Proxmire backs freeze

by Mike Lynch
Editor-in-Chief

Calling it essential to world survival, Wisconsin Senator William Proxmire told an Austin Peay audience he strongly favors a nuclear freeze.

The Democratic senior statesman from Wisconsin visited the Austin Peay campus Tuesday, Feb. 8 as a guest of the Visiting Speakers and Artists Committee. Proxmire lectured in the Clement Auditorium at 11 a.m. and held a question/answer forum at 1:30 in Room 313 of the University Center.

"It's not enough, it's only a first step," Proxmire said. "We have to use the nuclear freeze to reduce nuclear weapons." If we freeze it at the present level it's going to be a very dangerous world."

Proxmire said the threat of nuclear warfare will persist for at least the next 20 years. "We're going to be very lucky to live out our lives, much less the lives of our children without a nuclear war breaking loose," he said.

Proxmire said the chances for nuclear freeze depend on the Soviets' willingness to symmetrically cut weapons in a way that will allow each nation to keep a check on each other's arms reduction.

Proxmire has served in the U.S. Senate since 1967, after serving in the Wisconsin House of Representatives. In 1976 he accepted no campaign contributions and spent $177.83 on his senate campaign.

During the 1982 race he again declined campaign contributions and only spent $145. Proxmire has not missed a vote on the floor of the Senate since 1966.

Proxmire told the Austin Peay audience during his 11 a.m. lecture that the nation is facing a grim unemployment situation.

"On Friday it was announced that the unemployment had dropped from 10.7 percent down to 10.2 percent in one month. That's an encouraging figure, but it demonstrates that statistics are a highly logical and precise way of stating a half-truth, inaccurately."

Austin Peay budget cut 5%

by Allan Daniels
Staff Reporter

For the third consecutive year Governor Lamar Alexander has requested that the presidents of any state institution above the high school level hold back five percent of their operating budget.

According to Austin Peay President Robert O. Riggs this was a courtesy on Alexander's part.

Riggs stated that Austin Peay receives their state money on a monthly basis, and the five percent is removed before being sent to Austin Peay.

The reason for this cutback is that once again state revenue collections are not up to estimated levels.

Riggs said ill effects have not yet been felt here at Austin Peay from the impoundment.

Riggs said he is required to allocate 3 percent of Austin Peay's budget as a reserve. This in effect reduces the 5 percent cutback to 2 percent.

However, Riggs compared this situation to an individual's savings account that is constantly being depleted due to emergencies.

Roughly $450,000 a year is lost from the Austin Peay budget because of this cutback.

Riggs also stated that the weather has not been as severe as expected, thus reducing utility bills.

There are currently open faculty positions which have not been filled. This has prevented any reduction in staff or salaries.

Riggs commented that "a university is a labor-intensive organization." This means most university costs are related to personnel.

Riggs said there is a good chance that at least part of the funds held back could ultimately be returned to Austin Peay.

Last year Austin Peay did receive some money back, according to Riggs. This came in the latter part of the year after revenue collections had increased.

In light of these cutbacks Riggs said in order to get approval for the proposed mass communication major, he will have to prove to the Board of Regents that the money can be raised internally.

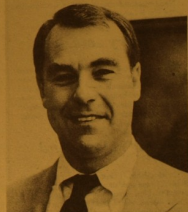

One of the vacant faculty positions is being transferred to the speech, communication and theater department as the first step in that direction.

While there will be some equipment costs, Riggs said he is hoping that grants and contributions will render such costs negligible.

A request for appropriations is being made to improve the library, and the media center.

A potential radio station which would be directly connected with the new major is to be patterned after radio stations at Volunteer State Community College in Gallatin and the University of Tennessee at Martin.

Riggs said that tuition might increase next year, but any increase would be in proportion to increases in state appropriations.

NO PROBLEM—University President Dr. Robert O. Riggs says state budget impoundments will not have a serious effect on Austin Peay and is optimistic that future plans will continue on schedule.

"Opposition is ridiculous"

Mosley proposes I.P.C.

Wayne Mosley, president of the Student Government Association at Austin Peay State University, has recently undertaken the task of forming an organization consisting of all campus presidents.

Dubbed the Inter-Presidents' Council, the organization will be designed to aid each group President in learning what other clubs are doing, and matters that effect the student body as a whole.

Mosley said the group will have a variety of uses. "This organization, the I.P.C., will be able to keep organizations more in touch with what the others are doing. They will be more knowledgeable of each group and what's going on around campus," he said.

"This will not just have the Greeks, or the professional presidents in it, it will have all of them: honor, professional, and academic, as well as the Greeks," he stated.

Mosley stated that any type of inside leadership was not established at this time. "The most likely form of executives in the I.P.C. will be in the form of a chairman, vice-chairman, and a secretary," he said.

Mosley continued to say, "I also have no idea as to who will be the chairman. Quite a few people have the idea that I would automatically assume this seat, however, I feel that it would probably be an un-needed burden on me, or any SGA president to take on."

Mosley did not say that he would not take this post, but no concrete plans have been set and probably would not be until the council (if approved by Senate actions) approves it.

"It just doesn't make sense why there would be any opposition to the I.P.C.," Mosley said.

"Power will not be heavily bestowed on the I.P.C.," Mosley continued. "They will not be a chief policy making body on campus; that will remain in the senate."

