Sororities get option

The presidents of all the sororities on campus have been asked to consider the possibility of a move.

A meeting of the sorority leaders was called Tuesday by Dr. Bob Nettles, director of student services and Evie Ravenhorst, director of student life. The students were asked to consider the possibility of relocating from Harned Hall to Archwood.

Harned Hall, previously occupied as a residence hall, has been closed to students as a dormitory since last spring, due to the poor condition of the building. Nettles said that several of the sororities had expressed concern as to the safety of the empty building due to lighting problems and difficulty in establishing an efficient security system.

Archwood, previously the home of the university president, has been closed since the winter of 1980 when fire struck the home and left it with damage from water used to extinguish the flames.

Dr. Boehms, vice president for student affairs said that several proposals had been made for the use of Archwood. He also said that approximately $50,000 had been appropriated for its restoration. Boehms stressed that the sororities must make some decision regarding the building before the repairs of the building begin so that they may have some voice in the repairs.

The sororities, Alpha Kappa Alpha, Alpha Phi, Chi Omega, Delta Sigma Theta and Kappa Delta were asked to consider the possibility of the move and be prepared to accept or reject the idea following Christmas holidays.

If accepted, the groups will move into the house next summer, provided the plan is approved by president Robert O. Riggs.

Women prepare for pageant

More than $2000 in scholarships are tentatively being planned as awards for the upcoming Miss APSU Scholarship Pageant.

David Royce, producer and director of the pageant, said that the actual amount given in scholarships would depend on advertisement sales for the pageant's program.

Royce said that the winner would receive a $600 scholarship and that the runners-up would get $400, $300, $200 and $100, respectively.

Royce also listed the Miss Participation award of $100 for the girl who sells the most program advertisements as an annual award. He is also trying to begin a $50 scholarship for the nonfinalists who place highest in swimwear, evening gown and talent competition.

The scholarship pageant was revived last year by the Phi Mu Alpha Professional Men's Music Fraternity. The pageant, sponsored by the USAH in past years had been eliminated because of lack of participation and funds.

All pageant officials, excluding the judges, are Phi Mu Alpha and Sigma Alpha Iota, the women's music fraternity, members. The orchestra is under the direction of Keith McPhail, and Kathy Bearden is coordinating the vocal and dance entertainment. Associate producer is Shawn Williams and associate director is Howard Scudder.

There are fifteen women participating in the pageant. They are listed below.

Carla Diane Barton, age 19, is sponsored by Chi Omega. Her talent presentation will be a piano solo.

Belinda Carolyn Boyd, age 22, is sponsored by the Austin Peay Playhouse. She will sing and dance in the talent competition.

Jonell Camp is 18 years old. She is sponsored by Chi Omega and will do folklore in song as her talent presentation.

Chonda Ruth Courtney, sponsored by Sigma Chi, is 21 years of age. Her talent presentation will be a vocal solo.

Melody Kaye Mathis, age 21, will sing the theme from "New York, New York" in the talent portion of the contest. She is sponsored by the Bank of Dickson.

Janet Suzanne Norris, sponsored by Pi Kappa Alpha, is 19 years old. Her talent presentation will be vocal.

Thonda Lee Pentecost will twirl in the talent competition. She is 20 years old and sponsored by Kappa Delta sorority.

Marian Denise Pratt, age 22, is sponsored by Baptist Student Union. She will sing in the talent competition. Laura Susan Huser will also sing in the talent competition. Laura is 20 years old and sponsored by Alpha Tau Omega.

Cynthia Jean Stanfill will sing and possibly dance as she represents Stanfill Construction Company in the scholarship pageant. She is 21 years of age.

Susan Danelle Weems is 19 years old and sponsored by Sigma Chi. She will present a music performance in the talent competition.

Evelyn Araminta White, candidate of Sigma Alpha Iota, is 17 years old. She will play the piano in the talent competition.

Aurelia Elise Whitlock, 20, is sponsored by Funkerteers Traveling Disco Productions. She will sing in the talent portion of the pageant.

Linda Ellen Williams, 19, is sponsored by Alpha Phi. She will play the piano in the talent competition.

Mary Faye Wyatt, sponsored by Phi Mu Alpha, is 20 years of age. She will be singing for her talent presentation.

Royce encouraged everyone to attend this year's pageant. "It's going to be great. Our quality of talent presentation is as high as it is in any pageant of this size. The production is going to be extended and even more entertaining."

Royce also commented that the pageant is a preliminary to the Miss Tennessee and Miss America pageants.

The pageant will be Jan. 22 at 7 p.m. in the Clement Auditorium. Student admission is $3 and general admission is $4.

Hicks' main concern student safety

When George Hicks came to Austin Peay in 1969 he was offered a job as carpenter and hired as such. He remained a carpenter until he was promoted to TOSHA Facilities Inspector 11 years later.

"TOSHA," explained Hicks, "is the Tennessee adopted OSHA plan: The Occupational Health, Sickness, and Accident plan. I am concerned with the safety of all personnel on campus."

Hicks said that the main thrust of his job was to be out on campus to identify potential hazards.

"For instance, there are places that drop out on the ground, broken glass, and doors that get stuck causing a fire hazard for evacuation," Hicks said.

Hicks is also responsible for examining "as often as possible" the over 600 fire extinguishers on campus. He also reports potential dangers to people who are responsible for enforcing safety regulations on campus.

"I also assist Donn Brown, director of the physical plant, by helping him locate maintenance problems and reporting them. I submit work orders on maintenance that needs to be performed and help in the planning of renovation on campus," Hicks said.

Hicks also said that he has managed to place emergency lights in most of Austin Peay's buildings (except for the dormitories), and that he is trying to get more smoke detectors installed in the dormitories.

"I'm interested in installing emergency lights in all dorms in case of fire, but I guess I'll have to wait for the money," he said.

Hicks also noted that static between himself and other Austin Peay employees was one reason for not being able to install the emergency lights "necessary for student safety," but spoke off the record when elaborating on the subject.

According to Hicks, his position as TOSHA Facilities Inspector may be changed to Maintenance Supervisor. Hicks said that he was informed by Donn Brown that the change was being discussed by certain members of the administration because there is no official record at Austin Peay of a TOSHA Facilities Inspector.

Hicks said that he did not know why those certain members of the administration waited until now, almost two years after he was first given his present

Forensic team excels

Members of the APSU Debate and Forensics Team finished near or at the top of the recent Ohio Valley Conference competition at Murray State University.

Team members excelled in all four areas of competition: debate, oral interpretation, acting and public speaking.

In debate, APSU finished second behind Western Kentucky. Dr. Jim Holm, debate coach said this finish was impressive for two reasons. First the competition was tough; Morehead, Murray, WKU and MTSU all are nationally ranked with MTSU and Western being 7th and 8th in the nation respectively.

Second, on the APSU team, only Danny Armistage had any experience in collegiate debating. But novices Sue Voigt, Sylvia Sanders, Derek Sautsberry, Dwight Nicholson, and Dana Chase, all debating for the first time, made significant contributions to the team victories.

In individual events, several APSU students performed well. Belinda Boyd took first place in Oral Interpretation of Poetry. Boyd and James Anderson finished third in the acting competition.

Tony Pratt earned a sixth place in Informative Speaking. "In all, the team's success established it once again as a forensic force in the South," Holm said.

