All State staff meets

The All State staff will meet Thursday, May 27 at 4 p.m. in The All State office. Editor Ken Knapp urges all interested photographers, typewriters, artists and journalists to attend this meeting. Plans for the 1982-83 school year will be discussed at the meeting.

Stedman is chairman

Dr. Carlton H. Stedman, dean of education and human services at Austin Peay State University, has been elected chairman of the Tennessee Council for Public School Deans of Education.

The council includes deans of education from the State Board of Regents whose main purpose is to certify teachers. The Board of Regents meets five to six times a year to discuss new proposed teaching standards.

"Austin Peay State University requires that a student has to achieve a certain score on the California Achievement Test (CAT), have at least three recommendations from professors at Austin Peay, and obtain an overall grade point of 2.1," Stedman said.

Stedman also said that a grade point of 2.25 is required in the student's major. The (NTE) National Teachers Exam is also taken by students seeking certification.

Stedman has been on the Austin Peay staff since 1970. He became the dean of education and human services in 1978.

Stedman started out as a biology major and taught elementary school for four years. He also taught high school for ten years.

Stedman received his masters in health and physical education from Washington University, and a masters in biology from the University of Missouri.

Scholarship offered

The Clarksville chapter of the American Business Women's Association is interested in awarding a $300 scholarship for the 1982-83 academic year. The recipient must be a female student who needs assistance in order to continue her education. A one-page letter containing a brief personal history, student standing, grade point average, and reasons for needing financial assistance should be mailed by June 1, 1982 to: Linda Welch, 1500 Madison St., Clarksville, TN 37040.

Pysch club to picnic

The Psychology Club will hold its annual "Spring Picnic" Saturday, May 22 at the Fairgrounds beginning at 11 a.m. Psychology majors, minors and their guests are invited. If you plan to attend, please go by the psychology department.

Financial Facts

by Susan Ikard

As the 1981-82 school year draws to a close, students should be on their way toward preparing for the 1982-83 year in terms of their financial aid applications. As mentioned in previous Financial Facts columns, there is presently a delay in the processing of Pell Grant applications, so that students who begin the application process now will be unlikely to have their applications complete before the end of the summer.

In the aid renewal letter sent to current financial aid recipients in February, students were told that they would be notified around July 15 about their financial aid for the coming year.

The Financial Aid office hopes to maintain this schedule, but it appears to be increasingly unlikely. The Pell Grant payment schedule has not been established, and that fact, combined with other bureaucratic delays, may result in students being notified later than the projected date.

There is one bright note, however. The Department of Education has published the Family Contribution Schedule for the Guaranteed Student Loan program, so processing of the loan applications for the 1982-83 year may begin within the next few weeks.

Students will have to fill out a needs test, listing family income for 1981, and both the needs test and GSI applications are available in the Financial Aid office. Students who are interested in applying for a GSI should submit their applications at this time.

Some students may be eligible to file a Special Conditions Form to apply for a Pell Grant for 1982-83. If a family's financial situation has changed for the worse because of death, separation or divorce, or the loss of a job or benefits, then the student should file this form.

For example, a dependent student whose parent worked in 1981 may use this form if the parent has been unemployed for more than ten weeks in 1982. This also applies to a loss of non-taxable benefits, such as unemployment compensation.

A dependent student whose parents have divorced or separated since the students has applied for financial aid should use this form and include only the income information for the parent with whom the student is living.

The death of a parent or spouse who provided the livelihood for the family would also make the student eligible to file this form. If a student thinks he or she may qualify to file this Special Conditions form, contact the Financial Aid office, where there forms are available.

Students are reminded that, with the present guidelines for receiving Pell Grant for the upcoming year, everyone will be required to submit a copy of the parents (or for an independent student, their own) 1040 or 1040A income tax form. There will be no exceptions to this, so if a copy of the income tax form was not kept, the student should inquire with IRS about getting a duplicate form right now, as it takes about eight to ten weeks to get a duplicate copy. The toll free numbers for IRS are 1-800-241-3860 and 1-800-342-8420.

Students who will be receiving financial aid for the summer will be notified during the week of May 17. Please feel free to contact the Financial Aid office, room 216 of the Browning Building, if you have any questions about the 1982-83 application process.

'Basic problem...inconsistency'

McDaniel talks about 1981-82 SGA year

by Mike Lynch

Problems with the senate and the resignation of the vice president created what former president Mike McDaniel called, "a mediocre year for the Student Government Association."

In assessing his recently expired term in office, McDaniel said, "Our basic problem was an inconsistency in the senate. That's not necessarily the senators' fault, I think it's a structural problem."

McDaniel added that he was in favor of a proposal to restructure the senate. The plan would call for senators to be selected from departments and organizations on campus.

"I wrote a letter to President Riggs on that very subject," he noted. "Dr. Boehms has asked the new president, Wayne Mossely, to appoint what Dr. Boehms called, a blue ribbon commission to look into that matter."

McDaniel said he was optimistic that the plan, when approved, would improve the efficiency of the SGA. "It's got to be better than what we have now."

"There would be more people working and putting ideas into the organization," he said. "I think with that kind of change, most of the problems I had would have been done away with."

