Senior Band Clinic Held At APSC

One hundred and thirty-five outstanding band students from 29 high schools participated in the Seventh Annual Senior Band Clinic at Austin Peay State College last Saturday.

Sponsored by the Field Activities Division of APSC, the band members came from Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio and Alabama as well as from numerous high schools in Tennessee.

The Clinic Band was composed of the 135 students and read and rehearsed the newest publications for concert band. The Clinic Band was under the direction of Dr. Aaron Schmidt, director of bands at APSC.

During the course of Saturday's activities, the students heard performances by the Austin Peay State College concert band, brass choir and "The Collegians." The APSC show band.

Guest clinician for the clinic was Will Hackman, director of brass and percussion ensembles at APSC. Hackman presented a session for the visiting high school band directors entitled, "The Relationship of Brass Ensembles to the Quality High School Band."

Wrong Number

The telephone rang in the Alumni and Public Information Office at APSC one afternoon last week. The director of Alumni and Public Information picked up the receiver and was asked, "Is you the man that's got those cows for sale?" The woman inquiring was told that she had the wrong number. Within five minutes the office received another call by the same woman making the same inquiry. She was told again that she had the wrong number, but she insisted that she had called the right number. Throughout that day and evening and the next day 20 such calls were received in the publicity office.

It was discovered that the local newspaper had run a livestock for sale ad that read: Big Young Cow and Calf, Three cows to calve soon. All $545.00, 647-3122. The telephone number given was that of the Alumni and Public Information Office at APSC.

Let it be noted that the Alumni and Public Information Office handles a variety of things, but livestock is not one of them.

A Student Center??

The central design of a student center on the college campus should be to provide adequate space and pleasant surroundings for recreational purposes and for student organizations. Can the student at APSC say that they have such a place?

We have on our campus a building called the Student Center. The student lounge area is approximately 2400 square feet and is equipped with 36 tables, 175 chairs, two drink machines, one cigarette vendor, and a jukebox. To one side of this room is an area where snacks and school supplies are sold. On the other side is a faculty lounge and a ladies lounge.

If you have ever gone into the Student Center at lunch time, it is immediately evident that there is not sufficient space for those students who commute and for those who live on campus who frequent the Student Center. In the midst of this mass of tables and people are students wandering about gingerly balancing a cup of hot chocolate in one hand, sandwiches in the other, and furtively searching for a place to sit down. Others are spending their few spare moments waiting in line while two or three workers behind the snack counter desperately try to wait on everyone. At quieter moments the only activity is the murmur of conversation and an occasional game of chess or checkers.

On the campus of East Tennessee State College is a student center complete with a bowling alley and a barber shop. Southern Illinois State boasts a three million dollar student activities building that is three stories high. These and other schools have student centers equipped with ping pong, television, billiard tables and various other amusements for the college student.

The continuous growth of our student body alone serves as a sufficient reason for a larger, more modern Student Center. However, the students at APSC deserve more than just another place to eat. Our campus has too long had the reputation for inactivity. The addition of a Student Center with a large number and variety of recreational facilities would spark new enthusiasm in the student for his college. Combine this with the intellectual motivation that already exists on our campus, and Austin Peay State College would be a school a prospective student would find hard to resist.

Sandra Davenport Does 'See'

By RUTH FULLER

A girl in the college cafeteria fine feels and fumbles with her hands until she locates the silverware. She then remarks to the girl behind her, "The way I fumble around you would think I couldn't see."

This girl is Sandra Davenport, a sophomore from Donelson, Tenn., who has been blind since birth. Yes, one would think Sandra couldn't see, but she does see. "I had loads of fun last week at the dance," Sandra remarked to a classmate with a big smile and sparkling eyes. "You know, my date gave me four beautiful red carnations that were just the thing to go with my white dress," Sandra went on to say.

Sandra does manage to participate in a variety of activities and seems to enjoy them more than anyone else. She laughingly spoke of a recent school play which she "saw."

"I watched television last night when I should have been studying," Sandra said turning her head toward a girl sitting behind her. "Mr. Wilson can sure get caught in some of Dennis' tricks," Sandra continued as she repeatedly referred to herself as having seen some television programs last night.

Sandra remarked abruptly, "Oh, I just remembered. I must take Joan's washing powders back." Sandra does her own washing in coin-operated washers on another floor of the dormitory in which she lives. She also goes from floor to floor to visit friends.

As for her future, Sandra does not hesitate to state that she plans to go into journalism. In journalism she hopes to paint the same picture of people that Pauline Frederick does for radio and television. With real conviction Sandra remarked that as she "watched" the last political convention and heard Miss Frederick perform, "This desire was burning me."

