

Toe tapping enlightens crowd

It was a "toe tapping weekend" March 29-30 as fiddlers and pickers from Tennessee and surrounding states congregated for the First Annual Mid-Tennessee Championship, sponsored by the University Social Activities Board.

Approximately 4,000 persons were on hand during the two days of festivities held in Memorial Gymnasium.

A jam session of bluegrass and old time music began Friday night. The crowd enjoyed impromptu buckdancing demonstrations from dancers ranging in age from five to 85.

The eliminations began at 10 a.m. with folk singing category and ended about 5 p.m. with the buck dancing category. A total of 158 entries participated in the competition.

During the day small groups practiced, jammed and swapped stories in the lobby of Memorial Gymnasium, class rooms and outside the gym.

The 7 p.m. finals began with a welcoming speech from Dr. Joe Morgan, president of Austin Peay State University.

Clarksville Mayor Charles Cross greeted the audience and presented Margaret Morgan, chairperson of the University Social Activities Board, with a certificate declaring March 29-30, 1974, as the "Days of the Fiddlers."

T.A. Hudson, president of the Tennessee Valley Old Time Fiddlers' Association said "This is the first time of what I know will be the first of many conventions here."

"I think it went tremendously," said Dr. Stephen Davis, coordinator of the convention.

"The fiddlers the convention attracted were incredible—the Mid-South Champion, the National Grand Champion, the Western Champion and the Tennessee Valley Champion," he said.

"The students and volunteers deserve an awful lot of credit. These people really worked hard."

In the folk singing category winners were Eleanor Dameron, first; Robert and Claudine Nobley, second; and the Foster Brothers, third.

Winners in the guitar category were Algie Surratt, first; Tom Spencer, second; and Jess Aldridge, third.

Placing in the senior fiddlers division were Frazier Moss, first; Bob Douglas, second; and Mac McClaine, third.

Winners in bluegrass band were Johnny Powers, first; Jack Sallee, second; and William Reece, third.

In the harmonica competition, Joe Gambill was first; Jack Sallee was second; and Randall Colwell was third.

Bill Lowery was first, Clyde Moon was second, and Mike Hudson was third in mandolin competition.

The junior fiddler winners were J. T. Perkins, first; Bud Meredith, second; and Jack Weeks, third.

Ormer Foster placed first, J. C. Warren placed second and Mike Holmes placed third in the old time banjo division.

Old time string band winners were John Damps, first; Sugar Valley Boys, second; and Highland Kim Boys, third.

In the bluegrass band category, the Buck Mountain Boys were first, Cumberland Cut-ups were second and Bluegrass Mill was third.

Buckdancing winners were Ernest Ridgeway, first; Hart Fowkes, second; and J.C. Warren, third.

In the Fiddle Off between Junior Fiddler Winner J. T. Perkins and Senior Fiddler Winner Frazier Moss, Perkins won and was proclaimed Mid-Tennessee Champion Fiddler.

Psychology Department plans curriculum changes

"We are not only adding new courses but are revising the present psychology courses offered," explained Dr. Garland Blair, chairman of the department of psychology. "This will be different from any program offered at APSU. We are trying to make the whole program competency based. When the student completes the program, he hasn't just completed 'X' number of hours, but has acquired certain kinds of skills and knowledge in his specified field of study."

The Psychology Department will be making several changes in curriculum, hiring new faculty and adding new courses, as a part of the new psychology program projected for the fall, quarter 1974. The suggested new program would offer the undergraduate a more flexible program as compared to the rigidity in the present curriculum. For example, the undergraduate would have to take 12 required hours and 15 additional hours from five fields of study. The remainder of the degree work could come from a specified field of study, such as the exceptional child.

The variety of courses offered will give the undergraduate the opportunity to start some concentration in what he specifically wants career-wise. On the other hand, the competency based program would attempt to make the graduate student distinguish between having a degree and making a career.

"We are very enthusiastic about the change," commented Dr. Elizabeth Stokes, professor of psychology. "It will be a much better program for the students and the major will be strengthened by the revision."

