MSM To Present Hootenanny Thursday

A.P. Playhouse In Midst Of Rehearsals

Dr. David E. Denton, assistant professor of psychology at Austin Peay State College, was recently asked for his views on the forthcoming A. P. Playhouse production of Henry Denker's "A Far Country."

"Speaking from a psychologist's point of view," Dr. Denton said, "I found it fascinating." He further stated that, in his opinion, the playwright had "treated the early acceptance of psychoanalysis accurately . . . and fairly."

Dr. Denton feels that "A Far Country" is authentic in two regards: first, in its portrayal of Dr. Sigmund Freud, world-famous "father of psychoanalysis," and secondly, in its treatment of the early problems of psychoanalysis. He regards the play so highly that he is requiring his Personality Theory classes to see it, inasmuch as they are currently studying the concepts and theories of Dr. Freud. In closing the interview, Dr. Denton stated, "I strongly encourage everyone to see the production of 'A Far Country.'"

"A Far Country" will be presented by the A. P. Playhouse on November 7 and 8 in the Clement Fine Arts Auditorium on the APSC campus. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

Tickets may be obtained by visiting the box office in the Clement Building or by calling 647-2741 beginning November 6. Ticket prices are $1 for general admission and fifty cents for students.

Dr. Stearns Speaks At APSC Today

DR. STEARNS

"The Problem of Meteor Impact Craters" will be the topic of Dr. Richard Gordon Stearns' speech today in Assembly.

Dr. Stearns is the author of numerous articles for scholarly publications. Stearns is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, the Tennessee Academy of Science, a Fellow of Sigma Xi, Fellow of the Geological Society of America.

1964 Annual Staff Completed

The staff for the 1964 "Farewell and Hail" has been announced by Suzanne Mitchell, editor of this year's edition.

The Business Manager for the yearbook is Kay Williamson. Miss Williamson will be assisted by Jackie Lobertini, this year's assistant Business Manager.

The students who are in charge of gathering the material for the section on the faculty include Terry Smith, Barbara J. Pendergast, Phil Morrow and Wanda Kingman.

Feature stories will be handled for the annual by Ramona Lumpkin, Joan Overton, Roma Evans and John Poy. Campus life will be handled by Sandra Barnett, Connie Sue Gibson and Martha Murdock.

Wesley Marquess, Bonnie Crick, Joyce Stephens and Becky Wood have been assigned the task of preparing the section of the annual under the heading of organizations.

The senior class will be handled by Marcia Hamilton, Jerry Williams and Gary Hodges. The junior class by Susan Price, Paulette Scott and Mildred McKinney; the sophomore class by Lillie Taylor, Rhonda Riggins and Willette Starley; and the freshman class by Betty Jo Pope, Joyce Quillen and Dennis Munzer.

The sports department of the "Farewell and Hail" will be handled by Jim Phillips, Don Stevenson and Jim McKinley. Section taking is again being done by student photographers. This year's photographers are Billy Hutton and Don Reese. The artist for the yearbook is Charlotte Dill.

The job of indexing the annual is being done by Floyd Lehman, Mary Ann Winkler, Linda Seay and Ron Kelly. Typist for the book is Nancy Davis.

"We are really working hard on the book and hope to have it out as early, if not earlier, than last year," was all Suzanne would say as she hurried off to run down some more material for the 1964 "Farewell and Hail."

ASB To Sponsor Count Basie In Concert

Last Wednesday the Associated Student Body Council officially signed a contract which will bring County Basie and his orchestra to Austin Peay State College on November 6 for a two hour jazz concert.

William "Count" Basie was born in Red Bank, N.J., on Aug. 21, 1904. He played the piano since childhood, studying at first with his mother. After working around New York, he went on tour with a theatre unit. When the tour broke up in Kansas City, he went to work in a silent movie theatre. Soon after, he joined Walter Page's Blue Devils and later, Benny Moten, whose band he took over when Moten died in 1935.

In the summer of 1935, Basie had a ten-piece band which John Hammond, the noted music critic, heard on a small Kansas City radio station. Hammond helped bring the band to Chicago and then to New York in 1936, where it was enlarged. In January of 1937, the band made its first recording and the following year, became internationally famous.

The qualities that established it were Basie's single, swinging, elliptical piano style and the driving impetus of a great rhythmic section. "Head" arrangements developed spontaneously by Basie's soloists, added to the electrifying impact of the band.

Five Groups To Perform

A spooky hootenanny will be sponsored by the Wesley Foundation Halloween night in the APSC gymnasium beginning at 7:30. The admission will be $1 per person. The program, which will be broadcast live over WZM radio, will consist of four vocal groups and one instrumental group.

