'ANDROCLES AND LION'-Martha Norfleet as Lavinia and James Burton as the Roman Captain rehearse a moving scene from George Bernard Shaw's 'Androcles and the Lion'.

Crew readies new theater for 'Androcles and Lion'

The cast and crew of George Bernard Shaw's Androcles and the Lion expect a delightful show May 13-17 at 8 p.m. in the new Fine Arts Building Theatre. "Androcles is an extremely interesting show," said Martha Norfleet, who portrays Lavinia, a Christian martyr in the play. "It might have been executed differently in Shaw's time, but it contains much humor and it's still meaningful today."

"The basic theme of Androcles is that society rejects people who are different," added J.G. Griffin, the director of the play. "This is just as true today. The Christians were not persecuted just because of religion, but simply because they didn't act like everyone else. Also, the hypocrisy theme is applicable to today's society because there are still those who profess and do two different things."

"I think Androcles himself is a true Christian," commented Joe Ted Gray, who plays Androcles. "He is a really humane, kind person with understandable desires and dreams. Certainly the audience can identify with him."

John Weaver, who is Fervinus, said, "My part, the Christian gladiator, is certainly an example of the hypocrisy—he wants to be good, but can't manage the conflict within himself so he tries to cover the dissonance by shouting."

Tickets are 75 cents for students and $1.25 for non-students. Tickets, available by reservation only may be reserved by calling the University Center Director's desk at 648-7638.

Thompson speaks on law for Law Day recognition

Fred Thompson, the minority counsel of the Senate Select Committee (Watergate Committee), will deliver an address on Friday, May 17, during Austin Peay State University's "Law Day."

The Sen. Howard Baker—appointee will speak at 1 p.m. in the Clement Auditorium. The address is open to the public, and there is no admission cost.

A native of Lawrenceburg, Tenn., Thompson was appointed by Sen. Baker in February 1973. In selecting Thompson for the position, Sen. Baker stated that he sought "a man who could look the facts square in the face, a man who could call the shots in the way they needed to be called, a man who was reliable."

While serving as a member of the law firm of Butler, McLaugh, Butler, Tune and Watts of Nashville, Thompson served as Middle Tennessee chairman for the re-election of Sen. Baker.

A graduate of Lawrence County High School, Memphis State University and Vanderbilt Law School, Thompson served as a partner in the firm of Lindsey and Thompson of Lawrenceburg before becoming Asst. U.S. District Attorney in 1968.

As a member of U.S. Attorney Charles Anderson's staff, he prosecuted some of the most difficult cases. Bank robbery cases were his specialty as he prosecuted 13 men charged with bank holdups, one charged with bank burglary and one charged with bank larceny. He won 14 of the 15 cases with one defendant receiving the second-longest sentence ever passed by a federal judge in Middle Tennessee.

After joining the Nashville private law firm, he was involved in two prominent cases against

FAREWELL—Miss George Chapman, manager of the University Center bookstore, assists a student in finding the right supplies for a class. Miss Chapman, who has given 28 years of service to APSU, will be retiring in June.

APSU will bid farewell to Miss George Chapman

By FAN ROBERTS

After June 30 of this year, Austin Peay State University will no longer have the services of Miss George Chapman as manager of the University Center Bookstore. She will be retiring from service in that capacity for 27 years.

Taking Miss Chapman's place as manager will be David Callier, of Clarksville. Callier, previously a salesman, has been working in the bookstore since March of this year. He has gained practical experience from the spring quarter registration, but, as Miss Chapman noted, "He still doesn't know what to expect from fall quarter registration" when the new freshmen will be on campus.

Miss Chapman actually came to APSU in August of 1946. She was manager of the cafeteria until 1957 when she became manager of the bookstore. At that time the bookstore was located in the Browning Building where the business office presently is located. When the University Student Center opened in February of 1964, the bookstore took up residence there where it is presently located. Altogether, Miss Chapman has given twenty-eight years of dedicated service to the university.

A native of Gallatin, Miss Chapman plans to go to Decatur, Ala. to live. There she will have plenty of time to devote to her hobbies of sewing and cooking. When asked if she has enjoyed her work, Miss Chapman responded, "I have put in some long, hard hours, but it's been fun. It's been worth every minute of it."

