FOREWORD

Tennessee's newest university is our own Austin Peay State University, a state-supported, multipurpose institution located in Clarksville, the state's sixth-largest city with a population of 35,657.

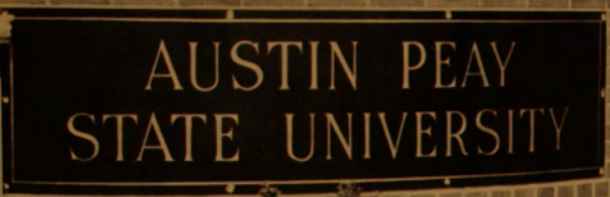

Named for former Gov. Austin Peay, a Clarksville resident, APSU was elevated to university status on Sept. 1, 1967, by the Tennessee State Board of Education. Established in 1927 as Austin Peay Normal School, the institution became Austin Peay State College in 1943. APSU is situated on an urban campus that for over 150 years has been used for educational purposes.

Enrollment has increased steadily in the past few years and 2,917 students (1,815 men and 1,102 women) registered during the 1967 fall quarter. Students come from 26 states of the union, several foreign countries and 58 of the 95 counties in Tennessee.

An 11.3 per cent increase in full-time students highlighted the fall quarter enrollment figures. Growth and expansion are key words on the APSU campus as 30 full-time academic and administrative personnel members were added this year. Degrees which may be pursued now total six with the addition of the M.A. and M.S.

An urban renewal project, acquisition of property and the opening of several new buildings has enlarged the campus and improved physical facilities.

STATE UNIVERSITY

U

Effective Sept. 1, 1967, Austin Peay State ceased to be a college, for this date initiated "The Year of the U"—Austin Peay State University. Approval of this transition by both students and faculty created a greater challenge, and both became dedicated to the demands of "The Year of the U."

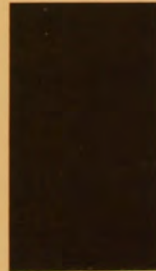

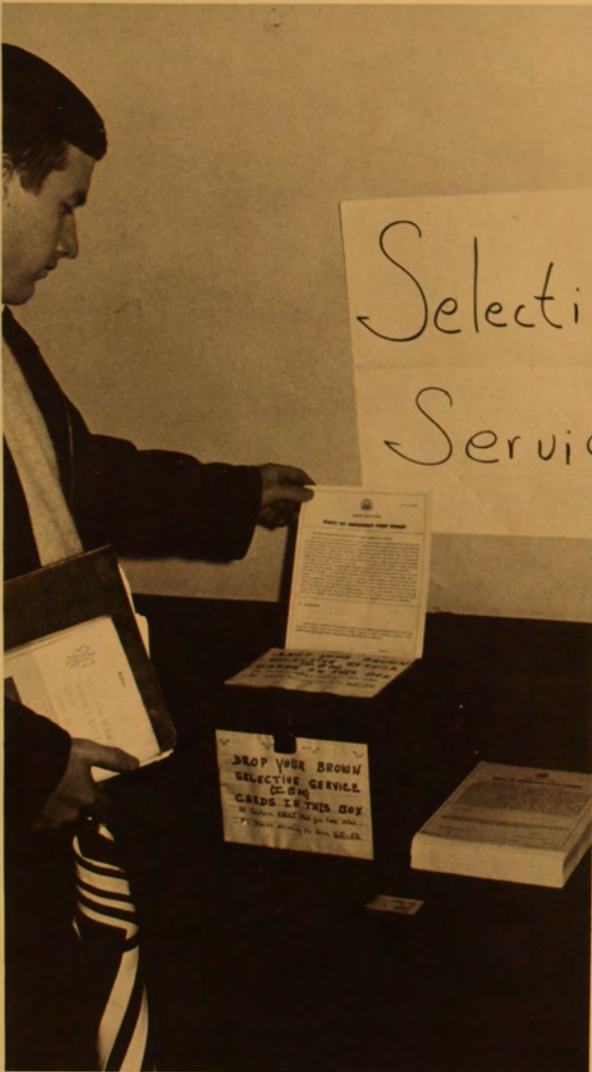

UNIVERSITY

APSU's advancement to university status is a definite sign for a hopeful and industrious future for the growing institution. But there is far more to Austin Peay State than the addition of the word "university" to its name. It represents a diligent faculty and staff and an alert student body hungry for knowledge.

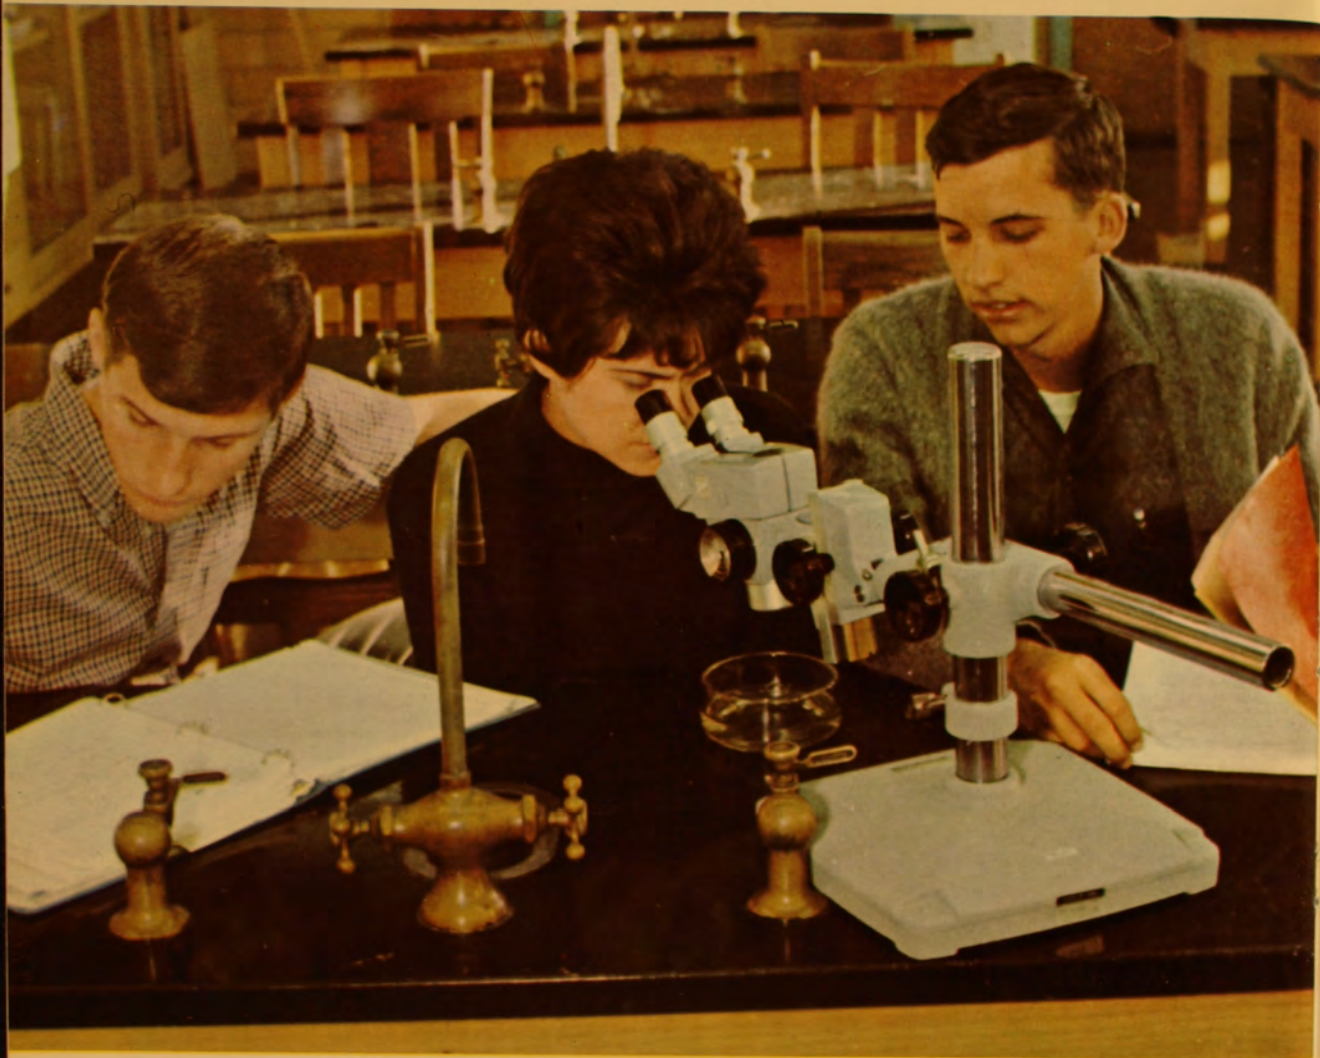

UNCERTAINTY

Tolerating the endless registration lines for the first time, one experiences a feeling of deep uncertainty which is intensified by pondering the difficult aspects of college life. The uncertainty of social acceptance, the molding of friendships and the passing of weeks, months and years of study all create anxious moments for the college student.

UNITY

The university functions as a compact unit to support, to promote and to expand the ideals of the institution. The nucleus of the school's unity is the students' overwhelming initiative to succeed academically, socially and spiritually, whether on the playing field, in the classroom or engaging in a campus activity.

UPGROWTH

Intellectual development requires assiduity and a personal desire for advancement. Although college might signify the comprehension of one's intellectual aims, a genuine expansion of one's self encompasses a far greater realm. The ability to manipulate social concerns, and the imperative bid to heighten one's ethical ideals add to the continuous process of upgrowth.

UNDERSTANDING

Understanding originates with the acceptance of a realistic self-concept. APSU provides the potential for cultivation of the fundamentals necessary for one's development into an objective, informed individual. Knowledge concerning the various phases of the arts and sciences aids one in the better understanding of his world, himself and his fellow man.

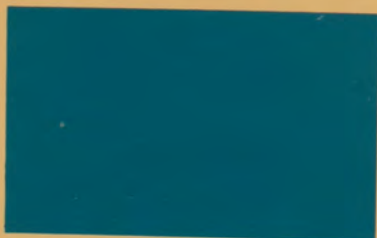

UNIQUENESS

College life provides an environment completely unique. Only during the unequalled college days at Austin Peay State University does one have the opportunity to experience the matchless occurrences of dorm life, the personal challenges of classroom activity and the enthusiastic cheering of "Go Govs!"

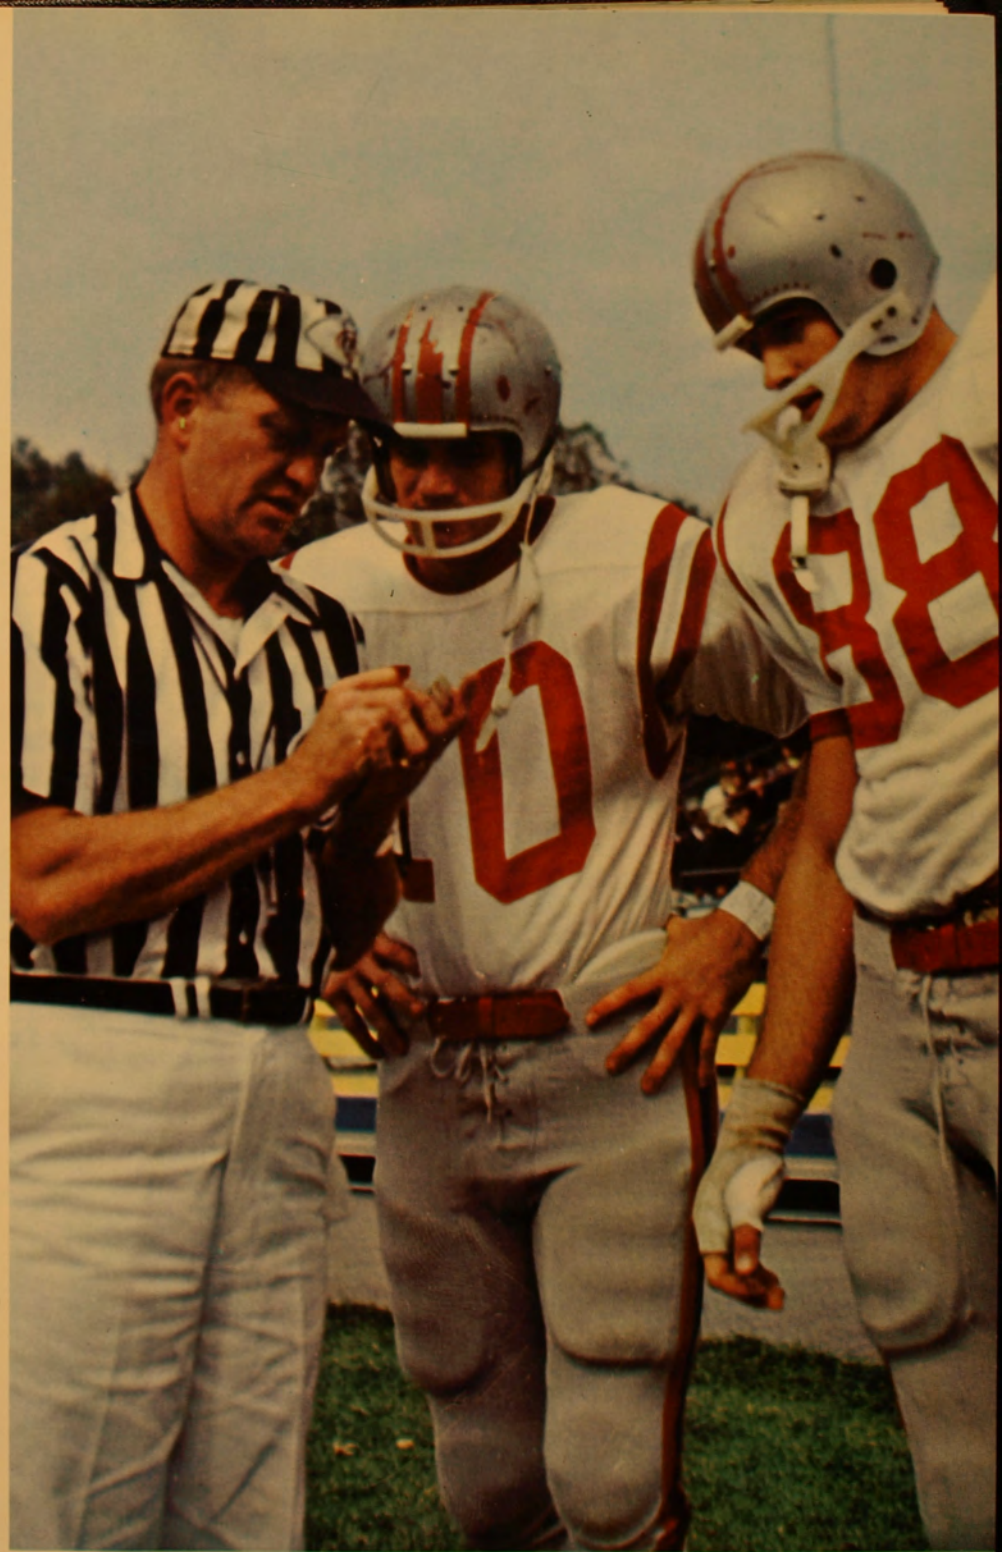

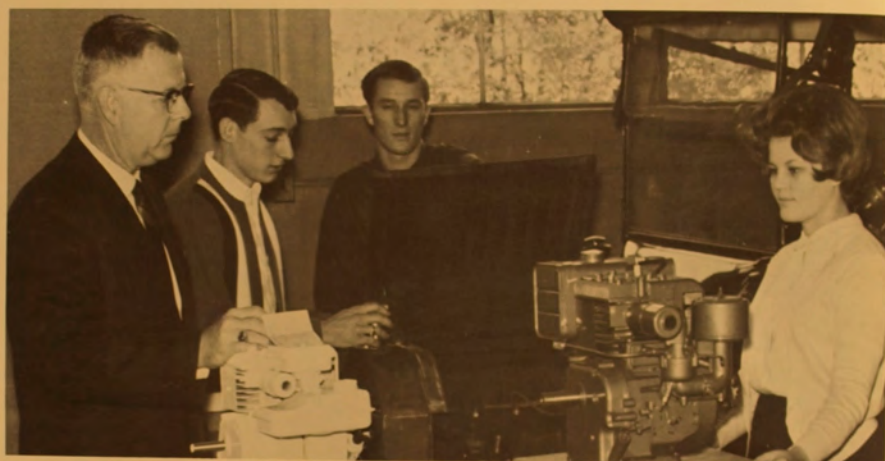

UNFORGETTABLE

Unforgettable experiences contribute to the life of each college student. As the year rapidly progresses, one soon realizes the excitement of dorm life and the ecstasy of victory are becoming only memories. Registration, homecoming and graduation exemplify a few of the activities at APSU which make life here unforgettable.