Her immediate goal is to give up smoking and drinking coffee. The cigarette smoke yellows her hands. "This discoloring is embarrassing to me because my hands are exposed so much since I am blind," Sandra said showing the palm of her hands.

Yes, Sandra does see.

Student Forum

By RONALD ARVIN

The most frequent excuse given for not attending club meetings is that they never do anything. But, how can they? Usually there are not enough members present to make a quorum which could indicate any group support of a project. Furthermore, even with clubs of moderate attendance, there is constantly the problem of finding someone who will take an active part in the regular business. Most members are waiting for the "other guy" to do the work while they enjoy the fun or profits of his effort. "They never do anything" because you, the individual, have neglected your duty.

It's about time you grow up and start accepting your responsibilities. When you join the club, you automatically become responsible for the success and the stability of that organization. If the club is "dead" and dull, it is because you are "dead" and dull. If it is active and interesting, it is because you have helped to make it so. In short, the club can be no better than those who comprise it.

To shun your responsibilities indicates not only a lack of pride in your club, but in your own sense of duty as well. It may be enlightening to your "club buds" that business frequently check to see whether you were active or inactive members. They know that the inactive member generally has an overall disregard for duty and honor and that he may well be a poor risk as an employee.

Accepting your responsibilities to the club is an indication of your maturity. You will soon realize that serving on committees and helping with other club functions brings a feeling of accomplishment and a lot more personal pleasure than waiting to be "spoon-fed" by the other members.

In closing, it might be helpful if you remember this paraphrase of one of President Kennedy's maxims, "Ask not what your club can do for you, but rather what you can do for your club."

Underwhelming Utterances

It is now required that every one entering the Student Center present his pedigree at the door. All persons will be carefully screened and only those with two legs will be allowed to go in. This ruling was made necessary when it was discovered that some real "dogs" had been fraternizing with the students.

It's so nice to talk to people interested in sports, better still, it's a bigger privilege talking to people like Mr. Dave Aaron, one-time head basketball coach at Austin Peay State, but now director of athletics and head of the Health and Physical Education department. I would classify Mr. Aaron as an authority on any given sport, but more so on basketball. I truly believe his sixteen years as head basketball coach here at Austin Peay State will speak for itself. In those years Mr. Aaron's name won 258 and lost 174 for a .597 won-lost mark. Of these games won, 144 were on the home court.

I interviewed Mr. Aaron on a subject I thought would interest you. The subject is the difficulties the players face on the road trips. It was interesting to listen to some of the many problems Coach Aaron faced with his players, and I believe experience speaks for itself. Yet, while he talked he left me with a great deal of information. People don't realize there are many governing factors that can cause a traveling ball club to produce poorly on a visiting team's court. Mr. Aaron believes once a team arrives at their opponent's town, they should play that night; don't stay overnight before you play unless it's absolutely necessary.

If they stay overnight the players will be sleeping around strange surroundings, in strange rooms and eating and drinking different meals from which they are accustomed. If the team stays overnight, they will drift further and further away from their thoughts of playing ball. It's true, watch people as they leave the movie and how they yawn.

Mr. Aaron said, today's home courts are worth a 15 point advantage, especially with the one-and-one free throw rule. I could go on and on, as Mr. Aaron left me with a lot of valuable tips, but I must cut this short. I do hope you basketball followers can see there is a lot more to the wonderful game of basketball than meets the naked eye.

A year ago Austin Peay State had one of its finest athletes graduate. This young man was John "Red" Reinhart, now a member of the United States Army in Korea. A couple of Reinhart's ardent correspondents stopped me a few days ago and informed me of his whereabouts over the past few months. We were certain John could play ball anywhere he attempted, and that's just what he's done. "Red" was placed on the All-Army first team, and, for his all-around season performance, was awarded a watch and a plaque.

If you have noticed, our gym is now a fieldhouse. If you visit the gym around 3:30 or 4 p.m., you can witness basketball practice, baseball practice and the track men working on their specialities. Is there any doubt in your mind we are in need of a new fieldhouse? After all, the girls have washing machines and dryers.

Doug Stamper is proving all pre-season talk hasn't been just a build-up. Doug the leading scorer for the Gobs is "Mr. Everything" in all departments. Against Bethel College on Jan. 29, he personally accounted for 33 points, one of the highest single game totals registered for Austin Peay State in recent years. C. B. Fletcher mentioned in his local daily column that Doug should be the most valuable player in the Volunteer State Athletic Conference. I will back that all the way. By far, Doug is one of the most impressive ball players, in all respects, seen in this area in years and probably in years to come. I know one thing: the Ohio Valley Conference teams had better start early building a defense to stop "Mr. Basketball" of Austin Peay State, because he will be in real contention next year for high honors in the OVC.

