Renovation begins soon

Alumni move to Cross House

By PAM ROBERTS

The Cross House, a colonial style brick mansion situated on the Emerald Hills property of Austin Peay State University will soon be the new location of the APSU Alumni Association, an organization of graduates, former students and friends of the university numbering over 20,000.

Presently located on the third floor of the Browning Building, the office of the APSUAA has experienced overcrowded conditions. Through the use of this very attractive and currently unused residence belonging to the university, the Alumni Association will be able to expand its efforts in behalf of APSU.

As Henry C. Malone, director of alumni affairs explained, "The real significance of the move is the fact that we are now providing the alumni something tangible to identify with... something to call our own."

The Cross House itself has a history dating back to the 1820's and is included in the National Register of Historic Sites. The large residence and 20 acres of land were bequeathed to the university some years ago by the late Pat Henry Cross.

Renovation is now being conducted on the new portion of the house to prepare it for occupancy by the Alumni Association. The massive white columns supporting the front portion of the roof are to be replaced, the porches and woodwork repaired, the drives widened and resurfaced and the interior painted.

A formal garden on the property is to be restored to its original design of two wide flower-bordered walks intersecting to form four large squares.

The ultimate goal of the Alumni Association is to restore the Cross House to as much of its original 1820's state as possible.

The cost of all furnishings, restoration and development of the grounds other than regular, ordinary maintenance will be the responsibility of the association.

"We feel like the Cross House will be a plus factor in helping us pull alumni, faculty, staff and the community closer together," concluded Malone.

Homecoming festivities begin Friday

By JEANNIE BOYD

"Get into your overalls and into an old-fashioned hillbilly mood," said Margaret Morgan, president of the University Social Activities Board, about the 1974 Austin Peay State University homecoming festivities planned for Friday and Saturday.

Themed this year as "A Hillbilly Homecoming," there will be two full days of entertainment for the alumni of 1974, '84, '94, '04, and '14 and students.

Beginning on Friday, at 11 a.m. will be the annual Varsity-Alumni Golf Match at Clarksville Country Club on Fairway Drive.

Kappa Alpha Psi is sponsoring a record dance Friday afternoon from 4:30 in front of the cafeteria.

The University Social Activities Board will coordinate the activities on Friday night in the Memorial Gymnasium. Due to unforeseen contract obligations, Steve Martin, a well-known TV comedian previously scheduled will not be able to appear in the homecoming concert. In his place will be The Cock Robin Band and Shores Street Boogie Band at 8 p.m.

Following will be the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, a group termed by The Gig, a New York publication, as "not only one of the oldest surviving groups of its era, it is also one of the most widely accomplished and universally respected." The Gig also describes their style as a "folk-rock sound... known vaguely as 'Good Time Music.'"

Members Jeff Hanna, Jim Holston, Jimmie Fadden and John McEuen combine their talents to produce a traditional jugband and bluegrass music.

Tickets for the concert are on sale now at the University Center information desk, New's Record Shop, Tapes and Records and Roughed in the Two Rivers Mall for $4. Tickets are $5 at the door.

Saturday morning at 7 the ROTC will sponsor a military science breakfast for alumni and at 8:30 a.m. the Governorette breakfast will be held in the University Center Ballroom.

Several of the local fraternities are planning alumni breakfasts also.

The homecoming parade will begin at 10 a.m. at the corner of Drane and College Streets. According to David L. Watson, director of the University Center, "there will be approximately 10 floats, 30 cars and a few non-competitive independent groups" in the parade.

In addition, the "Governor's Own" marching band, the Governorettes and 15 area bands will perform.

A pep rally will begin at 12:30 p.m. in Municipal Stadium prior to the homecoming football game with Murray State University at 1:30.

The 25-minute halftime proceedings will include a recognition of the 14 candidates for homecoming queen, their escorts and sponsors and coronation of the 1974 (Continued on Page 13, Col. 1)

Childers elected

Officers of the Austin Peay State University Agriculture Club were elected Wednesday.

Kenny Childers was elected president; Sheila Breeden, vice president; Wayne Gill, secretary; Ben Buck, treasurer; and Larry Robinson, reporter. The club will have a cookout tonight at 5 at the home of Dr. Gaines Hunt, assistant professor of agriculture. Persons interested in attending should sign up in the Claxton Building, room 108, before noon today.

NITTY GRITTY DIRT BAND—Homecoming activities include getting right down to the real nitty gritty with the band members (l-r) Jeff Hanna, Jim Holston, Jimmie Fadden and John McEuen. The band will perform Friday night at 9:00 following two other groups in Memorial Gymnasium.

By DON REYNOLDS

Thirteen years ago, Harold Freeman Grimes left his home town of Mt. Pleasant, Tenn., and went away to college. Today, Grimes, better known as "Moe," is still away at college.

among Moe's friends, Moe has another ability, that of being able to appear unexpectedly. Morgan quips, "It seems no matter where I go, Moe turns up."

Dr. George Fisher, director of athletics, refers to Moe as a

WHEN ASKED about his ability to get into games without paying Moe replied, "I gave that up a couple of years ago, because it didn't look too good for a 30-year-old man to be climbing over fences."