USEFULNESS

Unquestionable are the merits and values of a college education. The personnel and facilities of this campus provide the atmosphere conducive to learning and self-improvement. Students work to prepare themselves for their future professions and strive to maintain all principles which enable them to become useful and productive citizens.

UTOPIA

Evidence of contentment in the life of a college student is the apprehension of the academic standards set before him. Laborious study and the adequate application of one's faculties contribute greatly to achieving successful results. Graduation marks the culmination of one's college career and the attainment of a personal Utopia.

CAMPUS LIFE

Campus life is filled with so many different activities that the student who so desires is kept actively engaged; he soon becomes a cog in the wheel of progress that makes up a college career from freshman orientation to graduation. University life is filled with new experiences which add spice to the pursuit of knowledge. These extra-curricular activities include athletic contests, beauty pageants, musicals, field trips, theatrical performances, informal dances and formal balls, and probably the most fascinating of all, campus politics. Student life also includes many religious activities which combine with the regular college routine to complete a well-rounded life while learning and growing with APSU.

EXIT

Students break the weary routine of attending classes by relaxing in the University Center.

Entering college is an intriguing experience

Few thrills can compare to the excitement of entering college. Being introduced to your new roommate, decorating and redecorating your room until it is uniquely your own, and attending your first university social finds one caught in the whirlwind of elation and wonderment which comprise a student's life at APSU.

Freshmen fight anxiety, win friends during first week

Mrs. Tom K. Savage, wife of dean of students, welcomes Wanda Askins to faculty-student reception.

Freshman Week provides newcomers with numerous activities to help them overcome their feelings of anxiety. This week is filled with informal dances, picnics, a faculty-student reception and is climaxed with Freshman Show-Off night. The purpose of frosh week is to orient class spirit and to draw the class together into some semblance of unity.

Newcomers enjoy a picnic at nearby Pettus Park during initial week.

Freshmen find studying easier when done in groups.

Sophomore Delta Herndon purchases notebook from Mrs. Lucille Murray.

Summer vacation seems all too short, and soon the college routine swings into action. Settling down after registration and socials, the library becomes the center of activity filled with students preparing their first assignments of the term. Again, students make their quarterly vow: "I'm going to study more this quarter."

Senior cheerleader Linda Lumpkin exhibits the spirit typical of APSU cheerleaders at home cage game.

During football clash with rival Middle Tennessee, students display the symbol of past APSU victories.

Spirit thrives when the Gavs battle foes

Spirit thrives at a high-pitch level for athletic events and campus-wide elections. Bonfires, pep rallies, miles of traveling following the scarlet and white, the hours of work which go into the preparation of posters, banners and catchy slogans for student elections exemplify the loyalty which can be expressed in one word—spirit.

Supporters prepare for a Governor home gridiron contest with a pep rally and bonfire.

Barbara reigns over homecoming

Gracing the queen's float, Barbara Beasley, homecoming queen, anxiously awaits the beginning of the parade.

Sophomores Charles Horrell and Becky Scott and seniors Dick Littleton and Linda Lumpkin view the queen's coronation.

Following the crowning by President Joe Morgan, Ray Radford, ASB president, presents Miss Beasley her roses.

Miss Barbara Beasley, a junior elementary education major from Camden, Tenn., reigned over homecoming festivities on Nov. 17-18, as queen. Completing the homecoming court were four class lovelies: Linda Lumpkin, senior; Kathy Kushner, junior; Becky Scott, sophomore; and Donna Denney, freshman. The Gov gridders met East Tennessee State University at the 22nd annual homecoming.

Junior class attendant Kathy Kushner and Kent Yates, class president, command attention during band's playing of the national anthem.

Floats and pretty girls are blessed by brilliant sunshine

Proudly displaying the banners of the Ohio Valley Conference schools are the flag spinners of APSU's marching band.

Leading the gala parade is the color guard from the 101st Airborne Division, Ft. Campbell, Ky.

Atop one of the many convertibles in the parade, Nancy Miller smiles to the crowd.

Tensions mount for each homecoming parade as the city of Clarksville has a history of being a parade-loving town. A clear day and a large crowd are the rewards for the long hours of work and thought which go into the planning of a successful parade. Colorful floats, pretty girls and high-stepping bands highlighted the affair.

Bright sunlight poses a problem for some of the younger viewers.

Boxtops' music generates excitement in packed gym

Students gather around the Boxtops as they play their No. 1 seller, "The Letter," at the homecoming dance.

Embracing couple, Sandra Senseney and Ricky Walker, move to the music at homecoming dance.

Excitement still thriving, the homecoming dance climaxed the weekend of festivities. One of the more popular vocal groups, the Boxtops, gave a concert performance in addition to providing the dance music. Booked by the Associated Student Body, the Boxtops recorded "The Letter," which was No. 1 on the charts.

"Soul music" is generated by two of the Boxtops.

Follies, Josh White spark fall entertainment

Providing an opportunity for students to display their various talents, University Follies was initiated in early fall. The event was called successful by directors David Simpson, Anita Tune and Becky Scott; it may become an annual affair. Folk singer Josh White provided big-name entertainment with a concert in Clement auditorium.

Josh White, folk singer, reveals a few of the more serious aspects of the entertainment world to Ray Radford, student body prexy.

Highlighting the yuletide season was the Christmas dance, which was the first student event to be held in the new University Center. The season also found Harned, Blount, Sevier, Rawlins and McReynolds halls engulfed in dorm parties, while Harvill Hall residents serenaded the campus with carols. Various organizations contributed food and money to underprivileged families.

Good music and the atmosphere of the ultra-modern University Center add to the gaiety of the Christmas dance.

Eager students greet the long awaited moment of opening.

Study areas for last-minute preparation are found to be conveniently located by Mike Wallace and Susan Savage.

Excitement filled the campus on Feb. 1—the doors of the $1.1 million University Center were opened to students. Among the facilities offered are a recreation area, television lounges, snack bar, study areas, ballroom, post office, supply store and bookstore. In addition, offices for the ASB are located in the center.

Center enhances campus life

Adding the finishing touches to hamburgers are Jerry Taylor, Janie Russell and Tom Hoffman.

Unsuspecting Norma Plummer, a freshman, is "grounded" by snow and ice.

Columns and east side of University Center frame a solitary student walking across campus.

McReynolds Hall is used as a refuge from the constant flight of snowballs.

The season's first heavy snowfall collided with the winter schedule to dictate a situation unique in the university's history—postponement of registration. Soon the campus was busy with activity as students transformed it into a winter wonderland filled with snowmen, speedy sleds and flying snowballs.

Susan Harris experiences an embarrassing moment in the snack bar.

Faces reflect the joy of victory, agony of defeat

Disgust and exasperation are reflected in the faces of Robert McCloud and Roger Frith at registration.

A student's face can reveal the emotion that words could never express. An individual's true personality is often disclosed—not through his words or actions—but through the unconscious and sometimes conscious facial expression. APSU has a variety of faces ranging from the disgust and disappointment of defeat to the exultance and elation of victory.

Sprinter Bob Neilson radiates the determination characteristic of a good athlete.

Romance is in the air as Jeanne and Dick are crowned

Traditionally a girl-ask-boy affair, the Valentine ball is sponsored annually by the Inter-Sorority Council. Highlighting the dance is the coronation of the king and queen of hearts. Elected by a vote of the students, senior Dick Littleton and junior Jeanne Evans reigned as king and queen respectively.

Popular Becky captures Hat and Cane

Popular Becky Scott, a freshman, not only captured the 1967 Miss Hat and Cane crown, but she was also named "Miss Congeniality" by the other contestants. Sixteen campus beauties vied for the coveted title; the contest is a preliminary to the Miss Tennessee pageant. The two-day event encompassed talent, swim suit and evening gown competition.

Reigning queen, Judi Grammer, makes her final appearance before crowning successor.

Flashing a smile to the crowd after being named swimsuit competition winner is Dianna Barrett.

Crowning moment of pageant came when finalists were judged as follows: Dianna Barrett, third runner-up; Barbara Mayhew, first runner-up; Becky Scott, Miss Hat and Cane; Peggy Ozment, second runner-up; and Betty Stack Cross, fourth runner-up.

Sellout audience attends Mid-South Jazz Festival

Host to the seventh annual Mid-South Jazz Festival, APSU's Collegians, a select instrumental ensemble, invited the Tennessee Technological University and Tactical Air Command bands to complete their program. Another sellout crowd viewed the performances of the three stage bands. Proceeds from this event go into a scholarship fund for deserving male students majoring in music.

Beauties add sparkle to academic world

MARTHA PENICK

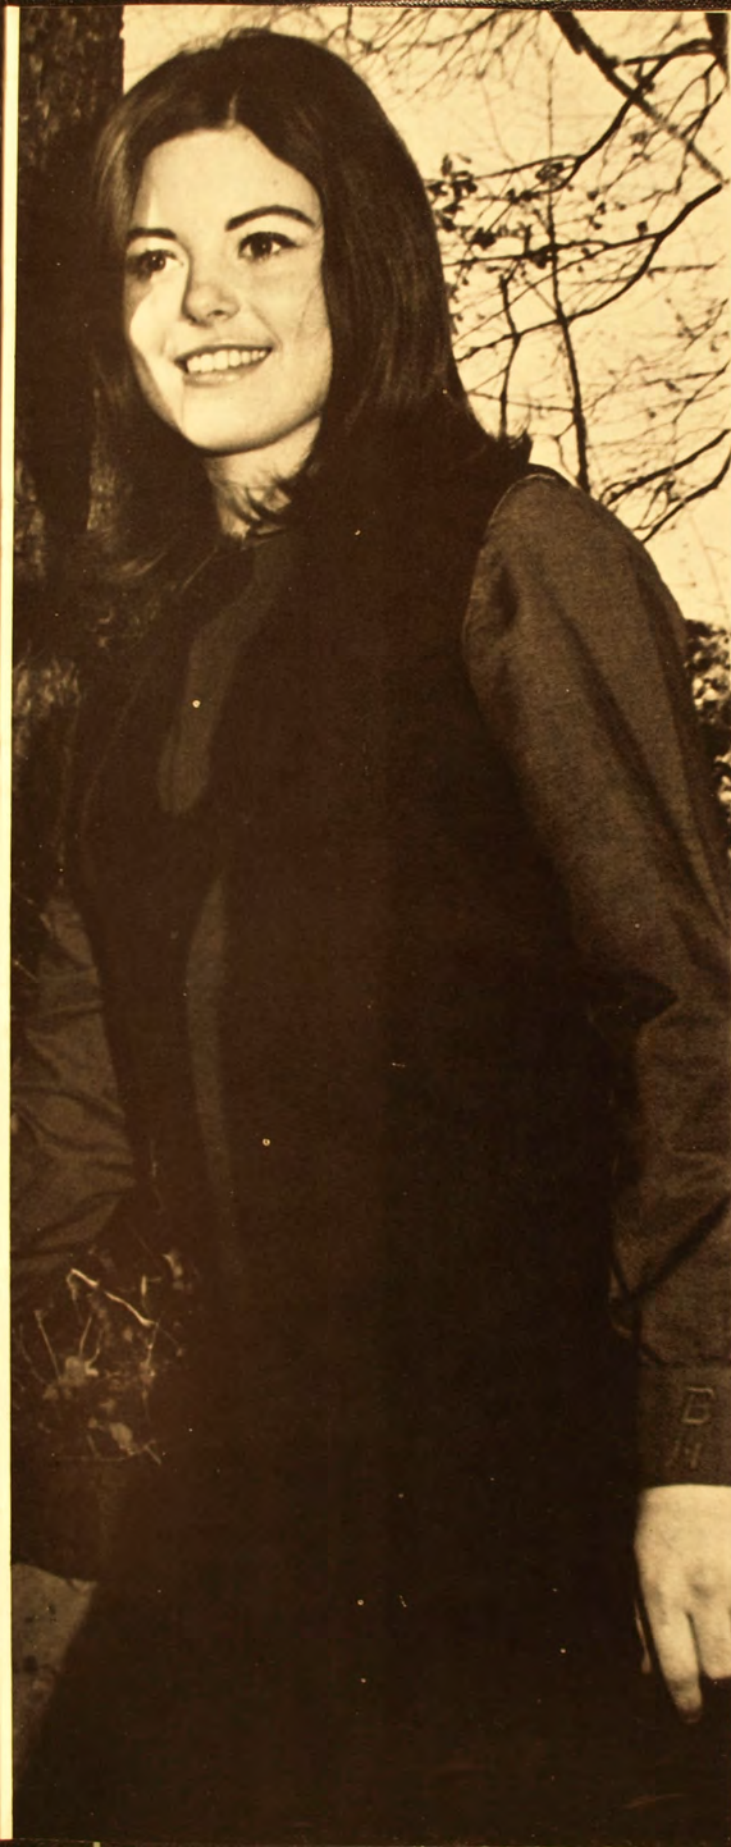

BECKY SCOTT

Natural beauty is matchless; it is pleasing to the eye. Inseparable qualities such as freshness, vivacity, simplicity and many others are necessary to be a lovely woman. Ten campus beauties were elected by the student body to represent the beauty of APSU.

Martha Penick, ASB secretary and Miss APSU, is a junior; Becky Scott, iris queen and Miss Hat and Cane, is a sophomore; cheerleader Terry Moore is a senior; Becky Herod and Van Winn are sparkling freshmen.

Varied in background and interests, the 1968 campus beauties have sparkling eyes, innocent smiles and lovely personalities. They are the ones who stand out in a crowd; they have the faces and voices and appearances you remember. Linda Lumpkin, first lady, and Margaret Sullivan, a member of Who's Who, are seniors; Kathy Kushner, homecoming attendant, and cheerleader Dianna Barrett are juniors; Martha Austin, twirler and one of the six campus beauty repeaters from last year, is a sophomore.

Highlighting the spring's social season is the traditional Iris Ball. Grace and beauty transform the gymnasium from an athletic arena to a ballroom. Reigning over the 1967 formal was Ann Davis, a junior. Students bestow this honor on the coed who represents the pinnacle of APSU's beauty.

Flashing radiant smiles after the coronation are Ann Davis, iris queen, and her escort, John Sleigh.

Sponsored by the Inter-Sorority Council, Barnfest has become one of the favorites of the students because of its new form of lively entertainment. Students can throw darts at faculty photographs, dunk a campus mermaid, square dance, or observe a calf-judging contest.

Diploma is tangible reward for years of arduous study

Endless waiting does not hamper the graduates' spirit.

On the evening of June 2, 1967, the 311 candidates for degrees marched into Municipal Stadium for the traditional Farewell and Hail ceremony. The diploma is their obvious reward for four years of study, yet the true meed lies within the individual's growth—both in understanding and maturity.

Graduates and seniors begin their processional.