"Opposition is just ridiculous, this council will do nothing but good for Austin Peay and I don't know why everyone can't see that," Mosley said.

"The I.P.C. will be a recommending body actually and a center for organizational information. All campus clubs and organizations will get a great deal of benefit from it."

Mosley has tentatively set Feb. 17 as a meeting date for I.P.C. This time will be used for discussion on the groups effectiveness and proceeding with steps for official senate recommendation.

Mosley said he plans to present the council's constitution to the senate at the Feb. 24 meeting.

Proxmire

Proxmire cited raw figures which showed the number of unemployed went up to 12.5 million during the month. The figure increased by 900,000 while 700,000 persons dropped out of the work force.

Proxmire blamed the federal government's huge budget deficit for the rising unemployment. "The economy seems to be improving to some extent, but we're going to have unemployment for a long, long time."

"The deficits which have really haunted us, which are the root cause of our problems, are bad and getting worse." The federal deficit grew by $68.3 billion dollars during the final three months of 1982.

"If we continue to have growth and no recession, and truly begin to recover over the next six years we'll run an additional deficit of $1 trillion."

Proxmire said the only way to alleviate the deficit is to cut programs and increase taxes in a fair and equitable manner. He added that such a task would be difficult because of various political action committees and their influence on capital hill.

Proxmire has drawn national attention in recent years for the Golden Fleece Award he gives to agencies and programs which flagrantly waste tax money. His list includes a $78,000 committee to determine why people fall in love.

The award has also gone to a group which spent $103,000 to determine whether sunfish who drink tequila become more aggressive than stewards.

Placement office offers a variety of job services

Unemployed students at Austin Peay State University may have an easier time finding that job they need than they thought.

Doug Barber, associate director of the placement services, has announced that there some jobs available through his office but says he thinks that many students on campus are unaware of the services offered at the placement center.

Located in the Emerald Hills Alumni building, placement services has been assisting students in finding employment for many years.

"We have an excellent program set up here for the students, but I don't think very many of them know about it," Barber said.

Barber said he thinks the service's reputation for helping graduating students has caused many undergraduates to shy away from the program.

"There are so many things we do over here," Barber said. "We can help place graduating seniors but the program goes on from there...a lot."

"The placement service can be a large asset to the alumni student," he continued. "We set a file up here that if kept up to date will always be available to the former students when they are job hunting."

Establishing a job packet is the first step a senior student takes when they visit the center. This is in the form of a complete resume consisting of faculty references, grade transcripts, and personal data.

The resume will remain as a permanent record with the school. Whenever an alumnus wishes to add to it, he may.

"We will keep their record up to date as long as they keep us informed," Barber said.

Aside from graduate and alumni assistance, the placement service does a great deal to help the current student find employment in the Clarksville area.

"We can not do as much for part-time workers as we do for alumni, however, we do our best in helping out any student that comes to us," Barber stated.

Various businesses in the surrounding community contact placement services in search of responsible workers.

To try and fill these positions Barber and his associates keep cards on students who have been in the office seeking work.

"We use small information cards to help inform us as to each students abilities and work desires," Barber said. "We also keep various job listings posted on a bulletin board in our lobby."

Striving to give the students at APSU the best in opportunities toward careers is what placement services is about. In trying to do so Barber has begun hosting a career fair each year.

Hosting more than 55 companies this year, the career fair will be held Feb. 23 in the University Center Ballroom. Representatives from the companies will be present to talk with students on matters concerning their company employment practices.

"This career fair is not necessarily set up for the student to find out if a certain company has an opening," Barber said. "We are trying to educate the students on how to get a job when a company does have a position open, and also what they should do to prepare for an interview."

Opinion

Does anybody care

All State assumes apathetic attitude

It has come to our attention that The All State has failed to reflect the views of the students of Austin Peay State University through the editorials which have been printed in the student newspaper this year.

The All State has dared to express opinions on such subjects as the state budget, proposed changes in the college system, SGA impotence and the decline of liberalism.

This is where we erred. If we are to properly reflect the apparent attitude of the student population, we have to stop caring. It's really hard to imagine how we could have started off 1983 with the impression that students here actually give a damn about events which so greatly effect them.

Nevertheless, we made a mistake and we're willing to admit it. In keeping with the apathy of the student population, we are resolved not to care or express concern about any of the following:

1. The fact that Austin Peay's basketball went a whole month without winning a game. It doesn't matter that there is more talent on the team this year than there has been since the days of Otis Howard or Fly Williams. If they end the season in last place we will make no attempt to determine why.

2. Lobbying groups are mounting a strong effort to raise the legal drinking age in Tennessee to 21. Freshmen and sophomores might be inconvenienced, but who are we to care?

3. The state legislature is spending more money than it can possibly generate during this fiscal year. Oh well, someone made a boo-boo in the budget. These things happen.

4. Some low-lives happen to be prowling around dark hallways in the dorms and some academic buildings harrasing women. It could be worse.

5. The Student Government Association can barely agree to disagree. All they have to do is spend a few dollars derived from the student activity fees. There's no cause for alarm until they establish a foreign policy.

6. The women's basketball team is one of the biggest jokes in the NCAA. Basketball's a funny game. Those 21 games could have gone either way. It's all a matter of getting the right breaks at the right time.

7. The Board of Regents is thinking about lifting dorm visitation hours and allowing alcohol on campus. They're big boys, they can make these decisions without any help from the students, thank you.