Miss Chapman remembers her work as cafeteria manager as the most interesting. Said Miss Chapman, "We used to give the football boys special treatment... When they would come in the government! He helped represent the wife of a Nashville pilot slain during an FBI shootout with a high jacker, and he defended a man and woman delinquent carrying a sawed-off shotgun and two pistols into the Metro Nashville Airport. The woman was set free and the man was given a light sentence.

Earlier as Asst. U.S. District Attorney, he successfully prosecuted Stewart County Sheriff Charles Crockerell, in 1973 involvement in a moonshine operation. Crockerell's conviction was upheld by the U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals.

Thompson will leave the Watergate Committee when it is dissolved and enter private practice again in Nashville.

Elderly to audit college classes

An act passed by the general assembly of Tennessee and signed into law by Gov. Winfield Dunn allows elderly persons to audit courses at state-supported colleges and universities without charge.

The recent act affects Austin Peay State University.

The act reads: "Persons sixty (60) years of age or older, who are domiciled in Tennessee, may audit courses at any state-supported college or university without paying tuition charges, maintenance fees, student activity fees, or registration fees; however, this privilege may be limited or denied by the college or university on an individual classroom basis according to space availability. Provided further, that the provisions of this Act shall not apply at medical schools."

Persons who wish to audit courses at APSU must make application and register, according to Glenn S. Gentry, vice president for admissions and records. No credit will be granted on the audit courses, Gentry pointed out. A person may take a course or courses for credit in addition to the audit course or courses, however, according to Gentry.

Brass choir holds concert

A concert by the Austin Peay State University Brass Choir was presented last night in the Clement Auditorium.

Dr. George Mabry, assistant professor of music, was the featured timpani soloist in Herbert Haudech's "Symphony for Brass and Timpani." The three-movement work is an example of brass and percussion writing and is concerned with the theme of peace for all mankind.

An arrangement of "And I Love You So," was presented by Dallas L. Blair, instructor in music and director of the brass choir.

Other featured numbers included "Huguenot" by Andre Campt; an arrangement of the hymn, "Lo, How a Rose e'er Blooming," by Niven; "Introduction and Allegro" by Beadell for brass and timpani featuring Ric Colletti as soloist.

Election pick officers, senators for class seats

Last Wednesday elections were held for the various class officers and senators. The voter turnout was extremely light, with only one race being contested.

In the senior class president race, Greg Johnson won over Gayla Millican by a vote of 46 to 21. For vice president of the senior class, James Hicks was uncontested and received 68 votes. Write-in Candidate Don Neff received one vote.

Barbara Westernman, unopposed, for senior class secretary, received 64 votes. The three senior class senators chosen were Bonnie Savage, 72 votes; Daryl Gremstad, 58 votes; and Jim Stacy, 64 votes. Paul Self received one write-in vote for senator.

In the junior class election, Bob Cooper was elected unopposed with 55 votes. For vice president Larry Elliott, also unopposed, received 56 votes. Arthur Hodges received one write-in vote for vice president.

All candidates for the office of secretary were write-in candidates. Beth Sanford won the position with seven votes. Of the thirteen candidates chosen to run for secretary in the write-in campaign the following people received one vote each: Judy Davis, Dave Aaron, David Perry, Mike Boshear, Debbie Aaron, Bozo, Diane Grant, Mickey Mause, Martha Hunt and Anita Smith. Debbie Adams received two votes.

Senators elected in the junior class were Taray Spurgeon, 44 votes; Fred Parker, 56 votes; Bob Gianni, 50 votes; and Mike Stevens, 45 votes.

For the sophomore class, Jerry Kitchen was unopposed for president and received 88 votes. Linda Shunkin was the vice president with 52 votes. Doretha Beem was elected by a vote of 91 for secretary.

The four winners for the positions of sophomore senators were Mary Langford, 77 votes; Mary Dowlin, 76; Bob Johnson, 79 votes; and Patricia Hunt 73 votes.

The following people received one vote each in a write-in campaign for sophomore senators: Stan Hemphill, Stan Shinn, Andy Spamm and Lu Ann Forester.

Mabry heads workshop for opera productions

The Austin Peay State University Opera Workshop under the direction of Mr. Sharon C. Mabry, will present its spring production Friday, May 24, in Clement Auditorium.

The first opera is "Slow Dusk," a musical play in one act by Carlisle Floyd, composer-in-residence at Florida State University.