ADMINISTRATION

Three different groups of people primarily comprise the university community; each group serves an important function. The groups are the students, the faculty and the administrative officers and staff. The students' role is that of learning; the faculty serves to impart knowledge. The administrative officers and staff members seek to supervise and coordinate these activities of the other two groups in order to create an efficient institution of higher learning. Capable officers assume the task of drafting administrative policies, setting goals, strengthening standards and finalizing decisions, which are sometimes difficult. The administration of a growing university is a significant enterprise—one whose challenge the dedicated executives of the administrative staff continue to meet.

BUFORD ELLINGTON, Governor of Tennessee

Austin Peay State's growth in its first year as a university is being greatly aided by the Hon. Buford Ellington, Governor of Tennessee, and the State Board of Education. Gov. Ellington is an ex-officio member of the board, which is the governing body of APSU. The board serves over five other state universities, the state's junior colleges and is the policy-making and regulatory board for the public school system of Tennessee. The state administration's interest in local educational facilities and the sponsorship of progressive academic programs is evidenced by APSU's appropriated 1967-68 operating budget of $2.3 million and capital outlay of $1.7 million for the 1967-69 biennium. The 1968-69 operating appropriation will total $2.5 million.

Dr. Joe Morgan: prime figure in the growing APSU program

Improvements have flourished under Morgan

Chief administrator of APSU is President Joe Morgan, who received his doctorate degree in June, 1967.

Dr. Morgan is the dominant figure in the growth of the university. Since his arrival on campus nearly five and one-half years ago, the former state commissioner of education has guided the erection of six major buildings and eight apartment units at a cost of nearly $6 million. Acquisition of property and an urban renewal project are long-range developmental programs in which Dr. Morgan has been instrumental.

Encouraging understanding among the university community, Dr. Morgan has vastly improved the level and variety of instruction.

DR. WILLIAM H. ELLIS, Associate Dean of Faculty and Director of Graduate Studies

APSU's first year as a university is also a memorable year for F. G. Woodward, dean of faculty. Woodward, who has served the institution since its opening in 1929, is completing his final year as top academic executive. A dynamic individual, this scholar's dedication is primarily responsible for the excellence which exists in departments today. Through the years he has strengthened the faculty with better trained educators. Named associate dean of faculty this academic year, Dr. William H. Ellis also serves as head of the expanding division of graduate studies. Two degrees, the M.A. and M.S., were added this year due largely to Ellis' efforts.

Modern methods accompany growth

Three administrators who are guiding the university's growth through modernized improvements are Richmond C. Shasteen, M. P. Bowman and Dr. Harold S. Pryor. Increased use of computerization has assisted the Office of Admissions, under Dean Bowman, to make registration more convenient and efficient.

The Business Office, headed by Shasteen, is also using the newly acquired computer equipment to process all records, thus facilitating the expanding financial business of the university.

Under the supervision of Dr. Pryor, the department of education is utilizing modern equipment and service facilities in the recently opened Claxton Building to support the teacher education program.

Newest administrative officer at APSU is Miss Mildred Deason, who accepted the post of dean of women after a leave of absence to serve with the Red Cross in Vietnam. She replaced Miss Mabel Meacham, who assumed the position of director of social affairs. Student welfare is the first concern of APSU's student personnel administrators. Dr. Tom K. Savage, dean of students, directs the program; his major concerns are academic guidance, discipline and long-range planning. Redmond oversees the areas of housing, security and traffic problems, which are at their peak due to increased enrollment and expansion.

Keeping the public abreast with events of the university is the duty of public relations officials Earl E. Sexton, Sherwin Clift and Henry C. Malone.

Headed by Sexton, the Office of Development and Field Services is offering an expanded program of financial aid and increased availability of APSU facilities for special group use.

Dissemination of news to the various media is the responsibility of the staff of the Public Information Office, directed by Clift.

Seeking to extend the active alumni membership to 2,500 and to increase funds for scholarships are current aims of the Office of Alumni Affairs of which Malone is director.

ASB: the active voice of the student body

Experiencing a year of new demands and responsibilities, the Associated Student Body, official voice of the student body in university affairs, is seeking to provide an effective link between the students, faculty and administration. A member in good standing of the Southern Universities Student Government Association, the ASB is making a new and vigorous attempt to provide big-name entertainment for the students.

The appearance of Josh White, Jr., folk singer, and the homecoming entertainment of the nationally known Boxtops were examples of top-notch attractions during the fall quarter.

Elected officers of the ASB include Ray Radford, president; Troy Feltner, vice-president; Martha Penick, secretary; and Joe Wallace, treasurer.

Executive committee members Ray Radford, Joe Wallace and David Simpson discuss the agenda for an upcoming legislative session.

ASB Senate strives for a sound student government

Under the leadership of ASB President Ray Radford, the Student Senate is meeting the challenge of the "U" by attempting to define the students' role in the university.

During the year the senate engaged in revising the ASB constitution. This new constitution is an endeavor of the senate to construct a foundation for a working student government.

While the indirect representative system of the ASB—illustrated by the component executive, judicial and legislative branches—is theoretically sound, actual application has revealed this system ineffective in meeting the growing student demands of the university. Changes will continue to meet changing demands.

An honor residence hall for coeds was established this year; the Women's Student Government Council served as the supervisory agency.

All female students who are committed to the highest personal standards and to maximum scholastic achievement are eligible. This honor dormitory provides mature university women with an opportunity to operate their own living quarters.

The WSGC works to assist the APSU administration in setting policies and regulations governing all women's dormitories on campus. The council serves as a board to consider major offenses and to recommend to the disciplinary committee the penalties to be imposed on those found guilty.

Dorm improvement, homecoming decor keep MAB busy

Going to a meeting are board members Troy Feltner, Paul von Wiegandt and Max Peden.

Composed of student leaders representing all five men's dorms, the Men's Affairs Board assists in the operation of the dormitory program. Now in its third year, this council is working to improve the living conditions in Austin Peay State's residence halls.

Although this is not their main concern, the Men's Affairs Board has occasionally been called upon to make recommendations involving student discipline. In addition to acting as advisers in dorm planning, the representatives are responsible for solving the problems of interdorm recreation. This year as an added activity the Men's Affairs Board supervised the dorm decorations at homecoming.

Dorm decorating for a homecoming display takes the time of board members Paul von Wiegandt, Troy Feltner, Max Peden and Tommy Cate.

ISC works to uphold high standards

Formerly known as the Panhellenic Council, the Inter-Sorority Council cooperates with the administration in an effort to maintain high academic and social standards.

This council operates as a legislative source for the initiation, development and enforcement of guidelines affecting sorority life. The composition of the council involves three representatives from each sorority on campus. Activities of the sororities under the direction of the Inter-Sorority Council include the annual Valentine dance, Barnfest, a spring carnival, and the Presentational Ball. This year the council supervised the name change of each of the four sororities.

Board furthers application of good collegiate journalism

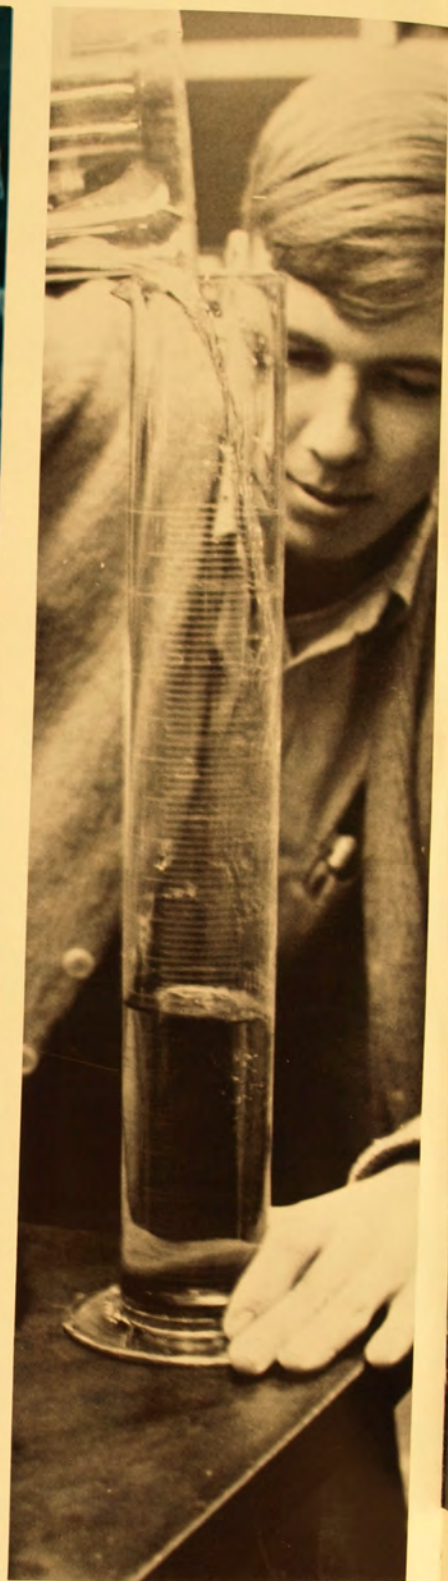

Living by its purpose, the Board of Student Publications is "to exercise supervision over student publications and to help maintain the best standards of collegiate journalism in student publications."

The board governs and appoints the editors of the FAREWELL & HAIL, university yearbook; The All State, campus weekly newspaper; and The Tower, an annual literary review. In addition, the board has jurisdiction over unofficial student publications.

Meetings are held at least once during each academic quarter to discuss the welfare of publications, problems which may have arisen and any other item which may affect the student press.

ACADEMICS

As academics is the core of any institution of higher learning, so it is here at APSU. Knowledge can be pursued in many fields (21 departmental majors are offered, plus study in nine pre-professional areas), and the combined experience and wisdom of the professors in assisting the student to think for himself is a factor in preparing the student to deal capably with his environment. A highly trained full-time teaching faculty of 130 of which 31 per cent hold the doctorate strive toward this goal. APSU requires liberal arts courses in order to produce graduates who will be well-informed and well-rounded to meet tomorrow's challenges.

Expanding graduate division offers diverse programs

Those completing requirements for a master's degree have no trouble in finding employment. These three were hired by the same college in Alabama after completing work in the division of graduate studies.

An expanding division of graduate studies at APSU offers two kinds of programs at the master's level. The 112 students enrolled in graduate classes during the fall quarter had the opportunity to pursue programs leading to a professional degree in a teaching or in an area of school service personnel (M.A. in Education) or programs leading to a liberal arts degree (M.A. and M.S.).

The M.A. and M.S. are designed to provide a program appropriate to those persons who plan to continue at the doctoral level or enter college-level teaching. Twelve majors within the field of professional and teaching education are offered.

Jonathan Wert chose the biological problem of the food habits of the mole salamander for his graduate work.

OF FACULTY

Advising a student at registration is Dr. William H. Ellis, associate dean of faculty and director of graduate studies.

Filling the dual role as graduate assistant and graduate student, Mrs. Nancy Shumate finds research profitable and time consuming.

F. G. Woodward, dean of faculty, assists student Sandra Sager about her undecided major.

As a regional state university, APSU provides instruction, undertakes research and engages in public services. However the primary task of the university is that of providing instruction through means of an educational program that includes not only liberal arts and sciences but also curricula in applied arts and sciences. Three degrees are offered on the undergraduate level: bachelor of science, bachelor of arts and bachelor of science in education.

The educational program of the university is fully accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. In addition, programs are accredited by the National Association of Schools of Music and by the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education.

Studying between classes, students take advantage of the quiet atmosphere of the modern library.

Instruction, research, public service comprise APSU

University farm complements classroom in agriculture

Offering a wide variety of curricula, the department of agriculture covers almost all phases of agriculture. Because agriculture is such a vital part of the country's economics, adequate study in the field is necessary. To this end the university owns a well-equipped and well-managed farm which complements classroom study. Moving into the Claxton Building in January, the department is enjoying the modern facility to enhance its courses of study. Among these are general agriculture, commercial ag and a two-year pre-professional program for the purpose of transferring to a vo-ag university. Primary areas of study are animal husbandry, agronomy, horticulture, ag engineering and economics.

Assistant Professor Frank D. Hinton discusses the latest agricultural methods with Chip Connell and Don McCaslin.

Mature corn kernels are shown to David Prather and Shelby Rye by James D. Hamilton, departmental chairman.

Freddie Parchman, Hamilton, Bill Wyatt and Edwin Long observe the result of food experimentation conducted at the university's spacious farm.

New building in store for enlarged art department staff

Shirley Brumley and Betty Stephens receive help from Lewis B. Burton, assistant professor of art.

Expansion could be the most overused term relating to APSU, but it also applies to the department of art. As soon as the necessary property is acquired, a $200,000 art building is planned to house the over-crowded department. In addition to the offices, classrooms and the Trahern Gallery located in the Clement Building, the department operates an Art Annex in a frame building on College Street.

Charles T. Young, chairman of the department, received his Ed.D. degree from Peabody, and enlarged the staff this year by adding instructors Roger T. Evans and T. Max Hochstetler.

Biology program nears completion of extended study

Preparing a coal ball for cutting is Floyd L. Brown, associate professor of biology.

Departmental chairman and Professor Haskell C. Phillips transfers bacteria culture for use in the classroom.

Displaying a timber rattler, common to one of his fields of specialization, herpetology, is David H. Snyder, associate professor.

Coordinator of the general biology program, Dr. Marvin M. Provo identifies the thyroid gland during a general biology laboratory.

Dr. E. Wayne Chester, assistant professor of biology, and Earl Schmittou, Jr., new instructor, scrutinize the imprint of a fern fossil.

After removing the samples of algae from the growth chambers, Billy Dean Cole, assistant professor, studies their growth.

Research, field trips and the addition of the master of science degree in biology highlighted the academic year for the department of biology.

One of the department's painstaking research efforts is expected to be completed on June 30, according to Dr. Haskell Phillips, departmental chairman. The three-year study on the growth rate of certain biota in the Land Between the Lakes area near Cadiz, Ky., will be culminated with the writing and production of various brochures.

Primarily interested in entomology and embryology, Dr. Floyd M. Ford, professor, observes a dinosaur footprint.

Marketing is the topic of discussion between Peter Condiles, assistant professor of business, and student Barbara Harris.

Newly acquired Mrs. Donna Swanson, instructor, and Frederick T. Bear review a practice set.

Senior accounting major Bobby Bumbalough registers for course taught by Denny D. Rotramel, associate professor.

Three additions to the department of business faculty helped to meet the demands placed upon the rapidly expanding department.

Allen S. Anderson, Miss Jane H. Patrick and Mrs. Donna Swanson joined the staff in September to back up an experienced staff, headed by Glenn S. Gentry, chairman.

Students and faculty members alike enjoyed the move into the modern Claxton Building at the beginning of the winter quarter. With up-to-date equipment the department can utilize modern methods in better preparing graduates for the business world.

Six undergraduate programs are offered giving variety for the aspiring student. Seminars continued to be a drawing card for the public.

Public seminars draw acclaim for business department

Glenn S. Gentry, professor and chairman of the department of business, has led the expansion of the department.

An inquiring student talks with Miss Jane Patrick, instructor, following class.

Glowing with pride concerning one of his students and his exam score is Allen S. Anderson, first-year instructor.

Demonstrating the calorimeter to Pat Roddy is Cheryl D. Jones, instructor in chemistry.

Aspiring chemists benefit from additional laboratories

Two new laboratories were added to the department of chemistry's facilities this year; one is available for use by freshmen and another for upperclassmen and faculty. The department is adding a 400-level inorganic course, and soon hopes to add an associate professor with a Ph.D. in chemistry. Miss Cheryl Jones joined the chemistry staff this academic year as an instructor. Application has been made for a $20,000 grant from the National Science Foundation, and Dr. Harry L. McLeod, professor and departmental chairman, has already received a grant from the NSF for study concerning aliphatic sulfonic acid esters.