25 States Represented At APSC

The total enrollment of the student body at Austin Peay State College this Fall has been broken down into several categories.

Of the 2228 students enrolled there are 1508 men and 720 women. By classification, there are 954 freshmen, 474 sophomores, 409 juniors, 312 seniors and 79 graduate students.

A rather breakdown shows that there are 25 states represented on the campus. The states represented and the number from each state are:

Alabama (1), Arkansas (1), Delaware (1), Florida (12), Georgia (10), Illinois (9), Indiana (24), Iowa (1), Kentucky (208), Maryland (2), Massachusetts (1), Michigan (2), Mississippi (2), Missouri (2), New Jersey (3), New York (14), North Carolina (Continued on Page 7, Col. 5)

The Ambassadors, one of the folk singing groups which will appear on the program, was a Discovery of the Week last year in the Nashville Tennessee talent survey. They were also runner-up in the Discovery of the Year survey. They have been heard on WSM-TV and radio in Nashville.

The Oak Ridge Quartet, a nationally known folk and spiritual singing group, will also be providing entertainment. The quartet has recently returned from doing recordings on the Warner Brothers label. They currently have an album out entitled "Folk Minded Spirituals for Spiritual Minded Folks."

Completing the list of vocal groups are the Haddock Sisters, a trio from Hopkinsville, Ky., who have done much work in the Southern Kentucky area, and the Merry Men, a local folk singing group consisting of high school and college students.

The instrumental group, Group X, hails from the Clarksville area, and they have the specialty of adding a Dixie Land flavor to folk music.

State BSU Convention Will Be This Weekend

DICKENS

RICHARDSON

The Austin Peay State College Baptist Student Union will be the host for the state BSU Convention this coming Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The Madison Street First Baptist Church will be the scene of the meetings during the course of the convention. The theme of the convention is "Freedom Through Obedience."

The convention will officially begin at 7:15 Friday night with Bob Bailey the presiding official.

Special features during the convention will include a luncheon honoring program personnel on Saturday, Dr. James L. Sullivan, executive secretary of the Baptist Sunday School Board, will bring greetings to the 250 students who will attend the luncheon.

Dr. W. Fred Kenall, Executive Secretary of the Tennessee Baptist Convention, will begin the Saturday evening program of world missions emphasis.

A period of meditation at each session of the convention will be led by Mrs. Owen F. Herring, housewife, lecturer and writer from Winston-Salem, N.C.

Musicians for the convention will be directed by Rev. John Preston, Associate Pastor of McIlwain Baptist Church in Birmingham, Ala. BSU choirs from across the state will sing at the convention.

Paul Dickens, president of the BSU at Austin Peay State College, Larry Richardson, vice-president, Carl Wilson, secretary and Jim Sparks, director of the BSU at the College, have been working hard in hand with state directors in preparing for the convention this year.

School Spirit Continues To Lag

Although school spirit at Austin Peay State College reached a new high for Homecoming Week, on the whole enthusiasm on the part of APSC students has been at a low ebb.

Everyone wants activities on the weekends and during the week as well. Club meetings are planned, dances are set up and bonfires and pep rallies are proposed by the student body, yet only a handful of students show up for any of these events.

At all of the home football games there has been very little cheering. The cheerleaders do their best to get the student body to yell for the team, and a few hearty supporters try to convince the team that they are behind them.

When the team is having a hard time moving the ball the cheering section sits on its hands and waits. When the team begins to make progress, the students muster up a little noise, only to die again when the Governors lose the ball for one reason or another.

This year's football team has shown more desire and hustle than the past few teams ever did, yet the student body continues to remain calm and dead. No student body can literally help a team win a football game, but in raising the roof and showing the football team that it is being supported, they can give the team the amount of encouragement it needs to try a little harder and come up with the play that is necessary for victory.

The fact that the football team has lost 18 games in a row should only serve as a greater stimulus for the student body to support the football team. To support a winner is an easy task, but to support a loser is quite a different story. No group of boys ever deserved the out-right support of the entire student body than the present group of players who are playing ball for Austin Peay State College.

One question which each student might ask himself or herself is "Did I come to college to watch or to support?" Joining in activities is an important part of campus life. The more one puts into his years at APSC, the more he will get out of them.

A display of genuine spirit and enthusiasm makes one's activities more rewarding. The "live wire" is admired and envied by his fellows because of the spirit with which he does things. He is proud of his work and eagerly sees it through. Spirit is the mark of doers, not sitters.

