Austin Peay State University / Library
CLARKSVILLE, TENNESSEE 37040

ONE OF TENNESSEE's six regional universities, Austin Peay State University is a state-supported institution located in Clarksville, the state's fifth-largest city with a population of 41,875. Named for one of the state's great governors, the university is divided into five distinct divisions. These include the college of arts and sciences, college of education, school of business and economics, division of applied arts and sciences and the graduate school.

Eight degrees, four on the undergraduate level and four on the graduate level, are granted. In addition, the university offers pre-professional curricula in nine areas.

A record 3,574 students (2,091 men and 1,483 women) come from 28 states, several foreign countries and 60 of the 95 counties in Tennessee.

Faculty and administrative appointments brought the professional staff to 190. Forty-five per cent of the faculty hold the earned doctorate, and another 15 per cent lack only the dissertation. A modern university with a rich heritage, APSU is proud of its tradition, atmosphere, diversity and growth.

TRADITION on any campus is that which provides beauty, whether it be sensual or spiritual. After years of existence, these traditions gradually become institutions in themselves. At APSU, founded in 1927, tradition ranges from the old or usual—the majestic tower and clock atop the administration building—to the new or unusual—a fraternity house.

Tradition is the 168-member Marching Governors and Governettes giving a rousing halftime performance on the not-so-traditional, 1970-installed AstroTurf field, surrounded by a Tartan track, or a pep rally in one of the natural bowls.

Beauty of the traditions remain at APSU, although the university is the youngest in the state.

THE ATMOSPHERE of a campus inevitably undergoes change with age. APSU is no different. Established as a two-year institution, it has grown from a normal school to a college to a university. Enrollment-wise, the university has moved into the medium-size classification for colleges.

The idea that APSU is just another small, conservative southern school is being forgotten. The university has gone major in many areas, such as academics, athletics and student life.

Spirit at one of the Governor home football games, conducting of one of the great bands in the United States and a fun-loving parade are all a part of the atmosphere which brings pride to the APSU student.

