SGA plans upheaval

By John St. Amant
Editor-In-Chief

Student Government Association president, Mike Trent, is pushing for a new style this year. Trent said he will break away from last year's controversial events. "One thing out of all the mess last year was that it got the SGA out in front of the school. I think, if nothing else, we got the school aware of who we are and what we can do," Trent said.

Trent began his term during spring quarter and has been busy making plans for this year. Many changes have been made to improve the function of the SGA.

We have come up with a six point plan. In the list are just a few major areas we hope to improve in or implement to help Austin Peay," Trent explained.

Mike Trent

plan may be in effect winter quarter.

2. A day care center for children of students and staff may be offered. Certain requirements must be met such as means of a meal and space, in order to satisfy federal regulations.

3. A senate recognition plan may be put in effect to allow better representation of the students. Dormitories and commuters will receive more emphasis according to Trent.

4. A take over of the Miss APSU pageant by the SGA is still in planning stages.

5. Minority and other funding emphasis will be put forth by Trent's administration to ease several university budget cuts. Trent thinks more money ought to be given in support of various minority groups not already provided by the university.

Trent said the SGA will have an important role since several monies have been cut from the budget.

"I think it is great that we can help out. The biggest thing is that we were elected by the students to serve the students. I really believe we can make a difference at APSU," Trent emphasized.

Trent thinks that the SGA is heard by the university administration.

"We (SGA and the university) have a good working relationship. They always listen to us, but they may not always act," said Trent.

Trent has added two more members to his cabinet. A secretary of Greek life and a secretary of minority affairs have been added to provide for the demand in these areas.

APSU Budget falls short

By Teresa Williams
Features Editor

The APSU budget for the 1983-84 school year was a difficult one to prepare. Failure to pass the Tennessee Master Teacher plan earlier this year led to the unfortunate news that APSU would no longer receive an expected $1 million to ease economic strain.

Therefore, the Budget Committee was forced to make severe budget cuts in all areas.

money to schools of higher education.

The All State was also able to talk with President Robert O. Riggs concerning this year's budget cuts. It was through President Riggs that we were able to learn about a state decision last month that greatly aided APSU in its financial crisis.

According to Riggs, each year APSU must set aside five percent of its budget as an "internal improvement reserve"—a

"I really dread next year if there's not any new money"

-Wakefield

According to Budget Director Larry C. Wakefield, the top priority of the committee for planning the new budget was to maintain all present personnel and student help. To do this, however, several department budgets now face critical cutbacks.

Wakefield explained that equipment and supplies were cut by 5 percent, while travel expenses took a 10 percent cut.

The greatest harm caused by the new budget, according to Wakefield, seems to be that departments that needed additional money this year were unable to get it.

"I really dread next year if there's not any new money," said Wakefield.

According to him, the Master Teacher Plan, if passed, would grant fund in case something goes wrong.

This year, however, the state only made a 2 percent impoundment, leaving AP with an additional $240,000 to work with. About $100,000 of this money will aid in academic equipment, while $80,000 will be used in the library.

Riggs' main concern from the tight budget this year stems from the fact that the school was unable to give any faculty or staff members any salary increase.

As it currently stands, Riggs stated, "We must be careful to make sure we maintain and monitor the present budget carefully."

Riggs is also hopeful that Alexander's Master Teacher plan, or a plan similar to it, will pass next year.

In the plan are included the following proposals:
1. Establish a campus-wide tutoring program. The tutors would be provided from university scholarship recipients. Under the proposal, the tutors will provide three hours of tutoring a week to APSU students. The

APSU Senior pictures

The Austin Peay State University yearbook will be taking senior pictures on October 19, 20, and 21. All students and faculty members who did not get their pictures taken during registration may also come on these days. Paul Vaughn Studios of Murfreesboro will take the pictures between 8:00 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. in Room 320 of the University Center.

There will be a yearbook staff meeting at 5:30 today in Ellington Hall.

Clinic relocates

Health and accident insurance coverage is available to all qualified Austin Peay State University students. This service is underwritten by The Credit Life Insurance Company of Springfield, Ohio.

This health insurance policy provides a comprehensive plan of protection that satisfactorily meets the needs of the student, at minimal cost to the student.

Students are invited to review carefully the provisions and benefits of the program by coming by the Counseling and Testing Center, Ellington Hall, or calling 648-6162.

Unlisted directory numbers

Students who wish their name and phone number omitted from the Student/Faculty Directory may come by the Information Desk and fill out a form before Oct. 15.

Insurance for Peay students

Due to the closing of Harned Hall, the University Health Services are now located in McRaymond Hall on Drake Street. According to Diane Berly, the nurse, the new location is not as spacious as Harned, but is more convenient for the students. The same services will be available with the exception of housing students overnight.