But the sinner need not despair. If he acquires an active interest in the events around him, he can become spirited. The sitters at Austin Peay State College should stir themselves from their cramped positions and develop a stronger interest and pride in their college. If they remain sitters, they are at the wrong school!

The Place Of Athletics In A College Program

By David R. Aaron, Director of Athletics

An intercollegiate athletic program properly supervised and operating within a frame-work designed by an interested and controlling administration and committee should be a major asset to any college.

An athletic program in a state college should be a related activity to the Department of Physical Education and, as such, should promote and reflect the aims and purposes of the entire institution.

This program embracing those activities in sports that are indigenous to its area should provide wholesome and vigorous competition for qualified students with other colleges whose educational philosophies are similar.

An intercollegiate athletic program should promote good will not only with other institutions but should enhance its educational image in its own city and surrounding areas.

At no time or within any given area of the program should it be out of proportion to the educational purposes and ideals of its institution.

An intercollegiate athletic program will develop pride of accomplishment, resourcefulness and physical and mental stamina in the members of its team. It will serve as the strongest stimulus in arousing school spirit and community interest and, finally it provides a rallying point for all the students, alumni and townspeople.

Letter To Editor

Fellow Students:

I would like to take this opportunity to express my thanks to everyone who was involved in what was one of the most successful homecomings in the history of Austin Peay State College.

Let me also use this as a means of expressing my thanks to the members of the Junior class who helped us build our float. Those who did not help missed a great deal of fun.

I also want to make an appeal to the members of our class to get to work and unite to make this the best class in the history of the College.

Thanking you again for your help, I am looking forward to working with you again soon.

Sincerely yours,
John Foy, Junior Class President.

Help Support ASB Concert

To many students, the Associated Student Body Council is as meaningful as the Hanesatic League. However, it is the most important organization that the student body has. It is the student's voice heard not only by his fellow students but by the administration also.

Recently the ASB Council voted to contract Count Basie and his jazz orchestra for a concert to be held Nov. 6 in the Memorial Health Building. This was not considered a casual undertaking by any of the student representatives.

First, there was the consideration of the admission price. After much discussion, two dollars was considered the minimum which could be charged without the risk of making the concert a financial failure. All the Council seeks financially is to break even. If there should be a profit, it would be put in the treasury in order to bring more big name entertainment to APSC at a lower cost to the individual student.

And then there was the question of successfully promoting and making preparations for the performance on such short notice. The various representatives readily volunteered their own services and the services of their clubs. The problems of in-town advertising, out-of-town advertising, campus advertising, erecting the specified platform and backdrop, ushering, setting up the chairs, handling the concessions and numerous other problems were eagerly accepted by individuals and committees. This is the unified spirit which will make the ASB Council the most successful student government APSC has ever had.

To what end are they working? They are working to promote an all-round better program of social activities for the student body. They are working to erase the stigma of being a college with "nothing to do" and the need of a sturdy suitcase as a piece of standard college equipment. They are working to serve YOUR interest and to make YOUR college career an exciting one. YOU are the focal point of all their effort and dedication.

What do they seek in return? Only that you give these new activities a try. Go to the concert. Find out if you like live jazz entertainment. Support at least one activity sponsored by your ASB Council. Offer your opinions on how social activities can be improved. This is all they ask. Do yourself and your fellow students a favor by supporting your ASB Council. They are behind you. Are you behind them?

Council Notes

The ASB Council met Monday, Oct. 21 and discussed the following business:

1) Each club must send its representative to the next meeting to be held Monday, Nov. 4 or else be dropped as an official club until it has been re-admitted by a vote of active Council representatives.

2) Jimmie Lee Bell was named the chairman of the Re-appointment Committee. Others named to the committee are loan Winn, Henry Queener, David Watson, Bill Norman and Fred Alsop.

3) President Henry McCaslin presented his Judiciary Council appointees to the Council, who approved the appointments. The four members of the Judiciary Council are Jackie Sabo, Karen Goven, Paul Dickens and David Watson. The vice-president of the ASB is constitutionally the chief justice.

4) The date for the election of the treasurer of the ASB was set for Nov. 21.

Students Favor Sitting On Opposite Side Of Field

By: Phyllis Nance and Judy Trotter

The question "What do you think of the student body band sport. As it is now, the students and governesses being moved to the opposite side of the stadium for all the home football games?" was asked of the following students.

Sammy McIntosh, freshman, accounting, Cunningham: "I've heard of being unpatriotic, but this beats all I've ever heard. How can we support our team on the opposite side of the stadium? I think the very thought of such a thing should be completely disregarded."