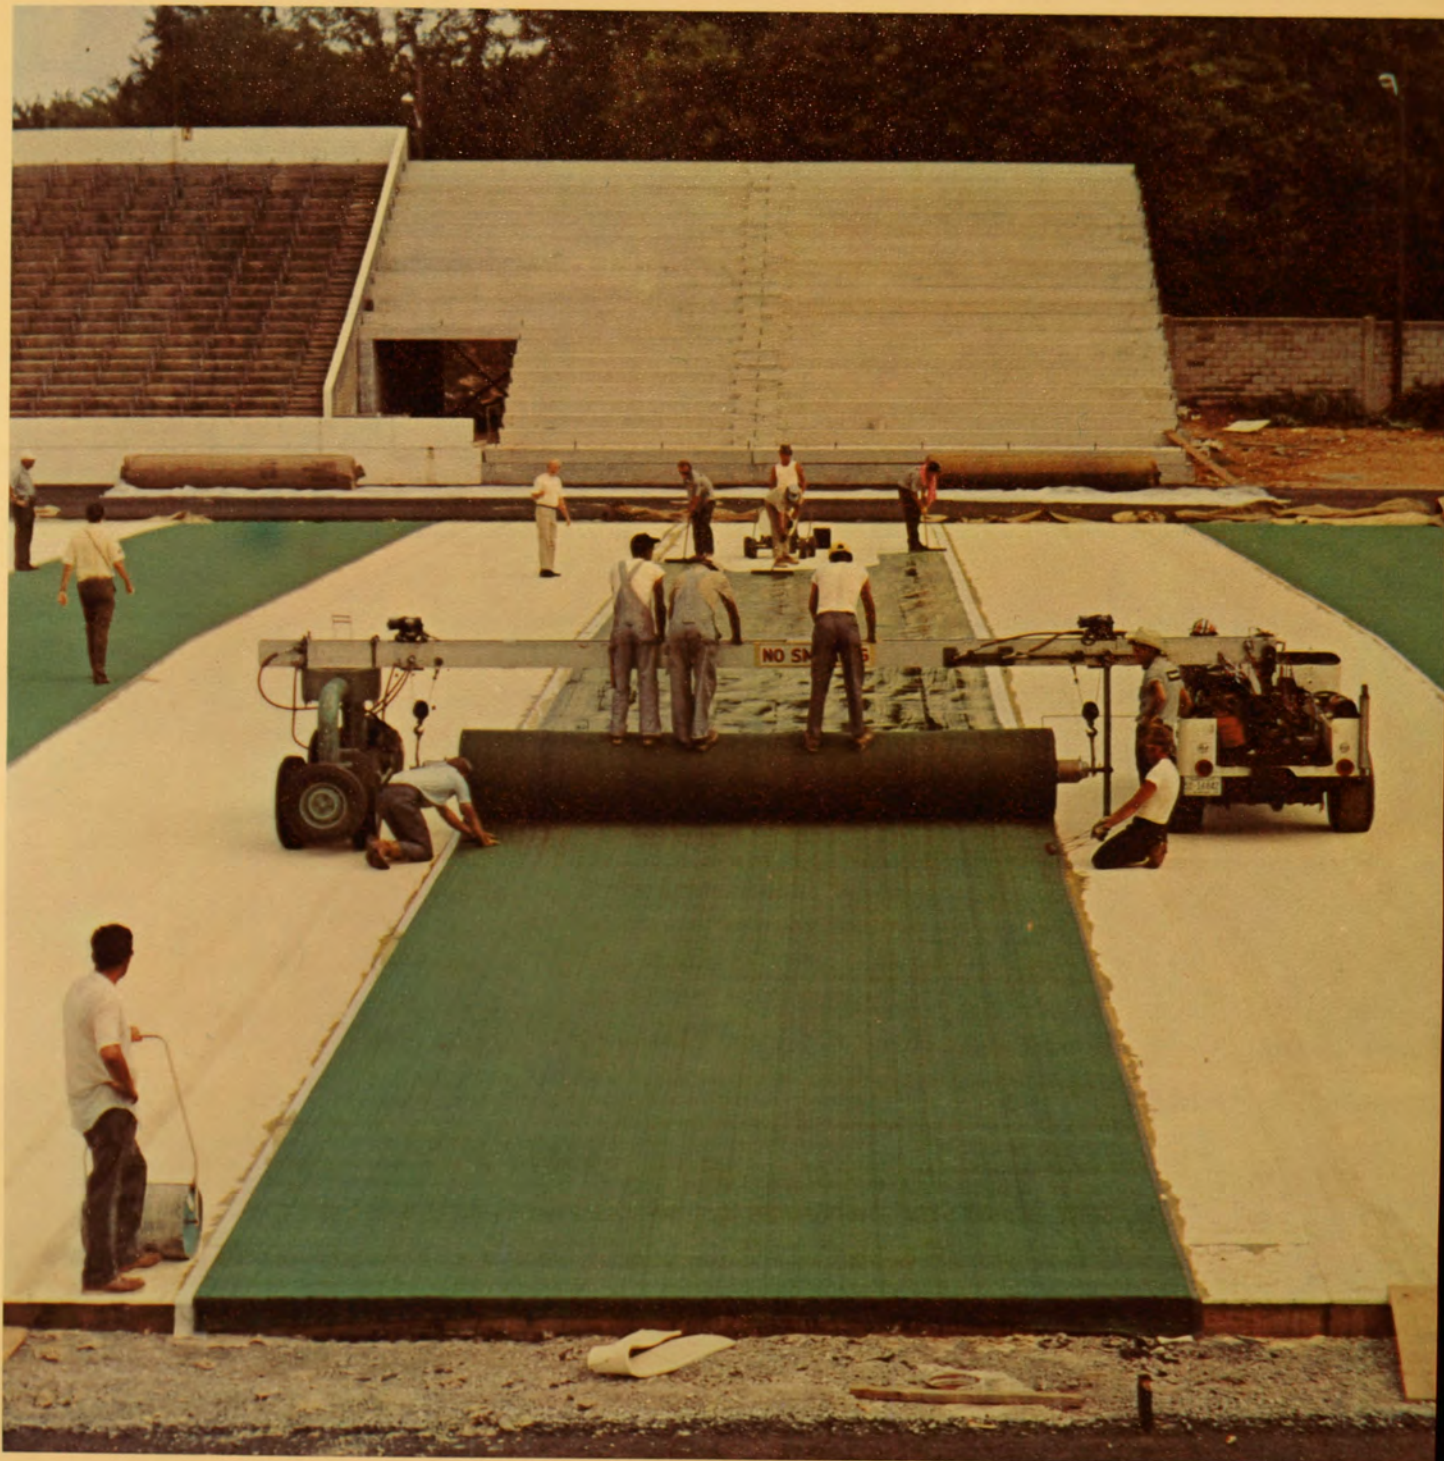

DIVERSITY is that part of a university which ensures its progress; for, without it, a campus can become stale with contentment. Such is the case at APSU. Blacks, whites, liberals, conservatives, foreign students, Americans and moderates joined together, not always harmoniously, but to produce a most interesting year.

THE GROWTH of a campus can be found in numerous areas, not only academically, but physically. Interior renovation of the Browning Building, which houses the administrative offices; an improved campus skyline by the reinforcement and beautification of the power plant smokestack; and a complete renovation of Municipal Stadium, including the installation of artificial grass, were noticeable additions combining the traditional with the modern.

AUTUMN AND OPENING of the fall quarter arrive almost simultaneously. Students return to the campus to register and view the rich colors of the season, bathed with a lively, golden Tennessee look. A frisbee challenge takes precedence over the library, housed nearby with volumes soon to be opened; special meaning is found in a bicycle ride through nature's fancy colors; and autumn provides that last fling, such as a run through one of the physical education fields.

REGISTRATION AND ACTIVITIES get underway with the traditional orientation of the incoming students, especially transfers and freshmen. Picnics, dances and informal rap sessions provide the atmosphere conducive for getting acquainted.

Next, a horde of scholastic veterans arrive on campus and the residence halls, fairly quiet during the summer, are rapidly filled with excited and bustling students. Old acquaintances are quickly renewed and friends are filled in on what has happened over the summer months.

