Art to be shown

An exhibition and sale of original Oriental art will be presented today from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the University Center lobby. The exhibit offers art from Japan, China, India, Tibet, and Thailand; some dating back to the 18th century. The Art Dept. will receive a commission on all sales that will be used to increase the University's art collection.

Policy outlined

During severe inclement weather the University will remain open, classes will be held, and the faculty and staff will be expected to perform their normal duties. The following are the policy rules, as outlined in the 1982 Winter Schedule of Classes:

- Except in those rare instances when the University is closed due to catastrophic condition, classes will be held and student attendance expected.
- Students should plan to cope with severe inclement weather conditions in such a fashion as to be able to attend scheduled classes.
- In cases of severe inclement weather or hazardous roads, students are to exercise their own judgement in making decisions about class attendance.
- Students will be held accountable for all assignments for their courses.

USAB recruits

Jim Townsend, chairman of the University Social Activities Board, said recently that he would like to remind all campus organizations to send in their selections for USAB committee representatives.

"Any interested student wanting to be on the USAB committee should contact me by letter," Townsend said. Letters should be addressed to: Jim Townsend, P.O. Box 6894, APSU.

Profs elected

Austin Peay State University professors Dr. Luke Thomas and Dr. Joe Brown have been elected to leadership positions for the Tennessee Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

Thomas, assistant professor of health and physical education, was elected chairman of the research section. He received both his bachelor and master degrees from Northwestern State University of Louisiana and his Ph.D. from Louisiana State University.

Chairman of the health and physical education department, Brown was elected recorder for the research section. He earned his doctorate degree from the University of Cincinnati. He also holds degrees from Southern Illinois University and Southeast Missouri State University.

Financial Aid has problems

John Bratcher, director of financial aid, admitted there were some problems in handing out financial aid checks on registration day this winter. There were long lines and many students had to go to the financial aid office, where the waiting was even longer.

Bratcher said the same system was used this quarter as was used the last four quarters. He said the problem this time might have been with volume. "With 3,000 students receiving financial aid, there are going to be some problems," Bratcher said.

"The biggest problem was line management," stated Bratcher. He said many problems in this area could have been prevented and solved simply by line supervisors communicating with and instructing students as to what to do and where to go.

The financial aid office was inundated with problems Jan. 4. Registration was the first day after the holidays this year, leaving no time to catch up from Dec. 22, the last working day for the administration before the holidays. "This occurs about once every seven years," Bratcher said.

Registration lasts only one day in winter quarter as opposed to one and a half days for fall quarter. Jim Shafer, assistant director of financial aid, said the university was considering changing registration for winter quarter from one to two days in the future. This would require many changes in the university schedule, however, Shafer concluded, "There is a lot of work to be done on registration day, that's for sure."

Two key employees in the financial aid office were out because of illnesses. "This reduced the staff by one third," Bratcher said. The office employs 23 student workers and six full-time staff members.

Bratcher said an unusually high number of Student Eligibility reports for Basic Educational Opportunity Grants were not brought in until registration day. There were also many cases of late grades from fall quarter which resulted in aid suspension problems.

In addition, there were twenty-two transfer students who had not yet received transcripts from other schools and forty-five students who had not yet mailed in acceptance of financial award notices with about twelve checks that just were not ready. "So you're talking about close to 75 students who have to be delayed," Bratcher said.

For all these reasons, plus heavy traffic in the financial aid office (which Bratcher estimated to be in the hundreds), the office was running three hours behind schedule on registration day.

To solve some of these problems in the future, Bratcher stated, "I will have more people working the lines to be sure they keep moving."

Rev. King honored, Citizens speak

A community assembly commemorating the works and life of Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. will take place at 4 p.m. Jan. 17, at the Burt-Cobb Community Center in Clarksville.

Mrs. Martha Roberts, secretary of NAACP and a member of Clarksville's Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial Committee, is the chairperson for the program.

The master of ceremonies is Rev. Richard Leaks, pastor of Greenhill Baptist Church in Clarksville.

"I feel that it's an honor to be a part of a memorial program for Dr. King," said Leaks.

Leaks stated that he intends to highlight the works, the life, and the thoughts of Dr. King at the assembly. The pastor also stated that the program is appropriate and "we should keep the dream alive."

Keynote speaker is Rev. J.F. Cunningham of Dayton, Ohio, formerly of Clarksville. Dr. James Mock, black political scientist at APSU, is also among numerous participants who will speak.

Mock, along with assistant district attorney Charles Johnson, will speak of Dr. King's works. Mock stated he is concerned about people in the community understanding the true meaning of the ceremony. He agrees that it is a good start for others to follow.

"Let your light shine and indeed others can walk in the light," the political science professor said.

Other speakers include Mrs. Faye Smalley, president-elect of Clarksville-Montgomery County Education Association, who will state the purpose of the observation. Miss Joan Pettus, a student of APSU will be responsible for the greetings. Rev. Robert Anderson, pastor of St. Paul Baptist Church, Clarksville, will give the invocation. Other local ministers will also be present.

"I believe it (the program) is necessary because of the contributions not only to blacks but to all Americans," said Greg Riley, president of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity at Austin Peay.

