Roe vs. Wade attorney to speak at Austin Peay

By KIEZHA SMITH
staff writer

In early celebration of Women's History Month (April), the University Programs Council and the Office of Alcohol and Drug Prevention are sponsoring guest speaker Sarah Weddington, the legendary attorney for women's rights in Roe vs. Wade.

Weddington

Weddington, who will be speaking on the topic, "Some Women Are Born Leaders," is a pioneer of women's rights and abilities in the workplace.

"I hope lots of people will come out regardless of their beliefs about Roe vs. Wade. She (Weddington) will be talking about leadership and self-esteem," Stacie Hamm, UPC president, said.

At the age of 21, Weddington was one of the first females to graduate from the University of Texas Law School. Weddington was 26 years old when she successfully defended women's rights to terminate unwanted pregnancies through the legendary Roe vs. Wade case before the Supreme Court.

Weddington was appointed general council for the U.S. Department of Agriculture in 1977, directing more than 200 attorneys. Former President Jimmy Carter appointed her as his assistant for women's affairs, a position she held for three years.

Weddington then served as top lobbyist for the state of Texas and was a three year legislator in the Texas House of Representatives.

"Ms. Weddington's visit to APSU is most timely. In many states today, the original ruling in Roe vs. Wade is being tested by pro-life advocates," Andy Kean, director of Student Activities said.

Campaign '92--what students think

By JEFF WISDOM
assistant news editor

Another presidential election year is in full swing. The primary season got underway last Tuesday in New Hampshire as former Massachusetts Sen. Paul Tsongas won easily over Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton in the Democratic primary. Nebraska Sen. Bob Kerrey came in third.

In the Republican primary, President George Bush edged conservative columnist Pat Buchanan.

In the Maine caucuses held last Sunday, Tsongas and former California Gov. Jerry Brown battled to a virtual tie, both with 29 percent. Clinton, who enjoyed a respectable second-place finish in New Hampshire, finished in third place with a disappointing 15 percent.

With the Super Tuesday primary just two weeks away for Tennessee and a host of other states, the decision about whom to vote for (or against) is definitely at the forefront of voters' minds.

Several Austin Peay State University students have already decided who they want to support in the upcoming primary.

Jim McConnell, a senior, said, "I'm glad to see the open debate on all sides. Bush has done a good job, and I personally believe he will be handily re-elected after the dust settles."

David Bone, also a senior, had a differing opinion. "We have what I think is one of the strongest fields of Democrats ever," he said.

"One of these men will be our next president. I would be happy with any one of them; however, I personally favor Bill Clinton."

Concerning the Republican race between Bush and Buchanan, Diane Gray, a junior, said, "I was surprised and pleased that the citizens of New Hampshire delivered the message to Bush they did."

Mavis Rioux, a junior, agreed by saying, "I think American politics is a lot of hype and not much depth."

Super Tuesday is scheduled for March 10.

Students travel to collegiate competitions, win awards in field of communications

By MISSY CARROLL
news editor

Recently, The All State and the Speech and Debate team won awards in two separate collegiate competitions. The All State competed on a regional level and won several awards at the Southeast Journalism Conference held at the University of Southern Mississippi in Hattiesburg. The Speech and Debate team competed at the Trevecca Nazarene State Tournament.

The All State received recognition in several areas. Donna Lovett took first place awards in the categories of best newspaper portrait-personality-profile photograph and in best newspaper spot news photograph. Lee Watson also took first place honors in the category of best newspaper half-page or larger advertisement.

Daniel Murph took second place in the best sports headline category.

Third place winners were Bill Persinger in best newspaper original artwork, Samantha Guerrero in best newspaper advertisement smaller than a half page, and Sherri Adcock in sports non-game story and in best editorial/opinion section.

Jim Case competed individually at the conference and won first place in the Scholarly Journalism competition for best research paper.

The newspaper entries were judged by the Pulitzer Prize-winning St. Petersburg Times under rigorous standards. The judges reviewed the entries for professional quality. The high standards of the judges were evident when an overall newspaper award was not given. The judges concluded that not one of the newspapers from the 21 colleges entered was a "professional product" overall.

Dr. Ellen Kanervo, chair of the department of speech, communication and theatre, also attended the conference in Mississippi. "We did better than we expected given the competition," Kanervo said.

The paper competed against bigger universities such as the University of Alabama and prestigious universities such as Emory, Tulane and Loyola. Kanervo felt that The All State "competed successfully" because of the variety of awards that were won.

The Speech and Debate team took home 15 trophies from their state competition held in Nashville. The seven members of the team are Jacqueline Arnold, Damon Jennings, Barbara Robbins, William Terry, Marsha Young, Angela Lee and P.R. Harbin.

Jennings received sixth place in impromptu and informative speech. Jennings and Arnold won fifth place in dramatic duo.

Robbins received fourth place in the poetry competition.

Terry received fifth place overall in the quarter finals.

Young received fifth place in impromptu, fourth place in persuasion, sixth place in dramatic interpretation and sixth place in the pentathlon.

Lee received fifth place overall in the quarter finals.

Harbin received first place in poetry and second place in informative speech.

The team received third place overall for the individual events competition.

Gore visits the Soviet Republics

Professor of education Dr. Delores Gore left for a two-week tour of the Soviet Republics Feb. 20 as a part of the U.S. Citizen Ambassador Program.

The program gives experts in the area of early childhood education a chance to visit and tour Soviet schools and speak with their peers and leaders of state in the Soviet Republics. Gore is the only delegation representative from Tennessee.

For two weeks Gore will be meeting with university representatives in the cities of St. Petersburg and Moscow, Russia, and Warsaw, Poland. "All of us in the Early Childhood Education Delegation have assignments to cover," Gore said.

Gore will be giving presentations at the university level, but will also travel to see elementary schools and how they are run. Gore said she is looking forward to comparing curriculums. She says she will bring back what she learns to help add to her students' learning at Austin Peay.

Gore was chosen for the delegation because of her published research, technological skills and her expertise in the field.

Gore will focus her efforts on appropriate curriculum by integrating technology into the classroom and emphasizing research development and readiness.

White and Computer Paper--13,316 pounds
Aluminum Cans --637 pounds
Other metals--1,000 pounds

Please remind faculty and staff in your department to recycle. Remember the following suggestions which appeared in President Page's Aug. 28, 1991, memorandum about recycling.

*use two-sided copies whenever possible
*Avoid the use of colored paper because it cannot be recycled.
Note: Consult Media Services on ways to make eye-catching memos by using decorative borders, different font sizes, and shading instead of using colored paper.
*Reduce the amount of paper used. Leave phone messages and electronic mail through the VAX.
*Recycle computer paper--white paper and aluminum cans.

For additional information about recycling, please call #7456.

*Contest to promote use of white paper instead of color paper*

WHAT: Eye-catching written communication, flyer, brochure, etc., on white paper

WHEN: Deadline for entry is March 5, 1992

WHERE: Entry will be judged by APSU Media Services Staff

HOW: Send your eye-catching entry to CONTEST ENTRY P.O. Box 4595.

Winner will receive free pizza party for his/her department courtesy of Morrison's Food Management.

Commission to hold third public meeting

The Tennessee Arts Commission will hold its third public meeting of the 1992 fiscal year March 10 at 1:30 (CST) p.m. in the TAC conference room of the Rachael Jackson State Office Building, 320 Sixth Ave. N., suite 100. Chairman Clara Lane will preside.

