Prisonaires Sing Return Engagement

The Tennessee Prisonaires sang a return engagement at the Austin Peay student body assembly.

The Prisonaires are composed of a group of prisoners from the Tennessee State Prison. They have sung at many different places over Tennessee. They have appeared on television many times; and Johnny Bragg, spokesman for the group stated, "I think we are going to be on the Ed Sullivan Show in the near future."

The Prisonaires were organized in 1951 by Johnny Bragg, the only original member of the group at this time.

An amazing thing about the group is that none of them, with the exception of Harold Hibbs, has ever played in a band or group previously. Hibbs played with a local band before he joined the Prisonaires.

The Prisonaires will lose two of their men this month when they "graduate". These are the Piano and guitar players.

"We can replace the guitarist; but we are without a pianist when he leaves," Bragg said.

The members of the Prisonaires are: Henry Jones, pianist; L. B. McClough, guitarist; Harold Hibbs, Johnny Bragg, Howard Anderson, James Doyle, and Alfred Brooks, vocalist.

Among the selections were, "In the Garden", "When the Saints go Marching In," and their own "Just Walking in the Rain" and the "Boasting Texan." They ended the program with the beautiful "Lord's Prayer."

Plummer Places First in District Talk Meet

For the second consecutive year, Miss Nancy Plummer, sophomore at APSC, placed first in the District II Young Farmers and Homemakers Talk Meet.

Miss Plummer's subject, "The Importance of Part Time Farming", was selected from topics under the general heading "Changes in Agriculture — How They Affect the Future".

Contestants drew subjects and were given ten minutes to prepare a 4 to 6 minute speech which they gave at the District II YF&H Meeting at Shelbyville Sat. night.

District winners will compete in the State contest Nov. 17, at Nashville.

A check for $25 will be presented each District winner.

Dorm Clubs Have Meeting

The Dormitory Clubs had their organization meeting Oct. 14, in the lobby of Harned Hall.

All freshmen were welcomed into the three clubs, Alpha, Omega, Beta.

Glenda Clement, President of the dormitory, talked to the group about the functions and purposes of the clubs. It was explained that the clubs provide social activities throughout the year and that the club officers make up the House Council which allows the girls to have representation in the government of the dormitory.

After the general meeting each club met separately and discussed matters of business important to the individual club.

Officers of the clubs are: Alpha: President, Peggy Berry; Vice President, Louise Curtis; Secretary, Polly Fussell. Omega: President, Mary Hill Brewer; Vice President, Mary Lou Allen; Secretary, Beverly Nichols. Beta: President, Carolyn Jo Smith; Vice President, Barbara Allen; Secretary, Joy Hall.

Glenda Clement is president of the dormitory.

Queen Jo Ann

Jo Ann Crockarell, junior, was selected by the football team to be the Homecoming Queen for 1958.

By a ruling of the General Steering Committee, Jo Ann will wear the traditional crown and scepter, and only she will be called "queen."

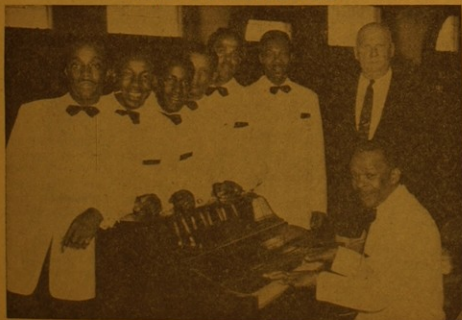

She will reign over Homecoming activities November 7 and 8 and will be featured in the float parade, along with her four Attendants, which will start off in Clarksville at 10:00 Saturday morning. Saturday evening, a dance will be held in Memorial Gymnasium, over which Jo Ann will also reign.

Prior to the dance, and during half-time of the Austin Peay Governors and Jacksonville Buccaneers game, Jo Ann will enter the field in a convertible dressed in a black walking suit carrying red roses. Her four attendants will wear grey suits. . . The Queen's flowers will be presented by the football team, and the attendants flowers will be presented by the class they represent.