The proposed psychology program will first be sent to the Curriculum Committee of the College of Education during the spring quarter for approval. Any new courses or programs used in teacher education has to be

Mundane reports on Blount orange sheet robbery

By VALARIE JAMES

It was 9:48:30 on a cloudy Wednesday night. My partner and I were working the night watch out of Browning. My partner's Bill Tweeddale. My name is Mundane. I carry a badge. I'm lucky. I could have gotten a guppie.

We were writing reports on last night's BSB (Bring Streaking Back) meeting when the call came in. There had been a robbery at Blount Hall.

9:53:41. We arrived at the scene of the crime.

"All right, ma'am. Calm down. This is my partner, Bill Tweeddale. My name is Mundane. I carry a badge. Now, ma'am. Just give us the facts please."

"They're gone! They're gone! Somebody stole them!"

"What's stole, ma'am? Calm down and give me the facts."

"My laundry. Somebody stole it."

"Can you give us a description of the missing articles, ma'am?"

"Let's see. There were two orange sheets. Three green towels, a pair of red sneakers and a white stuffed bunny."

"When did you last see the merchandise in question, ma'am?"

"Just a little while ago, when I put them in the dryer after I took them out of the washing machine after I brought them down here to wash."

"Bill, tell the badge to go look for finger prints in the dryer."

"Right, Joe."

"Thank you for your cooperation, ma'am. We'll get on this right away."

"But what about my laundry? Can't you tell me anything?"

"Yes, ma'am. As far as we can determine at this time, we have a clear cut case of their right here. We'll be talking to you, ma'am."

"Bill, what did the badge say?"

"Nothing, Joe. He went to sleep in the dryer."

"Wake him up, Bill."

"Right, Joe."

"Well, what did he say?"

"He said there were finger-prints from five fingers on the right hand of the thief."

"You know what that means, don't you, Bill?"

"Right, Joe. The thief just used one hand to steal the laundry."

"Wrong, Bill—the thief is a one-armed man."

"Right, Joe."

10:23:23 We left Blount Hall and headed toward the snack bar, a well-known meeting place for suspicious characters. There we met Suspicious Alvin, a known fence for the area. We sat down in a corner booth. The badge ordered a chocolate milkshake.

"Hello, Suspicious. Heard about any hot sheets for sale lately?"

"Maybe. What's it to you, Joe?"

"Lady over in Blount Hall seems to be missing a couple of orange ones. You wouldn't know anything about it, would you, Suspicious?"

"All right, Suspicious. We're taking you down to the station."

"What for? What's the charge? I haven't done anything."

"Suspicious, Suspicious. Let's go, Bill."

"Right, Joe."

"Wait a minute. I haven't heard anything about any sheets, but if it means anything to you, I did hear about a one-armed guy with a stuffed white bunny under his arm over at McCord."

"All right, Suspicious. We'll let you go this time, but watch it. Let's go, Bill."

Class of '74 obtains book

Each member of the class of 1974 will receive a copy of The Graduate, a handbook for leaving school, according to Henry C. Malone, director of alumni affairs.

Purchased by the Austin Peay State University Alumni Association, The Graduate will be made available through the Alumni Association upon receipt from the printer.

This handbook is an annual publication which features articles by noted authorities such as William Glasser, Vance Packard and Caroline Bird on topics which range from "Women and Careers," "The MBA Route" and "Writing a Resume" to a "Real World Catalog" of information on buying a car, insurance, durable goods, travel, housing and living income tax.

"The Graduate Young Alumni Program is the alumni association's contribution to helping our students make a successful transition from the academic environment into the 'real world' during a time of economic uncertainties and employment insecurity," said Malone.

Acting on information received from the well-known fence, Suspicious Alvin, we drove over to McCord. Everything seemed quiet—then we saw it. A red sneaker—lying on the front steps and matching perfectly the description of the sneaker taken in the Blount Hall robbery.

"Bill, you go in the side. Badger, you cover the back I'll go in the front and we'll have him surrounded."

"Right, Joe."

"All right, one-armed thief. Give yourself up. We've got you surrounded."

"Not a chance. You'll have to come in and get me!"

"Bill, go in and get him."

"Right, Joe."

"Gee. I didn't really think you would come and get me."

"That's the way the law works, one-armed."

"You think we have the right guy, Joe?"