Inquisitive students find assurance in the knowledge of Professor John B. Bond, who came to APSU in 1929 when the institution opened.

Posing in the new chemistry lab in the McCord Building is Dr. McLeod.

Education, psychology, library science find new home

Contemplating using the electric calculator is Dr. George E. Ackley, Jr., professor of psychology.

Closed circuit television will be the next addition to the $700,000 P. P. Claxton Building, which houses the department of education, psychology and library science. Careful planning by Dr. Harold S. Pryor, director of teacher education and chairman of the department, and others produced a functional facility which greatly aids the many areas of instruction in the department. A large lecture hall, 25 classrooms, audio-visual, psychology, statistics, cataloging and curriculum laboratories, plus a reading clinic make it one of the state's finest.

Research is a major facet of the department as evidenced by a National Defense Education Association grant and project REACHIGH.

Mrs. Elsie Oakley, assistant professor of education, uses the overhead projector for classroom study.

Serving in the dual role as chairman of the department of education, psychology and library science and director of teacher education keeps Dr. Harold S. Pryor busy.

Readying an up-to-date film for classes are Dr. Fred A. Bunger, professor of education, and Dr. Elizabeth Stokes, professor of psychology.

Dr. Ellis B. Burns, professor of education, examines an educational bulletin board with Dr. E. Bryan Crutcher, associate professor of education.

Counseling is given to a student at registration by Miss Hazel Griffin, assistant professor of library science.

Leaving the classroom following a lecture is Jerry R. Jones, assistant professor of education and psychology.

Dr. John D. Martin and Albert P. Balevre, associate professors of psychology, jointly answer Anita Woolsey's question.

Advanced degree planned for department of English

Pipe-smoking Hayden Jolly, Jr., associate professor, combines his talents in English and improving reading and study techniques for students.

Operating with the largest departmental faculty of the university, the English department is headed by Dr. Edward E. Irwin.

With the addition of Dr. Thomas L. Byrd, Miss Lynette Easley, Charles C. Holt and John Everett Turner, Jr., the staff now numbers 16. D. Richard Covington returned from a leave of absence with a Ph.D. from Vanderbilt University.

Freshman English courses, world literature requirements and the advanced individual study function to give the student maximum proficiency in reading, writing, speaking, appreciation and interpretation of English. Sponsor of The Tower, literary magazine, the department plans a M.A. in English for the 1968-69 year.

Adding some humor as a diversion from their varied schedules are Martin J. Jarsky, Dr. Thomas L. Byrd, John E. Turner, Jr., and Norman M. Dungan.

Lynette Easley, instructor, gives the department that certain touch as she cares for a plant in her office.

Student Judy Marshall appears dazed by a remark from Dr. D. Richard Covington, professor, as James H. Clemmer, Jr., assistant professor, awaits the reply.

Shakespearean admirer Dr. Joe A. Sutfin, professor, gazes at a novel with Charles M. Waters, associate professor and adviser to the literary magazine.

Economic theorist and an associate professor, D. R. Frazier counsels with junior Billy Bigger.

A recent doctoral graduate from Clemson University, Aaron A. Hutcheson joined the staff in the fall as an associate professor.

Weary from the hum-drum of classes, Roland L. East, associate professor of economics, looks for a moment of solitude in his office.

Actually a part of the department of business, economics plays a leading role in the university academic structure since a major is offered.

In our society today we are faced with many economic problems, and the study of economics acquaints the student with these problems and helps him give serious study toward the solving of them.

Dr. Aaron A. Hutcheson came to the department this year to join Roland L. East and D. R. Frazier.

A special senior seminar course is on the department's agenda. This involves critical examination of current economical literature, individual research and group discussion.

Senior seminar investigates intricate economic problems

Intently studying a contour map, Dr. Robert K. Wibking, professor and chairman of the department of geography and geology, keeps expanding the department.

Broadening the department in scope and size, Dr. R. K. Wibking, chairman of the department of geography and geology, brought three new faces to the campus this year.

Nicholas C. Crawford, Michael S. Jasieniecki and Byron J. Webb brought varied backgrounds to the department, which moved into the Ziegler Building in January.

A polar planimeter for measuring map areas was added to the already fine equipment owned by the department. Four choices are given to the student as he may select a major, minor, simple teaching major or the distributive teaching major. Twenty-nine quarter hours are available on the graduate level.

Geography gains staff newcomers, complex equipment

The globe, used by Instructor Byron J. Webb, is useful in almost any lecture.

Observing interesting features of fossils are Nicholas C. Crawford, instructor in geography, and Michael S. Jasieniecki, instructor in geology.

Former elementary school principal Whitnell O. McMahan, assistant professor, points out coast line of South America.

Anatomy and Kinesiology is the favorite teaching subject of David B. Aaron, professor of health and physical education and director of athletics.

William D. (Bill) Dupes, head football coach, views activity class in gymnasium.

Preparing study guides are Mrs. Dorothy Smith and Robert J. Baugh, assistant professors.

Additions planned for health and physical education

One of the leading health educators in the state and region, Dr. Loraine Stowe, professor, administers hearing test via the audiometer.

Acquisition of property adjacent to the university and nearest the health and physical education department enhances the reality of a new fieldhouse, additional tennis courts, another track, intramural facilities, playing fields and intercollegiate practice area.

Nearby Pettus Park will be deeded to the university on July 1 and the fairgrounds area has already been acquired.

David B. Aaron, departmental chairman and director of athletics, has promoted the establishment of a weight training and wrestling room in keeping with today's trend toward physical fitness.

In the women's area Mrs. Joan W. Phifer was added to the faculty in the fall, while Ray Thomas joined the football coaching staff.

Doubling as head baseball coach and associate professor of health and physical education, Leon M. Sandifer reviews grades before final posting.

Head basketball coach and associate professor of physical education, George D. Fisher knows the value of fitness from his pro baseball days.

Fred H. Overton, Jr., basketball assistant, and Max G. Mayes, assistant professor, take caution by moving the trampoline after class.

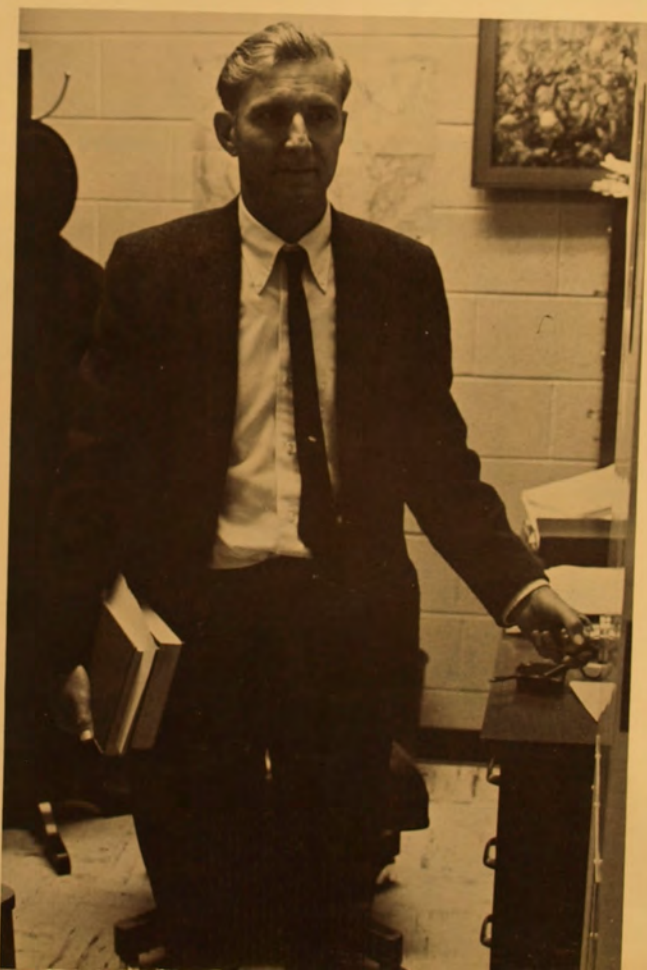

John H. Thweatt, instructor in history, shows Thomas P. Dixon, assistant professor, some of his works in American frontier history.

Writing a book on the Land Between the Lakes area, Dr. J. Milton Henry, professor, came to APSU in 1947.

Dr. Preston J. Hubbard, professor, is an authority on 20th century American history and TVA.

Filmstrips are emphasized in history by Dr. Wentworth Morris, professor and chairman of the history department.

Special interests of Dr. John A. Koumoulides, assistant professor, are ancient and European history.

Informal discussion of events, both past and present, highlight classroom activity in the history department. Offering an expanding field of study, students can receive a departmental major, minor or simple or distributive teaching major. The M.A. in history was added at the outset of the fall quarter to further show the department's strength.

Contributing to the effectiveness of this department was the return of Dr. John A. Koumoulides, who resumed his duties as assistant professor after further studies at Cambridge University in England.

A wide diversity of faculty specialization within the department contributes to the ever expanding number of courses presented.

History specializes and expands scope of courses

Junior history major Helen Riggins has exam question explained by Tillman D. Taylor, associate professor of history and political science.

Soft drink in hand, Instructor Betty Jo Wallace discusses methods of grading with Hugh Akerman, Jr., assistant professor.

Mrs. Doris Milton, associate professor and chairman of the home economics department, instructs Margaret Sullivan on the use of the loom.

Fabric selection for interior design is demonstrated by Dora Deane DePriest, assistant professor, to Harriette Huey and June Heneman.

Preparation by the department of home economics has given recent APSU graduates positions such as dietitians in hospitals, county lunchroom supervisors, teachers in nursery schools and high schools, home demonstration agents, county child welfare workers, social welfare workers and commercial demonstrators with equipment companies.

Mrs. Doris Milton, chairman of the department and adviser to APSU's home management house, recently announced the addition of several items of new equipment for the nursery school and the food lab. Coeds may choose from one of three curricula—general, non-vocational and vocational home economics. Courses may be selected from areas in clothing and textiles, marriage and family and related art.

Home economics majors prepare for interesting futures

Diverse offerings enhance industrial arts department

Presenting a variety of programs, APSU's industrial arts department has the reputation of being one of the best-equipped departments in the south.

Stephen A. Miller was added to the staff in the fall to replace Richard Gannaway, who is taking a leave of absence while working toward his doctorate at the University of Tennessee.

The variety of courses, according to Dr. Leon Bibb, departmental chairman, includes industrial crafts, mechanics, graphic arts, woods and construction, metals and general electricity.

A student may receive a major, minor or a distributive teaching major. Also, the department offers study in industrial preparation.

Cedric M. Henley, associate professor of industrial arts, assists Victor Clevenger, Kenneth Armstrong and Tommy Hunton in identifying motor components.

Jimmy Baker receives instruction in electronic circuits from John W. Porter, assistant professor.

Instructor Steve Miller directs Randy Brooks and Ed Maywald in drafting.

Art metal work is examined by Dr. Leon Bibb, professor and departmental chairman.

Post-class assistance is received by Richard Helms from George L. Brotherton, associate professor of mathematics.

Displaying a current notice, Dr. William G. Stokes, professor and chairman of the department, has been very successful in securing grants for institutes.

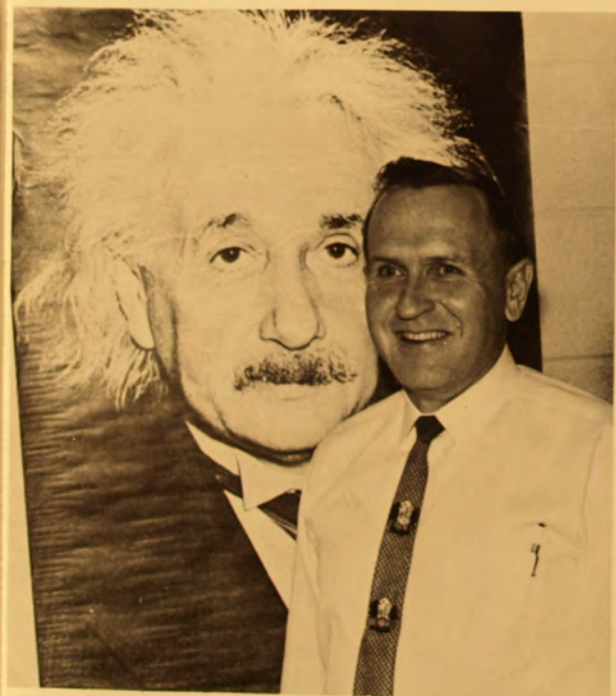

Dr. G. H. Lundberg, president-elect of the Tennessee Academy of Science, reviews some exam papers.

Continual activity by its faculty members in local, state, regional and national mathematics affairs makes the department of mathematics one of the most progressive departments on the campus.

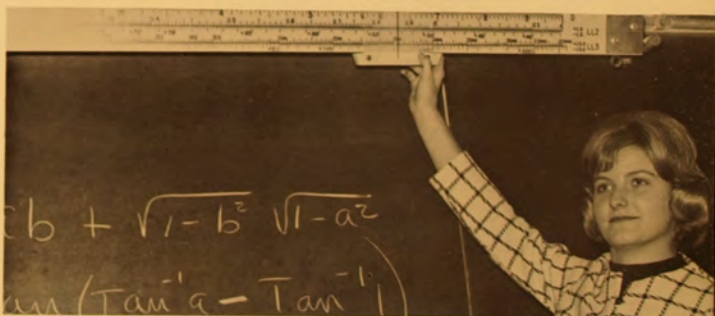

Dr. G. H. Lundberg, a new mathematics professor, was named president-elect of the Tennessee Academy of Science; Miss Shirley Summers, the other newest staff member, added youth to an experienced group. Past president of the Tennessee Mathematics Teacher Association, Dr. William G. Stokes, chairman, continues to receive annual grants from the National Science Foundation for various programs. An $11,025 grant for a Secondary Science Training program for the summer is the latest.

Mathematics staff active in class, extracurricular affairs

William A. Crabtree, associate professor, poses in front of the great genius, Einstein.

Shirley Summers, first-year instructor, stresses the value of the slide rule for use in solving mathematical equations.

Pausing from the task of paper grading is Neil Ross, instructor.

Dr. Thomas W. Cowan, departmental chairman and professor of music, heads the lecture series and community concerts, as well as playing double bass professionally for 18 years.

Analyzing a new composition are Peter F. Cook, assistant professor and Carnegie Hall pianist, and Will H. Hackman, associate professor.

Director of the University Orchestra, Dr. Solie I. Fott, professor, is an expert violinist.

Recognized authority on marching bands, Dr. Aaron Schmidt, professor, conducts the Symphony Band.

One of the most important functions of the department of music is keeping the student body and general public informed on the world around them and providing a cultural climate.

Directed by Dr. Tom W. Cowan, the music department attempts to fulfill this function through its many courses and special performing groups.

Performing groups include the University Choir, Chamber Choir, Madrigal Singers, Concert Band, Symphony Band, Brass Choir, Clarinet Choir, Collegians, Orchestra and the Marching Band and Governettes. T. Herman Keahey, associate professor, and Instructors John D. Larkin and Peter H. Salter were added to the music faculty in September.

A Yale graduate, T. Herman Keahey, an associate professor, monitors a music theory examination.

Director of the University Choir, Dr. Lawrence G. Rickert, associate professor, listens to a tape recorded by one of his private students.

Pianist Virginia Lovett, instructor, accompanies newcomer John Larkin, instructor, on the trumpet.

Instructor Peter H. Salter, who directs the Concert Band, weighs a question during rehearsal.

Recorder-listening booths boost modern languages

Dr. Joseph V. Thomas, professor of German and chairman of the department of modern languages, aids Pam Masters in the laboratory.