McDaniel also cited the resignation of vice president Jeff Eubanks as one of the year's major drawbacks. "The problem with the vice president in fall quarter was a big disappointment to me," he said.

Eubanks resigned on January 14. He said he did not have enough time to devote to be the SGA's vice president. The resignation came while the Internal Affairs Committee was investigating allegations of negligence in the way Eubanks' office was being administered.

Former SGA president Duane McDowell was selected to fill the remainder of the term.

"TISL was very educational and very productive," McDaniel said, noting one of the few bright spots of the year. "We don't have an officer on the central council this year, but Andy Perry was selected Chief Clerk for the House."

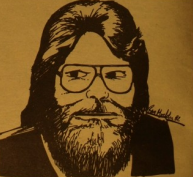

McDaniel cited three plans for next year that he believes, will require strong student support. These include the Peer Counseling and Summer Orientation programs.

The third plan, which has been approved by the SGA, calls for placing a graduate assistant in the student affairs office to, "fill the gap left when Evie leaves," McDaniel said.

"The basic function would be as an assistant to the new director of activities, with an emphasis on working with the organizations, so that they won't feel left out with nobody to go to," he added.

"Those three things are very important to student affairs and they should be implemented," McDaniel stated. "I am under the impression that the budget committee, on the advice of the business manager, do not see those three projects as being of top priority. I believe they should be."

McDaniel will receive his bachelor's degree this spring and intends to be enrolled as a graduate student in the history department next year.

He said he would probably not be involved in the SGA. "I still feel very firmly that student government is one of the most beneficial organizations on campus and always will be."

APSU's 1982-83 SGA meets for first time

by Robert Boswell

The first meeting of the 1982-83 Austin Peay State University Student Government Senate took place last Thursday evening in room 313 of the university center. The meeting started with the swearing in of all class officers and senators that had not been sworn in prior to that meeting.

Dr. Charles Boehms, dean of student affairs, opened the meeting with a speech directed toward the incoming officers and senators.

"You can be one of the most powerful forces on campus if you will devote yourselves to doing what you know is in the best interest of your fellow students," Boehms told the students.

"Your SGA is your university," he said. "Austin Peay has the highest reputation in the state for its student government and is very well known throughout the southeast."

Praising the SGA Boehms added the point if the initiative is not taken to keep the organization active that it will simply not continue to exist. He encouraged hard work and devotion from every member of the SGA and stressed how important it was for them to remain in constant contact with their fellow students.

Boehms continued to tell the SGA members how strong they were and that SGA was no joke. "What I (Boehms) say, what Dr. Nettles says, and what President Riggs says does not dictate what you (the SGA) think," Boehms added.

Boehms concluded his remarks by saying that the integrity of the SGA is as good as those in it want to make it.

Mike Trent, vice-president of the SGA offered his report to the senate as the next order of business.

Trent informed the senate of the various openings on committees and told them that each senator and officer is required to serve on at least one of the committees.

He encouraged them to join one as soon as possible so that the SGA will be able to get into full swing and prepare for next fall.

Trent also mentions that members are encouraged to work on more than one of the committees but felt that it would be better to wait until the fall to fill all of the openings as there will be freshman class officers and senators to put in them, at that time.

A report given by Kird Shearon of the Health, Food and Security committee included in detail the new mandatory food plan that is scheduled for this fall.

In this report Shearon introduced the ideas and plans that will accompany the food program in the fall.

Various changes from the current campus food service should include: the time that the cafeteria will be in operation to be posted outside of the building, a redecorating of the dining area, and the possibility of a T.V. viewing room. Accompanying these changes will also be a 25 percent decrease in the cost of meals at the cafeteria.

SGA President Wayne Mosley brought the appointment of cabinet officers before the senate. These officers had been appointed by Mosley and were to be voted on by the senate.

Cabinet appointments approved by the senate were: assistant to the president, Denise Bracey, chief student defender, Garnett Ladd; student attorney general, Ric Collier; treasurer, Sandra Manners; student relations, Beth Winters; public relations, Robert Boswell; and election board chairman, John Weakley. Elana Callis was also appointed to the senate finance board.

Two packages were presented to the senate. Approved was a package asking for $148 by speaker pro-tem and senior senator Tim Cleveland. This would be used to aid an ice-cream night at Cross Hall. The money would be used in the purchase of one ice-cream maker that would be available to be used by other campus organizations.

Teresa Miller of the Public Relations Office at Austin Peay sent a package to the senate asking for $1000 to fund a mascot for APSU. The request is being considered and will be brought before the senate for vote in the next meeting.

When all business had been completed Mosley addressed the body on various plans that he and Trent were going to be working on this year.

Included in the plans was reorganization of the student body in the 1983-84 school year. In this plan Senators would be chosen from the numerous organizations on campus. Mosley believes that this will give a better representation to the SGA.

In closing the meeting Mosley said that, "this university has more potential than anywhere I've seen." "We need to work," he said, "and we will definitely work."

662 degrees to be conferred June 4

Degrees will be conferred Friday, June 4 to 662 students at Austin Peay State University's 53rd annual commencement.