The agenda includes reports on the Tennessee State Museum and the commission's 1992-93 budget.

The Tennessee Arts Commission is an independent state agency that has provided more than $17 million in matching grants to Tennessee's artists and arts organizations since its inception in 1967. Clara Lane of Chattanooga serves as TAC chairman, and Bennett Tarleton is the agency's executive director.

Lecture topic to be on consultation in schools

On Wednesday, April 15, the psychology department will sponsor Dr. Don Dinkmeyer Jr., who will be speaking on "Consultation in the Schools." Dr. Dinkmeyer is the immediate past president of the North American Society of Adlerian Psychology and the co-author of three textbooks and 20 professional articles. His presentation will be at 2 p.m. in Kimbrough, room 119 (Gentry Auditorium).

Six students fill positions as resident assistants

Six students who attend Austin Peay State University recently were selected as additions to the 1991-92 residence assistants staff.

To be selected as a resident assistant, the students must have certain qualifications: living on campus for one semester, the ability to work with a diverse population, a 2.25 grade point average and successfully completing the Resident Assistant in Training course. If they qualify, the students are then selected on the basis of an interview.

The students selected from Clarksville are Efrain Martinez II, Kevin Morse, Aimee-Claire Beaudoin Taylor and Carolyn M. Rudolph-Wilson. Others are Shannon Duane Cummings and Michael Eric Head, Old Hickory.

Martinez, son of Efrain and Rosa Martinez, is a graduate of Georgia Military College and is a marketing major at Austin Peay.

Morse is a junior nursing major and is a member of the Non-Traditional Student Organization at APSU.

Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Beaudoin and wife of Ronald Taylor, is a sophomore mass communication major and a service scholarship recipient.

Rudolph-Wilson, daughter of Dorothy Rudolph, is a graduate of Roxbury Community College and is majoring in public relations at APSU.

Cummings, son of Anthony Cummings and Shaaron Smith, is an education major.

Head is a sophomore psychology major and serves on the University Programs Council.

Business fraternity welcomes Tim Reilly

Alpha Kappa Psi, the professional business fraternity, would like to welcome guest speaker Tim Reilly from the Internal Revenue Service. This lecture will take place in the Kimbrough Building, room 119 (Gentry Auditorium) on Wednesday, Feb. 26, at 6:45 p.m.

Retired teachers offer scholarship

The Clarksville Montgomery County Retired Teachers Association is offering a $600 scholarship award for a student in the Teacher Education program at APSU for the fall semester.

To be eligible a student must be a resident of Tennessee and must have been accepted into the Teacher Education program at APSU.

Interested students should make application to: Mrs. Jo Sanford, Chairman of Community Participation, 209 Excell Road, Clarksville, TN, 37043.

Applications must be received by March 11 and should include the following information: name, date of birth, school and home address, telephone number, social security number, marital and family status and the date of acceptance in Teacher Education.

A resume of professional and academic activities including GPA, career plans after graduation, a statement of financial needs and other pertinent information is requested.

Please include the names of two APSU teachers as references.

Application forms are available in Dr. Don Lambert's office, education department, APSU.

The Practical Inventor set to speak March 3

Louis M. Kohus, dubbed "The Practical Inventor" by Venture Magazine in 1988, will speak March 3 at Austin Peay State University.

The community is invited to attend the 5:15-6:30 p.m. event in Gentry Auditorium (room 119) of the Kimbrough Building. Admission is free, but telephone reservations are required.

Kohus, founder and president of Great American Royalty Group, has established an outstanding record for conceiving, designing, developing and licensing new products since 1983. Products handled by this company include U.S. Tackle fishing gear, ITW Nexus common part ratchet rivets, Sassy and Gerber children's high chair, Century toy connector, soft sculptured Guardian Angels dolls as well as children's playpens, booster seats and strollers and an insect habitat for Today's Kids. Seminar topics will include product development and management, patents, selling to manufacturers, conceptualizing and promoting new ideas.

To reserve a seat for this seminar, which is co-sponsored by APSU's College of Business, Office of Continuing Education and Tennessee Small Business Development Center, telephone 648-7816.

APSU personnel attend SAEOPP meeting

Austin Peay State University personnel who staff the four "Trio" programs on campus attended the 20th annual meeting of the Southeastern Association of Educational Opportunity Program Personnel (SAEOPP) Feb. 16-19 in Nashville.

SAEOPP, comprised of eight Southeastern states, is a non-profit professional organization established in 1976 to promote equal educational opportunities and greater accessibility to higher education for students who have limited access to postsecondary institutions. Many of its 650 members are employed with "Trio" programs.

Attending the meeting from APSU were Barbara Wilbur, director of the Upward Bound Program, and Dr. Arthur Neal, director of the Veterans Upward Bound Program. Attending from APSU's Student Support Services were Dr. Carlette Hardin, director; Beulah Oldham, coordinator of handicapped services, and Barbara Blackston, counselor. Representing the Educational Opportunity Center were Dr. T. Drew Ragan, director; Caroline Shaffer, assistant director; Hilda Santiago, Tina McToy-White and Rene Taylor, all of whom are counselors for the EOC.

Keynote speakers at the conference were South Carolina State Rep. Maggie Glover and Willie Herenton, newly elected mayor of Memphis. Nashville Mayor Phil Bredesen proclaimed Feb. 16-19 as "SAEOPP Days in Nashville."

"Trio" programs are funded fully by the U.S. Department of Education, generally to community colleges and four-year universities nationwide. APSU and UT-Knoxville are the only two postsecondary institutions in Tennessee to have "Trio" projects.

The Lantern meeting features publication tips

The Lantern, a club of the languages and literature department which is open to all majors and interested students, meets every Wednesday at 3 p.m. in room 338, Clement. This Wednesday, the club will be concentrating on how to send off material written for publication. Members will also be discussing a possible excursion to small towns to visit local artists and local writers. The Lantern is open to new ideas and new experiences, and encourages students to bring suggestions to the meeting.

Court to hold session on campus for educational purpose

Through a joint effort, the Tennessee Court of Criminal Appeals will hold a session March 10 on the campus of Austin Peay State University.

Beginning at 10 a.m. in Clement Auditorium, the court will hear oral arguments in State of Tennessee vs. Philip Wayne Pomeroy. The session has been moved from Nashville to Clarksville in order to provide a learning opportunity for students in the Clarksville/Montgomery County school system, as well as Fort Campbell High School.

Dr. Philip Weast, APSU vice president for Student Affairs, said, "This is an excellent educational opportunity for our young people. The university is pleased to participate."

Phasing out of driver education program will begin this spring

The driver education program sponsored by Austin Peay State Office of Continuing Education will be phased out beginning this spring.

Five more courses are scheduled with the final class set to begin May 19. This change is in keeping with the statewide emphasis in continuing education to concentrate efforts on executive and professional development programs.

"We are proud to have been able to offer this service to the community these past several years," said Nell Northington, manager of APSU's Office of Continuing Education. "We currently are working with another local agency to ensure that a driver education program continues to be offered to the community."

The current APSU course provides 30 hours of in-class instruction as well as six hours of actual driving experience to teens and adults seeking a driver's license for the first time. Some insurance companies offer a discount with proof of completion of this course.

Committee; and the Tennessee Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers Juvenile Justice Committee.

