the annual Greek Follies show sponsored by the Panhellenic Council Feb. 21.

The Pikes captured the first place honors with "Gone with the Greek," a take-off from the motion picture Gone with the Wind.

The Chi Omega's women's fraternity finished second with the theme of "Urban Greek" followed by Alpha Delta Pi's third place skit of "Camelot."

The annual event sponsored by the senior organization is aimed at high school students as a rush tool to show prospective members a positive side of Greek life at APSU.

Also making an appearance at the Follies were Sigma Nu fraternity with "Fame," and Kappa Delta with their rendition of "Sound of Music."

The Pikes shared the first place spot with Sigma Nu in 1982 and remained in first in 1983 with "Greeks go Broadway."

Danny Armitage acted as master of ceremonies for the event, and Doug Barber, director of alumni, and placement services, Diane Berty, APSU nurse practitioner, Carole Hedden, director of public affairs office, and Dene Pennington, secretary of the student life office served as judges for the evening.

This year's Greek Follies theme was "Oscar goes Greek" and money raised from the event is used by the Panhellenic Council for Formal Rush.

"...we did place stipulations..."

Truant senators warned

By Allan J. Daniels

In a statement concerning a meeting of his cabinet and Senators with excessive absences, SGA President Mike Trent said, "We did not remove anyone but we did place stipulations on further absences."

These stipulations, or rather this stipulation, was if any of these Senators incurred one more unexcused absence, the Executive Cabinet would remove them.

During committee reports, Julie DeVerna, chairperson of the Student Welfare Committee, stated that the committee was "trying to determine a need" concerning a daycare center for students with children.

DeVerna added that a Daycare Subcommittee had been appointed and was sending out a questionnaire, "a feasibility study" of sorts.

The following Senators were named by DeVerna as being on the subcommittee: Robert Pinder, Charles Banks, Richard Cochran, Barbara Waters and Diane Ford.

The one bill passed by the Senate rescinded an earlier bill regulating financial requests.

In essence, the bill requires financial request to be submitted to the Finance Committee at least 10 days prior to a meeting where it is to be considered.

The request must also come before the SGA at least two weeks prior to the date the money is needed. Another section of the bill requires all other legislation to be submitted to the Rules Committee at least one week prior to consideration by the Senate.

Mahogany" as Toby Higgins and "Billy Budd" as the Niviche. He will repeat these roles this season as well as appear in production of "Fidelio," "Dialogues of the Carmelites," and "Peter Grimes."

According to Dr. Arthur Goldsmith, chairman of Visiting Speakers and Artists Committee, season ticket holders and Austin Peay students with current identification cards will be admitted to the performance. Goldsmith added that the performance will be approximately two hours long.

Johnson new Miss Black Clarksville

By Tanis Johnson
Staff Reporter

To climax Black History Month, Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity sponsored the annual Miss Black America of Clarksville pageant Feb. 25 in the Clement Auditorium.

"All the girls have the potential of becoming Miss Black America of Clarksville. They all worked very hard for this pageant," said the pageant's choreographer, Keith Wilson.

"In reference to black history month, I think this pageant gives black women a chance they have not always had to show their beauty and talent," he continued.

Prior to the pageant, the current Miss Black America of Clarksville, Valencia McChristian, said that she felt kind of strange and sad at giving up her crown.

"I'm and that it all has to end because it's been so beneficial to me. I was a finalist in the Miss Tennessee pageant, and I hope this year's winner will uphold her title and do the very best she can in her position," the 1983 queen said.

The evening concluded with the announcement of the winner and her court. They included: first runner-up, Marlanna Hall, second runner-up, Tracy Whitmore, and third runner-up, Faison Merriweather, and the winner, Mary Johnson.

"I've been awake since 4 a.m., and I'm really exhausted. My motto is to never underestimate my competition or overestimate myself, but I really hoped I'd win," Johnson said.

"I definitely plan to compete in other pageants, and I also plan to graduate from APSU and pursue a career in an administrative position in the health care field."

The 10 women competing for the title included: Romona Eaton, Marlanna Hall, Mary Johnson, Marlo McLemore, Faison D. Merriweather, Janette Outlaw, Monica Yvonne Spottwood, Tracy Whitmore, Brenda Williams, and Deseree Williams.

Editor publicly airs dirty laundry

You may think I am strange when I say I really enjoy doing laundry. The mundane task is not usually the high-point of the average student's week, but it all depends on your attitude.

