

Crozier is building a spirit

By Tiah Birkby

"We need spirit," according to Clarksville's Mayor Ted Crozier. And to build that spirit, he suggested that everybody in this city attend Austin Peay sports functions.

He said that this is our (Clarksville's) only college and we should "flat push" for our college, through financial support and encouragement of students.

Under consideration is the possible use of Austin Peay facilities by police and firemen to work out. Crozier explained that programs for the city employees could be set up and directed by graduate students. Funds for the assistantships would be provided by the money paid for the programs.

Revitalization could be used as the key word for Crozier's administration efforts. He plans to form committees to increase cultural arts and to develop restoration procedures for downtown Clarksville.

Local Clarksville businessmen, lawyers, architects and Austin Peay students will be appointed to those and other committees, Crozier said.

A civilian-military council is another project that Crozier is working on. "We need to bring those communities closer together," he stated.

The issues that Crozier said he sees as in need of immediate attention are the restoration of law and order and discipline, possible reorganization of the police department, the training of police and fire fighting personnel in more extensive life saving techniques, and to expedite the building of recreation centers.

He also said that he is checking into the possibility of collocating police and fire departments in order to provide better protection.

Three recreation centers are in the planning stages and Crozier said that he sees these centers as an impetus for community involvement.

Implementation of seven municipal swimming and diving teams is a goal that the Crozier administration is striving for.

Annual runs of two distances, that are under consideration, will bring in money to the community and provide active community participation, Crozier said. The races would be community sponsored events, with businesses sponsoring the competitors.

Crozier said that his administration is dedicated to develop a closeness among the Clarksville, Austin Peay, and Ft. Campbell communities. "We want to get them as close as we can," he said.

Discount card program nearing completion

By Clyde Robinson, Jr.
Wouldn't it be a great idea to have a card that would give students discounts in over one hundred Clarksville stores on goods and services you want and need?

This idea may become a reality within a month with the Student Discount Program being put into action by Austin Peay's Student Government Association and Clarksville's Chamber of Commerce.

According to SGA President Dave Mason "The only real holdup is the paperwork and we need student help for that." The paperwork

Mason is referring to is agreement packets that need to be sent out to all the businesses that wish to participate in the program and the student help that SGA needs is students that are willing to give a little of their time to help address these packets.

The program has received Chamber of Commerce President Melburn Mayfield's approval and a letter stating so is included in the packet along with a poster that shows that the business participates in the program.

Businesses such as discos, restaurants, and car dealers have shown interest in the program.

Singerhoff elected vice president

By Kay Hinton

Mr. Bill Singerhoff, director of the department of public safety, was recently elected Vice President of the Fraternal Order of Police, Two Rivers Lodge No. 23.

The Fraternal Order of Police is an organization which strives to cultivate the mutual friendship and fellowship of police officers. It encourages the highest degree of skill, efficiency and loyalty among police officers. "It is not a labor union or a 'sounding board' for police gripes," Singerhoff explained.

The Austin Peay State University police joined the organization to expose their department to the lodge and members. After several changes in the constitution, three Austin Peay officers, Singerhoff, Sgt. Freddie Maxwell and Lt. Roger Elawick were nominated to the board. Singerhoff said that their nominations were an achievement since officers outside their department, city or county police, nominated them. Singerhoff was sworn in as vice president Jan. 10 by the former board of directors.

The 1979 goal of the Fraternal Order of Police is to bolster the image of law enforcement in the city and county. Plans to achieve this goal include the establishment of an associate membership to the lodge—public minded citizens who are interested in the welfare of policemen and women. This would be an honorary position with no voice or vote.

Not formalized as of yet, but definitely being considered, is the sponsorship of a juvenile project. Singerhoff said it might possibly be an athletic team.

Singerhoff has twenty years of military experience in the army. He spent eight years with the military police and 12 years with criminal investigation. He has been to numerous schools, including Arlington County Police Academy in Virginia.

Singerhoff said he plans to "represent the Austin Peay police force as a member of the board, but not only that, I want to represent the city and county police also. The relationships between us and the city and county police are good. We hope to draw the Highway Patrol and any other full time police officers into the lodge also."

Singerhoff stated that exposure was the name of the game. "We have good, qualified people in the lodge and we want to have the faith of the public so that they will know they can call on us at any time."

Gray stars as Peter Pan

By Kay Hinton

Rehearsals for the Speech and Theatre's upcoming performance, Peter Pan, began Monday, Jan. 15.

Peter Pan is the annual children's play that the department presents. Mr. John G. Griffin, director, commented, "Even though Peter Pan is a children's play, we try to pick shows that will appeal to everyone. We usually have a fair success with the campus turnout."

The play will begin with a matinee for elementary school children on Feb. 27. An afternoon and evening performance will be given Feb. 28-March 3.

Peter Pan is a musical presentation. Park is the musical director. Rosemary Norris is in charge of choreography. Griffin said that these two people had been working on their part of Peter Pan since before Christmas.

Starring as Peter Pan will be Curtis Gray. Gray's performances at Austin Peay include A Doll's House, Aesop's Fables, The Skin of Our Teeth, and The Death and Life of Snekky Fitch. She also portrayed a number of characters while at Volunteer State Community College. Griffin said that Gray has quite a bit of past experience in the technical areas of the theatre.

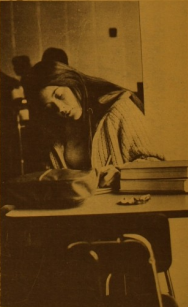

Captain Hook will be played by James Parker. Parker was seen in The Death and Life of Snekky Fitch, Six Characters in Search of an Author, and Butterflies are Free.

Appearing in her first role at Austin Peay will be Renee Balavre, a recent Up With People performer. Balavre will play Wendy.

Bureau being formed

A speakers bureau is in the process of being formed on Austin Peay's campus. Its purpose will be to provide an educational service to the people of our region from the university community. The programs will be of a wide variety of occasions and groups.

The Office of Public Information will coordinate the speakers bureau. There will be no obligation to accept an invitation to speak unless it is convenient with the speaker.