Thirty-six separate recorder-listening booths replaced the inadequate facilities in the department of modern languages, according to Dr. Joseph V. Thomas, chairman. A departmental and teaching major is offered in French, while a minor may be obtained in German.

Purposes of the curriculum include: to prepare highly competent elementary and secondary teachers; to qualify students for positions with the United States government and its agencies as well as for positions in private industry; to increase students' academic preparation for acceptance in graduate programs; and to afford a broader appreciation of language, literature and civilization.

An associate professor of French, John W. Welker, founder of the Clarksville Community Ambassador Association, reveals a poster on folk dancing in the Pyrenees Mountains.

Utilizing lab equipment in their study of the French language are two majors.

In its second year of existence the philosophy department has a new chairman. Dr. Floyd D. Crenshaw, previously head of the department of philosophy at Parsons College, replaced Donald M. Mikula. No major is offered presently, but a student may pursue a minor by successfully completing 27 hours. Encouraging the development of a strong, intellectual curiosity and the ability to critically evaluate ideas is the goal of the department. The student may partake of such primary courses as introduction, logic and ethics and follow these with such upper division courses as the philosophies of science, religion and history.

Dr. Floyd D. Crenshaw, professor and chairman of the department of philosophy, accepts another student at registration.

The importance of philosophical reasoning in today's world is explained by Dr. Crenshaw.

Lecturing to a modern European Philosophy class, Crenshaw came to APSU in the fall of 1967.

Philosophy encourages curiosity and critical evaluation

Physics program for teachers planned for curriculum

Professor M. R. Mayfield, chairman of the department of physics, instructs Cleo Hogan in the use of the malmstadt instrumentation lab.

Designed for those students who want to teach physics in high school, a new curriculum will soon become part of the offerings of the department of physics. It may be entitled "Physics: The Program for Teachers." Graduate study and/or industrial research have been two definite goals of the physics majors at APSU for a number of years.

Staff members Melburn R. Mayfield, chairman; Miss Sara Wood and Leslie M. Ogilvie are engaged in various research projects, some of which are sponsored by funds derived from the Tower Club, a group of interested local businessmen. Mayfield also received a grant from the National Science Foundation.

Prior to a laboratory session, Leslie M. Ogilvie, assistant professor, tests the microwave apparatus.

Demonstrating the laser in conjunction with a class lecture is Sara Wood, associate professor.

Newest major on the campus is in the department of political science. Chaired by Dr. Edwin L. Cobb, the department secured Vernon C. Warren, Jr., who received his Ph.D. from the University of Kentucky, this academic year. Plans call for the addition of a third member by the fall quarter.

Emphasizing research, the department encourages interested students to pursue additional studies in preparation for vocations in public administration, political science, law and international relations.

Stressing concepts, processes and institutions of government, comparisons are made to contemporary government. Plans are underway for a major in international relations within the department.

Collecting his mail from the faculty postal boxes is Dr. Edwin L. Cobb, associate professor and chairman of the political science department.

Additional staff planned for political science department

Making new materials available for student enlightenment is Dr. Vernon C. Warren, Jr., assistant professor.

Dr. Cobb centers one of his lectures around the Greek political theory.

Basic aims of the sociology department are to assist the student in gaining a better understanding of himself and his relations with others in his society. APSU sociology courses introduce the student to the field of sociology, its origins, development, concepts and applies these concepts and tools to analyze modern society. Although no major is offered, endorsement to teach sociology in high school is gained by the successful completion of 18 quarter hours, including the introductory sequence.

Added to the faculty this year was Mrs. Mary Keller Cox, a graduate of Southern Illinois University, who earned her M.A. at the University of Chicago.

Dr. L. Paul Hyatt, professor of sociology and history, conducts a lively discussion in Urban Sociology.

Susan Sleigh gets interpretation of a sociological concept from Dr. Meyer N. Zald, visiting professor from Vanderbilt University.

A first-year instructor, Mary Cox evaluates student reading reports.

Sociology aims at better understanding of environment

New theatre, classrooms in store for speech department

Dr. David D. Mays, associate professor of speech and departmental chairman, finds a small replica of Pollock's Theatre quit intriguing.

Planned renovation of the vacated student center into a modern fully equipped 150-seat theatre and classroom facility will enhance the activities and expansion of the speech and theatre department, according to Dr. David D. Mays, chairman.

Miss Linda G. Jackson was added to the staff in September for the purpose of teaching certain classes and organizing a debate squad.

The AP Playhouse, sponsored by the department, presents several productions each year; these encompass different periods and types of drama.

Course offerings include public speaking, drama, stagecraft, debate, rhetoric, phonetics, playwriting and directing.

"Alice in Wonderland" costume designs are presented to Cathy Della-Giustina, senior major, by John G. Griffin, assistant professor.

Members of the AP Playhouse portray a scene from the fall production of "The Crucible."

A new addition to the staff, Instructor Linda Jackson checks the class roll.

Elinor McMahan waits for Will Rebentisch to check last-minute details before changing shifts at the reference librarian's desk.

Opening of the $1.4 million library in 1967 has added to the duties of Johnnie Givens, head librarian.

Filing book cards is one of the responsibilities of Rachel Chambers, assistant professor and cataloger.

Academic center of the university, the $1.4 million library has holdings of 76,815 bound volumes, 3,571 spools of microfilm and serials and periodicals numbering 1,991. Directed by Miss Johnnie E. Givens, the library provides a relaxing study atmosphere. Students have access to various newspapers, magazines, volumes, modern photocopying, microfilm and listening facilities. Availability of typing booths, group study rooms, 13 faculty study rooms and other features make the library one of the most envied in the state. With a seating capacity of 700 the center becomes more than a refuge for student studiers. It provides the necessary material for day-to-day classes and term paper research as well.

Acquisitions librarian and associate professor, Janie Gentry makes available to students all new books received by the library.

Listing new books for the card catalog is part of Mary Bowman's duties as instructor and assistant cataloger.

Modern library provides relaxing study atmosphere

Fulbright winner Ramona Lumpkin gets Drane Award

Voted by the faculty as the most outstanding member of the graduating class, Miss Ramona Lumpkin was the 1967 recipient of the William McClure Drane Award. The English and psychology major from Oak Grove, Ky., was selected on the basis of scholarship, leadership and service to the university. Miss Lumpkin became the first APSU graduate in history to receive a Fulbright scholarship, and she is presently studying at the University of Birmingham in England.

Symbolizing academic scholarship and achievement, the Laurel Wreath Society is comprised of scholars who have maintained a minimum 3.65 grade-point average for three consecutive quarters and continued above this standard after initiation.

Twenty-one current students have earned the small gold wreath, which is the official symbol of the society, and they meet periodically to discuss issues of the day. William (Bill) Titus served as president of the organization for the second consecutive year.

Being nominated for inclusion in the 1968 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges" is an honor which is held by only 28 members of this year's graduating class. They were ranked highest by the faculty on traits such as cooperation, zeal, industry and reliability. Primary eligibility requirement, however, is to have a 3.0 scholastic average. Other qualifications include specific activities in recognized campus organizations which add to their personal improvement.

ATHLETICS

Athletics have universal appeal at APSU. From the level of varsity athletics and intercollegiate competition to various intramural and individual activities, the university emphasizes physical development in addition to academic excellence. An upstanding member in the Ohio Valley Conference and the NCAA, the Governors compete in seven sports: football, cross-country, basketball, baseball, golf, track and tennis. Intercollegiate activity, however, comprises only a small portion of the physical education each student receives. All students are required to take two years of activity courses, and many participate in intramural sports such as basketball, volleyball or swimming. Coupled together, all provide a universal aspect for athletics at APSU.

Nineteen hundred and sixty-seven would have to be considered a rebuilding year for the APSU football annals. Although losing only seven lettermen from the 1966 contingent this year's edition of the Governors was plagued by inexperience.

Although the footballers recorded a saddening 2-8 record after winning 22 contests in the three previous seasons, the Gobs did rewrite several records. Since Bill Dupes has taken the helm as head coach the Gobs have smashed 99 records and tied 10 others.

Six individuals had a hand in the record-setting performances. Senior Carl Williams established a new mark for yards gained by passing in a career with 1548.

Other records included: Most career pass interceptions—10 by Howell Flatt; passes caught (season)—56 by Harold Roberts; reception yardage (season)—666 by Roberts; TD passes caught (season)—11 by Roberts; individual tackles (season)—112 by Philip Farinella.

Single game records include: TD passes caught—four by Roberts; most punts—10 by Jimmy Hardie; most TDs—four by Roberts; most points scored—24 by Roberts; rushing and passing plays—46 by Dennis Dyer.

Team single season marks were set for pass completions (85), kickoffs returned (50), penalties against (64), yards penalized (671) and fumbles (35).

Head coach Bill Dupes assumes an exasperated expression which was to become very prevalent throughout a very frustrating season.

APSU opened the 1967 season against the same school they had played the final contest of the 1966 season. The University of Chattanooga capitalized on experience and the Govs' inexperience to capture the pigskin opener 23-8.

The scarlet and white had several opportunities to gain an edge as the Moccasins fumbled five times and were caught for a safety early in the game.

Ronnie Hackney, in his first varsity start, was outstanding as he garnered 95 yards in 18 attempts rushing.

Hilltopper runners garnered 399 yards over the turf. APSU was almost out of it from the start as Moore shook loose and ran for two touchdowns from 36 and 80 yards. Stellar freshman Harold (Red) Roberts emerged as a potential star as he hauled in four aerials for 49 yards. Sophomore Ronnie Hackney continued his rushing pace with 116 yards in 26 totes of the pigskin.

The Governors traveled to Eastern Kentucky for the third tilt of the season. The Colonels were forced to play without the services of six regulars, including Jim Guice, one of the best quarterbacks in the Ohio Valley Conference.

APSU received the opening kickoff, could not make a first down and was forced to punt. Then the fireworks began as Aaron Marsh returned the punt 66 yards for a touchdown.

Eight plays later EKV had a 17-0 lead and were winging their way to victory and the OVC championship.

The Govs' Jimmy Hardie was in punt formation and kicked to Tommie Gray. Gray went 98 yards for an apparent 6-0 lead. However, MSU was guilty of holding and APSU had another chance.

Six plays later Carl Williams went 10 yards for APSU's TD. A 22-yard third quarter field goal provided the winning margin for the Govs.

The APSU-Middle Tennessee tradition of the visitor winning on the host's field was continued for the fourth consecutive year as the Blue Raiders came from a first half 14-13 deficit to defeat the scarlet and white 34-20.

The Dupesmen had overcome a 13-0 first quarter Blue Raider lead to gain a one-point advantage at the half. A variation in kickoff returns proved to be APSU's undoing as MTSU opened the second half with a 48-yard kickoff return.

It took the Blue Raiders eight plays to score and go ahead 20-14. Minutes later MTSU went 58 yards in one play to put the game out of reach at 27-14.

For the Gobs, Philip Farinella was outstanding defensively with 11 tackles, six assists and one fumble recovery.

APSU traveled to Ashland, Ky., for a Shrine Bowl encounter with the Findlay College Oilers of Ohio. "We eliminated those terrible mistakes that have cost us ball games all year." Thus Bill Dupes explained the Gobs' smashing win over Murray State's Racers.

Playing against one of the best passing attacks in the nation, APSU played their best defense of the season and also had their best offensive showing.

Although Murray garnered 297 yards total offense, the Racers could muster only 14 yards on the ground. Meanwhile, APSU was picking up 327 yards with its ground force and 129 more through the air.

Red Roberts was superb as he caught a record four TD passes. Flip Farinella paced the defense with eight tackles and five assists.

Golden Eagles "outplay, whip" Governors 38-13

APSU had a complete reversal of form from the Murray contest when the Govs visited Tennessee Tech. Although leading 13-12 at the half, the Dupesmen simply were not in the ball game as the Golden Eagles accepted a couple of free touchdowns on their way to 38-13 pasting of APSU.

"Tech just outplayed us and whipped us in all departments in the second half," exclaimed a disgusted Bill Dupes after the game.

Freshman All-OVC end Harold (Red) Roberts continued his record-setting pace by snatching passes good for 105 yards to be the bright spot offensively for the Govs. Philip Farinella also continued his usual superb play with 12 tackles and eight assists.

Bucs spoil homecoming 37-0

Continuing their downward slide into the doldrums of defeat, APSU succumbed to East Tennessee at homecoming by a 37-0 count. The loss marked the first defeat in four years at the hands of the Buccaneers.

The Govs were doomed from the start as they fell into a punt situation early in the first quarter. The center pass sailed into the end zone and APSU was two points down.

Before five minutes of the game had passed the East Tennesseans were ahead 9-0. However, the Govs settled down and held ETSU scoreless the remainder of the half.

It appeared that APSU might come back until a bad break on a punt return gave the Bucs the ball and eventually the game.

End Red Roberts (84) sets sail as the Vols try to penetrate the Governor protection.

APSU entertained UT Martin, bound for the Tangerine Bowl in Florida, in the season finale on Thanksgiving Day. The Baby Vols were simply too much for the injury-riddled, luckless Govs.

APSU played the Vols on even terms for the first quarter and it even looked as though the scarlet and white would stay with UTM. However, lightning struck and Martin's Larry Shanks went 72 yards for a touchdown after apparently being stopped at the line.

Martin proceeded to score 12, seven and 21 points in the next three quarters to avenge a 49-0 blasting by APSU in 1965.

APSU managed only 170 yards total offense as compared to Martin's 464.

Nevertheless, Red Roberts broke a season record for pass receptions and touchdown passes by hauling in nine aerials for 74 yards and one score.

The trouncing by the Baby Vols was the worst defeat a Dupes-coached team has suffered; it left the Govs tied for seventh place in the Ohio Valley Conference standings with a 2-5-0 league mark.

Young APSU roundballers suffer loss skeins in 8-16 season

Cagers capture 3 after initial loss

APSU opened the 1967-68 basketball season on a losing note, falling to Murray 77-68 in the opening round of the OVC tournament. Howard Wright established himself as a man with a future as he drove and hit long jump shots for 18 points.

In their next outing the Gogs gained composure by swamping Bethel by nine markers. Charlie Moore (21) and Holly Heaberlin (15) led APSU as 11 men scored.

UT Martin also succumbed to the youthful cagers by a 76-70 count. Wright bombed the nets for 26 markers and the Gogs never looked back.

Captain Barry Rollins hurt the Vols with his 19 points. Oddly enough, UTM outshot APSU from the field, hitting 52.7 per cent to the Gogs' 45.7. Wright (18) and Heaberlin (20) led five scorers in double figures in the 20-point win over Bellarmine. Rollins (15), Terry Young (12) and Moore (11) all tallied double figures in the Red Barn.

Bob Burnett taps a rebound as Joe Waller (44) and a host of UTM opponents watch the followup.

Barry Rollins pulls his "Quick-Draw McGraw" shot against the Volunteers of UTM.

The Governors take a break and soak up a few words of advice from head coach George Fisher.

A three-game swing into Texas highlighted play for APSU during the Christmas break. Carrying a 3-1 record into the encounter with nationally ranked Trinity University, the Govs fell behind by 21 at halftime and fared no better the second half. Cold shooting hurt the Governors as the cagers could manage only 35.0 per cent from the field and 53.3 from the foul line. Trinity countered with a hot 51.3 field percentage. Howard Wright led APSU with 16 and Barry Rollins added 12.

Wright, Rollins and Charlie Moore led APSU to their only Texas win by tallying 20, 24 and 19 points respectively against Lamar Tech. Hot shooting (56.1 per cent) also proved instrumental in the 95-81 victory.

A terrifying cold streak was too much for the Govs to overcome in spite of a valiant comeback against Pan American. APSU overcame deficits of 25 points to close the final margin to eight points. Pan American, also nationally ranked, outshot the Govs from the field by sinking 45.3 per cent of their field attempts. Returning home, APSU opened the 1968 portion of the season losing to Eastern Kentucky 88-83 Wright, who had tallied 23 points against Pan American, bucketed 30 against EKU.

