'68 Iris Ball on schedule for Saturday

Mickey Fabrizi and orchestra will provide the music and entertainment Saturday night at the 1968 Iris Ball.

The University Center ballroom will be the scene of dancing from 8-12 p.m.

Presentation of Queen Becky Scott and her court will be at 9-10. Attendees to the queen are Diana Barrett, Becky Herold, Nancy Hudson and Sandra Smith.

Tickets for the formal dance are $2.50 in advance, and $3 at the door.

Tables may be reserved by the purchase of tickets, which are on sale now at the Associated Student Body office.

Del Square

Psi captures

College Bowl

Del Square Psi has captured the first annual Laurel Wreath Society College Bowl, defeating Tri Beta Monday night in the final, 240-215.

Del Square Psi reached the finals by beating Wesley Foundation Thursday night, while Tri Beta was defeating the Pre-Med Club.

Members of the winning team included Ronnie Rice, Ned Phillips, Kathy Savage and David Boercker.

Tri Beta was represented by a total of six players. They were Peggy Wallen, Stanley Poole, Bruce Bell, Kay Harker, Joe Love and Ann Phillips.

Following the tournament, an all-star team was selected. Picked to the team were Walter Kikendall (Wesley Foundation), Gary Christoph (Chi Epsilon Mo.), Miss Savage (Del Square Psi), Miss Wallen (Tri Beta) and alternate Boercker (Del Square Psi).

Mock election

McCarthy tops collegiate vote

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., has triumphed in CHOICE '68, the nationwide collegiate presidential election.

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., edged Republican former Vice-president Richard M. Nixon for second place in the voting by more than a million students on 1,200 college campuses.

McCarthy drew 285,988 votes, Kennedy 213,832 and Nixon 197,167.

More than half the students favored a reduction of the U.S. war effort in Vietnam in a referendum included on the ballot. And McCarthy drew 85 per cent of his support from these students, computerized returns showed.

Vice-president Hubert H. Humphrey, now a major contender for the Democratic nomination, was not included on the ballot, which listed 13 possible presidential candidates.

Sponsors said the ballot was drawn up before President Lyndon B. Johnson bowed out at the end of March and could not be changed before the voting.

New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, now challenging Nixon actively for the Republican nomination, attracted 115,937 votes although he had not announced his candidacy when the students voted April 24.

Humphrey received 18,535 write-in votes.

There were 57,362 votes cast for Johnson despite his disavowal.

Former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace drew 33,078.

Scattered Votes

Other votes were scattered with 3,538 going to the late civil rights leader, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., who was listed on the ballot as an independent candidate. He finished ahead of Republican Harold Stassen, last with 1,033 votes.

The poll was sponsored by Time Magazine and the Univac Division of Sperry Rand Corp., which counted the returns by computer and announced the results. The Political Studies Association sponsored the voting on the APSU campus.

Although the colleges involved have three-fourths of the nation's total enrollment, the turnout was light and the actual voters numbered less than one-fifth of the nation's students.

Totals for APSU will be released as soon as the PSA receives the results from CHOICE 68 headquarters.

More voting is scheduled for tomorrow

APSU students go to the polls again this week to decide a three-way run-off in each of the ASB races.

According to a member of the elections committee, "The decision to have three candidates in each race was made because of the closeness of the voting."

"In at least two of the races the candidates were less than five votes apart."

Of the three independent candidates who ran for ASB office, Gary Scott, a candidate for chief justice, is the only one in the run-offs.

With the exception of the Student Party, which was eliminated in its entirety, the candidates in the run-offs include every member of the other three tickets.

The decision of the elections committee to include three persons in the run-off for each race means the voting, which will take place tomorrow, is essentially the preliminary to a final vote which will take place, hopefully, next week.

The three candidates in the run-off for president are: Don Layton, Butch McGee, Buster Yates.

For vice president: Hugh Dorminy, Bob Perry, Kent Yates.

For secretary: Roberta Butler, Anna Reeves, Anita Ture.

For chief justice: Louis Miller, Jim Paris, Gary Scott.

The candidates elected to state offices are:

SENIOR-Ray Radford, President; Pam Wooten, Vice President; Martha Penick, Secretary; Carolyn McMahon, Treasurer.

Approximately 1,200 students voted in Monday's election. A candidate must receive 50 per cent plus one of the votes cast.

Survey of career plans begins today

Dr. William H. Ellis, associate dean of faculty and director of graduate studies, has announced that the Tennessee Commission on Higher Education is conducting a survey of career plans of college seniors, and that Austin Peay State University has agreed to cooperate in this effort.

The seniors named in the following list have been selected at random to be included in the sample to be taken at APSU.

This will be conducted today from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and tomorrow from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Participants are requested to go to McCord 102 during either of these dates and at a time convenient to their schedule. There will be no waiting.

Each participant will be given a questionnaire which will require about 20 minutes to complete.

Since the names in the list have

Lemonade Charade to perform

A return performance of the dynamic Lemonade Charade is sponsored tonight at 8 o'clock by Alpha Kappa Psi, professional business fraternity. The Charades make use of lights, smoke and fire while playing all types of modern music, and were well-received in their first visit to APSU earlier this year.

Tonight's dance will be in the ballroom of the University Center. Tickets are on sale in the Center at $2 per couple and $1.25 stag. Couple tickets will be $2.50 at the door.