Freshmen and other students alike soon get down to the task of registering for fall quarter classes. For many, much of the frustration is eliminated by the pre-registration process of the previous spring. To the rest, it is still the same harrowing situation. Students check bulletin boards and signs for upcoming activities; classes go to the student government polls to elect representatives and officers for the academic year; football practice signals the beginning of another spirit-filled year.

FRESHMEN face long lines, learning the routines, studying on the collegiate level—sometimes it becomes frustrating, challenging and just plain tiring. Enthusiasm wavers with excitement and disappointment, and the feeling that “everyone knows you’re just a freshman” is a memorable transition.

"AUSTIN & PEAY'S VICTORY CIRCUS" theme set the stage for the university to celebrate its 25th annual homecoming in early November.

Preparations for the gala occasion began weeks earlier with work on the various floats entered in the parade. Visiting bands, decorated cars and individual units, plus the floats, provided a carnival-like atmosphere.

A bonfire, snake dance and pep rally, sparked by the Governor cheerleaders and football squad, got the festive weekend underway.

NANCY MILLER, a gray-eyed, blonde senior from nearby Vanleer, reigned as queen over the homecoming festivities. Her court included Pat Hart, senior, Nashville; Debra Kesler, junior, Clarksville; Debbie Carver, sophomore, Madison; and Linda Pearson, freshman, Louisville, Ky. Returning alumni, students and ardent fans, numbering 5,434, were shocked as the Governors (1-6 entering the game) trampled favored Murray State University 45-7.

