Martin returns

Robert Martin has been named as business manager for The All State.

Martin is a 1979 spring quarter graduate of Austin Peay State University, where he received a Bachelor's degree in Accounting. While attending APSU, Martin was selected as Mr. Governor and was the president of his senior class.

Upon graduation from APSU, Martin attended the University of Alabama for his graduate studies.

Martin will be overseeing the business and financial matters of The All State.

News welcome

All articles, announcements, etc. should be submitted to The All State no later than 4 p.m. Thursday afternoon to appear in the following Wednesday issue. Material may be mailed to The All State, box 8334 Clarksville, TN 37040, or be delivered to room 104 Ellington Hall.

Questions may be directed to Organizations Editor, Cathy Allsup, Box 6585 APSU or call 648-6152.

Contest planned

International Publications is accepting entries for its fall National College Poetry Contest. A total of $200 in book and cash prizes will be awarded and all accepted poems will be published free.

All poems must be original and unpublished. Entries must be typed, double-spaced, titled and limited to fourteen lines. No more than ten poems may be entered. Deadline is October 31. Place, name and address and college attended on the upper left-hand corner of each entry mailed.

An initial one dollar registration fee for the first entry and an additional fee of fifty cents for each additional poem is required. Send entries to International Publications, P.O. Box 44927, Los Angeles, California, 90044.

Members sought

Phi Alpha Theta International Honor Society in History invites all history majors and minors to consider membership in the society.

Membership indicates academic achievement and raises the standing of an applicant for entrance into the Civil Service. Planned activities provide opportunities for academic and social participation.

Contact the Department of History, Clement 240 or telephone 648-7919 for more information.

Jobs offered

These students looking for off-campus part-time work should come by the Placement Office in the Emerald Hill Alumni Center and fill out a part-time application card.

If you have filled out one in the past, you still need to come by and complete a new one giving your new schedule.

Each quarter you need to come by the Placement Office and complete a new card as the old cards are taken out and discarded.

Extension proposed for Dickson

By Cathy Allsup

Austin Peay has developed a proposal which could create an extension of the Austin Peay campus at Dickson, according to APSU President Robert O. Riggs.

"If there are no snags," Riggs said, "operation could begin as soon as fall of 1981."

While admitting university expansion is a "hot issue" and citing instances of denied expansion to other institutions, Riggs expressed enthusiasm for the proposal.

The president stressed the availability of facilities and community support as "unique" advantages. "Interest originated within the community," Riggs said.

Interest—as defined by Dickson Chamber of Commerce President Hugh Mayes—includes the donation of a building, plus a $400 thousand fund raising campaign by the community.

Austin Peay officials and Goodlark Hospital administrator Dr. James Jackson reached a tentative agreement concerning the donation of a building several weeks ago.

The facility, formerly Dickson General Hospital, may be donated to the University if the expansion is approved and funds for its renovation and equipping as an academic facility are raised within the community.

Fund raising is spearheaded by "Dickson Counts Again for a Brighter Tomorrow."

As funds are being raised in Dickson county, Austin Peay administrators will be presenting the proposal to the State Board of Regents.

"Austin Peay has developed a proposal to send to the Board under the direction of Dr. Bill Ellis," Riggs said. It is to be submitted this month.

If passed, Riggs explained, the proposal would go to the Tennessee Higher Education Commission. The last stamp of approval must come from the Tennessee State Legislature. There, funds would be provided to operate the extension.

With no delays in the project's implementation, full operation would be achieved as soon as 1984.

The Dickson campus would offer undergraduate and graduate courses. Areas such as business, health science, nursing, and education are to be concentrated upon.

"We are extremely pleased with the offer made by Dr. Jackson and the community, and we are very excited with the project's potential," Riggs concluded.

Companies to set interviews

The following companies will be interviewing at the Placement Office in the upcoming months. Seniors interested in interviewing should contact the office (648-7896) or come by the Placement Office to sign up on the schedule.

Dorm rent up 25 percent

Housing repairs underway

By Art Hunt

This year Austin Peay dormitory residents are paying up to 25 percent more for housing fees as compared to last year's rates.

Dorm rent increases have developed due to a number of factors, says Bob Nettles. Inflation is one of the reasons rates have risen Nettles reports.

"The Tennessee Valley Authority is asking for rate increases every three months," Nettles said. "They've got a 15 percent increase going into effect in October."

This year's housing improvements and special emergency building reserves have also contributed to higher dorm costs.

Nettles said part of the money from the fees will go into major repairs to keep dorms in better condition.

New heating systems and new paint jobs will be added to some of the resident halls. Ten thousand dollars worth of draperies have already been ordered for Cross, Rawlins, and Killbrew. Other repairs such as the patching of the Ball Village roof will be supplemented, "where ever the need is there."

"We're also trying to build a reserve for major emergencies in the future," Nettles said. Five percent of the money from higher fee rates will be used for what is called a "repair and replacement fund." The fund will be used for any housing emergencies that might come about.

Dorm rates might be higher this year but that isn't affecting resident occupancy. In fact, Nettles says that the dorms are already over prescribed by ten percent this fall.

When asked about future dorm rates Nettles answered, "I full well expect them to go up almost another 20 percent or so next year."

A comparison of last year's rates to this year's rates are as follows:

	1979-1980	1980-1981
Ellington	$175	$210
Harned	175	210
Miller	175	210
Bloent	185	230
Harvell	185	230
Cross	230	280
Rawlins	230	280
Killbrew	300	350
Sevier	300	350
Ball Village	210	265

Financial Aid takes cuts

By Carol Pickel

John Bratcher, director of Financial Aid at Austin Peay, noted recently that financial aid has taken a cutback in several sources of funds this fall.

Bratcher said that Austin Peay's federal, state, and private sources of financial aid were exhausted, with the exception of the Basic Educational Opportunity Grant (BEOG). Past sources of funds have been utilized faster this year as the individual needs of each student increased.

Bratcher cited these needs as the cost of living and the increased costs of education. These swiftly rising factors account for the depletion of funds.

Hardest hit were student loan funds, including the National Direct Student Loan (NDSL), from which Austin Peay lost some $35,000 in available money this year.

Funds depleted include the Austin Peay State University Fund, the Miller Fund, and the Last Resort Loan for Tennessee residents. Bratcher noted that the Last Resort Loan, whose funds come from state money, was affected both by the state budget cutbacks and by legal problems which have blocked approval of the program in the Tennessee legislature.