Russel Cloward, freshman, biology, Big Rock, Tenn.: "I think it is a good idea. I think it will help the seating problem."

Doug Platt, junior, biology Nashville: "I think it is a good idea. For the majority of the student body, we need a systematic seating arrangement and this can't be done by random seating. Because of the expanding student body and the size of the stadium, it sounds like a good idea."

Lynn Markham, freshman, English, Elkhart, Ky.: "I do not like the idea. Everything is over on the way with the press box, and I like it where we sit now."

Patti Lawrence, freshman, pre-medical, Fort Campbell: "In a way, it might be better, for a lot of people feel a little funny trying to cheer around all the parents. We could probably have a better cheering section if this could be done."

Wanda Lay, freshman, business, Clarksville: "I think it would be a good idea because all the kids could cheer together and not in a lot of small separate groups."

Warren Chawer, senior, marketing and speech, Hopkinsville, Ky.: "I am in favor of the idea. If the student body were moved to the other side, we would have a greater unity of student support. As it is now, the students are too scattered out."

Larry Richardson, sophomore, biology, Crofton, Ky.: "I think where the students are now, they are too crowded and scattered out. Maybe if we sat on the other side where there is more room, the students could sit together. This might make our school spirit stronger."

Mike Hutton, junior, music, York, Pa.: "I don't think it makes any difference where the students sit. Even if we move the students to the other side they will be split by the band."

Suzanne Mitchell, junior, English, Lebanon: "I see the administration's point of view, but I prefer sitting where always have because I have become accustomed to it. But I think the students should go along with the change."

Robert Wood, freshman, physical education, Bridgeton, New Jersey: "I don't think we should be moved to the other side because I like the seats on our present side, and it is usually traditional to sit on the same side as the press box."

Any further ideas concerning this matter will be gladly accepted by The All State and passed on to the proper people.

Business Department Featured This Week

The first Austin Peay State College business major, a war veteran who had received some college credit prior to his service hitch, was graduated in 1948.

Needless to say, the Department of Business at APSC has taken great strides since the first major was graduated some 15 years ago.

The Department of Business was organized in 1947 with two faculty members on its staff. Today, there are seven full-time professors or instructors and three part-time instructors. Glenn S. Gentry, professor of business, is department head. He came to APSC in 1947 and holds the B.S. degree from Tennessee Polytechnic Institute and the M.S. degree from the University of Tennessee.

Gentry is joined by J.F. Burney, Jr., assistant professor; Peter Condles, assistant professor; Richard Jones, instructor; Mrs. Gerda Ladd, assistant professor; Miss Clifflie Spillman, associate professor; and Dr. Christine Strop, professor. The part-time instructors include Neal Bateman, John Peay and Frank Runyon.

Jerry Rust, Jr., a departmental member since 1955, is on leave doing advanced graduate work at George Peabody College for Teachers.

Changes in the curriculum have been both deliberate and rapid to cope with the changing times. Today, offerings are listed in accounting, business administration, marketing, business education and secretarial science.

Professor Gentry feels that business courses can help a student in various ways—both in and out of class. Shorthand is helpful for taking notes in class, while typing can be used in many ways in this highly-mechanized age. Naturally, the Department, along with the Placement Bureau, continuously provides for students with assistance in securing suitable employment before and after graduation.

Marketing is the most recent major to be added to the Department. Concerned with advertising sales, manufacturing, wholesaling, retailing, purchasing and international trading, this highly competitive field awaits the student who is interested in an.

The Raiders Three Deep

This week's opponent, Middle Tennessee State College, was the preseason pick to take the championship honors in the Ohio Valley Conference this season. The Raiders of MTSC were set back by the current conference leaders, Western Kentucky, by a 16-6 margin for the second Western victory in 11 years.

In preseason rundown of prospects for the Raider squad, a host of 32 lettermen were in line for starting berths.

MTSC will field one of the finest quarterbacks in the history of the school in Teddy Morris, a 5-11, 170 pound sophomore from Murfreesboro. Also, the Raiders have outstanding prospects in all OVC end George Dykes at 6-3, 200 pounds and full-back David Petty at 5-11 and 190 pounds.

Dykes has chalked up 301 in pass receiving this season to lead the Raiders in this department. Petty led his team in rushing last season with 400 yards for a 4.3 yard average and leads this season's ground gainers with 209 yards.

To Tell The Truth

Speaking of the past, at East High's Key's Stadium (Nashville) in 1936 during a game between two Nashville schools, East and Father Ryan, a very odd chain of events took place.

At that time the coach was not allowed to confer with the quarterback in regard to certain situations as they developed on the field. A play could only be sent in by a substitute.