Graduation exercises will begin at 2 p.m. in the Dunn Center following a 30 minute concert by the Symphonic Band.

Degrees to be awarded include 19 associate of occupational science, 53 associate of science, 10 bachelor of arts, 128 bachelor of business administration, seven bachelor of fine arts, 260 bachelor of science.

Twenty nine bachelor of science in education, 17 bachelor of science in nursing, four education specialist, 19 master of arts, 77 master of arts in education, 21 master of business administration, four master of music education, and 14 master of science.

Along with the conferring of degrees, the program will include greetings from President Robert O. Riggs; commencement address by Herb Ellender; naming of the outstanding senior; and announcement of the Distinguished Professor Award and the Richard M. Hawkins Award.

Ellender's address will concern the future of energy in relation to business and education. Currently managing Placid Oil Company's exploration efforts in the Gulf of Mexico and south Louisiana, Ellender received his bachelor's degree from Austin Peay and his master's degree from Vanderbilt University.

Prior to his present position, Ellender was district geologist for Texaco Inc. in New Orleans, La.

Named to Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges, Ellender holds offices in Gamma Theta Epsilon, secretary; Alpha Mu Gamma, president; and Kappa Sigma Phi, secretary. He is also a member of the New Orleans Geological Society.

Immediately following the program, Dr. and Mrs. Riggs will host a reception for graduates, their families, and friends.

Financial aid outlook better than expected

The student financial aid outlook at Austin Peay State University will be better than originally expected, according to John Bratcher, APSU's financial aid director.

"National Direct Student Loan collections have been greater than anticipated," Bratcher explained. Despite the Reagan administration cutbacks, Austin Peay will enter the 1982-83 academic year with over $100,000 more in the NDSL program than was available last year.

Bratcher attributes the improved loan collections at the University to better management, improved collection procedures and a continued willingness on the part of the students to repay loans.

Austin Peay will be able to loan approximately $300,000 next year, of which only 10 percent in new federal funds. Contrary to popular belief, the default rate in the NDSL program is not unmanageably high.

"There is a positive trend across the United States for students repaying loans," Bratcher said. "Because of this trend, we are able to provide financial assistance to our students even though we have suffered heavy cutbacks."

The national default rate in the NDSL program averages 12 percent, with Austin Peay's rate falling under 7 percent. University collections increased over 12 percent last year and are expected to increase by the same amount for the coming year.

"Congress restored part of the money which Reagan had hoped to cut from the federal financial aid program. This was due primarily to negative public reaction," Bratcher said.

"The side effect of this has been that many students have been scared away from applying for aid. They don't think they can receive help, so they don't apply," Bratcher added. "We want to encourage students to apply for financial aid."

Approximately $4 million in various student financial aid funds will be available to Austin Peay students for next year. Students are encouraged to apply immediately since aid will be awarded on a first-come, first-served basis and according to need, Bratcher indicated.

Controversial 1982-83 events listed for APSU

All in all, the 1981-82 school year at Austin Peay has been rather plain and harmless. This will be this year's final edition of The All State, so the editors here have decided to devise a list of controversial events that some of you readers may wish to partake in next year. These events could possibly cause such an uproar that things such as interest, thought, action and excitement may become prevalent on this campus.

Wouldn't it be nice if

*Jesus came to APSU, and His request to see President Robert O. Riggs was denied. Jesus would be forced to see one of the assistant deans. When asked why he refused to see Jesus, Riggs would say "no one walks barefoot in my office!"

*The APSU football department established, in conjunction with the mandatory food plan, a mandatory do-do plan. Do-doing off campus would be prohibited. Students caught do-doing without proper identification would be asked to never do-do again.

*APSU students got involved in a "Boringest Campus" competition. Upon commencement of the event, students would be advised to "just relax and be yourselves."

*The Woodward Library was forced to close down. Confused students would have to socialize elsewhere.

*Mike McDaniel, SGA ex-president, (a) shaved his beard—no one would know who he was, and no one would care, or (b) didn't shave his beard—everyone would know who he was, but no one would care.

*All the fraternities at APSU merged to sponsor an "Everything Week." Beer, animals, steppin' and Fats Domino would all be celebrated in the same week. A party would be held on the last day of the week at the Waterworks, and the boy with the ugliest girl would be given three "I've been Krogering" grocery bags.

*Students who go home for the weekend, return to find large, unfriendly grizzly bears in their rooms. After complaining to the housing department at APSU, these students would be asked to move to California, where there are a lot of nasty things to do without going home.

*The APSU football department scheduled games with the University of Alabama, the University of Michigan and the University of Ohio. Head football coach Emory Hale would say after losing by world record margins to each team that "the referees stunk."

These are just a few ideas that could possibly spark this yawning campus. But we are small—and we are relatively young. With interest and determination we could make Austin Peay a more exciting place to be (no apathy or sympathy, please).

Student relates pledging experience

Dear Editor:

My name is Anthony Shaw and I am a pledge for the fraternity of Kappa Alpha Psi. Although there was a major incident last year concerning the organization which resulted in suspension for a year, the Theta Beta Chapter is operating normally.