David Burdin and John McKay, co-captains of the team, will do the honors of giving the flowers and kissing the queen.

The Prisonaires

The Nashville Prisonaires gave another fine performance for a return engagement, October 15.

Biology Dept. Plans For Annual Trip

The biology department reports that plans are already being made for the annual trip of the zoology students of Austin Peay to Florida.

The group which will number in excess of twenty-five will leave either Friday, Dec. 12, or Saturday, December 13. The exact date will depend on whether students of Saturday classes wish to go or not.

Mr. Boehms, Mr. Ellis, Dr. Phillips, and Mr. Ford will accompany the group which will travel in private cars. The expedition is to continue for about seven days and its purpose is to study, collect, and preserve marine life. The specimens preserved will be brought back to Austin Peay and used in future zoology classes.

The trip to Florida this year actually serves two purposes. In the first place, the students will derive experience from studying the marine life and secondly, Dr. Phillips will take his photography equipment and "shoot" scenes to be used in the biology department's forthcoming film.

Students who have had Biology 301 or are now taking it are eligible to make this trip. Mr. Floyd Ford is in charge of making the reservations.

By Way of Explanation

"Published semi-monthly by the students of Austin Peay State College." —These are the words in the masthead of the ALL STATE.

And some students have used these words as the basis for saying, "The ALL STATE DOES NOT express the opinion of the Student Body! It is NOT a student publication!"

Here's the explanation for that: The words in the masthead are true only to a certain degree. That is, students publish the ALL STATE with help from the Administration.

Student reporters compile the material and write it up, the Editor arranges the material in dummy form, and then the student circulation staff distributes the paper. But there is a step between the write-up and the make-up: The Editor is required to censor the material before it goes to press and required to by the Sponsor, who in turn is required to by the Administration. So, if something the Administration didn't like should happen to get in the paper without being censored, the Administration would "tell" (probably in no uncertain terms) the Sponsor about it, who in turn would "tell" the Editor about it, who in turn would go off somewhere and cuss everybody out.

Since there is no censoring committee or platform for the ALL STATE to serve as a guide for what should go in and what should not, and for LIMITING the censorship, student expression itself is greatly limited.

So, in truth, the final opinion would have to be that of the Administration's, not the Student Body, and rightly so.

However, no one should object to a truthfully written, open and signed letter to the Editor.

So, if any student has some constructive views or suggestions he wants to share, give an open letter to any member on the ALL STATE staff.

Wistful Thinking?

Wouldn't it be ideal if Austin Peay's students were perpetual freshmen? That is, freshmen are still untouched by that sophisticated "It's above me" attitude too many upper-classmen have. Freshmen are still in that "dumb" stage where they think it's an honor to help and participate in school activities. Their enthusiasm is not dampened by the advancement of one more grade until they are not freshmen any longer, and then even they succumb to that "It's above me" attitude.

So, wouldn't it be nice if everyone were perpetual freshmen?

The Naked Truth

"Everybody is going out and getting some" once sang a wise man in a school variety show. Those of you who missed the floor show and the tremendous four bands over in the gym Tuesday night should follow his advice and go out and get some entertainment. The Riots, Manhattens, Whirlaways, and Faro Four played well. Freddy Brown, Don Alsup, Sonny Woodward, A. D. Caldwell, and many others added to the spice of the complete show. Incidentally, the proceeds go to the student activity fund to help have the Dorsey orchestra for the fall dance. Working together to bring about this dance was the MENC and student council.

Tommy Dorsey's orchestra, under the leadership of Warren Covington, will play for the fall dance "Tea For Two Cha Cha" on Decca Records is their latest hit. If we can swing a little interest for this dance we will have another big band next spring in all probability.