The East coach, confronted with a very difficult situation with his team on their own two yard line, sent in a lineman with orders to run one play and then to punt the ball.

The lineman was late getting on the field so he was not able to talk to the quarterback until after the first play was completed. The play was a running play and the net gain was 96 yards to the Ryan two yard line.

The lineman, with the orders from the coach to kick, told the quarterback to punt the ball. He did just that, and, as far as it can be determined, the football hasn't been found yet. It was booted completely out of the stadium.

A Look At The OVC

At the half way point in Ohio Valley Conference competition the Western Hilltoppers hold a firm lead on the road to the championship with a 4-0 record in the conference. Western has posted victories over Middle Tennessee State College, Austin Peay State College, Tennessee Tech, and East Tennessee. They still have to play tough Morehead State and Murray State to be in line for the conference crown.

Running in close competition to the Hilltoppers in Morehead, who could quickly be in contention for the crown with a single Western defeat.

The Last Word

—Tim Chilcutt, a 5-8, 175 pound halfback from Old Hickory, Tenn., returned me kickoff against Morehead to boost him into the OVC lead. Chilcutt has seven returns for a 26 yard per return average for the first five games.

—Chilcutt also, in addition to playing one of the best games in his college career, broke a school record for the most punt returns in a career. He has returned 27 punts in his two years of college ball and is destined to pile up an almost insurmountable record in his remaining years of eligibility.

—The Govs should field probably their strongest team of the year against MTSC Saturday night. Ed Bunio is the only Governor on the doubtful list at the present time that will probably not be ready for action Saturday night.

Carlton Flatt OVC Back Of The Week

By Garner Nabors

Carlton Flatt, a product of Cumberland High School in Nashville, was chosen as Ohio Valley Conference "Back of the Week" for the week of October 22. The 150 pound junior was the workhorse of an inspired Governor team that outgated heavily favored Morehead but lost a close 7-0 decision.

Coach Bill Dupes, in speaking of his fine quarterback, says, "Carlton is a fine competitor and a fine athlete. What he lacks in size he more than makes up for in aggressiveness and scrappy play."

Flatt took over the quarterbacking duties from the injured freshman, Davis Johnson. Since breaking into the starting backfield Flatt has proved himself to be one of the Governor's better defensive backs. This isn't to say that he is not good on offense, however. In last week's game against the Morehead Eagles his total offensive effort for the night was 117 yards, which included 40 yards rushing and 77 yards passing in 34 plays.

In terms of leadership, coach Dupes said, "Flatt is definitely one of the leaders of our team. The other boys accept his leadership without his demanding it. Our opponents know he is small and that he isn't going to run over anybody. However, they respect his speed and ability."

Flatt said about the Morehead game "The team effort was tremendous. All the fellows were really 'up' for this game."

In regard to the new coach, Flatt said, "Coach Dupes is a great man to play for. He gets that little bit of extra effort out of you that so many coaches can't get."

Flatt played his high school football under coach Ernest Smullen at Cumberland. During his senior year he made All-Class AA at quarterback in the Nashville Interscholastic League.

About his selection as back of the week, Carlton said, "I didn't do anything special. We just had real good blocking. Of course, I was very pleased to get the honor."

Golf Team Plays Sewanee This Afternoon

AFSC's golf squad will entertain Sewanee today at noon in a return fall practice match.

The six-man match is slated for the Cole Park Golf Course at Ft. Campbell, Ky.

Thirteen days ago the Gov Linksters battled the Tigers for 16 holes until darkness prevailed. Today, the two teams are beginning an hour earlier in hopes that they may finish the match.

The Gov six-man team will be selected from Don Wood, Bob Mitchell, Jimmy Barber, A. B. Sisco, Joe Young, Phil Gentry or J. W. Turnbow according to 36-hole qualifying scores that they have been undergoing since the last match.

Fisher Optimistic About Basketball Season

By Garner Nabors

"I'm greatly looking forward to our first season as a title contender in the Ohio Valley Conference," said George Fisher, head basketball coach, in a brief interview.

"We are anticipating a very successful season against some rugged opposition."

The Governor basketball team has been preparing for its opening game against Transylvania since October 15. After only the first week of practice, George Fisher is very pleased with the progress his team is making. "The attitude of the boys is great," Fisher stated. "They came to play and that is exactly what they're doing. Our pre-season practice is all too short in the first place, and we have to utilize every minute of our time in getting ready for our first game."

When asked to compare the Governors to other OVC teams, coach Fisher replied, "As far as shooting goes, I'd say we are as good as any team in the conference."