Anyone interested in joining the speakers bureau should write their name, department, title, and topic(s) and place this information in Sherwin Clift's postal box in the basement of the Browning Building by 4:30 p.m., Friday, Jan. 26.

The Chinese have developed something which U.S. researchers have thus far been unable to produce—a male birth control pill.

According to Chinese scientists, the pill has been tested by some 4,000 Chinese men and the Chinese are claiming "overwhelming success." The pill is taken by the male each day for three months, after which time a maintenance pill must be taken twice each week.

The male pill is said to be about 99.8 percent effective and only about two percent of the users report any side effects. Within a year after the discontinuation of the pill, the subject's fertility is said to be restored.

American scientists, however, are cautious about the pill, contending that the substance which the pill is made of, gossypol, could have extremely toxic potential.

Gossypol is a cottonseed derivative and has been used in the United States as an industrial anti-oxidant for rubber and vinyl synthesis. According to researchers in the U.S., large doses of the substance have proved fatal in animals.

It was reported in a last week's issue of the Nashville Tennessean that the estate of the Shah of Iran is estimated at $29 billion.

According to President Carter's proposed budget for 1980, the United States will face a national deficit of the same amount next year.

A bill has been introduced in the Tennessee legislature to raise the legal drinking age in the state from 18 to 21 years of age.

The bill, sponsored by Senator Leonard Dunavant (R) from Millington, would repeal a law established some years ago which lowered the legal drinking age to 18.

Several state legislators are presently preparing questionnaires to send to constituents, anticipating feedback which would aid them in their consideration of this piece of legislation.

There has been some concern throughout the state that if the legal drinking age is raised, there may simply be more illegal drinking and little decline in teen-age drinking.

The legislators will be depending heavily on input from their constituents in deciding how to vote on this issue, the outcome of which will affect a very large number of Tennesseans.

Lamar Alexander might truly "go the extra mile" as he continues probing into possible misuse of state funds by former Governor Ray Blanton. Alexander requested Monday that special audits of several state departments be conducted to further search out possible misuse.

The master of business administration program at Austin Peay State University has recently received a pledge of support from First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Clarksville.

A scholarship from the bank will be available for full-time, in-state students enrolled in the MBA program beginning fall quarter 1979.

According to James P. Mann, president of First Federal Savings, the scholarship was established to support the MBA program at Austin Peay and to grant an award in an area related to the financial institution business.

Recipients of the scholarship will be encouraged to remain in and seek employment in the Clarksville area.

Eighteen traffic accidents were reported within the Clarksville city limits in the period following Sunday's snow, according to Clarksville City Police.

The accidents were all minor ones, none of which resulted in bodily injury, a police officer said. Similar accidents were reported throughout Middle and East Tennessee, most of which were caused by persons "driving too fast and sliding off the road."

Still some problems

Child care coming

Like a child just learning to walk, the day care center is getting off to a slow stumbling start.

According to Kathy Dial, coordinator for the center, a board of directors has been selected, the first step in forming a foundation. Insurance policies are being drawn up, financial budgets are being established, and soon the search for a building will begin.

Though there are still many problems to be worked out, the dream of a day care center is becoming a reality.

The All State believes that the installation of a day care center on the campus of a university can provide a great many educational benefits.

Scheduled to be open six to eight hours a day, the center would be supervised by parent students for a reduced rate, or volunteers who are interested in observing and/or studying the behavior of children.

editorial

Psychology, sociology, and education majors would have the opportunity to obtain working experience by acting as supervisors for the children.

Parent students who would be using the services provided by the center would be receiving them at a reduced rate, compared to centers in the community.

The day care center will not be offered as a student service but as an educational service. According to Dr. Charles Boehms, vice president for student affairs, the university is "not in a position to invest funds to create a new service that will overlap services offered in the community."

Austin Peay will not be unique in having a day care center. A number of universities in Tennessee and surrounding states provide day care services. Dial has been studying the organizational and operational plans of some of these centers in order to combine the most effective ideas for Austin Peay.

The institutionalization of a day care center here would be a great accomplishment for the Student Government Association and President David Mason's administration.

The All State understands that the development of an organization of this nature takes a long time.

We are confident that Kathy Dial will compile all the necessary information and form the basic organizational structures so that this university's administration will adopt the proposal.

Professionalism is a requirement in any business endeavor. The All State sees this attempt to establish day care service by the SGA and Dial as a solid step toward developing and maintaining a high degree of professionalism in student organizations.

Quick vote by SGA

In a hastily called special meeting Thursday night, the Student Government Association Senate passed a resolution in support of the present quarter system.

The regular senate meeting had been adjourned when it was realized that the resolution had to be acted upon that night. Senators had already left. In a frantic effort to obtain a quorum, SGA officers and the remaining senators called dorm rooms to get some of the senators to return.

The first meeting had been long and many of the student senators were impatient to leave. Hence, adjournment and the leaving of unfinished business.

The resolution was passed by a vote of 21-0. Two students who had expressed opposition to the resolution were not among those present.

It is unfortunate that the SGA Senate had to resort to such a rash vote. We see the handling of this matter in this way as bordering on incompetency.

The proposed semester change has been hotly debated within the university community and has developed into quite a controversy. The SGA would be wise to take better care in its policy making, especially when it concerns a critical proposal like the one before them.

USAB is a viable force on campus

Editor's Note: This column was prepared by Ken Hill, chairman of the University Social Activities Board.

It has been a year since Mike Carrier came to Austin Peay as director of student activities. During that year's time, the development of the University Social Activities Board (USAB) as a viable force and entertainment on this campus has greatly changed.

It should be noted that the experience that Mike Carrier brought to the job has proved to be of assistance to the USAB in presenting new types of programs to the campus. However, neither Mike Carrier nor any or all members of the USAB can provide the one most needed factor in programming—attendance. Unfortunately, the big majority of the events presented on campus have been very poorly attended by Austin Peay students. While we realize that no show will appeal to all students, we feel that all of the shows that have been presented have an appeal to a larger number of students than have chosen to attend.