Charlie Moore grabs a rebound and starts his drive toward the bucket around Bellarmine's Mike Clark (12).

Holly Heaberlin, who missed the last portion of the season because of illness, is tied up by Murray's Don Funneman.

APSU has 2-game win streak

APSU had its longest win streak of the second half of the season during the middle weeks of January. Losses to Morehead State and East Tennessee ended a four-game loss skein.

Although the Govs could not defeat league powers MSU and ETSU, Howard Wright continued his fantastic surge with 30 points each against both teams. Counting the earlier EKV game Wright had scored 30 points in three straight tilts.

Better days were ahead as APSU reeled off two straight triumphs and their first OVC win by clipping Tennessee Tech 72-68 and UT Martin 68-64.

In both contests Wright continued to hold the hot hand as he canned 23 points against the Eagles and 26 against UTM.

Joe Waller buckets two points despite the blocking hands of MSU's Billy Chumbler (23).

Terry Young works to steal the ball in APSU's overtime win against Transylvania.

MTSU coach Ken Trickey appears upset on the bench as Blue Raider guard Tommy Brown cannot get rid of the ball because of close guarding by Howard Wright and Don West.

Transylvania falls victim to Govs 80-74 in overtime

Murray State invaded the Red Barn and upset APSU's two-game winning streak by capturing a nine-point win 91-82. APSU could hit only 37.8 per cent from the field while the Racers were tallying a hot 48.6 percentage.

Murray had five men in double figures;

Charlie Moore's 16 markers paced the Govs.

The cold wave continued against Transylvania; APSU hit only one out of every three field shots. Still the scarlet and white, primarily on the strength of Joe Waller's record-tying 27 rebounds and team-leading 23 points, caught Transy in the late stages and won the contest in overtime.

The Govs next played host to Middle Tennessee and lost by five points. MTSU received credit for a basket which was not scored, a technical foul shot on the ensuing dispute, and two points for the prettiest illegal dunk shot of the year.

The team shot only 31 per cent against the Blue Raiders, and Howard Wright was held to two points.

Against Western Kentucky a cold spell midway through the first half spelled doom for the Govs. Waller was the leading scorer with 16, while Barry Rollins and Bob Burnett each added 10.

Govs handed 4 losses on road

Terry (Ripper) Young takes a breather during APSU's game at Eastern Kentucky.

Howard Wright shoots his classic jump shot while Greg Smith of Western Kentucky guards him.

APSU's "tall" lineup of Joe Waller (45), Terry Young (55) and Bob Burnett (51) proved beneficial in the rebounding department against ECU at Richmond.

Leaving Clarksville, APSU began a four-game road trip at Murray State. However, the Racers outscored the Govs 21-0 in a seven-minute span to put the contest out of reach.

APSU did not help their own cause by missing seven straight foul shots while in the bonus situation. Howard Wright bucketed 26 points to lead all scorers.

Two days later the Govs fell to Bellarmine 97-69, a team which they had beaten early in the season by 20 points. The Knights jumped out to an early lead and were never headed as APSU simply could not jell. Bellarmine held a tremendous edge in rebounding and outplayed the sophomore-studded Govs in all other phases of the game. Wright (22) and Joe Waller (14) were high scorers for APSU. From his guard position, Wright also pulled in 16 errant shots. The Govs then traveled into "death valley" in eastern Kentucky and fell victim to ECU and Morehead.

Wright connected for 53 points in the two contests and Bob Burnett hit for 30 but APSU still could not record their second league win.

"Is that so?" George Fisher has a word with official Charles Gardner after a disputed call.

Ketchel Strauss of Tennessee Tech comes down with a rebound between the Gobs' Bob Burnett and Terry Young.

Wright acclaimed by league coaches, tabbed All-OVC

The squad returned home to Memorial Gymnasium, hoping to break a six-game losing skein at the expense of Tennessee Tech.

The Gobs' top effort of the year resulted in an impressive 73-61 defeat of the Eagles and also ended the record-breaking home-losing streak at five games.

However, it was back to second place in the scoring race as APSU succumbed successively to OVC champion East Tennessee, Middle Tennessee and Western Kentucky.

The Gobs were led by sophs Joe Waller and Terry Young in the final contests of the disheartening season.

Super-soph Howard Wright, though hampered by double and triple teaming much of the season, still maintained a hefty 18.9 scoring average, good for third in the loop.

Wright was honored by the OVC coaches as they selected him to the all-league team. Not only was he the only soph, he was also APSU's second selection to make the twinkle team in history.

Diamond nine has trouble at plate, struggles through 5-13 worksheet

Difficulty in getting away from the plate and back to it proved to be the undoing of APSU's baseball Governors in 1967 as the diamond nine could manage only five wins in 18 outings.

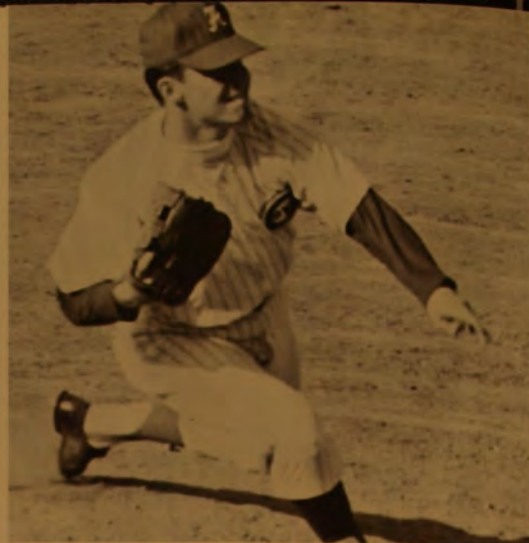

For the second straight year coach Leon Sandifer, dean of APSU coaches in his 16th year, saw the weather play havoc with his team's schedule.

The Govs could never really get rolling and suffered an eight-game losing skein during midseason. Lack of offensive power hurt considerably as APSU could muster only 60 runs to the opposition's 125.

Furthermore, the APSU swatmark stood at a paltry .216, as compared to 18 opponents average of .279. Although placing fourth in the OVC's Western Division with a 3-9 slate, APSU still won enough to place Sandifer's 16-year record at 120-120. Centerfielder Phillip Sleigh paced his mates as he was named to the All-OVC Western Division team. Sleigh topped the squad in six offensive departments as he slugged three home runs and drove in 15 teammates.

Sleigh also led the team in times at bat (63), hits (20), total bases (33) and batting average (.317). The sophomore was tied with three others in most games played (18).

In spite of compiling only a .200 mark at the plate, third-sacker John Bratcher carried a big bat as he plated nine mates with five extra-base hits.

1967 GOVERNORS—FRONT ROW: Bill Lemons, Lynn Toombs, Bill Estep, Shelby Rye, Jim Marable, Phillip Sleigh. SECOND ROW: Bill Wilhoite, Vic Lombardo, Chip Pearson, Mike Schreck-

er, Rudy Sleigh, Dave Small. BACK ROW: Holly Heaberlin, John Bratcher, Dwight Smith, Eddie Harrison, Sam Cardwell, Terry Crow, Joey Watts.

Diving back to first in an attempted pick-off play is third-baseman Vic Lombardo.

Coach Leon (Sandy) Sandifer has a mound conference with Terry Crow, Dwight Smith and Sam Cardwell in an attempt to save a game.

Freshman Chip Pearson, the smallest player on the team, led the squad in runs scored with nine and maintained a .259 average, the best among regulars except for Sleight.

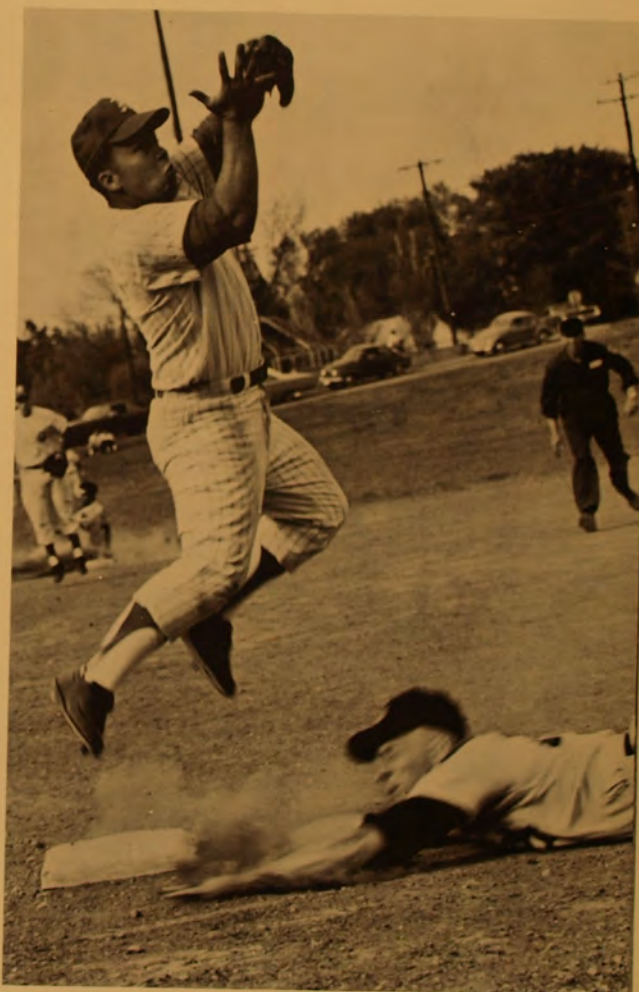

Other leading batsmen included stellar defensive catcher Dwight Smith (.240), outfielder Dave Small (.231) and infielders Mike Schrecker (.213) and Eddie Harrison (.194).

Among the mound corps, Joey Watts had the best record with three wins and four losses. The tall portsider recorded more than one strikeout per inning for the season.

Veteran Bill Wilhoite, though compiling a lowly 1-5 record, maintained the best earned-run average, giving up 4.39 earned tallies per contest.

Bill Estep, two-year letterman, came closest to a winning mark as he captured one of two decisions.

Over-all, pitching, like hitting, was down from the previous year. Teamwise, the Gobs could manage only a 5.64 ERA. This compared with the opponents respectable 3.37. In addition, APSU's mound staff pitched only four complete games as compared to the opponents' dozen.

Vic (Spanky) Lombardo leaps high but is unable to grab an errant peg and the runner is safe.

Linksmen capture 8th place in NCAA after 11-3-2 season

1967 GOVERNORS — Alan Bannister, Danny Daniel, Jimmy Smith, Tim Tague, Larry Hughes, John Sneed, Charles Horrell, Randy Feather, Fred Pitts.

Under the tutelage of youthful coach Sherwin Clift, the 1967 edition of the APSU linksmen recorded the best seasonal mark since 1950 with an 11-3-2 slate. Although experiencing difficulties in the OVC tournament for the fifth time in six years, the golfers recovered to capture eighth place among the NCAA College Division teams at Paducah, Ky.

Junior Jimmy Smith, a smooth swinger from Nashville, paced the squad as he captured 18th in the nation in the NCAA. The lithe MVP also placed fourth in the Tennessee Intercollegiate, a tournament he won as a sophomore in 1966.

Smith, who starred at Isaac Litton High, set the pace for APSU with an average of 75 strokes per round for the season. In match play he garnered 33 of a possible 48 points as he compiled an 11-5 record.

Fred Pitts and Danny Daniel, with 10-3-3 and 10-2-3 records respectively, also were outstanding for APSU.

The two sophomores tied for 12th in the TIC and finished right behind Smith in season scoring averages. Pitts averaged 76.3 strokes per round and Daniel 76.5.

Tim Tague (10-4-1) collected 30 of a possible 45 points.

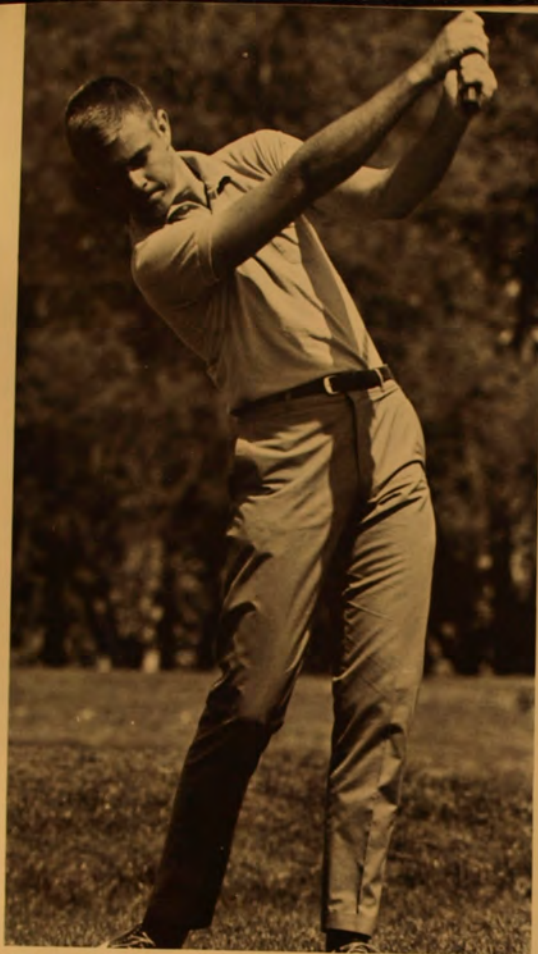

Al Bannister, while shaping an 8-4 record, was the best finisher in the Governors' poor showing in the Murray Invitational.

Freshman Randy Feather, after a brilliant start, won eight of 15 matches and gained 26½ of 45 possible points. Feather also placed fifth among APSU golfers with an average of 77.6 strokes per outing.

Clift's teams have now won 59, lost 30 and tied four since the 1961 season, plus defeating 69 different schools in matches and tournaments.

Freshman Charles Horrell exhibits perfect form on a practice drive.

Relying on three lettermen and three untested freshmen, the 1967 APSU tennis squad posted the best record in school history as the team recorded eight wins and four losses.

Bill Lefko, one of five Floridians on the squad, paced his mates as he became the net team's most valuable with a singles record of 13-4 and a doubles mark of 9-6 in coordination with Jim Lucas.

Lucas, along with Jon Kessell and Ronnie Rice, the only veterans on the team, posted 10 wins against six defeats in singles competition. Mike Marshall and Ed Maywald set the best standard in doubles as they teamed for an 11-5 match record.

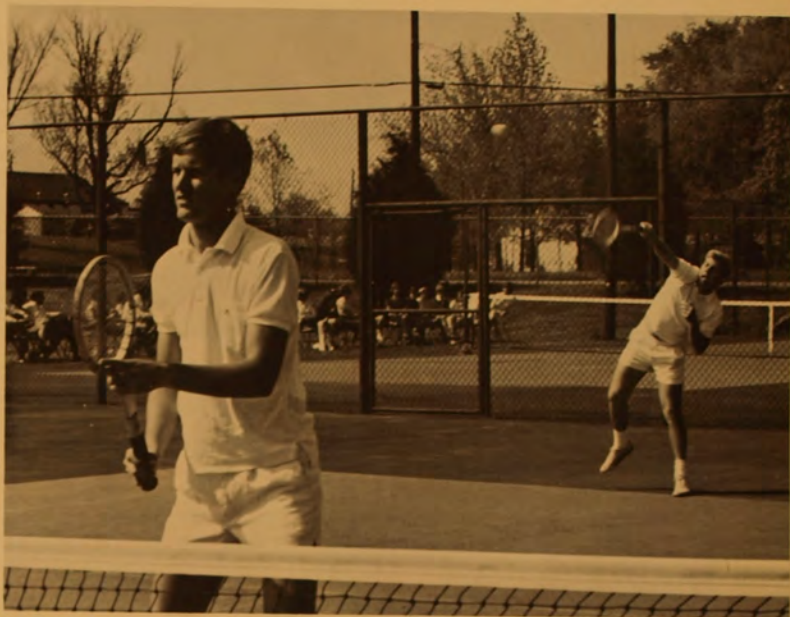

Although the club's four losses came against league foes, the Governors were able to continue their domination of Tennessee Tech, as they mastered the Golden Eagles twice.