"We have three men back who shot in double figures last year; Doug Stamper, who averaged 19.2 points per game, Steve Miller at 12.8 and Jim DeForest at 11.6."

"We expect a lot from them, of course. We have one of the best defensive men in the OVC in our first season as a title contender in the Ohio Valley Conference," said George Fisher, head basketball coach, in a brief interview. "We are anticipating a very successful season against some rugged opposition."

To Run In TIAC

APSC's 1963 cross-country edition will make its debut November 2 in the Tennessee Intercollegiate Athletic Conference meet at Jackson, Tenn.

Although the Gavs are not entering any dual competition this season in their initial cross-country fling, they will be well represented at the TIAC and also the Ohio Valley Conference meet which will be held at Cookeville, November 23.

Squad members that have been working daily are Tom Hinkle, Jim Lambertson, Jim Bitcher, Mike Lee, Bob Embry and Bob Horner.

HOW SMALL CAN YOU GET?

Today let us address ourselves to a question that has long rocked and ruled the academic world. Is a student better off at a small college than at a large college?

To answer this question it is necessary first to define terms. What, exactly, do we mean by a small college? Well sir, some say that in order to be called truly small, a college should have an enrollment of not more than four students.

I surely have no quarrel with this statement; a four-student college must unequivocally be called small. Indeed, I would even call it idiotic if I knew what idiotic meant. But I submit there is such a thing as being too small. Take, for instance, a recent unfortunate event at Crimcrist and M.

Crimcrist A and M, situated in a pleasant valley nestled between Philadelphia and Salt Lake City, was founded by What, exactly, do we mean by a small college?

A. and M. Crimcrist, two brothers who left Ireland in 1623 to escape the potato famine of 1841. As a result of their foresight, the Crimcrist brothers never went without potatoes for one single day of their lives—and mighty grateful they were! One night, full of gratitude after a wholesome meal of French fries, cottage fries, lush browns, and an gratin, they decided to show their appreciation to this bountiful land of potatoes by endowing a college. But their generosity contained one stipulation: the enrollment of the college must never exceed four students. They felt that only by keeping the school this small could each student be assured of the personalized attention, the camaraderie, the esprit, that is all too often lacking in larger institutions of higher learning.

Well sir, things went along swimmingly until one Saturday a few years ago. On this day Crimcrist had a football game scheduled against Minnesota, its traditional rival. Football, as you can well imagine, was something of a problem at Crimcrist, what with only four undergraduates in the entire college. It was easy enough to muster a backfield, but to find a good line—or even a bad line—baffled some of the most resourceful coaching minds in the nation.

Well sir, on the morning of the big game against Minnesota, its traditional rival, a capricious fate dealt Crimcrist a cruel blow—in fact, four cruel blows. Sigfoos, the quarterback, woke up that morning with an impacted inner ear. Richards, the doback, flunked his taxidermy exam and was declared ineligible. Beerbolm-Tree, the wingback-tailback, got his necktie caught in his espresso machine. Yuld, the fullback, was stolen by gypsies.

Consequently, none of the Crimcrist team showed up at the football game, and Minnesota, its traditional rival, was able to score almost at will. Crimcrist was so cross after this humiliating defeat that they immediately broke off football relations with Minnesota, its traditional rival. This latter became known as the Suroo-Vangetti Case.

So you can see how only four students might be too meagre an enrollment. The number that I personally favor is twenty. Why? you ask. Because, I reply, when you have twenty students and one of them opens a pack of Marlboro Cigarettes, there are enough to go around for everybody, and no one has to be deprived of Marlboro's flavor, of Marlboro's filter, of Marlboro's staunch and steadfast companionship, and as a result you have a student body that is brimming with sweet content and amity and harmony and concord and togetherness and soft puck and Flip-Top box.

That's why.

swearing and solving marketing problems. The major may find a lucrative career in marketing research.

Presently, the marketing department is jointly sponsoring with the Clarksville Chamber of Commerce a marketing survey of Clarksville and Fort Campbell to determine the buying attitudes and habits of this area.

Last year the Department of Business conducted a survey with the purpose in mind to help in planning the future curriculum. Of the 300 questionnaires mailed to graduates of various business majors, 141 responded.

The findings of the survey showed that 25 per cent of the business graduates have received or are working toward advanced degrees. They are employed by private industries and concerns, government (federal, state and city) and are working in retailing, insurance, banking, public accounting, education, hospital, law, transportation and industry.