Kappa men everywhere strive for the goal of achievement. While under supervision in a pledge period, Kappa has revealed goals and objectives in life that have never been revealed in such an esteem manner before. The fraternity endures many hours daily helping myself and eight other pledges grow to the fullest degree by teaching us the history of Kappa Alpha Psi. At the same time they express how important grades in school are to us. A four hour study period is required each day.

In conclusion, even though I have only been pledging for six weeks, I have become alert and aware that life is more than just a roll of the dice but the future of men who strive to accomplish and achieve eternally.

The All State is the official student newspaper of Austin Peay State University. It is published on every Wednesday of the academic year except during examination periods and holidays by the students of this university.

The paper is printed at the K-View by New Era in Hopkinsville, KY. News information should be brought by 104 Ellington Hall or mailed to The All State, Box 8334, APSU, Clarksville, TN 37041. Deadlines on printing is the Thursday before the Wednesday printing.

Members: Associated College Press and Tennessee Intercollegiate Press; represented for national advertising by CARS; national news supplied by College Press Service and National On-Campus Report.

letters policy

The All State staffs of the past have consistently provided their respective readerships with the opportunity to make public comments, suggestions, criticisms and even complaints by making use of the "Letters to the Editor" column and this year's staff intends to do the same.

All letters which are to be considered for publication must be in the All State office by the Saturday before the Wednesday printing. All letters should be signed and the author's phone number should be given.

Letters must less than 300 words long. No letter will be published which even vaguely implies an advertisement or campaign. Space to be used for such purposes in The All State must be purchased at campus advertising rates.

Letters which the staff considers to be offensive, abusive or libelous will be subject to editing. The author will be consulted in cases where drastic editing of the submitted letter is considered necessary.

Senior congratuates

The All State staff

Dear Editor:

My congratulations to the writers of the two editorials that appeared in the "Comments" section of The All State issue of May 12, the contents of both "We Applaud Rape Awareness..." and "Hello, Dr. Riggs..." were appropos, valid and thought-provoking.

As a graduating senior, it is certainly true I express publicly my appreciation to all the staff of, and contributors to The All State, who serve so industriously and well to offer such quality campus newspaper. With the rapid deterioration in quality of the Leaf Chronicle, (my opinion), The All State merits favorable attention even beyond the academic community.

Are paid subscriptions available to alumni? If not, they should be.

Sincere thanks to each All State worker.

47 merchants participate in antique show

by Steve Harmon

Forty-seven merchants from 12 states participated in the second annual Austin Peay State University Antique Show held May 14-16 in the Dunn Center.

The purpose of the show is to raise money for the APSU alumni scholarship program, according to director of university services Fred Landias.

"We were looking for a new type of fund-raiser in Clarksville," Landias said. "The antique show was an opportunity for new dollars as opposed to just simply asking the alumni to contribute," he added.

Landias and his assistant, Doug Barber of university services, expected to contribute between $4000-5000 toward the fund from the show.

Most of the scholarship fund proceeds came from the $2.50 admission which the $2.50 admission which was good for the duration of the show.

APSU students were admitted free.

Some of the items featured in the show included a custom doll shop, furniture, glassware, jewelry, coins, guns and sterling silver.

Merchant Jerry Hollis of Rayville, La. owned what was believed to be the most expensive piece at the show—a four carat diamond solitaire worth an estimated $11,000.

In a review by the Antique Gazette, the hospitality of Landias and his staff is "unsurpassed."

"The reputation is coming along well," Landias viewed of the two-year-old event.

The Alpha Tau Omega fraternity helped to coordinate the event.

'Plasticolus hootosis' species invade APSU

by Steve Windham

Back in October, you might have noticed a new species of owls started populating the campus.

The owls, Plasticolus hootosis, commonly known as the plastic owls, find a spot on a roof and stay there for about twenty years. They like to have pigeons for friends and these two birds are seen frequently congregating on various roofs around the campus.

Jack Drugmand chief of campus police, claimed the owls "did the job", (i.e., they scare pigeons away.) He's in the charge of the project, though.

Drugmand said, "We knew there would come a time when they (the owls) would be compromised. We were just buying time."

Drugmand said they had tried shooting pigeons before putting up the owls. But this was sort of slow, "not to mention dangerous," the chief said.

Then the owls came.

The hoots of audio owls once could be heard over the campus, but the tape recorder broke down. These tapes were supposed to scare pigeons and attract real live owls.

The owls were even trained to run on tracks on the roofs, but, alas, Austin Peay State University didn't have sufficient funds to subsidize "The Nightowl Transit System."

The chief said the owls did their job for about two and a half months. Meanwhile, the boys at the physical plant were working on pigeon traps.

That's right. It seems some pigeon farmer from New York City working at the physical plant knew how to make pigeon traps. And that's what he did. And they are on the roofs of buildings at Austin Peay State University. Beware, oh, pigeon-hearted roof climbers.

The trapped pigeons are taken out into the country and set free. They then fly back to school or please farmers by defeating all over them.

The Pigeon Patrol even thought about importing rubber snakes onto the college scene to scare the pigeons badly. But the idea just didn't seem to bite.