"Last year we sponsored a similar type program, being that Dr. King is a member of our fraternity," Riley added.

Music for the occasion will be provided by the Tri City Community Choir, Voices of Faith, Greenhill Baptist Church of Clarksville, the Ebenezer Jubilee Singers, and the male chorus of First Baptist of Clarksville.

The program is opened to the public and the sponsors of the program are urging everyone interested to attend.

The doors will be open at the Burt-Cobb Community Center for preparations Sunday afternoon at 2:30 p.m.

Aid cuts affect many students

By Kathy Maynard

Under the latest stop-gap funding measure—"Continuing Resolution"—passed by Congress and signed by President Ronald Reagan the week of Dec. 18, 1981, the Department of Education budget would be trimmed to $12.8 billion.

That figure in itself was a rollback from the $13.9 billion provided by the previous resolution that expired Dec. 15. In fiscal '81, the Education Department was funded at $14.9 billion.

The American Council on Education estimated that student aid programs would get a total of $3.37 billion under the current bill. President Reagan's request in September was for $3.317 billion.

John Bratcher, director of financial aid, said, "I don't know if I can say how strongly I oppose the cut. That's not only from a philosophical point of view, but from a compassionate one as well."

Bratcher said that the United States provides students a universal education. "We're probably the only country that provides as many opportunities for students to become part of the educated populace. Every student should have the opportunity to go to school in the first place and break out of poverty. Without an education that person may be a drain on society rather than productive."

Further reductions seem to be on the way for the present funding year. President Reagan's budget message in Jan. is expected to call for another sweeping round of cuts for the 1982-83 academic year beyond those in the present continuing resolution.

The planned recessions would take another $950 million out of student aid and reduce most other programs by 25 percent. The cuts come on top of a series of moves by President Reagan's administration this year which have hacked away availability of student aid, as well as reducing the amount of funds.

In the Guaranteed Student Loan (GSL) program, for example, a mandatory needs test that was imposed for applicants with family incomes above $30,000 has reduced college aid for middle-income families.

"A person with an income under $30,000 can borrow $2,500, but again my idea concern is the plan will not be attractive to lenders because there will be no money available," stated Bratcher.

Continuing Education classes begin

Currently offered at Austin Peay are various classes designed as continuing education courses. These courses include typing, pottery, Aerobic dancing, sign language, and more.

The term "Continuing Education" may have left people in the past with the idea that the classes are offered for older persons or those lacking a high school diploma.

Dr. Evelyn Nixon, director of the Continuing Education program said "the classes are open to women, men and children in the community as well as persons attending the University, and also military personnel and their dependents."

Nixon points out that quite a variety of courses are being offered in the program.

"Many students in the university would be interested in classes such as dancing for the 80's, photography, physical conditioning, and sign language. There is even a six week course on bartending offered," Nixon said. This course, instructed by Roger Picard, is designed for those person's with an interest in bartending. All students in this course must be at least nineteen years of age.

A very different course offered by the Continuing Education program is entitled "Paperbacks and Coffee." According to Nixon, this course is designed to keep people in touch with the latest in paperback books, and give the students a chance to have a good discussion about them.

On a more professional scale the Continuing Education program offers such traditional courses as typing, bookkeeping and shorthand. Other professional courses offered are Real Estate Principles, Stocks, bonds, and investments, Real Estate and Finance and Basic Computer languages.

Other courses offered are Racquetball I, II, and III, and a Karate class. Karate is taught as basic conditioning with an emphasis on exercise patterns and fighting techniques.

Another class offered is Cardiopulmonary resuscitation. This CPR course is given in part by the Montgomery County CPR Committee and by the American Heart Association. Training sessions for interested persons are given monthly and there is no fee charged.

"Although this is an excellent course, it could not be of much interest to most university students as CPR instruction is conducted through the dorms," Nixon said.

Nixon said that the Continuing Education program is very helpful to the University.

"Classes such as typing, bookkeeping, and physical education may be able to make up for a course that has been closed down," she said.

All of the Continuing Education classes have a limited enrollment and are filled on a first come, first serve basis.

"Pre-registration is required for these courses and persons wishing to take a class should enroll soon," Nixon said.

Those persons who complete courses in the program will be given an appropriate university certificate and the class will also become part of their personal education record.

Fees for the courses are payable at the first meeting by cash or a check made payable to the university. Each class carries different fee and book requirements. Anyone interested in more information should contact the Continuing Education Department at 648-7816.

Cuts

A 5 percent origination fee which borrowers must pay back to the bank when the loan is taken out, may be doubled for the upcoming fiscal year.

Reports show fiscal '82 reductions however, pale in comparison to Office of Management and Budget proposals for 1983.

Among proposals being considered by President Reagan's administration are elimination of the Supplemental Grants, National Direct Student Loans and the State Student Incentive Grant program.

Congress is expected to return to work on Jan. 25. One of the major items it will consider is the present Continuing Resolution which is set to expire March 31.

When asked what Bratcher's foresight is on the outcome of President Reagan's budget cut, he responded "I foresee cuts in GSI, SEOG cut out all together with the possibility of NDSL, and sever cutbacks in SEOG and CWSP. Tennessee would not have as big a state cutback because the budget is about $8 billion and about $1 billion of that is Federal."