"This will be the last dance that the fraternity will sponsor if there isn't better student support," said Paul von Wiegand, Alpha Kappa Psi president.

"However, I feel that poor attendance is not entirely due to student apathy. The administration is partially to blame."

"Organizations are outwardly encouraged by the administration to bring in 'big-name' entertainment, but when someone does this, there is very little cooperation from the administration."

"They make it nearly impossible for a group to make a profit, since attendance by the general public is not allowed. Late permission isn't granted to the girls either," he said.

Von Wiegand looks for better student participation at tonight's dance, though, because it is being held during the week. Alpha Kappa Psi's other dances have been weekend affairs.

PSYCHEDELIC SHOWMEN—The Lemonade Charade, who will appear here tonight, strike a way-out pose with the aid of a bit of trick photography. One of the best "live" bands in the South, the group uses light, smoke and fire to add to the excitement generated by their fast music.

The college scene

by MARCIA TIPPIT

THE TECHNICIAN, North Carolina State University, Raleigh, N.C.—If the number of demonstrations and protests are any judge of a university, State is coming into its own in the academic world.

In addition, to student participation in recent antiwar demonstrations and civil rights marches, Eugene B. Halpern, a former Columbus, Ohio reactor, came to State to demonstrate against the candidacy of James Rhodes, governor of Ohio, for the Republican nomination for vice-president as a favorite son candidate.

Prior to coming to State, Halpern protested at ten other southern schools. He was jailed in Alabama and spent three other days in jail in Durham.

Halpern plans to demonstrate at Carolina and then go to 15 northern schools.

STUDENT PRINTZ, University of Southern Mississippi, Hattiesburg, Miss.—Peace Corps Director Jack Vaughn predicts a 10 percent increase in the number of applications able to serve this year.

Recruiting figures for the first two months of 1968, he said, were 8,000 into training during the program year which ends Aug. 31.

A congressional appropriation of $107.5 million for the current fiscal year determined the trainee total.

Vaughn said the upsurge in interest in the Peace Corps during January and February contrasts sharply with a 20 percent decline in applications reported last fall.

THE EMORY WHEEL, Emory University Atlanta, Ga.—A fundraising drive designed to raise a minimum of $12,500 to establish a Martin Luther King, Jr. scholarship at Emory has been started by interested faculty members on campus.

All faculty members will be contacted and asked to contribute at least $10 to the fund. Donations from the graduate schools and the college will also be welcomed.

All funds collected will be matched on a one to four basis through the Merit campaign, i.e., for every four dollars donated to the scholarship fund, the university will receive one dollar to be used in the Merit campaign.

THE TENNESSEE TECH ORACLE, Tennessee Technological University Cookeville, Tenn.—Mike Henderson, freshman pre-med major, captured third place in the service accuracy class at the Southeastern Conference Collegiate Parachute Meet in Clemson, S.C. The meet, held April 15-14, was Mike's first competitive meet.

Mike's closest jump to the eight-inch disc, which was the target, was 2-10, leaving him only five inches from second place.

Mike started jumping with the Tech Skydivers last fall and had made 15 jumps when he went to the meet.

Feathers in cap

APSU, the fledgling university, has added two feathers to its cap. The American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB) recently accepted Austin Peay State into the membership of the AACSB Assembly.

This organization is the official national accrediting agency of colleges and schools of business in the United States. Its membership is composed of 126 of the leading colleges and schools of business. In addition there are 147 additional colleges and schools of business of the well over 2,000 colleges and universities offering business curricula in the nation.

Membership in the assembly is quite a tribute to APSU and the newly formed School of Business and Economics.

The second feather in our hat comes in the form of a nursing program which will be initiated in the fall quarter of 1969. Not only will this be an aid in upgrading APSU's academic nature, it will also serve to attract many more students who decline attending APSU because of the lack of a nursing program.

A Beta Club survey taken a few years ago revealed that many girls in this region's high schools indicated APSU as their first choice for college and nursing as their major curriculum choice. However, the lack of a nursing program must be presumed to have kept many of these prospective APSU coeds away!

Congratulations are in order and we offer our heartiest to the administrative personnel who have gained these aforementioned goals for the betterment of APSU.

Run-offs important

Monday's balloting narrowed the ASB races to a matter of runoff. Yet we hope this situation will not lessen the student's individual interest in the elections.

Thus far, more so than during any other election we have witnessed, issues have been the focal point, almost to the extent of forgetting the personalities involved. Indeed, there is still a considerable element of personalities imbedded in the final decisions of all voters. We are not able to judge the worth of this; however, we might observe that the practice will be with us, both now and forever more.

Nevertheless, we are overly pleased that the candidates have given the populace a choice. This is not just true with one candidate but with all candidates, whether they be part of a ticket or independent. Moreover, each candidate is offering something different. In very isolated exceptions do parallels exist in the composition of platforms.

Thus you, the voter, still have a choice and a voice in your future ASB government. Do not pass up your chance to voice your choice in the runoff. One does not have to commit himself on unimportant matters, regardless of his station in life. However, this is a time when each of us should consider the proposals and then commit ourselves to issues and concepts—not personalities!

Progress in academics

(ACP)—Women aren't the only ones who change their minds: male administrators do, too, says the Iowa State University Daily. Paul Kleingreber, University of Iowa rhetoric instructor, has been reinstated following an earlier dismissal for his role in an anti-war demonstration.