Jon Kessell, who compiled an 8-7 record in singles matches, serves to an opponent.

Broad jumper Billy Wendell comes to a sudden halt in a meet held at Ft. Campbell.

Veteran runner Chuck Babcock heads the field at the end of one lap during the OVC meet.

Scoring 88½ points, freshman and MVP Alvin Hicks paced the 1967 cindermen to a record of four wins in seven outings, marking only the second time APSU has posted a winning record in track.

Jeff Fisher, who garnered 88 points in field events, and Terry Schultz, who scored 78 while competing in five events, aided Hicks in leading the Governors.

Hicks established a new school mark in the pole vault with a vault of 14-3. Fisher set new standards in the discus (139-2½) and shot put (51-9¾).

Other Gov record setters included Ronnie Bell in the 440-yard dash (49.1), Schultz in the 440-intermediate hurdles (58.0) and Ron Morton in the three-mile run (15:07.3).

In the broad jump Dickie Sapp set a new standard (22-9) as did Billy Wendell in the triple jump (44-2).

Coached by Max Mayes, the thinclads won three meets in a row early in the season before losing three consecutively. The Govs finished the season on a winning note by defeating Fort Campbell 82-71.

In invitational meets, the Govs did not fare as well as the best they could do was finish seventh in a 12-team field in the Fort Campbell Invitational.

Upperclassmen slip by underclassmen; basketball crowns

APSU offers a diversified program to students interested in intramural sports. In some activities, such as basketball, volleyball or football there is organized competition, sometimes for males only (football), at times for both sexes (basketball) and sometimes for mixed groups (volleyball).

In addition to the regular "seasons" and tournaments for these events there are also activities of a more individual nature available to the APSU student. Swimming facilities are available weekly as are tennis courts and gym facilities.

Although basketball is the top drawing card for intramural contestants, football is staged earliest. The annual game between the upper classes and lower classes, which evolved out of a fund-raising project in 1965, saw the upperclassmen slip by the underclassmen in a tight contest 8-0.

Former footballer Paul von Wiegandt scored the only touchdown in the contest which saw the game changed to a touch contest from former injury-riddled tackling tilts.

The upperclassmen huddle around Tom Lovett (kneeling) and plan their strategy which resulted in an 8-0 win.

to Drop Outs and Eligible 8

Basketball intramurals saw a total of 34 teams in the men's division and six in the women's division competing for the coveted crowns.

The six sextets were involved in a double elimination playoff.

The Eligible 8 and the Rejects were pitted in the finals. Riding on the 25-point outburst of Janice Beene, the Eligible 8 nosed out the Rejects by a 36-29 count.

With guards Faye Wallace, Betsy Heflin and Marcia Tippit holding the challenging Rejects at bay, the Eligible 8 rolled to their fourth crown in as many years.

In men's action, competition was heated as two teams from each of five leagues advanced to the tournament. In the finals the tall Drop Outs met a shorter Bulldog squad and pulled away with the crown by a six-point margin, 64-58.

The Drop Outs won three games on successive evenings to capture the championship; Bob Williams led the winners with 22.

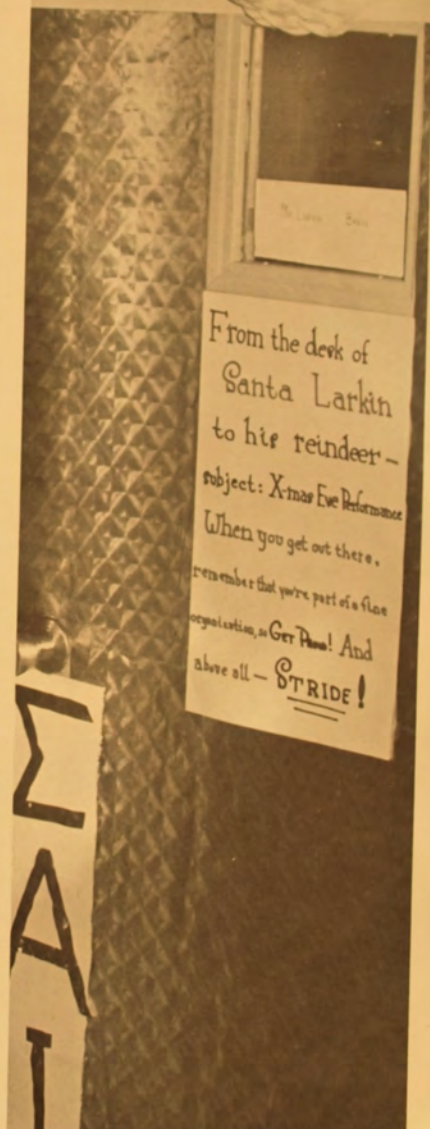

Sherry Chandler makes a successful attempt at blocking opponents' shot during a moment of heated action.

Action gets underway in men's intramurals as Jim Wade (54) and Roddy Lynch (13) oppose each other in the opening tip.

ORGANIZATIONS

Various organizations provide the necessary ground for expanding one's university career. Being a member of one of the university's clubs brings responsibility and rewards alike. The student has the opportunity to belong to professional and honor societies, departmental clubs, religious groups, specialized organizations and sororities. These clubs offer its members favorable circumstances for unfolding their leadership abilities and provide opportune moments for expressing personal opinions. The organizational part of campus life consists not only of attending meetings, for it also produces a feeling of security and accomplishment within the individual. All of the campus organizations work together to present to the community a favorable and impressive view of the university.

Dedicated to produce a photojournalistic report of the year's activities of which everyone at APSU can be proud, the editors of the 1968 FAREWELL & HAIL chose "The Year of the U" as the theme of the 304-page, 23rd volume. Concerned with new ideas and planning the spring of 1967, the editor-in-chief's summer hours were partially devoted to layout. Photo-taking, cropping, writing and editing occupied the staff during the fall and winter quarters; reading proofs and distribution were spring quarter activities. Characterizing this edition of the yearbook is additional use of four-color photography, extreme verticals and duotones on the division pages, activity photos in organizations section as opposed to standard group pix and directories for seniors, faculty members and administrative officers. The 23rd volume is the largest yearbook produced in APSU's history. Miss Carole Ann Sisco, sophomore from Hohenwald, directed the staff as editor-in-chief.

Staff masters deadline pressures in producing yearbook

One of the youngest staffs, by classification, produced the 1968 FAREWELL & HAIL. A breakdown of the 18 devoted students shows nine freshmen, five sophomores and four juniors. Most, however, were editor or co-editor of their high school annual. Junior Fred Landiss, Cumberland City, served as associate editor, while freshman Stephanie Fisher, Clarksville, filled the other top position as advertising manager.

Necessary guidance for the publication was provided by Sherwin Clift, adviser and director of public information;

Gerald L. Tenney, director of photographic services, provided the photographic assistance.

Constant day and night effort to produce a quality yearbook under deadline pressure was the price paid by the staff. Hours became longer as the amount of work increased. During the late winter deadline rush, the editors assumed added responsibility to see that sections were completed on or near the deadline schedule.

But the days passed, and the FAREWELL & HAIL took its present form—a year of life at APSU.

A literary review, The Tower provides an outlet for student creativeness in the areas of poetry, short stories, essays and art. The annual anthology also accepts original works of the faculty in the four areas to be considered for publication.

Prizes are awarded in four categories for the spring publication—poetry, essay, short story and cover design. Again this year, art work was accepted on an equal basis with literary work. James Ezell, a senior from Hopkinsville, Ky., served as editor-in-chief of The Tower, which is sponsored by the department of English. Charles M. Waters, associate professor of English, was adviser.

Campus weekly meets challenge, captures highest rating

DAVID BIBB
Editor-in-Chief

Challenged by the fact that The All State received an All-American honor rating for the 1966-67 second semester, newspaper staff holdovers set their sights on being a journalistic pacemaker in 1967-68. They were rewarded for their efforts by receiving an A-plus rating for fall-winter issues.

Published weekly, The All State reports and interprets the events and issues within the campus community and academic world. A newspaper that has grown in stature and in contributions with the expanding institution which it serves, The All State was edited by sophomore David Bibb.

Other editorial positions were staffed by Ron Popp, associate editor; Buster Yates, editorial page editor; Maurice Mehigan, sports editor; and Terry Mayer, features editor. Jean Collins served as advertising manager. Adviser of the publication, presently in its 38th year, was Sherwin Clift; photo supervision was directed by Gerald L. Tenney.

Alpha Kappa Psi, the honorary business fraternity on campus, strives to serve the university, promote brotherhood and further the aims of business. All third-quarter freshmen who are business or economics majors and have a 2.0 over-all scholastic average are eligible for membership. Each fall and spring the club has its rush, formal initiation and banquet. Activities include the sponsoring of dances and the car smash, a fund-raising project during homecoming.

Plans for dance featuring The Precious Few are discussed with members by Lawrence G. Baggett, sponsor.

Gamma Iota chapter of Alpha Mu Gamma earned $400 for a foreign language scholarship by sponsoring the All-American Red Heads, world champion girls professional basketball team. During the first week in April, the foreign language society celebrated National Foreign Language Week; their annual membership banquet was staged during the spring quarter. Currently in its third year, Alpha Mu Gamma membership requirements include two A's and a B or better in three quarters of college-level language study.

Discussing National Foreign Language Week are Barbara McIntyre and Bob Wendell.

Opening the 1967-68 series of productions was "The Crucible," a production of the famous Salem witchcraft trials. "Alice in Wonderland," a children's story, was the second to be produced. The Mu Zeta chapter of Alpha Psi Omega, organized for majors and minors in speech and theatre, works closely with the Austin Peay Playhouse in presenting the best in theatre for the Clarksville area.

Members must present a grade-point average of 2.15, plus attain points for acting roles and production assistance.

Programs conducted by Beta Beta Beta, an honor society for students of the biological sciences, included seminars and speeches by health officers and an informative review by members who tripped to Ocean Springs, Miss., to study live marine life.

Promoting the dissemination of scientific truth and encouraging investigation in the life sciences, Tri-Beta requires members to have earned a 3.0 average over five quarters of biology and a 2.5 over-all scholastic standing.

As a part of a regular meeting, members enjoy informal discussion.

Members complete plans for the visit of Dr. William Bull, University of Tennessee chemist.

Gary Christoph, treasurer, receives quarterly dues from officers Bill Titus, Graham Sexton and Donna Dillingham.

Providing opportunities for students to secure experience in preparing technical material, Chi Epsilon Mu fosters professional pride and spirit in the field of chemistry. To this end, the society secured Dr. William Bull from the department of chemistry, University of Tennessee, to speak to the group. Composed of majors, minors and students interested in the study of chemistry, Chi Epsilon Mu held their second annual banquet during the spring quarter.

Del Square Psi, honorary physics society, awards distinction to students having high scholarship and promise of future accomplishment in physics. The Beta chapter is open to students who are interested in physics; the society requires completion of 16 quarter hours of physics with a 3.0 grade-point ratio and an over-all average of 2.8.

Major activities include a picnic during the fall, a winter quarter initiation banquet and a spring banquet featuring a visiting physicist.

A major event sponsored by the APSU chapter of Delta Tau Alpha, national agriculture honor society, was a donkey basketball game in which members of the club opposed university professors. Purposed to band together students who have been recognized for their scholastic accomplishment, service and character, Delta Tau Alpha's membership requirements compel students to have completed 15 hours of agriculture while maintaining a 3.0 in these courses and a 2.4 over-all scholastic standing.

Epsilon Pi Tau helps purchase stereo for IA building

Contributing $100 toward a 150-watt stereo AM-FM receiver-amplifier, Epsilon Pi Tau, international honorary industrial arts fraternity, helped place the unit in the industrial arts building. The frat's donation combined with the Industrial Art Club's contribution provided music on a 12-speaker hook-up throughout the building.

Membership eligibility for Beta Eta chapter requires that students maintain a grade-point average of at least 2.75 and be classified as a third-quarter sophomore.

David Atkins and Randall Yarbrough install one of the speakers of the stereo unit purchased jointly with the Industrial Arts Club.

Representing the fraternity in the homecoming parade are David Atkins, President George Pitt and Dr. Leon Bibb.

Guest speakers highlighted regular meetings of Gamma Theta Upsilon, professional fraternity in the field of geography. Some of the featured speakers were Tommy Cate, Clarksville community ambassador, who discussed his trip to Japan; Dr. Harold S. Pryor, who expounded on education in the USSR; and Dr. John A. Koumoulides, who spoke on the country of Greece. The Gamma Alpha chapter is open to geography majors and minors who show at least nine hours in that area.

Tours of new school plants in the Clarksville-Montgomery County School System, a homecoming breakfast and the annual initiation banquet were top activities of Kappa Delta Pi, honorary educational society, during the 1967-68 academic year. Grade-point minimums in the Eta Rho chapter are 3.2 for undergraduates and 3.6 for graduate students. Completion of at least 12 hours of education courses is another standard for membership. Certain faculty members and alumni who qualified while attending APSU hold membership in the organization.

Kappa Delta Pi supports the largest membership of all APSU organizations.

Phi Alpha Theta, history society, had as its No. 1 service project for the year the sending of 15 packages of clothing to needy families in Greece. Guest speakers also provided the organization with a variety of programs. Among these were Prentice Cooper, former governor of Tennessee; Malcolm Glass, associate professor of English; and Dr. John A. Koumoulides, assistant professor of history. Membership requirements are 18 completed hours in history with a 3.0 average; a 2.5 over-all average is also necessary.

Receptions following senior recitals and musical programs, plus sponsoring a departmental Christmas party and caroling, highlighted APSU's Delta Pi chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota year. Initiation of pledges in the fall began activities for the music fraternity exclusively for girls. Requirements for the national frat are that members be a music major, minor or elementary education major with a concentration in music. Coeds must maintain a 2.0 over-all average and a 3.0 grade standing in music.

Several members arrive early for regular meeting date.

Led by George Cavanah, president, the Baptist Student Union serves as the center for approximately 900 Baptist students enrolled at APSU. The organization seeks to involve all interested individuals in an atmosphere of Christian fellowship and spiritual growth.

Besides weekly vesper services, members engage in social activities. A hamburger cook-out for freshmen, a Christmas party for underprivileged children and a post-school retreat comprise a portion of the scheduled activities of the organization.

Designed distinctly for university students who list the Church of Christ as their religious preference, the Christian Students Association offers programs of fellowship and inspiration to its members. Devotionals are held each Thursday and frequently a guest speaker is present. Activities for the year included a fall get-acquainted dinner with song-writer Bill Dees as special guest, a Valentine dinner, bowling party and a spring retreat to Lylewood Christian Camp.

Members Gwyn Gray, Betsy Ellis and Vicki Hedge attend weekly devotional.

"The Open Sower" was the name tabbed for a three-hour Wednesday evening session held at the Wesley Foundation house, located near the campus. Deriving its name from the biblical parable of the sower, "The Open Sower" provided Methodist students with an opportunity to engage in entertainment, discuss student concerns, view feature-length movies and listen to visiting speakers. In addition, the organization participated in the state Methodist Student Movement and held devotionals.

Bimonthly meetings of Westminster Fellowship, composed of Presbyterian students, provide opportunities for fellowship and informal discussion of problems, ethics, church and social beliefs. A popular project of the organization is the sponsorship of group suppers. Another activity is the preparation and furnishing of a room at the local First Presbyterian Church for recreation and studying. These facilities are open not only to APSU students, but to young people of Clarksville and surrounding communities.