Tennessee Internship info.

Applications for the Tennessee Legislative Internship Program are now available. Juniors, seniors, and graduate students in any major who are registered to vote in Tennessee are eligible.

The interns work with the Tennessee legislature during the winter and spring quarters and earn 12 hours of credit through the political science department. A stipend of $500 a month is paid to each intern.

To receive serious consideration, a student should have at least a 3.0 GPA. For additional information, contact David Kanervo in the Political Science Department. Completed applications are due October 12.

Yearbook returns to AP

By Toni Dew
Staff Reporter

Since 1978, Austin Peay has been one of the few universities not to offer a yearbook. The "Farewell and Hall" was discontinued due to state financial cuts and lack of student interest. Last spring a student referendum was passed to that effect with the voting five to one in favor of bringing the yearbook back. Dr. Roscoe Shain, Dean of Students, stated that "student support" is what got the ball rolling.

However, when it came time to pay fees this quarter, some grumbling could be heard about the method of payment for the year book. It was included on the student fee statements.

According to Angela Stevens, yearbook editor, "I guess it was because part-time and graduate students were included on the fee statements to pay for the yearbook. We will have a meeting with the SGA and the Dean of Students to discuss how payment will be made in the winter."

Over the Labor Day weekend the yearbook staff traveled to Charlotte, N.C. to meet with the publishers, The Delmar Company, and discuss writing techniques, creative photography, and general ideas on how to improve the yearbook.

Stevens is excited about the project, especially about the new name, "The Governor's Pride." She feels a yearbook is necessary because it "represents the feelings and changes of attitudes of students during this time in their lives." Stevens feels that the new name "represents a new generation...a new time."

The yearbook will be available to the students in May and can be picked up at Ellington Hall. Make-up pictures, along with senior pictures, will be taken in October.

Dr. Mabry wins awards

By Leslie Stack
Staff Reporter

Dr. George Mabry has added another feather—or rather, another two feathers to his cap of achievements.

In addition to the awards Mabry received $1,000. He says the money has long been spent. He and his wife, Dr. Sharon Mabry, used it to attend concerts while in Europe this past summer.

Mrs. Mabry, also a professor of music at APSU, was the first recipient of the Richard M. Hawkins Award in 1979.

Known for his outstanding musical abilities, this writer, arranger, composer and producer of musical shows received both the Richard M. Hawkins and the Distinguished Professor Awards at the 1982-83 APSU Commencement exercises last June.

As the first winner of both awards for the same year Mabry said that, "what is memorable and meaningful Mabry's original scripts and music for APSU's Christmas season "Madrigal Feast," are being used by other college and high school madrigal groups.

Yearly, since 1980, "Cabaret Night," a night of musical entertainment has been presented by Mabry and the APSU Elite Singers. The next "Cabaret Night" will be October 14 and 15 at 7:30 each night.

Mabry is currently working on the musical production for the Clarksville Bicentennial to be presented this summer.

Financial Facts: Changes in Aid office

As the 1983-84 school year opens at APSU, there are several changes in the administrative structure and routine at the Student Financial Aid Office of which students will want to take note.

With the departure of John Bratcher at the end of June, James Shafer has assumed the role of director of the Student Financial Aid Office. Susan Ikard is now the assistant director, and Floyd Bradley, a former graduate assistant in the Student Financial Aid Office, now holds the position of counselor.

We have also lost the services of Bonnie Ikard, our secretary-receptionist, who has taken a job with the Athletic Department. We will miss her support and assistance.

Jobs available through the General Campus Work Program will continue to be posted in the Student Financial Aid Office, the University Center, and advertised in The All State every Wednesday. However, referrals will be available only at specified times, which may change from quarter to quarter.

Referrals will be available fall quarter at the following times:

Tuesday - 8:30 a.m.-10:30 a.m., and 12:30 p.m.-3:00 p.m.

Wednesday - 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

Thursday - 9:30 a.m.-10:30 a.m., and 1:00 p.m.-4:30 p.m.

College Work Study Placement will begin Thursday, September 29th for those students who were awarded CWSP and have not been placed on a work site. Make an appointment with Ms. Ikard for placement.

In addition to the regular staff, we will have two graduate assistants working with us this year. They are Gary Buntin and Dendrick Yeargin. They will be available for counseling and assistance in filling out Financial Aid applications.

Don't forget, you can apply for Financial Aid for 1983-84 up until March 15th, 1984. Please feel free to come by and see one of the Student Financial Aid Office staff if you have a problem or question about Financial Aid.

AP football-with or without fans

What a difference it makes to win!