The decorated campus was the site for several alumni and student occasions, including Dr. Joe Morgan's "State of the University" address.

FASHIONS proved to be campus eye-catchers as students, more aware than ever of current fads and dress, attempted to "out-do" each other with the latest in styles.

The midi was introduced as soon as weather permitted, and although it did not create the storm that the mini had in previous years, it still provided the campus with the current vogue.

In competition with the midi and mini, the maxi did not prevail as the tops in popularity, but surely held its own. With men, multi-colored, bell-bottomed trousers became as common a sight as the older, plain pants. Length of the hair of the male, for the first time, did not attract a great deal of interest. The campus became used to the extreme. Pants suits for coeds became a common sight as the popular apparel swept APSU just as it swept the country.

With some students, those normally described as the hippie type, fashion held no dictate to their attire. They wore clothes they considered as most comfortable and refused to allow Paris and New York to decide their dress.

INDIVIDUALITY IN FASHION saw beards and moustaches, as well as clean-shaven men. Coeds found varying lengths of hair popular, both the long and straight, plus the more conservative short. Various styles and lengths of campus dress were as contrasting as the times in which they were worn. Neat, rich-colored sweaters and the plain were in existence; more extreme modes of dress flourished also.

TEN COEDS were chosen by a popular vote of the students as APSU's campus beauties to be featured in the 1971 FAREWELL & HAIL.

Possessing the qualities of femininity, poise and natural beauty, the girls also show a variety of interests and are active in sororities and numerous other campus organizations.

THE LOVELIES are Debbie Carver, Madison; Linda Crutcher, Dover; Suella Dillard, Cumberland Furnace; Marcia Duke, Madison; Cathy Graves, Guthrie, Ky.; Debra Kesler, Clarksville; Nancy Miller, Vanleer; Barbara Oscarson, Des Plaines, Ill.; Sharon Phillips, Lebanon; and Jenny Wrenne, Nashville. Two, Misses Dillard and Wrenne, are repeaters from 1970.

Varying careers await the beauties, although most are education majors.

GOVERNOR and FIRST LADY, which represented the most outstanding senior boy and girl, were elected by the student body on the basis of leadership, scholarship and service to the university. It was only appropriate and traditional that a university named for one of Tennessee's greatest governors should select such superlatives.

Bob Huber, a psychology major from Nashville, served as president of the Student Government Association and was a member of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity. Suella Dillard from Cumberland Furnace, who majored in speech and theatre, was president of the Theta Phi Epsilon sorority and winner of the Alpha Psi Omega award for best supporting actress.

MISS APSU was singled out as the best all-round female personality on campus. Jenny Wrenne, a junior health and physical education major from Nashville, was awarded this title by a vote of the students. A two-year campus beauty, Jenny enjoys swimming and tennis. She was a member of the Sigma Tau Omega sorority.

BACHELOR OF UGLINESS represented the best all-round male on campus. Bonnie Sloan, a sophomore health and physical education major from Nashville, was the students' choice. The outstanding football player was second team all-conference his freshman year; he was an obvious candidate this year until sidelined by a knee injury early in the season.

IRIS QUEEN represented by tradition the most beautiful single coed of the student body. An attendant from last year's spring formal, Marcia Duke was chosen for this honor. A campus beauty from Madison, Marcia concentrated in psychology during her sophomore year with a special interest in working with small children.

HOMECOMING QUEEN for November's "Austin and Peay's Victory Circus" was the former Miss Nancy Miller, an elementary education major from Vanleer. Nancy, who once taught in Nashville, won the honor to reign by popular vote after being chosen by the senior class as one of the two finalists.