8. The same Board of Regents has impounded 5 percent of Austin Peay's budget to deal with the problem cited in No. 3. What's a few thousand dollars one way or the other?

9. Two New Jersey men were given relatively light sentences for the cold-blooded murder of an Austin Peay football player. Prison might be a good place to reform them before they're paroled.

10. Despite a first-of-the-year gripe session some dorms still have one telephone per suite, and nobody is still sure why. Long distance is still the next best thing to being there.

This is only a sample of the things The All State will not care about in our ever-increasing effort to serve the students of this university. There is an unlimited list of things we can ignore.

If you know of anything that might effect this campus, let us know. Then we can all not care about it together.

(P.S. The All State reserves the right to change our mind and care about anything we might see fit to care about at any given time without prior notice. While such an action may be contrary to our service to our readership, who cares?)

Sexual equality needed

Dear Editor:

Sharon Bell is a young woman most worthy of the title "Miss APSU," but I am really surprised that some of my more liberal friends on the faculty or in the student body have not expressed outright disdain against the archaic sexual attitudes that this program promotes.

What is even more surprising is that my liberal friends have not demanded that this competition be stopped. Since that is rather radical and the program is such a tradition, that stance may be hard to hold.

However, maybe there could be a compromise reached in the name of sexual equality; a "Mr. APSU" contest. Although I am not familiar with the detail work, it seems probable that the same style of competition that the women are coerced into by their peers could be set up for the men: formal wear, talent and small, tight swim suits.

Oh well, I suppose that's really too much to expect out of any group that helps make up the apathy levels on this campus.

Two don't make a senate

Dear Editor:

I, as a freshman class senator of the Student Government Association, object to the generalization made in the title "SGA Senate questions moves."

That implies that the entire senate was in question to the matter at hand. The "SGA Senate" did not object to SGA President Wayne Mosley choosing the five representatives to send to President Robert O. Riggs.

In fact, there were only a couple who objected. The majority of the SGA senators feel that SGA President Wayne Mosley is a very responsible and influential person.

I ask that The All State be more careful in the future and not be so quick to overgeneralize.

Editors collaborate to evaluate

This week marks the unprecedented co-column. We felt the change would be interesting in addition to the fact that we wrote it late. The idea actually hit us Friday night at the Pike house as the neophyte Stray Cats performed at the bar.

We undertook the task of asking various people around campus what they considered to be the "biggest nuisance." The responses were as unprecedented as the combined column with responses ranging from nudity to apathy.

The following is a summary of the responses we received. Some people think surveys pass the buck to the people who respond rather than the columnist (or columnists in this case). Regardless, this survey voices what some people at Austin Peay think.

"The biggest nuisance on campus for me is no place to park my bicycle," said Chris McGary, a senior music education major.

"I realize I'm in a very vast minority of people who ride bicycles, but the two or three decent racks they had they took away. I know security doesn't like having people park them on their nice, expensive, aluminum-clad light poles," he added.

There are two possible solutions to your problem, Chris. One is to find an unused space on campus, like the practice court for the women's basketball team.

The other is to build a new facility named for a former governor. How about the Ray Blanton Bicycle Garage?

USAB Chairman Jim Townsend sees an entirely different problem confronting the university. "The biggest nuisance on campus is the SGA president, Wayne Moseley," Townsend said.

It really wouldn't be fair for us to say anything about the chief executive, some people say we do enough of that already.

Fortunately, we can always find someone to help out. "Do you need any more comments on the SGA president?," said Townsend.

"I don't like the way security likes to hassle people who don't go to school here," said Mike Dixon. "Take the gym, if you try to go to the gym now you have to show an ID. I don't think that's right."

You have a very good point, Mike. Who came up with the idea that college is for students? If the Board of Regents heard that they'd have a fit.

"I would say in the SGA Kip Stevens is the biggest nuisance in general," said freshman class senator Scott Hecklinger.

No Homework

by John St. Amant
Associate Editor

Surprisingly enough, Stevens agreed with that response.

You'll be relieved to know Kip that at least SGA Vice President Mike Trent disagreed with that assessment.

Trent called the temperature in the library the biggest nuisance.

"It is very hot in here," Trent said. "You could probably lose three pounds if you stayed in here for two hours."

"It's a better workout than going to the gym and playing basketball. You take a shower before you come in here and take another one as soon as you leave."

Glen Pafford, a senior speech, communication and theatre major objected to the current closure of the swimming pool.

"I don't know who plans this stuff out," he said. Anytime you destroy the facility for a length of time, you ought to try to do it over summer when there are very few students around."

"The biggest problem on campus is the food in the cafeteria," said Al Haas. "They don't give you enough and if they do give you enough it's pretty rough to eat it."

"A lot of the students want to have programs or concerts for blacks," said Brenda Arnold, a resident assistant in Sevier Hall.

"Students have been coming to me saying there are not enough concerts for the blacks," she added.

Another student complained of misuse of students' time. "Ninety-five percent of the classes are scheduled for the professor's convenience. None of it's scheduled for the individual's convenience."

Perhaps the thought of a parking problem was the most common answer to our question. The need for additional parking spaces was expressed by both faculty and students.

"The Ellington parking situation," was the response of Beth Edwards, director of student life.

"The students park there and there is no place left for the staff to park. That lot is supposed to be for the staff."