Hearing the case will be Judges Adolpho A. Birch, John H. Peay and Jerry Scott. Scott said, "This sounds like an interesting and exciting project. Judges Birch and Peay are equally excited about having oral arguments in Clarksville that day. We will, of course, take time to answer questions and to discuss the work of the Court with the students."

In addition to area high school students, the public is invited to attend the court session.

For more information, telephone Smith at 647-0613 or Weast at 648-7341.

Deadline for award nominations draws near

The deadline for nominations for the 1992 Governor's Awards in the Arts is March 2.

The awards program, which was started by the Tennessee Art Commission in 1971, recognizes outstanding achievements in contributions to, and support of the arts by individuals and organizations from across Tennessee. The 1992 awards will be presented later in the year in Nashville.

Nominations may be submitted to the Tennessee Arts Commission by an individual or organization. Nomination forms are available from TAC, 320 Sixth Ave., N., Nashville, TN 37243, (615) 741-1701.

Pi Sigma Alpha sponsors mock presidential primary

The APSU chapter of Pi Sigma Alpha, the national political science honorary, is sponsoring a mock presidential primary election. Ballots are being placed in all students' mail boxes.

Students are encouraged to mark their ballots and drop them in the box which has been placed in the post office. Students without post office boxes who wish to participate may vote in Archwood before noon, Feb. 28.

Health Hustle incorporates fitness and fun into activities

If you like keeping in shape and are into fitness and fun, then come and participate in the Health Hustle sponsored by the Austin Peay State University department of nursing on March 28.

The Health Hustle includes a five-kilometer run and a one-mile walk around and through the APSU campus. The course is composed of rolling terrain and flat stretches.

The deadline for preregistration is March 20. The cost is $10 for the five-kilometer race and $6 for the one-mile walk. Late registration costs are $12 for the five-kilometer race and $8 for the one-mile walk.

Awards will be given to first-place, second-place and third-place winners in each five-kilometer category. The different categories will depend on the age spread of men and women. The age divisions will range from under 19 through 60 and above.

There will be a mini-health fair held during the race where anyone can have a blood pressure check, a dietary analysis and more.

For more information about the Health Hustle, telephone Greg Kidwell at 552-7057 or Karen List at 232-7695.

Department of Education extends grant to support EOC

Officials at Austin Peay State University have been notified of a major continuation grant from the U.S. Department of Education to support the Clarksville-Fort Campbell Educational Opportunity Center (EOC).

The continuation grant for 1992-93 is in the amount of $253,360. This figure represents a $19,360 increase over last year's funding, which was $243,000. The operational expenses of EOC are funded by this grant; however, the university provides office space and administrative services.

Sentence for Dahmer was too light for grisly crimes

Jeffrey Dahmer was convicted of murder. He was not convicted on one count of murder, or two, even three, but 15 counts. At the beginning of his trial, he pleaded "not guilty." As the trial proceeded, he changed his plea to "guilty, but insane."

The legal definition of insane implies that a person is mentally ill and has no real knowledge of right and wrong. It implies that a person has no idea of what he or she is doing. Due mostly to the fact that he made attempts to conceal his actions, it was decided he was not insane, but perfectly knowledgeable of the criminality of his behavior. When his sanity was no longer questioned, he was immediately sentenced to life imprisonment without possibility of parole. That sentence is a mockery of justice.

If anyone has ever deserved to die to pay for criminal behavior, it is Jeffrey Dahmer. He lured young boys and men to his home, sodomized them, killed them and ate their remains.

All in the name of his own repulsive carnal urges, he has not only murdered many people but has scarred the lives of their survivors forever.

Life imprisonment without possibility of parole is not what Dahmer truly deserves, but it is certainly better than the sentence he would have received had he been declared insane.

If that had happened, he may have had a chance, after a short time of so-called rehabilitation, to be released to kill again.

If Dahmer had fooled doctors into believing that he had been rehabilitated enough to be a viable member of society, he could have been released if they chose to do so. That is the real insanity of this case, and far too many others like it.