Those Gova finally did what everyone wanted. They won three bloomin' games in a row. So where are the parades?

Okay, so maybe it is because people just expect the team to do well. What I think is people are never satisfied.

"Oh, who cares about the game this weekend?"

Let me tell about one of the best things that I have seen so far at this university. Last weekend a group of fraternity members were practicing football. Well, the Gova were going on their Sunday run the night after the Kentucky State victory.

As the Gova marched by, everyone clapped and yelled for them. It was a scene of obvious joy and hero worship for the Gova!

Now back to those "rich Gova supporters". Now, it would be a cold day in Hades when a prickly "Gova cash contributor" stopped his car and yelled for the football team.

Thank God they are not on my list of "real fans." For if they were, they would probably find some better way to economize their contributions. Maybe, they would institute a type of donation that would increase as the team won. I could see it now.

No, let's just count on those fans who do not have a contribution to give, but just plain old-fashioned love for a very fine football team.

And by the way, Gova, win or lose you are always my favorite team.

I hope you all remember that when the crowd is down on you for losing.

Where have all the radicals gone?

It seems as though the art of mass protest by average citizens has become a thing of the past. This summer, the Korean Flight 007 air tragedy sparked protest only in larger US cities and those protests were relatively small and uneventful. In the 50's and 60's the same incident would have most likely caused a tidal wave of public response. Has the radicalism of the 60's been replaced by an era of cautious conservatism, callousness, or political confusion?

The entire Flight 007 event, and the subsequent banter between the Kremlin and President Reagan provided the US public with a technicolor presentation of the parallels between White House and Kremlin crisis and media policy. The whole affair has been sad, scary, and enraging, but prominently and most often confusing and inconsistent. President Reagan responded verbally to the Soviets in such a manner as to escalate an international incident to an act of personal aggression against the US, actual sanctions against the USSR amounted to what some citizens have termed "wrist slaps". One point was clear: the Reagan administration used the entire incident to promote its military budget and the MX missile, and to put a lid on the nuclear freeze movement.

We may never know the entire truth about the events leading up to the termination of Flight 007. But we do know the Reagan Administration moved quickly to turn the crisis to its political advantage. With the confusion surrounding the entire incident, one may wonder if the people's will is indeed being served, and it may be years before we are sure if the 'crisis' was not manufactured or enhanced for political gain.

It is disquieting that the current administration employs confusing tactics to gain political leverage, especially in such a touchy area as US-Soviet relations. Equally disquieting is the lack of public response to the varied events that shape our world and our future. While it is true that the White House has sometimes hedged information from the media, or been contradictory and irresponsible to the public demand for information, the most basic access for information remains the public media. And the most basic avenue of political change remains in your informed vote.

Managing editor finds happiness in first desk

What I Did This Summer, by Allan J. Daniels. Have no fear, I wouldn't really do that to you. My goal is to increase readership for The All State, not to put us out of business. However, I was almost desperate enough to write that kind of column.

Now seriously folks, by now you have settled as well as the first issue of The All State with me serving as Managing Editor. (Sounds almost impressive, doesn't it?)

Now, I'm sure that you are asking yourself the same question that I asked myself, "What does a Managing Editor do?" (Manage maybe?) Well I'm still not sure. But I will not let that minor obstacle stand in my way.

One thing I will be doing is writing this weekly column. (Oh no, not every week!) Yes, I'm afraid so. This led to another question, "What will I write about?" I'm sure that by now you have figured out that I don't know the answer to that question either.

One question that I have at least partially been able to answer is what to put in and/or on my official Managing Editor's desk. I mean a real desk with drawers and everything. To a simple-minded person like myself, this important issue has caused many sleepless nights.

After much careful deliberation, I decided that I would most probably need some kind of writing implements, if only to doodle during staff meetings while John is speaking. With this thought in mind, I acted swiftly and decisively for the first time in my life. I gathered several pens, pencils, etc. and reverently placed them in the top right hand drawer of my new desk, fully aware of the gravity of the situation. Then a new worry thundered across the vast wasteland known as my brain, "What if I get writer's cramp, then I won't be able to use these very first contributions to my desk." So my next acquisition was a confiscated typewriter, not only would it prevent writer's cramp, but it would serve to make my desk look useful or something.

Once again I had come to a stopping point, a place I'm very familiar with, what else could I find to add to my desk to give the impression that I know what I'm doing? I did a careful survey of other desks in the office and came to the startling conclusion that virtually every one had a matched set of the traditional In and Out baskets. Next I found one such basket not doing anything at the moment, so I snatched it up. The next basket I found did have something in it, but it was nothing very important, just John's collection of Frederick's of Hollywood catalogs. After finding an appropriate site for this valuable collection, I snatched that one up too. I then stole some typing paper from John's desk while he was busy trying to make time with somebody on the phone. I told you not to expect an exciting column.

