FORTY-FIVE ATTEND ANNUAL ALL STATE BANQUET AT APNS CAFETERIA

Excellent Dinner Served By Miss Henderson; Mr. Woodward's Resume of Year's Work Highlight of Program

Members of the All State Staff and their guests. Sponsors of the paper and officials of the college (forty-five in all) celebrated the close of the ninth year of publication with a banquet at the college cafeteria Tuesday evening, May 30. Long one of the most distinguished occasions which yearly mark the close of school activities, the All State banquet this year, even in the minds of those who remembered former dinners, eclipsed its predecessors in attractive appointments, good food and witty talk. George Fort, editor-in-chief, acted as toast-master. Miss Annie Laurie Huff and a committee composed of Frances Bardwell, Alice Atkinson, Mary Payne Claxton, Ann Harris and Mildred Hays were responsible for planning the banquet. Miss Mary Henderson, director of the cafeteria, and her efficient staff prepared the delicious Southern dinner of hot biscuits and fried chicken, spring vegetables, and ice-cream and cake.

The program had as its theme "Publishing the All State." Harry McIneyolds spoke humorously of the job of raising the money to run the paper and paid his assistant, Frank Cooper, high praise. Alice Atkinson, who told the tribulations of a reporter, concluded that a reporter is born and not made. John Rubel, assistant editor, speaking for those who edit the news, said that if Miss Atkinson had as much trouble in getting the news as she seemed to have in writing it he could sympathize with her. The editor-in-chief expressed his appreciation of the work of the staff as he warmed the incoming editors with a speech of a green staff. Dr. Claxton and Dean Harvill, though complimenting the staff on the excellence of the publication, gave notice that the paper must change to meet the needs of a growing college. Mike Nothing.

CLASS SERMON IS GIVEN BY BEASLEY

TRUTH TAKEN AS TEXT BY NASHVILLE MINISTER; CHOIR SINGS

Opening the commencement exercises of the Austin Peay Normal School the Reverend W. B. Beasley, pastor of Hobson Memorial Church, Nashville, Tenn., preached the annual commencement sermon to the ninety-four graduates, at the First Baptist Church, Sunday evening, May 28.

The speaker took his text from John 8:12-13. "If ye continue in my word, then ye are my disciples indeed; And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall set you free."

Assisting in the service were Dr. J. L. Lacy, the Rev. J. W. Drash, and the Rev. H. H. Blue. The music was furnished by the college choir, directed by Guy L. Hague, with Durwood Tarpley at the organ.

GOVERNOR

GEORGE FORT

Chosen "Governor" by the 1939 graduating class of Austin Peay Normal School, Mr. George Fort has proved himself well worthy of the title, synonymous with outstanding ability and popularity.

He graduated from Clarksville High School in 1937 where he was business manager of the "Purple and Gold," vice-president of the Democrats Debating Club and a member of the National Honor Society.

His record at APNS has been progressively outstanding. After being Sports Editor of the All State in his freshman year he was elected as Editor-in-Chief for the 1938-39 school year. In the fall of 1938 he was elected President of the Sophomore Class and was further honored by being elected student Chapel leader at the beginning of the Spring Quarter of 1939. In addition to his activities

FIRST LADY

FRANCES MANNING

Being chosen by the members of her class, Miss Frances Manning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Manning of Clarksville, has been accorded the honorary position of The First Lady of Austin Peay Normal School, symbolic of being the outstanding girl in the Sophomore class.

This honor has been bestowed upon her as a climax to two years of outstanding popularity and achievement at APNS and to a long-standing position of esteem among her Clarksville associates.

Miss Manning graduated from Clarksville High School where she was an outstanding student as well as being a member of the Dramatic Club and being selected queen of the Thanksgiving Day football game in 1936.

Since her entrance at Austin Peay Normal School, she has been the recipient of many hon-

A total of ninety-four students from sixteen Tennessee counties received their diplomas from the hands of Dr. P. P. Claxton and Dean Halbert Harvill this morning at the tenth annual commencement program of the college. The program featured an address by the Hon. B. O. Duggan, State Commissioner of Education and pioneer in rural education in Tennessee, and included the services of Dr. Richard N. Owen, pastor of the Madison Street Baptist Church, and the Reverend Harry Wintermyer, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church. The college's A Cappella Choir sang two groups of chorals.

Of the ninety-four students who participated in this morning's ceremonies eight earned their diplomas last August and seven more will not have finished the requirements for a diploma until the close of the summer school.

Immediately following the commencement program the Captain William Edmiston Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution dedicated a limestone boulder bearing a bronze plate to the memory of Montgomery Masonic College, established in 1846, at Clarksville, Tenn., founded in 1855. Mrs. Garnett Adkins, representing the committee of the D. A. R., who had charge of the placing of the marker, made an interesting report. Mrs. A. L. Burnett, Regent of the local chapter, presented

FAREWELL AND HALL IMPRESSIVE REAL

CEREMONY INAUGURATED BY APNS BAND PRESIDENT MANSIE ADDRESS

To a large and appreciative audience, Farewell and Hall, the second and most impressive of graduation events at the college, was enacted in the Central Bowl on the campus of the Austin Peay Normal School, Thursday evening, June 1, at 8 p. m. Under a moon-lit sky ninety-four graduates lit their candles at the torch held by Mrs. Herman DePriest, first student to register at the Normal School in the fall of 1929, and marched to the sound of drums down into the grass-covered bowl and across to form in living letters the figure of APNS. Those who were addressed by Class President George Fort and President Claxton.

Singing "Farewell To Thee" to the more than three-hundred students they were the last to be behind the gates re-formed themselves to face on the opposite semi-circle of the Bowl the other members of the school who later imperceptibly through which the black-robed graduates marched back across the bowl out into the world beyond the school. As they passed on their candles were extinguished to the sound of taps in the distance.

AU REVOIR

Another epoch in the lives of the graduating class of 1939 comes to an end; another episode in the history of APNS is completed. Ninety-four strong, we depart from those familiar scenes and faces that we have been privileged to become acquainted with at Austin Peay Normal School.

Some of us leave possibly never to return to our beloved college, others will return often, while still others will take advantage of additional courses that are offered here. Our work in life may carry us to all parts of the world. But, no matter how varied our occupations nor how widely separated we become, we will always remember our days here.

We are greatly indebted to the faculty for their great interest in us, and for their efforts in our behalf during our stay here. We shall never forget the associations and friendships of our school days at APNS; they will ever be a part of us. Invaluable development in our lives has taken place here due to the variety of extra-curricular activities offered students of APNS. Familiar spots about our tradition-covered campus and buildings will ever live in our memory.

Our education here, derived from the class room, personal contact, and the wide expanse of the school grounds, has contributed greatly to our lives and will eternally be dear to our hearts. We take leave of Austin Peay Normal School as students, but, as individuals, we never cease to be a part of it and all it has meant to us. So, as students, the graduating class of 1939 bids APNS farewell, but in all other