Lake Kelly, head basketball coach, deems Moe, "Austin Peay's most loyal fan." Kelly went on to say that Moe's familiar face "is always around whenever we're feeding our team."

MOE'S REPUTATION for being in two different places at once caused Fisher to recall, "After last year's basketball game at Murray, I passed Moe on my way to Bowling Green. When I arrived at Western Kentucky's gym there stood Moe waiting for me. How he got there remains a mystery to me because Moe doesn't have a car."

Many have said that Moe Grimes has the "fastest thumb in the west."

But Moe explains his ability to hitch rides this way, "I guess I just have an honest face."

THE SERIOUS SIDE OF Moe is well hidden, but if you look carefully it is there. His love of athletics extends itself into his hope that "someday all the various teams at APSU will cooperate more and pool athletes to build a better over-all program at the Peay."

The word apathy doesn't exist in Moe's vocabulary, and his school spirit is a thing that could haunt us all... if he ever leaves. IT HAS BEEN said that there's a Moe Grimes on every college campus, but that's not true; there's only one Moe Grimes.

A.J. CLARK

When asked about his ability to get into games without paying Moe replied, "I gave that up a couple of years ago, because it didn't look too good for a 30-year-old man to be climbing over fences."

—Harold Freeman Grimes

Moe began his college career in 1961 at Bethel College in McKenzie, Tenn. After three years and a few too many bad grades, Moe left Bethel and enrolled at Columbia State Community College where he continued his major of health and physical education.

IN THE FALL of 1969, Moe came to Austin Peay. He was awarded the bachelor of science degree in health and physical education last spring. In the 13 year period Moe has been in colleges, he has amassed almost 300 college level hours and hopes to receive his master's degree this coming spring.

Known for his outgoing personality and his enthusiasm for sports (especially girl-watching), Moe has made many friends and inspired many "Moe stories."

TO APSU President Joe Morgan, who can be counted

"legendary character, known throughout the Ohio Valley Conference."

Jimmy Earle, head basketball coach at Middle Tennessee State University, was in Clarksville during the summer watching his son competing in a tennis tournament at the Clarksville High School courts.

With a few derided gaze aimed at Moe, Earle quipped, "Just what is that guy's name? It seems like I've been seeing him around for ever. I remember seeing him when I was coaching at Martin College (in the early 60s). I've seen him at basketball games all over the place and I see him at all the OVC spring sports championships. Now he shows up here."

Fisher estimates that Moe has seen more athletic contests and paid less to get in than any other man alive.

Students, faculty disagree on choice for 6th district

By MELESSA GANNARAY

A mock election sponsored by the Political Studies Association was conducted on the Austin Peay State University campus Tuesday and Wednesday.

Student turnout at the mock election was 399 out of 3031, and 66 out of 186 faculty members voted. According to Dr. Vernon Warren, chairman of the political science department, there was an increase in the total participation than in past elections.

Both the student population and faculty selected Democratic candidate Ray Blanton as Governor, and Democratic candidate Z.D. Atkins as a Public Service Commissioner.

However, there was a wide margin of difference in the Sixth Congressional seat. Faculty voters "elected" Democrat Tim Schaeffer, while the students favored Republican Robin Beard for Sixth District seat.

Actual student percentage gave Z.D. Atkins an edge of 58 per cent over Republican opponent Jane Hardaway with 41 per cent for Public Service Commission. Students favored Atkins 228-134 votes. Faculty percentages for Atkins was 45 per cent, and Hardaway received 45 per cent with Atkins again leading 34 votes to 25.

Faculty members favored Democratic Ray Blanton with 44 votes and Republican Lamar Alexander 23, or 68 per cent to 32 per cent for the governor's race. Out of the 399 students voting, Blanton received 205 votes or 51 per cent, and Alexander received 177 votes for 44 per cent.

Five independent candidates, Jack Comer, Hubert Patty, James Ressor, Alfred Taylor and Arnold J. Zandi collected a total of 16 votes.

In the Sixth District Congressional race, the faculty "elected" Democrat Tim Schaeffer with 45 votes for 54 per cent, while Republican Robin Beard trailed, receiving 27 votes for 44 per cent.

On the other hand students gave Beard the edge for Sixth District seat. Students voted 217-182 for Beard, giving him 54 per cent, while Schaeffer 45 per cent.

Warren felt that the reason Beard may have carried student votes was due to the fact that The Ab State endorsed Beard for re-election.

According to Warren, the mock election "should not be considered a poll, because it was not scientifically sampled and the votes were not statistically valid." He also noted that he was very pleased with the turnout at the election.

New center will aid retention

IN RECENT years, efforts to increase enrollment at Austin Peay State University have focused on attempts to augment freshman enrollment.

The success of this effort is indicated by the fact that for three of the preceding four fall quarters (1970, 1971, and 1972) Austin Peay has been second, third, and first, respectively, among Tennessee regional universities in percentage increase of full-time equated students.

However, possibly more important aspect of the enrollment picture has been ignored. This might be called the student retention rate, or the percentage of freshman students who continue their studies at Austin Peay.