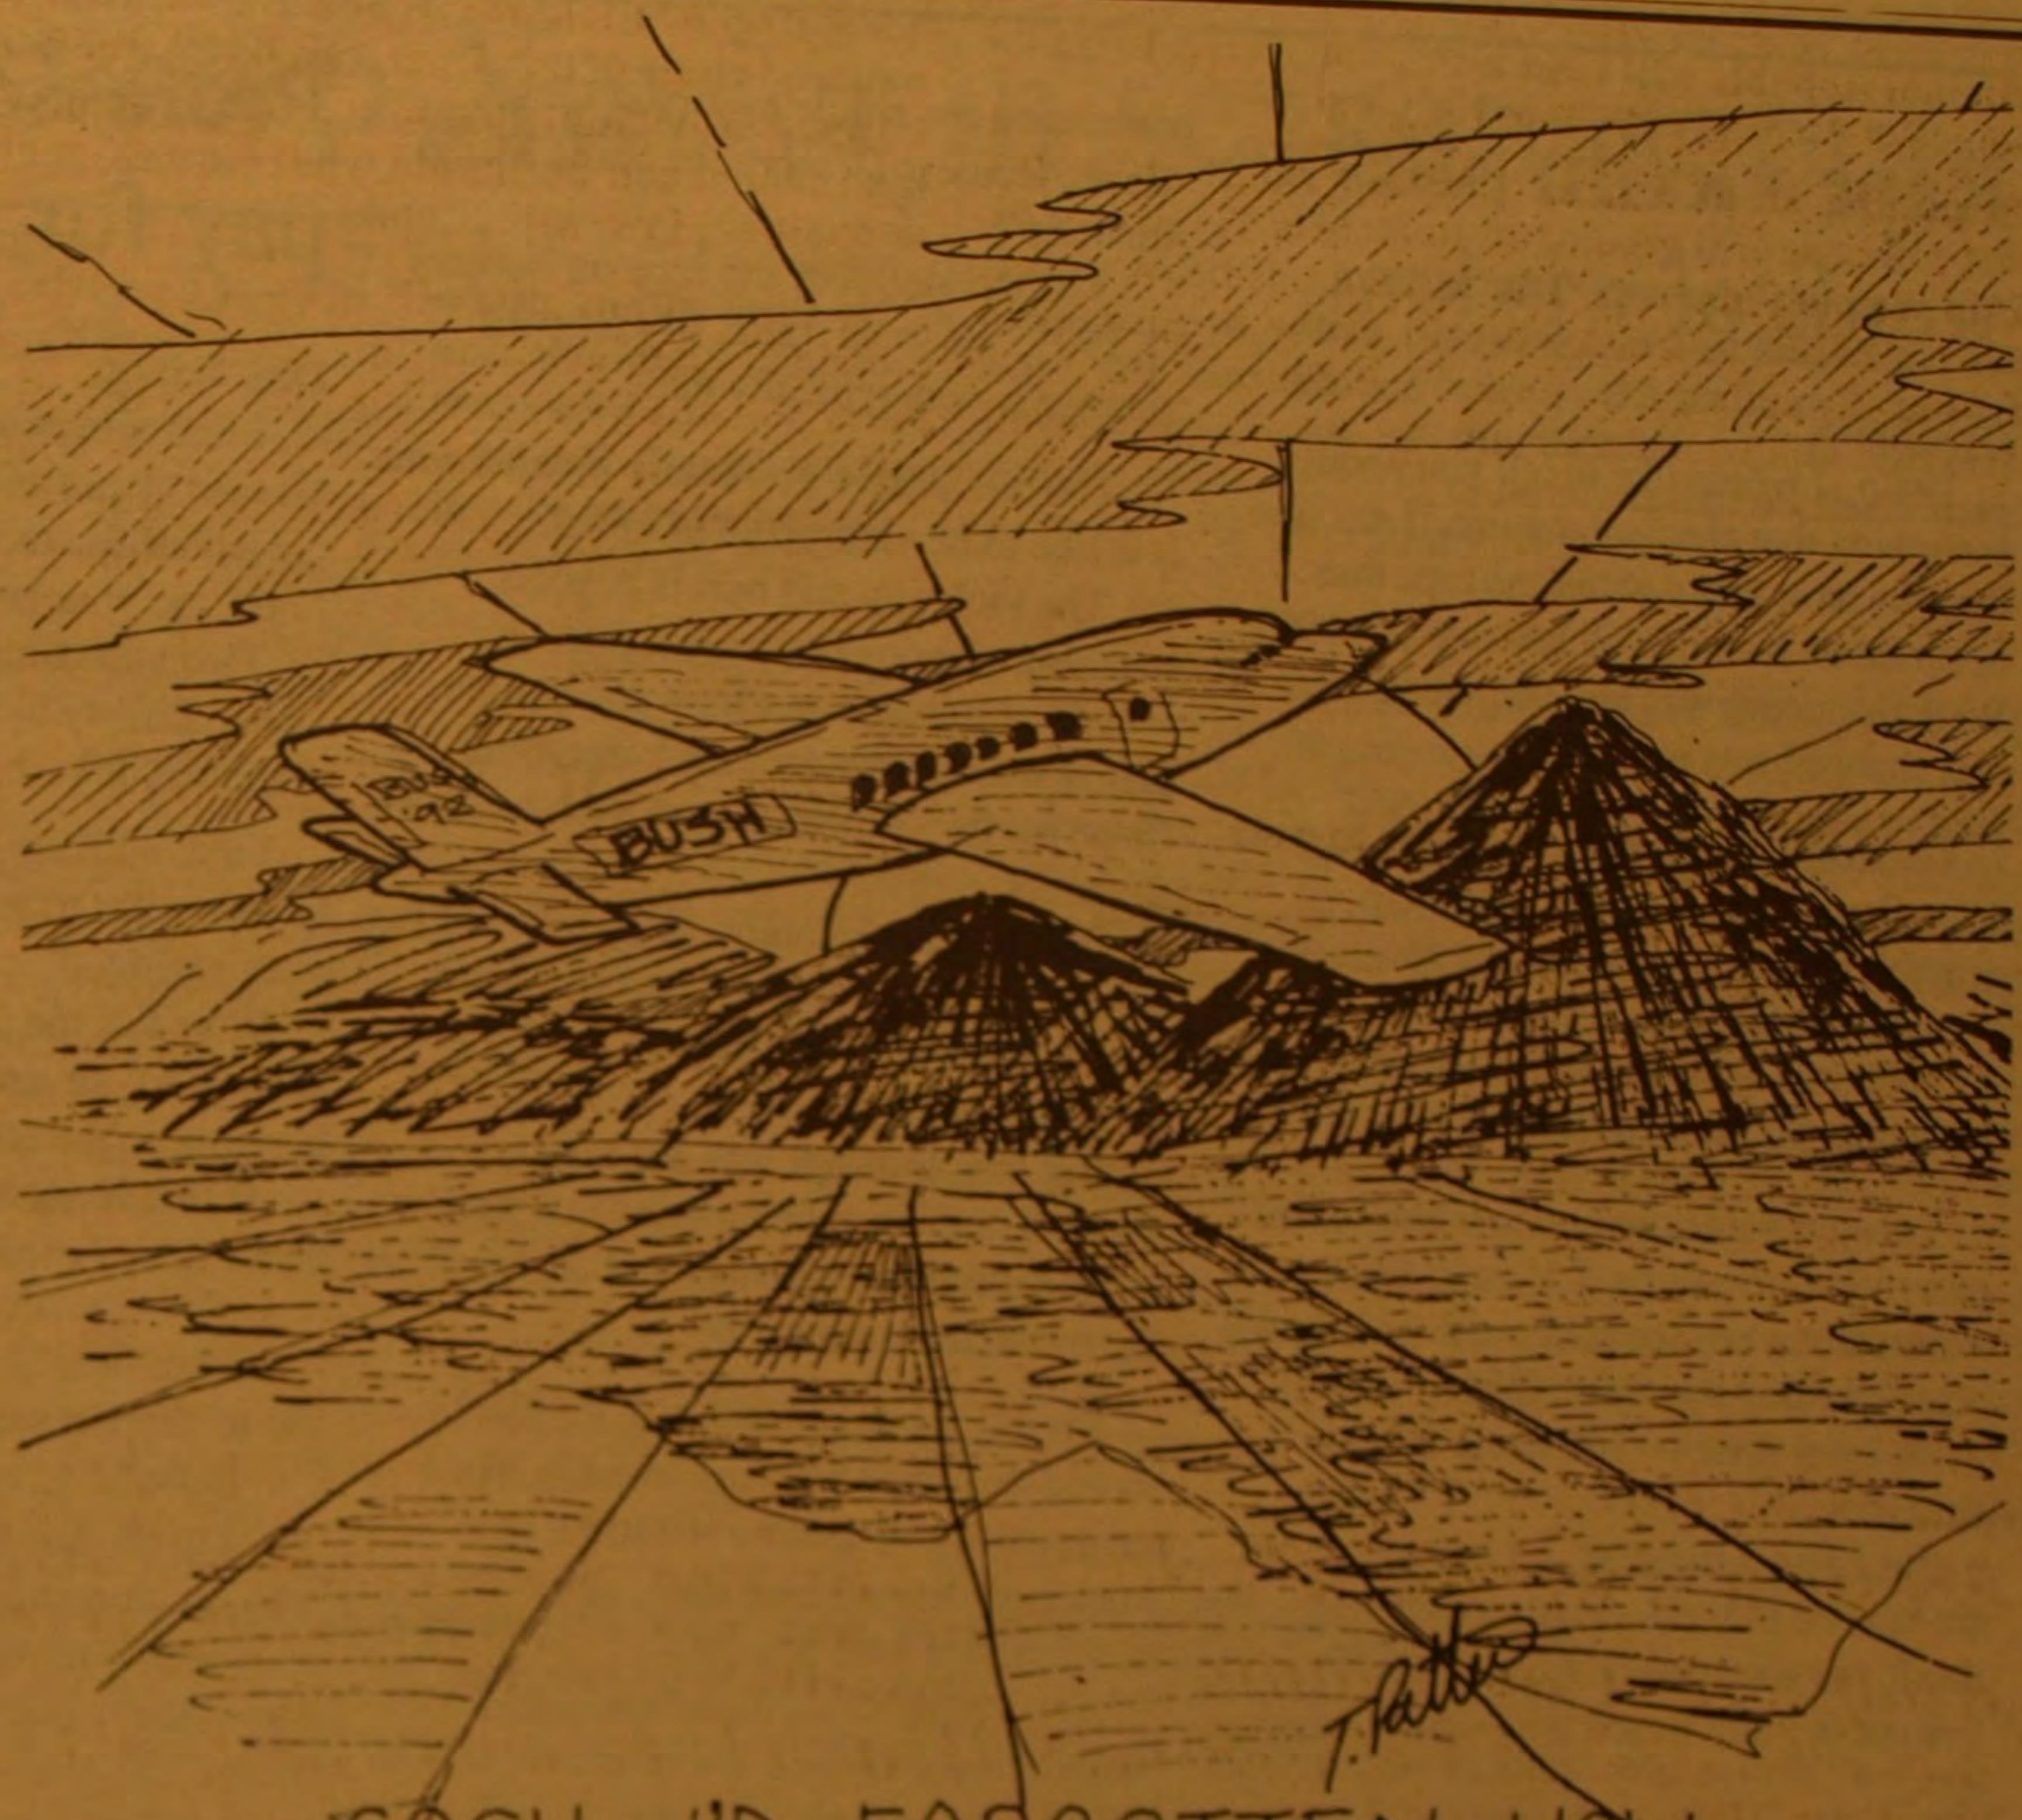

Certainly, there are millions of mentally ill people who have been institutionalized and rehabilitated, becoming productive, normal citizens who lead successful lives. That is the beauty of therapy.

However, a serial killer such as Jeffrey Dahmer cannot be rehabilitated to become a normal, harmless individual. This is a man who performed crude lobotomies on his helpless prey in an attempt to make them his sex slaves.

Is there anything more depraved than that? If there is, we probably do not want to know about it.

It is chilling to know that sort of thing could happen. It has occurred in the past, and many innocent lives have been lost due to the highly flawed system of rehabilitation, which generally lacks true justice.

Jeffrey Dahmer's victims' families will never truly receive justice as long as Dahmer is alive. Their tax dollars are being spent to support the vermin that ruined their lives. What is wrong with this picture? How many more innocent lives will be lost?

New Hampshire voters want George Bush to rededicate himself to real party platform

Last week's New Hampshire primary provided some very interesting results, especially in the Republican primary.

By BRYAN LINK
assistant
opinion editor

Pat Buchanan was able to win a surprisingly large part of the Republican votes, losing to incumbent president George Bush by the very small margin of 55 percent-40 percent.

In the Democratic primary, pro-business candidate Paul Tsongas defeated runner-up Bill Clinton in an election which basically provided no surprises, unless you consider that Mario Cuomo still received some votes a surprise.

Because the power of an incumbent president is usually so strong, the weak showing of George Bush in New Hampshire indicates serious unhappiness among Republican supporters. Does this indicate that the party is on the verge of splitting, therefore dooming itself in the general election in November? I think not.

Because of Pat Buchanan's strong showing in New Hampshire, a message has been sent to George Bush.

The message is very clear: Republicans do not approve of higher taxes, quota programs, expensive and unnecessary business regulations, or liberal policies in general.

In the past four years, George Bush has supported all of these ideas, which Republicans abhor.

Therefore, George Bush is going to have to answer for these mistakes to guarantee grassroots Republican support.

In doing so, he will have to repledge his support for low taxes and limited government, because these are the bases of the Republican party platform.

Pat Buchanan's campaign plan has been and will continue to be very simple: to attack Bush's liberal policies of the past four years, which have led to a lingering recession and general economic uncertainty.

Bush's only answer to this attack is a firm rededication to the principles upon which he was elected in 1988.

By doing so, Bush will effectively steal Buchanan's thunder, reunite the Republican party by returning to fundamental Republican ideas, and guarantee another victory in November.

The next two weeks are going to show whether Bush has taken Buchanan's challenge seriously. If he has not, I think he will have made a grave mistake, and the strength of the Buchanan campaign will continue to grow.

If Bush does not seriously change his political tune, the Super Tuesday primaries on March 10 will add even more numbers to the growing ranks of Buchananites.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Rape victim offers words of wisdom

Dear Editor:

Hello. I would like to tell you about something that changed my life. I am sure that you have heard about the rape that occurred on the night of January 29, 1992. Well, the victim was me, and the life that was changed was mine.

Granted, I do not make it a habit to walk down dark alleys at night, in strange neighborhoods, alone, listening to headphones, while wearing a miniskirt, and staring down at the ground. I do not do the things that put me at a risk.