P.S. Welcome back!!!

Handy tips on college philosophy

So you've finally made it to college. You've finally made the biggest step into the world of adulthood and I'll bet I know what many of you are thinking...Party Time!

Well, not to disillusion you—because I certainly have had my share of crazed parties since starting college, but, (there's always a but to everything good, isn't there?) the frenzied social life of college needn't overtake you completely. Try to remember your long-range goals so you can make it past your first quarter with a modicum of sanity.

"Goals? What goals?" you may ask yourself. "I'm finally here. I'm finally away from home. Now I can do what I want. This is my goal."

Well, it may seem a little boring at THIS point to think about the goal of graduating four (or more) making money, and on that particular day my instructor chose to delve into the vast relationship between going to college and making money.

He said that if we didn't know computers or accounting or systems management etc., once we were out we'd be nowhere. Having the ability to get a good job will be the most important thing in our lives, he said. That's why college is so important and we shouldn't waste the precious opportunity to get an education.

Sounds reasonable, no?

I was sitting in a humanities classroom. Humanities are those arts and sciences that teach us better how to know and judge ourselves through studying the varying lifestyles, modes of expression and systems of thought that our world has produced.

On this particular day my instructor decided to go into the vast relationship between going to college and becoming a complete human being. He said that not once during his college career did he equate going to school with getting a job. A college education affords the chance to broaden your mind, to learn how to be a more effective human being, to learn about life, he said. Our colleges shouldn't be turned into trade schools, he said.

Well, I was as impressed by this viewpoint as I had been by the former one (maybe even a little more so). With such opposing views in mind, however, how does one go about pinpointing the exact goal of going to college? I mean, after all, most of us do want to make a little money once we get out of here. But, hopefully, we're also interested in learning about life—growing into responsible, broadminded maturity.

Actually, college affords us with both these opportunities if we'd just take the time to acknowledge and respond to them. Learning how to make a decent living is a big thing, but don't let this long range goal overshadow the sheer importance of learning as a goal within itself.

Partying teaches you a few things about life too...but that I won't go into...

Mass Communication Major added

By Allan J. Daniels
Managing Editor

The ever-growing demand for people in television, radio, and the print media has resulted in the addition of a new major, Mass Communication. The new major is within the Department of Speech, Communication, and Theater and will be divided into two concentrations. One concentration will be concerned with Print Journalism. In connection with the new major, Austin Peay will be starting its own radio station. It will hopefully go on the air next September. This was the goal mentioned by both Dr. Joe Filippo, Department chairman, and David Palko, a new faculty member hired in conjunction with the new major and radio station. Filippo stated that Palko has already suggested some innovations for both the station and the program.

Dr. Ellen Kanervo will be responsible for the concentration in print journalism and according to Filippo was instrumental in devising the series of courses now available in the area of print journalism. Filippo also made this remark, "I visualize lasting positive effects from the wedding of the common ideas that are held between radio and television, and print journalism. Dr. Kanervo and Mr. Palko will be taking the leadership in these areas."

Palko is originally from Cleveland, OH, but has lived in the Phoenix, AZ, area for the last 15 years. He did his undergraduate work at Arizona State University in mass communication. Palko received his Master's from Northern Arizona University with the emphasis on public relations and journalism. In his radio career, Palko has held positions in programming, public affairs, sales, and has been a news director as well.

The Department is now trying to obtain enough equipment to allow students to simulate broadcasts. This would teach the students as well as prepare them for when the station actually starts broadcasting.

Journalism classes have been taught at Austin Peay since 1946, but has only been offered as a minor until this year. Kanervo, who teaches all the journalism classes, noted that the only real addition to the journalism curriculum is the new journalism laboratories. "If there was a weakness it might have been a lack of practical experience, and I think that we've strengthened that with the addition of the labs."

These labs, along with the internships available, should provide students with a taste of what the field of journalism is like in the "real world." All State editor John St. Amant states, "An internship is good because it is work experience plus college credit hours. It's better than a class." St. Amant is currently serving an internship with The Leaf-Chronicle.

In the radio and television area, Filippo states that Palko is "already engaged in structuring internships with local stations for the benefit of students who have already begun work in the program," and "the managers of local stations have been very cooperative in helping us develop an internship program." Kanervo said that she expected to work with Palko in coordinating the internships for the new Mass Communications major.

Kanervo would like to remind students that "the journalism minor is still intact and still available through the Department of Languages and Literature."

Palko remarked that there are some estimates that state there are 1000 new jobs a month in the mass communications field, so the addition of the Mass Communication major is very timely.