Also more difficult for students to obtain this year is the Guaranteed Bank Loan, a loan made to students by banks and other lending institutions at a lower than normal rate of interest. "The banks seem to be tighter and a little more conservative (in lending) this year," Bratcher said.

The federally-funded BEOG program was reduced $50 per person across the board, Bratcher said. He noted that most students will not see their Basic Grants as being cut; for example, a student who received $968 last year will receive the same amount this year. However, that same student would have received $1038 without the across-the-board reduction in funds.

Bratcher pointed out that students who apply and qualify for BEOG will receive it regardless of when they apply. Sufficient BEOG funds are set aside by the government in anticipation of students who qualify for aid.

"Students with a greater need applied early and qualified, while those students who applied for financial aid during the middle to late summer, or who had delays in their application, are hurting," Bratcher said.

"The three alternatives that served so well in the past, are nonexistent," Bratcher said. He noted that Austin Peay had never before been in the financial aid situation that it now faces, but that the University was not in a unique position either. After having contacted the University of Tennessee at both Chattanooga and Knoxville, Bratcher said the quicker depletion of funds seemed to be a general trend.

Bratcher does not expect this trend to reverse. With the possible exception of obtaining additional work-study money for winter quarter, he said, "As far as instant help, things look pretty bleak."

Other federally-funded programs, the Supplemental Education Opportunity Grant (SEOG) and the College Work-Study Program (CWS), were not affected by cuts this year.

STRONG FOUNDATION—Frank Hooper, construction worker, lays back for the student apartments located on Home Avenue.

Carrier resigns

Mike Carrier, director of the Joe Morgan University Center has resigned from his position at Austin Peay.

Carrier, who has held the position at APSU for two and a half years, has accepted a position as university center director at East Tennessee State University, in Johnson City, Tennessee.

Carrier explained that he is a native of Johnson City and accepting the position meant "going home" to him.

"There are a lot of people at Austin Peay whom I will miss, but the new job is a great opportunity for me," Carrier said.

The University Center and Intramurals are currently merging, with Buddy Bungarner as director.

Higher education to suffer from cuts

A budget cut of $385,000 was bestowed on Austin Peay over a week ago. The Tennessee State Legislature felt it necessary to cut a budget that had already been slashed by one-quarter of a million dollars.

Such a cut is a serious blow to higher education, according to Robert O. Riggs, president of Austin Peay. Just how serious a blow may still be undetermined.

Departments have suffered cutbacks in funds and staff. Vacant positions will, in most cases, go unfilled. This means that each educator will have to teach one extra class this year. Although one class may not seem to be so large a burden, this time is replacing hours that were devoted to student advisement.

A common joke around campus, but sometimes a reality, is that students advise teachers, not visa versa. With one more class to teach, instructors will have even less time to stay informed on the ever-changing course requirements.

A three-hour course in itself is not time-consuming, but we must remember that hours of planning, grading and organizing go into each class. The increased load with so little advance warning may damage the quality of the regularly-taught classes, as well as advisement.

Some areas such as the Visiting Artists and Speakers Committee have no funds. The little bit of educational and cultural entertainment that Austin Peay could afford to give its campus community has been done away with. With budgets still under scrutiny and question, other cuts such as this one are inevitable.

President Riggs' first promise was that the academic aspect of the university would be the last to suffer. It is true that no actual department has been vanquished, but the side effects from other cuts affect the campus from top to bottom.

Answers? There really are none. The cuts that have already been made seem unfair and impossible. However, there is no way out. Three hundred and eighty five thousand dollars cannot be saved by small measures of conservation.

President Riggs also stated that there was a slight chance that the economy would pick up and the cut would be restored. That chance could more easily be termed miracle.

Higher education has received cut after cut in its budget. We as taxpayers supposedly pay billions of dollars each year, with some of this money earmarked for education. We can only hope that by making our voices heard through our legislators that the current cuts will be the last.

State representatives to the legislature for the Clarksville area are Roscoe Pickering, Route 1, Adams, TN and Riley C. Darnell, 221 South Third Street, Clarksville, TN.

Each of us will feel the effects of these cuts; perhaps we should write and appeal to men who can do something about it.

Letters policy

As in years past, The All State still encourages student opinion on major or not so major issues on campus.

We strongly urge any student or faculty member who wishes to express his opinions to write to the editor of The All State.

Letters to the editor should be no longer than 300 words. They MUST be signed and a phone number indicated for verification purposes. No letter will be published unless verified.

Letters may be mailed to The All State, Box 8334, Clarksville, TN 37040, or brought to room 104 Ellington Hall on campus. They must be received by 4 p.m. Thursday to appear in the following issue.

letters to the editor

President welcomes students

Dear Students:

Welcome to the 1980-81 academic year at Austin Peay State University. I am pleased to have you on campus, and I look forward to sharing a productive and successful year with you.

As you return to campus you'll recognize a number of curricular and physical changes. Our new B.S. in Nursing degree program welcomes its first class.

Boehms gives fall greeting

Dear Editor:

It's my pleasure to welcome all new and returning students to the campus for the beginning of the 1980-81 school year. I am looking forward to all of us having one of the best years in recent history. A lot of exciting things are planned and you are the ones who can make it all happen.

Those of you returning will see several changes that took place during the summer. Some of the most notable are in housing, food services and campus aesthetics. We hope you will find these both pleasing and helpful.

Those who are new at the "Peay," we extend a hearty welcome. You are entering a whole new phase in your life. We sincerely believe you have selected the best university of its kind. Austin Peay has much to offer you and can receive much in return. You will have an opportunity to receive a good education and, if you become involved, you can be a vital part of determining the future of the university.

I encourage all students, new and returning, to become a part of the university. Get involved in organizations, activities, and decision-making. Those of us who make final decisions cannot know what you want unless you tell us.

It is good to have all of you on campus. I hope you have an excellent year and that all your goals and plans are fulfilled!

Sincerely yours,
Charles N. Boehms

Federal funds have been awarded to support a new Special Services program which is designed to aid students requiring additional preparation for collegiate work.

You will notice the construction of the new Maintenance/General Services and Student Apartments buildings. Ground breaking for the new College of Business and Professional Programs building will take place later in the fall.

All in all it has been a very busy summer, but I trust that the progress which has been made will afford you a better environment in which to complete your university studies. Austin Peay is a fine institution, and I hope you share with me pride in its excellence.

Again, please accept my best wishes for a successful academic year.