I always paid attention to those "crime prevention" shows on T.V., and listened to my mother when she told me to hold hands when crossing the street, flush the toilet when I was done — and never talk to strangers.

But I was victimized....I was raped. I am not one of those statistics you read about, nor am I one of those flirty girls that live out in Palm Beach who was "asking for it."

I was always an assertive, cautious person who was determined that I would never become one of those victims...but I was!

I don't want you to dismiss this case as "just another crime" committed against someone that you don't know.

Because, chances are, you DO know me.

As a matter of fact, I am probably in at least one of your classes.

You see me all the time in the Grille, U.C. and the cafeteria.

I am frequently in the library, and I work out in the Red Barn — who knows, maybe we graduated high school together....but I am NOT another statistic.

I am a well-known student here at Austin Peay, just like you, and I was made a victim.

I now realize that this could have happened to anyone, no matter who you are, what race, salary bracket or social level. It can happen.

This is in no way meant to scare anyone, rather I just want to warn you that it does happen, and to be just a little more cautious. Because no one should ever have to go through that kind of hell — EVER.

Submitted by victim of Jan. 29 rape at Austin Peay

Rape victims are not the guilty ones

Dear Editor:

I would like to express my feelings concerning the article by Bryan Link, "Rape Accusers Deserve the Same Media Attention".

I was the victim of the rape on January 29, 1992, and to be frank, Bryan, your comments were typically male.

You could have absolutely no idea what it is like to be victimized or raped.

The violation and hurt is beyond anything you could ever imagine.

I do not understand how you could justify making me a victim twice-over. Once by the perpetrator and then again by the press.

Granted, the situation of your friend that was falsely accused was an unfortunate one, but that was a mistake.

Mistakes happen!

But my assailant was not falsely accused, and once he violated me, he lost all of his rights to privacy and deserved all the media attention he got.

Myself, on the other hand, maybe I should go public with my identity, but I have nothing to gain by it, unlike the women in the two rape trials you mentioned in your article.

And I have loved ones that I would prefer did not know.

I also do not want to walk around with the title of RAPE VICTIM on my forehead for the rest of my life.

I am finally piecing my life back together, and I do not need the media impeding my progress.

I will never be the same because I was raped. I have not lied about the situation, and he has not been a victim of mistaken identity.

How can you justify revealing my name or protecting his?

And think about this....If my rapist's identity had been kept secret, and he made his bond, who is to say that he would not attack another woman who did not know his name or his face, who walked blindly into the situation?

Mr. Link, I understand your point of view, but it shows just how much you do not comprehend.

Until the day that you are a woman that is raped, you could never understand.

-Another victim-

Editor's Note:

The All State's policy is not to run the names of victims involving sex crimes.

The name of the victim of the Jan. 29 rape on campus was withheld in our news coverage of the rape and will continue to be to protect the victim.

Bryan Link's opinion column in the Feb. 19 issue is his own views and does not represent the views of the paper.

Professor should pay for newspapers

Dear Editor,

I was somewhat appalled by Dr. Goode's letter of explanation concerning his advice to students about conducting the "raid" on your paper's distribution points.

Two chords of discontent were struck rather sharply by his apparent lack of responsibility.

First, and one which I have not heard anyone refer to yet, First Amendment rights were abridged.