"Slow Dusk" is a typical Floyd work, capturing the joys and tragedies of simple rural folk living in the mountains of the Carolinas. The four characters in the drama are portrayed by Mary Ann Jones, Tim Myatt, Bill Morris and Hannah Bullard.

The second opera is "A Game of Chance" by Seymour Barab. This comedy in one act concerns three young women in their late twenties who have resigned themselves to a life of boredom, since some of their dreams have been fulfilled. During the course of the action, the Representative, played by James Burton, assumes three roles and makes each lady's dream a reality. The three hopeful ladies are played by Rosanna Coppedge, Anne Baker and Viva Smith.

The performance begins at 8 p.m. and the public is invited with no admission charge.

HIT AND RUN—"You don't have to be strong to defend yourself," said Sherri Myers, director of the Nashville rape prevention and crisis center, as she instructed a small audience in the Claxton Auditorium last Wednesday on self defense measures.

Governettes will audition dance routines Tuesday

Mrs. Frances Burchett, director of governettes, will hold Governette auditions Tuesday night, May 21 at 7:30 in the University Center Ballroom.

The only requirement for the girls that want to be a Governette is that they must be a full-time student here at Austin Peay State University. However any related background such as dancing or twirling would be helpful, but it is not required.

The reason for this audition is to see how quickly the girls catch on to the tactics of twirling, dancing and marching. The ones that try out for the Governettes will march and dance in groups, not individually.

The girls that were Governettes and want to be this fall do not have to audition again but must come by and tell Mrs. Burchett and sign up.

Girls auditioning should wear either dancing clothes such as leotards, or tennis shoes, top and shorts.

In the freshman orientation this summer, Mrs. Burchett will have one more audition for the incoming freshman.

Governettes is a P.E. credit and the uniforms are furnished. If anyone would like more information they may contact Frances Burchett either in the P.E. dept. or leave a note giving their name, phone number and mailing address and she will get in touch with them.

Myers raps on rape for rights

By BARBARA WEST

"Rape is a political act that keeps women in their place," said Sherri Myers, director of the Nashville rape prevention and crisis center, in concluding a discussion on rape laws in Claxton Auditorium Wednesday night.

Sponsored by the Union for Women's Rights, Ms. Myers and Leslie Ward, editor of Women's Free Express talked about myths versus statistics about rape, services provided by the center, rape laws and court procedures and demonstrated self defense techniques.

Quoting many statistics from Menachen Amir's book Patterns in Forensic Rape, Myers disputed several myths. For example, most rapists are not strangers to the woman, in fact, 81 per cent of the rapists are friends, relatives or acquaintances of the victim.

"Eighty per cent of rapes are planned, not an explosive act," said Ms. Myers. "And 85 per cent involve some type of violence."

She explained that the type of crime a woman has on does not provoke a man, adding that women throughout history have been raped in all forms of dress. "All ages are raped. Cases have been reported from six months to 85 years," said Ms. Myers.

According to the FBI rape is the most frequently committed violent crime in America and the least reported. Only 19 per cent of all rapes are reported and of the number reported less than two per cent are convicted explained Ms. Myers.

Most are not reported because of the existing rape laws," she said.

She explained that all states' laws are similar in two respects. They all contain clauses about character assassination and use of resistance by the victim as evidence.

"Only Florida has done away with character assassination for its rape laws," she said.

Ms. Myers explained that character assassination referred to the practice of introducing evidence that the victim is promiscuous, lewd or unchaste as evidence against her. Also, if a woman cannot prove she has resisted, the case is hard to prove if proved at all.

She related to the audience various questions and procedures a woman would have to face by police and courts if she reported the rape and pressed charges.

"Don't throw away your clothes or take a bath or you'll be throwing away your evidence," she warned.

Center services

In the second part of the program, Mrs. Ward, also connected with the center, explained some of the programs offered by the center.

Ms. Ward explained that a 24 hour a day phone service is available with volunteers and residents for counseling.

"Counseling services are offered for both those who have been raped recently and those who may have been raped long ago in childhood," she said.

"If they want to press charges, we give support and send an advocate through all the steps from hospital to court," Ms. Ward said. "But we never convince a woman to report a rape if she doesn't want to."

She added that the center advises the victim about venereal disease tests and contraceptives, that the hospitals sometimes forget to do.

"We also offer emergency housing for women who must get out of their situations, such as abuse by a husband," continued Ms. Ward.