He had been charged by police with conspiracy but was relieved of his teaching position before any legal action was taken against him. His students objected, saying his teaching had not been affected by his actions outside the classroom and arguing that his removal for outside activities violated basic rights. Kleingreber's fellow rhetoric instructors shared those sentiments.

His reinstatement apparently was the result of a statement he submitted saying he had no intention of endangering "the existence or independence of the University." Whatever the reason, the action is significant in the area of academic freedom.

U of I administrators have set a precedent in deciding Kleingreber's outside activities don't directly relate to his teaching duties. We feel they have made a wise choice. We hope the instance will lead to the adoption by all state universities of a policy allowing administrators and faculty members to participate freely in outside activities without fear of losing their jobs.

Communication gap?

Has anyone noticed? There seems to be an unusually great amount of student unrest at APSU presently. Consider what has happened in the last week alone. First of all there are ASB elections and issues which have more often than not centered on more student rights. Secondly, the university experienced its first bona fide attempt at a panty raid. Next a student is beat in his room by three unidentified hoodlums and minutes later three cars were sidestepped in a dorm parking lot.

The problem of which we speak is not easily described and will probably be less easily remedied for APSU students are beginning to feel as though they have had enough kangaroo justice, if it may be described in such a manner.

If we understand the circumstances much of this problem can be traced to a lack of communication between the administration and the students. For example, there is reportedly a ruling concerning "panty raids." Reportedly, anyone who is in the general vicinity of the next incident, whether he is a participant or not, will either be suspended or is liable to suspension if his name is so much as written down. Rumors such as these do not improve relations.

In fact, it has been reported that the three or four boys who were caught last week were going to be kicked out of school. This statement was made before the disciplinary committee even met! Hopefully, this will not be the case for we believe this is a poor way to solve a problem. Moreover, if it is not true would it not also be important to make sure that persons releasing information to the students were either more informed of what is to happen or told not to make public statements? Incidentally, these "reported" statements came from more than one source.

Still, this is not all of the problem. Students are complaining about a lot of problems. For example, the swimming pool is apparently open to the Clarksville AAU swim team throughout most of the year for several nights or afternoons of practice each week. Of course, APSU students have never been able to make access to the pool more than two hours per week. Why?

One APSU student volunteered to take financial responsibility for the use of the weightroom by APSU students. Yet this student could not convince the authorities that his money would be good enough in the case of lost or damaged equipment. Why?

APSU students cannot understand why they cannot get together for a discussion group and utilize the conference room in the University Center unless they are an organized group and have a constitution on file in the ASB office. Of course, it is fine for any outside organization to use the facilities. Actually, it is okay, but students have difficulty understanding why they cannot have equal time with competing outside groups.

So what is to be done? We suggest that more communications be forthcoming on any rules or rumors of rules which may be made. We also suggest that students be allowed to use the facilities for which they pay at least as often as outside groups.

Let us remember one thing. This university should serve the community. The community should reciprocate and try to patronize the university. And most of all, the university should look out for its students, should give the students a special priority over all other groups.

APSU admitted into membership of national business association

At its annual meeting which concluded recently in Miami Beach, Fla., the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB) accepted APSU into the membership of the AACSB Assembly.

AACSB is the official national accrediting agency of colleges and schools of business in the United States and is composed of 126 of the leading colleges of business. The assembly to which APSU was admitted consists of the 126 full-fledged members and 147 additional colleges and schools of business of the well over 2,000 colleges and universities offering business curricula in the U.S.

According to Glenn S. Gentry, chairman of the departments of business and economics, memberships from the academic communities, 40 of the larger business, professional and governmental corporations that have a strong interest in continuing progress in higher education for business hold by invitation memberships in the AACSB Assembly.

Among those institutions in this category are the United States Steel Corp., Ford Motor Co., The American Bankers Assn., Bank of America, Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and the Prudential Insurance Co.

The assembly studies significant problems of business and management and establishes close working relations among business, government and education through joint committee organization.

At the annual convention, much of the program involved discussion of the coming revolution in learning and teaching.

Principal speakers related the problems created by research having surpassed society's social and economic absorption capacity in this country and how society is demanding a change take place in higher education.

Enrollment boost seen for summer

M.P. Bowman, dean of admissions, has noted that according to estimates based on increased number of applications received to date, it is anticipated that the summer of 1968 enrollment will be approximately 100 above that of the summer of 1967 which showed an enrollment of 1,400.

May 15 is the deadline for accepting applications to register on time on Thursday, June 6 for the regular day enrollment and for the evening classes session which register on Monday, June 3.

Apply Early

Due to numerous end-of-year reports to be processed, all applicants for the summer of 1968 are urged to submit applications by May 15 in order to avoid the inconveniences of late registration.

All summer session registrations will be held in the new air conditioned University Center.

In filing applications for readmission for fall of 1968, all students are reminded that they should estimate the number of the quarter hours they anticipate passing this summer. If enrolling for summer, and enter classification year on the green application forms according to the number of credits they will have as of September of 1968.

New Classifications

Classifications for reporting to various agencies are determined by the number of completed quarter hours: freshman, 0-35.9; sophomore, 36-59.9; junior, 60-143.9; senior, 144 and up.

State Selective Service requires different credit ranges as cited in THE ALL STATE issue of May 1.