Were not the actions of the students an attempt to prevent other students from learning of the editorial?

If that is not abridgement of free press then I have failed in my studies.

What faculty edict does Dr. Goode stand on to support such activities?

Does he advocate that students have the right to do that which violates the constitution and/or the laws of our land?

I would remind Dr. Goode of a quote from Abraham Lincoln, "Let every American, every lover of liberty, every wellwisher to his posterity swear by the blood of the Revolution never to violate in the least particular the laws of the country, and never to tolerate their violation by others."

Secondly, there was Dr. Goode's statement justifying the act, "After all, how can you steal something that is free?"

This is a typical opinion of many government employees at all levels and reflects their misunderstanding of the method by which their agencies are funded.

If the cost of something does not come out of their pocket, then it must be "free". According to the university Business Office, the cost of printing the The All State (Upwards of $420 per issue according to Student Affairs) is paid out of the University Treasury, which means taxpayer dollars and student fees were, in effect, stolen.

I failed to see the humor with which Dr. Goode explained away his actions.

This is one student AND taxpayer who feels that Dr. Goode's letter of explanation alone is not sufficient.

I feel he should be disciplined by the president and at least required to reimburse the university for the cost of the copies which were "raided."

Maybe if his actions result in a "raid" on his pocketbook Dr. Goode will think twice next time before offering such irresponsible advice.

Sincerely,
Jim Dudley

Professor sends thanks to ADPi

Dear Editor:

To members of Alpha Delta Pi:

Annually the women of Alpha Delta Pi invite some of their favorite professors to their suite for a luncheon. Too often professors think students do not appreciate their efforts in class. These women are paying attention to what we do. Once again, they have made me proud to be a teacher, and I feel lucky to have them as students.

Thank you, Alpha Delta Pi, for making us feel appreciated.

Herschel is jinxed

Did anyone truly expect Herschel Walker to win a medal at the Olympic Games in Albertville, France? Get real. He would have had a much better chance of finding a clean glass at the Harvill Cafeteria! Not to take anything away from a man who is undoubtedly one of the most gifted athletes around today, but let's face it: HERSCHEL IS JINXED!

By DANIEL MURPH
sports editor

Ever since his departure from college football, nothing but unachievable expectations have been placed upon the shoulders of the former Heisman Trophy winner. Sure, he looked like a grown-up running through a school yard during his brief stint in the USFL, but what great NFL-caliber running back wouldn't?

A couple of years and a prayer later, he arrived to the NFL via a draft pick by the Dallas Cowboys. The presence of his name alone pushed Tony Dorsett to the Denver Broncos, and in his first couple of seasons, he did manage to break a couple of Cowboy team records, as well as earning a Pro-Bowl appearance. But, upon the arrival of Jimmy Johnson and the new Dallas coaching regime, only one word can best be used to describe Walker...

"Choke!"

The Minnesota Vikings, claiming that they were only one great player away from being a Super Bowl contender, worked with Dallas to get Walker in a trade which is now considered the most suicidal in NFL history. The Vikings gave up truck loads of future draft picks, a few of their starting players, boobie prizes, candy, Swiss bank accounts, their next of kin... well, you get the picture. Dallas, in return, dealt the kiss of death.

Upon his arrival to Minnesota, Walker ran more like a clutz than an athlete. An entire franchise was, and to some extent is, devastated because he was unable to perform up to expectations. Can you imagine how awful you would feel if the president of the franchise you belonged to admitted publicly that you were not worth half of what they paid to get you?

If Herschel was looking for a little reconciliation for his NFL woes, Albertville was not a good vacation spot. Regardless, he made the USA Olympic bobsled team. But, after he and partner Brian Shimer made a preliminary run which caused many to predict them to take the gold, I knew he was in trouble. Sure enough, they finished seventh.

If that was not bad enough, Walker

Govs sweep Xavier in season debut

By LUCY ANN GOSSETT
assistant sports editor

The Austin Peay Governors baseball team opened their 1992 season on a winning note by sweeping Xavier in a doubleheader Saturday, Feb. 22. The score of the first game was 15-2 while the second was closer with a final score of 5-4.

In the first game, junior Jamie "Cat" Walker allowed only two runs on six hits while walking two players and striking out five in five innings pitched. Walker was relieved by freshman Rich Elias in the top of the sixth inning.

Junior Bryan Link hit the first home run of the season for the Governors in the second inning. Also adding home runs were junior Kelly Weathers, who replaced designated hitter Kevin Smith, and sophomore catcher Brian Law, who hit a grand slam home run in the bottom of the fifth inning.

Link and Law each had four RBIs while junior Troy Hayes added three and Weathers two to account for the team total 13.

Xavier committed three errors while the Governors had 15 runs on 16 hits and no errors.

In the second game, sophomore David Richardson allowed three runs on three hits while striking out six Musketeers in five innings pitched. Richardson was credited with the win while relief pitcher Scott Speer was given the save. Speer allowed only one run on two hits during his time on the mound.

Xavier led Austin Peay 1-0 until the fourth inning. Junior Steve Cook stepped up to the plate with two outs and hit a homerun. During his next trip up to the plate, Cook was hit by a pitch.

Cook and Hayes each had two RBIs to lead the team.

Austin Peay scored four runs in the fifth; however, Xavier fought back and scored twice in the sixth and once in the top of the seventh. The Governors proved to be too much for the Musketeers as the final was 5-4.

The third game between the two teams was canceled due to rain.

The Governors next game will be Wednesday, Feb. 26, against Tennessee in Knoxville for a 2 p.m. contest. Following the game against Tennessee, the Governors travel to Alabama to play Birmingham-Southern the 27th, Alabama-Birmingham the 28th and Samford the 29th. On March 3, they travel to Evansville, Ind.

The Governors' next game at Governor Park will be March 4 when Evansville travels to Clarksville for a 2 p.m. matchup.

Murray ends Govs' last chance for road win

By DANIEL MURPH
sports editor

It was not pretty.

Monday night the Racers of Murray State clinched the OVC regular season crown for the fifth straight year. Austin Peay was the victim, 105-75.

"They (Murray) came to play tonight at a different level than us," said Govs' head coach Dave Loos. "Their defense was great, forcing us to do a lot off the dribble, taking some shots early."

The Racers led 51-35 at the half, and shot even hotter in the second period. At one point, they shot 16 unanswered points from the floor.

"It was just their night," Loos said. "If Murray plays like that in the OVC tournament, it will be hard for anyone to beat them."

Rick Yudt led the Govs in scoring with 21 points. Other Govs in double figures were Reggie Dupree (18), Geoff Herman (15), and Greg Franklin (14).

"Rick played hard in the second half," Loos said. "He hung in there and did the best he could."

The loss ends all hope of Austin Peay winning a game on the road during the regular season. "We are two different teams," said Loos. "One at home and a different on the road. We must get back into a positive mindset. We cannot dwell on this."

The victory improved Murray State's overall record to 14-12, and 11-3 in the OVC. The Govs fell to 11-15 overall, and 6-7 in the OVC.

Austin Peay plays host this Saturday night to Eastern Kentucky in their last regular season game.

"This is quite a blow to our team," Loos said. "But, the sun is going to rise again."