The major complaint which is received by the USAB concerns the absence of big-name concerts on Austin Peay's campus. As the year 1978 has just ended, the figures are now available concerning who the better artists were in the last year. The Dec. 23 issue of Billboard contains the #1 awards for many categories of artists and records. As Austin Peay's programming is constantly being compared to the programming of Middle Tennessee State University, we would like to point out the comparison between those shows as reported in Billboard in the ranking of artists during the past year. Under the listing of the Top 100 and Top LP Popular Male Artists, three artists appear in the top 50, who this year appeared on Austin Peay's campus in concert: the number nine artist, Bob Welch; number seventeen artist, Dan Hill; and number 37 artist, Robert Palmer.

Of the 50 top male artists listed at the top male artists of the year, none of these artists appeared at Middle Tennessee State and only three appeared in Nashville who are ranked higher than number nine, Bob Welch, those being Billy Joel, number three; Eric Clapton, number six; and Jackson Browne, number eight. On the Popular New Artists Category, the number one artist was Meatloaf; number two, Foyar, number three, Bob Welch; and number 15 Exile. Of the 25 artists listed in this section, none appeared at Middle Tennessee State while three appeared at Austin Peay.

Only two of the Top 25 groups appeared at local colleges, both appearing at Middle Tennessee State: The Commodores, number 2 and number 9, Electric Light Orchestra. Of the remaining 23 groups, only five appeared in Nashville. One of these groups, number 24

Lynyrd Skynyrd was scheduled for an appearance at Austin Peay some two weeks after the tragic air crash which killed part of the band.

In the record charts, the ratings for groups with Pop Singles contain the number 5 top single of the year, Exile's "Kiss You All Over," the number 7 single, Player's "Baby Come Back," number 33, Dan Hill's "Sometimes When We Touch," number 58, Player's "This Time I'm in it for Love," number 78, Robert Palmer's "Every Kind of People," number 78, Bob Welch's "Sentimental Lady," and number 96 Bob Welch's "Ebony Eyes." The highest single of any of the groups that appeared at Middle Tennessee State was the Commodores with "Three Times a Lady," number 10. Of the total 100 records in the Top 100, only four were by groups appearing at Middle Tennessee State, while seven were groups who appeared at Austin Peay. Three of the top four records were by the Bee Gees with the fourth, "You Light up my Life," by Debby Boone.

Looking at popular albums, the Top 100 popular albums contained albums by a group appearing on one of the two campuses was Bob Welch's French Kiss which outranked both the Electric Light Orchestra's Out of the Blue and the Commodore's Natural High. The album Player also appears in the top 100 albums in the same company with the Commodore's Live album, entering such albums as Boston, Double Vision by Foreigner and Son of a Son of a Sailor by Jimmy Buffet.

In the category of Pop Singles Artists, all five major artists to appear at Austin Peay in the past year are listed, with three of the five being in the top 25; Player at number 5, Bob Welch at number 22, and Exile at number 23. In comparison, the Commodores are listed at and Player number 64 and Dan Hill number 80.

In the Billboard Honor Roll of New Artists, in the category of Single Artists, out of the top 25 Player finished number 1, Bob Welch number 3 and Exile number 4 with no new artists appearing at Middle Tennessee State. Of new Album Artists, Bob Welch finished at number 4, Player at number 9, again with one of the top 25 appearing at Middle Tennessee State. A listing of Pop Male Singles Artists, Bob Welch finished at number 7, Dan Hill number 14, Pop Male Album Artists, Bob Welch number 12 and Dan Hill number 25, Pop New Single Groups, Player number 2, behind the Bee Gees, with Commodore number 3, New Pop Single Groups, Player number 1, John Travolta and Olivia Newton-John number 2, Exile number 3, New Pop Album Groups, Player number 5.

Besides a lot of low numbers, what does all this mean? It means that the groups that have been brought to Austin Peay's campus have been very good contrary to what some people would like the students here to believe. We have no reason to be embarrassed or ashamed of the attractions that are brought here because they are consistently among the best artists in the country. All one has to do to acknowledge this is to listen to your radio because you are hearing them very often, at least as much as you are hearing the groups that go to Middle Tennessee State.

But contrary to popular belief we are not blowing our own horn. We are simply saying to you, the students, "Hey, we are presenting you with what people across the country are saying is good entertainment." In order for us to continue this and in order for us to provide better and more entertainment, you must do your part. Your part is to support the programs and to attend the shows.

As previously stated, we know we will not please all the people all the time; that doesn't happen at any university. We also know that we will not get groups here that some of the students here would like to see. This is because of the physical limitation of facilities as has been discussed previously in The All State. What we do know is that until we begin to draw more than the 2,500,000 people who have attended concerts here (Bob Welch, Robert Palmer, Player/Exile concerts), we will not the Commodores, Foreigner, Boston, Kansas or other "big-name" attractions including ELO. These people will only perform in halls where there is standing track record of good attendance and that takes time.

Part of Carrier's job is to attend conferences at which new acts are showcased. By bringing to you new, upcoming stars (Player, Bob Welch, Robert Palmer, Exile, Dan Hill, and others who have been here in the past (LeBlanc and Carr, Charlie Daniels Band), Austin Peay can build a reputation as not only a good audience, but more importantly a supportive audience.

We realize that Austin Peay is a relatively small school, and consequently, if all the students enrolled here came to a concert we could not fill the Dunn Center. Therefore, we must rely on the community and the surrounding area for help. However, we should not have to depend totally on the outside community to make our concerts a profitable situation for the promoters and the University. We must have you. We will continue to do our best to bring you the best entertainment we can get. However, if you, the students, want to see better entertainment, we must have your help and support. Unfortunately, we know that we will probably never get acts such as the Bee Gees, Eric Clapton, Billy Joel; however, there are a vast number of fine acts—only with time and support of the student body will they come to Austin Peay.

In the meantime, we will continue to do our best and we will continue to provide enjoyably, quality entertainment free of charge in the Student Center. As always we are open to suggestions, recommendations and constructive criticism. But, as with any other group or person, it's all a lot easier to take from people who support and care about what is being done.