Deaths end festivities

Holiday season should include caution

'Tis the season to be jolly, or so it will be as soon as exams are finished. The All State is beginning to catch the Christmas spirit, and so it seems is the rest of the campus.

First, we would like to comment on the decorations in several offices on campus. Student Affairs, and several departments such as English have already put up trees and lights to observe the season. Although this is an institution of higher learning, it is nice to take time to realize what season it is past the gates of the university.

So often we become so wrapped up in the rush of final examinations, we lose track of the holiday spirit, and never quite have time to regain it before Christmas has passed.

However, we would also like to take this time to caution the university community against becoming too wrapped up in the festivities of the year.

More alcohol-related deaths will take place between Dec. 1 and Jan. 3 than any other time of the year. While The All State will not begin to take a stand on "to drink or not to drink", we will advise each student, faculty or staff member, and administrator to know their limits.

If you are too intoxicated to drive home, ask a friend, call a cab or just stay where you are. Don't endanger your life, or the life of an innocent driver or passenger in your efforts to get home.

Drugs and alcohol don't mix, and if your idea of partying for the holidays includes something more than Irish coffee, don't have the coffee as a nightcap.

The All State is a university newspaper, and we cherish the functions of the mind highly. We ask that each university community member cherish their minds enough to keep from ruining it with lethal mixtures.

The Christmas season is a time of parties and festivities. This staff, having worked hard all quarter, plans to enjoy them as heartily as everyone else. We realize, though, that a death during the holiday season would abruptly end the celebration.

Christmas is a celebration of birth, keep it that way.

Letters Policy

The All State staffs of the past have consistently provided their respective readerships with the opportunity to make public comments, suggestions, criticisms and even complaints by making use of the "Letters to the Editor" column and this year's staff intends to do the same.

All letters which are to be considered for publication must be in the The All State office by the Thursday before the Wednesday printing. Under no circumstances will an unsigned or unverified letter be considered.

Letters must be less than 300 words long. No letter will be published which even vaguely implies advertisement or campaign. Space to be used for such purposes in The All State must be purchased at campus advertisement rates.

Letters which the staff considers to be offensive, abusive or libelous will be subject to editing. The author will be consulted in cases where drastic editing of the submitted letter is considered necessary.

Professor shocked by editorial

Dear Editor,

I would like to express my shock and despair after reading your editorial "University Should Have Universal Appeal." At first, I thought the article was a joke and would have a surprise ending. Unfortunately, that was not the case.

I must bring to your attention some serious errors in the article. First, the writer stated that if it were not for plays presented by the AP Playhouse, there would be nothing to do at APSU. It was also stated that there are no concerts or cultural attractions at all.

During the 1980-81 school year there were seventy (70) concerts or related music functions on the campus. This number includes a Community Concert Series of international artists, faculty recitals, a nationally renowned Jazz Festival, Madrigal Feast, Cabaret Night, a Contemporary Music Series, concerts by several campus performing groups such as the University Orchestra, Concert Band, Chamber Singers, Choir, Opera Theatre, and Percussion Ensemble.

All of these programs are provided for students, faculty, and people in the community. Many programs are free of charge. Many feature professional artists of a high caliber.

It is ironic that your editorial appeared the day after a successful concert by Dimensio, a faculty contemporary music group which received an outstanding review in the Tennessean. Where were you?

May I suggest that instead of complaining about a problem which may not exist, become aware that APSU boasts one of the most active music departments in the South and help us to publicize our events so that students will come.

I have found the paper to be most uncooperative and uninterested in publicizing cultural events. There have been many of my phone calls to The All State unreturned and many an event ignored by the paper. Help us and support us. It's for the good of the students that we exist.

Sincerely,
Sharon Mabry
Professor of Music

Student thankful for Pilgrims

Dear Editor,

I would like to thank Ken Knapp and his father for bringing it to my attention to remember the Pilgrims on Thanksgiving. Ken is right, I and many others would never have given them a thought, had we not been reminded of them through his article.

The story his father told was a wide variation from the historical one, but it led me to reconsider the actual story of the Pilgrims both in their voyage to America and their struggles and successes once here.

Another point to be considered from Ken's article, although he and his father may not have had this in mind, is that there are too few of us today who are like the Pilgrims in their convictions, bravely, and integrity.

Sincerely,
Amanda Anderson

Predictions given for the year 1982

No telling how many profits there are in the world-fortune tellers, soothsayers and such. No telling. At every year's end these profits fancy themselves enough to sprinkle us with their visions of the future, with their predictions of what will happen next year.

Next year is...uhm...1982. Well, here are my predictions for that year.

"Doris Day will set a world's record by having her face covered with Ragu sauce and dropped 2,000 feet from an airplane 57 times. When asked for a quote, Miss Day will say "Boy, that was stupid."

"A television premiere "The Cows Have Nipples" will air on NBC. Everyone will watch it.

"Ronald Reagan will resign as President so that he can return to the silver screen. After featuring in a few films he will star in a television series "Ronny, Donny and Marie."

"John Davidson will marry a large desk in Vermont. The relationship will end when Davidson discovers that the desk is an inanimate object, incapable of carrying on a decent conversation, doing the dishes, or even going potty. Davidson will later date several armchairs and a silverware set, but will never marry again. "I just can't get serious," he will say.

"Little Miss Muffet will lose her tuffet. "There will be no weather in 1982, causing many people to become confused. Television weathers will just be in the darn way, and nobody will like them. "Black Americans will decide that they are tired of playing sports for a while. Thus, every baseball, football, and basketball team in the U.S. will have a losing season. Golf will become America's favorite sport.

"Brooke Shields will get socked in the nose by her mother. Brooke, obviously hurt by the punch, will say "Ouch!"

"The number "two" will be lost somewhere in Mexico. A high official will get mad and say "Those gosh-damn Mexicans steal everything!" Secret agents from the U.S. will get even by sneaking into Mexico and stealing the number "quatro."

I am convinced that these predictions of mine will come true, so beware.

On a more serious note I would like to say good-bye to John Lennon. He was murdered a year ago yesterday by a man whose name does not deserve to be printed here. Whether you were a Lennon or Beatles fan or not, you cannot deny that John Lennon was one of the greatest talents that mother earth has ever produced. It is ironic that people who have no value on earth kill people who have the greatest value. I wish John Lennon's murderer would have turned his gun on himself.

First three episodes recounted, fourth one begins

By Paul Wander

The first episode of the series began as a journal written by the Baron of Zellhaven. The castle of the Dark One had just been captured by the King's army. Unfortunately the Dark One and most of his followers managed to escape into the castle's dungeon.

When the King's army attempted pursuit they were ambushed in the narrow, dark corridors of the dungeon. The army quickly threatened mutiny if they were forced to fight in a dungeon where only a few men could wield arms at one time. The army's threatened mutiny forced the king to withdraw.

Before he left, he made his brave captain a baron and gave him the castle as his inheritance. The Baron of Zellhaven recorded in his journal that he and his hundred were in extreme danger. This was the last entry made.

The second episode began with a party of seven adventurers seated at a table in the Blue Dragon Tavern. They read the remaining fragment of the Baron's journal. The fragment at this time was over a hundred years old, yet no adventurers had penetrated the Dark One's Castle and returned to tell the tale.

After much discussion, they decided to hire a ship and sail across the monster infested waters of the Sea of Dread.