What gimmick will be tried next? Will Drugmand and company give up? Tune in next year.

"Not An Establishment,
But A Tradition"

You Could Have Been With Me a definite improvement

by M.M. Morris

You Could Have Been With Me contains the current single "You Could Have Been With Me," primarily spotlighting 22-year-old coloratura-ranged soprano and former drama student from the Royal Scottish Academy of Dramatic Arts, Sheena Easton.

Keyboards are used as a secondary instrument adding continuity, with guitar (both electric and acoustic) adding lacy obligatos and rhythm parts, along with good backing vocals acting as cushioning, all done very tastefully without stealing emphasis from the focal point, Easton.

Sheena Easton received a Grammy Award for her first album, simple titled Sheena Easton. Her newest, You Could Have Been With Me is a bit more commercial and seems more concert and self-assured than the first album because of the style and arrangement of the songs.

It is just in the very strictest sense that Sheena Easton could improve her tone immensely, since she has a lot of nasal quality possibly due to the fact of narrowing and using uncovered tones. Also her occasional shrillness might be due to this, but with time and age will hopefully mellow and hopefully her articulation will be cleaned-up a bit also.

The drums, percussion and bass lay the foundation and backbone of the whole album. The drumming and percussion work here is one of the main factors of propelling this project, not to forget the keyboardist (Jan Lynn) with his percussive touch.

This album does definitely have a feeling of confidence, and this is no doubt due to Sheena's and the band's hands-on experience of making the first album. Many factors come into play such as familiarity to the whole process of being in the studio and the band's musical weaknesses and strengths.

All in all You Could Have Been With Me is a definite major improvement over Sheena Easton's first project. After all, nothing replaces experience.

Special thanks go out to Budd Bailey, Hank Boncutter, and Chuck at WJZM radio for their help, cooperation and use of the projection room.

JazNimbus to perform May 22

The jazz-modern dance company JazNimbus will be performing their spring show May 22. The show is entitled "Mega-morphic" and will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Clement Auditorium. Admission is free.

The dancing style of "JazNimbus" is termed modern jazz which means a highly energetic and stylized form of dance deriving movements from all dance forms such as ballet and tap. The music used is contemporary/ jazz. The dancers make use of facial expressions, flowing costumes and angular body movements to present motion.

Admissions will be held this summer for those interested in becoming members of the "JazNimbus" company. The company prefers those with previous experience. For information call the YMCA at 647-2376.

Bhatia selected as one of five distinguished prof finalists

by Caroline Short

Respect of associates, rapport on campus, good teaching habits, and extra work in research may be a few of the reasons Dr. DMS Bhatia has become one of the five finalists for the Distinguished Professor Award at Austin Peay State University.

"I have no long range goals," Bhatia said, "I prefer to take one day at a time." "I have thirty more productive years ahead and I am looking forward to each one. Much can happen in that length of time. I feel very flattered and honored to be in this position," Bhatia commented.

Bhatia came to APSU from India via Canada and Missouri. He was born in northern India (Sialkot, Punjab, now Pakistan) then moved to the central Indian city of Nagpur.

It was in Nagpur that he attended St. Francis de Sales High School, Science College of the University of Nagpur, and went on to receive his B.S. in Geology at the University of Jabalpur.

His masters work was done in Saugan, one of two centers in India for advanced research in geology. Bhatia then taught post-graduate students for four years at the University of Raipur College of Engineering and Technology.

After completing his educational career in India he moved on to Canada and his second masters. This was in Economic Geology and Geochemistry.

While in Canada Bhatia spent four years in the Arctic for the mineral industry. His work took him across Canada from Newfoundland to the Yukon.

When he moved to Missouri, Bhatia worked with the Missouri Geology and Land Survey as he completed work for his doctorate. He was also a consultant for Phillips Petroleum in Arizona, California, and Nevada.

In August of 1973 while in Missouri Bhatia married Raginder (Ginger) Kaur.

In the fall of 1977, Bhatia began his associate professorship of Geology at APSU.

In addition to his teaching duties, he does research on coal, on Copper-Lead-Zinc Sulfides, uranium, and on springs of Tennessee.

AP Playhouse's The Rainmaker begins

by Mike Lynch

The Austin Peay Playhouse production of The Rainmaker opens tonight at 8:00 in the Trahern Theatre. Director Thomas A. Pallen is optimistic that the show will be successful.

"I feel that the show could have opened last week," Pallen said in a May 12 interview, "I've been very happy with the way the cast has worked."

Pallen is in his first year at Austin Peay State University. The St. Louis native holds bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Missouri and a Ph.D. from Southern Illinois University.

Prior to coming to APSU, he worked in both academic and professional theatre in the United States and Canada.

According to Pallen, he has shaped the show around two major ideas. "It's definitely Lizzie's play. Everything that happens in the play is directed, in a sense, toward Lizzie."

"The other thing I really wanted to work on, and I think it has worked fairly well, is the feeling of heat and drought. It's sort of a background atmosphere for the show," Pallen noted.