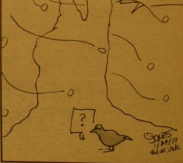

LISTEN YOU DAMN SNOW... I'VE HAD ALL I CAN TAKE FROM YOU, YOU'VE GIVEN ME MORE TROUBLE THAN ANYTHING ELSE I CAN THINK OF....

How to protect the right to be let alone

Supreme Court Justice Brandeis called the right to be let alone "the most comprehensive of rights and the right most valued by civilized men." In today's computer age, the right to privacy has taken on even greater implications.

Robert Ellis Smith, publisher of the well-known Privacy Journal, tells in his brilliant new book, how to protect the right to be let alone in an age of too much information and not enough space. Privacy is the first consumer guide to the protection of your right to privacy.

Privacy tells what kinds of sensitive, personal information about you are stored and used by businesses and government agencies and what you can do about it. For the first time, someone has brought together into one book a profile of the computer and manual files kept on millions of Americans. For the first time, someone has gathered together the different federal and state laws that give you some control over this mass of information about you. And for the first time, someone has offered practical advice for confronting privacy invaders, even where there are no laws to protect you.

The first section of Privacy is devoted to different kinds of records: financial, criminal, credit, consumer investigations, personnel, federal agencies, insurance, mail data, medical, professional consultants, schools, Social Security, state agencies, tax and telephone records. Also included are stories about people who have been victimized by invasions of privacy in all these areas. Finally, Bob Smith provides much sound specific advice for an individual to fight back; to say "no" to requests for personal information when it has no bearing; and to demand to see records where they exist.

Student visits the Met

Editor's Note: Ms. Conklin is a junior vocal major at Austin Peay. The following is a transcript of an interview with her.

By Lisa Conklin

As the chandeliers ascend... the gold curtain rises... the exhilarating tension mounts... the music soars and human experience is portrayed through the world's finest singers, actors and musicians—Grand Opera at its best on the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House of New York!

The week of Jan. 8-12 provided myself along with 40 other undergraduates from across the United States a chance to participate in a seminar sponsored by the education branch of the Metropolitan Opera Guide. "A week at the Met" offered the participants a wide scope view of opera at the Met.

The class was taken from the embryonic stage of an opera production to a full live performance.

Every hour of the seminar presented an introduction to the different facets of opera productions through lectures by some of the superb staff (over 100 people) in the business, technical and artistic affairs at the Met.

The group joined in interviews with the make-up artist, costume designer, scenic artist, fencing coach, ballet troupe, business managers, and television producers. The interviews were highlighted by daily discussions with James Levine, music director and John Dexter, producer.

The seminar reaffirmed to the students that opera is much more than a soprano singing bird calls, carrying swords and wearing horns. Opera is a sensual art form that is shaped by forces based on human emotion, fate, reason and thought. These emotions are portrayed by singers and actors using a rich array of color and imagination. Combined with the power and intensity of the music, the listener is compelled to become emotionally involved, adding a new dimension to the senses and inner state.

Mass media has now made opera easily accessible to the public through live Saturday afternoon radio broadcasts and television productions live from the Met. The Music Department's own opera theater will make live opera available during the spring quarter.

College students vote for best stars

College and university students across the country will, for the first time, have an opportunity to vote directly for their favorite screen performers and filmmakers in a new national poll known as Student's Choice Awards.

Balloting will be in association with FOCUS '79, a national competition sponsored by Datacube and open to filmmaking and film-study students. Voting categories include Best Motion Picture, Best Performances by an Actor and Actress, and Best Director.

Results of Student's

Choice Awards balloting are expected to provide a unique sampling of opinion among American college students—who represent one of the most influential segments of the country's movers—concerning theatrical films released during 1978.

Winners chosen by student vote will be invited to attend the FOCUS '79 Premiere and Award Ceremony in Hollywood on March 22, prior to the Academy Awards, at which time official presentation of the Student's Choice Awards will be made.

Closing date for receipt of ballots will be Feb. 15. Ballots are returnable to: FOCUS: Student's Choice Awards, 1140 Avenue of the Americas, New York, NY 10036.

A random drawing will also be held among schools submitting 100 or more ballots, with the winning college or university receiving a brand-new pinball machine for installation in the campus student activities center.

Anthology reviewed

One-acts provide leisure

By Leslie North

Twenty One-Act Plays: An Anthology for Amateur Performing Groups. Edited by Stanley Richards. 684 pp. Dolphin Paperback, $6.95.

One-act plays make the perfect leisure reading for the busy college coed. Stanley Richards recently edited an anthology entitled Twenty One-Act Plays: An Anthology for Amateur Performing Groups, and it is worth reading.

Opposed to its title, the collection is for more than just the producing group. The average reader also finds entertainment and adventure.

In the preface to the compilation, Richards states "If an author has something to say, and it fits into the dimensions of the short play, then that is its rightful place."

He carefully selected a wide range of materials. Comedy and farce are contrasted with thought-provoking drama. A universal approach is achieved, and whether browser or bookworm, the volume is interesting.

This multitude of writings makes it easy for the reader to breeze through one or two selections in a matter of minutes.

Richards relies on well-known authors such as Agatha Christie and Neil Simon and then draws in others—Murray Schiagal and William Saroyan included.

The formalist approach is applied in his collection as Richards provides introductory notes before each play. A brief biography and additional writings are included in each foreword. This aid allows the reader to associate familiar names with familiar plays. Comparisons of writings are enhanced.

Plays are often the least favorite materials offered to the reader. However, for the busy college student with little free time, this anthology provides the perfect material.

Radio club will meet

There will be an organizational meeting of a Campus Amateur Radio Club in the Claxton Building, room 109, Jan. 25 at 7:30 p.m.

All "hams" and other personnel interested in obtaining a license for such are encouraged to attend.

Speech team takes seventh

By Jim Rector

Austin Peay's speech and drama team finished seventh in a field of 20 schools at Ohio State University while the debate team captured fourth place among 89 teams in a simultaneous meet at Ohio's Wooster College on Jan. 13.

"With a showing such as this, we could have established ourselves as definite national contenders," said Student Government President Dave Mason who captured individual honors at the Ohio State meet.

"We're at least going to be a strong 'dark horse' contender in the state tournament in February," said the team's director Dr. Jim Holm.