The third episode began with the adventurers discovering they made a terrible mistake. As Nimrod puts it, "It's our own fault anyway. We never should have picked a public tavern to discuss a treasure hunt." The adventurers had learned from the journal fragments and the map that huge treasures lay unclaimed in the Dark One's castle. They also learned that their too open discussion of that treasure attracted the attention of four very unsavory characters.

These characters hired passage on the very ship that the adventurers were traveling on. The adventurers thoughtfully fingered their weapons everytime they encountered one of the four, but before they had time to take any type of action, the ship was attacked by mermen.

The fourth episode begins with a very strange battle. At first the adventurers attempt to flee the mermen. They are soon overtaken by the mermen, who are able to swim several times faster than the ship can sail at top speed.

The ship is armed with two ballistae and is useless to attack from the rear. The sailors quickly discover that the catapult will not be very effective against the fast moving mermen.

This leaves only the rear-mounted ballista which accounts for two mermen before they come in range. The merman attack with special crossbows and javelins and daggers. The adventurers defend themselves with bows, slings, and magic.

They succeed in killing over thirty of the mermen before being badly wounded themselves. The mermen retaliate with reinforcements and they grapple the ship in an attempt to sink it to the bottom of the Sea.

Sir Ironhand raised his sword high. Charging into the guardrail he began hacking at the line attached to the grapple. Nimrod calmly killed a more merman with his arrows while Cragor the Healer finished healing Argor the Mad's wounds.

Shape Changer bounced two lead balls off a merman's skull, sending him to the bottom of the sea. Concentrating carefully so that he would not ruin the illusion, Jador sent an illusion that looked like a huge mass of flaming oil raining down on the mermen.

Hinton returns...but only once

By Mary Kay Hinton

Well, this certainly feels strange. This old green typewriter looks worse for the six-seven months it's been through since I last typed a column at it. Somebody must be extremely messy while they type...

Oh, perhaps I should explain myself. I have this habit of forgetting that not everybody remember everything that gone on on this campus for the past four years. My name is Mary Kay Hinton, I was, uh, am, sort of, editor of this paper. I can definitely say I edited this paper from Spring Quarter of 1980 through Spring Quarter of 1981.

The position that brought the editorship to me is the same one that finds me editing once more. The editor resigned. Joni Thomas, who resigned two weeks ago due to personal illness, had once kiddingly told me I'd be the only person in history to take the paper over twice because somebody resigned. She just forgot to tell me she wasn't kidding anymore.

This is, however, and I repeat, a one week deal only. Dr. Charles N. Boehme, vice president for student affairs, went to great lengths to convince me I needed to do another issue of the paper, "one for the gipper" he said.

Being the soft-hearted person I am, and having a great affection for this little piece of cotton rag, I finally agreed. However, the position of editor-in-chief of the paper is officially unfilled and open to the general public.

I am student teaching at Fort Campbell High School beginning Jan. 5 and have no intention of trying to manage two full-time jobs. Which is exactly what the editorship and student teaching are, in case anybody ever tries to convince someone otherwise.

The All State editorship is one of the most challenging, rewarding and downright nerve-racking experience I have ever been through. However, as must be obvious, it is well worth it, or I wouldn't be seated at this typewriter again.

In the past month, the staff of The All State has been through some hard times. I would like to have my say about the recent community and campus criticism that has befallen them.

First of all, everyone thinks they can do something better than it's being done-until they try it. And secondly, if it's your creation and baby, it's hard to see anything wrong with it, whether it be a slogan or a newspaper. Both sides of every argument should strive to emphasize with the other-it's a mark of true maturity.

Working on this paper is no easy task, but the rewards of a job well done are obvious-they ask you to come back and do it again!

Seriously, I can truly say that The All State and the experiences that went along with it-San Francisco, a bathtub full of beer in a Murfreesboro hotel, toga parties at 15 Covington Street, and not-to-be-forgotten No-Doze Tuesday classes are the best memories I have of Austin Peay. I guess you could say I ever, owe my love life to this paper, but that's another story.

Somewhere out there are people who are just crazy enough, and just dedicated enough, to find these same rewards. At the present time, they are desperately needed. This paper is a 52 year tradition. It can go to the wayside just like the Farewell and Hail did, and that would be a tragedy. It's up to students to save it though, it is a student newspaper.

The All State is literally in your hands as you read this, but symbolically it is too. Please step forward if you think you have the time and ability to contribute to this paper. Interested students should contact Dr. Charles N. Boehme, Vice President for Student Affairs.

Mr. Scrooge to be presented tonight

By Lisa Jackson

The Austin Peay Playhouse will present a holiday classic beginning tonight in the Trahern Theatre.

At 8 p.m. curtain time, the group will present Mr. Scrooge, a musical rendition of Charles Dicken's A Christmas Carol written in 1843. Dr. Joe Filippo, chairman of the department of speech and theatre, said that the play will be set in the time period of Dickens. This production will continue through Saturday with an admission price of $2.

Filippo said that this production has had many unique qualities and problems. "This play has been one in which we have relied heavily upon community involvement," Filippso said. He explained that due to the nature of the plot, quite a few grade school children have been cast in the production.

Filippo said that there had been extensive casting for Mr. Scrooge. In this production, we have a cast of approximately 24 people," Filippso commented.

One of the unique problems as Filippso explained it has been the production of moveable sets. Filippso said that the play will be presented today, and was presented yesterday, to the fifth graders of Montgomery County.

It was necessary for these shows to be presented in the Clement Auditorium for seating," Filippso continued, "so the sets had to be made to be transported from the Trahern Building to the Clement Building.

Randy Sullivan, a senior majoring in Speech and Theatre is directing the production. "Each year, we try to have one show which is directed by a student if we have a student which we feel is capable," Filippso said.

Playing the miserly old Scrooge will be Sam Weakley, recent graduate of Austin Peay. Eddie Powers, also an APSU graduate will portray Bob Cratchit, the devoted employee of Scrooge who is father to a young crippled child, Tiny Tim. Mrs. Cratchit will be played by Leri Petty, an APSU freshman from Hopkinsville.

"I think this play will be pleasant and educational for not only the young, but for the adults as well. There is much to be learned from the classic. Despite the fact that the story has been told a number of times, it needs to be told in light of the economic problems in today's society.

The Playhouse has planned several other productions for this school year. A Little Night Music which will be produced in conjunction with the APSU Opera Theatre is planned for Feb. 17-20. This will be under the direction of Filippso and Mr. Pat Wolvier.

The Rainmaker, involving a character bringing hope to a seemingly unhappy family situation, will be presented May 19-22.

Student assaults cop over ticket

COLUMBIA, Mo. (CH) - It's not unusual for a student to get angry over a parking ticket.

But it is unusual when the student takes his anger out on a campus policeman—using his car.

A University of Missouri-Columbia student did just that recently, ramming his car into a UMC policeman 13 times in anger over a parking ticket he received.

Ironically, the policeman he chose to hit wasn't the one who wrote the ticket.

Officer Lynn Montgomery was sitting in his patrol car outside a UMC dormitory, waiting for a police cadet who lived in the dorm, when a man stopped his car in the middle of the street, got out and "started screaming and yelling and cussing about some parking ticket," says Montgomery.