Previously, this dance has been known as the Christmas Dance. Let's change it to Harvest Ball. Let's always a full month before Christmas. Of course some people like to start their Christmas celebrations early and many college students (my roomie) carry these spirits on through the year. Seriously, we need to change things as they become necessary and it appears to be that that it wouldn't be a bad idea.

Search as I might I could not find a suitable dig for a few friends of mine. At least it would be out in the open and not behind their backs if it were in this article. People could get their ends accomplished much easier if they worked rather than wagged their tongues. As hard as it may be to believe, the participation this year is on a lower ebb than last year. Plenty of people are ready to step up and be big wheels but lack the axle to go 'round and 'round.

University of Sango defeated the Ringold Institute of Technology handsily. Frank Reed was the big gun for the locals. To complete the double-header, U of S topped the mighty Music Makers. Tom Dolan gave these games and the Variety Show fine publicity which we appreciate.

This brings us around to Wild Bill's football predictions brought to you by Hallstatt's A.M. The 26 pound line of the music majors will not be enough without the aid of their star railback. Crippled with warts on his feet and in the care of Tiger Shaw, Tommy "Flash" Miller may be lost for the season." The article will suffer without Wild Bill's predictions but it seems he was writing up the games Wednesday night and was injured. A freak accident happened to Wild Bill. He swallowed his pencil and has had trouble moving since then.

Speaking of moving, hope you found this interesting enough to read it next issue.

Romanticists, fearing that his master had fallen down the 135-foot shaft, insisted that the water in it be drained. Once upon a time there was a renowned Greek athlete. A real Apollo. His body was long, and slender and like a tiger's. His muscles swelled beautifully as his powerful legs carried him down the cinder track. Sweat would glisten on his sleek body giving him the well-oiled look of a piece of efficient machinery. His head and shoulders were of a true classic appearance, beautifully formed nose, jutting, determined looking chin and high, wide brow. Truly the Gods of Olympus had endowed him with the physical attributes of themselves.

No feat of power, speed or skill was beyond his capacity to perform with grace and precision.

He was admired and looked up to by all the younger generation. They swarmed around him in public, plying him with questions about every thing.

Old men who had once been in his exalted position looked out of worn faces at him with envy and longing.

Women, both old and young were not discreet in their admiration of this fine specimen of manhood. They smothered him with sweet smelling blossoms every time he appeared publicly. Young girls still blossoming into womanhood threw flirtatious glances at him whenever he caught their eye. Older more mature women could not stifle the impulse to pat him maternally on the head whenever he was within their reach.

The applause and roar of the crowds as he roared down the track or twisted his body into all sorts of gymnastic contortions stirred in him a self pride so majestic in scope that he could not help but shiver with self-satisfaction.

His crowning moment would come when he felt the pricking of the olive twigs on his sweaty forehead as a lovely young lady would place the laurel on it. This was the highest recognition the Greeks bestowed on one of their athletes.

The world was in his hands. He could bring roars and shouts with every churning motion of his legs or contortion of his body. They were at his command.

One day, however, a new governing council replaced the old one who had advocated readily the demonstration of athletic ability in various forms. This council was of a more intellectual vein than the previous one. They regarded demonstrations of physical skill inferior to demonstrations of the mind or thought. So with this attitude in play they decreed that all races and other athletic demonstrations were to be discontinued.

A new age of thought was beginning. Emphasis on education in the arts and sciences was the major objective of almost all institutions and organizations. People were fascinated by this new invention and took to it readily.

However, there was one fellow who was completely dumbfounded. Where were the roars and shouts of thousands of people as they watched him perform? Where were the questions of young boys, the envious looks of old men, the flirtatious glances of young girls, and the pats on the head from older women?

The world had dissolved right before his eyes. But most of all his self esteem and self pride had dissolved before his eyes. His gorgeous, Greek physique was useless and void to him, now.

So there he sits. The once great hero with a very soiled, withered looking bunch of leaves hanging rather precariously on his ear.

Read and Tell

By CLARA HAMNER

(The second issue in each month of the All-State will carry interviews of the APSC faculty or students. The subject of the interviews will be various books in the library. This is an effort to stimulate faculty-student interest in reading and discussing what they have read.)