"The seriousness of the financial aid situation is frightening and it makes me angry. I urge the students and their families to contact their representatives. We've done all we can do. Congress is depending on their constituents."

President Reagan is expected to deliver his annual budget message on the evening of Jan. 26.

Oakland joins APSU

Dr. Ronald C. Oakland has joined the Austin Peay State University staff as director of counseling and testing.

Oakland recently completed his doctorate in guidance and counseling at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. Prior to completing his doctoral studies, Oakland was a Methodist minister in the New England area and taught in the public school system and at the university level.

Oakland attended the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. He earned two masters degrees, one in theology from Boston University and another in counselor education from Lesley College in Cambridge, Mass.

Oakland is planning to develop an out-reach program in hopes to better serve students. "We are making a major effort to interact with students where they do their living, changing and growing," he said.

Oakland's professional memberships include the American Personnel and Guidance Association, Tennessee Personnel and Guidance Association and the Association of University and College Center Directors.

Funds run out

Herald closes

The Robertson Herald, Springfield, the oldest newspaper in Robertson County, went out of business on Nov. 4 because of economic difficulties.

The paper, founded in 1889, was owned by Multimedia, Inc., a communications chain which operates 13 other newspapers in the mid-state region, including The Leaf-Chronicle, Clarksville.

It was known as the Springfield Herald until two years ago when its name was changed. The paper was edited by Billy Fields, who is an alumni of Austin Peay and former editor-in-chief of The All State and had a full-time staff of five.

Luther B. Thigpen, president and publisher of The Leaf-Chronicle Co., said economic considerations forced the closing of the newspaper.

"We regret leaving Springfield," Thigpen said. "Our company's ties with the city and the surrounding area go back many years and we have strong friendships which we value highly."

"This was one particular market where we had some problems—there was another weekly operating there and we felt like it was time to leave that market," Thigpen said.

In June, Multimedia converted the paper to a free publication mailed to 13,000 homes throughout the county, Thigpen said.

The Herald's closing leaves Springfield with one local newspaper, the Robertson County Times

In an editorial, The Times expressed its regrets that The Herald had ceased publication.

Male pin-ups create good business

The male pin-up calendars that originated at Arizona State U. last year have spread to over a dozen other campuses, and may have helped spark renewed interest in more traditional female calendars.

The Men of ASU, which featured photos of 13 (clothed) male students, has been mimicked at Louisiana State U., Michigan State U., the U. of Southern California, the U. of California-Santa Barbara and Ohio State U., among others.

The new calendars are most often put together and marketed by students or student groups, although one company, NIH Productions, put together calendars at Ohio State and the U. of Michigan. At MSU featuring 13 female students posed in alluring, though not revealing, poses.

At schools where female pin-up calendars have come back, they've encountered opposition

Solutions offered

Registration process could be easier

Registration is by no means an easy process, but the students of Austin Peay seem to have a more difficult time of it than need be.

The problem is not a lack of personnel to handle the many aspects of registration, nor is the problem a lack of money to insure the operation of registration. The problem is a lack of communication among the students, administration, faculty and registration workers.

An example of this lack of communication began as far back as last quarter's advance registration. In the "Winter 1982 Schedule of Classes," the dates Dec. 9 and 10 had been set aside for adjusting advanced registration of classes. These dates were changed without adequate notice to the students. According to Admissions and Records, letters were sent the day, before (Dec. 8) notifying all professors to inform their students in class of this date change. No student we talked to knew of a professor relaying this information.

Consequently, the students stood for a long time in two seemingly endless lines leading to two tiny windows of Admissions and Records. Once in front of the windows many students were told that they would have to come back the next day to make the changes. Posted right next to the windows were copies of the memo sent to all professors to inform their students of the date change.

The All State believes that the memo should have been posted elsewhere, in a place where it could be seen before students stood unknowingly in the long lines. Not only does the misinformed student waste his or her time, but also the time of the Admissions and Records personnel who has to stop working and explain the change.

And what about the student who is in the proper line waiting behind the misinformed student?

This student must wait for the worker to answer questions and explain things to the misinformed one. Wasted time for everyone.

Other similar problems arose on registration day—problems with renting books, paying fees, and scheduling classes. Students ended up in the wrong line or in the correct line without all required information.

The administration does provide color-coded direction sheets that correspond to the colors of the Registration Master Card (RMC). The problem with this is so few students know these sheets exist.

The All State suggests that Admissions and Records, whose responsibility is to see that the students receive the RMC, include a corresponding color-coded direction sheet when mailing or handing out the RMC. Instead the sheets are left on a table in the University Center lobby on registration day. Some students did not know what the sheets were, nor could these sheets easily be seen due to the number of people crowded into the lobby on registration day.

Nothing is more maddening than standing in line for 90 minutes only to discover you are in the wrong line or you do not have all the required signatures, or that before you can proceed through the line you must go here, there, and here again.

Each step of registration should be laid out in clearly stated, conspicuous signs. The students need to be made aware of these steps. Many students are here for the first time and their confusion adds to the general confusion of registration. Even if the seasoned veterans of registration were better informed of the procedures it would help to decrease the confusion, strained nerves and harsh words. Students must pay strict attention to posted signs, but these signs must be easily seen—not put in a place where they are seemingly hidden.