In case any student desires a mimeographed copy of the Selective Service release, he may secure the form from the right section of the service center in the Admissions Office.

The office has no additional information or interpretation to make concerning the release.

MAESTRO AT WORK—Peter Salter, instructor in music, is engrossed in putting APSU's symphony band through a rehearsal. Salter will appear with the band Sunday as a guest conductor during the 3 p.m. concert. Admission is free and open to the public.

Symphony band to present spring concert on Sunday

In connection with American Music Week, the symphony band will present a spring concert Sunday, at 3 p.m. in the Clement Fine Arts Auditorium.

The program for the concert will include "Golden Gate March" by Edwin Franko Goldman, "First Suite in E" by Gustav Holst, and Dances Allegro by James Burke and Eric Leizden, featuring John Larkin, instructor in music, as trumpet soloist.

Other selections will be "Fiesta Del Pacifico" by Robert Nixon, "Piccolo Variations," an original composition by Peter Salter, instructor in music, and "English Suite" by Clara Gruning.

In addition, Richard Weaver, trombone soloist and an APSU student, will present "Lundonshire Air" by Hawley Adee, "La Botta" by James L. Traver, "A Jazz Suite" by Robert Merser-Rumberger with Robert Pusey, student saxophone soloist at Austin Peay State, "Diversions in F" by Arthur Frankenthal, and "C.B.D.N.A." by Donald I. Moore will complete the selections of music for the program.

The public is invited to attend the concert free of charge.

APSU is one of 5 schools given grants

WASHINGTON — More than $100,000 in grants for laboratory, closed-circuit television, and other equipment for Tennessee schools was announced yesterday.

For laboratory and other special materials, the grants are: Austin Peay, $27,221; Middle Tennessee State, $27,221; Tennessee A&I State, $20,000; Tennessee Technological, $27,221; Trevecca Nazarene College will receive $13,304 for closed circuit television equipment and Tennessee Technological University will get $13,999 for the same purpose.

Near Erin

Soph killed in crash

An Austin Peay State University sophomore was killed in a one-car accident just outside Erin early Saturday, according to a Tennessee Highway Patrol accident report.

James Ronald Taylor, 20, was killed about 4 a.m. Saturday when he apparently fell asleep at the wheel of his car and it struck a bridge on State Route 13, about six miles south of Erin, near the Houston-Humphrey County line.

Taylor had been initiated into Epsilon Pi Tau, international honorary industrial arts fraternity, at a banquet at APSU Friday and was returning to Waverly, where he lived with his mother and worked part-time for the Lambdin Funeral Home.

A native of Todd County, Ky., Taylor was a member of the First Baptist Church in Trenton, Ky., and was an industrial arts major, minoring in biology.

Survivors include his father, R. Taylor, Sr., of Trenton and his mother, Mrs. Betty Jo Wagner, of Waverly; a sister, Miss Janice Taylor, Waverly; and a brother, Robert V. Taylor, Jr., a student at Auburn University, Auburn, Ala.

Additional survivors are his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs.

Bryant W. Taylor, Trenton, Ky., and R. B. Wagner, Hasburg community.

Woodward gives schedule deadline

F. G. Woodward, dean of faculty, reminds all students who plan to enroll in summer classes to have their trial schedules signed by their advisers by May 24.

Anyone who has not conferred with his adviser by May 17 should see Dean Woodward.

Askins withdraws

Wanda Askins, previously announced as a candidate for vice-president of the sophomore class, withdrew from the election last week.

According to Miss Askins, her reason for withdrawing was, "When I served as freshman vice-president, I had no voice in the government."

She plans to run for the office of ASB Senator later in the year. As for the election, she said, "I'd like an office I can work in, instead of just sitting and doing nothing at all."

Milton attending home ec meeting

Mrs. Doris W. Milton, associate professor of home economics and chairman of the department, is attending the annual Conference of Administrators of Home Economics in Higher Education in Knoxville.

The conference will express views on the proposed AHEA program of accreditation, recent developments in colleges of home economics throughout the United States, trends and concepts in foods and nutrition, and consideration of root disciplines required of students majoring in home economics.

SHE REIGNS SATURDAY—Pretty Betty Scott will reign as Iris Queen Saturday night at the 1968 Iris Ball. The Iris Queen is traditionally the most beautiful unmarried coed on campus, and it's evident that Betty is carrying on that tradition.

Rodeo queen to be chosen

What is a rodeo without a beautiful queen?

That's what the Rodeo Club is wondering.

So a rodeo queen and her three attendants will be elected tomorrow at 5 p.m. for the upcoming rodeo.

All interested girls are invited to compete for the title.

The girls will be judged at the old fairgrounds and the prospective queens must prove their ability to ride. Horses will be furnished.

Each girl may dress as she wishes.

APSU's first rodeo queen and her attendants will be presented Friday, May 17 at 8 p.m.

IA fraternity welcomes 5 new members

Five new members were initiated and club officers were elected into the Beta Eta chapter of Epsilon Iota Tau, an international honorary industrial arts fraternity, at the organization's annual banquet held Friday.

New members initiated were Waldo Eskel Rash, Barry Kirk Rollins, James Ronald Taylor, Donald Dean Winters and Morris Randall Yarbrough.

Taylor was fatally injured Saturday morning in a one-car automobile accident (see story on page 3).