Individual and team honors are as follows: Belinda Boyd took first place in poetry, fourth in dramatic interpretation and 3rd pentathlon. Dave Mason placed third in persuasion, and fourth extemporaneous. Paige Chargois won second in poetry. Third in reader's theatre went to Paige Chargois, Belinda Boyd, Ralph Carter, James Collier, Bernice Davis. Fourth novice debate team honors were won by Roy Buchanan and Lee Ellen Parker.

The next major meet is the state tournament at Roane State Community College, Feb. 9-10.

APSU Speech and

Theatre department is hosting the Tennessee High School Speech and Drama League District III, March 9-10. This is the second tournament the department will host this season and it invites anyone interested in observing or judging events to contact the department office.

Bunger honored

A portrait of the late Dr. Fred Bungler will be unveiled Friday at 1 p.m. in the Claxton Building.

The Jan. 26 ceremony will commemorate Bungler's service as an educator at Austin Peay. Before his untimely death last spring, Bungler served as chairman of the education department.

The presentation should not last more than fifteen minutes and in the event of a large turnout, we will transfer the presentation to CX-103.

Members of the Bungler family will be present and everyone is welcome to attend.

A memorial fund has also been established and the interest on the account will be used for the "Fred Bungler Memorial Award in Education." This award will be made annually to the outstanding graduate student in education, and if funds permit, a second award for an undergraduate student will also be established. Anyone desiring to contribute to this fund may do so by contacting Carl Siedman, Department of Education.

GLUED—Austin Peay was like most places in the country Sunday afternoon as many people watched Super Bowl XIII.

Center established for aid

The Tennessee Student Assistance Corporation announced Jan. 15 the establishment of an Educational Information Center to aid persons needing information available to college bound students. "With adequate information, obtaining a good education is possible for most members of our society," he added.

Funding for the Educational Information Center has been provided in part by appropriations of the Tennessee General Assembly and in part by corporate, stated that an information center of this type has been a vital need due to the multiplicity of educational programs and student financial aid programs available to college bound students. "With adequate information, obtaining a good education is possible for most members of our society," he added.

Funding for the Educational Information Center has been provided in part by appropriations of the Tennessee General Assembly and in part by federal funds received under a contract with the Tennessee Higher Education Commission.

The Student Assistance Corporation was created by the General Assembly in 1974 as a non-profit organization to administer various programs of student financial assistance, including the Guaranteed Student Loan Program and the Student Assistance Award Program. Student assistance provided through the efforts of the Corporation totaled over $16,000,000 in academic year 1977-78.

Reiprish rejoins admissions

By Lisa Jackson

Janet Reiprish, a face not new to Austin Peay has recently become the assistant director of admissions.

Reiprish, a graduate of Glendelf high school in Nashville, completed her bachelor's degree in health and physical education at Austin Peay in 1972.

In 1974, Reiprish held the position of associate director of admissions (the position she holds now) until 1977 when she resigned to become the associate director of admissions at King College in Bristol, TN. Several months ago, because of a possible merger of King College and the University of East Tennessee, Reiprish's position at the university was folded, leaving her temporarily unemployed.

When Eileen Murphy (former assistant director of admissions) resigned early this quarter to teach high school in Christian County, Reiprish was contacted by Austin Peay and she accepted the position they offered.

Janet Reiprish will remain at Austin Peay until May 31, when a new person will be hired on a regular basis.

Upon the appointment of a new person for the position, Reiprish will return to her home in Florence, Alabama, where her husband, Rick, is the offensive line coach at the University of Northern Alabama.

PEM sponsors car bash

Weather permitting, the Austin Peay Physical Education Majors Club will sponsor a "car bash" on Thursday, Jan. 25 between the hours of 9 a.m. and 3 p.m.

The PEM Club plans to use a car donated by Fox's Auto Parts, and paint various names of faculty staff members on it. A sledge hammer will be used to "beat" that favorite (or least favorite) instructor's name to a pulp.

The car will be placed in front of the Joe Morgan University Center. Champs to "take a swing" will be 25¢ each, or five for $1. All proceeds will go to the PEM Club.

Bratcher appointed

John Bratcher, director of financial aid at Austin Peay State University, was notified this week that he has been appointed to a regional and a national panel. Both deal with the administration of federal financial aid funds.

Bratcher, who also serves as the president of the Tennessee Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators, was appointed to the American College Testing's (ACT) Southern Regional Advisory Council.

The council will meet Feb. 17 in Orlando, Fla., preceding the Southern Association Student Financial Aid Administration conference. Purpose of the council is to suggest methods to help streamline and modify the reviewing and awarding processes of the financial assistance programs offered by ACT. Two administrators from each state in the southern region are appointed to the council by recommendation of the regional director of ACT. Bratcher served on the council in 1977.

Bratcher's second appointment was to the U.S. Office of Education's National Appeals Panel. The panel reviews applications for federal financial aid to learning institutions.

Nine thousand institutions are eligible to request funds from the federal government for financial aid programs. If an institution does not receive the funds they request the case is reviewed by the national Appeals Panel.

Two administrators from each of the 10 federal regions are appointed to the panel. They will meet from Feb. 26 through March 1 in Washington, D.C.

Bratcher said it was a great honor to be able to represent APSU on both a regional and national level.

Assistantship

There is an assistantship available in the Austin Peay Placement Service office for a counselor and assistant with application deadline of Jan. 24. There will be a 30-hour work load with a maximum of six academic hours per quarter. The person must currently be an APSU graduate student.

The position will be available through June 30. The salary for the assistantship is $416 per month.

Anyone interested should contact Fred Landies, placement director by mail with a letter of interest and a resume. The telephone number at the Emerald Hills Center is 648-7896.

Head count higher

The head count of students enrolled at Austin Peay State University for winter quarter 1979 is slightly higher than the count last year.

As of Thursday, Jan. 18, the count of on-campus students attending the university was 3884. The university shows a gain of sixteen students when the figure is compared to last winter's 3868 students.

Glenn Gentry, dean of admissions and records explained that the figures were about what was expected.