STATISTICS indicate that, for a given class, sophomore enrollment is about seventy-five per cent, junior enrollment is about sixty per cent, and senior enrollment is less than fifty per cent of original freshman enrollment.

This means that only one of every two individuals who enrolls at Austin Peay attends the University for four years. Since virtually all of the University's degrees involve four-year programs, this should be an area of prime concern.

The reasons why an individual might withdraw from the University are usually interrelated, but they can be divided into three broad categories: financial, academic, and social. WITH THE costs of higher education skyrocketing, a student is often compelled to work part-time to finance his education. He encounters problems not only in finding suitable employment, but also in preventing conflicts between school and work.

Many new students enter a university without any clear idea of what subjects interest them, much less what careers they are preparing for. Faculty advisors are simply not qualified either to advise students about programs and courses outside their departments or to offer vocational counseling.

Even students with ample financial resources and a sound academic program may find it difficult to adjust to college life. The student is often on his own for the first time in his life. The problems involved in choosing his own companions, his own activities, his own living habits, and his own values often create unbelievable pressures and tensions. The tragic accident last spring involving an Austin Peay sophomore is a reminder of what can happen when a person has serious problems and no one to turn to for help.

THE POINT is this: Austin Peay has long been in need of a comprehensive counseling center to offer professional advice concerning financial, academic, and social problems. At present, Austin Peay is the only university in Tennessee which does not offer such services.

We are pleased to report that, in part through the persistent efforts of the SGA, Austin Peay will have a counseling center, probably by winter quarter and certainly by spring quarter. We congratulate the administration for this progressive action and urge them to provide the money and facilities to enable the center to effectively serve the university community.

Some probable answers

Who did you vote for?

By GLENDA DURDIN

THE REASONS given for one's political behavior can be many and varied. The rationalizations can be exceptionally odd and interesting if the inquirer happens to conduct his survey in Clarksville.

The following answers might be obtained if one interviewed Clarksvillians in regard to their political choices:

"Who did you vote for in the election yesterday and why?"

"Election? What election?"

"Wall, I voted for that there Blanton feller; I always vote Democratic, you know, don't matter how big a jackass the guy is."

"Alexander, 'cause I liked his ragtime band."

"I voted for the guy what sells bigdads at U.T. football games, 'cause I like them Vols and I like bigdads."

"Wall sir, I'm from Texas, so I voted for the feller with the cowboy hat."

"I always goby a rule of thumb when I vote; I run my thumb along the names and vote for whichever one I stop on. I never know who I vote for until after the election. My man always wins."

"I always vote for folks in alphabetical order, so I supported Alexander. 'A' does come before 'B,' don't it?"

"Sh! Please whisper. Vote? With a hangover like the one I got, hell, man, first things first, politics can't compete with a fraternity beer haul."

"I voted for Alexander; I don't want the burden of Blanton's ray of sunshine on my shoulder."

"Who did you vote for mayor of our fair city?"

"Crow, of course. Of Charlie, he owns this town. He's been mayor ever since I can 'member. He must be good with all that experience."

"Wall, sir, I seen a picture of that there Burnett feller, an' he's a Negro; I don't know anybody by the name of Crow, but crows is black; so Aldridge was the only one left."

"I had a cousin once what was named Burnett something-or-other. I was pretty surprised to see of Burnett running for mayor. I thought the ol' boy died 25 years ago."

Television keeps 'em hot

(CPS)—NEW STUDIES on the effects of violence on TV have indicated that violent TV shows cause people to maintain anger, but do not increase or decrease anger.

Dolf Zillman, a professor at Indiana State University, set up an experiment in which one of two groups of subjects was provoked into anger. Both groups were divided into three subgroups, whose members watched a violent film, a non-violent film, or not film at all. After the film session, members of the provoked group were given the opportunity to get back at their aggressor.

ONLY THE subgroup that watched the violent film was still angry. Zillman concluded that, "the aggressive film has the effect that it makes you maintain your state of anger. If people aren't angry to begin with, the films will have no effect."

Hands up, s'il vous plait

(CPS)—WHILE FOREIGN language instruction in American grade schools seldom rises above how to ask for a drink of water, Chinese schools go by a different book of phrases.

In China, grade school children are being taught to say "Hands Up!" in Russian in case they ever have to be Soviet prisoners, according to former French Information Minister Alain Peyrefitte.

DURING A RECENT news conference the former minister further said that the Chinese interpreted former President Nixon's 1972 visit as "an apology."

"You don't fear somebody who apologizes," he said.

Reserve takes over city

(CPS)—AS PART of the U.S. Army Reserve Combat Readiness Program, an Oklahoma reserve unit recently took over the entire administration of Oklahoma City and its half-million inhabitants. The 48th Civil Affairs Unit was learning the techniques to take over an American city.

The group's civilian advisor, Donald McCorkell, said, "We could administer an entire state—an entire country—if we had to." He added that any information on possible candidate countries for the group's participation is classified.

Dover freshman elected 1974 queen

By JOANNE PEACHER

Austin Peay State University's 1974 homecoming queen is Glenda Mattox.

Elected in a run-off vote, Glenda was named queen last Friday afternoon and will reign over homecoming festivities Saturday.