"I think so, Bill. He's wearing two orange sheets, a red sneaker and carrying a white stuffed stuffed bunny wrapped up in three green towels. Take him down and book him, Bill."

"Right, Joe. (Pat, Joe, the badge wants to know if he can keep the bunny.)"

"When you get back to the station, see if they will assign us a guppie, Bill."

"Right, Joe."

The story you have just read is true. Only the names have been changed to protect the innocent. Dum-de-dum-dum-dum-dum-m.

English teachers prepare for meetings

By CRISTIE MAYOR

"Knowledge is of two kinds. We know where we can find information upon it," said Samuel Johnson. Both kinds of knowledge have been apparent in recent accomplishments of members of the APSU English department.

Dr. Lou Tatham and Dr. Don Der have both been chosen for participation in nationwide seminars conducted this summer by the National Endowment for the Humanities, a program centered around scholarly study and collegiate instruction.

Professor Tatham, whose area of concentration is romantic literature and who received his doctorate for his dissertation on 18th century criticism on Shelly, will attend the seminar on Romantic Literature at Yale University. Dr. Tatham is one of a dozen nationally chosen for this honor. Before coming to APSU eight years ago, Dr. Tatham had instructed at the University of Florida four years and the Virginia Polytechnical Institute for seven.

Professor Der will attend the University of California at Santa Cruz for the seminar on European Renaissance during the 16th and 17th centuries. He too is one of 12 participants of this specific seminar.

Dr. Der's doctoral dissertation depicted Shakespeare's imitation and imagery in three of the bard's plays. "The function of the National Endowment for the Humanities is to promote scholarship and consequently improve teaching," says Dr. Der. "I am very happy to be one of these chosen for this honor."

Dr. Der has been at APSU four years, and his teaching experience prior to APSU included the University of Southern Alabama and the University of Florida.

Glass goes to California

"A poem is gum stuck under the foot of your soul." These lines are from a poem Malcolm Glass wrote to his freshman cousin in Anaheim, Calif. this week for the Conference on College Composition and Communication, where he will read his paper on "Practicing Literary Skills and Techniques."

Glass will also be a creative consultant to the Los Angeles Metropolitan school district, and he will conduct a reading and discussion on poetry at the California State University at Northridge prior to the conference.

Exchange teachers

Also around the English Department, Bill Barnett is again this year an exchange teacher with Tennessee State, and Ms. G. Jensen is with us this spring on the same program. Barnett is teaching World Literature and Freshman English at Tennessee

State, and Mrs. Jensen is teaching Black Writers here.

The poetry workshop, an organization which enables poets to get together and discuss each others poems and find out what is happening in the world of poetry, is active again this spring and anticipates trips to other schools, meetings and other poets coming to APSU.

If you are interested in poetry and would like to find out about the poetry workshop, contact either David Till or Malcolm Glass in the English Department.

Harvill residents present dream trip to Mrs. Gold

"Everyone has a dream and we're going to give it to you," said Kim Hereford, freshman, to Lilly Mae Gold on her birthday. Mrs. Gold, the maid of Harvill Hall, at her March 12 birthday party was presented the dream of her life—a trip to Florida.

Overhearing that Mrs. Gold's life dream was to go to Florida and "walk in the sands," the girls of Harvill Hall began planning this project as a tribute to her.

Several months ago, Harvill residents headed by Patricia Hunt, sophomore, and Miss Hereford, contacted Harvill coaches, alumni of Harvill Hall, faculty and staff and Senator Halbert Harvill for whom the dorm was named. Over 107 persons contributed to the fund.

Mrs. Gold was coaxed back to campus after working hours Tuesday, March 12, on the pretense that she was to help Miss Sante Coleman, supervisor of Harvill Hall, prepare a dinner for the history department.

Most Harvill residents, a few alumni, Director of Women's Affairs Mildred Deason, SGA President Mike Fletcher and Floyd Galt, Mrs. Gold's daughter, waited in the lobby of Harvill Hall to surprise Mrs. Gold.

"I'll be doggone if I don't beat all I've seen," exclaimed Mrs. Gold as she entered the decorated lobby and was greeted with shouts of "Happy Birthday!"

Presented first with a corsage by Miss Coleman and a camera for "taking pictures on her trip," Mrs. Gold was then presented with $923 for a trip to Florida.