The group's philanthropic project was transporting mentally retarded children to the Parish House each Saturday for a recreational period. Car washes, bake sales and a Christmas party for the mentally retarded children were other activities.

Alpha Beta Chi devotes time, efforts to retarded children

Raising money to send a mentally retarded child to summer camp was the No. 1 project of Delta Zeta Tau during the year. The sorority achieved this goal by sponsoring popcorn and doughnut sales in the women's residence halls. Members, as in other sororities, must present and maintain a 2.0 over-all average and must not be or ever have been on social probation. Striving for full cooperation with the university's ideals is a primary aim of the sorority.

Sigma Tau Omega excels in community service projects

Service to the community is one purpose of Sigma Tau Omega, social sorority. During the year members participated in the Mothers March of Dimes drive, a program for senior citizens and tutoring programs. A south sea island theme was used during Rush Week, and festivities were concluded with the acquisition of 11 pledges.

Thanksgiving favors are given by Theta Phi Epsilon

Furthering the spirit of cooperation and sisterhood, Theta Phi Epsilon members fulfilled their benefit projects by presenting Thanksgiving favors to patients at the Queen City Nursing Home. Christmas caroling and car washes were other activities. Rush Week was conducted to the theme of "The Old South."

Primary objectives of the Agriculture Club are to liberalize and diversify the agriculture students' education and to promote closer relations among all students in agriculture. Members must be a major or minor in agriculture and express great interest in the advancement of the field. To this end, the Ag Club sponsored a booth at Barnfest, provided quarterly social functions for its members and again built one of the top floats for the homecoming parade.

Diversified education is a major aim of Ag Club

At regular meeting, members benefit from film on phase of agriculture.

Newest honor society on the APSU campus is Pi Mu Kappa. The organization, formed for students in the pre-medicine curriculum, works to broaden the students' horizons of knowledge in preparation for medical school. Members must be enrolled in pre-med study and be in good standing both academically and morally.

Active in its initial year, Pi Mu Kappa toured the med school at Vanderbilt University, the radiological-pathology lab at Memorial Hospital and the University of Tennessee School of Medicine.

Pi Mu Kappa members William Bailey, Brown Ledbetter and Janice Shelley tour the clinical lab at Memorial Hospital.

John Bond, professor of chemistry and co-sponsor, Wayne Luther, Walter Kikendall, co-sponsor David Snyder and David Shauf observe x-ray.

Items needed by our fighting men in Vietnam were gathered and sent in "ditty bags" by members of the Home Economics Club. Comprised of majors and minors in home economics, the group works to advance interest in home economics as a profession to serve the university and community.

A blue-ribbon car in the homecoming parade, coke party for new members, bake sale and the annual fudge party for members of the Agriculture Club were other activities for the year.

A group of members enjoy a special modeling demonstration.

Alpha Beta Alpha strives to further interest in books

Evaluating the aims of the library organization are officers Linda Savage, Linda Lee Warren, Emily Hunt, Nancy Presley and Jerry Head.

Post-meeting discussion occurs following Dean Mildred Deason's presentation regarding her trip to Vietnam.

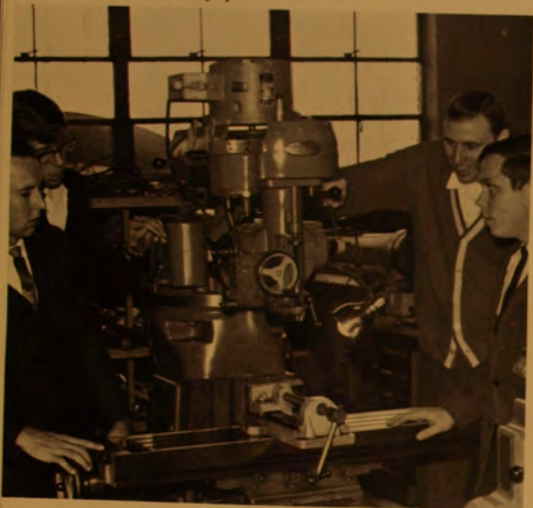

Miss Hazel Griffin, Dr. Edwin S. Gleaves, Jr., director of the Peabody College Library School, David C. Geneway, Miss Johnnie Givens and Jerry Head gather after Gleaves' lecture on graduate library schools.

Alpha Beta Alpha, newly formed honor society, is for the benefit of those students enrolled in library science courses. The organization works to promote interest in books, libraries and librarianship.

Becoming active in campus and community affairs, Alpha Beta Alpha sponsored a Story Hour for Children at the Clarksville Public Library, toured the recently erected library at Ft. Campbell, Ky., participated in Barnfest and homecoming and completed the year with a dinner for members.

Three students and Steve Miller, instructor, examine industrial arts equipment.

Industrial arts club officers include Steve Hagewood, president; Wally Rash, vice-president; David Hatfield, secretary; and Jim Edwards, treasurer.

Members David Atkins, David Kerr, George Pitt, Steve Hagewood, Randell Yarbrough and John W. Porter, sponsor, compare two outboard motors.

Producing the first-place float in the homecoming parade club division, the Industrial Arts Club began its year swiftly. Field trips and observations of industrial firms in the area composed a few of the activities for the group. A stereo unit was purchased for the industrial arts department; $138 was contributed from club treasury for this project.

Under the direction of John W. Porter, sponsor, the club's monthly meetings were enhanced by the presentation of slides, movies and industrial arts works.

Make-up is applied to cast members before production.

Final curtain call is taken by the cast of "Alice in Wonderland."

Playhouse members exhibit willingness to work hard

In scene from "Alice in Wonderland," the Mad Hatter, Doormouse and March Hare have a tea party.

Four notable plays presented by the Austin Peay Playhouse during the year were "The Crucible," "Alice in Wonderland," "Waiting for Godot" and "The House of Bernorda Alba."

Interest in theatre productions and the willingness to work are the requirements necessary for membership in the AP Playhouse. As reward for the year's work, members enjoyed a spring picnic and the annual banquet at which time the presentation of Max awards for outstanding performances were announced.

A political studies survey of a cross-section of the student body was conducted by the Political Studies Association during the year. Results were published in the campus newspaper regarding attitudes of a social, economic, civic and political nature, plus America's involvement in foreign affairs. Debates, informal discussions and guest speakers were significant at regular meetings of the organization, which offers students an opportunity for in-depth study in a non-classroom situation.

Officers Jean Hollis, Buster Yates, Kent Yates and Mary Morgan discuss the spring quarter's topic of study, The Middle East.

President Doug Brace and Carol Smith, secretary, review constitution for possible revision.

Chief goal of MENC is promotion of music education

Judy Wallace explains to Nancy Hardin and Dena Groendyke the proper method for instructing youngsters in the fundamentals of music.

Caught between classes discussing MENC plans are June Oldham, Gary Crisp and Ronald Goldenstern.

Music Educators National Conference functions as an organization to further music education in America. The only requirement for membership in MENC is that the student be interested in general music education. Promoting appreciation among the students, the organization presents vocal and instrumental programs at schools throughout the area. In addition to working with students and teachers from other schools, MENC, in its study of problems of music education, has strived to expose a need for music education in all curricula.

Two major fund-raising projects were begun during the year by the Physical Education Majors Club. The majors and minors in health and physical education sold programs at the 10 home varsity basketball games; "Go Gobs" straw hats were also sold to promote spirit for athletic events. Chartered by the American Association of Health and Physical Education, the PEM Club participated in Barnfest and A Day in its effort to promote high standards for its membership.

By giving the student better insight concerning what is to be done in a teaching career, the Student National Education Association helps prepare future teachers. Membership in SNEA, which now totals 120, is limited to students in elementary or secondary education. A membership drive in the fall, programs involving panel discussions, guest speakers and film strips during the winter and the state convention in the spring help make members more aware of their upcoming responsibilities in the education profession.

Creating a common interest among lettermen of all sports, the A Club requires all its members to have earned a varsity letter in one of the seven APSU intercollegiate sports. Sale of corsages at homecoming and the sale of foam seat cushions at various sports events give the organization support for their No. 1 event—A Day. Each spring the club sponsors this affair which includes skill games, relay races and other fun contests.

A Club members display the "Go Gobs" cushions which they sell during football season.

Circle K sponsors annual school basketball tourney

Officers Gene Bryant, Dan Bond, Rick Brown and President Don Winters preside during roll call at regular biweekly meeting.

Puzzled members listen to fund-raising idea: the selling of a shoe product.

Sponsorship of a six-team high school basketball tournament is one of the biggest fund-raising events in Circle K International, according to Kentucky-Tennessee District officials. The APSU Circle K Club nets enough money from the three-day tourney to award a scholarship to one student from each of the participating schools. The service organization is sponsored by the Clarksville Kiwanis Club; membership numbers 45 and students must present a 2.0 average for consideration.

"Swim-in '68" was the theme of the late-winter aquatic show presented by the Dolphins. Reorganized in 1967, the group took the name Dolphins this year to replace Aqua Belles so that male students could be part of the water-performing group. Unique lighting effects and musical arrangements complemented the precision swimming and stunt diving. The many-hued balloons which were used as decoration produced a special kaleidoscopic effect in the university pool.

Student Wives earn Putting Hubby Through degrees

Ann Haskins, Anna Carol Kington, Linda Hicklen and Mrs. Robbie Morgan, sponsor, look through magazines for household hints.

Putting Hubby Through (PHT) degrees were awarded at the spring graduation banquet of the Student Wives Club. At the traditional banquet, members with graduating husbands are given the PHT degree. Monthly meeting programs vary from visiting speakers to demonstrations concerning facial and hair care. A homecoming breakfast for student and alumni wives and the Christmas dinner for families of club members were the major activities of the fall quarter.

Chartered in November, APSU's Collegiate Civitans are purposed to emphasize the American-Canadian way of life and serve both the campus and the community. Prospective members must be nominated by present members and later approved by the entire membership of the club. Membership presently numbers 57. Selling of pennants during the winter quarter was the first fund-raising project. Planning of a scholarship program is in the initial stages.

Buster Yates, president, outlines member responsibilities at charter night.

Smiling William O. Beach, county judge, reacts to a question posed following his address to Young Democrats.

Mapping plans for an all-student dance are officers Charles Taylor, Jr., Ann Threadgill and Fred Threadgill.

"Prentice Cooper Appreciation Evening" was sponsored by the College Young Democrats during the fall quarter as a tribute to the former Tennessee governor. Guest speakers William O. Beach, county judge, and Perkins Freeman, district manager of Southern Bell, also talked to the group. Boasting a large membership, the Young Democrats allow any student at APSU who is in good standing with the university to become a member of the club.

CLASSES

No student stands alone for together they comprise the classes—and the classes make the university. Each class possesses a distinct personality for each exists on a separate level resulting from the different ideas shared by its members. The freshman class is confronted with what sometimes seems to be an overwhelming problem of adjustment. Sophomores, while a little more confident in their position, are still randomly considering a major field. With a goal definitely established juniors are determinedly working toward their aim. Having only a few short months left, the seniors are soon to find how valuable their college years have actually been in preparing them for the future.

ADVERTISING

Advertisements which go into the making of this 1968 FAREWELL & HAIL form an integral portion of the yearbook's over-all success. These ads reach out to the student and encourage him to consider the various resources offered by the merchants of Clarksville and Montgomery County. By purchasing a space for advertisement, these tradesmen have displayed an interest and a concern for the expansion and development of the university. They realize the sizable factor which APSU's student body must play within the economic scope of the community. The following merchants from the surrounding area have contributed time and money in a conscientious effort to fulfill the manifold needs of a growing institution.

Austin Peay State University Alumni Association

ALUMNI SCHOLARSHIP RECIPIENTS—Barbara McIntyre, Ann Chapman, Sandra Simpson, Suella Dillard, Donna Dillingham, Glenda Taylor, Sharon Swearingen. (Absent) Patsy Harris.

"Be It Known, That the Active Alumni of Austin Peay State University are hereby constituted a body politic and corporate by the name and style of The Austin Peay State University Alumni Association for the purpose of promoting the welfare of Austin Peay State University through a continuous program of encouraging and maintaining mutually beneficial relations between such University and its Alumni, assisting and encouraging academic excellence through the improvements of the faculty, students, facilities and educational programs of such University and thereby making a lasting contribution to the educational and cultural betterment of the state of Tennessee and the Nation."

Dedicated to service, as one of its programs the APSUAA sponsors annually scholarships for eight full-time students. These scholarships are supported in their entirety by contributions from the active membership.

A minimum contribution of $3 for a single membership or $5 for a family membership places you on the active alumni list, thus entitling you to receive all alumni publications, but most of all, it signifies your interest in the university.

Modern equipment enhances research.

Highly trained faculty teaches youth.

Mature students pursue excellence.

The 39th academic year, first as Austin Peay State University, is almost history. Obligated to teach, to increase knowledge, to provide society with people trained in professions and to perform public services, APSU met a greater challenge with the coming of university status. Transitions will continue for the upgrowth of APSU after this "The Year of the U."

Challenge increases with change in status

FRED LANDISS, associate editor

CAROLE ANNE SISCO, editor-in-chief

Editors strive to produce composite of APSU for students

A year of continuous attempts for perfection is now over, and we can recall the hours and days of work as only a memory. Capturing significant emotions and experiences has presented itself to be one of the greatest challenges that we have thus encountered, and the success of this trial lies in the readers' opinion of these 304 pages.

The vitality with which we began our task gradually dwindled as deadlines approached and grades dropped. Yet we steadily sensed the immense responsibility of reflecting the composite of Austin Peay State University.

This, the 23rd volume of the FAREWELL & HAIL, was printed in Nashville, Tenn., by Benson Printing Co., Inc. The cover of combined embossed and silver foil design on fabrikoid was produced by Durand Manufacturing Co., Chicago, Ill. The book was produced by the offset process. Copy type faces used on the 100-pound Warren's lustro offset enamel include 24 pt. Bodoni Bold for narrative heads, 10 pt. Baskerville for body, 8 pt. Baskerville for captions and identifications and 24 pt. Bodoni Bold capitals on division pages.

Eleven color process reproductions appear; the extra color used for spot color and duotones is process blue. Efforts of innumerable people are evident in this, the largest yearbook in APSU history. At Benson Printing Co., W. A. Benson, Jr. assisted in helping us assimilate the latest yearbook trends. Mrs. Evelyn Watson, secretary, and artists Dan Eadie, Robert McConnell and Wayne Johnson provided the answers to problems and the necessary technical help.

Credit for selected black and white photos must go to Benson Duling (page 183), Owen Hill (74, 75, 94, 163), Fred Landiss (173, 177), Sam Mills (34, 40, 41, 74, 75, 94, 167, 182, 186, 192, 216), Rappoport Studios, Inc., New York City, (198-201, 220, 222-233, 235-242, 244-252, 254-263), D. D. Redmond, Jr.

(39, 40, 41, 49, 154, 185, 211, 215) and Gene Washer (152, 154, 155, 156, 157, 158, 160 and 165).

Our utmost thanks go to Gerald L. Tenney, director of photographic services, for his long, hard hours of work. All the color shots, the black and white photographs on pages not listed above and selected black and white photos on pages listed above were taken by him.

For enduring our mistakes, providing the answers to our many problems, giving advice and stimulating morale, we express our appreciation to our adviser, Sherwin Clift, and to his secretary, Mrs. Martha Edwards, who typed most of the final manuscript.

We would like to thank the entire staff for their earnest cooperation and endurance. We also thank our friends who willingly overlooked our often distressed and brusque moods. Thanks is also in order to David Bibb, Jimmy Knight, Terry Mayer and Ron Popp for writing selected narrative heads in the book.

Our endeavors, both inspiring and discouraging, have combined for a year of pleasant recollections and we hope "The Year of the U" as embellished by the 1968 FAREWELL & HAIL has been equally rewarding for each of you.