Sincerely,
Robert O. Riggs
President

Coaching staff gives welcome

Dear Students, Faculty and Staff:

I want to take this opportunity to welcome everyone back for what we hope will be an exciting year for all Governor Bakeshall fans. There will be a lot of new faces and numbers for everyone to learn and all the new players sure would like to make a lot of new friends in a hurry.

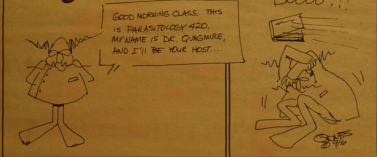

The coaching staff would like to welcome all of you to observe practice anytime. We start October 15, and we are all pointing to a very exciting night in Dunn Center on November 20. You will hear a lot more about that between now and then.

We certainly appreciate our fans and their enthusiasm and loyalty. We are anxious to get to work and field an Austin Peay team that is really easy to get excited about. Stop by Dunn Center and see us anytime and give us a few tips.

Sincerely,
Hon. Bargarate
Head Basketball Coach

Fear and loathing at a Klan rally

Editor's note: The following material is true. The views expressed are the author's and not necessarily those of The All State.

By Bobby Jones

Needing a bean bag chair for my den and having enough money to invest in one, seemed like a good omen. I raked together all the pennies my pockets would hold and scamped over to the nearby K-Mart.

Fortunately for me, the store must have just had a huge run on the little beanbags for they had none to spare. I took this as another good omen. "This Sunday," I thought, "is going to be a strange day." As I left that establishment, I saw in front of me not one, but three men dressed in white hoods with matching shirts. Then I remembered reading something in the paper about a Ku Klux Klan Rally for that afternoon.

Well, to make a long story short, a friend of mine and I went to the rally prepared to hurl obscenities at these "I'm a bigot and proud to be one" animals.

What we witnessed, was exactly what we had feared. The head dragon or snake or whatever he calls himself spoke mainly of patriotism, of Ronald Reagan, and the white man's role as a small crowd of curious onlookers looked on. Sprinkled throughout the crowd were several KKK men women armed with high powered rifles and various other guns. That sort of dampened our mood to overtake the microphone and shout obscenities saved for such special occasions.

A small band of rednecks armed with FBR and pickup trucks gathered near the stage singing "Dixie" and shouting "Kill the niggers" while members of the KKK stood there watching and smiling in delight. As my friend said at the top of his lungs,

"Kill a commie for Christ" . . . it just didn't make any sense.

Now they gathered around the huge cross they had built to crucify the non-WASPs. As they did their chant, another chorus of "Dixie" filled the air. The faint sound of cannons and gun fire echoed as the torches set off the "holy" blaze. We couldn't understand the meaning behind it.

As the crowd left and the Klan asked for membership applications we stepped up to a Klansman packing what appeared to be an Army issued gun. We inquired why so many of them were armed.

He said, "For protection." Protection from what, the Boogymen? He continued, "You see those woods up there? I saw a thousand niggers up there waiting to jump on us." Overwhelmed with this sudden display of massive paranoia, I shook my head in disbelief. This is when I made my blunder.

In the confusion I had forgotten to remove my Anderson Fox President button. I realized my mistake when he stared at my chest for a good ten seconds and whispered to his cohorts in crime "Gut a couple of bad asses here."

We took that as our cue to depart. Even liberals aren't stupid. But before we left, we sort of crippled their KKK RALLY sign to show our disgust.

In retrospect I can only say that everyone should be required to attend a Klan Rally just once in order to realize how prejudice eats away at the very heart and souls of the people it invades. In this way I feel the Klan is necessary to show us how utterly stupid some people are.

Xanadu is fantasy: too much so!

Xanadu is only Olivia Newton-John's second film, and she'll ravish your senses with her luminous beauty, her beautiful voice, her incandescent sweetness, her otherworldly loveliness. Her acting ability is still in question, however.

One of Olivia's two co-stars, Gene Kelly, is still the greatest dancer of all time. The incomparable, wonderful Kelly dances again in a film. And when he dances with Olivia to the song, "Whenever You're Away From Me," the charm, warmth and joy of their dust make the years slip away back to something akin to the days of our innocence. Kelly's dancing truly holds the film together.

Olivia's love interest in Xanadu is Michael Beck, the man with the dynamite presence in "The Warriors." Displaying a new side of his talent, Beck's scenes with Olivia pinpoint his strength and his vulnerability, particularly in a number they share: "... she walks in, and I'm suddenly a hero..." This dust is actually sung by Olivia and Cliff Richard on the soundtrack.

Xanadu is, of course, a love story. It's about love found. Love lost. Love recaptured. Love eternal. Love which inspires. Love with transcends time. Love, however, that is totally unrealistic and hardly believable.

Olivia Newton-John portrays a muse, one of Zeus' nine daughters. She and her eight sisters come down to earth to help mere mortals make their fantasies into realities.

Gene Kelly is a former clarinet player who once had his own band and nightclub in the 1940's, but gave it all up for the security of the family business. Now wealthy and retired, he longs to have another club and be involved with music and the magic of show business again.

Michael Beck is a young artist who duplicates record album covers for billboards. He is not happy with his work; it is as static as a still life. He is uncertain what he wants from life. Until he meets the Kira.

That's the entire plot, and for that matter, the entire theme. Don't try to search too deeply in this movie for hidden meaning, you'll miss Kelly's dancing and Olivia's beauty, which are the highpoints of Xanadu.

Very light entertainment. Take a friend if you're really bored and have seen everything else; you may have a good rap session while watching Xanadu.

Playhouse has varied program

This year the Austin Peay Playhouse has a smorgasbord of shows lined up for the season. From comedy to drama, the theatre department will present five performances to dazzle and entertain you.

The first show on the agenda is "The Male Animal." Academicans, athletes, romantics, and reactionaries joust merrily, and sometimes seriously through the "Hallowed Halls of Ivy" on the eye of the "Big Game" in this delightful comedy by James Thurber and Elliot Nugent. Directed by Mr. John Griffin, the show premieres Oct. 29.

The second show presents eight people trapped in an old inn during a snow storm, and one is a murderer. "The Mousetrap" is a thrilling combination of comedy and suspense by Agatha Christie. It will be directed by Darrell Osborn and will open Dec. 3.

"Lysistrata," the third show, is a ramshacklely raucous rendition of the relationship between men and women revealing where control really resides. This play is suggested for mature audiences. Directed by Mr. Jim Elder, the show opens Feb. 11.

The fourth show will be the annual children's production set for April 5-11. John Griffin will select and direct a play for the young and the old at heart.