One student who also wished to remain anonymous said, "It's hard as hell to find a decent parking space around 10 a.m. It's just crazy to have to walk three-quarters of a mile to class in the cold."

Several solutions are available to the person who can look around and find a suitable area for parking. The space between Ellington Hall and the Physical Plant may be one solution. Another solution may be the William Proxmire Economy Garage. This superstructure will be manufactured with corrugated memos used to reinforce the walls of Harned Hall.

It offers moderate convenience at a minimal cost to the University.

Others nuisances cited include mandatory class attendance, maintenance, misuse of student funds, professors' treatment of black students, the post office doorway, a lack of nudity on campus and the swimming pool renovations.

One staff member cited John St. Amant as the biggest nuisance. Another said it was, "this 67% survey." Some people are utterly lacking in taste.

"The sports editor did something on why people thought the basketball was losing, that was pretty stupid."

"Now you've got this guy Mike Lynch running around asking what the problem is on campus."

Harmon did not indicate where he plans to be working next week.

16 teams compete in Olympics tournament

by Thomas A. Tarvin
Staff Reporter

Sixteen teams from seven counties participated last Wednesday in the Special Olympics basketball tournament held at Austin Peay.

The two teams that prevailed were from the James Adult Center in Houston County and the Warf School in Dickson County. Both of these teams will advance to the state tournament.

Out of the twelve teams competing state-wide, two will advance to the International Special Olympics Summer Games held at Baton Rouge, La.

"The basketball tournament went very well and everybody had a lot of fun," said Glen Carter, assistant professor of social work at Austin Peay. Carter is the area director for Special Olympics.

"I want to thank all of the student volunteers and everyone else who helped out," he said, "especially Artie Manning and the whole intramural staff."

The Special Olympics Spring Games will be competing in varied events. "We'll need over a hundred volunteers to make it work well," Carter said.

There will be an organizational meeting in early March for those persons interested. "Volunteers will not be working on the day of the games," Carter said. "They will also need help organizing and publicizing the event."

A practice meet will be held April 1 which will act as a dress rehearsal for the games nearly three weeks later. "It's an international year and I'd like the spring games to be really special," Carter said.

There will be many other activities besides the athletics. Among these, Carter is planning to have sky divers from Ft. Campbell and also a hot air balloon. "We would like to get the sororities and fraternities involved in sponsoring various activities that will be going on during the games."

Miss Black Pageant Feb. 14

The fraternity of Kappa Alpha Psi is sponsoring the annual Miss Black America of Clarksville beauty pageant. The pageant will be held Saturday, Feb. 19 at 6:30 p.m. in the Clement Auditorium at Austin Peay State University.

The Miss Black America of Clarksville pageant was started six years ago to help young women of Clarksville become involved and more academically inclined.

The director of the pageant is Gary D. Stowe, a member of Kappa Alpha Psi.

"The young ladies are working vigorously to be prepared for the pageant. They are a group of beautiful young ladies and all of them are anxious to represent the black women of America," Stowe said.

NOVEL musicale planned

A specially planned musical is scheduled today for all adult students on campus. The concert will run continuously from 11:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. in the University Center Ballroom.

Students are welcome to attend the full program or to leave or enter at noon. Members of the music department faculty and the student body will perform. Programs will be available at the door.

"We are pleased to offer this special concert," Dr. Nora Beiswenger, sponsor of the NOVEL association, stated.

"Adult students often express their disappointment about missing extracurricular activities at Austin Peay because of job and family commitments."

"Evenings and weekends are their busiest times. Therefore, we are attempting to give them a taste of what they are missing by holding this special program during the day," Beiswenger added.

"If this event produces a good attendance," Beiswenger said, "we will plan to try more programs like this."

Poor staging detracts from Roses

Last weekend's Austin Peay Playhouse performance of Frank Gilroy's The Subject Was Roses was unfortunately disappointing.

The script was a funny and touching look into the intimate life of a Catholic family in 1946 upon the return of the son from the war.

It delved into the relationships of the sickly son and the doting mother, the now-proud father and the man, and the drinking husband and the prudish wife.

The acting was above par for student performances. Glen Pafford, as John Cleary, has a good stage presence and seemed to be well-suited to his part. He made particularly good use of facial expression and gesture.

Jeff Hall's performance as Timmy gave a bit of spark to the show, while Rosemary Foster rather overplayed the part of Nettie Cleary.

The disappointing aspect of the show, however, turned out to be what could have been most exciting. The stage was built out into the audience with the first three rows of seats moved to an angle around the stage.

This innovation at first looked interesting and I felt rather privileged to have a seat that seemed so special at the side of the stage.

However, as the play progressed I realized I could not see a large part of the action. Whenever Pafford sat at the kitchen table, our view of his head and face was obstructed by the lampshade on the living room table!

This problem became most ludicrous in the second scene of the first act when Pafford and Foster sat at the

review

by Margaret Langford

kitchen table.

Pafford's head was blocked by the lampshade and Foster's face was hidden behind the vase of roses on the table! In this case, the subject truly was roses!

The second act was little better, with more action in the living room portion of the stage, the view most often was of Pafford's rather bulky backside.

I commend whoever thought of building the thrust stage on his attempt at originality, however, the set design and directing did not take perspective into account, and so the attempt was ineffective. I am glad to see such creativity and hope in the future such problems can be corrected before performance night.