The All State understands that computers breakdown and malfunctions do happen, but what is not understood is why the students of this university are the last to receive pertinent information. If the student received correct, timely, and straight forward information, the long lines and mass confusion could change to shorter lines (as students would know what line to be in to begin with), faster service (as students would have all required information before getting in line) and a less chaotic registration day (as students would be more confident of the people in charge of registration).

The All State is the official student newspaper of Austin Peay State University. It is published on every Wednesday of the academic year except during examination periods and holidays by the students of this university.

The paper is printed at the Kentucky News Enterprise in Hopkinsville, KY. News information should be brought by 104 Ellington Hall or mailed to The All State, Box 8334, AFBU, Clarksville, TN 37064. Deadline on printing is the Thursday before the Wednesday printing.

Members: Associated College Press and Tennessee Intercollegiate Press, represented for national advertising by CARS; national news supplied by College Press Service and National On-Campus Report.

Letters Policy

The All State staffs of the past have consistently provided their respective readerships with the opportunity to make public comments, suggestions, criticisms and even complaints by making use of the "Letters to the Editor" column and this year's staff intends to do the same.

All letters which are to be considered for publication must be in the The All State office by the Thursday before the Wednesday printing. Under no circumstances will an unsigned or unverified letter be considered.

Letters must be less than 300 words long. No letter will be published which even vaguely implies advertisement or campaign. Space to be used for such purposes in The All State must be purchased at campus advertisement rates.

Letters which the staff considers to be offensive, abusive or libelous will be subject to editing. The author will be consulted in cases where drastic editing of the submitted letter is considered necessary.

Letters counted

The All State encourages all readers to send letters to the editor. We regret that after all the letters were counted, we came up with a total of zero this week.

DeLuca hits campus, performs Jan. 18, tickets now on sale

Tom DeLuca, who has been hailed by Newsweek magazine as "one of the most requested acts on college campuses today," will perform at Austin Peay's Clement Auditorium Jan. 18. The hypnotist/comedian was booked to perform at Austin Peay by Buddy Bumgarner, director of university activities.

"I really got lucky when I found DeLuca. His act is usually worth $1,400, but I was able to get him in a block-booked so we saved about $500," Bumgarner said.

Bumgarner first saw DeLuca when the two crossed paths at the National Entertainment College Activities Association (NECAA) Convention a few months ago.

"DeLuca was performing in a showcase there and he was showing a video film of one of his performances. He had about 15 people hypnotized—it was hilarious," Bumgarner said.

Bumgarner was accompanied by Artie Manning, co-director of intramural recreation, at the NECAA convention. Bumgarner said that he decided to make a deal with DeLuca.

"I'll tell you what," he said to DeLuca, "if you can make Artie stop smoking I will bring you to our campus." Bumgarner admitted that he had always been a little skeptical of hypnotists, but he became a believer when Manning became hypnotized.

"It's unreal, Artie hasn't smoked since. He's even tried a couple times but says he just can't stand cigarettes anymore," Bumgarner said.

Video films of DeLuca will be shown in the University Center this week. The films include DeLuca hypnotizing a large group of adults so that they act like 4-year-old children, and one man who is hypnotized forgets the number seven.

"DeLuca will also perform what we call a 'teaser' the day of his performance. At noon on Jan. 18 he will perform for one-half hour in the University Center. Students will be able to get a sample of his main performance.

Bumgarner said that DeLuca's show lasts about two and one-half hours. Tickets will be sold at the door and are $3 for students, $4 for general public.

Also coming to Austin Peay this month is country-western entertainers Mickey Gilley and Johnny Lee. The two musicians will appear in the Dunn Center Jan. 29.

Globetrotters charm crowd

The appearance of the Harlem Globetrotters at the Winfield Dunn Center last week has been termed as "a huge success." Buddy Bumgarner, director of university activities, said that he couldn't be happier with the way things went.

"I couldn't believe the people. We've never had to open more than two ticket booths but there were so many people waiting for tickets that we had to open four. The Globetrotters were a huge success," he said.

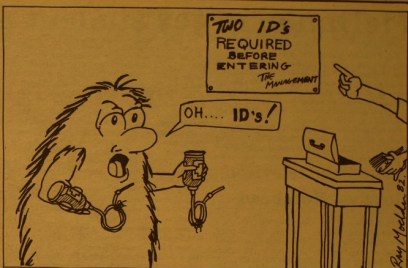

Bumgarner said that 1100 more people showed up at the Dunn Center to see the Globetrotters than saw the Globetrotters when they were in Nashville.

"Nearly 4,000 people came to the Dunn Center," he said.

Bumgarner also said that he received several telephone calls from people thanking him for bringing the Globetrotters to Clarksville.

One woman called him and said that she had a hard time quieting her kids down to go to sleep after they saw the Globetrotters. She said that when her kids got on the school bus the next morning they were still talking about it," he said. "That's what the Globetrotters are all about—making kids happy."