Neil Simon's "California Suite" will be presented May 13-16. Simon is at his best as he deftly blends warmth, unabashed humor, and compassion in a series of unusual visitations. The play will be directed by Dr. Joe Filippo.

Season tickets are now on sale for $5 at the Department of Speech, Communication and Theatre.

Chips performs

The Buffalo Chip-kickers will be playing in concert at Austin Peay State University on Sept. 19, at 11 a.m.

The Buffalo Chip-kickers, an internationally travelling band from State College, Pennsylvania, have played at more than 200 colleges and fairs. They play mostly bluegrass-style music.

In the words of their critics, the Buffalo Chip-kickers have been described as "thoroughly captivating," by Edinboro State College; and possessing outstanding musical talent and lively personalities," by Penn State.

The contest is sponsored by Phi Mu Alpha Professional Music Fraternity for Men. This year's contest will feature 15 area marching bands.

Trophies will be awarded to the three highest scoring bands in each of the three classes. Also, a Grand Champion trophy will be awarded to the band with the highest score, regardless of classification.

The judging panel will consist of Mr. A. R. Cassavant, Chattanooga, TN, Dr. John Minx, Jonesboro, Ark., Dr. William Rost, Highland Heights, Ky., Dr. William Moffitt, Houston, TX, Dr. John Long, Troy, Ala., and Master Sergeant Doug Curlee, Hopkinsville, Ky.

Admission to this year's contest will be $2 per person.

Cut in budget campus-wide

By Cathy Allsup

State revenues are down, costs are going up and the last legislative session did not treat higher education kindly said Dr. Robert O. Riggs as he explained the fiscal situation for Austin Peay in the next year.

Riggs cited dependence by the state upon sales tax revenue as a contributing factor to our economic problems. A fall in sales tax income led to cuts in many areas funded by the state. Higher education is a particularly sensitive area, as the President referred to university funding as a "funding ground."

The last legislative budgeted Austin Peay in such a manner that one-quarter of a million dollars had to be internally cut to balance the books. "To do this," Riggs said, "we didn't replace vacated positions, cut travel, etc."

The prepared budget was cut again when an additional 5 percent loss was announced by the state. This was "a serious blow to higher education," according to Riggs. To meet the mandate, Austin Peay then had to cut an additional $385 thousand dollars from the budget.

"We took $100 thousand out of the physical plant with the remaining $200 thousand spread throughout the campus," Riggs said.

Other cuts, according to Business Manager Sandra Bright, have been divided among the various facets of the university community.

Instruction and academic support receives 66.5 percent of the budget, and was cut $189,500. This area includes instruction, the library, financial aid, the deans, the Fort Campbell Center, and academic affairs and admissions.

A $14,300 slice was taken from student affairs. This heading includes Intramurals, student life, student publications and the university center. It absorbs 5 percent of the total budget.

Institutional research, school relations and alumni affairs are supervised by the Executive Assistant to the President. Receiving 2.2 percent of the budget, this area was cut $4,300.

The second largest of the cuts was to the administrative area which controls athletics, the computer center, operation of the physical plant and maintenance. Using 23.1 percent of the budget, this area lost $65,800.

A $7,100 reduction was levied on the business office, which requires 2.5 percent of the total budget. The remaining $2,000 was cut from the President's office.

Bright stressed the final budget figures would not be available until next week.

"Although plans are not finalized, each administrator is working with personnel in his/her area in identifying programs and accounts for budget reductions," she said.

"The result of the budget reshuffle is what Riggs termed "a prudent, realistic budget."

On an optimistic note, the president revealed there is a chance the $385 thousand cut could be restored, "if the economy turns around, and things pick up in the spring, we may get it back," he said.

Even in the light of the budget problems, Riggs expressed "positive feelings" about the coming year. "All indications are pointing to some increase in enrollment—the dorms are in the best shape they have been in for the past 4 or 5 years—Lake Riggs is no more—I look forward to a good year," stated the President.

Newspaper has new offices, varied staff

The All State begins the new school year with new offices and many new additions to the staff.

The new offices of the campus newspaper are located in rooms 104, 105 and 106 in the south end of Ellington Hall. The move now places the paper in larger rooms with access to an outside entrance. Mary Kay Hinton, last spring's editor-in-chief and the returning editor, said, "The new offices give us more separate areas for layout and office space. Our offices are larger and more open, but we are less spread out than in years past. It should help us to keep organized."

Besides Hinton, six editorial positions are filled by veteran staffers. Lisa Jackson will resume her position as managing editor this fall, after taking over the post last spring. Joe Gillespie and Art Hunt will serve as news and associate editors, respectively. Gillespie and Hunt were last spring's assistant editors. Cathy Allsup, organizations editor, and Ken Knapp, assistant editor, were both reporters on last year's staff.

The sports department will be headed by Ronnie Graves. Graves also joined the staff last year as sports back, and then assistant editor. His right-hand assistant will be Steve Harmon. Harmon has worked extensively with Sherwin Clift Voice of the Governors.

Newcomers in the editorial department include Carol Pickel, Joni Thomas, Yolanda Heath, Douglas Holman, and Roy Buchanan. Pickel is a transfer student from Rose State Community College where she served as editor-in-chief of the newspaper last year.

Thomas, Heath, Halloran and Buchanan complete the writing staff as reporters. Thomas is a freshman from Nashville where she served as editor-in-chief of her high school paper. Heath, Halloran and Buchanan are returning AP students, but are all new to The All State staff.

Bobby Jones, last year's editor-in-chief during fall and winter quarters, will serve as graphic editor. "Ellington Hall," last two years' weekly comic strip, will return under Jones' hand. Other graphic designs will be supervised by the former editor.

Wally Barckett, advertising manager, starts the year with only one edition of last year's The All State as experience. "Wally is very new to the job, but his enthusiasm and determination will make up for it," says Hinton.

Behind the lenses for The All State will be Robert Smith and Regina Bogie. Smith will graduate after fall quarter after serving the paper for five years.

Also returning to their positions in the production aspect of the paper are two typesetters, Cheryl Benton and Marsha Bailey and Walt Haralson, distribution manager.

The All State staff is eager to produce another award-winning paper for the benefit and recognition of this campus," said Hinton. "All of the staff is capable of top-notch work."

Food service caters campus

Beginning this fall there will be a new food service which will serve Austin Peay.

James Rice, spokesman for Mississippi Valley Food Service, said that the new food plan is including several renovations.

"The Harvill Hall Cafeteria, the Killbuck Hall Pantry, and the Deli are all being remodeled," Rice said.