The policeman tried to calm the man down, but he continued yelling, then wadded up the ticket, threw it down and got back in his car.

When Montgomery stepped in front of the car while continuing to talk to the student, the man accelerated and hit Montgomery, knocking him onto the hood.

When the policeman climbed down he was hit again and again, 13 times, until he had been pushed 40 to 50 feet backward. Other officers called to the scene then blocked a nearby intersection with their cars and surrounded the vehicle.

They had to break into the car after the student locked himself in. As a result, he was charged with resisting arrest as well as first degree assault.

Amazingly, Montgomery received only bruises and scrapes, and was released from the UMC hospital after a day. He didn't regret his persistence in dealing with the irate student.

"I was determined I wasn't going to let him get away," Montgomery said. "It's all part of the job. A little out of the ordinary."

position, to start discussing changing his employment title. He also said that he did not know who those certain members of the administration were.

"I don't see what difference it makes; I'll still be doing the same thing," Hicks said.

When asked if he was in danger of losing his job because of the mix-up surrounding his job title, Hicks said that as far as he knew he was not in danger.

"But if they decide that they don't need me...My doctor has told me that I shouldn't be working any longer. He told me that he'd sign disability papers for me any time I was ready," Hicks said.

Hicks noted that while he is at Austin Peay "the safety of the students is more important than anything else."

Pencils present problems

Glenn Gentry, dean of admissions and records at Austin Peay said that winter quarter registration went very well except for a problem with the mark sense cards.

Gentry said that 250 mark sense cards were rejected by the computer during registration because No. 2 lead pencils were used instead of the requested electrographic pencil.

"We realize that the booklets ran out of electrographic pencils," Gentry said, "and therefore we understand why so many regular pencils were used."

Because of the shortage of proper pencils, Gentry and the computer room staff went back over the 250 rejected registrations with the correct type of pencil and fed the mark sense cards back through the computer.

"Sometimes we had to do a little guessing," Gentry said, "but I hope anyone whose registration isn't quite right because of us won't be to hard on us. Technically, their registration was already rejected."

If Gentry and the computer room workers had not redone the registration cards for the students, they would have received notices in their mailboxes informing them that their registration had been rejected and the students would have had to register all over again. By this time, many courses would have been filled.

Gentry conceded that many times a regular No. 2 pencil "worked just fine" on the registration.

"But then, sometimes it doesn't show up at all, or other times it may show you on three of the four courses you register for," he explained.

The whole problem with pencils may soon be resolved, according to Gentry.

"Soon we will be going to a scanner system, and then you can use anything to mark the cards," he said.

Today is the last day for students who did advance register by mark sense cards to make schedule adjustments at the terminals. New students who filed an application by Dec. 2 may also advance register today. Advance payment of fees will be on Dec. 14, 15, and 16 in the business office from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Gentry said it was necessary to quit accepting payments at 2 p.m. in order for the necessary bookkeeping for each day to be completed.

Registration will be on Monday, Jan. 4, 1982. Students who are not sure what time they are to pay fees and complete registration should consult a winter schedule of classes.

Alcohol abuse 'problem'

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (CH) Alcohol abuse is considered a prime campus problem, and a recent survey shows why.

The nonscientific survey conducted by a national alcohol awareness group, showed 88 percent of college students drink, 29 percent are heavy drinkers and about 15 percent have serious drinking problems.

Those figures put college students above national averages in all categories and present a real cause for concern, says Gerardo Gonzalez, president of BACCHUS (Boost Alcohol Consciousness Concerning the Health of University Students), which conducted the survey at College Expo '81 in Daytona Beach during spring break.

One encouraging note of the survey is that 71 percent of the 1,920 students surveyed were moderate or light drinkers, consuming between one and 64 drinks per month.

Heavy drinkers were those who consumed between 72 and 120 drinks per month.

For survey purposes, a drink was considered 12 ounces of beer, five ounces of wine or one and a half ounces of distilled liquor.

"BLESS THIS MEAL..."—Mr. Cratchit, Eddie Powers, says grace before a modest meal in his home in the AP Playhouse production of Mr. Scrooge. The play is based on The Christmas Carol by Charles Dickens.

Favorite profs get 'big apple'

Three Austin Peay State University faculty members have been selected as favorite professors and have received the "Big Apple Award" from the Student National Education Association.

Karen Sine, instructor in accounting and information systems, was voted the award from the College of Business and Professional Programs.

Stine joined the APSU faculty in 1980. She received both her bachelor and master degrees from APSU.

From the College of Education and Human Services, Becky McMahon, an instructor in education, also received both her bachelor and master degrees from Austin Peay. She has been with the university since 1979.

Dr. Malcolm Muir was voted favorite teacher from the College of Arts and Sciences.

An associate professor of history, Muir received his bachelor's degree from Emory University, his master's degree from Florida State University and completed his doctorate at Ohio State University. Muir has been on the APSU faculty since 1977.

APSU students voted for their favorite teacher during American Education Week, according to Dr. Ron Groseclose, director of student teaching.

"It has become an annual event for the SNEA. It's an opportunity for our student body to recognize those faculty who excel in teaching," Groseclose said.

The "Big Apple Award" winners were honored at a fall "Coffee Break" sponsored by APSU student teachers Nov. 24.

AP Day changes recruitment policy

By Paul Wandler

"Austin Peay Day", held at the Dunn Center Dec. 2, was the culmination of weeks of effort by Austin Peay and Montgomery County officials. It also represented a major change in Austin Peay recruitment policy.

"This is the first time in possibly fifteen years," said Mr. Dick Littleton, director of university-school relations, "That anything like this was attempted."

Littleton co-ordinated the program and acted as Master of Ceremonies for "Austin Peay Day." Seniors from Montgomery Central High School, Clarksville High School, Northeast High School, Northwest High School, The Clarksville Academy and Fort Campbell High School were invited to meet with representatives of Austin Peay State University to discuss their higher education plans.

Prior to this day, university officials would visit the various high schools in the county. According to Littleton, a combination of events brought about the change.

First, a request by counselors in the various schools for a consolidated presentation. Second, the building of Northeast High School forced busy professors to leave their classrooms an additional day each year. Third the coming budget cuts from the federal and state governments are going to substantially reduce the amount of financial aid available to universities.

"This means that more students will be attending community colleges and we will be able to enroll a larger number of high school seniors from here," Mr. Littleton said.

Dr. Riggs pointed out to the students that Austin Peay had enrolled people from 49 states and many foreign countries and was not just a community college.

Mr. John Bratsher, director of student financial aid, spoke next. He emphasized the fact that millions of dollars of financial aid would still be available to students at Austin Peay. Because of the recent budget cuts, he urged students to file financial aid applications as soon after Jan. 1 as possible.

Littleton next allowed the high school seniors to spend three twenty-five minute sessions with the academic departments of their choice. Following the sessions, the students were able to browse among the display tables set up by student organizations.

According to Littleton, an estimated 650 of the 1090 high school seniors in the county attended "Austin Peay Day". All of the academic departments and most of the student organizations of Austin Peay were represented. Displays by other departments such as the bookstore and intramural activities were also represented.

Several officials from the high schools were asked if they were recommending Austin Peay to their students. The majority of them indicated that they were. When asked what they were saying to encourage their students to come here, most of them said "Austin Peay is a local university."