Student volunteer need

Looking for something worthwhile to do this year? Then why not teach an adult to read?

Students are needed to work as volunteer tutors in the Adult Reading Program, according to Kathleen Wilson, coordinator. "We provide free instruction in reading and writing to functionally illiterate adults," she said. "Each student is paired with a volunteer tutor who is trained to work with him on a one-to-one basis."

Last year, 87 tutors instructed 98 adults in basic reading and writing. This year, we would like to enroll 120 students and a similar number of tutors. There is a continuing need for tutors since statistics show that 20 percent of the adults in Montgomery County read below the fifth-grade level."

Volunteers need no prior teaching experience, said Mrs. Wilson. "They only need to be able to read well themselves and want to help another person. The student and volunteer decide when and where to meet, but they must meet at least twice a week and for at least an hour each time."

The program is sponsored by the Clarksville-Montgomery County School System, which provides all materials and training for volunteers.

Mrs. Wilson said the first tutor training workshop is scheduled Oct. 1 at the Sexton Building. Persons interested in becoming volunteers should call her at 647-5681.

With the death of Tennessee Williams, called by many the greatest American playwright, earlier this year, it is only appropriate that the 83-84 season of the Austin Peay Playhouse will open with Williams' The Glass Menagerie.

The Glass Menagerie will open November 9 and run through the 12th. Dr. Tom Pallen will direct.

Auditions for the play will be Monday, October 3 and Tuesday, October 4 at 7:30 p.m. in the Traphen Theatre. Interested students are asked to read the script before attending auditions. Copies of the script are on reserve (2 hrs.) at the library. The show will rehearse from Monday, October 10 through Tuesday, November 8. Some weekend rehearsals will be included in this schedule.

At press time Pallen still needed an assistant director, a stage manager, and a video technician. Videotape will be used as a rehearsal tool, and Pallen will also want a record tape made of the show. Basic knowledge of video camera and VCR operation is desirable, but not necessary.

The remainder of the Playhouse season will run as follows: November 30 and December 1, a Christmas play will be presented with a student director; February 15-18, Noel Coward's Nude With Violin will run with John Griffin directing; March 28-31, A Night of One-Act Plays will offer several students a chance to stage a play that has yet to be named will be performed.

There are roles for two men and two women. Also anyone interested in working on any technical aspect of the show should contact Mr. John Griffin at the Department of Speech, Theater, and Communication, 648-7379.

Diddley to play

One of the fathers of rock & roll will headline Vanderbilt's annual American Music Festival, set for Saturday, October 1, at 1:00 p.m. on Alumni Lawn. The legendary Bo Diddley will appear at the free outdoor show, along with rock performer/critic Cub Koda and pop modernists, Beat Rodeo.

Bo Diddley's very first single for Chess Records ("I'm A Man/ Bo Diddley") was a major rhythm & blues hit back in 1955, and his musical style has since been a major influence on countless rock performers, from the Animals and the Yardbirds to George Thorogood (who's recorded several Bo Diddley originals). He's also known for an electrifying performance in the film "London Rock & Roll Show," appearing with fellow rock greats Jerry Lee Lewis, Little Richard, and Chuck Berry.

Cub Koda has the unique distinction of being a rock performer, critic, and (mostly) a fan. A onetime member of Brownsville Station, Koda writes a record review column for the collectors magazine

"Goldmine" and contributed his "10 rules of rock & roll" to The Book of Rock Lists. Onstage, he mixes original songs with blues, rockabilly, country, and rock classics that show his roots as a fan of the music.

The American Music Festival is free to all, and will be held at 7:00 p.m. in Memorial Gym in case of rain.

Record kick highlights third win

By Jerry Ingram
Sports Reporter

How do you spell victory?

D-E-F-E-N-S-E! That's how Austin Peay has spelled it, for the first three games anyway, as the "Big D" has turned in yet another sparkling performance Saturday night at Municipal Stadium against the Western Kentucky Hilltoppers en route to a 13-3 victory.

The stingy defense allowed only a field goal against WKU and they have allowed only 23 points in three outings.

While the defense did such a superior job, the offense struggled, but finally got in gear. The offensive showing was highlighted by a school record 55-yard field goal by Brian Yarbrough, a sophomore from Hendersonville, Tenn. The miracle boot came in the third quarter. The ball hit the crossbar and bounced in for three points.

Earlier, Yarbrough hit a 22-yard field goal to help the Govs.

The other score came from an impressive 90-yard scoring drive engineered by senior quarterback, Rob Christophel to sophomore tailback, Roland Shields.

Even WKU head football coach Jimmy Peix was impressed, as he said, "The defense was especially tough."