Rose Considered One Of The Best

By JOHN MARTIN

Ken Rose, 6-3, 195-pound freshman from Oxford, Ohio is one of the most outstanding freshman basketball players ever to wear a uniform for the Governor's Fresh.

Rose, who played at Talawanda High School, has been a starter for freshman coach Fred Overton since the beginning of the basketball season.

When asked about Rose, Overton said: "Ken is as good a 6-3 man as you could find. From within the key he is unstoppable. It doesn't make any difference if there are one, two or three men guarding him. He isn't a rangy shooter but he is tremendous within 15 feet of the basket."

The statistics compiled by Rose during the baby Gobs first 15 games prove that Overton is 100 percent correct in his opinions of Rose. He has hit 150 of 289 field goals for a .519 percentage. At the free throw line, Rose is hitting at a .671 clip with 102 of 152. Average-wise, Rose is scoring at a 26.8 points per game and hauling down rebounds at a 14.2 average per game.

Gobs Win Two Of Three

BY JOHN MARTIN

The Governors of Austin Peay State College went through another successful week of hard-work campaigning by winning two of three games.

The Gobs were victorious over the Bethel College Wildcats and the Union University Bulldogs, but fell to the University of Tennessee Martin Volunteers. APSC traveled to McKenzie, Tenn., to play the Wildcats Tuesday, Jan. 29. The Big Red came away with a 69-60 victory, which also marked the Gobs' 16 straight win over Bethel, going back to the 1955-56 season.

Doug Stamper, showing the finest single game effort displayed by a Governor this year, scored 33 points and pulled down 16 rebounds.

Giving support help to Stamper were sophomores Jim DeForest (11 points) and Richard Keller (10 points).

Following Stamper in cleaning the boards were Steve Miller (10), Seldon Sied (9) and DeForest (7).

In the loss to the Volunteers the Governors could point to one factor which contributed more than anything else to their defeat. For the first time this season APSC was out-rebounded. UTMB held a 47-38 edge in the rebounding department.

The leading scorers in the game for the Gobs were Stamper (23), DeForest (16), Miller (12) and Jackie Winders (11).

The loss to UTMB tightened the race in the Western Division of the Volunteer State Athletic Conference. The Gobs' record in VSAC competition, through games played Feb. 2, is 6-1 while UTMB is 5-1 in the conference.

Following the loss to UTMB the Governors returned home to play a return engagement with the Bulldogs of Union University.

The Bulldogs put a tremendous first half scare into the Gobs before APSC pulled away in the second half to a 93-77 victory.

Union hit an amazing 64 percent of their shots in the first half, connecting on 16 of 25 from the floor. The score at the half was 47-40 in favor of Union.

The second half saw the Governors out score the Bulldogs 53-30 and hand Union their fifth straight VSAC loss.

Henry Murray, playing ball as if he had a personal grudge against the Bulldogs, led the Gobs to victory by scoring 17 points and pulling down seven rebounds.

Other double figure scorers for APSC were: DeForest (15), Stamper and Miller (14 each) and Jackie Winders (12).

As has been the case throughout the season, the Governors could point to their rebounding strength as the main reason for victory. The Big Red currently dominated the boards, out-rebounding the Gobs 55-29.

DeForest (13 rebounds) and Miller (10 rebounds) were the leading board cleaners.

Gobs Seek Revenge

By TONY BOEHMS

The Governors will face a tough list of opponents this week when they continue their defense of the Western Division Volunteer State Athletic Conference championship as they face U-T Martin, Southern Illinois and Kentucky Wesleyan.

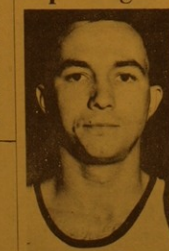

The Gobs will host U-T Martin Thursday night in a game against a tough and capable Volunteer squad which beat the Red and White last Thursday night by an 82-74 score on the Martin floor.

The final road trip for APSC will be Saturday night when they travel to Carbondale, Ill., to face a tough Southern Illinois team. Still in riding high from one of the leading small college teams in the nation.

The Gobs will return home Monday night to host the Kentucky Wesleyan Panthers. The Panthers handed the Governors a surprising 69-65 defeat earlier this season.

The freshmen squad will host the Vanderbilt freshmen in a preliminary contest Thursday at 5:30. The Baby Gobs will be out to avenge an earlier 76-73 loss to what has been called "the tallest freshman team in Vanderbilt history."

Sportlight

Doug Stamper has again been selected for the Sportlight. Stamper had, by far, the best week of the season when he scored 68 points for an average of 23.0 in last week's games.