LIFE PLUS 99 YEARS, the autobiography of Nathan Leopold, that Leopold, has been chosen for this week's "Read and Tell."

It is a personal record of Leopold's life, beginning with the Leopold-Loeb murder of Bobby Franks. The book picks up its story with the police questioning.

The bulk of the story centers around the thirty-three years Leopold spent in prison. It contains his thoughts, his dreams, his work and something of his fellow convicts.

LIFE PLUS 99 YEARS is a classic almost by definition. Often encouraging, sometimes sad, it is essentially an important document.

Leopold has written his book with careful thought and objectivity. His words are carefully chosen to produce greater understanding and readability.

Donald Harrington of "Saturday Review of Literature," March 15, 1959, wrote, "Thirty-three years of sorrow, self-denial, repentance, and willing service to his fellow-prisoners and fellow-men should be rewarded. . . Any man who could live as he has lived, written as he has written, and worked on constructively without hope year after year and decade after decade, surely has the blessing of God's spirit."

This week Dr. George Boswell, Dr. Paul Hyatt, Dr. Tom Cowan, and Mr. James Hamilton were interviewed about this book. They were asked if they had read LIFE PLUS 99 YEARS, why or why not, and what they thought of the book if they had read it.

Dr. George Boswell, English Department: "Who wrote it?" Leopold. Silence. "Oh, yes, but I have not read, nor do I read that type book. However, I ought to read it. That type literature is not as rewarding as reading Plato's philosophy."

Dr. Paul Hyatt, Sociology Department: "I haven't read it yet, but I plan to. I ought to read it because I teach a course in criminology."

Mr. James Hamilton, Agriculture Department: "No, I am not. I just haven't had time."

Dr. Tom Cowan, Music Department: "No, I haven't. I've been interested in it since the reviews came out. I just haven't been able to get it."

In the spotlight this week is Sally O'Neil Hill. Leading the majorettes, O'Neil has certainly proven herself capable.

O'Neil comes from Ripley, Miss., and is a Freshman this year. Among her many honors as a baton twirler are: Miss Majorette of Mississippi; undefeated in the State Championship for the past four years; Mid-South Champion for 5 years; and has appeared on television more than 15 times.

Her plans for the future include majoring in English and she will begin judging majorette contests soon.

O'Neil's interest in baton twirling began when she was 10 years old. "I just saw some majorettes and decided that was what I wanted to be." Other interests include dancing, watching football, and sports in general.

The reason O'Neil selected Austin Peay State College were, "I liked the idea of a small school. Also, they have a very good band." This 5'7" blue eyed brunette is certainly promoting the prestige of Austin Peay State College and Band.

All About The Eternal Triangle

Since the problems of Eddie Fisher, Debbie Reynolds and Elizabeth Taylor have been such a controversial subject for the past few weeks, a poll was taken to determine the feelings of the residents of Harrod Hall on this subject. Upon being asked the question, "What do you think of the romance of Eddie, Debbie and Liz?" the following answers were received:

Peggy Berry: I've always hated Eddie Fisher and his screaming. Since I am an ardent admirer of Debbie, I am glad she is free from him.

Fay Etheridge: Debbie has been taken for a ride on it all. Liz Taylor has bitten the hand that took care of her children when she was widowed. As for Eddie Fisher, he's just not thinking, or is he?

Evelyn Sanders: I like Eddie, Debbie and Liz, too. I think it was just one of those things.

Alice Harvill: Liz Taylor was obviously not so heart broken as she appeared at her husband's death. Her romance with Eddie Fisher is a good example of the insincerity of human emotions.

Polly Fussell: Elizabeth Taylor is a hard hearted woman who wants to make somebody unhappy.

Mary Katherine Nolen: Liz isn't really interested in Eddie. It's just infatuation.

Carolyn Settle: Eddie just wants publicity.