"I want to say to Miss Coleman, Miss Deason and the student body of Austin Peay, thank the Lord for such good students who would give me this birthday party. I want you to know I love you all," she said.

"How old are you?" asked one girl.

"I'm an old woman, but I have young ideas," she replied. "I feel like a million dollar woman."

Well-versed by Harvill Hall girls, Mrs. Gold has been an extra mother and friend to all Harvill residents offering advice or lending a sympathetic ear.

Especially known for her keen sense of keeping up with all the dorm "secrets," Mrs. Gold was astonished by the fact that the girls could "pull one over on her."

"I don't know how you got this up and I didn't know anything about it," she said.

Mrs. Gold plans to take that dream trip sometime in the summer.

Letter cuts certain views on economy

families had income of less than $600 dollars, while 5.4 percent had incomes in excess of $1,000 dollars.

It would appear then that the economic system that he wants to replace has done a reasonably good job.

Writer's Problem

The writer's problem is that he has no idea of what an economic system is. Functionally, an economic system is the mechanism to implement social choice with respect to the employment of limited resources, which have alternative uses to produce goods and services for present and future consumption and to distribute those goods and services to the members of that society. Basically there are only two methods of performing this function: by a free market system which operates to produce prices which serve to ration the goods and services to those who are willing and able to pay those prices or by a command system in which central planning by human agencies performs the necessary allocation chore.

From a purely theoretical point of view either system operating in a frictionless environment with complete or perfect knowledge achieves exactly the same result. Unfortunately, no economic system operates in a vacuum. Whether it be a free market or a command system it must perform within the framework of the total society. The institutional arrangements of that society, e.g. the political and legal, impinge upon the free operation of the economic system by providing constraints and limits to economic activity.

We are in an economic crisis not because the economic system is failing to function but because it has performed so well to provide artificially low priced fuel over the past forty years. Low prices that have inhibited the development of alternate energy sources and that have encouraged the development of high powered inefficient personal transportation. Low prices that have been subsidized by a politically imposed tax which has served to transfer the real cost of that fuel from the fuel user to the society at large.

The answer is not to replace the present system with one which will be subject to the same onslaught of restraints and which in addition depends upon the perfect functioning of human planning agencies, but to improve the environment by correcting those institutional arrangements which lead to economic distortion.

Sincerely,
Delmar R. Fraiser

Class plans unusual playground

A crawling maze, a balance maze and climbing poles are just a few of the interesting and unconventional playground equipment now found at the Barkdale Elementary School. This imaginative playground was planned and constructed by an Austin Peay State University physical education class, "Planning the Elementary and Middle School Program," conducted for the first time last quarter by Dr. Lea Larson.

It all began when the Barkdale school called Dr. Larson to ask her to have one of her classes undertake the project. Two hundred dollars in funds was appropriated by the Barkdale PTA, but the class, making use of old tires, car springs, railroad ties, telephone poles and electric and telephone wire spools, was able to construct the playground for only $943.7.

Much planning was necessary on the part of the students and the instructor before the project could be put into action. Sigma Chi fraternity aided the class of twelve in the actual construction of the playground.

This unique playground was designed for children between the ages of four and seven. Its objective is to invoke creativity on the part of the children through unstructured equipment which will guide their learning, but will not restrict their imagination. The result is a playground where it can be fun for children to learn agility, flexibility, strength, speed, balance and coordination.

Said Ann Karbu, a student in the class, "It makes the kids use their imagination."

Also, as Dr. Larson pointed out, "This playground is very flexible. It can be used to test and improve physical skills or just to have fun on."

Proof of the project's success can be seen in the reaction of the children themselves who have "gone wild" over the playground, as Dr. Larson said.

Defender assists students who violate APSU codes

"It is unreal how a person, when he or she becomes a student, loses their constitutional rights," stated Wayne Gasaway, chief student defender.

Last May the Student Government Association created two new positions in the SGA president's cabinet: with the purpose of allowing students to take a more important role in the judicial process at APSU. The two positions were Chief Student Defender and the Attorney General who is presently Milford Lucius.