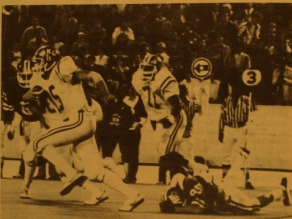

"Rob did a great job for us tonight," APSU mentor Emory Hale said. "He didn't throw an interception and was on target all night."

Christophel completed 17-of-33 passes for a season high of 167 yards. Austin Peay has beaten a WKU football team since 1977 and only three times in 28 meetings, there has been one tie.

"We've come close in the past to beating them, but we never did," said Christophel.

"Our school had beaten Western only three times coming into the game," Hale said. "So yeah, it's special to the kids and special to the school."

The 3-0 Govs will open their OVC schedule Saturday afternoon (1:30) at Eastern Kentucky, Hanger Field, where the Colonels have won 33 straight games.

Roy Kidd's Colonels are the defending OVC Champions and defending I-AA national champions. They are 3-0 overall, and 2-0 in the conference.

GENUINE

This week athlete of the week must definitely go to Brian Yarbrough, a 5'8", 152 pound sophomore from Hendersonville, Tenn. Yarbrough connected on a record breaking 55-yard field goal late in the third period that helped the Governors end a five-year losing streak over Western Kentucky, 13-3.

Jackson takes helm of netters

By Jerry Ingram
Sports Reporter

The whole town is buzzing about Austin Peay State University basketball. Howard Jackson was named head men's basketball coach for APSU, August 10, 1983. He replaced Ron Bargatz who resigned to go into private business.

"I am very excited," said Jackson, a native of Lexington, Ky., about his new position.

Jackson, a former APSU basketball great during the early 1970's, played on the 1972-73 OVC Championship team. He was named to the NCAA All-Midwest tournament team, but his career was cut short due to an accident before his senior year.

He will try to bring the winning tradition back to APSU. The Governors have not won an OVC championship since 1977. Incidentally, Jackson has been a part of all three APSU basketball championship teams.

Hopefully he can make it four in 1983.

"I'm excited about the season, a lot of questions have to be answered, who's going to play where, what players will be willing to give himself to succeed? The season is a question mark," said Jackson.

Last year the Governor team won seven games in the Dunn Center in ten tries. This year they are scheduled to play 15 at home.

Thirteen games and being the Tennessee classic host gives APSU one of its most attractive home basketball schedules in history.

The Governors will play a 27-game schedule with away games against Vanderbilt, Arkansas and Georgia State during the 1983-84 regular season, plus participation in the prestigious AAA Drake Classic which includes host Drake, Georgia and Northern Iowa. Additionally, APSU plays seven games on the road against Ohio Valley Conference opposition.

First-year head coach Howard Jackson will debut against Belmont Nov. 29 in the Dunn Center.

"We desperately need the support of the students and faculty. They are a bigger part than the basketball players. Players have echoed my feelings about the faculty and students support," said Jackson.

The Governors will have nine players returning from last year's 11-16 season, plus Pat Day who was red shirted, because of an injury. He will try to aid the Governors back to respectability in the OVC. They include seniors: Greg Andrews, Al Bellenfant, Cecil Felts, Alvin Ingle, Anthony Parker, Mandel Stockton and all OVC in 1982 Lenny Manning. Only two sophomores, John Collins and Lonnie West, who made the OVC freshmen team also returned.

Coach Jackson named Ken Smith as his assistant coach. Last year Smith was an assistant coach at Lorado Junior College in Texas where they finished second in the country. Smith is a native of Hopkinsville, Ky. Jackson's two graduate assistants are former Western Kentucky players, James Powell and Al Baker, who coached at Findley High School in Findley, Ohio.

IM Sports slated for fall

Plans for another season of intramural football will begin tonight at a special captains' meeting.

The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. in room 107 of the Memorial Health Building. Rules will be discussed as well as other valuable information concerning this year's season.

The regular season will begin October 3.

Rumors have been distributed that the winner of this year's season will travel to compete in a "national tournament." Drew Simmons, intramural director, said there are no final plans yet to be made at this date.

"Last year there was going to be a team sponsored," Simmons said. "None was ever sent and I'm not sure about this year."

Hours of operation have been designated for the Memorial Health Building. Many programs will be offered including racquetball, basketball, weight training and swimming.

The hours will be Sunday-Friday 2 to 9 p.m. and Saturday 12 to 6 p.m.

The pool hours will be open from 2 to 4 p.m. in the afternoon and 7 to 9 p.m. at night. When the weather gets colder, the hours will be from 7 to 9 p.m. only.

Intramural recreation will sponsor an aerobics class on the beginners and advanced levels.