Manhattan John

By John St. Amant
Editor-in-Chief

Three things must be kept in mind for a successful time at doing your laundry.

The first is where you do your laundering.

I prefer my old apartment where I had the luxury of my own washer and dryer.

Anytime I needed my favorite shirt I would simply pop it in the modern cleaning device and I was good to go.

In my present apartment, there is no such luxury so I am forced to go to a laundromat. However, I still have a great time doing my laundry at this kind of place.

How can I enjoy a laundromat? Well, that is where the second item comes in.

The second thing you must keep in mind for a successful time at doing laundry is always do your laundry with a buddy. This is perhaps the most important detail in laundering.

I go to the laundromat with my newest bestest buddy Rusty Baggett. If you don't know him, you really can't understand how much fun it can be.

Doing the laundry with a person like Rusty really takes the boredom out of it. Rusty is constantly clowning around and making remarks about the other people in the place. It is not nice to talk about other people, but Rusty doesn't do it. He is just having fun.

We usually do our laundry on the weekend when I guess most people do theirs. Some people take their dirty clothes home or clean them in the dorm. Since neither of us really have those luxuries, we make the best of it at the laundromat.

The third item I want to address is the frequency with which you do your laundry.

This is another important detail for the simple fact that if you put off doing your laundry too long you must dig through your dirty clothes or go out and buy new clothes.

I used to get away with doing my laundry every two weeks. Somehow I can't go that long anymore. I'm not sure why, but now it is important I do laundry every week or be forced to go to K-mart and re-stock my closet.

That is all I really wanted to talk about laundry. It's a dirty subject but somebody has to talk about it.

Black history celebration is only fair

Are you aware that today is the last day of Black History Month? Well, if you weren't, now you are. Upon first hearing of a Black History Month I was not particularly affected.

Mainly because I am not black. I did wonder, however, what would happen if a White History Month was proclaimed.

Down the Drane

By Allan J. Daniels

I was sure that there would be an outcry of prejudice or something along those lines.

That was before last Friday night though. Sitting in the offices of The All State an idea occurred to me. In the past I have attended the Italian Street Fairs, and will probably take part in Culture Week sponsored by FLAGS next quarter. During Culture Week, a different cultural heritage will be celebrated each day of the week. I began to see that Black History Month was not altogether different from either of these.

Friday evening I had the pleasure of attending a NAACP-sponsored performance of James Weldon Johnson's God's Trombones. After the performance, put on by a group of Austin Peay students, Rev. Jimmy Terry of Tabernacle Baptist Church gave a short talk.

At one point he almost echoed my earlier thoughts. He mentioned the Oktoberfest that is held annually in many parts of the country, including Clarksville.

He also mentioned St. Patrick's Day and others. Again, the idea was that most everyone likes to celebrate his heritage in one way or another (I personally am still waiting for some kind of a Scandinavian celebration since I'm one quarter Finnish and one quarter Swedish.).

I was going to ask why isn't there some kind of an American cultural identity? But since I already am pretty sure of the answer to that question, I'll make a statement instead.

As far as I know, we are the only country in the world with such a diversity of cultures. Every one familiar with American history will recognize the idea of America being a "Melting Pot" of diverse cultures.

I like this idea because it provides us with the opportunity to learn so much more than someone who lives in another country.

I could go on all day if I chose to. What I am attempting to say is that we should realize that there is NO typical American, and revel in the fact. I realize that there is a negative side to this also, because it seems when we think of a distinct culture we think of stereotypes.

Before long, prejudice rears its ugly little head and we have some very disagreeable emotions flying about. I like to think we are on the verge of dealing with that problem, but we should beware complacency.

Well, assuming we learn to deal with prejudice, I would like to reiterate that we should glory in our differences. Just think, if every one was the same or if there was only one culture to deal with, wouldn't it be pretty boring.

I will take my leave now and suggest some food for thought. Isn't there a cliché that reads, "Variety is the spice of life?"

ATO praises campus police

Dear Editor,

On the evening of February 22, 1984, at approximately 10:45 p.m., a hit-and-run accident occurred at the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity house on 254 Marion Street.

The accident involved a total of three separate automobiles, one of which was almost completely totaled.

As soon as Campus Security arrived at the accident scene, an all-points-bulletin was issued with a description of the car as well as the license plate number.