According to Rice, there will also be an "A la carte" in the campus cafeteria.

Customers may either by an individual item that they want or they may buy a meal by using a meal plan," said Rice.

"There will be two meal plans. One for 15 meals per week and one for 10 meals per week," added Rice.

The cafeteria will be open Monday through Friday for breakfast from 7 a.m. to 9 a.m., for lunch from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and for supper from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.

The Gov's Grill will be open Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. and from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. on weekends. The Deli will be open Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m., and the Pantry will be open from 5:30 a.m. to 12:30 a.m. seven days a week.

Rice said that the new food service offers "quality food at a reasonable price."

USAB sets fall events

By Lisa Jackson

Tony Thompson, new president of the University Social Activities Board, says that he has high hopes for an organized and productive year.

"USAB," Thompson explained, "is the group responsible for programming and entertaining the campus community."

Thompson said that USAB has several programs planned for this year. The first is the movie program provided to Austin Peay students.

"Movies will be shown approximately every two weeks this fall quarter," Thompson said. The movie schedule for this fall is as follows:

Sept. 16, "Dirty Harry"; Sept. 24, "Game of Death"; Oct. 8, "Uptown Saturday Night"; Oct. 22, "Gator"; Oct. 29, "The Chosen"; Nov. 5, "Rocky Horror"; Nov. 19, "Kramer Versus Kramer."

Showings will be at 6:30 p.m. and 9 p.m. The cost of admission will be $1.

A new program has been added to USAB this fall. This is a schedule of video presentation on the wide screen television in the university center. The schedule for these programs which will run all day is as follows:

"Mother's Little Network," Oct. 6-7, "Ape-man" and "Skill Brains and Guts," Nov. 11-13, "Mr. Bill" and "Grudge Fighter," and Dec. 2-4, "Steve Martin in Recording Session."

Thompson explained that USAB will also present a series of mid-day concerts to the students this fall.

A picnic featuring Cross Country, a blue grass band, will take place on Sept. 15.

On Sept. 19 at 11 a.m., a bluegrass-country band named Buffalo Chip-kickers will perform in the university center.

Scheduled for Oct. 29 is a comedy team called Obrien and Sevans. This will also be at 11 a.m. in the university center.

Tom Parks, comedian who will make an appearance at 11:30 a.m. on Nov. 6, university center lobby.

Thompson said that one special event has been planned for the fall quarter. "The first circus ever to be held in the Dunn Center will take place on Oct. 1." Thompson explained that the Royal Hanneford Circus will feature clowns, animals and other acts usually seen at a circus. "Yes, even elephants," Thompson remarked.

Infirmary gains nurse practitioner

By Joni Thomas

As the fall quarter begins, Austin Peay will receive an influx of new faces. One of those many new faces, that of Mrs. Diane Berty, is a face that may seem familiar to some Austin Peay old timers.

Mrs. Berty, who is joining the campus staff on a full-time basis this year, will be working in the Student Health Services Building as the University's very first official Nurse Practitioner.

The infirmary, which is open Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 in the afternoon, provides students with health care and treatment when necessary. Although there is sometimes a charge for certain medicines prescribed, most services offered are usually free to students.

Mrs. Berty may be new to her position at the infirmary, but by no means is she a stranger to the Austin Peay campus. A former nursing student at APSU, she graduated in 1977. One of her past graduation jobs was a part-time position at the campus infirmary.

Upon her graduation from Maharry in May of 1980, Mrs. Berty, now a certified Registered Nurse (RN), applied for the Nurse Practitioner position that was open at APSU. As the campus' Nurse Practitioner she will work along with the infirmary physician to provide health care for the students.

Greek system expands

"The Greek system appears to be growing at Austin Peay with a new fraternity planning to colonize in the fall and an increased interest in rush," Glenda Earwood, Director of Student Life recently stated.

Rush is a series of social events designed to introduce Greek life to interested students at Austin Peay. "Rush is a year-round job," stated one sorority member, "but fall rush is special. There is more emphasis placed on it... many times this is a person's first exposure to the Greek system," she concluded.

Many campus Greeks said that they foresee more interest, not only in the present rush period, but in social fraternities and sororities as a whole. Participation in sorority rush is up 100 percent this fall and Sigma Nu, a new fraternity, is scheduled to begin colonization October 10.

"With an increased emphasis on scholarship, philanthropic activities and friendships in addition to the traditional activities of Greeks, more students are being attracted to Greek life at Austin Peay," Earwood said.

Rush activities will continue through the next few weeks. Additional information about rush or the Greek system may be acquired by contacting Earwood, 648-7451, Lydia Davis, president of Panhellenic, Jackie Robinson, Inter-Fraternity Council president or any campus Greek.

House bought for Riggs

The Board of Regents has purchased a new residence for the president. The house, located at 600 Dunbar Cave Road, cost $124,000.

The house is approximately 3,000 square feet, consisting of four bedrooms, three baths, a living room, dining room, den, and kitchen. It is located on a landscaped, two-acre lot near St. Bethlehem.

The Board of Regents decided to purchase a new house for the president after it became apparent that the repair of Archwood would take longer than anticipated. The previous presidential residence was gutted by a fire on February 2.

The house on Dunbar Road was purchased after a June 5 meeting of an ad hoc committee for the selection of a residence for the President of APSU toured several homes in the Clarksville area. The committee looked at five homes that could be purchased in the general price range established by the Board of Regents.

Committee members Dr. Kenneth Ezell, Ben Kimbrough, and Dr. Roy Nicks made the final decision. President Robert Riggs accompanied them on the tour.

Archwood, a historic home located on College Street, incurred extensive damage from the February fire. The majority of damage is warping from the water used to extinguish the blaze.

The eventual fate of Archwood is still uncertain. It is rumored that the bottom story may be used as a city museum and the top story as office space.

Fridges rented

Refrigerator rental is now in process and will continue as long as supplies last.

Rental cost is $10. Refrigerators may be rented and received in room 111 of the Memorial Recreation Complex from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

McDowell outlines SGA plans

Fellow Students:

For those of you here for the first time, congratulations on choosing Austin Peay, one of the finest universities in the Southeast for those who are returning, welcome back.

This will be a year of progress for Austin Peay. The new student apartments are already well on their way toward completion and it will not be long before construction will begin on the new Business Building. For the returning students, notice all the nice sidewalks and grass growing in the heart of the campus as well as the progress the bowl has made in a year.