The duty of the Chief Student Defender is to provide students who become in violation of the university's codes with assistance. Regardless of whether the student is guilty or not before his case is reviewed by the Student Tribunal, the student may and can be helped by the Chief Student Defender.

The Attorney General helps the administration in prosecuting students accused of violating the university codes.

After a year of existence the two positions have received praise from both student leaders and administrators. The creation of these positions has also helped in defending student's rights.

"One wouldn't believe how many times a student can be denied basic constitutional rights, simple ones like reading a student's rights," stated Larry Flood, assistant student defender.

Mike Fletcher, president of the SGA, stated that his real purposes in creating these two positions was to protect students rights.

One problem that the student defenders have had is that a lot of students who need these services do not know that they exist.

Anyone needing the help of the Chief Student Defender or Attorney General should get in touch with those persons involved or the SGA.

AP must win both games against Middle's Raiders

Austin Peay head baseball coach Joe Ellenberg said it simply following a doubleheader loss to Murray State Saturday afternoon on the road. "Our games with Middle Tennessee Saturday are 'must' games for us."

He said it simply and it is simple. The Governors must win their remaining four Ohio Valley Conference Western Division baseball games if they are to have any hopes of claiming the divisional flag.

Middle Tennessee boasts possibly the finest pitching staff in the entire OVC this spring and two wins would not by any means be easy for the Goves. If the normal pitching rotation holds up, MTSU coach John Stanford plans to use senior Gary Mathews and junior Gary Nelson.

However, before the Goves can tackle Middle Tennessee, they have to get four games out of the way. APSU is in Jackson today to play a twin-bill with Lambuth College and will remain in Jackson tomorrow for another double dip against Union.

Then the Goves can concentrate on hosting Middle Tennessee. All the fun begins at 1 p.m. at Governor Park.

In other action this week, Austin Peay will host Vanderbilt for two Sunday (1 p.m.) and will host Wisconsin-LaCrosse for a three game series that begins with a 1 p.m. doubleheader Tuesday. This afternoon's games will constitute the beginning of 11 games in eight days for the Peay.

Now back to the "must" wins. To refresh your memory, the OVC is divided into the Eastern and Western Divisions.

Austin Peay is in the Western Division with Murray, Middle and Western Kentucky. Each team plays six divisional games in the fall and six divisional games in the spring.

Murray won the fall title with a 5-1 record and if the Racers win the spring title, they will represent the West in the OVC championship playoffs. If Murray doesn't win the spring portion of the schedule, there will be a playoff between the winner and Murray to see who represents the Western Division.

Gary Anders and Daryl Ulery are expected to get the call for mound duty for the Goves against the Blue Raiders.

Anders has been the ace of the staff this spring even though his record doesn't show it. The heat throwing southpaw has only one win against four losses but has an ERA of below 1.25.

The Goves lost two heart-breakers to Murray State Saturday, both in extra-innings. Anders was the victim of two unearned runs when the Goves dropped the opener 3-1 in eight innings.

Then in the second game, the Goves built a 1-1 lead in the fifth inning but couldn't hold on and Murray again slipped by APSU. This time 7-6, also in eight innings.

Austin Peay took the lead in the first inning of the first game when Charlie Serey singled with one out and sprinted home on a double by Bob Rickert.

Murray tied it in the bottom of the first when Anders fielded a slow roller with two outs but threw wildly for first base, allowing Steve Barrett to score from second.

In the eighth, Anders walked Mike Rayburn to start the inning. When Anders tried to pick-off pinch runner John Howland, he threw it away and Howland went to third. After a groundout, pinch hitter Terry Brown delivered only the second Murray hit of the day and Howland came home with the winning run.

To the second game, Austin Peay had three hits in the eighth but could not bring in a run to break a 6-6 deadlock.

In Murray's half of the eighth, Barrett laced a one-out single over the Gove infield to bring home the winning tally.

The win ran the Murray record to 20-4 over-all and dropped APSU to 3-16 in all games.

Tull-like 'Toppers' picked again

On the cover of the Western Kentucky University 1974 track and field brochure is pictured four men that look like they came straight from the world of Jethro Tull.

They have it all. Long, unkempt locks cascade down their necks and their shoulders. One even has a full beard and resembles Ian Anderson himself, except on a larger scale, say 250 pounds.