Officers elected were David Atkins, president; David Kerr, vice-president; and Taylor, secretary-treasurer.

APU, Red Cross co-sponsor campus blood drive today

Of the many choices being given APSU students this week is one which concerns life or death.

The decision to donate a pint of blood today in the campus-wide drive could well mean that a fellow human being will live.

Headquarters for the drive has been set up in the old student center where American Red Cross volunteers and personnel are joining with members of the local chapter of Alpha Phi Omega in an effort to reach a quota of 250 pints of blood.

WHOA, BULL!—J.A. (Shap) Sheppard, an International Rodeo Association clown, is ready to get out of this bull's way. Sheppard's job is to provide entertainment while protecting fallen riders, and he will be performing that task at APSU May 17-18 when intercollegiate rodeo comes to the old fairgrounds.

In Chattanooga

12 travel to home ec convention

Nine students and three faculty members represented APSU at the Tennessee Home Economics Convention held Friday and Saturday, in Chattanooga.

The theme for this year's convention was "Operation Innovation."

Featured speakers for the two-day event included Senator Howard Baker; James Sutherland, fellow engineer, R &

D Center, Westinghouse Electric Corporation; his wife, Mrs. Ruth Sutherland, home economist; and Mrs. Eugenia D. Hatcher, president, Homemakers Testing Corporation.

On Friday's program, Baker discussed current legislation and offered an in-depth analysis on legislative trends.

On Saturday afternoon, the Sutherland Mr. and Mrs. team was highlighted.

Sutherland spoke on "Computers and Their Implications for the Future," while Mrs. Sutherland used personal experience to present "There Is A Computer in My Basement."

Mrs. Hatcher concluded the program Saturday evening by giving her views on the home economist as a person.

Students attending were Betty DeBerry, Jeanne Hoffer, Linda Hollingsworth, Harriette Huey, Wanda Jinnette, Dian Lewis, Dianne Sego, Kathy C. Vaughn and Louise Whitaker.

The faculty participants were Miss Dora Deane DePriest, assistant professor of home economics; Miss Ann Griffin, instructor in home economics; and Mrs. Doris Milton, associate professor of home economics and recently elected chairman of colleges and universities section of the Tennessee Home Economics Association.

Physics prof appointed to new positions

Melburn R. Mayfield, professor of physics, has recently been named to two new positions.

Mayfield, chairman of the physics department, has been appointed to the Editorial Board of "The Physics Teacher."

This relatively new journal is devoted to introductory physics on all levels.

The appointment is to continue for three years.

Mayfield's major concern will be one largely of policy making and encouraging teachers in the area of physics to contribute to the journal.

In connection with the American Institute of Physics, Mayfield has been asked to serve on a committee associated with the Secondary School Physics Program.

3 Murray students beat APSU frosh

Ronald L. McClain, a freshman music major from Hokesville, is in good condition following a late Thursday night beating by three Murray State University students.

The tussle occurred in his McClain's Molineville Hall room at about 10:30 p.m., and resulted in a fractured cheekbone and several loose teeth for him.

His three assailants voluntarily returned to APSU and surrendered to officials here. It is believed that McClain's parents will press charges against the Murray students.

To state committee

APSU presents future plans

Each Tennessee state college and university has been asked to present a proposal for the major expansion of the state's higher education system to the state coordinating committee.

Plans for expansion and new progress as well as the roles that institutions will play in the future must be submitted by June 24 to this new committee which was created by the state legislature about a year ago.

Dr. William Masterson, president of the University of Chattanooga, has already announced the acquisition of the University of Chattanooga by the University of Tennessee as the first step in the new master plan which apparently was developed by the Tennessee Commission on Higher Education. The merger will become effective in July of 1969.

This will allow the new UT at Chattanooga to take over the present 36-acre University of Chattanooga campus near downtown Chattanooga. UC's current enrollment of about 2,500 will be increased to 10,000 or more within the next 10 years, officials have stated.

According to APSU President Joe Morgan all other plans made by Masterson are merely speculative at this time, for no proposal has definitely been made by the State Board of Education.

He added that Austin Peay State is now in the process of preparing its future proposal.

Idea for merging teachers' organizations meets defeat

Dr. Edwin Cobb, chairman of the political science department, attended the American Association of University Professors, (AAUP), April 26 and 27 at Washington, D.C.

At the meeting, an attempt was made to begin negotiations to merge the American Federation of Teachers with the AAUP.

"Only about one-third of the delegates favored the merger," said Cobb, "but the number in favor seems to be steadily increasing."

Dr. Harold Howe, U. S. commissioner of education, was the featured speaker. He called attention to his belief that it is the responsibility of college teachers to help solve the social problems in the lives of the students.

In addition to his trip to Washington, Cobb attended the annual meeting of the Tennessee Political Science Association late last month in Nashville.

Held at Vanderbilt University, the meeting was highlighted by the election of Dr. Lee S. Greene, chairman of the political science department at the University of Tennessee, to the post of president of the organization.

He succeeded Dr. Norman Parks of Middle Tennessee State University.

Summer sportswear

Style file

by SHIRLEY PARCHMAN

Is a new sportswear wardrobe a must for this summer vacation? Perhaps some special occasion requires a new outfit?

At any rate, the summer season is adapted for outdoor-type entertainment, and "what to wear" becomes an indispensable problem.