As the SGA plans for a big year in working for student rights, we have also set some goals and projects for the coming year:

1. The Student Discount Card - This card allows students to receive a bonafide discount on merchandise at businesses participating in this program. Our goal is to make students more aware of service and expand by 15 percent the business participation.

2. The SGA Paperback Bookstore (Ellington Hall) - With an increased inventory we hope that many more students will take advantage of this service. The Bookstore sells books to students at half the cover price.

3. SGA Angry Red Spirit Train - We hope to sponsor two Spirit Trains during the fall quarter. These trains will provide transportation to and from the hallgates at a cut rate. This is to increase support for our ball teams and build school spirit and pride.

4. Luncheon Forum - The SGA anticipates bringing at least one guest speaker in per quarter to inform us on current issues and answer questions during a lunch setting.

5. Alternative Publication - At least twice during the academic year, we want to present a publication to the students explaining what SGA has been doing as well as its future plans.

6. Drug Alcohol Awareness Week - Again, we will attempt to present a series of demonstrations, seminars and professional lectures in order to help us understand the effects, the uses/abuses of Drugs and Alcohol. This program will not be presented negatively, instead, we will use a drug/alcohol responsibility approach.

7. Traffic Appeal Board - We intend to revamp this Board and establish certain guidelines to increase its effectiveness.

8. High School Leadership Workshop - We are in the final stages of organizing the third annual High School Leadership Workshop. As well as passing out instructions on how to improve the effectiveness of a high school student leadership, this provides Austin Peay with a recruiting program.

9. Austin Peay Week - We are looking forward to expanding on last year's activities. This week was established to pull the entire campus of Austin Peay together and at the same time show our appreciation to the Clarksville community for the services they provide.

10. SGA Complaint Boxes - I hope we can develop a better flow of communication through the use of these boxes. This is a chance for the SGA to discover some problems and concerns the students are facing. It will also allow SGA to offer a helping hand and work for a solution. I urge you to take advantage of these boxes. I will research each letter and answer each letter.

I am very thankful to have such fine executive officers that assist me in every move I make and a great advisory staff for a cabinet and a very dedicated legislative body that will work enthusiastically for the students.

Please become a part of SGA. Let your thoughts and suggestions be heard. There is so much we can accomplish if we have strong student support.

Don't be afraid to use your SGA because we are here to protect your rights and serve you.

Yours, for a greater Austin Peay,
Duane McDowell, President
Student Government Association

ROTC cadets receive honors

This summer eighteen men and women attended the 1980 ROTC Advanced Camp representing Austin Peay State University Army ROTC. The camp consisted of six weeks of intensive training in a variety of military subjects.

The cadets were evaluated in six areas—rifle marksmanship, physical training, land navigation, military skills, tactical application exercise (TAX), and overall leadership performance. Austin Peay placed third in overall performance among 67 schools from an eight state region.

Several cadets distinguished themselves with outstanding individual efforts. Jim Walker was selected as the top cadet in his battalion of about 800 persons, and was the recipient of the Commander's Leadership Award. Walker, a senior from Clarksville, was the first cadet in AFSU history to achieve this honor.

Cadet Mona Fletcher, a senior from Dover, was one of the few cadets to score a perfect 500 on the physical fitness test. Cadets Ann Coleman, Lynn Doyle, Dave Guerrero, Jon Irlean, and Maria Ortiz were ranked in the top ten percent of their respective platoons. All 18 cadets successfully completed the 1980 ROTC Advanced Camp.

Cadet Ann Coleman received her commission as a second lieutenant, and will be reporting to Fort Sam Houston, TX this October.

The remaining 17 cadets have returned to AFSU to continue their studies this fall. All are to be congratulated for a job well done.

Littleton assumes new position

A new administrative position created on July 1, the Director of University-School Relations, will be headed by Mr. Dick Littleton.

Littleton has been the Director of Admission for the past three years, and makes this move after the abolishment of the Director of Admissions position by the University. Littleton's new position will include the same duties as in the past, coordination of student recruiting and acting as a liaison between the university and the public and private schools in the Austin Peay recruiting area.

The major change with this new position will be in the reporting procedures. Under the previous system the Director of Admissions reported directly to Dean Gentry, Dean of Admissions and Records, while the Associate Director of Admissions, Mr. Charles McCorkle reported to Dr. Bill Lewis, Executive Assistant to the President of the University. Under the new system the entire staff of the School Relations Office will report to Dr. Lewis, lessening any breakdown of communications in the University School Relations Office.

"It's still too early to tell how this new system will work, although things have gone smoothly since the switch," Reported Littleton.

"As of right now, Austin Peay and Memphis State are the only two schools in the state that I know of where recruiting is not a part of admissions."

Public Safety officials urge cooperation

By Doug Halloran

With a new school year under way, Sergeant Jack Prout, head of the Austin Peay Public Safety Offices' crime prevention program pointed out the need for a hand in hand relationship between the police and the university community.

Prout stated, "Our mission goal is to provide an atmosphere of safety so that academic endeavors may be realized; but we need the support from the university community."

For the last three years the Public Safety Office has been developing a crime prevention program. According to Prout, lack of funds has been the major problem for the program. "In the past, due to the lack of funds, we have not been able to bring the crime prevention program to its full potential; but things are looking better." Prout explained that the program last year received $3500 from the Tennessee Law Enforcement Planning Commission. "These funds were for the purchase of films and literature to help educate the college community in basic common sense crime prevention."

Prout said the Public Safety Office has also received a lock demonstration kit.

Prout said that the University Police also need the help of the students in the area of crime prevention.

"Students as a whole are a trusting group of people, thus they are ripped off." Prout said that if students would use more common sense, such as locking up their rooms and cars the number of rip offs would be cut considerably. He also stressed that if anyone sees anything abnormal or suspicious they should not hesitate to call security. "There are stickers with our phone number posted on every phone," said Prout.

The Public Safety Office has several pamphlets on crime prevention dealing with campus safety and property protection.

In addition to the pamphlets the Safety Office has instituted a program where an officer finding an unsecured car or door will leave card and a memo telling an individual of the unsecured item.

The memo also tells an individual on the attempt made by the officers to secure the item, and it is signed by the officer at the scene.

There is another program that students may participate in called "operation identification." In this program the student borrows an engraver from the safety office and marks any valuable property with his social security number. After engraving the property the student fills out an inventory sheet and turns it into the Public Safety Office.

Prout said, "Most crimes that are committed are of the larceny and burglary type, and they are committed mostly by people outside the college community area; violent crimes, such as muggings and rapes are really not prevalent."