But these four men, Nick Rose, Chris Ridler, Jesse Stuart and Tony Staynings are the fearsome Ohio Valley Conference coaches believe will lead the Hilltoppers to their 11th consecutive OVC track and field title in May according to the fifth annual The All State Spring Sports Poll.

The league track coaches have every right to believe the "Toppers" are the team to beat. The four long hairs are All-American athletes and no other team in the OVC can boast that many in its ranks.

Western received seven of eight first place votes for 63 points for a 13 point margin over the coaches' pick for second place, Eastern Kentucky. Middle Tennessee is picked to place third followed by Murray State, East Tennessee, Austin Peay, Tennessee Tech and Morehead State.

Mid-South Classic next

Golfers must find consistency

Walton Smith came to some quick conclusions following his Austin Peay State University Governors' showing in the Louisiana State University Invitational in Baton Rouge last weekend.

You see, the third year head coach feels he has the talent on his squad to challenge for the Ohio Valley Conference title this spring. But Smith's not exactly over-joyed with his golfers' performance in Baton Rouge.

Austin Peay placed fifth in a nine team field which isn't quite what the Goves would have liked to accomplish.

As for Smith's conclusions, well, his main premise was, "We are really going to have to start playing if we are to do well in the conference. I was not pleased with our performance at all at LSU."

Now doesn't get Smith wrong. He's not down on his golfers at all.

"It was our first match and we were a little nervous," rendered Smith. He still knows the talent is there to do well in the OVC in mid-May. It's just a matter of putting it all together.

The trip to the LSU Invitational, which incidentally was won by the host school, is behind the Goves now and Austin Peay is concentrating on a tournament of its own.

Austin Peay hosts the Mid-South Intercollegiate at Crockett Springs Golf Course in Franklin County Friday and Saturday and a good performance by the Goves could cast a brighter light on the season's prospects.

Austin Peay will share the "favorite" role with Illinois State, Indiana State, Southern Illinois and Middle Tennessee State in the 11 team tournament.

APSU's Mike Carn will share top billing for individual honors with Illinois State's Brad Barker and Gary Ortega and Middle Tennessee's Jim Hurt.

"It will be a good tournament," said Smith. "Everybody in it is about equal and the outcome should be interesting. As for ourselves, we'll be looking for more consistency."

The Goves will finish qualifying today to decide the six players to represent APSU.

In the Invitational, Carn led the Governors with a 226 total for the three rounds over the wet and sloppy LSU course. Jim Bewley was second for APSU with a 224 total while Bruce Wallace had a 226, Leon Hawk carried a 227 and Eddie Gleichman and Joe Brignon came in with 231's.

All important weekend ahead; Governors battle contenders

By BOB LOWRY

Austin Peay State University's tennis team faces a stiff challenge this weekend when the Gavs try to establish themselves as the front runners in the Ohio Valley Conference.

This Friday the Governors play Western Kentucky in a match down in Murfreesboro, Tenn. Saturday, the Gavs match up against Murray State, also in Murfreesboro.

Western's Hilltoppers enter the match as the defending OVC tennis champs. And in fact, they have won the championship 17 out of the past 25 years. This year the above three teams, along with Middle Tennessee, are the legitimate contenders for the OVC crown.

Austin Peay enters the Friday contest with a duel meet record of 5-6. WKU has a record of 10-1. Austin Peay has swept through five opponents with little trouble. The Gavs have defeated Vanderbilt 9-0, Hawaii 9-0, Samford (the defending NCAA small college champion) 3-4, Indiana 8-1 and the University of Tennessee-Chattanooga 8-1.

As a matter of comparison, Western defeated UTC 4-3 earlier, so the Gavs are considered the favorites to beat Western. As a matter of fact, league coaches picked Austin Peay to win the OVC Championship this season.

The highlight of the battle with Western should be the match in the No. 1 singles featuring Western's Bjorn Odengren against Austin Peay's Noel Phillips. Although Odengren recently suffered a knee injury, it is expected that he will be ready to play.

These two upcoming matches will go a long way in determining the best team in the OVC, especially with the advent of the point system used in the conference.