Approximately twenty minutes later, a name turned up and an arrest was in progress.

As of this time (thanks to the professionalism of Austin Peay's so-called "ticket writers") a potential hit-and-run statistic has been turned into a very promising prosecution report.

We the brothers of Alpha Tau Omega would like to extend our heart-felt thanks to the officers on the scene: Officers Ellsworth, Teague, Jenkins and Bailey.

We deeply appreciate their concern and outstanding professionalism in the investigation of this case.

To the rest of the students here at APSU, we would like to ask you to remember the good points of our police force as well as their bad points.

So the next time you receive an "undeserved" parking ticket, just remember: Campus Security may have been around when you didn't want to see them, but luckily as we have found out, sometimes they are around when you need them.

Respectfully submitted,
Jack Scott
Worthy Master, ATO

Earl Walton is remembered

Dear Editor,

A great man passed away last Monday morning. This man contributed so much to Austin Peay, and to the region surrounding it. I am talking about Earl Walton.

Mr. Walton was APSU's first sportscaster, early in the 1940's. And, as recently as last season, he helped broadcast the APSU baseball games over WKVL.

Mr. Walton was an avid Governor fan. He attended most every football game, and of course home baseball game. Mr. Walton covered Dickson County athletics up until his death and made it into the Hall of Fame at APSU.

In the words of Bill Herndon, play-by-play announcer for the Governors, "Earl was like a father figure." Mr. Walton was a father figure to all of us who knew him.

I personally met him five years ago when I was the statistician for Springfield High's baseball team. "Mr. Earl," as I called him, was the radio commentator for Dickson County's team. Our friendship grew from that first meeting and I learned a lot from him.

It will be strange going to the District X-AAA Basketball tournament and Mr. Earl not being there, likewise for APSU baseball. He will be sadly missed, and I hope everyone appreciates what he did for Austin Peay. He'll never be forgotten!

Pikes' grievances are justified

Dear Editor:

My letter is in reply to Mr. Mark DeVoe's "other side" of the story of the Pike House break-in.

First of all, it is my opinion that Mr. St. Amant's initial story of the break-in was non-biased, nor pointed the finger at anyone. And, certainly, the Supreme Being has granted, including, Mr. St. Amant, everyone the power to judge between right and wrong. If he had not, the entire world would be in total chaos.

From the tone of your letter, it seems as if you do not consider the damage done as disrespectful. You pointed out that the men of PKA attempted a stirring rendition of A sucks, T sucks, O sucks, ATO sucks.

One detail that you left out is that the ATO brothers started singing the ATO ("suckless" version) song, not the men of PKA. It was then that perhaps a handful of PKA brothers added the word "sucks" into your song.

Afterall, would you want PKA brothers singing

PIKE songs at your dance?

I'm sure that you are aware that as long as fraternities exist there will be rivalry. Sometimes this rivalry can give you a sad and embarrassed face.

However, to break in (not to mention a couple of windows), commit grand theft, and then to throw PKA composites and awards in an open grave in Sango, seems to me a bit rash.

In closing, I want to thank Mr. St. Amant for the space this is taking up, and state that I realize that the individuals involved are the ones to blame, and not an entire fraternity.

T.E. Poe

System accused

An open letter to Austin Peay:

I enrolled at "APSU" for the summer session of 1979. I completed eight quarter hours.

Maybe the situation there has changed since 1979, but I don't think so. While I was there, it was my unfortunate experience to encounter individuals, members of faculty, staff, and student body, who obviously were present only for a pseudointellectual experience. Confidentially, I suspect that money was their motive.

Colleges and universities exist for the sole purpose of investigating the nature of life. They are not to be used as a nursemaid or a valet. It is possible, I suppose, to "use" the university system as a crutch for selfish whims and desires, but eventually more is lost than won in so doing.

As the Bible says, there will come a time when the truth will be revealed. What will be the truth about yourself?

Rod Ketner

Birds offend

Dear Editor,

I would like to voice a complaint pertaining to the number of Dead Birds lying around campus.

Some of these dead creatures have been there for over a month.

There is one outside Harvill Hall's door and one on the porch of the now-closed Harned Hall.

These creatures not only present an eyesore they also stink!

I think that this is very degrading to Austin Peay as an institution of higher learning and should be remedied immediately.