A registration meeting will be held Tuesday, Oct. 4 in room 107 of the Memorial Health Building at 4:30 p.m.

All are welcome, students and staff, to join the classes scheduled at 4:30 and 5:30 p.m. Monday-Thursday.

No Tryouts Necessary.

Director: Jill Whittinghill

They have spent all summer getting ready to participate and compete at the UCA summer camp at Memphis State University.

To prepare themselves for the strenuous hours at camp, they practiced chants, pyramids, partner stunts and gymnastics.

"Gymnastics are definitely the squad's strongest point," said Janie Simpson, adviser to the squad. "They were judged on a cheer that they'd learned at camp," said Simpson, "and they looked great."

Hey! Are You HUNGRY?

WEDNESDAY from 11:30-1:00 at the BSU for only $1.50.

We're looking forward to seeing you real soon.

The cheerleaders left camp, which lasted August 8-12, after having won first place in their division. AP's mascot, alias Governor Peay, also did quite an impressive job at camp. He won several blue ribbons and a spirit stick, "which is very unusual for a mascot to do," said Simpson.

"Gov. Peay is a great motivator," Simpson said, "he really knows how to get a crowd excited, and he loves doing it."

"I've got a young squad," Simpson said, "but they're all very experienced and they really do love cheering." Simpson stated that the job of being a cheerleader has really gone through a lot of changes in the past few years. "Cheerleaders have become more than just supporters," she said, "now they've moved into competition themselves."

"They're excited, they're enthused, and they're doing it all for the school," she said, "We really do have a sharp squad."

Full- and part-time jobs available

Job Hunters

Attention Seniors and Recent Graduates! Here are some steps to register for placement services. For full-time positions (for Seniors and Active Alumni):

1. Pick up placement packet at the APSU Placement Office in the Emerald Hill Alumni Center.
2. Distribute the three rating sheets included in the packet to your instructors; these will be returned directly to the Placement Office by the raters.
3. Complete the data sheet and sign the credential release authorization included in the packet.
4. At the Admissions and Records Office, request in writing that your transcript be sent to the Placement Office.
5. Compose and type neatly an effective, professional resume; (resource material on resume-writing is available at the Placement Office).
6. Return data sheet, resume, and any additional information, and authorization form to the Placement Office.
7. Check with the Placement Office regularly about company on-campus recruitment and interview schedule as well as current job listings.

Part-time positions (for any student or graduate):

1. Come by the Placement Office and fill out part-time placement card.
2. Check the part-time positions posted on the bulletin board.

For additional help, contact Jana Rollins, assistant director of placement, at the Emerald Hill Alumni Center.

When space permits, columns will be supplied by the placement services.

The columns are intended to inform both graduates and undergraduates about job opportunities.

For more information, contact Jana Rollins at the Emerald Hill Alumni Center.

Greeks undergo Rush again

By Betsy Boaz
Social Editor

Fraternity and sorority rush is underway once again as both the Inter-Fraternity Council and the Panhellenic Council deal with the new changes.

For the fraternities, rush will be conducted in a different fashion this year. In the past, rush has been a haphazard collection of parties, beginning and ending at different times. However, this year, IFC will oversee a structured, formal rush.

It is hoped that this type of rush will foster more unity between the fraternities and enable the members to become more acquainted with all the rushers.

Under the guidelines of the new rush program, each rusher must submit a rush application accompanied by a $3.00 rush fee. Also, there will be two required dry rush parties which must be attended by all rushers to be eligible to pledge.

Bids will also be channeled through IFC as opposed to channeling them through each respective fraternity. George Leavell, president of the IFC, foresees the only problem as being the overall acceptance and understanding of the new procedures.

He stated that, "so far everybody has pitched in and tried to make it a successful rush. A special thanks goes to Denise Ottinger, the new Director of Student Life."

Along the same line, the Panhellenic Council is also adjusting to some new changes. For instance, it is also under the supervision of Ottinger and is introducing a new sorority, Alpha Delta Pi.

According to Susan Weems, president of the Panhellenic Council, "these new changes have revitalized the Greek system for the sororities."

The overall number of applications received by far exceeds that expected, therefore, rush appears to be more successful than expected.

Frat Rush Schedule

Sept. 28 through Oct. 4—Wide Open Rush Parties
Oct. 5—Rush Smokers
Oct. 6—Bids go out
Oct. 7—5 p.m. Bid turned back in
Oct. 8—pinning begins

Sorority Rush

Sept. 25—Greek Tea
Sept. 26—Ice Water Parties
Sept. 27—Coke Parties
Sept. 28—Theme Parties
Sept. 30—Preference
Oct. 1—Bid Day

*Informal Rush Follows Formal Rush.