There are a possible nine points to be won in each match against another team. For instance, if APSU beat WKU 6-3, then the Governors are awarded six points and the Toppers are given three points. With this in mind, there is a possibility of a team earning as many as 63 points during the regular season. There is also a 63 point system used in the OVC Championship meet (this year at Murray State, May 17-18) to determine the best.

Monday the Gavs were scheduled to face Memphis State here on the Gavs courts. Next Monday the Gavs travel to Knoxville to play the always tough University of Tennessee Volunteers.

Carter qualifies again

Success makes Gunter smile

Austin Peay track coach Ken Gunter returned Sunday from the sunshine of the Florida Relays wearing a smile as warm as the weather he left behind.

"Success always makes me smile," explained Gunter, "but it will soon disappear into a concerned look about our next meet."

The prestigious Southwestern Relays is the next stop of the outdoor season for the Austin Peay track team. The Governors will be in Lafayette, La., on Friday and Saturday to compete in the two-day event.

Sophomore sensation Anthony Carter continues to show why he is considered among the top long jumpers in the country.

The Mobile, Ala., native qualified for the NCAA championships, scheduled for June 14 and 13 in Austin, Tex., when he leaped 24-8 1/2 to pace the Governors to an impressive win in triangular competition against David Lipscomb College and Calvin College.

Carter, who holds the APSU mark in the 100-yard-dash with a clocking of 9.6 also won individual honors in the long jump competition in the Florida Relays with a jump of 25-3 1/2.

Gunter singled out his runners, particularly the 440-relay team composed of freshmen Eric Young and Gerald Robinson and sophomores Elton Pilot and Carter.

"They've progressed about the way I had hoped," said Gunter.

"We still need improvement in some areas, but that will come as the season moves along."

The Governors' win over David

Lipscomb and Calvin College was relatively easy.

The Gavs scored 105 points to Lipscomb's 48 and Calvin's 16.

In that March 28 triangular, Morgan set a new 3-mile school record with a 14:30.8 mark. Morgan also won the mile with a 4:20 clocking.

Other individual winners for APSU included Carter (long jump, 24-8 1/2), Doug Studebaker (pole vault, 13-4), David Wallus (shot put, 46-5 1/2), Gerald Robinson (440-dash, 69.6), Elton Pilot (triple jump, 47-2), Pat Osborne (high jump, 6-0), Frank Malone (800-run, 1:56.6) and Randy Putman (discus, 139-11).

The Gavs mile relay team, consisting of Carter, Ervin Serrat, Pilot and Robinson, was also victorious with a time of 3:24.4.

Nearly every phase improved

Gridmen showing quality

After just one week of spring football practice, Austin Peay football coach Jack Bushofsky will testify that his young squad is much further along in quality "than at this point last season."

"We are looking better in nearly every phase of the game," said Bushofsky Sunday after viewing films of his squad's first scrimmage of the spring season. Interchanging his personnel frequently, Bushofsky allowed his offense to match its talent with h/s defense with a 90-minute session Saturday.

"I was satisfied with our performance," said Bushofsky, "especially considering the brief amount of time we've been working. I thought our offensive line did a real good job. We ran the ball well and our receivers did an excellent job in blocking and catching the ball."

Also drawing praise from Bushofsky was the performance of his defensive secondary. "We may well have five of the toughest defensive backs in the conference next year," he predicted.

Bushofsky said one of his main objectives during the spring was to find the individuals who he could open the season with as his starting units.

"We hope to be able to establish our starters on offense and defense," said Bushofsky. "This is not to say that we aren't counting on our freshman prospects because we feel they will be an important part of the program next year."

"But we want them to learn our program and be able to adjust to change from high school to college football without having the pressure of a starting assignment to worry about," he added.

The Governors will wind up their spring practice April 20 with the traditional Scarlet and White game at Municipal Stadium.

Lady netters host tough foes in weekend meeting

The Austin Peay State University women's tennis team gets a good chance to find out what it's made of this weekend when the Governors host a tough four-team round robin.

The weekend invaders include Middle Tennessee, UT-Knoxville and Tennessee Tech. Action will begin at 1 p.m. Friday on both the APSU and Clarksville High School courts. Competition will resume at 9 a.m. Saturday at both locations.