Student's son needs kidney

by Cindy Searlock
Staff reporter

Gerald Lee is a twenty-six year old freshman here at Austin Peay. He is also the natural father of Gerald Butta, who was born on April 21, 1978.

The mother, then Miss Julia Butta, now Mrs. Julia White, and her husband are the legal parents of the now five-year-old child.

According to Lee he seldom saw his son, until 1982 when he was notified that the child was in need of a kidney donor, because the boy's kidneys were failing.

Lee stated that he "hadn't seen him in approximately two years when I was called to donate."

Lee found out one month before both kidneys went bad that the boy needed a donor and that he was a compatible match.

The operation took place in December of 1982 when the boy was four years old. The child's body rejected Lee's kidney.

Before the operation the boy's kidneys were functioning at 50% capacity. After the rejection five year old Gerald was put on dialysis, an artificial kidney that filters biological waste products in the blood, while outside of the body.

Lee feels that one of the reasons his kidney was rejected was because his kidney only had a compatibility factor of two.

Kidney donor compatibility is scaled from one to four, with four being a perfect match, three a better chance, and two an okay chance.

Lee said that he would go through the operation again if needed. "He's my son and I wouldn't say no."

In December of last year, the child received a second kidney donation, which his body again rejected approximately one month ago, and he was then put back on dialysis.

He has been receiving peritoneal dialysis daily, and will continue to until a successful kidney transplant.

Biology instructor Robert Robinson of Austin Peay explained that peritoneal dialysis consists of putting a hole directly through the abdomen into the peritoneal cavity, and then filling the cavity (usually overnight) with a solution, which draws the waste products out of the masses of capillaries surrounding the peritoneal cavity into the solution by osmosis.

In the morning the patient is then rolled over and the solution filled with waste products is drained away.

Robinson stated that the peritoneal dialysis is "95% more effective than renal dialysis." (needles inserted into the arms).

Lee's son receives his dialysis treatments at Vanderbilt Hospital in Nashville, while his mother and her husband live at Fort Campbell. Lee said his son had been "off and on in the hospital since the summer of '81."

"Between the first and second donation operations he was out of the hospital just two weeks."

The boy "never complains about anything," Lee said. "He's always energetic, the nurses love him and the doctors bring him toys, but when you've been in the hospital three years, you almost become a part of the staff."

Lee feels that "there is a possibility that it (kidney disease) is hereditary, his mother has weak kidneys, which is why she can't donate." Yet according to Robinson the best donors are not parents, but brothers and sisters.

The five year old does have a sibling, but his brother is younger than he is and Lee says that donors must be from 13 to 54 years old.

Since the last rejection the doctors have said that another donation cannot come from a live donor.

Lee does not count on another donation. He says that the "priority is political," and that "you have to know someone high up."

Lee stated that his son "is going to have a portable dialysis machine hopefully sometime soon, to take home to Fort Campbell."

Lee also explained that as to the rising medical costs "the army is paying for it."

Lee says he is "being realistic" about the situation. He says the five year old is slowly deteriorating, and can't live forever on dialysis. Lee has stood up in his classes and explained the situation, and has tried to spread the word.

He "requests prayer and support—but no money." Lee added that he is still "waiting to hear good news, but none has come yet."

Austin Peay's trip to "Death Valley" last week was just that as they dropped both of their OVC games to Morehead and Eastern Kentucky, killing any dreams of making the OVC tournament.

Howard Jackson's Gavs started the road trip hoping to win both games while Murray State had to lose their two, to give the Gov's any chances at all of advancing to the tournament.

Morehead State, Tennessee Tech, Youngstown State and Murray State will now advance to the tournament which will be held at Morehead University.

The Eagles defeated Austin Peay for the second time this season, 85-75, before 4,200 fans at Academic Athletic Center.

Guy Minnifield led the Eagles with 20 points, while teammate John Primm pulled down a remarkable 18 rebounds.

During the first half the Gavs had trouble stopping the Eagles' hot shooters as they connected on a blistering 70% from the floor and took a comfortable 46-36 margin into the lockerroom.

After a halftime conversation with Jackson, the Gavs came out fighting (not fist-fighting) and made an amazing come-back as they managed to cut the Eagles' lead to one, 66-65, with less than six minutes left in the game. Pat Day led all Austin Peay scorers with 22 points.

The final 33 seconds, however, were disastrous for the Gavs as Morehead went on to outdistance them 85-75.