Glenda, Ellington Hall's candidate, is a freshman. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C.T. Mattox of Dover.

Glenda is 18-years-old, five-feet, four inches tall and weighs 104 pounds. She graduated from Stewart County High School where she was president of four organizations and vice-president of the student council.

Miss Mattox was named Miss Cumberland Electric Membership Corporation and then elected Miss Tennessee Electric Corporation Association. From there she proceeded to the national contest where she placed as second runner-up and received a college scholarship.

The new queen is majoring in pre-med at Austin Peay and is finishing her basketball at either Vanderbilt or Memphis State.

Glenda lives on campus and works in the office of Field Activities. Glenda is also planning to play basketball for APSU. Glenda's homecoming court: Senior class queen, Jeanne Lipcomb Bellar is an elementary education major. She graduated from Springfield High School and now makes her home in Adams. She is 21-years-old.

Cathie O'Donnell is the junior class queen. The Hopkinsville High School graduate is 21-years-old and is an education major.

Queen of the sophomore class is Sherry Monneyney. Sherry is 19-years-old, and is also an education major. She graduated from John Overton High School in Nashville.

Genice Hite, who was in Friday's run-off for homecoming queen, will represent the freshmen. Genice is 18-years-old and a graduate of Clarksville High School. She is majoring in business.

Cornation of Queen Glenda will take place during halftime of the Saturday Austin Peay-Murray State game.

200 gathered for homecoming

By VALERIE JAMES

From The All State, homecoming 1954—Approximately 200 returning graduates gathered in Municipal Stadium Saturday night to watch the Governors battle the Jacksonville State Gamecocks to a 14-14 tie.

The game was the climax of a homecoming weekend which featured a giant bonfire and pep meeting snake dance that wound through Clarksville's streets and public places Friday night.

Following the snake dance, the Memorial Health Building was the scene of an informal affair characterized by the absence of shoes and the presence of a large group of dancing students.

Ruling over the homecoming festivities was Libby Lambeth, a sophomore from Whitehouse, Tenn. Libby was officially crowned by Governor co-captains Bob Brown and Bobby Ray during halftime at the game Saturday night. Ruling with Libby were Judy Johnson, freshman class queen and Frances Miller, sophomore class queen. Bonnie Glasgow was chosen by the junior class as their representative, while Betty Wallace was the choice of the senior class.

From The All State, homecoming 1964—This year's homecoming was somewhat different from past years in that the homecoming committee issued a central theme to be used in connection with all slogans for floats, cars and dormitories.

The central theme, "APSC-TV (The Victory Channel) Presents," meant that each unit in the parade and all dormitory decorations revolved around a television show or commercial.

Judy Griffin was the star who reigned over traditional homecoming festivities along with Kathy Frederick, Oxy Williams, Mary Smith and Jerrie Hargis, the class representatives.

Judy was crowned at half time in a game that saw three touch-down passes and an eight-yard run engineered by Carlton Flatt which gave the Gobs a 29-0 decision over Tennessee Tech.

Book exchange program begins

Alpha Beta Alpha, the national undergraduate library science fraternity at Austin Peay State University, has established a paperback exchange shelf as a service to all students and staff members.

The exchange shelf is located on the second floor of the Claxton Building beside room 227. Participants are asked to bring one paperback of their own to exchange for the selection of their choice.

The exchange shelf will operate on the honor system and can be used any time the Claxton Building is open.

Ellington Hall

By JOANNIE PEACHER

The fact that Ellington Hall is a "non-organization" and has never before sponsored a homecoming queen is unusual. Moreover, until Glenda Mattox was elected on Friday as 1974 Homecoming Queen, no independent organization had ever sponsored a winning homecoming queen candidate at APSU.

Another item is that Miss Mattox is a freshman, and no other freshman has ever been elected as homecoming queen.

Harold (Mac) Grimes was instrumental in the nomination of the queen and was her campaign manager.

Grimes said, "I think she tired of seeing someone win just because she was in a particular organization."

Grimes explained that since their candidate was a freshman, much publicity was needed. Grimes' word of mouth and the art-work of Jack Cook helped to make her known.

50 will perform

in alumni band

This year's homecoming events will include an Austin Peay State University alumni band to participate in the half-time activities of the homecoming game Saturday.

The band, consisting of about 50 members, will march on the field playing "Fine and Dandy," after which they will join in with the "Governors' Own" marching band of APSU to the tune of "Smash Bang" and the alma mater.

Mike Swaffler, band director at APSU, will direct the two bands.

Members of the marching band since homecoming 1957 will participate, representing not only Tennessee, but also Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Georgia, Alabama and North Carolina.

Affairs Board. Our main problem is student participation. I personally wouldn't agree or disagree. I would go along with what the men want in their dormitories because I don't live in a dorm. I'd have to get their opinion and go to the administration who would then go to the Board of Regents. Statistics have proven, however, that a majority of students do not want 24-hour open dorms. Who do you please, the minority or the majority? Anything we do must have justification. If we can convince the Board, we'll get it. I do believe the women need some kind of protection in the dorm, however, I'm opposed to the "open door" policy.

Q: What do you think of the idea of having specialized dorms?