"We feel a closeness to the university community. Some of our officers are students themselves," Prout said.

"Through hand in hand cooperation we can meet our mission goal more effectively."

Positions assigned

Fred Landis assumed the position of director of placement and university services as of July 1 at Austin Peay State University.

President Robert O. Riggs made the announcement on July 1 following Henry C. Malone's requested reassignment from director of alumni affairs to coordinator of public service in the College of Education and Human Services.

"Fred has been very successful in expanding the role and scope of career placement, and we feel that he possesses the leadership ability and expertise to increase alumni involvement with the total university," Riggs said.

Landis, 32, who has served as director of placement services at APSU since April 15, 1977, will continue to direct the program in addition to assuming his new position.

Riggs also announced that Doug Barber will move from the position of personnel manager to associate director of placement and university services.

"This is an opportunity for Doug to apply his experiences in social work and personnel to the area of career placement. I am confident he will make an excellent contribution to the university in this capacity," Riggs said.

Barber, 31, came to APSU in May 1978 after serving as director of the Smiles Adult Activity Center in Clarksville, Barber, a native of St. Belvoir, Va., is a graduate of Hopkinsville High School and holds a bachelor's degree from Landis, a native of Cumberland City and a graduate of Cumberland City High School, holds a bachelor's and master's degree from APSU.

Baccalaureate degree offered Nursing program expands

Austin Peay will offer a four-year nursing program starting this quarter. Prior to this quarter an associate degree was the only nursing degree available.

Students are considered for admission to the upper division of the program at the end of their sophomore year. Applications for admission are due before April 15. Students accepted into the program will be notified by mail after April 15.

The baccalaureate nursing program is a four-year program preparing persons to practice nursing in primary, secondary, and tertiary care settings. Special emphasis is placed on the practice of nursing in rural population.

Costs are $170 per quarter for full-time students. Less than 12 hours is $16 per credit hour. Books are approximately $200 per year. Liability insurance is $10.50.

COUPON

Angry Red drop opener 24-20

By Ronnie Graves

The Austin Peay State University Angry Red Men dropped their season opener 24-20 to UT-Martin at the Pacers stadium.

The turnover-ridden APSU offense fumbled five times, losing two balls and Gov quarterback Sonny Defilippis was intercepted twice during the night.

UTM was led by senior quarterback Jimmy Wash. Wash completed 8 of 20 passes for 110 yards including two TD passes to wide receiver Wayne McKinney.

The turnovers erased any hope of a season opening victory for the Govs. The second interception of the night made by Martin defensive back Jerry Gamble was returned to the APSU 20-yard line where Martin set up a 20-yard field goal from Mike Potete. The score sent Martin to a 24-14 lead with a little over 3 minutes remaining in the game.

The Angry Red, who received a 50-yard pass interception call, pulled to within 4 points when Defilippis hit tight end Andy McCallum on a 12-yard TD strike. The Govs 2-point conversion failed as did the upcoming onside kick attempt.

With 6:08 remaining, Martin's Jerry Young dove over from the 3-yard line to put the Pacers ahead 20-14. Potete added the extra point to run the score to 21-14. This scoring drive was aided by a roughing the passer call against the Govs.

Early in the fourth quarter Peay had tied the score at 14-all on a 1-yard plunge by Defilippis. A pass interference call put the ball on the Martin 1-yard line to set up the score with 11:18 remaining. Defilippis score capped a 12 play, 81 yard drive.

UTM had taken a 14-7 lead midway through the third quarter, when Wash hit McKinney for a 27-yard TD pass.

The TD followed a Peay fumble at its own 6. The first half ended in a 7-all tie.

The Angry Red scored first on a 90-yard, 12-play drive in the first quarter, when Defilippis hit senior fullback C. Cochran on a TD pass. The TD was set by a 47-yard pass from Defilippis to split end Steve Puthoff. The pass completion put the ball on the UTM 4-yard line.

UTM fought back to tie the score when the Pacers drove 81 yards on 14 plays on the next possession. The score came on a 23-yard pass from Wash to Dwayne McKinney with 13:18 remaining in the second quarter. Potete converted the PAT.

The Angry Red had 307 yards total offense that included 230 yards passing from Defilippis. Defilippis hit on 15 of 29 passes on the night.

Martin rushed for 240 yards on the evening. Wash led the team with 86 yards on 20 carries. UTM has 126 yards through the air.

The Govs will tangle with James Madison Saturday at Municipal Stadium. Game time is slated for 7:30 p.m.

Sports Editor

There will be new faces covering this year's sports events. I'm the new editor and Steve Harmon is the new assistant editor. I was the assistant last year and gained a lot of needed experience through the guidance of Jim Rector and Steve Phillips.

Steve Harmon has a fine sports background. He is part of the "first team" on the Governor's Sports Network radio show with Sherwin Clift. Clift, who is the "Voice of the Gov's," has taken on Steve to help him with the stats for all of the football and basketball games this year.

Harmon, who is frequently called "the left hand man," has what it takes to inform the students of what's going on in the sports world at the Peay.

The columns I will be writing this year could take a little time to be polished, so bare with me. If things get rough and no ideas come to my head I will have to go get my faithful vanilla wafers for brain food, but I promise there will be a column each week.

Starting September 24 I will be letting you see my predictions for the NCAA football games for that upcoming week.

I hope you will enjoy this year's sports section and my columns. We are going to try out best to serve the APSU student body.

WATCHFUL EYE—APSU Coach Greg Mantooth has an eye on the action and his ear to the headgear. Mantooth and the rest of the Gov's coaching staff saw the Angry Red drop a 24-20 decision to UT-Martin last Saturday.

'Poodle' doesn't piddle around

By Steve Harmon

On Sept. 7, Austin Peay recruit Charles "Poodle" Bradshaw began to live up to the expectations that golf coach Steve Hynton held for him as he sank a 10 foot birdie putt on the final hole to win the Paria Landing State Park Amateur Tournament by one shot.

Bradshaw was a North Carolina high school medalist his junior year and the runner-up in his senior season. He was recruited by schools from the Southeastern and the Atlantic Coast Conference, as well as other major southern universities.

"Poodle," who hails from tiny Erwin, North Carolina, finally signed with Austin Peay after refusing an offer from the University of North Carolina.

Coach Hynton, a Durham, North Carolina native and a life-long friend of Bradshaw's was able to persuade "Poodle" to come to the Peay because of the competitive tournament schedule that the APSU golf program offers. Also, the fall and spring trips to Durham for the Duke Invitational Tournaments helped to lure "Poodle" to Clark-ville.