Apart from the problem of view, the set was impressive, with a complete 1940's kitchen and living room.

James Hersch presents concert today

by Robin Cole
Features Editor

Singer/songwriter
James Hersch will be performing today in a two hour concert in the University Center lobby.

Hersch will present a combination of original music and new interpretations of songs by such artists as Bruce Springsteen, Bob Dylan, and Jimmy Buffett.

Jim Townsend, USAB chairman, said he met Hersch at a convention for campus activities. "I listened to some of his music and it sounded pretty good," Townsend said. He then invited Hersch to play at APSU.

Hersch is a performer who only tours the college circuit, much like the Amazing Jonathan, a magician who performed here two weeks ago.

He is a graduate of ASCAP's Songwriter's Workshop West in Los Angeles, a highly regarded ten-week program paid for by ASCAP and offered to auditioned songwriters from around the country.

Hersch will be here from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. All students are invited to attend.

Frantic search is topic of Without A Trace

A mother's desperate search for her missing six year old son is the topic of Without A Trace, a movie based upon the novel, Still Missing. This film is a real heartbreaker—it takes an emotion-packed theme and handles it without diving into cheap sentimentality. The film deals with basically two points of view—the reaction of the mother and the increasing involvement of a detective in the case.

review

by Robin Cole
Features Editor

Kate Nelligan stars as Susan Selky, a professor at Columbia University, the mother of the lost child. Judd Hirsch plays Detective Al Menetti, the officer in charge of the case. David Dukes co-stars as Dr. Graham Selky, the father, who is estranged from his wife at the time of the disappearance. Stockard Channing is Jocelyn, Susan's best friend and supporter during the crisis.

The film opens with Susan sending her first grader off to school, which is only three blocks away. She goes to work as usual, and teaches her classes. Upon her arrival home later in the day, she becomes concerned when her son is late. Susan makes a few phone calls, discovering that the child never got to school at all that day. She calls the police, and the search begins. The film goes into the different aspects of the police process of locating a missing child and the long, hard hours of waiting for the family. The fact that many strange people phone the family and police to offer advice and bizarre types of help is also explored during the course of the movie.

I'm not going to discuss the outcome of the movie, because this is a film you need to see for yourself. Nelligan's portrayal of the mother is excellent, and Hirsch's performance is also quality acting. My big complaint about Without A Trace is Stockard Channing—she just doesn't seem to fit into the scheme of this film. Once again, go see Without A Trace for yourself—you'll be crying and cheering over this good film.

Hank Williams Jr. to play Austin Peay

The sizzle and fire that have become trademarks of Hank Williams Jr.'s concerts will be brought to middle Tennessee's March 11 in a concert at Austin Peay State University's Dunn Center.

The 8 p.m. concert will feature Earl Thomas Conley as the opening act, followed by Hank Jr. and the Bama Band.

Critics have come to consider Hank Jr. as the master of "modern country music" as the musician had a record nine albums simultaneously charted on Billboard's Top 100 Country Albums in 1982.

His current album, "Strong Stuff," features his latest single, "Gonna Go Huntin' Tonight," which is number 39 with a bullet on Billboard's Hot Country Singles Chart.

Conley, who began his rise to fame in the late 1970's with his number one hit, "Fire and Smoke," will bring a program of music that includes a solid list of Top 10 Country Hits. Among his recent recordings is his single "I Have Loved You Girl," which is number 27 on the Billboard charts.

Tickets ($9.50 reserved and general admission) went on sale Monday at the Austin Peay State University Center Box Office, the APSU Dunn Center, Sound Shop in Two Rivers Mall, Hopkinsville, Ky., Madisonville, Ky., and Oak Grove, Ky.; the ITT Office at Fort Campbell; Newt's in Clarksville; and Hank Williams Jr. General Store in Nashville.

Vandy loves Hooker

NASHVILLE (NOCR)—The cops on Hill Street may get all the Emmys, but another small screen policeman has his own rabid fans on at least one campus.

T.J. Hooker, the ABC television series starring William Shatner, draws over 30 enthusiastically Vanderbilt U. students to each Saturday night showing.

The group recently formed the "T.J. Hooker Viewing Society," complete with membership requirements, Christmas cards, and "word of wisdom" taken from the show. T.J.'s fans even wrote their own song, sung to the tune of "Jingle Bells," in tribute to him.

"It's called, Ho, Ho, Freeze," says club "cardinal" Tim Corbett. "The first verse goes, Ho, ho, freeze; Ho, ho, freeze; T.J.'s on the way; Speeding down the city street to blow the scam away."

Of course, the primary group activity is watching every episode of "T.J. Hooker," and club members have gone to unusual lengths to do so.

Mabry will direct Echoes from the Holler

Dr. George Mabry has always loved customs and character. And in his latest show, "Echoes from the Holler," Mabry combines his musical talents with those factors for his first dialogued-plot musical.

A professor of music at Austin Peay State University, Mabry has gained worldwide fame

He arranged music for Opryland's "I Hear America Singing," which was written by Paul Crabtree, and has created numerous shows and musicals that have captured the praise of audiences at various Austin Peay events such as the annual Christmas Madrigal Feast.

Mabry will travel to the southwestern Missouri theme park, Silver Dollar City, later this spring to direct production of the show which will open June 11. Located near Branson, Mo., Silver Dollar City draws more than 2 million visitors each year.