Crowned by APSU President Joe Morgan during halftime activities, she enjoys golf, horseback riding and her title since December of Mrs. George Lisciotti.

KING and QUEEN OF HEARTS selections were crowned at the annual Valentine Dance. Nominated by sororities and elected by an all-campus vote were Debbie Carver, an English major from Madison, and George Lowry, a history major from Clarksville. Members of the court were Janet Chester and Joe Edmondson, Jane Harrell and Van Albright and Kristie Atkins and Dennis Miller.

SIGHTS AND SOUNDS most readily distinguished the dorm life of APSU. Unmade beds, empty coke cans, playful pillow fights and posters were found in abundance while the sounds of floor supervisors, typewriters and laughter were barely audible above the never-ceasing strains of the latest rock album. Enduring friendships were born amid the sharing of secrets, the swapping of telephone numbers and supported the feeling that dorm life could never be dull.

LEADING DOUBLE LIVES, students also undertook the roles of spouse and parent. Although calling for financial headaches, dedication and a great deal of patience, the parts were well received as evidenced by the large number of married students on campus. The pleasure of life centered around the family reined supreme over any difficulties encountered along the way.

AMATEUR INTERIOR DECORATORS flourished at APSU as was evidenced in the originality which most off-campus residences exhibited. Individual personalities were expressed through creative channels as apartment dwellers put finishing touches on their own arrangements of furnishings and personal belongings. The privacy and good feeling of independence were rarely hampered by details other than unforeseen bills.

WORK'S NOT ALL and it's even less compared with the many forms of on-campus recreation that students employed after a long day or week of classes. A movie, a dance or even a card game worked wonders in bringing a student's spirits back to par. But no matter what recreation was chosen or the amount of skill involved, everyone agreed that the important thing was to participate.

THE PAUSE THAT REFRESHES be it coffee, tea or whatever was an important part of the social life that bound together many life-long friendships. As the fraternity and sorority system continued to grow at APSU, a new emphasis was placed on group involvement and individual participation. Greeks weren't the only ones to catch the spirit of wholeness, however, as across the campus students got it all together by taking time to relax.

BLANKETS OF SPARKLING SNOW gave the signal to haul out the sleds with enthusiasm and abandon the stalled cars with hopelessness. Flying snowballs, awkward spills and nosediving temperatures caught many people off-guard, but ambitious students, always prepared for situations such as these, trudged faithfully to classes as usual.

"THE PLAY WAS THE THING" whether it was staged in Broadway theatres or our own Clement Auditorium. Composed of talented students, the AP Playhouse was devoted to the advancement of dramatic arts. All lines were learned, countless rehearsals completed and various stage crafts mastered. On opening night, cast and crew members reaped their reward for many weeks of hard work—the thrill of a good performance and the approval of the audience.

AFTER MARCHING SEASON, the band reverted to practice for a different style of playing, changing from the blaring bronze of brass to the majestic sound of the concert band. Sounds both pleasing and discordant were heard coming from the music department as members learned new pieces for the Symphonic Band concert and the Mid-South Jazz Festival.

STUDENT AND FACULTY ART flourished not only in the Margaret Fort Trahern Art Gallery, but in local and sidewalk art shows. The showings gave students a chance to display their talents while anticipating the reactions of the university community. Some artists even made the supreme sacrifice of departing with their creations for materialistic gains.

POLLUTION AND POLITICS became the major campus topics as Tennessee held state elections and students became increasingly aware of the environmental crisis. Ralph Nader labeled Vietnam and poverty as forms of pollution in his speech, urging the university community to become ecology conscious. U.S. Senators William Brock and Albert Gore and Congressman William R. Anderson spoke to students and faculty as part of their campaign tour through the state.