Each department and organization which had a display was asked the same question. "What are you doing to encourage these high school seniors to attend Austin Peay instead of some other university?" Some replies received were "I don't know". Others indicated that they were just presenting the information relative to their organizations.

Several said that they were telling students that Austin Peay was a fine university. Many said that students received more personalized attention at Austin Peay because of its smaller classes. SGA representatives said that Austin Peay students had more input to the administration than many other universities.

ROTC officials produced facts and figures showing that Austin Peay ROTC Cadets were more physically fit than cadets of most comparable universities.

STEAs representatives emphasized the more personalized attention students received from their local association. They explained the many benefits students could receive by joining early. These ranged from low cost insurance to an early familiarization with the field of education.

Intramural recreation showed the many advantages students received by the separation of intramural facilities from the athletic department. Bookstore representatives produced figures showing the money Austin Peay student saved by renting books. Rentals are not available in many universities.

A random sampling of high school students was taken. Three questions were asked. The first question was "What did you think of Austin Peay Day?"

Only one student replied that she was bored. Many indicated that it was very interesting. Others said that they really enjoyed it.

The second question asked was "Did Austin Peay Day help you plan your college future?" A few said they weren't planning on attending college. Most said they really learned a lot of good information.

The third question asked was "Are you planning on going to Austin Peay?" One student said, "No, I've been here all my life." Another student said, "No, Memphis State offers better choices. A third said he wanted to enter naval ROTC. Some were undecided.

Many students talked to indicated that "Austin Peay Day" helped them make up their minds and that they were definitely planning on attending Austin Peay.

Overseas jobs available to students

The All State was recently notified by the American-European Student Service that there were job opportunities available in Europe this summer for interested students.

The jobs were available in the forests of Germany, construction in Austria, farms in Germany, Sweden and Denmark.

industries in France and Germany and hotels in Switzerland.

Ireland, England, Italy and Holland are also open by the consent of the governments of these countries to American university students coming to Europe to seek employment next summer.

The American-European

Student Service has offered this service for more than twenty years, according to Mrs. T. Bricci-Marok, director of the service.

The purpose of the service, according to Bricci-Marok, is to place students in the country and job which interests them most and bring these students into living contact with the peoples of Europe.

"Every year we are carrying out the program on a larger scale due to the many more jobs we have. We hope this year to acquaint every student in America with this excellent program," she said.

In return for his or her work, the student will receive his or her room and board, plus a wage. However, students should keep in mind that they will be working on the European economy and wages will naturally be scaled accordingly.

The working conditions (hours, safety, regulation, legal protection, work permits) will be strictly controlled by the labor ministries of the countries involved.

In most cases, the employers have requested American students. Hence, they are particularly interested in the student and want to make the work as interesting as possible, Bricci-Marok explained.

They are all informed of the intent of the program, and will help the student all they can in deriving the most from his trip to Europe, she added.

For further information and application forms students should write to: American European Student Service, Box 70, FL 8493 Mauren, Liechtenstein (Europe).

Club open to all students

The John Jay Society is an organization named after the first United States Supreme Court Justice John Jay. It is designed to aid pre-law students in their work towards law school.

The society recently hosted guest speaker and former Austin Peay pre-law student Greg Vann. Vann is a graduate of the University of Tennessee Law School and is now practicing with a law firm in Clarksville.

Vann spoke on helpful courses pre-law students should take, and different kinds of study habits which may be helpful to the law student in school and in preparation for the State Bar Exam.

The society is hoping to be host to more guest speakers from Vanderbilt and Memphis State in the future, speaking on the distinction between different law schools, how to get in them, and how to do well once accepted.

The organization plans to have more lawyers from Clarksville speak to the group about law practice in this area and also on their different specialties.

At the present time, faculty advisor David Kanervo says that he is worried by the lack of student participation.

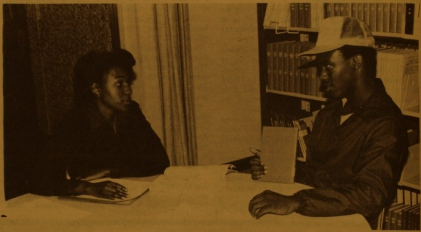

He said he felt that no publicity in the past and poor communication among students has kept many prospective members from finding out what the society is really about.

Kanervo said "You do not have to be a political science major or in pre-law student to join the club."

"English, Chemistry, Business majors, and anyone with an interest in law are welcome."

Kanervo, along with society President Gary Salmon and Vice-President Pam Reagan say that they are very excited about the future of the club.

Kanervo said they are hoping for increased participation and feel that more publicity in the future will help them to attain this increase.

BOOK TALK--Jeruna McCollough, a junior majoring in business, talks over some school work with sophomore Michael Henderson. Henderson, from Millington, is majoring in business law.

Creation to be discussed

Steve Gregory, campus minister for Chi Alpha will make a special presentation on the age-old question of origins today.

According to Gregory, the Bible is the infallible "Word of God" completely reliable and trustworthy in every respect.

"There are no conflicts whatsoever between the Bible and the facts of science," he said, "however many times there are conflicts between the Bible and a philosophic interpretation of the facts."

Gregory says that the Biblical account of creation according to scientific evidence is a much better explanation to our existence that evolution.

Quoting Dr. G.A. Kerkut, an evolutionist, "The evidence that supports it (general evolution) is not sufficiently strong to allow us to consider it anything more than a working hypothesis."

The purpose of Gregory's presentation is to erase doubts, to answer questions concerning our origin and to "build our faith in God's word, the Bible."

Gregory says that he hopes that students will realize that "it takes more faith to believe that life arose by chance in the form of a one-celled organism and evolved to man than it does to simply believe that God created man in His own image."

Chi Alpha meets in Claxton 109 and the meeting begins at 7 p.m.

GREAT WRITING STARTS WITH A LITTLE LISTENING, A LITTLE BEER, AND A LOT OF LEGWORK.

When the guys at Miller asked me to write an ad on writing, I said, "Forget it. Not even if you held a gun to my head." So they held a bottle of Life Beer to my mouth. They're a pretty persuasive group.

THUGS TO MUGS

If you're going to write anything, know what you're talking about. And that means three things: Research, research, and more research. The more you know, the more you can tell your reader.

Take my characters. A lot of them I base on actual people. There's this buddy of mine who pops up in every book I write. In one story he's a cop. In another, a private eye. Once, I made him a millionaire. Using him not only helped make character development a heck of a lot easier, he was so carried away by the rich image, he bought me a lot of free dinners (and a lot of Life Beer from Miller). So use the people you know as models.

Even locations should be based on real things. If you're writing about a bar, know that bar. Hang out there. Watch the bartender. The customers. Whatever they drink, you drink. When they drink Life Beer, you drink Life Beer. Remember—research is most fun when you soak up as much subject matter as you can. It can only help you paint a better picture.

HI, DOLL

No caper is complete without dames (or ladies in proper English). Experience has shown me that in mystery writing, the sexier the dames, the better. Experience has also shown me that sexy scenes make great punctuation marks. This is where research has the greatest potential. Use your own discretion in this matter. But when you write about it, don't be too explicit. That way, your reader gets to paint a more vivid picture.

CAPER TO PAPER

O.K., you've got your characters, locations, and dames lined up. Now comes the good part: Putting your caper to paper. There's no mystery to it. As long as you write the ending first, the rest will follow. Write short, terse, to-the-point sentences. Be as clear as possible. And make sure you've got the right stuff around for when you get thirsty. After all, writing is pretty thirsty work.