APSU will be coming into the round robin with a 1-1 record following last week's action.

The lady Goves began the season Friday by winning four singles matches, but lost all three doubles matches in three sets and were upended by David Lipscomb 5-4.

However, Austin Peay bounced back Saturday for a 9-0 shutout victory over Peabody. Both matches were in Nashville.

Austin Peay tennis coach Norman Kalkhoff believes his Governors could hold themselves against anyone in the nation and apparently, so do the other league coaches.

The foreign-favored Governors polled five first place votes and 61 total points. Western Kentucky, who has won 17 of the 25 OVC tennis championships, received two first place votes and 54 points. Middle Tennessee is picked third while Murray, Eastern Kentucky, Tennessee Tech, East Tennessee and Morehead round out the eight teams.

East Tennessee's Buccaneers are the team to beat in golf. ETSU racked up six first place votes and 61 points to head the field. Middle Tennessee was picked to finish second followed by Eastern Kentucky, Tennessee Tech, Murray State, Austin Peay, Morehead and Western Kentucky.

In baseball, Murray State is the favorite to win the Western Division championship while the Eastern Division head men thought Eastern Kentucky and Morehead will tie for the divisional pennant. In the West, Middle Tennessee was picked second behind Murray while Austin Peay was third and Western fourth.

In the East, East Tennessee and Tennessee Tech were picked to tie for third behind EKV and Morehead.

But over-all, it was successful

APSU basketball season had its stormy times

It was like a voyage on an uncharted sea.
The Austin Peay State

University basketball Governors had their stormy days and their calm days, their exciting days

And their not-so-exciting days. But all-in-all, the 1973-74 Governor season would have to be termed a success, even if they did run into the Rock of Gibraltar in the NCAA Midwest Regional.

The Rock of Gibraltar, of course, was Notre Dame's Fighting Irish who were ranked third in the nation going into the battle with the unranked Governors.

The Gavs were faced with a crowd of 10,000 and a national television audience and after staying even with the Irish (6-6) for over three minutes, Austin Peay got hit by a storm of the name Gary Brokaw.

The smooth operator Brokaw led a 13-point spurt that saw Notre Dame surge ahead 19-6 in less than a three-minute period.

The Gavs managed to cut the lead to six thrice (19-13, 23-17 and 25-19), but after the Irish run and gained to a 31-19 margin, it was all over except for the singing of the ND fight song.

About the only excitement for Gov fans the rest of the way was some electrifying outside shooting by James "Fly" Williams.

Notre Dame led 54-34 at half time. Brokaw had 21 of those points. Fly had 18 of AP's. Notre Dame hit 62.5 percent from the field, Austin Peay 47.1.

Things got worse in the second half. Austin Peay hit 25 percent of its field shots and Notre Dame hit 58 percent. The final toll was 108-66.

Fly led all scorers with 26 while Brokaw tallied 23. Irish All-American John Shumate added 22 while freshman strong man Adrian Dantley also scored 22.

Even though the season ended on a bit of a sour note, the Governors saw a victory chorus most of the year, ending with a 17-10 record.

The Gavs tied with Morehead State for the Ohio Valley Conference championship. APSU's Williams, the super sophomore, was named the OVC's Most Valuable Player. It is the first time ever that an APSU athlete has won the OVC MVP award in basketball.

Williams' 27.5 scoring average was third in the nation, not to mention tops in the league. His 10.9 rebound average was third best in the OVC.

Cost sophomores Danny Odums joined Fly on the All-OVC team. Odums averaged 12.4 points and led the team in assists for the second straight year with 194.

Percy Howard, the 6-4 junior, received honorable mention recognition. He averaged 11.9 points and 4.6 rebounds.

The only senior on the 73-74 squad was 6-foot Robert "Hoak" Turner, the ever-present, ever-hustling scrapper. Turner, who originally was not counted on for starting duty this season, ended up starting almost every game. He averaged 6.3 points and 4.2 rebounds and was named to play in the Tennessee-Kentucky All-Star game that was held in Louisville a couple of weeks ago.

With the returning nucleus of the Governors, plus the prospects of landing some outstanding recruits, the Gavs could very well bring home another OVC championship trophy, which would join the other two in the new home of APSU basketball next year.