Coach Hynton regards Bradshaw as "probably the finest recruit in Austin Peay golf history." Before he has played in a single college tournament, Hynton sees Bradshaw as one of the premier players in the OVC and a definite threat to win the OVC medal this spring.

Bradshaw and his Austin Peay teammates will get their first test Sept. 19-20 when they travel to Murray, KY, for the Murray State Invitational.

Western Kentucky and Eastern Kentucky, who defeated Austin Peay by one and two shots respectively, will once again be stiff Ohio Valley Conference competition for the Governors.

Clements glad to be back

Clements said, "After Coach Brown left, I found I couldn't communicate with the new coach, plus I was injured a lot my second year."

Clements, who has had minor knee troubles in the past, twisted his knee last Monday in practice, but is hopeful of returning to the lineup soon.

Clements said that he was impressed with three freshman tailbacks while watching Thursday night's final preseason intraquad scrimmage. "Floyd James is a very strong runner for his size, Lamar Owens is exceptionally quick, and Willie Johnson is smooth," Clements said.

Hylton sets mark

By Steve Harmon

On Aug. 31, 1980 Austin Peay golf coach Steve Hylton set a world record by completing 1,128 holes of golf at the Mason Rudolph Municipal Golf Course in an effort to raise money for his depleted program.

Using only a 1-iron and an 8-iron, Hylton set his pace at 171 holes per day. The 1,128 hole goal was reached at the conclusion of 62 rounds of golf in 91 hours and 55 minutes.

Hylton walked a total of more than 220 miles during the marathon as he broke the old record of 1,124 holes. Greg Stevens of Conway, Arkansas held the past record.

The idea of breaking the record was conceived by Hylton and members of the athletic department in an effort to replenish the golf team's funds after extensive budget cuts this past spring. Hylton organized a small get-together at the Camelot one summer evening in an effort to gain support for his venture and a snowball-type reaction was eminent.

With the help of APSU Public Information Director and recently resigned golf coach Sherwin Clift, local contributions and alumni support got the idea off to a good start.

As for the physical preparation for the record breaker, Hylton ran six to ten miles and hit over 500 balls every day for two weeks.

After completing close to 200 holes on the first day, Monday, Aug. 25, Hylton's feet were so sore that he had to go to the Austin Peay trainers before and after each subsequent day. Hylton credits them by stating that he "wouldn't have made it without them."

The benefits from the marathon included over $3,000 in contributions for the golf team along with national exposure in Golf World and Sports Illustrated magazines.

Asked upon completion of the 1,128th hole if he would ever attempt it again, Hylton replied, "No way."

Clements was a 1,000 yard gainer as a freshman at Jacksonville. He has lowered his 40-yard dash time a couple of tenths since then to 4.6 seconds. "I feel strong and I'm anxious to get back. I like this offense and the options it represents. I'm even gonna get a chance to catch the ball out of the backfield," Clements said.

HOLD THAT BALL—APSU return man Juan Harp finds a hole against UT-Turner to return his kickoff 40-yards. Harp was stopped by the last UTM defender to prevent a touchdown. The Angry Red lost the game 24-20.

Intramurals begin next week

The Intramural department of Austin Peay State University has five major events planned for fall quarter, with three of these events occurring this month.

Intramurals will begin with a Touch Football Jamboree on Sept. 23 at 6 p.m. No rosters are necessary for these events. Interested teams should contact Drew Simmons at 648-7564. The jamboree will take place on the intramural field in front of Killebrew Hall.

Touch football rosters for men's and co-rec are due by September 25. A captain's meeting for all touch football teams will be held September 25 at 6 p.m. in room 107 of the Intramural Recreation Complex. Competition begins on Sept. 28-29.

Officials are also needed for the touch football program. Any interested persons should report to room 111 of the Intramural Recreation Complex or contact Simmons. A clinic for selected officials will be held Monday, Sept. 22 at 6 p.m. in room 107 of the complex.

The schedule for fall intramurals is as follows:

	Rosters	Play Begins
Touch Football Jamboree	NONE	Sept. 23
Co-Rec Touch Football	Sept. 25	Sept. 28
Men's Touch Football	Sept. 25	Sept. 29
Women's Volleyball	Oct. 25	Oct. 19
Water Basketball	Nov. 5	Nov. 10

Summer finds Gouvs at work

During the summer months APSU tennis teammates Greg Carter and Mike Distefano battled their way into finals of the Knoxville Open in August. Carter squeezed by 2-6, 6-4, 7-6, 7-5.

Distefano claimed the Smoky Mountain Hard Court Tournament and reached the finals of the state "21" and under tourney.

Junior Don Carbone was runner-up in the Sequoia Invitational in early June and then reached the quarter finals of the State Men's, losing to eventual winner Charles Balt. Carbone also reached the quarter finals in the Western Open.

Coach Dennis Emery did a one month teaching stint in the Dominican West Indies this summer for the United States Tennis Association. The tour was part of the USTA's and International Tennis Teaching Project.

Emery announced that he will conduct a junior tennis clinic for persons ages 6-18. The clinics are for both boys and girls, with the girls meeting on Tuesday and Thursday from 7 until 8 and the boys from 8 until 9.

Coach Emery is getting help from his men's tennis team to help stress drills. Clinics will run from September 23 through November 2 with a $30 cost for the five-week course. Anyone wishing to sign up can contact Emery at 648-7905 or 648-6159.

Pre-season All-OVC named

Wide receiver Steve Puthoff, defensive tackles Richard Wozniak and offensive guard Calvin Griffin were named to the 1980 preseason All-Ohio Valley Conference football team.

Puthoff and Wozniak were unanimous choices on the team. Wozniak was on the second team All-American last season.

Western Kentucky led the conference with six players being named to the team. Eastern Kentucky was next with five men, while Murray had four honorees. APSU and Morehead both had three athletes recognized while Akron and Tennessee Tech each had two players on the squad. MTSU completed the team with one selection.

In a summer poll of the OVC head football coaches, Murray State was chosen to win the conference for 1980. The Racers received five of seven first place votes, with the coaches not allowed to vote for their own teams. Eastern Kentucky was second with three first place votes, and Western Kentucky was picked for third.

The coaches lined up the OVC conference as follows with total points in parentheses:

Murray State (47)
Eastern Kentucky (41)
Western Kentucky (35)
Akron (34)
Austin Peay (26)
Morehead State (18)
Middle Tennessee (13)
Tennessee Tech (10)