ROTC Summer achievements

Thirty-two of Austin Peay's cadets attended the summer camp for six weeks at Fort Lewis, Wash., with Bradley J. Seibel of Niles, Mich., returning home with the camp commander's leadership award as Outstanding Cadet. Seibel was in competition in leadership and skill areas with 1800 other cadets for the honor.

Seibel received one of the Army's competitive ROTC scholarships to attend Austin Peay. Formerly a Fort Campbell soldier, he is top debater for the university's debate and forensics team. Seibel will graduate in June with a degree in speech.

Other APSU cadets also were honored. Capt. Deacon Collins, assistant professor of military science, said Thomas M.

Kollars Jr. of Pembroke, Ky., and Robert E. Brunk Jr. of Clarksville received honors as outstanding company cadets while competing with 240 other cadets. Brunk, also a former Fort Campbell soldier, is at APSU on a competitive ROTC scholarship.

Edgar E. Bingham of Conifer, Col., received the platoon leadership award, as did Malcolm E. Sharp of Fort Campbell and Ernest G. Gillespie of Clarksville. Collins said the award was presented to one of 30 men or women in each platoon.

Austin Peay's female cadets fared well at the advanced camp also. Julie Cubbon of Middletown, N.Y., and Dixie L. Kennatt of Clarksville, scored 300 of 300 points on the physical readiness test at camp.

IS THIS ANY TIME TO THINK ABOUT ARMY ROTC?

It's the perfect time.

You're a freshman, right? And you want to make college a real learning experience?

Well, ROTC can add a valuable dimension to your college education. A dimension of leadership and management training. And that'll make your degree worth more.

ROTC offers scholarship and financial opportunities, too.

Plus, the opportunity to graduate with a commission and begin your future as an officer.

For more information, contact your Professor of Military Science.

ARMY ROTC.
BE ALL YOU CAN BE.

For further information at APSU contact Capt. Bryan Wiles at 646-6115/646-7977, or stop by the ROTC Armory on Marion St.

Phone Sex, Porno mag outrage Sundquist

A recent "People" magazine article was called to my attention, in which pornography pusher-publisher Larry Flynt said he planned to push his First Amendment free speech rights as far as he could. No degree of exploitation of women or virulent racist attacks in his magazine would be off limits.

That was shocking enough, but I was repulsed again when I received a copy in the mail last week of Flynt's trashy "Hustler" magazine. He sent a "complimentary" subscription to all 535 Members of Congress.

Congressman Don Sundquist Reports...

"I am as committed to my pornography as the Pope is to his celibacy, so the equity of Hustler will never be compromised," Flynt said in a note attached to the magazine. "I'm sure your constituents, who appreciate good pornography, will be happy to know that you have a subscription to their favorite magazine."

Frankly, I was repulsed to receive unsolicited pornographic material, as would any other decent West or Middle Tennessean. I don't want to be acrimonious about it, but the outrageous gesture of sending copies of such trash to Members of Congress is certainly a manifestation of Flynt's warped desire to push his "rights" to the breaking point.

Two other congressmen and myself took to the floor of the House within hours to denounce the gesture, and urge all Members to immediately cancel their subscriptions. Most did, but Flynt announced he wasn't going to cancel any subscriptions.

I realize Flynt's move was a sick publicity stunt by a man whose sole business is to degrade women, whose reputation as a purveyor of moral depravity is unquestioned. I spoke out on the matter for two legislative reasons: one, to encourage passage of a bill to prohibit "Dial-A-Porn" phone sex, which was heavily advertised in Flynt's publication; and two, to register outrage at the federal court system for allowing unsolicited pornography to travel through the mail.

Just last week, I introduced a bill which calls for a constitutional amendment to limit the tenure of federal judges to 10 years, with provisions for reconfirmation by the Senate.

There are several reasons I introduced that bill, and I will devote next week's column to detailing them. But if it is passed, it certainly will lead to pressure on federal judges to conform their pornography rulings more on the moral standards of our country—especially as it relates to the issue of unsolicited pornography in the mail.

Get down to business faster. With the BA-35.

If there's one thing business students have always needed, this is it: an affordable, business-oriented calculator. The Texas Instruments BA-35, the Student Business Analyst.

Its built-in business formulas let you perform complicated finance, accounting and statistical functions — the ones that usually require a lot of time and a stack of reference books, like present and future value calculations, amortizations and balloon payments.

The BA-35 means you spend less time calculating, and more time learning. One keystroke takes the place of many.

The calculator is just part of the package. You also get a book that follows most business courses: the Business Analyst Guidebook. Business professors helped us write it, to help you get the most out of calculator and classroom.

A powerful combination. Think business. With the BA-35 Student Business Analyst.