APSU had practice the following day preparing for the EKV Colonels and their freshman sensation Antonio Parria.

Austin Peay, known for their tenacious defense, was put to the test against the Colonels. The Colonels won the battle offensively as they shot 60% from the floor and also won the defensively as the Gavs shot a miserable 30% from the floor.

Parria, of EKV, connected for 25 points with a dunk at the end. EKV shocked the Gavs 69-57.

Miller may leave APSU

By Donna Holder

Austin Peay's Athletic Director Johnny Miller has applied for another position—that of Director of Schools for Clarksville-Montgomery County. Whether or not he is chosen for the position won't be determined until the early part of March.

"The main reason for my placing an application for the position, which is being vacated by Dr. William Abel, is that I had several members of the community who are educators or former educators encourage me to apply.

"They felt that from a standpoint of organization and administration I could work very well in this phase of education.

"Having spent the first 15 years of my career in this area school system at the elementary, junior high and high school level as a teacher, coach, and administrator, I naturally have a deep interest in public education.

"This possible new position would be a challenge for me that I could realize through cooperation and involvement of the total community," Miller said.

Miller, who has been athletic director at APSU for the last six years, added that he had recently had a meeting about his potential move with Austin Peay President

Robert O. Riggs which was "very positive."

"Dr. Riggs assured me that if this new position is what I wanted, he would wish me the best, but if I chose not to accept it or it were not offered to me, I still had my position as athletic director here.

"I would never make a move for any type of career advancement that I felt would hurt Austin Peay," he said, "and had Dr. Riggs not been cooperative relative to my professional interest, I would not have applied.

"I look forward to meeting with the board of education to discuss the directorship on March 3, however I have a very challenging and rewarding position now which I would not relinquish without much consideration," he stated.

After the interview for the candidates Miller will attend March 3, the board will select two candidates for a final interview from which the new director will be chosen.

"Coach Miller has done a very fine job of administering our athletic program here at Austin Peay," Riggs said, "and he is a valued member of our staff.

"If he is chosen, I will hate to see him leave, however if this is a professional opportunity that he seeks, I'll look forward to working with him in this new capacity, and certainly wouldn't stand in his way."

THIS IS THE GAME PLAN—This conglomerate on the chalkboard in the Governor's locker room explains to the team what each member of the starting lineup is to do on defense. Seniors to play final games

With the season's final two games ahead of Austin Peay State University, Coach Howard Jackson is confident his ball club will do more than just play out the string.

"We're playing for pride," said Jackson, wrapping up his first season as Governor head coach. "two wins this week would help us through the summer. Two wins would help us as far as next year. And two wins would also help us as far as recruiting is concerned."

The Governors will play host to Tennessee State, 7:30 p.m., Wed. before ending the season at home against Murray St., 7:30 p.m. on Saturday.

"I know it's going to be tough for us," said Jackson. "It would be different if we had a bunch of young players and be could be trying to get them ready for next year. But we have seniors. I think they have enough left in them, enough pride in themselves to carry them through these two games."

"And with it being the seniors last game, I think they will be ready for it. Also, it's Lenny's birthday Saturday. So I think he would like to see a win

For Manning, Greg Andrews, Mandel Stockton, Joe Parker, Alvin Ingles, and Al Bellenfant, Saturday's contest will mark the final in a Governor uniform.

"They are going to be hard to replace," said Jackson. "Our record is not an indication of the type players they are and what they have contributed to this program.

Sisters team up for Lady Govs

Val and Pam are their names and basketball is their games.

The sister tandem of Valerie and Pam Malone, was born to be rugged basketball players, but off the court, the two are very gentle and soft-spoken.

The sisters come from a family of six that runs deep in basketball tradition.

Their father Lane Colley, played ball at Jackson, their mother played in high school, and their older sister currently plays at highly regarded Georgia University.

In their hometown of Murfreesboro, Val, a 5'10" junior on the Lady Gov team, and Pam, a 5'10" freshman, graduated from Riverdale High School.

Val says she likes Austin Peay because of its strong business department. It also "wasn't that far away from home and my mom really liked that."

Pam followed in her big sister's footsteps, but had trouble dealing with the "little sister" syndrome at first.

"I was Val's little sister when I first came, but it's all changed."

She chose APSU over such highly touted schools as North Carolina and Mississippi State.