"Casual" and "colorful" seem to describe this summer's styles. To complement these informal fashions, belts, pockets and buttons are usually added.

One example of these accessory highlights is especially noticeable in the long vest-like shirts which are decorated with pockets, buttons, and various designs.

Slacks are portraying a wider hem, as well as cuffs. Also, straight-stemmed pants are most prominent this season.

Some shorts styles are featuring the short-leg sits at each side. In addition, one particular short and top set is emphasizing the bare midriff and the bare back.

Culottes are increasing in popularity in both skirt and dress styles. Mini-culottes with the pleat designs are especially attractive and comfortable.

Students picked at random for poll been pre-selected, it is necessary that each person contribute the needed information in order that Austin Peay State may attain 100 per cent of its sample.

Golfers meet stern test

How do you get your team "up" for a match after they have done something that no other squad has been able to accomplish in nine years? That's the problem facing golf coach Sherwin Clift. On Monday afternoon his link squad handed the Middle Tennessee golfers their first home loss since Sewanee last turned the trick back in 1959. It was a tremendous performance by the APSU contingent and a team win all the way.

Jimmy Smith was medalist for the day, fashioning a one-under-par 69 over the Stones River Country Club Course. Smith was closely followed by freshman John Eddington with a 71.

Sophomore southpaw Randy Feather came in a 72 and holed out a wedge shot on the 15th hole for an eagle three which was the deciding factor in the match. Feather also won his match and raised his individual record to 13-0-1.

Reliable Fred Pitts carded a 73 and raised his mark for the year to 12-1-1.

The win for the Governors raised this season win total to a record 14 straight. The two-year mark extending from last year's now 16. Middle Tennessee had a 13 match streak snapped. The win also raised Clift's career record at APSU to 73-30-4.

In regard to tomorrow's encounter with Middle Tennessee and Murray State at the Cole Park Golf Course, Clift believes it will be a scramble for the top spot in the triangular.

"Murray cannot be overlooked. The Racers will be in prime position to win the affair since Middle will be gunning for us and we for them."

For those of you who can make it to the match, enter Gate 1 in Ft. Campbell. The match starts at 12 o'clock and will last until about 5:30. This is APSU's last home match of the year so why not support the golf team in this difficult test?

OVC makes changes

In its recent spring meeting, the Ohio Valley Conference made several decisions of importance.

First of all the league voted to eliminate the OVC Basketball Tournament which had been held over the Christmas holidays for the past 18 years.

"The big reason for this move was to allow conference members to play a more complete non-conference schedule," said Art Guepe, OVC commissioner.

"The members didn't know if they were going to win one, two or three games," he stated. "This forced the withholding of three schedule dates."

"Of course the fact that the tournament hasn't been any financial success has some bearing on the decision, too," Guepe concluded.

In other action the conference officials adopted a hardship clause for athletes who sustain an injury early in the year. A football player who is injured in the first game of the year and unable to participate for the rest of the season no longer will lose that year's eligibility, as had been the case in the past.

The same rule will apply in basketball through the second contest of the season and is applicable for the first meet, match, etc. in other sports.

Member schools voted to increase football grants-in-aid from $45 to $50 for the upcoming year. In its last meeting the league increased grants from 40 to 45.

Fees for basketball officials were doubled. Next year officials will draw $100 per game compared to $50 for this past season.

Krusa wins 2nd Cross Hall tourney

Chuck Krusa, a junior from Nashville, fired an 85 to win the second annual Cross Hall golf tournament held Saturday at the Sewn Lake Golf Course. Krusa finished three strokes ahead of Pat Williamson, a sophomore from Clarksville, to cop the medalist honors and rack up a trophy in the process.

Defending champion David Bibb slipped to a 92, good enough for fourth place in the one-day affair. Bibb fired a 41 last year to win a rain-shortened tourney which was called after nine holes.

Steve Hurt and John Lander tied for honors in the handicap segment of the tourney, each carding a 87. Pete Olson and Ron Popp were tied at 88.

In addition to the first place trophy, prizes were given to other high finishers.

Golf real interest

Smith looks to future

by TERRY MAYER

"Well, less than a month before K'll over."

"That may not be the right attitude, but I'm pooped."

Jimmy Smith, a graduating senior from Nashville, did not necessarily speak for all of his classmates when he voiced his desire to be out of school, but there were several affirmative nods at the University Center table where this interview took place last week.

Smith, who has twice taken top individual honors in the Tennessee Intercollegiate Golf Championship, is an accounting major with economics minor.

"Golf is my real interest, though," Smith said.

"Accounting really holds no fascination for me. Of course, it will be a tremendous thing to fall back on."

"I want to work with golf some way after graduation. There are several possibilities such as with a sporting goods manufacturer."

"I have thought some of going on tour and haven't discarded the idea completely."

"My interest in golf?"

"That's pretty hard to pin down. When I was six I began caddying for the only golf teacher I ever had—my dad. That was on the Shelby Municipal Park Golf Course in Nashville."

He describes his father as "a better than average weekend golfer."

Smith's senior year at Isaac Litton High School was marked by placing third in the Tennessee high school championship.

As a sophomore here Jimmy first captured the top individual trophy in the Tennessee Intercollegiate Golf Championship at Sewanee by shooting three-over-par 75 the first day and a par 72 the second day.