Lady Govs lose to Middle

By LUCY ANN GOSSETT
assistant sports editor

The Austin Peay State University women's basketball team once again failed to make the last hurdle during a game. They lost 68-57 to the Middle Tennessee State University Blue Raiders on Saturday, Feb. 22. This loss marked the 33rd time in history the Lady Govs have failed to beat the Lady Raiders. Their record is now 4-21 for the season and 1-12 in the OVC.

APSU was led in scoring by junior Betsy Jeffries with 15 points. Carrie Thompson and Jametta Bland were the only other Lady Govs to hit double digits with 13 and 10 respectively.

Thompson led the battle of the boards with nine rebounds. Jeffries also contributed eight boards.

Thompson, who sat out part of the season with a stress fracture, has come back and contributed greatly to the team. In the game, Thompson was 57 percent from the field and 100 percent from the line. This helped the Lady Govs in shooting 36 percent from the field and 75 percent from the foul line for the game.

The Lady Governors next home game will be Wednesday, Feb. 26 against Alabama-Birmingham in a 7 p.m. contest. Seniors Clare Coyle, Jennifer Fritts and Stephanie Rogers will be recognized.

The last game for the Lady Govs will be Saturday, Feb. 29, when they travel to take on the Lady Racers of Murray State University in a 5:15 p.m. game.

Franklin clinches MTSU game

MTSU RAIDER BUSTER--Greg Franklin had a hand in bursting MTSU's bubble in the Governors 75-73 victory. (photo by Donna Lovett)

By LUCY ANN GOSSETT
assistant sports editor

The Austin Peay men's basketball team accomplished one of its greatest feats this year in their 75-73 victory over the Blue Raiders of Middle Tennessee. This victory marked the first time in the last seven meetings against MTSU in the Dave Aaron Arena that the Govs were victorious. They also extended their winning streak at home to nine games.

The Raiders led the Governors from the 11:15 mark in the first half until 47 seconds left in the game. Junior guard Greg Franklin became the deciding factor in the game when he iced two free throws to tie the game at 73 all and also hit the winning free throws for the 75-73 final margin. It was also Franklin in last year's game in Murfreesboro who iced eight free throws in a row for the Governors victory in Murphy Center. The Governors trailed 38-35 at halftime and were shooting only 40 percent from the field and 44 percent from the foul line.

Austin Peay was led in scoring by sophomore Geoff Herman with 22 points. Following Herman were Franklin in 21, Toine Murphy 16 and Rick Yudt 10.

Four Governors led in rebounding with five boards a piece. They were Murphy, Yudt, Devlin Bell and Malcolm McCormick.

The Governors (6-6, OVC) next opponent will be league leading Murray State (10-3, OVC) on Monday, Feb. 24, as they search for their first road victory. Tip-off is set for 7:30 p.m.

APSU will be back in action at the Dunn Center on Saturday, Feb. 29, for their final home game against the Colonels of Eastern Kentucky in a 7:30 p.m. contest.

Getting Away The old South revisited

By JANICE REILLY
features editor

Belle Meade is much more than a restored antebellum home. The "Queen of Tennessee Plantations" has historical significance.

One of the oldest structures in Tennessee is the old log cabin that John Harding and his family purchased when they moved from Virginia. The land he purchased was known as Dunham's Station. The cabin is believed to have been built in 1790.

Harding named his new land, Belle Meade, which means "beautiful meadow." He began building a stud farm in 1816, with the stud, "Imp Boaster." Throughout the years, the reputation of Belle Meade as a thoroughbred farm grew, especially under the direction of Gen. W.H. Jackson, who married into the family.

One of the most famous thoroughbreds raised at Belle Meade was Iroquois. Until 1954, Iroquois was the only American-bred horse to win the English Derby.

Belle Meade's solid maroon silks were retired in 1971. They were the oldest registered silks in America.

The 14-room mansion that stands today was built in the Greek Revival style and completed in 1853. The columns were quarried from the land and hand cut.

Belle Meade became the place for people to visit when they came through Nashville. Seven presidents have visited there, including Grover Cleveland, who took his young bride there soon after an indoor bathroom was installed. Legend has it that Cleveland (weighing 350 pounds) got stuck in the bathtub, and it took four men to extract him.

The Belle Meade mansion suffered minor damage in the 1864 Battle of Nashville. Bullet marks can still be seen in the limestone columns.

The large Carriage House was built in 1890 and houses one of the finest collections of carriages in the South. Some of the carriages include: a spring buckboard, a surrey and a stagecoach.

Belle Meade once consisted of 5,400 acres. Today, the acreage is down to 24. The grounds can be visited without charge. This includes the log cabin, the Carriage House, a smokehouse built in 1820 and a creamery built in 1884.

Tours for the mansion are $5 for adults, $3.50 for students ages 13-18, and $2 for children 6-12. Tours are conducted by women in costume, complete with hoop skirts. The house is furnished with beautiful antiques and many paintings of the famous horses bred at Belle Meade. Visiting hours are from 9-5 Monday through Saturday, and 1-5 p.m. on Sunday. Belle Meade is located off Harding Road in Nashville.

Alpha Delta Pi locks up VIPs

By JANICE REILLY
features editor

Alpha Delta Pi sponsored a lockup to raise money for the Ronald McDonald house in Nashville and raised about $1,000.

Tara Meeker, president of Austin Peay's chapter, said some of the important people on campus were arrested, and they had to raise $25 in donations to get out of jail.

Meeker said, "It's a fun kind of way to get a lot of attention. It's working out great. I'm really excited about it. We're raising a lot of money for the Ronald McDonald house in the process."

Ronald McDonald houses provide a place for families of hospitalized children to stay.

The lockup took place on Wednesday, Feb. 19, at the University Center. Those arrested were charged with crimes and locked up until they could raise their bail money.

The jail suffered from overcrowding. Prisoners had to share rooms and phones. In fact, the prisoners were fighting over the phones, so they could get pledges for bail money. The alleged criminals were allowed more than the usual one phone call.

The prisoners did not have to go hungry while in jail. Bread and water were available, as well as orange juice and muffins.

Jennifer Jackson, a bailiff, explained that if a prisoner had a class to attend or teach before bail was made, he or she was escorted to and from class.

Dr. John Butler, vice president for Academic Affairs, said he was arrested and charged with "making this year's leadership class learn silly little word lists." He explained, "I did ask them to learn certain words, but they were words of great significance, not silly, but a significant list." He said he didn't know whom to call. "The fact is," he said, "there isn't anybody that would even consider contributing for me, so I am just at a loss." He planned to call members of the faculty.

SGA President Janice Miller said she was charged with "being mean to the SGA." She planned to call the SGA senators to help with her bail. Miller said she hated being in jail.

Roger Dickson, coordinator for Housing/Residence Life said he called everyone he knew "to try to bring in favors." He said he was arrested because he "assigned people to go to hall meetings--mandatory hall meetings."

According to Meeker, Alpha Delta Pi's national organization supports Ronald McDonald houses. The idea came from "a lot of brainstorming and idea sessions for service projects," Meeker said.

The original goal was to raise $600.

Nashville Ballet comes to Clarksville

The Nashville Ballet makes a return visit to Clarksville with two performances scheduled for Sunday, March 1.

Presented by the Mid-Cumberland Arts League and Austin Peay State University's Center for the Creative Arts, this program is being made available through the sponsorship of the following local organizations: Bendix, Burger King, Credit Bureau Systems Inc., Drs. Faust, Pedigo, Futrell & Resta, Jersey Miniere Zinc, Jostens, The Leaf-Chronicle, South Central Bell, Trane and Union Carbide.