"I predict that we will gain from 150 to 200 students from the Fort Campbell Center (formerly Eagle University)," Gentry stated.

With the count of off-campus students plus the Fort Campbell students, Gentry said that he expected a median gain in enrollment.

Seniors need to register

By Clyde Robinson

With graduation, you'll have a degree—but will you have a job? Fred Landis and his staff of the Placement Office at Austin Peay State University may be able to help you get that job you have in mind.

According to Landis, the Placement Office has two primary goals which are to assist students already enrolled find part-time jobs and to help seniors and Alumni in locating and securing employment.

The way they go about this is by educating the student with career office goes about this by educating the student with career information, the "where" and "how" to look for a job, and tips on resume writing and an interview department.

Many students may not think that it is important to go by the placement office and start working on their student file. They may believe that it takes too long and too much time out of an already full schedule, but actually there are only three things the student needs to do. Those three things are a minimum of three evaluations from members of the faculty, provide a copy of your college transcript and a resume.

Time is a very important factor in processing a file and all of the things mentioned above should be completed as soon as possible. According to Landis, many times a student will wait until after graduation to start this file, but by then the professors that they want may be gone; in addition, many companies and all school systems ask for a placement file whenever you apply for employment while a student.

One of the other services the placement office offers the student is a clearing house for jobs. Landis urges students to bring in names of companies they are interested in for further reference so that recruiters for these companies and organizations may be asked to visit the campus.

In all, 80 recruiters will be at APSU this year to interview students for various positions. Last year, 1200 such interviews were held on campus.

For students that are looking for part-time employment, the placement office offers the microfiche from the Tennessee Department of Employment Security and a directory of current job openings at the information desk at the Joe Morgan University Center.

All services mentioned in this article are free to students and alumni alike. The placement service office is located in The Emerald Hills Alumni Center and the number to call is 648-7896.

McGill fund offered

The Ralph McGill Scholarship Fund offers scholarships for the 1979-80 school year of up to $1,500 each to students with southern backgrounds who have completed at least two years of college. Jack Tarver, chairman of the scholarship fund said today.

Tarver said May 1979 is the deadline for applications. He also said a number of scholarships are awarded each year to students who have demonstrated a long-time interest in the news and editorial phase of newspapering.

Scholarships, he said, are limited to those young men and women whose roots lie in the south. Applicants must also convince the Awards Committee that they firmly intend to pursue a career in daily or weekly newspapering. Tarver said the Awards Committee wants to give scholarships to those who are likely to become leaders in the newspaper field.

Successful applicants will be required to maintain a B average in order to keep the scholarship.

A letter of not more than 500 words telling why the applicant wants a scholarship, together with a photograph of the applicant must accompany each application. Applicants also must have a letter of recommendation from a college authority.

Application blanks may be obtained from: The Ralph McGill Scholarship Fund; Box 4689; Atlanta, GA 30304.

of the new technology that threatens our rights of privacy: computers (including a fascinating account of how they work), wiretaps and bugs, fingerprint machines, "lie detectors", surveillance devices and voice comparison devices.

The third section concerns the need for physical privacy - the need for us to have "elbow room" in which to do what we want. This is true, as the book describes, in the mails, in the workplace, in the community, and especially in the home. In one of the most alarming profiles in the book, Bob Smith describes the need for privacy in sexual behavior. It is shocking to learn of countless examples in which couples' sex activities have become known to outside snoopers.

All of these provocative revelations about the state of our privacy - less than five years away from "1984" - lead up to a concluding section which details the many different ways you can protect your privacy at a time when everybody wants to know everything about everybody else and when they have the computers and electronic devices to allow them to do it. Privacy will guide you through the laws and skills needed to protect what is truly yours alone.

Intern programs limited

During the summer of 1979, Federal departments and agencies will employ a limited number of students under the Federal Summer Intern Program.

Selected students will receive practical experience in some phase of Federal activity related to their individual career field. Through the intern's interaction with Federal personnel on the job, the program will give Federal agencies opportunities to sample your thinking.

The program is designed for students who will be returning to school in the fall and who can share their experience with other students interested in similar subject areas.

Most intern positions will be in the Washington, D.C., metropolitan area, but some may be located in other major cities. Salaries range from $180.60 to $370.60 per week (Grades GS-4 to GS-11), depending on the qualifications of the intern.

All interns must have completed at least 60 semester hours, or be a graduate student. Undergraduates must be in the upper third of their class and graduate students must be in the upper half of their class. Students must have demonstrated leadership ability - be a class officer or hold positions of leadership in organizations.

This intern program is directed toward all

Math/Statistics majors. For more information, contact Mildred Peterson, director of student life. Deadline for applying is March 16, 1979.

OUT FRONT—Pre-season All-Ohio Valley Conference performer Alfred Barney prepares to move the ball inside against Middle Tennessee.

Bibb resigns

Miller reports on NCAA

When Athletic Director Johnny Miller made his report of the National Collegiate Athletic Association Convention to the University Athletic Committee last week, the biggest topic on his report centered around Title IX, that "infamous" piece of legislation from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

covering all fields

By Billy Fields

Title IX has caused a big stir among athletic departments all across the nation as it has many interpretations and only recently has HEW attempted to make formal interpretations. The rule basically states that women's athletics will receive aid comparable to the men's programs. Even at that, there is a problem.

The Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (IAIW) will not allow such a thing to occur. It would appear that this is IAIW's way of equalizing the various programs. There is a definite limit to spending in women's athletics which is governed by the IAIW.

In other NCAA news, Miller reported that all Division I basketball teams must, in the next several years, revamp their schedules to include 23 of 27 opponents to be played against other division I teams. According to Miller Austin Peay is not that far out of line here so it would be a limited amount of work.

In a move which would not affect APSU, the NCAA stated that there will be no special housing facility offered to athletes that are not offered to the regular students. None of the Governors or Lady Gova are given special housing although the football team is the predominate residents of Rawlins Hall. That particular hall is no better than any others in its age category.