Nestled in the heart of the Ozarks Mountains, the theme park is the perfect setting for Mabry's musical which follows the lives of two Ozark families from 1850 to around 1880.

"I tried to include all of the things that would have surrounded a family living in that time, the Civil War, moonshining and making a living on a farm," explained Mabry.

"This is not a story about the Hatfields and the McCoys or an illiterate hill family. This is the story of the average Ozarks family."

Mabry was contacted by Silver Dollar City officials after they viewed "Sing Tennessee" at the World's Fair. He traveled to Missouri in October and admits to not knowing anything about the area or the music of 1880s Ozark Mountains. Silver Dollar City is built on the theme of the 1880s period and focuses heavily on crafts and lifestyle.

The show incorporates much of the music, with some changes, associated with the Ozarks. In addition, nine or 10 original musical numbers by Mabry were incorporated into the show.

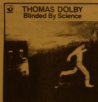

"Echoes from the Holler" will involve casting of 22 people, which Mabry said involves auditions in nine different locations, including Nashville. An orchestra of 12, which will include the traditional Ozarks instrument, the hammer dulcimer, will provide accompaniment.

"What I have tried to capture in 'Echoes from the Holler' is the authenticity of Ozarks life," Mabry said. "It would bore an audience to see nothing but exact authenticity, so I add flavor for entertainment's sake. It is a folk show but brings in up-to-date arrangements."

Aiming to Please U

If you were there, you know how good it was and if you missed it, you've heard how good it was.

Of course, if you've been out of the country, or at home with mono, you might not know what we're talking about: The Sweetheart Banquet sponsored by Harvill Inn and Valley Food Service.

If you were in the mood for romance, this was the night for it. Harvill Inn has never looked better. Softly lit, the dining room was decorated with cupid, hearts and lace. It's hard to say how many romances began or were rekindled, but there were stars in more than a few eyes!

For students more concerned with stomachs than hearts, there was food, food and more food. The buffet included roast turkey and dressing, baked ham and lasagna. As usual, there were plenty of vegetables like green beans almondine, glazed carrots and potatoes with cheese sauce.

For dessert, Valley had a special treat: cheesecake with strawberry glaze. Nobody cooks better than Valley, and nobody appreciates good food more than APSU.

But the banquet had more to offer than a romantic atmosphere and great food. Alex Adames of Sound Express, was on hand to play the top forty. What else can we say about the Sweetheart banquet? It was great!

Andrews' bucket clinches Gov victory

By Steve Harmon
Sports Editor

"Do unto others as you would have them do unto you" is advice from the Good Book.

And Austin Peay took note of the old eye-for-an-eye adage, handing upset Akron a 70-68 setback in Dunn Center Saturday night.

The victory ended a nine-game tailspin for the Governors. Peay's last win was against Eastern Kentucky on Jan. 8 in the Dunn Center, 72-67.

Billed as a church promotional night, with patrons who showed a church bulletin being admitted for $2, a crowd of 1,750 Governor diehards saw Peay's Greg Andrews lose in a 15-footer with 14 seconds to play, preserving the Govs' first win in more than a month.

APSU improved to 9-15 on the season and 2-9 in the OVC. Akron fell to 12-9 overall and 6-4 in the loop. It was way back on Jan. 14 in Akron, Ohio where the Govs' 1982-83 demise began.

Leading by as many as 17 points, Peay fell victim to a Zip onslaught which saw the hosts rally in the closing moments to win on a last-second shot by UA scoring ace Joe Jakubick.

"We didn't have revenge on our minds," insisted Lenny Manning, who led the Govs with 24 points of Saturday's retaliation. "We were just hungry for a win."

The scenario in Dunn Center was ever so similar to the two teams' initial meeting.

Peay bounced back from an early 11-4 deficit to grab a 42-40 midway lead as Manning threw down 20 first-half points.

The Govs came out in the second half with a different defense, a tactic which had backfired in the first game.

"We lost our momentum a little bit," noted Governor skipper Ron Bargatzke of his club's abandonment of a "box-and-one" defense which saw the Govs focus on the 30.7 points per game of OVC scoring leader Jakubick.

A sticky man-to-man alignment enabled Peay to build an 11-point cushion, 58-47, with 14:10 remaining, on a Joe Parker jumper from the left wing.

But, then Jakubick, who needed game scoring honors with 30 points, took control. A 23-foot three-pointer, a driving layup and then a 10-footer in the lane teamed with a 6:56 APSU scoring drought as the Zips pulled ahead, 59-58, with 7:39 to play.

Mandel Stockton countered with a pair of jumpers from the low post as the teams exchanged leads twice.

Saddled with foul trouble most of the evening, Peay's Andrews restarted the game at 5:48 to score six of the Governors' final eight points, including the game-winning 15-footer with 14 seconds to play.

Jakubick's desperation shot at the buzzer fell harmlessly.

"The only motivator we have right now is the memory of what it is to win," noted Bargatzke. "There's a pride factor involved for us. We want to finish on a positive note."

The Governors were 32 of 70 from the field for 45.7 percent while Akron hit 27 of 55 for 49.1 percent.

Peay made good on all three free throws, while UA was nine of 13 for 69.2 percent.

Along with Manning's 24 points, Andrews tallied 16 while Stockton hit for 14 and grabbed 12 rebounds.