Self defense techniques

The center also offers classes in self defense with more stress on prevention than crisis, according to Ms. Ward.

The two speakers advised women to know their physical surroundings well and look for areas where an attacker might hide.

"Most rapes occur inside homes," said Ms. Myers. "When you move into a new apartment, check to see if the landlord has changed locks. The last owner or friends may have a key."

They advised a woman not to put her name on her mail box or in the phone book, but use initials instead.

"You don't have to be strong to defend yourself," insisted Ms. Ward.

They pointed to certain vulnerable parts of the body—eyes, face, throat, solar plexus, knees, and groin—as the best places to attack. Household and handbag articles, such as keys, hair brushes, and pencils, can be used to fight off the attacker if aimed at a vulnerable body area.

Aerosols such as a hair spray, oven cleaner or Lancia, a nerve gas sold by the center, can be used to ward off rapists, they instructed.

"Don't get into your car unless you look in the back of it first," said Ms. Ward.

Ms. Myers further advised women to keep their keys ready to open their car door or apartment and not fumble for the keys in front of the door and thus be susceptible to attack.

Siv C. Fox to read poetry at Wesley Center Monday

by CRISTIE MAYOR

I saw a bunch of emeralds and shared, clasped in the window, a glimpse with beauty, carefully seen. And Michael says: poetry is a hunt on my back.

The above lines are a portion of a poem by Siv Cederberg Fox, who will be reading her poems at the Wesley Foundation Monday, May 20, at 8 p.m. The public is invited to the reading.

Mrs. Fox, author of six published books, numerous magazine publications and four anthologies, has received numerous awards, including the John Masfield Narrative Poetry Award (1969) and the William Maion Reedy Poetry Award (1970).

A highly experienced reader, Mrs. Fox's past credits include readings in Japan, Australia, Sweden and around the United States.

She has also won several photography awards and grants from such places as the Swedish Institute and the Creative Artist Public Service. She has served as a consultant to the Coordinating Council of Literary Magazines.

"Ms. Fox's poetry is very sensual, very intense," said Malcolm Glass, associate professor of English. "It should be interesting to hear this accomplished woman read and tell what so many of her poems say, of dreams and death and beauty, such as:

"Everyone dreams of flying and wishes, at time, to have wings."

'Truth or consequences' await Governor netters

"Truth or consequences" await the Austin Peay State University tennis team during the Ohio Valley Conference Championship tournament this weekend in Murray, Ky.

It will be the moment of truth for the Goves because they must play up to their potential to win Austin Peay's first OVC tennis trophy. If the Goves win it, they will represent the league in the NCAA Championship in Los Angeles early next month.

If the Goves don't play the type of tennis they are capable of playing they will suffer the consequences. It would be a whole year of work that would be somewhat wasted.

The Governors ended the regular season with an 18-3 record, the best in the school's history. The most recent victory came Saturday when the Goves knocked off national power Cincinnati 5-4 in Cincinnati in an indoor spectacle.

The Goves top three singles players, Noel Phillips, Pancho Sanhueza and Gary Boss all lost their matches but Jorge Jimenez, Manuel Losada and Mario Valle won their matches to tie the match 3-3 going into doubles. After Phillips and Jimenez lost the No. 1 doubles match to Cincy, Sanhueza and Losada (No. 2) and Valle and Boss (No. 3) knocked off their opponents to give APSU the win.

But turning back to the action in Murray, Austin Peay, Middle Tennessee and Western Kentucky are all bunched at the top of the team standings. The Goves held a slim one-point margin over Middle Tennessee with 51 points coming into the week. Western was in third with 45 points.

However, the Hilltoppers had a match with Murray State Monday and if WKU managed an 8-1 or 9-0 win, the lead would be Western's going into Friday's opening round.

The Governors are expected to challenge for championships at almost every position. Phillips was the OVC Player of the Year last spring and No. 1 single's champ. He is expected to be seeded No. 1 this year and will probably have to defeat Murray's Mikko Horsa for the title. Horvath handed Noel his only OVC loss of the spring.

Jimenez won the No. 4 title last spring and may repeat. However, he will receive strong competition, especially from Middle Tennessee's Bob Butterfield.

No. 6 singles player, Mario Valle is 6-0 in OVC competition but may not receive the top seeding because he did not play seven matches.