I suggest a couple of mugs of Life Beer—who ever heard of a caper that didn't involve a couple of mugs?

Why Life Beer? It's a lot like me and my books—great taste, less filling (some people can't get their fill of my books), and always good to spend time with.

At any rate, follow my advice and, who knows—you might turn out to be a heck of a story. Or you might turn out to be a heck of a Life Beer drinker.

AP to host national track meet in '82

Next spring, Austin Peay will host the AIAW (Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women) Division II National Track and Field Championships. According to AP track coach Joey Haines, approximately 110 schools will be eligible to compete in the meet which will be held May 20-22, 1982.

sidelines

by Millie Rorlie

Haines explained that each event has a standard which competitors must meet individually in order to qualify for participation in the contest. Since this is true, the squads across the nation—no matter how collectively "strong" or "weak"—will enter individuals or teams in the meet based upon performance as compared to these standards only, thus giving everyone a fair chance to compete.

Despite the recent NCAA-AIAW squabbles, Haines is expecting a good turnout for the meet. Until last year, the NCAA, a larger and more financially powerful organization, was indifferent to women's athletics which were governed solely by the AIAW. Recently, however, the NCAA has expressed an interest in funding women's athletics, an interest which has severely threatened the future of the AIAW. This fall, the NCAA held national championships in women's cross country and, as a result, schools are having to choose membership in one organization or the other. Haines explained that many Division I schools switched over to the NCAA, but only 12 of 120 Division II schools dropped out the AIAW to join the NCAA.

Haines said that at the AIAW Division II nationals held last year at the University of Pennsylvania (Indiana, Pa.), 87 schools competed in the meet, and this year, at Austin Peay, "We're expecting at least this many and maybe more. We have a good location, which is good for the midwest squads who will drive to the meet. Last year, some schools didn't go to the national because of the location—Pennsylvania was a long way to drive. But we're centrally located, and more accessible to the schools which didn't go last year." Haines also said that attendance should not be affected by the AIAW's legal action against the NCAA in hopes of preventing NCAA-sponsored women's championships. He said that the outcome of the lawsuit, if it is resolved by May, could only increase participation in the meet if the AIAW is successful in court.

Austin Peay's women are expected to fare well in the meet. Of the four girls who made All American last year, two, Joanne Arnold and Lisa Schoeller, return for the 1982 season. Last year AP placed 18th in the meet, and this year Haines is confident that his squad can clinch a spot in the top five. With the returnees, transfer students, and strong freshmen, Haines explained, "We will have strength in events where we've been weak before."

Arnold placed fourth in both the hurdles and the long jump last year, but Haines feels that she will place second or third in the hurdles this year. In addition, Haines said, "She's a threat to win the long jump since she will be jumping in her home pit where she always jumps her best."

Last year Schoeller anchored the sprint medley relay, but this year she will run in the open 440, where she is certain to place well. Haines said that the mile relay team which "looks good on paper" will be strong and "a threat to win," and frosh Kaddie Bell and transfer Monita McElroy have potential in the shot put and javelin events, respectively.

Haines concluded, "We are really looking forward to the meet. We hope to get ESPN coverage, (the AIAW has a contract with ESPN and the meet will be televised unless the NCAA-AIAW clash becomes too brutal) and we hope that the students and community will support us. If the girls stay healthy and run as they are capable of doing, then they'll have a good chance to do well and we hope this will bring out a large local crowd."

Well, it's not too early to plan to attend the meet. Mark May 20-22, 1982 on your calendar (don't worry that's two weeks before spring quarter finals begin) and go to the Women's Division II Track and Field Nationals—right here at Austin Peay.

OVC preview cited; WKU picked as first

By Steve Harmon

Consensus opinion in the basketball offices around the nine member institutions of the Ohio Valley Conference cite Western Kentucky, Murray State, and Middle Tennessee as the front-runners of this season's cage wars, in that order.

Western coach Clem Haskins boasts four returning starters and a corps of lettermen to compliment a group of incoming recruits that reads like a Street and Smith's magazine All American team as his Hilltoppers prepare to defend their 1980-81 OVC title.

Don't be so quick to send sympathy cards to the other league coaches, however.

Murray State's Ron Greene has two All-OVC performers returning, while MTSU strategist Stan "Ramrod" Simpson will build his attack around OVC Player of the Year Jerry Beck. A seasoned Morehead State squad will vie with last year's post-season tournament qualifier Austin Peay and upstart Akron for the coveted fourth spot in the conference standings and a potential bid to the NCAA championship.

Youngstown State, the loop's newest addition, will have an uphill fight, as will Eastern Kentucky and 1980-81 OVC doormat Tennessee Tech.

WESTERN KENTUCKY: If Hilltopper coach Clem Haskins can improve on last year's 21-8 record and OVC title, even the demanding fans from Bowling Green should be satisfied.

Following Western's opening round loss to Alabama-Birmingham in the NCAA tournament last March, Haskins, named the National Rookie Coach of the Year by the National Broadcasting Company (NBC), signed 6-foot-7 Ken Gambrel from Jackson, Miss., 7-footer Shawn Giddy from Marion County (Ala.) and 6-foot-3 Darnell Phillips from Bardonia, Ky. Johnny Taylor, a 6-foot-5 Cincinnati Hughes product, was the final addition to Western's eight returning lettermen.

Craig McCormick (14.3 ppg, 6.9 rpg), a 6-foot-10 All-OVC center will spearhead the Topper attack, while 6-foot-7 leaper Tony Wilson (14.6 ppg, 6.3 rpg) and 5-foot-10 All-OVC Freshman selection Bobby Jones (4.8 ppg) will lend support.

Add 6-foot-3 senior swingman Kevin Dildy, 6-foot-4 senior Kenny Ellis, 6-foot-7 Percy White, along with 6-foot-6 reserves Ken Hatcher and Gary Carver, plus Guilford College (N.C.) transfer Tony Ray and the Western fans should have plenty to cheer about.

MURRAY STATE: After being named SEC Coach of the Year at Mississippi State, Ron Greene returned to Murray State, his alma mater, to grab the horse by the hooves, if you will, and turn a perennial loser into a contender.

Much of the credit for Greene's 40-18 two-year record (cont. on page 13) at Murray can be attributed to the diminutive Lamont Slets. Called "the best college guard under six feet in the country" by Greene, the 5-foot-10 playmaker earned All-OVC honors as a freshman and sophomore. Last season, Slets poured in 16.7 ppg while leading the team in assists (101) and free throw percentage (.791).

Teaming with Slets in the Racers' title quest will be former All-OVC forward Kenney Hammonds (10.9 ppg, 6.4 rpg), junior Glen Green (10.2 ppg, 5.7 rpg), and Mississippi State transfer Ricky Hood.

Mike McDuffin, a 6-foot-3 transfer from Texas-El Paso and 6-foot-7 Juco transfer Mike Brady will add leadership to freshman signees Sidney Bolton, a 6-foot-5 Birmingham native and 6-foot-6 All Missouri selection Rob Sanders.

With the anticipated mesh of the incoming talent and the returning players, the Racers should be a conference frontrunner.