In the Govs' 73-72 loss to visiting Youngstown State Thursday night in Dunn Center, Andrews paced Peay with 21 points and Randy Harris added 17.

Austin Peay travels to Cookeville to challenge Tennessee Tech tomorrow night.

The Govs close out the season next weekend at home against League-leading Murray State Friday before hosting Middle Tennessee Saturday.

In role of spoiler

Peay back on right track

It wasn't the NCAA championship. Or even the NIT title game. But, Austin Peay's 70-68 win over Akron Saturday night in Dunn Center was the climax of a round-robin tournament of their own, so to speak.

Peay's now-defunct nine-game losing streak had been "round" long enough and its been "robin" the Govs of plenty of pride.

"It's a great victory for this team," said a relieved Governor pilot Ron Bargatzke after the Akron win. "To go through what these kids have gone through and still be able to respond to the challenge is a tribute to their character."

To claim this ever-elusive triumph against Akron, the team that initiated all the Governor problems way back on Jan. 14 in tiny Memorial Hall with the left hand of Joe Jakubick, must be even more satisfying, although Lenny Manning and Co. won't credit the victory to retribution.

Jakubick, in absolute defiance of the fundamentals of correct shooting form, threw in one of those "I promise I won't do it again" type of Hal Mary shots from a near-horizontal position to slap the Govs in the face—with his left hand, of course.

Consider that Peay had entered the game in Akron last month with a 8-6 overall record and had led by as many as 17 points in the contest and you've got to believe that Lenny and the guys are hiding some of their feelings.

FROM
GREEN

by Steve Harmon
Sports Editor

But, the past is just that—the past.

The Govs are now enjoying a winning streak, Lonnie West is back following a one-game vacation and Bargatzke seems to be sharpening the back-stabbing knife the Govs must inevitably wield in their role of spoiler in the OVC race.

Looking toward the future, Peay challenges Tennessee Tech tomorrow night in Cookeville, before hosting Murray State and Middle Tennessee the following weekend in Clarksville.

If Saturday's performance is any indication, the Govs haven't thrown in the towel yet.

And they're not holding it to cry on, either.

SKY HIGH—Greg Andrews of Austin Peay follows home a shot in first half action versus Youngstown State Thursday in the Dunn Center. Andrews netted 21 points in the Govs' 73-72 loss.

Austin Peay runners stumble

by Michael L. Tharpe
Staff Reporter

The Austin Peay track squad ran into some stiff competition as they finished last in a seven team meet held at Middle Tennessee State University over the weekend.

Inexperience continued to be the major problem for the Gobs, as only two runners placed in some meet. "We've been in some tough competition the last couple of meets and our runners just haven't learned yet how to cope with it," state Coach Mike Howard.

Sophomore speedster Roland Scruggs showed he could cope with the competition as he placed second in the 440 yard dash. Scruggs narrowly missed qualifying for the nationals with a time of 47.6 seconds, three-tenths of a second off the qualifying time of 47.9 seconds.

Senior Prentiss McGlory also fared well for the Gobs, placing third in the 60 meters run with a time of 6.33 seconds.

The mile relay team consisting of Scruggs, Randall Fayne, Terry Taylor and Ron Springer finished sixth with a time of 3 minutes, 16 seconds to round out the scoring for the Gobs.

Peay finished last behind Auburn, MTSU,

S.E. Missouri, South Carolina, Murray State and Memphis State, respectively.

According to Howard, his distance runners seem to be the biggest problem as of now. "We're getting a great effort out of everyone, but our distance runners need to improve before we can begin to place well in the upcoming OVC meet," explained Howard.

Martin, UTC drop Lady Gobs

Add UT-Martin and UT-Chattanooga to the ever-growing list of schools who have enjoyed the 1982-83 Lady Gobs basketball misfortune.

UT-Martin held off a spirited APSU effort to post a 70-66 decision over the Lady Gobs in Dunn Center last Thursday night.

Trailing by 11 points with only 4:01 remaining, Peay rallied with six points from center Susan Wright and a bucket each from Amy Davis and Valerie Malone to pull close at 75-72 with 37 to play.

A Malone 10-footer with 10 seconds remaining closed the gap to 76-74.

However, Davis' attempt from long range at the buzzer was errant.

UT-Chattanooga, a team which cracked to Top 20 ranking earlier in the season, disposed of a less-intense Lady Gobs contingent Saturday, 91-58, in the Dunn Center.

"We didn't have any intention tonight," noted

Lady Gov Coach Pam Davidson. "Tonight we were just flat. We weren't able to develop any consistency."

The Lady Gobs dropped to 1-21 on the year.

Tina Chairs poured in 32 points as the Lady Moccasins upped their record to 14-7.

Wright led APSU with 19 points against Martin. Davis added 16, while Malone netted 10 points.

Wright (12, Davis (10) and Jennifer Brown (10) scored in double digits for the Lady Gobs against UTC.

The Lady Gobs return to OVC action tomorrow night against Tennessee Tech in Cookeville.

Varner to appear in UC gameroom

by Steve Harmon
Sports Editor

Nick Varner, 1982 World nine-ball champion, will give a pocket billiards exhibition Tuesday, Feb. 22 in the University Center gameroom.

The Owensboro, Ky. native will conduct shows from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Varner is regarded as one of the top five all-around pool players in the world, according to Billiard Digest magazine.