Dian Smith: It was horrible of Liz to break up their marriage.

Attorney Says Military System Discriminatory

The present system of compulsory military service for all eligible males in the United States is discriminatory, inadequate and unnecessary. This conclusion is reached in a report by Washington attorney John Graham, recently published by the Fund for the Republic in a pamphlet titled: "The Universal Military Obligation."

The survey analyzes the 60 methods by which a young man may fulfill his military obligation. These include active duty and reserve training or combinations of both.

Describing the numerous ways men obtain deferments and exemptions, the pamphlet asserts that "when their total impact is to excuse more than half of all men in the eligible age group from any form of military service, the whole becomes more than the sum of its parts."

Moreover, the report suggests, the onset of nuclear and technological warfare will call for highly-trained, experienced specialists, rather than massive combat forces.

The author concludes that the United States is not exacting a universal military obligation, that we do not need to exact one and that "the proper question for free men is not whether conscription can be administered equitably, but whether it need exist at all."

WIA Elects Officers

The Women's Intramural Association held their first meeting recently and Officers for the year 1958-59 were elected at that time. They are as follows:

Manager: Claudia Crockwell, Assistant Manager: Ida Chadwick, Publicity: Mary Lu Allen.

Team captains were also elected. They are as follows:

Volleyball: Ann Felts, Speedball: Sarah Claire Greer, Archery: Anne Allen, Hikes: Carolyn Settle.

It was decided that intramurals will be held every Thursday at 6:45 in the gym. Volley ball is the sport being played at the present. Also, speedball is played every Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock. These girls who wish to participate in speedball, please meet in the girls dressing room.

Football League Gets Underway

Eight-man football is what they play.

Fun is what they get for pay. Town Boys, Music Majors, and both Halls, These are the four to come out and have a ball.

This four line piece of "poetry" summarizes the Intramural League as it got into action last week. More games are on tap this week. So come out some night to the baseball diamond and watch a good ball game.

At present the Town Boys lead the League with a 2-0 record. Ronnie McKinney led the Clarksvillians to victories over the Music Majors and McReynolds Hall by margins of 26-0 and 18-0.

On Thursday night a fine game was witnessed by a goodly number as the Town Boys and Men's Residence Hall battled to a scoreless (0-0) deadlock. Don Alsap, Wayne Stron, Homer Sowell, and Pete Ross looked good for the dormitory boys, while Pat McCutchen, Dicky Garland, and Ron McKinney looked best for the Town Boys.

Present plans are to have an All-Star team play the regular season champion. The All-Stars will be voted upon by the players themselves and will come from the three remaining teams in the league.

Jacksonville Edges Austin Peay 8-6

The Gamecocks of Jacksonville State left here Saturday night with an 8-6 victory over the Govs. This evening Jacksonville's record at 3-3 and left AP with a 1-3 record.

The slightly-favored Governors scored on an 11 yard pass play from Pratt Busby to Ted Potter to draw first blood with 1:54 remaining in the first quarter. Guard Jack Bushofsky's try for point was wide. The second quarter was mainly an exchange of punts with only one spectacular play, this being a 48 yard pass interception return by Bob Monnet.

As the third quarter progressed it was evident to see that a revived crew from Alabama was going to be hard to take. On the last play of the third quarter halfback James Williams rammed it over from the two to tie the score 6-6. Then quarterback Rayford Talley ran for the insurance two-point conversion.

The Red and White stayed a drive to the Jacksonville 23 yard line before Busby was tackled attempting to pass and fumbled on the 47 yard marker. Jacksonville was then contented to run the clock out and scotched the victory. Final score: Jax State 8, AP-6.

Individually Ted Potter made two brilliant pass catches on the touchdown drive. The passes covered 19 and 11 yards respectively. Just prior to his two catches he ground out a 13 yard gain on the ground.

Eugene Key, AP's reliable center, recovered a fumbled punt in the fourth quarter just after Jacksonville had scored.