This is not the first time the Globetrotters have visited Clarksville; they toured here in 1975. They have played approximately 15,000 basketball games since their

Administrators close lines, send students back to class

College students may complain about long lines, but they're often willing to miss classes, skip meals and even camp out to get coveted tickets to an athletic event or concert. Through creativity and resourcefulness, however, some schools are getting students out of line and back in class.

At Brigham Young U., camping out overnight in a ticket line is forbidden. Period. And the Associated Students of BYU, which determines how student tickets are distributed, reinforces that policy by waiting until the day of distribution to announce an advertised time on a local radio station when and where tickets will be given out. If students show up early, they are given cards noting their place in line and can come and go until distribution time, as long as they show up for announced line checks, says ASBYU's Susan Hollingsworth. As a final step in distributing the coveted 6,700 student basketball tickets, seats are randomly assigned, and season ticket packets contain both good and bad seats.

U. of Kentucky students were willing to camp out for up to three days not merely to get seats for basketball games—the supply is ample—but to get good seats, says Dean of Students Joseph Burch. This year, UK officials called a halt to camp-outs with a policy that forbids lining up before 6 a.m. for 1 p.m. Sunday ticket distributions. Those who could have problems.

arrive precisely at that hour receive a random number that determines their place in line, says Burch.

Registration

Gentry comments

Glenn Gentry, dean of admissions and records, recently spoke about last week's registration at Austin Peay. He elaborated on the procedures involved in registering and problems some students encountered. For those who thought registration was a hassle and time consuming, he offered advice to help with future registration.

Gentry said the 1982 winter registration went basically about the same as previous quarters. He commented that "there were no serious complaints with the exception of the long lines." He also said, that the computers operated with no problems and this helped with the easy flow of registering.

"The procedure of registering," Gentry said, "is not a complicated one. There are specific directions to follow in order to complete the process. If these steps are not followed then one Gentry expanded on one problem some students had with registration. "Even though a student would go through the line and pay fees, if that student did not turn in his master card his name was not entered into the computer, thus he was not registered."

Gentry went on to say that while he could do nothing about the long lines, students could alleviate any problems they had with registering by reading the instructions printed on their cards and reading the various signs which were posted.

Gentry referred to the registration system as "a simple process." The system is one of registering according to your last name; everyone is given a certain time to register. He also made the comment that exceptions are made if a student comes earlier than his designated time.

McDaniel urges student participation

SGA President Michael McDaniel is "not satisfied with the attendance of students in the standing committee meetings." His reason being that "without the input from the students, the university does not have access to the students' opinions and ideas." McDaniel is also requesting participation in the University sponsored activities. Several activities are planned for the winter quarter.

The first such event is the televised basketball game in which Austin Peay plays Morehead State, Sunday Jan. 17, at 12 noon. Students are asked to attend. The second televised game will be held on Feb. 7, also on Sunday at noon. We will be opposing Murray State.

Also on the calendar for this quarter is the Mickey Gilley/Johnny Lee concert. The USAB sponsored event will be on Jan. 29. USAB Chairman Jim Townshend reports that the Harlem Globetrotters' visit was a complete success and hopes that students will support and attend this upcoming concert. Tickets will be $10.00 for the public, with a special discount for students.

One of the most important activities this year is "Awareness Week". It is scheduled for the latter part of the quarter and will include such topics as: drugs, alcohol, crime, foreign exchanges students and financial aid. Leigh Ann King is in charge of the planning.

Other events scheduled for the spring quarter are still in the planning stages. "APSU Week" is on the calendar for April 12-18. DeWayne Wilson is the chairman of the committee.

These programs and others were discussed at the SGA Senate meeting held last Thurs. night. Tomorrow night at 6:30 the Senate will meet in the cafeteria to eat dinner and discuss the Mandatory Food Plan. The SGA would also like reactions from students about their ideas on the Food Plan.

In a presidential action McDaniel reported on the survey taken of the dorm residents concerning cable installation. The vote was 364 for and 28 against. By the Fall of 1982 all dorm rooms will have cable hook-up capabilities, with approximately four dollars added to the dorm rent.

Also in a Presidential action McDaniel nominated Stacey Fearhelly for the position of Secretary of Public Information. She was then confirmed by the Senate.

At the Senate meeting several people were initiated to new offices. Sam Peseck was named secretary of the senior class, Laura Riser was officially made president of the junior class, DeWayne Wilson was named vice president of the sophomore class, and Greg Carson was added as a new freshman class senator.

In other action the Finance Board is considering a package concerning a trip to Knoxville by the Chamber singers for a National convention. George Mabry is the faculty sponsor.

Dr. Charles N. Boehms, director for student affairs, was at the meeting. He discussed with the Senate how they could be most influential body on campus. He emphasized that the SGA needs the students' ideas on changes to be made, and optional student related activities.

If you have any suggestions or ideas and would like to relay them to the SGA, Amy Perry, executive secretary said the "office is always open for questions and opinions."

Game to be televised, Govs vs. Morehead

APSU Govs will face the Morehead Eagles in a televised basketball game Sunday at 12 noon in the Dunn Center.

To increase fan support, Student Affairs will sponsor a Banner Contest. Student organizations, fraternities, sororities and residence halls are invited to participate.