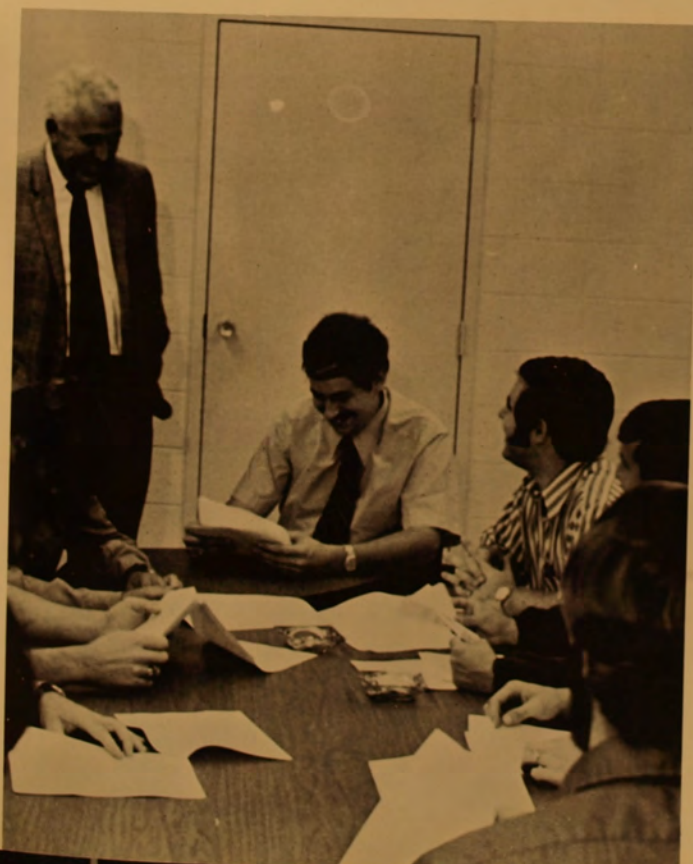

PUPPETS TO ROCK and everything in between summed up the entertainment at APSU in '71. Courtesy of the Visiting Artists and Speakers Committee, students were able to enjoy the highly professional folk singing duo of Addis and Crofut and the sophisticated marionettes of Daniel Llords. Concerts delighted the senses of contemporary music lovers as they jived to the vibes of The Brooklyn Bridge and The Ides of March.

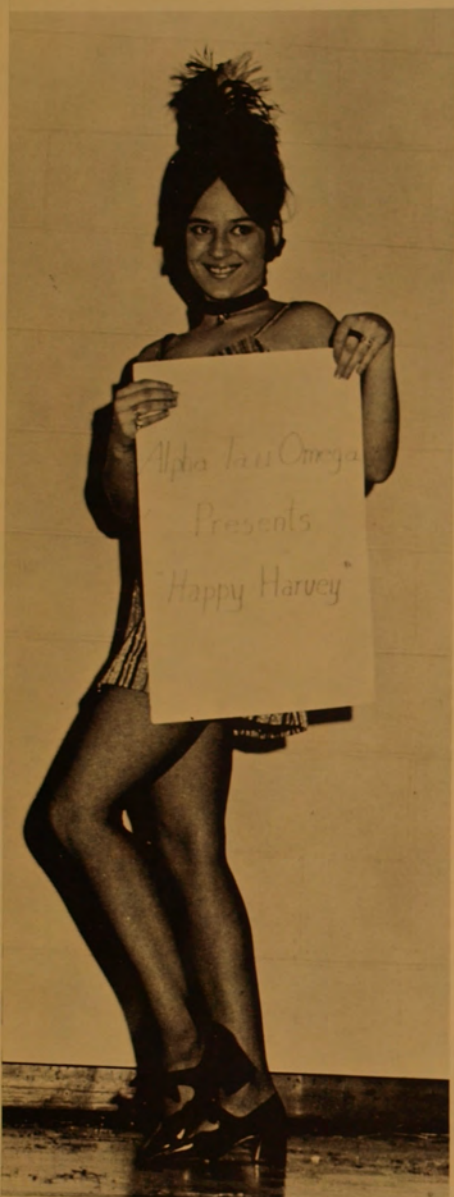

YEAR OF THE GREEKS would be an apt label for 1971. The fraternity system added three national colonies, and the local sororities continued to grow in size. The Greek spirit shone forth at football and basketball games and at activities such as open house, smokers, rushes and pledge programs. Sororities and fraternities found plenty of opportunities to work together.