Pancho Sanhueza (No. 2), Gary Boss (No. 3) and Manuel Losada (No. 4) will give strong efforts toward winning their divisions. "All the guys are playing very well," said APSU coach Norman Kalkhoff. "After losing our top three singles and No. 1 doubles and still beating Cincinnati, well, it's very satisfying."

The Governors have challenged for the OVC crown for the last two seasons.

Sally Smith represents U.S.

Sally Smith has been called the "Fly Williams" of women's basketball.

The product of Waverly Central High School can do it all. She can drive with the best of them, she can rebound with players much taller, she can pass well and she can shoot the eyes out of the bucket from almost anywhere with spinning, twisting motion.

Many honors have been bestowed upon Sally, but her latest claim to fame is her greatest accomplishment. You see, when you turn on your television set Saturday afternoon, you will see Sally because the Austin Peay State team was recently named to the U.S. women's basketball team that will play a six-game series against a Russian team.

All the excitement came about when Sally attended a training camp in Albuquerque, N.M., with 42 other hopefuls from across the nation. When the team was cut to 12, Sally Smith's name was still on the roster.

Saturday's game is scheduled to be telecast from Madison Square Garden. The series will end in Albuquerque May 26.

Sally amazed area basketball crowds when she starred for Waverly for three seasons. She probably caused more hushes than any other female athlete ever prompted in Middle Tennessee while at Waverly. Her scoring average and total points scored are still the highest on the TSSAA books.

After high school, Sally was an AAU All-American with Nashville Business College and led her team to the national AAU championship.

Sally was the star of the Austin Peay State women's team last winter and will be the backbone of the Goves next year when they make a bid for the state championship.

Is Sally's collegiate coach Lin Dunn proud?

"Slightly," exclaimed Dunn. "I'm damn proud for her as all her teammates are."

Local fans will get a chance to see the U.S. Russian series May 22 when the two teams battle in Nashville at Belmont College.

"Sally is thrilled to death by the whole thing," said Dunn. "She will leave today to go to Madison Square Garden and she is really looking forward to playing the Russians."

OVC meet begins Friday

Tracksters face biggest test

By BOB LOWRY

"This is the most important weekend in our season, perhaps in Austin Peay track history."

With these words, Coach Ken Guter of Austin Peay State University signaled his thoughts on the upcoming Ohio Valley Conference Track Championships, to be held in Murray, Ky., on the campus of Murray State University.

Gunter expressed optimism concerning the Championships. "If we can get it together, we could finish as high as second place, but we'll need some personal bests or we could fall as low as sixth."

Gunter sees Western Kentucky's Hilltoppers as the odds-on favorite to cop the title, with everyone else playing for second.

"This is what we've been shooting for all season, so it's now or never," Gunter summarized. The Championships will be held Friday and Saturday at Murray State. The preliminaries will start at 5 p.m. Friday, featuring the high hurdles, 440 intermediate hurdles, 440-yard dash, and 440-yard run. Finals will be held in the long jump, high jump, javelin, and shot put. All other events will begin Saturday at 1 p.m.

Last weekend, the Governors participated in the Tom Black Classic on the campus of the University of Tennessee in Knoxville. Gunter indicated he was "pretty well pleased" with the Governors' showing which included two new school records

Oscar Morgan, Austin Peay's stellar three-miler, ran his specialty in the school record time of 13:32.9, shaving about 18 seconds off the old record, which was his. Chiefly, however, his performance still left him far back in this tough event with the nation's best participating.

Also, Mike Bernikow shattered the existing GVC record in the 440 intermediate hurdles with a time of 53.8, leaving him second in his heat.

In other events, long jumper Anthony Carter continued his great performances, jumping 21-

4½ in fifth in second place and Pat Osborne high jumped 6-7 to capture third place in his event.

In the 440-yard dash, two Governors did well. Elton Pilot sprinted the dash in 48.8 and teammate Gerald Robinson was hot on his heels with a 48.5 clocking, good for fifth and sixth places respectively.

Austin Peay's mile relay team was timed in 3:21.1, earning a fifth place finish and Georgi Eason, an APSU student, pole vaulted 16-foot to take second place. Eason will vault for the Governors next season.

Lady Goves end season; fall practice gets started

Austin Peay State University's women's tennis team is already practicing for the 1974-75 season. The preliminaries will end last Saturday in Sewanee in the Tennessee State Tennis Tournament.