Banners will be judged on appearance, size and slogan. First place prize is $75; second place, $50; and third place, $25. Banners must be hung in the Dunn Center by 11:30 a.m. Sunday.

The Athletic Dept. will give $10 to the 100th student, $25 to the 250th student and $50 to 500th student entering the Dunn Center for the game.

APSU cheerleaders will sponsor a pep rally Friday, 12 noon in the University Center.

Student Affairs encourages everyone to wear red and white to the game, bring pompons, and "any other paraphernalia that will help the television viewers see RED."

Bank helps parents with rising costs

The Citizens Bank in Dallas, Ga. and Student's Financial Services of Atlanta have gotten together to offer an innovative, low-cost plan to help parents meet the soaring cost of a college education.

George Naterman, owner of Student's Financial Services, stated that four factors prompted him to develop the "Tuition Reserve and Deposit Plan."

"Skyrocketing tuitions, over-our-heads interest rates, drastic reductions in Federal student aid, and the overall lack of stability in Federal aid programs (they turn car wheels every year) mean that parents must have access to a reliable source of college financing," said Naterman.

According to John Bloomfield, vice president of the Citizens Bank, parents can deposit as much as they want into a special tuition reserve and deposit savings account and the bank will loan them up to 3½ times the amount they save, at a 'net cost' of less than one percent a year.

Naterman said, "The plan provides stability in planning which parents cannot get from topsy-turvy Federal programs. It enables parents to keep their financial assets intact; nothing has to be liquidated. And it assures parents they will have the money they need for their children's education, when they need it."

Naterman and Bloomfield both cautioned, "The rules pertaining to college financing have changed and future trends are unfavorable. Planning for educational costs should start as early as possible. Factors such as inflation, projected costs at various colleges, and the length of the educational program must be considered."

Parents and students wishing to obtain additional information regarding the "Tuition Reserve and Deposit Plan" should write Naterman, Student's Financial Services, Suite 501, One Perimeter Way, N.W., Atlanta, Ga. 30339.

"Night Music" will be performed on Feb. 17, 18, 19, and 20 in the Truharn Theatre, and is the first Austin Peay production directed jointly by the Music department and the Speech and Theatre department.

Sigma Nu celebrates anniversary

The members of the Austin Peay Colony of the Sigma Nu Fraternity celebrated their first anniversary last Monday. This is the youngest fraternity on campus.

President Brian Davis remarked, "Our first anniversary reflects a great deal of hard work and effort on the part of each and every brother. Our accomplishments this year have been first class and the future of Sigma Nu at Austin Peay is indeed a bright one."

The Sigma Nu have accomplished much during their short time on campus. After just 6 months, they acquired a house, located at 250 West Avenue. This past fall they received "Best Looking Chariot" for the Greek Olympics and tied for first place with Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity for the Greek Follies.

Jeff Eubanks, treasurer and one of the first members said, "I'm extremely happy that the five of us (Eubanks, Davis, David Colvin, Craig O'Shoney, Tony Marable) went to the Sigma Nu workshop in Louisville, Ky. last year. It's wonderful that we've grown and expanded to what we have, but have not lost sight of our principles."

Davis added that "Sigma Nu looks forward to becoming an integral part of the University and the Clarksville community. I would like to thank the University for giving us the opportunity to begin what will be a lasting and meaningful organization at Austin Peay."

"If the line is relatively short and that student does not interfere with the registration of other students who are supposed to register at that time then he could register.

This system, makes registration a less confusing process for the student as well as the registrar."

If students want to alleviate any problem with registration, Gentry suggested that advance suggested that students should advance register, follow the directions printed in your schedule and on your master card, and don't forget to turn in your master card."

Globetrotters bring magic to Peay

Normally, when one thinks of the Harlem Globetrotters, storied arenas, big crowds, smiling children and, of course, plenty of basketball magic come to mind.

The people of Clarksville were treated to all of the above, with the exception of a packed house, as the Trotters bridged their Nashville-to-Jackson, Tenn. bus trip with a stop in the Queen City on Tuesday, Jan. 5.

Basketball's "kings of the road," along with the Washington Generals, who invariably play the part of court jesters amidst all the stunts, entertained a throng of 3,799 in the APSU Dunn Center.

from tee to green

By Steve Harmon
Sports Editor

The Harlem roster included the ageless stars Geese Ausbie and Curly Neal, as well as former Murray State star Gary Hooker.

However, only Geese and a handful of lesser-known Trotters were on hand at tip-off.

In what has become an international trademark of theirs, the Globetrotters grouped a pre-game passing drill into their famed "Magic Circle" to the tune of "Sweet Georgia Brown."

The familiar "rubber ball" and "bucket of confetti" scenes, as well as Geese Ausbie's nightly "injury" added to the laughter.

But, one of the slickest "slight of hand" tricks of the show was displayed not on the Dunn Center hardwood, but in the APSU administrative offices in luring the Trotters to Clarksville.

"This is one of the best contracts we've ever had," said Buddy Bumgarner, coordinator of the exhibition. Baumgardner failed to elaborate on the details of the agreement, but it is believed the Globetrotters shared a percentage of the gate receipts, as opposed to the standard guaranteed dollar figure up front for the appearance.