He captured the award for the second time this year.

"It's a gross understatement to say I felt great after this year's TIGC at Sewanee. I am sure the real value of the win has to be measured in relation to the team as a whole."

"This tournament was a stepping stone to the OVC and NCAA tournaments. Sure, we have all played better golf, but the fact that our scores were all rather low indicated that we were working," Smith said.

Though it is less than a month before "it's all over" at APSU for Jimmy Smith and the other graduating seniors, he is among those who haven't thrown his hat in the ring yet, and, as indicated by his most recent golf scores, he is still very much in the running.

Baseballers to close regular season play at Murray State

Hoping to end an otherwise sour season on a sweet note, the Austin Peay State baseball squad will journey to Murray, Ky., on Friday for a double-header with the Thoroughbreds of Murray State.

The Governors of coach Leon Sandifer met the Racers in a twin-bill at the APSU diamond last Thursday but came up short in each game.

The first game saw Don Lee, the Racers' tough right-hander, shelled by the APSU nine for five runs in the first five innings. The Gobs pushed over three runs in the first frame.

APSU tallied twice more in the fifth, but it was not enough. Murray racked up one run in the second and four markers in the fourth.

Centerfield Ed Parker tagged losing pitcher Bill Wilhoite for a solo round-tripper in the sixth for a 6-5 Racers win in the opener.

In the nighttime second-sacker Mike Fitzgerald led off with a

Netters await home slate

by BILLY BIGGER

Awaiting the tennis squad of coach Fred Overton is a full home slate for the upcoming week.

The action begins tomorrow when the Gobs host cross-state rival UT Martin at the APSU courts. The Governor netters will have an opportunity to improve on their 2-9 record, since the APSUers have already met and defeated the Volunteers by a 9-0 court Martin, Tenn.

On Saturday Tennessee Tech will invade the APSU courts for an afternoon encounter with the Gobs. Coach Overton considers TTU to be the most improved net team in the Ohio Valley Conference.

The Golden Eagles topped Austin Peay State 9-0 earlier in the year and beat the State squad 8-1 in the Tennessee Tech Quadrangular Tennis Meet at Cookeville this past weekend.

Next week the Gobs host powerful Middle Tennessee on Monday then journey to Bowling Green, Ky., to face an even more potent Western Kentucky contingent on Tuesday.

In their last action, a weekend quadrangular meet at TTU, the APSU netters didn't fare too well, finishing last in the four-team affair.

Host Tennessee Tech turned out to be a very unwanted host as it captured its own meet.

The Golden Eagles piled up 22 points, enough to nose out runner-up East Tennessee State, which had 17. Morehead followed with 11 markers and APSU managed four tallies.

Tech whipped Morehead 8-1, Austin Peay State 8-1, and East Tennessee 6-3 on its way to the championship.

The Gobs also dropped decisions to Morehead, 7-2, and ETSU, 8-1.

Flashy Floridians Bill Lefko and Jim Lucas provided all of the APSU points.

Lefko beat Morehead's Jim Miller 4-6, 7-5, 6-2 and dined Steve Lynn of Tech 6-0 and 8-4.

Lucas also played well, downing Jim Lopez of Morehead 6-2, 6-3 and whipping ETSU's David Fielder 6-4 and 6-2 to round out the Governor scoring in the classic.

Baseballers to close regular season play at Murray State

The Gobs were not to be easy prey though. Two tallies in the third and one in the fourth made court 3-1 with APSU on top. Murray chalked up 10 runs in the last three frames to win going away by an 11-6 score.

By splitting an afternoon double-header with Western Kentucky, the APSUers snapped a six-game losing streak and recorded their first OVC win of the season on Monday.

In the initial contest the Gobs were stymied by the Hilltoppers' Stan Markham for nine innings and fell 2-0. Joe Watts pitched shutout ball for eight innings.

Yanous Lloyd singled and Jim Bonnell drove him home with a four-bagger for the win in the top of the ninth.

APSU's Jim Hardie won the second game in relief. The right-handed pitcher walked, stole second, advanced to third on a wild pitch and scored the winning run off a single by Ronnie Simpson, as APSU rolled to a 7-6 victory.

APSU cops 6th place in TIAC cinder meet

Paced by sophomore sensation Alvin Hicks, the Austin Peay State track team tallied 19 points and finished sixth in the university division competition of the TIAC Track and Field Championship this past weekend.

As was expected, the University of Tennessee captured the title for the second year in a row in the annual event which was held in Johnson City. The Vols amassed 76 points to edge second-place Middle Tennessee State by 16 markers.

Hicks was the top point-getter for the Governors with a total of eight. In the process, Hicks established a new APSU record for the high jump with a leap of 6-5 3/8.

The previous mark was 6-4 1/2 set by Hicks earlier this year. Alvin's record leap was good enough to place him second in the competition.

The versatile athlete also copped fourth-place finishes in both the pole vault and broad jump.

Jeff Fisher placed second in the shot put with a distance of 52-4 and was fourth in the discus with 134-10 for a total of six tallies.

Terry Schultz and Ron Morton finished fourth in the 440-yard intermediate — hurdles — and three-mile run, respectively.

Bob Engler, Terry Schultz, Ronnie Fuqua and Ronnie Bell composed the mile relay squad which garnered fifth.

APSU's next meet is tomorrow night at MTSU.