MIDDLE TENNESSEE: Folks in Murfreesboro haven't enjoyed an OVC basketball title in several seasons, and many feel that this could be the year. Based on last year's 18-9 record (9-5 in OVC) and the fact that all five MTSU starters return, the Raiders appear capable of dethroning powerful Western Kentucky.

OVC Player of the Year Jerry Beck, a 6-foot-7, 205-pound workhorse who led the loop in rebounding (9.8) last season and was second in scoring (17.3) will pace returning starters Rick Campbell (15.3 ppg), a 6-foot-4 guard, and 5-foot-10 junior sparkplug Edward "Pancakes" Perry. Senior Chris Harris (7.9 ppg), a 6-foot-6 mainstay, will team with 6-foot-5 Lucious "Back" Bailey (7.1 ppg) on the Raider front line.

To provide bench strength, Simpson lured 6-foot-9, 225-pound Wardell (Poundcakes) Perry from Dekalb (Ga.) JC along with Motlow (Tenn.) State Juco transfer Kenny Beck, Jerry's younger brother. Georgia Junior College Player of the Year Dewayne Dorsey of Gainesville JC is also expected to see plenty of action as the Raiders attempt to improve on last season's third place conference finish.

MOREHEAD STATE: Following 14-13 and 15-12 records in his first two years at MSU, coach Wayne Martin expected an OVC title contender last year. What he got was a big disappointment in the form of an 11-15 slate, including a 4-10 conference mark for a lowly seventh place finish.

However, 6-foot-3 sharpshooter Glenn Napier (14.7 ppg), 6-foot-6 frontliner Greg Coldiron (7.1 ppg) and 6-foot-2 Norris Beckley (11 ppg), all seniors, will team with 6-foot-7 Ohio U. transfer Harold Moore, along with junior college graduates Glenn Hubbard, 6-foot-4, and Earl Harrison, a 6-foot-5, 215-pounder as the Eagles try to claw their way into the top four in the OVC standings.

Martin also found a pair of gems in 6-foot-6 freshman Alonzo Linner of Millersburg (Ky.) Military and Iowa State transfer Guy Minnifield, kin to Kentucky's Dirk Minnifield.

If Minnifield can step in and lend support at the guard position, as expected, reserves Eddie Childress (11.9 ppg, 7 rpg), Dickie Alexander (8.1 ppg, 4.2 rpg), and 6-foot-10 Jeff Tipton (8.9 ppg) should provide the base for a solid season.

AUSTIN PEAY: Governor coach Ron Bragatz, who turned an 8-18 squad into a 14-13 first-division club last season, must cope with the loss of eight of his top 10 players from a year ago.

Gone are the All-OVC and the loop's leading scorer Andrew Barton (20.4 ppg), All-OVC Roosevelt Sanders, playmaker Michael Shunick, and four-year squad member Tim Thomas, just to name a few.

Stepping in to fill the void will be 6-foot-6 Lenny Manning and 6-foot-5 Donald Vinson. Following a 10 ppg and 6 rpg campaign during his freshman year at Miami of Ohio, the Nashville native decided to transfer to a school a little closer to home. Bargatz and the Clarksville fans are glad that he did as Manning will team with Kentucky Juco Player of the Year Vinson, who compiled an impressive 21.3 ppg, 13 rpg, 61.8 field goal percentage and 79 free throw percentage while at Paducah JC last season.

Parttime starter Donnie Bell (7.1 ppg) returns with reserve center Mandell Stockton, an anticipated starter this season, as the Gavs face an uphill fight to equal last season's fourth place finish. Reserve guard Tom Hill and Belmont College transfer Larry Smith will see plenty of action, as well as returnees Al Bellenfant, Alvin Ingle and 6-foot-9 Cecil Felts.

Rounding out the recruits are 6-foot-8 Mike McCrellan and 6-foot-1 Pat Day of Louisville's Trinity High.

The pre-conference schedule, which includes road games with Tennessee State, Clemson, Auburn, Vanderbilt and Missouri, won't do much for Peay's won-lost record, but it should help to condition the Gavs for the tough OVC wars.

AKRON: Perimeter shooting will be the Zips' strength this season as coach Bob Rupert is expected to improve on last year's 8-18 (5-9 in OVC) record.

All-State selections Steve Shade (26.5 ppg) and Fred Johnson (20.1 ppg, 13 rpg), who led Dayton Roth to the Ohio class 3-A title, will team with 6-foot-3 Tony Augsburger and 6-foot-4 Dave Smith, a pair of Buckeye All-Staters in the 2-A ranks, to give UA plenty of firepower from the outside.

OVC Basketball Preview (cont. from page 13)

Under the boards, 6-foot-6 senior Lance Bates (10.3 ppg) returns with 6-foot-8 sophomore Ricky Brown. Sophomore Joe Jakubick (13.4 ppg), last season's OVC Rookie of the Year, will lend his 6-foot-5 frame as an inside and outside threat.

"We could start two sophomores and two freshmen," warns Rupert of his youthful club. Nevertheless, Akron will loom as a first-dividend contender this winter.

TENNESSEE TECH: Things appear to be looking up again for Tech's low-flying Golden Eagles. Second-year coach Tom Deaton lured a bumper crop of Georgia recruits to Cookeville in an effort to better last season's 6-20 mark (2-12 in OVC), which was at the bottom of the loop.

Deaton signed 6-foot-5 Lonnie Boone of Perry, 6-foot-3 Joe Mintz of Gainesville and 6-foot-6 Joe Jones of Albany to aid senior returnees Marc Burnett, Pete Abula and Carlton Hendrix. Steve Taylor, a 6-foot-8 junior center who defected from Georgia Southern, is also foreseen as one of Tech's major assets.

However, based on the poor record of the returning veterans and the overall lack of experience, Tech will still be close to home near the bottom of the conference standings.

YOUNGSTOWN STATE: The Penguins will bear the looks of the old and of the new this season. Don Rosselli is the contemporary aspect of the Youngstown attack as the veteran strategist chalked up his first YSU victory way back in 1940. To date, he claims 581 wins, third among active coaches in the NCAA. The innovative feature of the Youngstown program is their move from NCAA Division II to the OVC Division I.

Senior guard Bruce Alexander (17.3 ppg) returns from last year's 13-13 record and Mid-Continent Conference runner-up to pace the Penguins in their initial OVC campaign. Alexander should have few problems in the transition, but the rest of the club won't be as fortunate.

Sophomores Art McCullough (9.7 ppg) and Steve Martin (8.3) will blend with freshmen John Keshoch of Mayfield, Ohio, Ray Robinson of Akron North and Dave Klenovich of Alquippa, Pa.

It's doubtful that Rosselli will get win number 600 this season, but the crafty veteran should devise a plan to keep his club competitive.

EASTERN KENTUCKY: "REBUILDING" is often a key phrase used in assessing the upcoming basketball season for many teams. In the case of Eastern Kentucky's 1981-82 bid, it's a gross understatement.

Only two players return from last season's 10-16 squad (7-7 in OVC). Sophomore Ervin Stepp (5.2 ppg) and 6-foot-4 senior forward Jim Harkins, both reserves, will return to Richmond for what will undoubtedly be a long winter.