Yes, the Lady Goves ended one season Saturday and are ready to jump into the next season.

"I was real pleased with our showing in the state," said coach Betty Christopher. "Debbie Graves (No. 3) and Julie Carlson (No. 2) advanced to the second round in singles and both lost in the third set."

"Graves and Katherine Gentry advanced to the semifinals in No. 2 doubles," added Christopher.

Overall, Austin Peay placed ninth of 11 teams. However, it wasn't much of a disappointment considering all but one member of the APSU team is in the first year of competition on the collegiate level.

Tennessee-Knoxville took the state title away from Vanderbilt with a narrow 20-21 margin. Host Sewanee placed a distant third in the two-day tournament.

In looking to next fall Coach Christopher said, "We already have a couple of tournaments and a couple of home and road matches scheduled. With what we have returning plus some new prospects, we should be in pretty good shape."

Baseballers finish with 20-26 record

Three-season ending losses to Louisville ruined any chance of a .500 season for Austin Peay State University's Governors.

Going into a final four game series with LU's Cardinals, Austin Peay started a 19-23 record. After beating Louisville 6-5 in the opening game of the series to up the record to 20-23, the Goves dropped three consecutive all by two-run margins.

Austin Peay closed the year with eight games in five days beginning Tuesday, splitting a Home doubleheader with David Lipsecomb, losing 2-1 and winning 2-0. Gary Anders was the hard-luck pitcher in the loss while Dallas Cheesman picked up the shutout in the nightcap.

Bob Rickert's grand slam keyed a 10-3 win over Union in the first game of a double dip played at Vanderbilt Thursday.

Gov freshman pitcher Bill York went the distance in the second game when the Goves won 5-4. Doug Savage had a solo home and Pat West had a two-run double to spearhead the offense.

In the series opening 6-5 win over Louisville, Mike Whaley lined a two-out single to drive home Mickey Stansford for the winning tally in the bottom of the ninth. Jerry Steadman picked up the win in relief.

Maxie Garrett gave up only one earned run but Louisville picked up five total runs to whip the Goves 5-3 in Saturday's second game. Bob Rickert's three-run homer in the first, his ninth shot of the year, was the extent of the APSU attack.

Louisville bunched four hits in the sixth inning to score two runs and downed the Governors and Gary Anders 3-1 in Sunday's final game. Jim Carson had APSU's only hits with a double and single.

Dallas Cheesman's final pitching effort for Austin Peay was a good one, but the Goves failed to generate any offense and lost the season finale 2-4. Pat West had two hits to pace the Goves.

Four seniors, Jim Carson, Charlie Sorey, Dallas Cheesman and Doug Savage closed their careers with the Goves.

Sorey and Savage missed the final series due to injuries.

Smith says Governors can place 2nd

East Tennessee favored to win OVC golf crown

East Tennessee State University appears to be the overwhelming favorite to win the Ohio Valley Conference golf championship this weekend in Murray, Ky.

However, you won't be able to count out Austin Peay State, Middle Tennessee State and Murray State. At least, that's the way APSU head coach Walton Smith, Jr., sees it.

"I don't expect anyone will beat East Tennessee," commented Smith, looking in the two-day journey that begins Friday "There's no doubt that they have the best team."

However, Smith rates his fast-improving Goves as no worse than third in the conference, mainly because his golfers have had a couple of weeks of concentrated practice in preparation for "the big one."

"If all our Goves play real well, I mean if we had a lot of luck, too, and East Tennessee doesn't have a good day, we might put it together and possibly win it."

"Realistically," continued the coach, "we should give Middle a ball of a battle for second. It would be unrealistic to say we have a chance to beat East Tennessee, however, by having an exceptional day, well, we could be in there at the top."

Smith feels he has three individuals who could challenge for the individual championship in Mike Carr, Leon Hawk and Eddie Gleichen.

"Those three have worked real hard and are coming around," said Smith. "They have the talent to finish one, two, three."

Other top players in the OVC tourney will be Skeeter Heath, Dave Borkovich and Richard Vetter from East Tennessee and Jim Hurt and Bill Buck from Middle Tennessee.

In addition to Carr, Hawk and Gleichen the other three Goves golfers will come from the group of Joe Burgeon, Jim Hodges, Bruce Wallace, Bob Cartwright, Henry Lane and Jim Bewley.

The Governors will finish qualifying at Murray today.