L: I believe it's a good idea. Perhaps we could use Killebrew Hall on a one year experimental basis to see how it works. But, let's face it. We have to act like adults to be treated like adults. If the girls want it, then by all means, the men should get it. Right now we're saying that the boys can visit the girls' dorms, but the girls can't visit the boys' dorms. There was a survey taken a couple of years ago on men's visitation. I don't have the statistics on this now, but the boys didn't want it then.

Q: That's a strange result.

L: Well, I guess you could call that a double standard. Men do have a tendency toward that sometimes, though we don't like to admit it. I think it's being hypocritical.

Both interviews pointed out the fact that the ultimate decisions rest within the grasp of the students of Austin Peay. It is time that the perspective of visitation were investigated from the other side of the campus. Action for men's dorm visitation would catapult the university's aim of creating an integrated social community.

Direct all comments to the directors of men's or women's affairs, the Men's or Women's Affairs Board, the SGA or The All State.

Athletic trainers

Probably one of the most important necessities for a car is a mechanic and a trainer for an athletic team is just as valuable.

Just recently The All State took a poll of the Ohio Valley Conference member institutions. These schools were asked to provide information concerning the amount of trainers they had for their athletic departments. They were asked to list how many males and females, salaried trainers, and graduate assistants.

Hopefully this survey will show how Austin Peay State University fares to member schools.

Austin Peay has under its employment one trainer. This person is a male and serves not as a full time trainer but rather as a graduate assistant.

Moving on to Middle Tennessee State University, we discovered they have one full time trainer that works with football, basketball and track. Also under their employment are three male student assistants which receive tuition and books.

Tennessee Tech University has ten trainers to serve their athletic program. They have one head trainer, one graduate assistant, seven male student trainers and one female.

Western Kentucky University has the largest staff of trainers in the OVC. Included on their staff are two full time faculty members that serve as trainers and teach in the health and physical education department. Assisting them are 11 student trainers of which nine are male and two are female.

Murray State University has on their staff one head trainer, who serves as a full time faculty member in the health and physical education department. Assisting him are one graduate assistant and three student trainers of which one is male and the other two are female.

Though this survey begins to show the overall structure of the conference schools, there are always schools that are

In homecoming battle

Austin Peay battles Murray

Some say the old gray mare just ain't what she used to be but for Austin Peay State University's homecoming, the Murray State University Racers have all the kick the Governors want to see.

Murray State enters the game 6-2 overall and 3-2 in the Ohio Valley Conference race. Currently third in the conference, the Racers were selected as the preseason favorite to win the championship earlier this fall.

Offensively the Racers are sixth in the conference mixing a well balanced attack in both the rushing and passing department. Averaging better than 167 yards on the ground and 95 yards in the air, the Racers just may be the strongest overall team the Governors have faced this year.

Tom Pandolfi, a 6-2, 212 pound senior, calls the plays for Murray. Pandolfi was selected as the all-OVC quarterback in the preseason polls. Presently ranked seventh in total offense and third in passing, he has already been named OVC offensive back of the week once this season.

Pandolfi is basically a passing quarterback having thrown for eight touchdowns this year and has hit on 50 per cent of his aerials.

Douglas Sanders is the leading receiver for Murray averaging better than 10 yards a catch and has crossed into paydirt three times this year.

When Pandolfi is unable to find Sanders, he will go to Bernard Belverdi. The 5-9, 179 pounder has snared 13 aerials this season and has totaled 32 yards and scored one touchdown.

Leading the rushing attack for the Racers is Don Clayton, a 6-2, 205 pound senior. Already chosen as a preseason all-OVC performer, Clayton has accounted for seven MSU touchdowns and an impressive average of almost five yards a carry and 120 rushing yards a game.

Leading the way for Clayton is another preseason all-OVC selection, Charles Carpenter. The 6-3, 203 pounder plays tackle on the Murray line.

Defensively, Murray State is currently fifth in the OVC allowing their opponents to 100 yards on the ground and 119 yards in the air.

Leading the defensive attack will be preseason all-OVC selection Mark Hickman. The 6-0, 180 pounder plays defensive back and hails from Atlanta, Ga.

Bruce Walker, another defensive back who tips the scales at 6-0, 180 pounds, has already led his team in a victory over East Tennessee State University, when he intercepted three passes of which two led to Murray State scores.

Don Hettich, also joins Walker and Hickman in the defensive backfield. He also has had several big games including one where he had two interceptions.

Govs harriers finish 6th in conference meet

"Our two distance runners ran real well," described Ken Gunter cross country coach of Austin Peay State University about his team's sixth place finish in the Valley Conference meet held this weekend in Murray, Ky.

Western Kentucky University won the team event totaling 22 points, far ahead of runner-up East Tennessee State University. The Hilltoppers had their runners grab the first four spots while Austin Peay's Oscar Morgan finished in the fifth spot.

Having led race distance runner David Reintjes, the Govs finished in the remainder of the team with members from the track team.

Looking back on this year's fall eight tackles and 15 assists and made two game saving tackles. Hettich stands 6-1 and weighs 214.