Gov golfers tangle with Racers, Blue Raiders in final home match

Placing their 14-0 match-play record on the line, the Austin Peay State linksmen will host two of the best golf squads in the Ohio Valley Conference at the Cole Park Golf Course tomorrow.

Murray State and Middle Tennessee will meet the Govs in a triangular affair which is slated to begin at 12 o'clock.

"This is our last home match of the year," says coach Sherwin Clift. "We would like to have a large turnout from the student body."

"It should be a great collegiate match. The boys always look forward to playing tough opposition such as MTSU and Murray."

The APSUers have an opportunity for the finest record ever at the university but will be strongly challenged.

Middle Tennessee has suffered but four defeats in dual competition since 1959. Murray State was runner-up in the NCAA College Division tournament last year while APSU finished eighth.

Besides the Govs' star, Jimmy Smith, two-time Tennessee Intercollegiate champ, Murray will present Kentucky State Open champion Ron Acree and Middle Tennessee has 1967 OVC king, Jeff Riley. The Blue Raiders' Ernie Adcock won the TIC in 1967; this gives the triangular match some of the top individuals in the southeast.

The Govs picked up two more victories last week. In a match played at McKenzie, the linkmen downed Bethel 7-5 on Thursday. Pacing the Govs were Fred Pitts (73), John Eddington (73), Smith (74) and Randy Feather (76).

On Saturday, APSU trounced UT Martin 20-7 at the Weakley County Country Club in Sharon. Pitts and Smith deadlocked for medalist honors for the day with two-over-par 74's over the tough layout.

On Monday afternoon "the APSU linksmen journeyed to Middle Tennessee for an afternoon encounter with the Blue Raiders."

See "APSU Closeup" for results.

The Govs fired probably their best golf of the year and upset highly-touted MTSU by a 14 to 12 1/2 count.

Leading the way for APSU was senior star Jimmy Smith. The Nashvillean rounded the course in a blazing 69 strokes.

WINDING IT IN—Freshman southpaw Ed Irman may look more like he is going to throw a shoulder block on the baseball, but actually he has just thrown the ball in one of APSU's diamond portraits.

Orchestra sets concert for Tuesday

The Austin Pay State University orchestra will present a concert Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Clement Fine Arts Auditorium.

The orchestra, conducted by Dr. Solie Fott, music professor, features John Larkia, instructor in music, as trumpet soloist.

Selections for the concert will include "Concerto in D Major" for trumpet and orchestra by Leopold Mozart, father of the Immortal W. A. Mozart; "Symphony No. 85 in B flat major" by Joseph Haydn.

This symphony has been popularly entitled "La Reine" which is French for "The Queen" it was one of the six so-called "Paris symphonies" and was a favorite of Marie Antoinette.

Other selections include "Overture Rosamund" which was written as incidental music for the play "Rosamund" by Franz Schubert and "Vocalise" by Sergei Rachmaninoff, which was originally written as a vocal solo.

The orchestra is composed of Austin Pay State students and interested musicians from the surrounding area.

In Truhern Gallery

Hackman exhibit on display

by JOE HANNIBAL

"In Retrospect," an exhibition of watercolors, oil, prints and weaving, which opened Sunday, April 25, is the work of Joann Hackman. It is displayed in the Truhern Gallery.

Upon viewing the works, one's eye is immediately attracted to the sparkling, crisp colors, the rugged textures and the immaculate craftsmanship of the rugs and hangings.

The charm of these weavings is even more intense to the regular gallery-goer, who by now has grown fatigued by the miles of paint and canvas of which past exhibitions have been composed.

Mrs. Hackman's weavings represent her deepest and most personal penetration into a given medium.

Her watercolors, another much studied medium, radiate a misty and very feminine quality commonly associated with watercolors.

Her palette consists primarily of acidic and mossy greens and bright yellows. Present in the better examples seems to be a feeling of joy in their creation, which transcends the mere technical process.

Many of the works exhibited by Mrs. Hackman serve to verify one's feeling that she could successfully work in any medium she desires.

This well-rounded quality is most uncommon among college art majors and its presence here is a tribute to the artist as well as the university which produced her.

Business frat to initiate 21 pledges

Alpha Kappa Psi, professional business fraternity, will initiate 21 pledges Sunday, following Friday night's Home Court.

The candidates for initiation into the fraternity are Van Albright, Phil Averitt, John Bennett, Larry Bone, Dick Crafton, Dennis Donegan, John Drake.

Larry Ellis, Ron Fort, Wayne Hardison, Ewing Harrington, Cecil Morgan, Billy Nichols, Devon Owens, Doyle Petty, Pay Pugh.

Gordon Seay, Henry Shorter, Rudy Smith, Tommy Spencer and Steve Stinnett.

The pledges have completed several projects during their pledge period including operating a dunking machine, the proceeds going to APSU's tutoring service at Lincoln Homes.

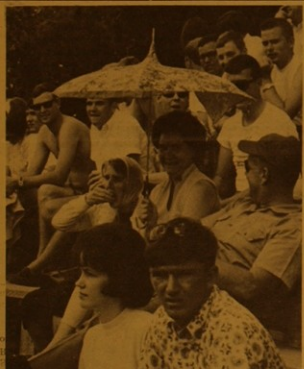

A car wash was also held by the pledges. Money earned from that project went into the fraternity's treasury.