Hallie Coppedge plays Lizzie in the romantic comedy by N. Richard Nash. Eddie Powers is cast as Bill Starbuck and Randy Sullivan is File. Other roles are played by Glen Pafford, S.A. Weakley, Danny Armitage and Mike Lynch.

"It's such a well-written play that it practically directs itself," Pallen said. "It's not one where the director has to worry about covering mistakes that the writer has made."

"If you put what Nash has done on stage, it's going to be pretty good," he added.

Pallen emphasized that sound effects have been included as a vital part of the Playhouse production.

"One of my earliest thoughts on the show was in the direction of what kind of music to use. I've put together the sound tape with a lot of Aaron Copeland's music, particularly from his score for the movie The Red Pony," he said.

Pallen said the western plains character of the music had an effect on shaping the play. "The rhythms that Copeland creates have been in the back of my mind while I've been directing the show."

Much of the show's success will be based on the technical aspects. Pallen praised Randy Sullivan and Rex Harder for their work in building the set and collecting props.

Pallen noted that the acting will be the unifying element of the show. "The actors are doing such a job that an audience would be entertained and would get what Nash wants out of the show without all of the technical elements."

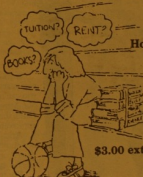

"I think that's certainly the strongest part of the show, which is as it should be."

Foreign Language Society inducts new officers

The Gamma Iota Chapter of the National Collegiate Foreign Language Honor Society inducted new officers and initiates at its annual banquet on May 17 at Quincy's Steakhouse Restaurant. Former president Daniel R. Potts presided over the ceremonies. Initiates included: Carmen M. Arboe, Jim Bonano, Patricia Elliott, Shiela P. Kelly, Linda P. Luna, and Yvonne Wheeler.

New officers for 1982-83 were also inducted: Gregory V. Smith, president; Leonardo Joudry, first vice-president; Shiela P. Kelly, second vice-president; and Maria Rivera, secretary-treasurer.

Certificates for distinguished service were presented to: Brenda Carnell, Mary Nelson, Carmen Rakes, Maria Rivera, Will Robinson, and Greg Smith.

Representing the French organization of the Clarksville/Fort Campbell/Hopkinsville was Leonardo Joudry, president of the Alliance Francaise.

The International Students' Organization also recently elected its new officers: Linda P. Luna, president; Gabriel Harro, vice-president; Carmen M. Arboe, secretary; Cinzia Knight, treasurer; and James Ogberahwe, membership chairman.

Dr. Paul Hsu of the APSU sociology department is the faculty sponsor for the International Students Organization and John W. Welker, professor of French, is the faculty sponsor for Alpha Mu Gamma.

Fort Campbell offers TEL-MED service

by Sue Beard

Accurate medical information on subjects ranging from alcoholism to vasectomies is available to APSU students via TEL-MED, a telephonic health care information system. Sponsored by Fort Campbell Community Hospital, TEL-MED offers almost 300 tapes on various health care problems.

The index of tapes is available at the counseling and testing center or the school infirmary. It is hoped that, with the permission of Fort Campbell, next year the index will be printed in the "Student Handbook."

Vice President for Student Affairs, Dr. Charles N. Boehme said, "We appreciate the opportunity for a cooperative endeavor between APSU and Fort Campbell Community Hospital to provide an additional service for the student."

"The TEL-MED program can answer superficial questions concerning personal health and is designed for wide dissemination of information," Boehme said.

Dr. Ronald Oakland, director of the counseling and testing center, stated that the TEL-MED system would be of value to APSU students, citing anonymity as one of its many assets.

Mrs. Diane Berty, nurse practitioner at the APSU infirmary, said, "TEL-MED is an excellent plan. The students could benefit greatly from it as long as they realize that it isn't for diagnosis but for information only."

The TEL-MED library is designed to give you information on how to remain healthy, recognize early signs of illness, adjust to an illness or surgery, and prevent some health problems. It is not to be used in an emergency, to replace your doctor, or to find out what your illness is. TEL-MED is not designed to tell you why you are sick—only a doctor can tell you that. The purpose of the TEL-MED health care information system is to help you remain healthy and to prevent illness.

$1000 raised during Animal Week

by Robert Boswell

John Gannon, director for Pi Kappa Alpha Animal Week announced that approximately $1000 was raised for donations to the Clarksville-Montgomery County animal shelter during the fraternities annual "Animal Week."

The fraternity had hopes of earning over $1500 for their donation, however, due to financial incurrence in putting the week on, this amount could not be accomplished.

Gannon explained the reason for the deficit in donation funds saying that "we were hit with a great deal of expenses. Animal Week cost about $760 more this year than it did last year."

Gannon added that the fraternity actually made more money this year but covering the extra expenses caused the amount of the actual donation to be lowered.

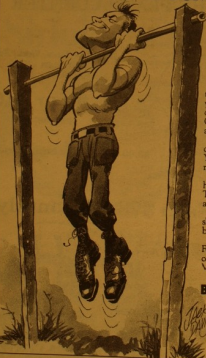

Costs encountered from police security and musical entertainment were pointed out by Gannon as the major factors in the cost of "Animal Week."