Les Stinnett, last week's OVC defensive back of the week stands 6-2 and tips the scales at 217 pounds. In the game against East Tennessee, Stinnett tallied 13 tackles and six assists and sacked the opponents' quarterback five times for a loss of 28 yards.

Doing the kicking for MSU will be Steve Martin. The 6-0, 175-pounder has been perfect at the extra point kicks hitting 15-15 and has sent four sailing through the uprights from three point territory. Martin also does the punting and is currently ranked third in the conference averaging 42 yards a kick.

Whether it be the old gray mare, or the Murray State Racers the Governors will face, the stage is set for part of the 1974 homecoming, Saturday afternoon at 1:30 in Municipal Stadium.

performance Gunter praised his harriers by saying "we're further along this year than we were last year and that part of improvement is always important."

Austin Peay will open their 1974 indoor track season Dec. 14 in Monroe, La.

For upcoming season

Conference co-champs practice pressure defense

By PAT M. HOWARD

With less than a month away for the opening of basketball season, when Austin Peay State University opens against South Alabama, the "Govs" are going through intense training.

The Govs claim the supreme position in the OVC basketball ranks as champions for two consecutive seasons, 1972-73 and 73-74, sharing the title this year with Morehead State University in Morehead, Ky.

Last year APSU's team finished with ten wins and 4 losses in regular conference action and an overall record of 17-9.

APSU lost five players at the end of basketball season in March of this year, partially because of a decision laid down by the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) this summer placing several athletes under probation. The players lost included James "Fly" Williams, Danny Odums, Freddie Lee, Robert Turner and Kemp Hampton.

Four of these players were starters at some time during the season.

The professional team, The Sports of St. Louis took the "Fly" Williams, ranked as the number five college player in the nation his freshman year and third last year for averaging 28.9 points a game. Williams was elected as an All-OVC player, both his years here.

All-OVC for two years, Danny Odums averaged 11.3 points and four assists a game. Threatened by probation for the ensuing season due to the NCAA ruling, Danny "D" transferred to Fairfield University in Fairfield, Conn., where he would be eligible for play this year.

"They averaged half of our defense last year," stated Colin Steward, assistant coach of the basketball team, when asked what affect the loss will have on our team.

Freddie Lee also chose to transfer, after having started as guard the first couple of games last season and then seeing very little action. He has gone to Ferrum Jr. College in Ferrum, Va.

An end to eligibility claimed Robert "Hood" Turner who was noted for his hustling ability and Kemp Hampton has transferred to Bethel College in McKenzie.

Although APSU lost some magnificent players, they are not lacking experience since there are nine lettermen on the team, most of whom are six feet or taller. They are Percy Howard, Micky Fisher, Richard Jimmerson, Gary Maier, Juan Smith, Ralph Garner, Reed Epley, Joe Johnson and John Reid.

According to Steward, "We gained some new players, however, we have enough experienced players coming back to offset the loss."

Percy "Bird" Howard ranked in all categories of the OVC roster last season averaging about 11.9 points a game, having a 48.1 field goal percentage, and 6.6 rebounds a game. He is a 6-4, 212 pound senior from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., famous for his power hook in front of the basket. His best effort last season came against Western, Ky., when he scored 28 points.

Richard Jimmerson of Clarksville, also known as "Jimbo," and Joe Johnson of Elkton, Ky., are both 6-4 seniors. They both helped out in rebounding last season, averaging about 4.8 rebounds a game. Johnson scored a high of 26 points against Virginia Commonwealth last season while Jimmerson highed with 19 against the same team.

Outstanding guard Micky Fisher was the number two assist man on the team last year, ending up with 35. He is a 6-0, 165 pound junior from Clarksville. Ralph Garner, 6-8, 200 pound sophomore center who loves the turn-around jump hook shot, is from Birmingham, Ala.

This is the last year of play for John Reid of Brownstown, Ind. He is considered a good ball handler and outside shooter.

Reed Epley is an alert player and a good medium range shooter from Lexington, Ky.

Juan Smith, 6-4, 185, Gary Maier, 6-4, 180 and Dale Wesley, 6-4, 190 will all be looked to this year for their experience.

Lake Kelly, head basketball coach of the Govs, has said about this year's team that, "The team will be basically inexperienced, there will be more size, quicker guards and more work as a unit."

He and Steward are convinced that "The key is defense."

Much is expected from the newcomers who bring with them distinguished qualifications.

Charlie Fishback averaged 18.3 points at Cumberland Junior College last year, claimed the school record for assists with 226 for the season. Quick as a guard, he has the nickname "Fina."

James Britt, also from Cumberland, averaged 17.8 points and four assists a game, hitting 50 percent of his field goals.

Ohio Valley Conference stars of Austin Peay

By MART FENDLEY

Austin Peay State University in the past and present has had many great stars. The Peay maintains a great tradition in outstanding football players and this season's homecoming could produce many more exciting events and of course some more stars.

Let's take a look into the past and see some of the outstanding individuals.

Austin Peay joined the Ohio Valley Conference in 1963, which proved to be a dismal year for APSU went 1-9. But the next year the Peay turned on and turned in a banner year of 8-1-1.