Former EKV cager Max Good succeeds Ed Byrns, who left amidst an air of controversy, as the new Eastern coach. Good stayed within the boundaries of the Kentucky basketball hotbed to garner his recruits, among them 6-foot-7 Mike Budzinski, 6-foot-7 Scott Daniels and 6-foot-7 Fred Emerson—all from nearby Lexington. Four transfers will also help to ease Eastern woes of inexperience. Nevertheless, look for Eastern to drop a bundle of games this year.

Netmen handed losses in tourney

Austin Peay's young tennis team suffered at the hands of some of the Southeast's best teams at the Region III Indoor Tournament at Athens, Georgia Nov. 19-22, winning only one match during the tournament.

Bread Properjohn defeated Mississippi State's Mark Heath 6-4, 5-7, 6-2, but lost to George Beyency of Georgia in the next round. Peay freshman Kurt Angell bowed to Jim McLean of Florida State, 6-2, 6-2, in Peay's only other singles match.

Angell and Properjohn were defeated by Beyency and Miller of Georgia, who finished third in the NCAA Championships last year, to eliminate AP from the doubles competition.

Govs glad to be back home

By Steve Harmon

Be it ever so humble...
Well, you know the rest.
And so does Governor

basketball coach Ron Bargarzate whose troops have licked their wounds after suffering the worst loss in Austin Peay history to return home to the familiar surroundings of the APSU Dunn Center for a three-game homestead this week.

Hopefully, the Dunn Center will provide a little bit more hospitality than the folks in Clemson, S.C., and Auburn, Al. did.

"We just fell apart at the end of the game," summarized Bargarzate of his team's 102-53 drubbing at the hands of Atlantic Coast Conference power Clemson University last Wednesday, Dec. 2.

After falling behind 10-9, the Govs battled the physical Tigers to a 40-25 halftime deficit.

The second half was a nightmare, however.

Thanks to a combination of turnovers and cold shooting by the Govs, Clemson streaked to triple digits, bolstered by a spurt which saw the Tigers outscore the visitors 34-2 in the final seven minutes.

"It was hard to get that game out of everybody's minds," revealed Bargarzate in an interview following last Saturday's loss to Auburn University in Auburn, Al.

Following another poor start, Peay pulled within two at 26-24 at the half against Auburn. A Donnie Bell jumper from the right baseline gave Peay a 45-44 lead with 9:05 to play, but two critical turnovers shifted the momentum to Auburn.

The Tigers outscored the visitors 23-11 in the final moments to hand the Governors their fourth loss of the young season. Bell poured in 15 points to lead APSU while Lenny Manning added 13 and freshman guard Pat Day chipped in ten.

Austin Peay had a 1-4 record entering Monday night's encounter with Tennessee State in Clarksville.

Tomorrow night, the Govs open conference play as they host the OVC's newest member, Youngstown State, in a 7:30 CST ballgame.

The Penguins, who competed in the NCAA Division II last year, compiled a 13-13 record in 1980-81, including splits with OVC schools Akron and Tennessee Tech.

Saturday evening, Peay hosts Akron. Tip-off is also at 7:30 p.m. CST.

"This has been bad scheduling on my part," admitted Bargarzate.

"We played five games in 10 days and now we're faced with three conference games in December, when we normally don't open OVC play until January," he confirmed.

Updating the Governor action, Peay opened the season against Tennessee State in the opening round of the Coors Basketball Classic, on Nov. 27, losing to the Tigers in Nashville's Gentry Complex, 69-67.

Larry Wilson led the Tigers with 31 points, while Manning's 22 points and 10 rebounds paced the Govs.

The following night, Peay dropped a hotly-contested 54-51 decision in OVC rival Middle Tennessee in the consolation game.

The Govs led by seven at the half and shot a sizzling 65 percent from the field for the game, but they were outscored 125 at the free throw line as the Raiders squeaked out the victory, dropping the Govs to 0-2 on the young season.

UT-Chattanooga won the title by ousting hometown favorite Tennessee State on Saturday night.

Peay returned home Nov. 30 to down Belmont College, 73-62, in the Govs' home opener.

Sophomore forward Manning tossed in 18 points and grabbed 15 boards, while Mandel Stockton and Bell added 12 and 11 points, respectively, as APSU upped its record to 1-2 before the Clemson-Auburn road trip.

Track teams ready to begin

After what Coach Joey Haines described as a good fall workout, the men's and women's track teams are ready to begin the indoor track season.

Coach Haines is expecting especially strong performances from defending OVC champions LaRon Springer and William McElroy, as well as the high jump tandem of Barry Crawford and Randy Singleton.

Springer barely missed going to the NCAA Championships last year, and should be much stronger this season, according to Haines.

He will team with high school state champion Roland Scruggs, and two sprinters from Mike Henderson, Randall Payne, John Brown, and Cedrick Wright to form the mile relay team, which Haines believes will challenge for the OVC crown.

The two mile relay appears to be strong this year with Cedrick Wright, Frank Coates, David Rogin, and Terry Taylor filling out its roster.

Steve Brown, although injured, is expected to come back and make a strong finish in the hurdles.

William McElroy and Prentiss McGlory will be running the 60 yard dash, as well as outstanding walk-on freshman Dana Gardner.

The triple jump and the long jump will be in the hands of freshmen this season, the former with Lawrence Larrimore, and the latter with Robert Middlebrooks.

Haines said that the women do not push as hard as the men toward the indoor track season because there is no OVC meet, and because the outdoor season is a month longer for the women than it is for the men.

IM officials needed

Winter quarter 1982 will feature both intramural basketball and men's and women's intramural racketsball tournaments.

The basketball leagues include men's, women's and an under 6-foot league. Rosters are now available at the intramural office.

Officials for intramural basketball are needed. Interested students should contact Drew Simmons at 648-7664 or come by the intramural office.

Govs

Through five games, Manning is scoring at an 18.8 clip to lead the Govs. Manning was also named to the Coors Classic All-Tournament Team for his efforts in the two APSU losses.

Austin Peay is shooting an excellent .498 as a team, but their 92 turnovers far outweighs the 55 committed by their opponents, contributing to their disappointing record thus far.

"Donnie Bell and Lenny Manning have stepped forward and assumed leadership roles," praised Bargatz.

"Bell (a senior from Springfield) has shown me that he wants to win," the third-year skipper added.

"With Mandel Stockton's hot shooting efforts, I'm hoping we can bounce back," Bargatz concluded.

Hopefully, the bounces will be much truer in the Dunn Center, Ron.

Men win Monday

Austin Peay avenged an earlier loss to Tennessee State by thumping the Tigers 70-57 Monday night in a non-conference basketball game.

Senior wing player Donnie Bell paced the Govs with 27 points on 10 for 13 shooting from the field, while dependable Lenny Manning added 14 points and nine boards to the Governor cause.

Peay continued their hot field goal shooting by popping the nets at a rate of 53 percent, compared to State's 38 percent.

APSU upped its record to 2-4 on the season while TSU fell to 3-2.

ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

Governor cager Lenny Manning, based on his All-Tournament honors at the Nov. 27-29 Coors Classic in Nashville and his team-leading stats of 18.8 points and 8.4 rebounds per game, is this week's Budweiser honoree.

Manning is a Nashville Maplewood graduate who transferred to Austin Peay after gaining Mid-American Conference Freshman of the Year runnerup honors at Miami (O.) University based on his 10 points and six rebounds per game average of two seasons ago.

The 6-foot-6, 205 pounder is a Public Management major.