Local merchants, restaurants, along with beer and coke distributors were all very helpful in the funding of "Animal Week." Discounted and donated products from the various businesses were all very important in the success of "Animal Week."

Gannon expressed thanks to these various contributors and also to the campus community for the help and participation in making the week so beneficial for the shelter.

WE'LL PAY YOU TO GET INTO SHAPE THIS SUMMER.

If you have at least two years of college left, you can spend six weeks at our Army ROTC Basic Camp this summer and earn approximately $600.

And if you qualify, you can enter the ROTC 2-Year Program this fall and receive up to $1,000 a year.

But the big payoff happens on graduation day. That's when you receive an officer's commission. So get your body in shape (not to mention your bank account).

Local events highlight close of spring

Since this is the last issue of The All State, I thought it only fitting that I acknowledge the completion of another academic year.

from tee to green

by Steve Harmon
Sports Editor

In my case, year number four. Yeah, you guessed it—I'll be back for number five.

But, let's not toil in the problems of the moment. This weekend, Austin Peay plays host to a prestigious national athletic event.

Governor track coach Joy Haines and his thincadads will be challenged by some 85 collegiate squads from coast-to-coast as Municipal Stadium entertains the women's AIAW Division II track championships on Thursday through Sunday.

This is a top-notch event and the Lady Gova need Clarksville's support.

Jeanne Arnold, who gets my vote for the Joy Award (as Austin Peay's best senior athlete—an award never won by a female) will be one of the women to watch at the meet.

The former Naahville Antioch star, who was also a starter on Coach Pam Davidson's Lady Gova cage squad, is an All-American sprinter for APSU.

Another event which will not be covered by The

All State is the Pabst Blue Ribbon softball tournament on the APSU intramural fields.

Intramural coordinator Drew Simmons has worked hard on lining up campus events all year long and the PBR tourney should be another feather in his cap.

Traditionally, The All State is published every week except exam week. However production problems have cut us short this term.

Consequently, the intramural softball tournament doesn't get any ink, either.

For what it's worth, I'll take the Angry Red and the Little Darlings in the men's and women's divisions, respectively, on a perfect ticket.

Other than the above, Peaymania should subside for exam week and the entrance of summer.

If your summers are as easy as mine are, you should be ready to go next fall when "From Tee to Green" returns (hopefully for the final auto).

My job at the local country club proves nothing but column topics and excuses for cutting Business Law.

Until September, have fun and see if you can support some of the local events.

Thanks to me inquiry last week into the condition of the intramural softball fields, the maintenance crew got on their International Harvester's and cut the alfalfa that we were playing softball on.

Thanks for the help, guys.

Gov tennis camp to be held

by Steve Harmon

Austin Peay State University will host the Governor Tennis Camp June 7-12 on its Clarksvilleville, Tenn., campus.

Instruction will run from 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. daily. APSU head tennis coach Dennis Emery will be in charge of the counseling and will be assisted by collegiate players.

Emery is a member of the U.S. Junior Davis Cup coaching staff and has directed Austin Peay to two consecutive Ohio Valley Conference regular season net titles.

The camp is for students ages 8-19 and will have student-teacher ratio of about six to one, according to Emery.

"Our camp is for players who are currently playing in high school or wish to compete in tournaments in the future," Emery said.

There will also be special groups for beginning players, Emery revealed.

"Players will be paired up with players of like ability, allowing everyone to progress at their own pace," he said. Cost for the camp is $75, excluding meals.

For further information write Dennis Emery at the APSU athletic department or call (615) 648-7905 or 645-1974 (home). Entry deadline is May 30.

Netters fare well in NIT

by Donna Holder

Austin Peay State University's men's tennis team participated in the National Invitational Tournament held in Monroe, La. May 15-18.

Being invited to play in this tournament is quite an honor because as post season tennis is concerned, the top 16 teams in the U.S. are involved in the NCAA's and the next 16 are invited to the NIT's.

"Being invited to play there means that APSU is theoretically in the top 32 in the nation in tennis," Coach Dennis Emery said. "We're proud of that and glad to get to go."

Play began on Saturday with the Gov netters facing Virginia Tech. The Gova finished with a 7-2 win.

Sunday, AP met Long Beach State, the tournament's second-seeded team and lost 8-1. Brad Properjohn of the Gov squad was the team's only winner.

Monday saw the team play Nevada-Las Vegas and lose 5-4 in a close match.

"We were tied 3-3 going into the doubles against N-LV, and we lost at numbers two and three doubles," said Hal Jolley, the team's number one player in a telephone interview from Monroe.

Monday afternoon, Murray State University, one of the Gova's primary rivals, took on North Texas State. Austin Peay was scheduled to meet the loser of that match. Results were unavailable at presstime.

The NIT wraps up APSU men's tennis season for the year.

"I'm proud of the guys," said Emery, "and I'm grateful to Coach Johnny Miller for helping us get the finances to get there."

"It helps to go to a tournament of this magnitude knowing you have school support."

Canoe Regatta takes a swim

Clarksville's stretch of the Cumberland River and 90 degree temperatures combines to make this year's Sigma Chi Canoe Regatta "one of the best ever," according to event coordinator Mike Zenker.