1964

1964 had its stars and great players. Carlton Platt, a quarterback and defensive back was named honorable mention Little All American in 63 and 64 as a quarterback and all-OVC as a defensive back. Tim Chilcutt was named Little All American in 64 and 65, as well as all-OVC, as a defensive back. Ed Bunis was all-OVC lineman and is now the line coach at Austin Peay.

1965

In 1965 the Peay had another banner year. Finishing with a 8-1-6 record, they turned in one Little All American with seven All-OVC team members and one honorable mention Little All American.

Chilcutt was the All-American, Ronnie Parsons was the honorable mention Little All American and were included on the All-OVC team with Tommy Dobbs, Tommy Dillard, Bobby Byrd, Andy Tombs and John Ogles.

The '66 campaign ended 6-4. Austin Peay had two 1,000 yard gainers in Carl Williams and John Ogles. Ogles, Dobbs, Parsons and Tombs all made first team All-OVC for their second year and Calvin Walter joined their ranks on the first team.

Williams was the second team all-OVC quarterback. In '66 John Ogles finished his brilliant career leading the OVC rushing and being named Little All-American. Ronnie Parsons was honorable mention Little All American the second straight year and Williams led the OVC in total yards gained.

1967 brought about a drought of success or possibly Austin Peay had just turned APSU from APSC and something happened: Austin Peay has not been above the .500 mark since then.

In 68 a 5-5 season was posted, but in '67 the Peay could only come up with 2-8. 1969 brought no relief as the Goves fell to a 3-7-1 mark. Came '70 and the Governors hit 3-7, '71 only saw a 3-4 season and '72 could barely go on with a 3-4 record being posted in the books. Everyone was tired of this so there came a cry for a new coach. Bill Dupes left.

But with all this there was still room for stars. In '67 the much proclaimed Harold (Red) Roberts came under the newsmen's eyes and was everybody's All-OVC choice, but he was the lone Governor on the All-OVC team. Roberts caught 56 passes for 666 yards. Philip Farinella made second team All-OVC and led the Goves with 112 tackles and 71 assists. Howell Platt also made second team All-OVC as a defensive back.

'68 brought about an uplift, but it was not a satisfying year. Doug Pittenger finished a fine career at the Peay making 38 tackles and 52 assists and earned honorable mention Little All American laurels. Red Roberts continued his great career catching 63 passes for 990 yards and making honorable mention All-American as a sophomore. Roberts and Platt achieved All-OVC status and Pittenger was named second team.

The next season rolled around and 1969 brought on Roberts again. Roberts looked to his Junior year with determination catching 67 passes for 869 yards. Red also caught first team All-OVC honors and honorable mention Little All-American for the second straight year. Bonnie Sloan made second team All-OVC as a freshman and along with Sloan on the second team were Jimmy Ogden and Ronnie Fagan.

In '69 Roberts also set a new NCAA record with 20 catches against Murray State University. Roberts at this point had a shot at making all-conference four years.

1970 rolled around and Roberts was finishing his truly magnificent career. Roberts missed setting the NCAA record for most passes caught in a career by only ten being double teamed and triple teamed. Facing defenses set to stop him, Red caught 46 passes for 474 yards. Roberts made All-OVC first team for the fourth straight year, the only Governor to do that in the school's history.

Roberts caught 232 passes in his career for 300 yards with 31 touchdowns receptions. Roberts holds 12 different records at APSU second only to Dennis Dyer, a quarterback, who threw most of his passes to Roberts.

Behind these two come John Ogles, Tim Chilcutt, John Kok, Jim Hardie, Ronnie Parsons, Ben Fendley, Howell Platt, Steve Shia, Ron Fagan and the rest are single record holders.

Terry Johnson led the Goves with 73-99 tackles and Jim Hardie was named all-OVC second string in 1970, playing in Roberts' shadow.

1971 rolled in and APSU did no better in the record department finishing 2-4. Sloan made 56 tackles, with 44 assists out of his defensive tackle spot to make first team All-OVC. Jim Hughes at defensive end also earned first team all-conference. Hughes had 63 tackles and 40 assists.

not interested enough to answer a simple letter and East Tennessee State University and Morehead State University failed to do so.

Of the schools reporting, Austin Peay has the least amount of trainers for their athletic program. Perhaps this is reflective to the success of the overall athletic programs through the years, because as we all know it takes money to build anything these days and it just isn't available at the present to build up a training program.

If there ever are the unsung heroes of college athletics, athletic trainers would definitely fall in this class. A thankless job would be a compliment to the hours of work they put in each week. Tie in their academic responsibilities and you have a full time job.

Govs embarrassed by Pacers

Fe-fi-fu fumble was the chant that rang from the stands Saturday night as the Austin Peay State University Governors fumbled nine times en route to a 31-26 loss to the University of Tennessee at Martin Pacers.

Austin Peay drew first blood in the game taking the opening kickoff and driving 72 yards in 11 plays to strike paydirt with 9:26 left in the first quarter. The drive was capped by an eight yard toss from Rick Christophel to Henry Yarbber for the APSU touchdown.

With 13:36 left in the second quarter, Pacer runningback Larry Washington took the ball around the right side of the Governor line and rambled 17 yards to tie the game up at 7-7. The rain soaked field began to take its toll on the Governors, as Austin Peay received the kick from UT Martin and coughed the ball up on their first offensive play.