Baumgardner was especially proud of the fact that Clarksville drew a bigger crowd than both Nashville and Memphis on the Trotters' tour of the Mid-South.

Unquestionably, the brightest star on the Trotter team and their prime gate attraction is the ageless showman Geese Ausbie.

The slender 6-foot-3 native of Crescent, Oklahoma plays high post on the Trotter offense and is on center stage throughout the game as the king of basketball's clown prince.

Actually, Geese Ausbie didn't grow up spinning a basketball on his finger.

"Baseball was my first love," admits Ausbie.

In fact, Ausbie got his start in professional sports with the Chicago Cubs baseball organization before being signed with the Trotters.

"This is my twentieth year with the Globetrotters," recalled Ausbie, who still sports an ear-to-ear grin and never shuns an autograph seeker.

"But, you know, those two hook shots I missed tonight were the first ones I've missed in a month," Ausbie joked of his renowned half court hook shot, which failed to fall in the Dunn Center.

Were the shots of any consequence?
The Trotters won 92-76, as expected.

Govs drop sixth in a row

By Steve Harmon

In the Nov. 19 issue of the Clarksville Leaf-Chronicle, a special basketball supplement forecasted Coach Ron Bargatz's APSU Governors as being "behind the eight-ball" in their 1981-82 OVC basketball title quest.

That prediction was further supported by the OVC pre-season coaches poll, which dubbed APSU as the eighth-best team in a nine-member loop.

That prophecy is proving to be an outline for the current season as "Red Fever" has turned to scarlet fever in Peay's dismal 3-11 campaign.

With last Saturday's 70-49 loss to Murray State in Racer Arena, the Govs are wallowed in the depths of a six game losing streak.

The APSU-Murray State contest was similar to last year's match-up in Racer Arena in only one way—the Govs lost that one, too.

If you'll remember, that was the game in which a controversial call by referee Charlie Vacca awarded the ball to MSU with only 0:01 to play.

A Glen Green to Kenney Hammonds lob pass resulted in a resounding dunk which sent the game into overtime, where the Racers eventually won.

Vacca, who worked Saturday's game, didn't have a chance to redeem himself as Murray sprinted to a 44-19 lead at the half.

"We lost this one in the first five or six minutes," said a dismal Bargatz. "We missed too many inside shots," he continued.

"We had a good week of practice and came in here (cont. on page 9)

Teddy Mann

WOULD 'YA LOOK AT THAT!—Trotter star Geese Ausbie shares a laugh with referee Bruce Briggs during the Jan. 5 exhibition in the APSU Dunn Center. Both men are familiar faces with the Harlem club. Ausbie is a twenty-year veteran of the club, while Briggs has donned the black and white stripes for six years with the Globetrotter organization.

IM season gets underway

OVC MEN'S BASKETBALL STANDINGS (As of Jan. 10)

	OVC	A.L.
MTSU	5-0	11-2
Murray St.	3-1	9-4
Western KY.	3-1	6-6
Morehead ST.	3-2	6-6
Youngstown ST.	3-3	4-7
Tenn. Tech	2-3	4-8
APSU	1-3	3-11
Eastern KY.	1-4	3-10
Akron	1-5	4-9

Plans for a Co-Recreational basketball league and an intramural track meet are two of the ideas proposed by Austin Peay's Intramural Department for the upcoming academic quarter.

IM spokesman Drew Simmons anticipates a larger turnout than last year's 36 intramural squads, of which eight were co-ed, for play this winter.

A men's open league and a height-restricted under-six-foot league, as well as a women's league, will also be featured.

Simmons' optimism centers around an overall increase in participation in the APSU Intramural program this year.

"The last couple of years, we haven't had enough teams to form a Co-Rec league, but this year I think we will," Simmons predicted. He added that only five or six squads will be needed to form the league.

Once again, Natural Light Beer will sponsor their annual racquetball tournament. The dates of the fourth annual event are tentative.

Tonight, a captain's meeting will be held in room 107 of the Memorial Health Building at 6 p.m. All captains of their respective intramural teams are asked to attend and to turn in their player rosters at that time. Simmons requests each team to pay the mandatory $10 forfeit fee in the Business Office before the meeting.

Officials are needed for the hallgames as well. If interested, contact Drew Simmons at 648-7564.

expecting to win," said Bargatzke, "but all those early missed shots set the mood for the rest of the game," he raved.

A brief spurt in the early moments of the second half cut the deficit to 49-32 and showed signs of a revitalized Governor unit.

"We came out in the second half trying to cut their lead by 10 (points) by the 10:00 mark," said Governor forward Lenny Manning, who paced Peay with 14 points and seven rebounds.

However, the Racers' cushion proved to be insurmountable as they upped their overall mark to 9-4, including a 3-1 slate in league play.

The setback gives APSU a 1-3 conference record entering tomorrow night's 7:30 showdown with OVC rival Eastern Kentucky in the Dunn Center.

"Eastern's a young team and they'll come in here loose and ready to play hard," assessed Bargatzke of his team's next challenger.

As of Jan. 10, Eastern's Colonels show a lowly 1-4 OVC mark, 3-10 overall.

Sunday afternoon, a seasoned Morehead State club will test the Governors in the OVC "Game of the Week," to be telecast on channel 5 (CBS) at noon.