Val made two of her biggest baskets of her career against Youngstown State when she made the winning basket in the second overtime.

The win broke the Lady Gov's six game losing streak.

The Final Score

By Kerry Lancaster
Sports Reporter

The difference between this year's team and last year's is that "the team is a lot closer this year. It's our first real winning season in quite a while," said Val.

Val is the top free-throw shooter (84 %), and third best rebounder (5.4 a game) on the Lady Gov squad. She also averages 7.1 a contest.

Pam is averaging 12 minutes of play per game, 2.2 rebounds, and 3.6 points per outing.

They each play tennis and softball in their spare time, and also enjoy reading.

Pam summed up this reason for playing basketball when she said, "I've been playing since I was 10 years old. It's a talent given to me so I'll use it."

"It also helps keeps down the weight," she added with a smile from ear to ear.

Lady Gobs eye final win

With their post-season playoff hopes evaporated by a late-season slump, Austin Peay State University's Lady Governors will attempt to end their 1983-84 season on a winning note, 5 p.m. Saturday night at home against Murray State.

"This has been a good season," said Lady Governor coach Pam Davidson. "We had higher hopes. We had hopes of making the OVC tournament, especially the way we started out this season. But still this has been a good season."

The Lady Gobs are assured of a 500 season and a victory in one of their final two games (they were to play at the University of Tennessee on Tuesday night) would guarantee Austin Peay a winning season. The successful 1983-84 season comes on the heels of a 2-34 prior campaign. Davidson points to superb recruiting year for the team's turnaround.

"Our young kids played with a lot of maturity and poise this season," said Davidson. "I was really pleased with the way our freshman and our other recruits came on this season. If we can get a few more players like we got this year, we can continue to improve and build the program."

Kristal Holmes is the freshman who has created the most impact. She has been starting as point guard since the opening game and has led the Lady Gobs in minutes played. Forward, Lori Harris also has seen much starting time in her initial season. In addition, forward Pam Malone, guard Phyllis Hall and center-forward Tonita Cannon have gained much experience this year as well.

But that's the good news. The bad news is Davidson must find a replacement for senior forward-center, Gayle Kinser who is club's leading scorer. In addition sharp-shooting, Shelly Sharp has decided to forego her senior year of eligibility to attend graduate school.

Tennis team warms up for spring

Springtime. Freezing temperatures reluctantly give way to warmer weather, and snowstorms likewise change to thunderstorms. In the midst of all this, the fall think of tennis balls on rackets can be heard as the Governors Men's Tennis team prepares for their season. Traditionally spring is a time to lay back and take it easy—but according to Coach Billy Henry, there will be no time to enjoy spring this year. For just as spring often has its stormy spells, Henry believes this season may also have its share of storms. "We're going to have a very, very tough season due to shortages, transfers, and kids not showing up," said Henry.

There are five players on this year's team at the present time. However, it takes six to make a team. The most important loss was that of Carlos Claverie who transferred to the University of Tennessee. "The loss of Carlos who was player of the year in the OVC by virtue of his winning the singles crown, will hurt us," said Henry. "Carlos could possibly be the best player to ever play at Austin Peay."

The loss of two signees in January has contributed to the shortage also. As a result, the team is short on depth. Each player is having to move up a notch because of the loss of Claverie, which places more pressure on the players to perform even better. "The depth shortage may be corrected by bringing in people at spring quarter," said Henry.

As for strength, Henry feels that because the team is few in numbers, it will generate a family-type feeling. "Our backs are to the wall and we're going to have to fight together to have any success at all," he said. Hopefully team unity and togetherness will hold them together.

That makes sense, for the team that stays together, amazes together. "Realistically, we'd like to repeat as singles champions again this year," Henry said. Junghahn will be the number one player this year after taking second position in the Conference Championships last year and Henry feels he is capable of repeating his performance again this year.

"He certainly has the leadership and talent," Henry said. "He's a steady, quality player."

The tennis team opens their season at Bowling Green, Ky. against Indiana, Western Kentucky, and Northern Alabama.

Coach Henry knows there is a lot of work to be done before he can enjoy the spring, and although he may be in the midst of a storm, Henry knows it is only a matter of time before the skies clear up and spring can be enjoyed.

The 1984 Men's Tennis team consists of sophomore Fred Hall, juniors Kurt Angell, Fred Blanks, and Mylos Van Urk and senior Hartmut Junghahn.