It was only a matter of seconds before the Pacers took the lead in play as placekicker Mickey Hamilton sent a three-point through the uprights from 39 yards out to give Martin a 10-7 lead.

But once again the fumble bug bit the Governors as Rick Christophel was hit and fumbled in the Austin Peay endzone as Scott Hewett recovered the loose piggins for a UT Martin touchdown.

Finally with 58 seconds left in the first half, the Govs held on the ball for 13 consecutive offensive plays as Ron Raynor capped the 60-yard drive with a 25 yard jaunt into the Martin endzone. Bill Hawkins extra point attempt was wide to the left as the Pacers took a 17-13 lead over the Govs at the half.

Second half action opened with a bang as the Martin offensive corps pounded 79 yards which was capped by an 18 yard run by Bill Staehs put the Pacers ahead 24-13.

Following back to back fumbles, the Govs ended up with the football on the Martin 13 yard line. Three plays later, Christophel scored on a quarterback keeper from two yards out to bring the Governors within five points 24-19.

Again the Pacers mounted the offensive attack as they covered 28 yards in 13 plays as Larry Washington took it for Martin from one yard out to tally their last touchdown.

With the score 31-19, the Govs had to mount an offensive attack to pull this one out of the fire. Austin Peay opened fourth quarter action covering 38 yards in eight plays as Ron Raynor took it in from two yards out to bring the score to 31-26.

Not about to lose without a closing effort, Austin Peay's defensive corps gave as ground as Martin was forced to give the Govs one more chance before the final horn.

With 5:31 remaining in the game, APSU took over possession of the football and some five minutes and 14 plays later had advanced to the Martin one yard line.

But Austin Peays bit fell short as the Govs were found guilty of illegal procedure and found themselves six yards shy and five points short as the final horn sounded.

A good jumper, Arnold Lynch is expected to be very aggressive player. He is 6-1 and 180 pounds. Otis Howard, 6-7, 210 pounder, is an All-State performer from Oak Ridge averaging 26 points and 17 rebounds. He had a game high last year of 40 points.

Selected among the top 25 high school players in the state, Gary Greene averaged 22.9 points and 21.1 rebounds last year. He had a game high of 40 points.

Norman Jackson averaged 18 points and five assists last year and was selected to the All-State team. He was selected for the Kentucky High School All-Star squad which played against Russia.

Joe Collison averaged 17 points last year and has an outstanding outside shot. He was selected the most valuable player for his team.

Kelly speculates that, "as the younger players develop, we can have a better team."

Otis Howard has even greater expectations. He says, "We'll have a 26-0 record in regular season. We've got great potential, a lot of good leapers, and don't forget, this is the home of the pressure defense."

Austin Peay backs recognized by OVC

Austin Peay State University can look forward to its 1974 homecoming with two Ohio Valley Conference offensive players of the week.

Bill Hammon obtained his ranking against Carson-Newman carrying the ball 21 times for 147 yards. Hammon led the Governors in rushing to that point.

Then Henry Yarbher took charge and leads the Governors now.

Henry grabbed his OVC offensive player of the week against the University of North Alabama. Yarbher galloped around over and through the lines to pick up 260 yards and set a new APSU single game rushing record.

Yarbher leads the Goves with a net total of 644 yards. On top of that Henry carries an average per attempt of near six yards, while averaging 86.7 yards of rushing a game.

Hammon follows Yarbher with a net yardage of 246 yards. Bill received a slight injury early in the season and lost his starting slot, so he has only carried the ball 77 times averaging around three yards per carry.

1972

The Peay took to the turf for the last time under Bill Dupes in 1972. The Governors continued losing with a 3-6 year. Bonnie Sloan made All-OVC again. The only other Goves to be mentioned were Jerry Seay, Gary Kaufman, Bob Stammers, Scott Strain and Jim Thompson.

Sloan led the Goves in defense with 89 tackles and 35 assists. Bonnie, completely deaf, went on to play pro ball at St. Louis. Rick Christophel led the Governors in total offense and Louie Wright led the Peay in rushing.

The Peay has its new coach in 1973, Jack Bushofsky. Bushofsky declared the beginning of a tradition, the tradition of winning. In his first year the Goves saw Bushofsky take what was already here and do no better, but the key to football in college is recruitment.

This is where Bushofsky is headed.

The Peay finished a miserable 2-8, but there were stars. Bill Hammon carried the ball for a good solid four yards a carry and gained 332 yards to lead the team. There was little help from Hammon as he carried the ball over 50 per cent of the time when Christophel handed it off.

Richard Woods led the OVC in punt returns and was second on the team in receptions with 14 for 234 yards. Ron Baily caught 23 for 385 yards. Dwight Houston led the Goves in tackles with 82 and 44 assists.

No Governors made the first all-conference team, but Ed Flynn and Don Neff made second team.

In closing one can look at the record of stars and know Austin Peay State University has had its share. AP has had a football team since 1890 and had eight different coaches and many more years and many average years and many good years and a few great years. But, the Peay has always had its stars and always had its heroes.