Held Sunday May 16 on the public landing near MacGregor Park, the race drew 35 team entries and attracted an estimated 1000 spectators.

The race is staged annually for the benefit of Wallace Village for Children in Broomfield, Colorado. Wallace Village is the Sigma Chi national philanthropy. Over $300 was raised, Zenker noted.

In the men's division, the team of J.W. Geier, K.B. Cooke and L.F. (cont. on page 10)

Bargatze adds seven recruits for 1982-83

by Steve Harmon

Austin Peay State University head basketball coach Ron Bargatze has added seven new faces to his squad in hopes of rebounding from last year's 6-20 campaign.

The Governors will have a total of 15 scholarship players next year, as opposed to only 12 this season.

Three prep stars, two junior college transfers and two transfer students who will regain eligibility this winter will join returning starters All-OVC Lenny Manning, Freshman All-OVC Pat Day, Mandel Stockton and Cecil Felts.

John Collins, a 6'6", 190-pounder from Nashville's Hillwood H.S. is an exceptional prospect according to Bargatze. The All-Nashville interscholastic League selection poured in 18 points per game for the Burros last season.

Springfield H.S. product Lonnie West has cast his lot with the Goves, as well. The 5'11" point guard is expected to replace the graduated Tom Hill.

"He handles the ball well, passes well, and shoots well," Bargatze said. "He's a true point guard."

Six-foot Kelvin Easton of Chattanooga's Brainerd H.S. is the other prep recruit.

Bargatze calls him "the best jumper since I've been at Austin Peay," and notes that Easton is a good student and a product of the Governor basketball camp.

Transfers Greg Andrews and Calvin Boyd will also be counted on.

Andrews, a 6'3", 200-pound swingman from Calhoun J.C. in Decatur, Ala. by way of Todd Central H.S. was the MVP of the Alabama Jucos tourney.

Boyd poured in 20 points per game as the 6'2" sharpshooter was named the Tennessee Jucos Player of the Year while at Shelby State.

In addition to the five recruits, transfers Randy Harris (UT-Chattanooga) and Joe Parker (Memphis State) will vie for playing time.

Both Parker, at 6'3", and the 6'6" Harris will be juniors next year.

"I'm expecting them to play a lot," Bargatze predicted. "Parker is a possible point guard for us," he added.

Austin Peay to host AIAW women's track meet this weekend

Austin Peay State University will play host to the AIAW Division II national track meet May 20-22 at Municipal Stadium.

Collegiate squads from 35 states are entered in the event, with as many as 85 schools expected to participate. Preliminary heats will be run on Thursday and Friday, followed by Saturday's finals.

Favorites for the team title include Rice, Villanova, South Carolina State, Eastern Illinois and Idaho, Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, the 1981 champion will not be in Clarksville to defend their title.

Austin Peay Lady Goves coach Joey Haines is shooting for a top ten finish from his team. APSU placed 18th at last year's meet.

Individuals to watch include Candy Young of Farleigh Dickinson. Young is a former American record-holding hurdler and the defending AIAW champion in the 100-meter hurdles.

Rice's Laura Wright brings a 52.9 time in the 400-meter dash, while Gayle Brandon of Eastern Illinois owns a 40"3" leap in the triple jump.

Idaho's Patsy Sharples has posted a 33:59.0 in the 10,000-meter run to highlight that event, while South Carolina State's 400-meter relay squad boasts a time of 45.3.

Leading Austin Peay will be senior standout Joanne Arnold. She will be out to better last season's fourth-place finish in the long jump and is expected to challenge FDU's Young in the 100-meter dash.

The softball tournament begins Monday with men's first-round play starting at 5:15 p.m.

Men and women's semifinal play starts Tuesday at 4 p.m. with the best-of-three championships Thursday at 4 p.m.

All the action takes place on the Killebrew field.

President Robert O. Riggs and Director of Student Life Ernie Ranvehorst will throw out the first pitches.

AIAW EMCEE—Peay track coach Joey Haines, shown giving advice to a Lady Gov earlier this season, will have the eyes of the nation on him as APSU hosts the AIAW national women's meet this weekend. The running starts at 3 p.m. Thursday in Municipal Stadium.

Ajax sponsors PBR tourney

Ajax Distributing Co., in conjunction with the Austin Peay intramural department, will host the first annual Pabst Blue Ribbon Intramural Softball Tournament on May 21-22 on the APSU campus.

This is the final event of the season for the Austin Peay intramural departments. Slots for 10 men's teams and 8 women's teams are open, according to IM director Artie Manning.

A mandatory coaches meeting will be held Thursday, May 20 at 6 p.m. in room 107 of the IM complex, at which time all rosters will be due.

The only stipulations to the tournament is that all players must be registered APSU students and that each team may have no more than one player from the Governor baseball squad.

The tournament will be played on the Killebrew Hall field and is to be sanctioned by intramural rules.

T-shirts will be given to all participants. The winning team members will receive awards, as will the most valuable players in each division.

Last year's champions, the Angry Red in the men's division and the Little Darlings in the women's league, are expected to return.