A question which the Ohio Valley Conference must deal with will be the new scholarship rules. The NCAA passed a new rule allowing the signing of 75 athletes with a limit of 90. The OVC currently plays under the 55 to 60 limit rule. This means that Austin Peay and the OVC play outside opponents without as many football players. The answer would appear simple—add more scholarships. Right? Wrong—an increase in numbers could not be afforded by any of the Tennessee members of the OVC. When the OVC presidents get together this will be a very interesting point.

Miller pointed out that Head Women's Basketball Coach Janine Cox is preparing a report of her experience at the AIAW Convention in Los Angeles.

Speaking of the Athletic committee, long time chairman Dr. Leon Bibb has resigned his duties. Bibb has been in that position after many long years of service and he deserves a lot of gratitude for this work.

Dr. Steve Castleberry, dean of alternative programs and acting director of Continuing Education, is now chairman of the committee.

If more students could show up at basketball games, the Lady Gova and the Governors would surely play better. It would appear to be the best (and cheapest) way to spend an evening. The entertainment value of the basketball games is great. If you ever go to the Dunn Center one time for a game, then you will be back again. Ask those who have been there.

Monday night loss

Govs trounced

By Billy Fields

Austin Peay continued their losing streak on the road Monday night with a 85-61 loss to Western Kentucky in the Hilltoppers' Middle Arena. "We began to go away from the game plan," coach Ed Thompson commented after the loss. "We would be down by two or three and then panic."

The game was rather close right up until the last few minutes when the Hilltoppers began to pull away from the Governors for good. This final surge by Western Kentucky proved to be Austin Peay's undoing.

The downfall of the Governors seemed to be their fouling and lack of being by their opponents. The Governors committed 24 fouls in the contest while Western Kentucky only drew 13 whistles. This means that the Hilltoppers were in the one plus the bonus for most of the game and the Governors did not get extra trips to the "charity line" until late in the game.

"We have a couple of guys who can't play 30 minutes on the court," Thompson explained. "A couple of them can probably go only 18 minutes. They seem to lack stamina and endurance."

Thompson went on to explain that his Governors are giving him maximum effort in the past couple of games. He stated that there was nothing anyone could do until the teams get ready to give 100 percent on the floor.

In an unusual turn of events, the Governors were outscored by Western Kentucky 40 to 31. This is unusual since the Govs have been out rebounding most of their opponents.

Western Kentucky out shot the Govs from the field as well. The Toppers shot 53 percent for the game with a 59 percent make coming in the second half. Austin Peay shot only 45 percent from the field which was a couple of points higher than their seasonal average.

Tim Thomas led the Governors in scoring with 18 points. Larry Kingery and Steve Mitchell each contributed 10 points. In a surprising event, Governor leading scorer senior Alfred Barney scored only two points, some 15 points below his average for the year.

The Gov's record fell to 6-11 on the year and 1-4 in the Ohio Valley Conference. Western Kentucky moved to 9-6 and 2-2 in the OVC.

Murray State will be the Govs' next opponent. Austin Peay travels to Murray Saturday for a 7:30 game.

Lady Gova drop two

Austin Peay's Lady Gova fell on hard times this past weekend as they dropped two games to the Ohio Valley Conference opponents. They lost to Middle Tennessee 69-57 in the Dunn Center then fell 85-57 at Western Kentucky.

Sharon McClannahan led the Lady Raiders over Austin Peay with 18 points and 12 rebounds. The senior Lady Raider hit nine of 25 fieldgoals for the game.

Elaine Swafford led Austin Peay's scoring with 14 points.

The Lady Gova were never really in the game as they could never hit the crucial baskets. Austin Peay shot less than 35 percent from the field for the game.

Western Kentucky out shot Austin Peay 46 percent to 37 percent. The Lady Toppers also out rebounded Austin Peay 53 to 32.

Alicia Polson led Western Kentucky in scoring and rebounding with 18 and 12, respectively.

Colena Rucker, sophomore forward for the Lady Gova, hit 12 points and hauled in 13 rebounds.

Freshman guard Jeanne Hindoe scored 10 while Swafford added 9.

The Lady Gova travel to Murray State for a meeting with the Lady Racers. Murray State has nine returns from last year's squad including All-OVC performer Jackie Mounts.

Game time is 5:15 p.m. in the Murray State Sports Arena.

Valerie challenges rule in court case

"In retrospect," he continued, "I'm sure that we could have done more in helping Valerie. I think we could have had her counselor and the school psychologist be of greater help to Valerie, but, at the same time, it seemed to us that the support and counsel of the state leader of the school—the principal—could be and was more meaningful to Valerie and to other students as they considered how they might react to this 'maverick'."

Valerie said, "The first time I showed up for practice (last year), the guys didn't know I was coming."

According to local newspaper accounts,

Valerie's coach as well as some of the team members said on national television and in the press that they didn't approve of girls on boys' teams.

Valerie learned soccer as a youngster in South America where her father worked as an IBM executive. The family returned to the States, first to New Rochelle and then to Chappaqua, N.Y., where Valerie continued to play soccer on mixed teams in school, in the local recreation league, and at summer soccer camps.

When she arrived at Horace Greeley in 1977 as a freshman, the girls' soccer program didn't have a schedule. Valerie, who according to her parents was eager for expert coaching and challenging competition, sought out the boys' team.

Others have accused her of "arrogance" or of saying that she's "better than" other students. "The kids are not with her, boys or girls," said one educator. "A lot of it she has precipitated with her arrogant attitude."

When asked why the coach hadn't talked to Valerie about her "arrogance" instead of just cutting her from the team, the educator replied, "He's young and inexperienced, and frankly, I don't think he can handle the boys."

"I was watching them, and they get very irritated with each other and are quick to let their colleagues know they goofed. It's unfortunate, but they do it with themselves."

Horace Greeley is part of New Castle School District, considered to be one of the best and the wealthiest in the state. "Almost everyone who lives there is an executive; the cheapest house must be $125,000," said one observer. "At Horace Greeley there are six playing fields. There are teams for everyone, boys and girls, and they have the best uniforms I have ever seen. They try and give the kids the best."

"When there are games, even in the afternoon when you'd expect most parents to be at work, the parents come out like they're going to a horse show dressed in tweeds and with their cameras."