The past decade and a half has produced some outstanding graduates in the business field and the present teacher-student ratio of 1:18 has helped attain this accomplishment. However, the members of the Business Department do not wish to rest on their past achievements alone. Yesterday is history; today is fast fleeting; and tomorrow there is a new challenge to meet.

Where a man goes hereafter depends to a great extent on what he goes after here.

Last June Stearns, associate professor of geology, and Dr. Charles Wilson, Jr., professor of geology at Vanderbilt, were awarded a grant of $95,250 from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for study of the Wells Creek Basin, near the south bank of the Cumberland River about 50 miles west of Nashville. The Basin is believed to be the result of the impact of a meteor that struck about 50 million years ago. The crater thus is probably similar in origin to craters on the moon. The Wilson-Stearns study has as its objective the determination and analysis of the forces generated by the meteor impact. The study must be made now because the Basin will be flooded in a few years by waters backed up by the Barkley Dam now under construction.

Dr. Stearns will also speak at the Clarksville High School Auditorium tonight at 7:30 on the subject, "The Geological History of the Region of Montgomery County."

Pardon me if I sound as if the executive position I've landed deals with the whole future of the world.

It does.

Certainly, there's no organization today conducting more vital business than the business of the United States Air Force. And very few organizations that give a college graduate greater opportunities for responsibility and growth.

As an Air Force officer, you'll be a leader on the Aerospace Team—with good pay, a 30-day paid vacation each year, educational opportunities.

How can you get started? For many, the best way is through Air Force ROTC. But if you missed out on AFROTC, or if there's no unit on your campus, you can still apply for Air Force Officer Training School. This three-month course leads to a commission as a second lieutenant in the United States Air Force.

For more information about Air Force OTS, see your local Air Force representative.

Count Basie

Except for a period in 1950-51 when he led a swinging sextet, Basie has led a big band continuously for two and a half decades. He has gained a global reputation for his undying allegiance to the beat, his loyalty to the blues as a basic form, and his ability to produce, year after year, a series of best selling records. In 1954, the band made its first tour of Europe and, in 1955, Count completed his 20th year as a leader.

The two most outstanding highlights of Basie's career is his command performance for Queen Elizabeth in 1958 and his personal invitation to play at the Inaugural Ball for President-Elect Kennedy in 1961.

1963 Homecoming Was A Success

By Frances Butler

The 1963 Homecoming at APSC is an event of the past, but the memories of the enthusiasm and concern exhibited by the students will long remain in the college annals.

Work on the homecoming floats began on Saturday, Oct. 12, and the students could be found at any hour of the day or night working diligently on their class "masterpiece."

During the same week much thought and effort was given to the dormitory decorations. On Friday afternoon the results could be seen in front of each dorm. Surely the homecoming spirit had reached the student!

Friday evening at 6:30 the official homecoming festivities began with a pep rally, bedfire and snake dance. Saturday morning final touches were added to the parade entries. At 1:30 p.m. the APSC Homecoming parade with 64 units got underway with the APSC Band and Governesses in the lead.

The pre-game activities Saturday night included the presentation of the Queen's float, the four class floats, and the winning club float. Next the announcement was made of the various winners in the car, dormitory, merchant window display and float divisions. The winners in each division were as follows: THE MERCHANT WINDOW DISPLAY - 1st - Mademoiselle's, 2nd - Collins Music Shop, 3rd - Farris Florist; honorable mention - McNeal and Edwards, Billie's Flower Shop, Shainberg's; BEST DECORATED DORMITORY - Women's division - Blount Hall, Men's division - McKenry Hall; CAR DIVISION - 1st - Omega Club, 2nd - Del Square Psi, 3rd - Epsilon Club; CLUB FLOAT DIVISION - 1st - Agriculture Club, 2nd - A. P. Playhouse, 3rd - Industrial Arts Club; and finally, perhaps the most important division, THE CLASS FLOAT DIVISION - 1st - Seniors, 2nd - Juniors, 3rd - (tie) sophomores and freshmen. At halftime in the ball game between APSC and Morehead State the homecoming queen, Miss Shirley Apple, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Apple, Jr., of Madison, was crowned by President Morgan and her court was presented.

Winding up the 1963 homecoming activities was a dance in the Memorial Gymnasium.

Mrs. Ladd-Teacher With Heart

TEACHER WITH A HEART — Mrs. Gerda Ladd, assistant professor of business at APSC, works on grading papers from one of her classes. (Staff Photo by Billy Hutton)

By Betty Riggs

"I came to APSC to teach business on a trial basis for six weeks," said Mrs. Gerda Ladd, assistant professor of business. However, contrary to the beliefs of President P. P. Claxton, a business department was successful at Austin Peay State College. Mrs. Ladd is now going into her 35th year of service to the school.