"The television exposure should give us a boost, especially if we play well against Eastern on Thursday," added Bargatzke.

Sunday's game has also been dubbed "Greek Spirit Day" in a promotional move to cure the scarlet fever. The one hundredth APSU student to enter through the front gate will receive $10, while the two hundred and fiftieth and five hundredth will get $25 and $50, respectively.

A keg of beer will be awarded by Ideal Distributing Co. of Clarksville to the Greek organization displaying the most spirit.

"There are only four home conference games left after Morehead and we want to get all the students involved," said Jan Pylant of the APSU Ticket Office.

Lenny Manning, a 6-foot-6 sophomore from Nashville (Maplewood) was named to the All-Tournament Team in the Dec. 28-29 Music City Invitational hosted by Vanderbilt.

Manning poured in 46 points on 22 of 35 field goal shooting and grabbed 10 rebounds in losses to Vanderbilt and Drexel (Pa.) University.

Manning was also the runner-up for the Turney's Most Valuable Player Award as he continues to pace APSU in both scoring and rebounding with 16.8 and 7.2 averages, respectively.

Lady Gov Susan Wright, a six-foot frontliner from Hendersonville (Drexel) Pa. came off the bench to spark Austin Peay to a Dec. 19 89-77 upset of pre-season OVC favorite Western Kentucky.

Wright poured in 21 points on nine of 14 field goal shooting and three of three from the line en route to OVC "Rookie of the Week" honors.

Wright, a freshman, was also credited with six rebounds, a blocked shot and a pair of steals in the contest.

Lady Gavs down 'Toppers

By Clint Ervin

The Austin Peay Lady Gave fell from their perch atop the OVC standings with their loss to Murray State, 69-64 in Murray, KY last Saturday. Their OVC record now stands at 1-1, while their overall slate dropped to 6-10.

The Lady Gavs travelled to Western Kentucky on Dec. 19 to earn a big win to open their holiday schedule. This resounding 89-77 victory left Austin Peay all alone on top of the OVC standings. The women then took off for a short time, returning on Dec. 28 to practice for the prestigious New Year's Classic hosted by the University of Miami in Coral Gables, Florida.

Austin Peay, one of the eighteen teams present at this jamboree-style tournament, played Miami of Ohio on Jan. 2 and was dealt an 83-64 defeat. The Lady Gavs bounced back to beat Lewis University of Illinois on the next day, 63-58. They closed out their stay in Florida with a 74-57 loss to the host team, Miami of Florida.

Indoor track gets out of blocks

By Calvin Gager

Austin Peay's indoor track teams, under the direction of Coach Joey Haines, will be in full stride Saturday, Jan. 16, as the women open up at Middle Tennessee. The men's team will not be far behind as they travel to Bloomington, Ind. for a meet at the University of Indiana on Friday, Feb. 5.

The string points of the women's team start with two outstanding long jumpers in Cozetta Motley, who qualified for the nationals in 1981, and Lisa Coleman. Lisa Scholer should be a key team factor in the 400 meter event.

Pat Averitt and Marvella Williams, both freshmen on the team, will also be counted on for good performances down the road.

The men's team will be sparked by the efforts of capable athletes, such as

LaRon Springer and freshman quarter miler,

Roland Scrubbs. "The rest are questionable right now and will have to be tested," stated assistant coach Mike Howard.

A talented 60 meter man, William McElroy, is suffering from an injury at the present time. Coach Haines will also be looking forward to a good mile relay team, but the participants are still questionable.

The Lady Gavs travelled to UT-Martin a week ago and escaped with a 69-62 victory, sweet revenge for the 73-53 thrashing that they suffered at the hands of the Lady Pacers on Dec. 10 in the Dunn Center.

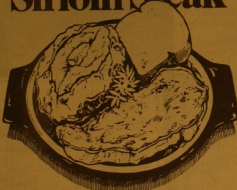

Senior guard Lillian Cain leads the Lady Gavs into their upcoming OVC slate with a 13.1 scoring average. The 5-foot-6 senior is shooting 48 percent from the field and 79 percent from the line. Senior forward Connie Sinks is second in scoring on the Lady Gavs squad with a 10.8 average. Jeanne Hinchey is third in scoring with 7.9 points per game, and she leads the Lady Gavs in average minutes played per game with 30.2.

Track All-American Joanne Arnold is fifth in scoring with a 7.4 average and has pulled down an amazing 130 rebounds for an 8.2 average.

The Lady Gavs return to the friendly court of the Winfield Dunn Center for games against tough Eastern Kentucky who is leading the conference in team offense and defense, tomorrow night, and against Morehead State on Saturday.

Tip-off for both contests will be 5:15 p.m. CST.

ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

Based on his selection to the Dec. 28-29 Music City Invitational All-Tournament Team, Governor sophomore Lenny Manning warrants this week's "Athlete of the Week" distinction.

The 6-foot-6 Nashvillean who came to APSU via Miami (O) University, was the tourney's leading scorer with 46 points in two Governor losses.

A Public Management major, Manning is currently second in the OVC in scoring, fourth in rebounding, and is also among the leaders in field goal and free throw shooting.