"There's a lot of community support for athletics," she added.

But apparently not for Valerie. "The community people are not with her. The kids are not with her," she said.

Because Valerie is interested in trying out for the girls' basketball team, she is currently challenging the state ruling that bans her from all interscholastic sports.

"She's going to make it as an athlete. She's a competitor, no doubt about that," said the observer. "She has that drive and the skill. But she has so many defenses going. She has to-to survive."

Bird Leads Pizza Hut list

Unanimous All-American forward Larry Bird of Indiana State heads the list of 62 senior college basketball players whose names appear on the East squad ballot for participation in the eighth Pizza Hut Basketball Classic.

The game, which has helped provide hundreds of thousands of dollars to non-profit organizations in its seven-year history, is scheduled for the afternoon of March 31 at the Las Vegas Convention Center and will be televised live nationally on the CBS Sports Spectacular.

The nation's top 124 seniors, as selected by a 12-member panel, are listed on the ballot as potential players in the contest. Nationwide balloting at participating Pizza Hut restaurants and universities begins Jan. 1 and concludes March 1.

The eight players on each squad who receive the most votes automatically receive invitations to participate in the East versus West All-Star game. Two other spots on each squad are filled as at-large selections.

Bird enters his senior year acclaimed by many to be the most complete forward in recent college history and could finish his career with statistics which support that claim. For his career he has averaged 31.3 points and 12.4 rebounds per game.

Joining Bird on the East ballot are two other All-Americans, center

James Bailey of Rutgers and forward Reggie King of Alabama, along with several of the nation's top scorers from last season. Oliver Mack of East Carolina, John Gerdy of Davidson, Herbie Stamper of Morehead State, and Burrell McGhee of Kent State joined Bird and Bailey among the nation's top 25 scorers, according to NCAA statistics. King was second in the nation in rebounding with a 13.3 average.

Both NCAA champion Kentucky and runnerup Duke have representatives on the ballot in Wildcat guard Truman Claytor and Blue Devil guard Jim Spanarkel.

Among other superlative players who are candidates for the East squad are national free throw shooting champion Carlos (Bunny) Gibson of Marshall, Greg Kelsor of Michigan State, Pat Cummings of Cincinnati, James Bradley of Memphis State, Joey DeSantis of Fairfield, Mark Haymore of Massachusetts, Alton Byrd of Columbia, and Tico Brown of Georgia Tech.

NAIA and NCAA Division II and Division III standout players are 6-10 Ron Ripley of Wisconsin-Green Bay, 6-3 Curt Artis of Pace.

Lovell Joiner, Eastern Kentucky, Greg Johnson, Middle Tennessee, and Herbie Stamper, Morehead State represent the Ohio Valley Conference in the classic.

Intramurals

33 teams are competing

By Kim Suddeth

Basketball, the major event of Austin Peay's Intramurals this quarter, has a total of 33 teams participating in men's, women's and "under six feet" leagues.

On Monday and Wednesday evenings from 6 p.m. until 9 p.m., the SEC, OVC, and Big 5 divisions of the Open League will fight it out.

On Tuesday and Thursday, the "under six feet" and women's leagues will meet from 6:30 p.m. until 8:30 p.m. on the two courts.

In the recent standings of the open Big 5 division, the Little Sticks come out on top with a 2-0 record, with Track & Thongs 1-0, Ellington Hall 1-1, the Seta 0-1, and the Killer B's at 0-2.

The Big Sticks are leading the Open OVC league 1-0, while following them are the Hawks at 1-0, the Projects are 1-1, the Celtics 1-1, and the Son of Satan are at 0-2.

Leading the Open SEC league is F-Troop at 2-0, with the Pikes 1-0, APO 1-1, ROTC I at 0-1 and ATO at 0-2.

In "under six feet" league in the UBA, Rawlins Hookers are ahead at 2-0, Black Byrds are 1-1, Crissom Knights are 1-1, F-Troop are 0-1 and the Nets bring up the rear at 0-1.

In the ABA league, High Rollers are highest with a 2-0 record, Sigma Chi has 1-0, ROTC II has 1-1, the Slayers are 0-1 and APO comes in with a 0-2 record.

The eight women's teams began play last week. Tonight in the SEC, ROTC I will face Pikes and ATO will meet APO at 6 p.m. at 7 p.m., in the OVC, the games will be Big Sticks vs. Hawks, and the Sons of Satan will take on the Projects. The final games of the evening will be when Big 5 Seta meet Track & Thongs, and Little Sticks face the Killer B's at 8 p.m.

Students are always welcome to attend the games and support the teams.

Rebounding favors Austin Peay

Perhaps nothing is as surprising about the seasons of the Austin Peay mens and womens basketball teams as the fact that they are both out rebounding their opponents.

Before the season began, coaches Ed. Thompson and Janine Cox knew they would go into most games at a definite size disadvantage.

In the age of 6-9 to seven-foot mens centers and six-foot to 6-5 womens players, Thompson's tallest starter is just 6-6 and Cox's tallest player period is only 5-11.

Nevertheless, the Governors are outrebounding their opponents 585-502 and through nine games, the Lady Gove are a 374-324 rebound edge over their foes.

In fact, both teams were averaging 41.6 rebounds per game, which was over five more than the opposition.

The APSU men had held the rebound edge in all but four of their games and the Austin Peay women in all of theirs.

Both Thompson and Cox agreed it's hard to believe how their teams have fared on the boards, but the answer may lie in the fact that rebounding was stressed so much when the season began.

Assistant Coach Peter Dees agreed by saying, "Maybe we've made them so conscious of the need for good rebounding position that they are doing that better than anything else."

No one player has been completely responsible for the mens rebounding success, as the Governors continue to send all five men to the boards and occasionally got bused because of it.

Senior Alfred Bailey still leads the team in rebounds with 73 per game, while Steve Mitchell is averaging 4.3, Curtis Webster 5.9, Tim Thomas 5.3 and Mark Smith 4.6.

On the other hand, the girls rebounding edge has largely been due to 5-11 center Golena Becker, who is pulling down 12.9 per outing. Captain Elaine Swafford is also averaging 8.8.