In 1935, she took the reins as the only business teacher, with a few students and 24 typewriters, 12 of which had been discarded by the government. The other 12 were rented by the school. The program proved successful and in four years another teacher was added to the business department. Over a period of 25 years, the department has grown considerably and now has seven staff members.

Mrs. Ladd feels that the business department owes much of its early success to Dr. Claxton. "It was a pleasure to have worked with a man who had done so much for education and so much to make this school possible," said Mrs. Ladd. "I have enjoyed 25 years of wonderful and rewarding experience of working with young people," Mrs. Ladd went on to say, "and I think I have reaped more than the students. I hope that I have been able to teach my students that happiness isn't slaphappiness, but the joy of accomplishment, and that all work has dignity."

Other than her college position, Mrs. Ladd enjoys her family, especially her grandchildren. She is intensely interested in gardening and hopes to grow some daffodils on her "hill."

Mrs. Ladd once told Dean F. C. Woodward, "When I am gone, I want to be remembered as an honest woman with a kind heart." The business department and students of APSC are very fortunate to have Mrs. Ladd, not only as a teacher, but as a very outstanding person as well.

Unusual Math Class Held At Austin Peay State College

Each Saturday the Austin Peay State College campus is the scene of a very unusual mathematics class.

The participants are eight high school mathematics teachers and 27 mathematically talented high school juniors and seniors from eight area schools. The students and teachers receive no academic credit for the work but participate because of their interest in mathematics.

The program at Austin Peay State College is financed by a $7770 National Science Foundation grant, and is a part of the Cooperative College - School Science Program. The local program is one of 35 similar programs conducted in the United States during this academic year. The APSC Program is conducted by Dr. William G. Stokes, head of the APSC Mathematics Department, and William A. Crabtree, assistant professor of mathematics.

The objectives of the local program are (1) to enrich the high school program of talented students through their participation in modern mathematics courses conducted on a high academic level; (2) to provide these students with the opportunity for contact with other highly motivated students and with college mathematicians; (3) to encourage curricular reform in the high schools of the area by allowing the participating teachers to observe and assist in the condition of courses as well as to study new curricular materials; and (4) to encourage greater cooperation in the pursuit of common goals between the college and the secondary schools.

Presently the students and their teachers are enrolled in a course entitled "Introduction to Probability and Statistics" taught by Dr. Stokes. They meet together from 9:30 to 11 a.m. for a lecture, followed by lunch in the college cafeteria. At noon they reconvene for a second session that last until 1:30 p.m. The second session is of a more informal nature where the students and the teachers study and discuss questions and problems. In the spring, all participants will be enrolled in "Introduction to Matrix Algebra" taught by Professor Crabtree.

The following teachers who are participating include David Burden, Clarksville; John R. Dowden, Woodlawn; Jack S. Fanning, Maplewood; Naamie; David McPherson, Springfield; Harold A. Rivers, Montgomery Central; John Roberts, Christian County; Hopkinsville, Ky.; David Robertson, North Nashville; and James E. Veary, Bart, Clarksville.

The students are Linda Atkinson, Maplewood; Ralph Barr, Christian County; Henry Bow-

Some Seniors Have It Made

Greenville, N.C. - (I.P.) - The rulings concerning unlimited cuts for seniors at East Carolina College were recently clarified.

A Faculty Policies Committee has concluded that a qualified senior will not be required to attend seventy-five per cent of the class meetings, as has been the policy since February 1961.

He may attend only the first and last meetings of the class and receive credit for the course if he has done the required work.

In 1960 the Policies Committee passed the following resolution: "... all seniors who have a 'B' average, or better, except those who are doing practice teaching, will be allowed unlimited cuts."

This resolution was retracted in 1961 by the decision that any student with cuts exceeding twenty-five per cent of the class meetings would be dropped automatically with a failure on the course. With this unlimited cuts ruling, this no longer holds.

College Poetry Contest Opens

The Inter-Collegiate Poetry Congress is now preparing its 1963-64 poetry anthology. The anthology will be comprised of poems submitted from colleges and universities throughout the country.

The selections will be based upon poetic merit. A first prize of $25 will be awarded with second and third prize of $15 and $10 respectively.

All poetry must be submitted no later than Nov. 25. It accepted. All future publishing rights are to be retained by the author. All contributors shall be notified of the editor's decision within two weeks of receipt of the poetry.

All entries should be addressed to: Inter-Collegiate Poetry Congress, 628 Market Street, Lewistown, Pennsylvania.