Two public performances, at 2 and 7 p.m., will be held in the concert theater of the Music/Mass Communication Building on the APSU campus. There will be open seating, and doors will be opened for 30 minutes prior to each performance. Admission is $6 for adults and $4 for students and senior citizens. All proceeds benefit the Mid-Cumberland Arts League. Advance tickets may be purchased at the Clarksville/Montgomery County Museum, Lee's at Governor's Square Mall and the APSU music ticket office.

Located in the lobby of the Music/Mass Communication Building, APSU music ticket office hours are 11 a.m. - 2 p.m. Monday through Friday. Reservations may be made by calling 648-7001, but all tickets must be picked up and paid for by 2 p.m. Friday, Feb. 28.

Under the artistic direction of Edward Myers, the Nashville Ballet company of 18 dancers offers a unique and eclectic repertoire of scintillating works. The company's commitment to artistic innovation and excellence is reflected in the expanse of repertoire that it performs. In performance, the Nashville Ballet makes ballet accessible and enjoyable to the layman as well as exhilarating to the balletomane.

Audiences on March 1 will be treated to a variety of ballet styles. In "Square Dance," the dancers perform a classical ballet by George Balanchine set to the elegant strains of Renaissance music by Corelli and Vivaldi, within the framework of an American square dance.

A jazz ballet for three couples, "Appearances" is athletic and steamy. The dance becomes an entertaining frenzy with costume changes before your eyes. It is Lynn Taylor-Corbett, choreographer of "Footloose," in her most popular mode.

The delicately balanced nature of the male/female relationship is depicted in "Refuge," a contemporary pas de deux by award-winning New York-based choreographer Diane Coburn Bruning.

Inspired by European folk dances and set to music by George Enesco, the classic work "Rhapsody" incorporates the harmony, vitality and energy found in East European national dances. Vivid and colorful costumes enhance this ballet which was choreographed exclusively for Nashville Ballet by Myers.

Mandated to educate as well as entertain, Nashville Ballet has an affiliated graded school and collaborates with other arts organizations to promote community cultural enrichment. Having performed for thousands of Tennessee school children in grades K through 12, Nashville Ballet has worked

Sean Young's performance in Love Crimes hits new low

movie critic

It seems as if Sean Young might have hit rock bottom with her latest attempt at stardom in the psychological thriller, "Love Crimes." Young was probably one of the most prominent young actresses in Hollywood after appearing in the films "Black Runner," "No Way Out," "Cousins" and "Wall Street." She should have had her choice of any role she wanted, but she caused trouble on each set.

"In Hollywood, she is known as the 'Fatal Attraction' girl..."

In Hollywood, she is known as the "Fatal Attraction" girl after an encounter with James Woods. She has lost roles in two of the biggest money making films in history, "Batman" and "Dick Tracy." It seems that many actors refuse to work with her. Hopefully, things will get better for her, but I'm sorry to say that "Love Crimes" is not a step in the right direction.

In "Crimes," Young plays an Atlanta assistant district attorney that specializes in convicting sex offenders. She's so passionate about her work that she actually works with undercover cops on raids to make sure she has enough incriminating evidence for court. Now, she's tracking down a man posing as a celebrity photographer, played by Patrick Bergin. Bergin's character preys on women he knows won't fight back or go to court. He gets them to pose in kinky situations, making them ashamed of acting out their darkest fantasies, and he uses that shame to seduce them.

This movie has all the ingredients of being an excellent picture, but it doesn't make any sense. It delivers quite a bit of information; however, none of it seems to tie in.

You never know what actually makes Bergin's character tick, or the basis of his relationship with Young. You don't even get the slightest hint as to whether or not she's attracted to Bergin.

I'm sorry, but the only crime committed here is that the theater is taking honest folks' money. ..HELP POLICE!

Non-traditional meeting stresses cooperation

By DONNA LOVETT
staff writer

The product of a game of Tinker Toys and cooperation provided the theme at the Non-Traditional Student Organization meeting last Wednesday.

Vice-president Paula Blew challenged two groups to build the tallest structure with Tinker Toys. They got two chances. The first time they could not speak to each other, and the second time they could. "The point of this game," Blew said, "was to show cooperation and that's what we ask of you as members of the Non-Traditional Student Organization. It's going to take everybody and everybody working together to get things done."

During the meeting, president Ava Moore discussed the qualifications for being an officer and said the organization will be accepting nominations from the financial members. These nominations will be discussed at the executive board meeting on March 4, and the general election will be held on April 11.

The cooperation that Blew stressed will be important to the members of NTSO as they get down to work. All members were encouraged to attend the Big Brother/Big Sister Bowl-a-thon at the Eastgate Bowling Lanes on Feb. 29. The group also discussed the NTSO's Spring Dance.

Originally slated as the Valentine's Dance, the Spring Dance was re-scheduled for March 21.

Auditions and interviews for Center Stage 92 at Austin Peay State University will be held Saturday, March 28, at 1 p.m. in the Trahern Theatre.

Center Stage is seeking college and high school actors, technicians and musicians as well as box office and publicity personnel. Actors should bring a resume with a picture and a one-to two-minute cutting. Singers will sing immediately after the audition, and an accompanist will be furnished. Scores in the proper key should be provided.

Technicians are requested to bring a resume to the interview, and a portfolio of any previous work also may be submitted at this time. Technical positions will be sought in the areas of scenic construction, lighting and costuming. Salaries range from $125-$400 per week, with most of the staff working a four-week period.

Presented by the APSU Center for the Creative Arts, Center Stage 92 is a unique work-study experience where college and high school students have an opportunity to participate in several weeks of intensive daily activity. Professionals and paid apprentices work together in a combination of master classes and live performances.

This year's production of "Story Theatre," which is based on "Aesop's Fables" and "The Brothers Grimm," will run June 18-21 and 25-27 and will be directed by Clarksville's Sally Welch.

For more information, contact Dr. Joe Filippo, department of speech, communication and theatre, box 4666, APSU, Clarksville, TN 37044, or telephone 648-7378.

In addition to the March 1 performances, Nashville Ballet also will provide an outreach program of education and enrichment through a study of ballet with ballet master classes for dance students 7-12 years of age. Two sessions will be taught by company member Sharyn Wood on Saturday, Feb. 29, in the Opera/Dance Rehearsal

Hall in the APSU Music/Mass Communication Building.

Session I - 10-11 a.m. for seven-, eight- and nine-year-olds with one year of previous study; $10 per person.

Session II - 11:30 a.m.-1 p.m. for 10-, 11- and 12-year-olds with three years previous study; $15 per person.

Interested participants should contact the APSU Center for the Creative Arts at 648-7876. Advance registration and payment are required.

An Austin Peay State University senior will perform in recital Wednesday, Feb. 26.

Derek Jones, a music education major from Milan, will perform a recital of clarinet music at 8 p.m. in the concert theater of the Music/Mass Communication Building. The performance is free and open to the public.

For his senior recital, Jones will perform Rossini's "Introduction, Theme and Variations," the Andante Semplice movement of "Sonata per Clarinetto Solo, op. 41" by Rozsa and Copland's "Concerto for Clarinet." He will be accompanied on piano by Patricia Hal-beck, APSU assistant professor of music.

This recital is in partial fulfillment for the requirements of the bachelor of science degree in music education.