Specializing in "straight pool," Varner has appeared on CBS, NBC, and ESPN television networks in recent years.

"We got him at a good price," said gameroom coordinator Mike Meador, who is in charge of promotions for the exhibition.

Varner began playing pool as a Purdue University student. His talent soon surfaced as Varner was crowned the national collegiate champion in 1969 and 1970.

Varner conducts about 75 exhibitions yearly, Meador said, and owns a high run of 307 balls made without a miss.

In preparation for Varner's show, Meador and the gameroom staff have organized a tournament for Austin Peay students. "We're having a pool tournament for the students and the winner will play Nick Varner in front of the student body," Meador announced.

The eight-ball tourney will be Feb. 15. Students will be required to call their shots in the best-two-out-of-three format.

A $1 entry fee will be charged.

POOL CHAMP—Nick Varner will conduct two pool shooting exhibitions Tuesday, Feb. 22 in the University Center gameroom.

Holt signs all-state duo

Cheryl Holt, Lady Gova volleyball coach, has announced the signing of two recruits to national letters of intent.

Pam Bishop, a 5-7, 135-pound hitter, and Lori Williams, a 5-4, 115-pound hitter, have linked with Austin Peay. Both played on the Class 3-A state championship team at Bradley Central in Cleveland, Tenn.

Bishop was named Most Valuable Player of the state tourney, while Williams was an all-state selection for Bradley Central.

"I think they're the two best players in the state," said Holt of her recruits.

The Lady Gova finished at 11-27 this fall.

Austin Peay forward Greg Andrews poured in 37 points in two games last week, including the game-winning shot with 14 seconds to play against Akron Saturday, as the Gova broke a nine-game losing streak.

The 6-5 Elkton, Ky. native notched game scoring honors in a 73-72 loss to league rival Youngstown State Thursday night in Dunn Center with 21 points. Andrews' 16 points and seven rebounds helped the Governors break a telepathy dating back to a 74-67 triumph over Eastern Kentucky on Jan. 8.

Kleynhans bumps Southern in all-Austin Peay final

by Steve Harmon
Sports Editor

Austin Peay's Lady Gov tennis team capped all the headlines in the recent Mid-Winter Women's Tennis Championship at Tennis Unlimited in Nashville as No. 1 player T.J. Kleynhans faced Debbie Southern, graduate assistant coach, in the tournament finals.

Kleynhans, a freshman from Tralee, Ireland, prevailed over Southern, 6-2, 6-0.

"T.J.'s an excellent player," praised Southern. "It doesn't really surprise me that she won. I hope this tournament gives her confidence for the spring," the former University of Tennessee netter added.

Southern advanced to the finals of the tournament with straight set victories in the quarter and semi-finals.

Kleynhans' path was not as smooth, though.

She recovered from a shaky first set to down Harit Hamilton, 6-7, 6-1, 6-2. Kleynhans dropped the opening set in her semi-final match, as well, before winning, 6-7, 7-6, 6-1 against Lisa Abraham, ranked No. 1 in Tennessee's 16-year old age group.

"I think it took T.J. time to adjust to the speed of the courts," noted Southern. "The courts (in Nashville) are real fast," she compared of the surface in the Dunn Center.

Lady Gov team play begins March 8 as Peay travels to Murfreesboro to face Middle Tennessee in a 2 p.m. match.

All-Niter "a good time"

It had a little bit of everything. From eating pizza to throwing darts to playing backgammon, the sixth annual "All-Niter" caught the fancy of the estimated 600 Austin Peay students, faculty and staff in attendance.

Held Friday night and continuing into Saturday's early hours in the "Little Red Barn," the USAB and SGA-sponsored event featured competition from 17 teams.

Hell's Angels won the men's division while Kappa Delta claimed the top spot in the women's division.

"I was really happy," said Artie Manning, director of student activities at Austin Peay, who teamed with Buddy Baumgarner, coordinator of social activities, in heading the event. "Everybody that came had a good time."

Individual winners in the men's division were: pie eating—Steve Luker, Baxter's Boys; friebase toss—Mike Proctor, Sigma Chi; dart throw—Mike Latham, Bricklayers; Mello Yellow chug-a-lug—Steve Brown and Don Felder, Hell's Angels; egg race—Garnet Ladd and Bob Terrell, Pi Kappa Alpha; free throw—David Donald, Baxter's Boys; pizza eating—John Tankersley, Sigma Nu; tug-o-war—Hell's Angels; and case stacking—Kappa Alpha Psi.

Gameroom activities in the men's division went to: spades—Kappa Alpha Psi; backgammon—Sigma Nu; and checkers—Hell's Angels.

Women's winners in the gameroom included: spades—Little Sigmas; backgammon—Kappa Delta; and checkers—Gamma Sigma Sigma.

Sponsors for the various events included Kroger's, Bedweiser and Ideal Distributing, First National Bank of Clarksville, Coors, Coca-Cola, Jenkins and Wynne, Clarksville Sporting Goods, Pizza Inn and Acme Boot.

"This thing couldn't have happened without the community support we're getting," said Manning, adding that next year's All-Niter will feature door prizes to be given away in the bingo competition.

Manning added a special thanks to Austin Peay staffers Al Williams, Joe Ellenburg, Beth Edwards and Doug Barber for their help in coordinating the event and to all the student workers who were "in there helping us."