A black and white photograph capturing a moment of achievement. In the center, a young man with glasses and a light-colored button-down shirt is handing a trophy to another young man wearing a dark t-shirt with the letters "ATC" on it. To the left, a third young man in a dark t-shirt with the number "4" is looking on. In the foreground, an older man with glasses and a light-colored shirt is partially visible. The background is dark and indistinct, suggesting an indoor setting.

GREEK FOLLIES NIGHT gave sororities and fraternities an opportunity to display their theatrical talents in a series of skits. Faced at first with cancellation due to a lack of participation, the annual show provided a joyous evening for audience and actors alike. The skits included the standard magician act and dizzy chorus numbers, as well as novelties like the Crump Family. The Inter-Sorority Council-sponsored event presented first prize to Wee Willie Pledge for its humor and originality.

STUDENTS AT AUSTIN PEAY State University became involved in 1970-71—that is, vocally. Those students of the past who had dared be so dangerous as to make their views known suddenly found themselves with company. The fact is that students had always been involved, but never on such a boisterous level. Marches during anti-pollution fever, student concern over matters of campus security and administration, and student protest at open assemblies characterized a new involvement at APSU.

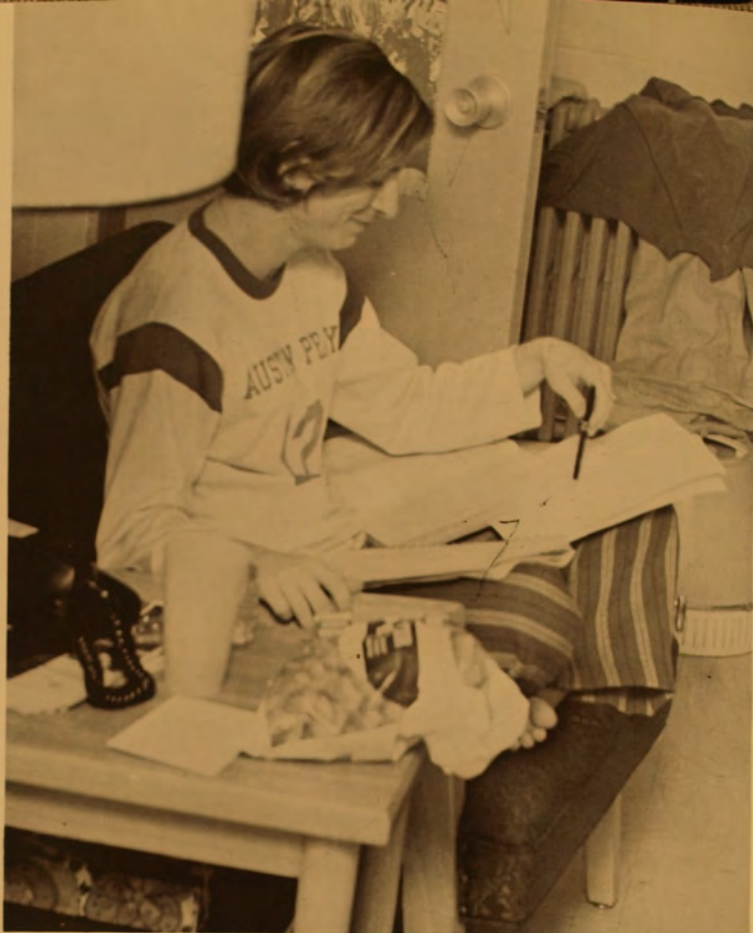

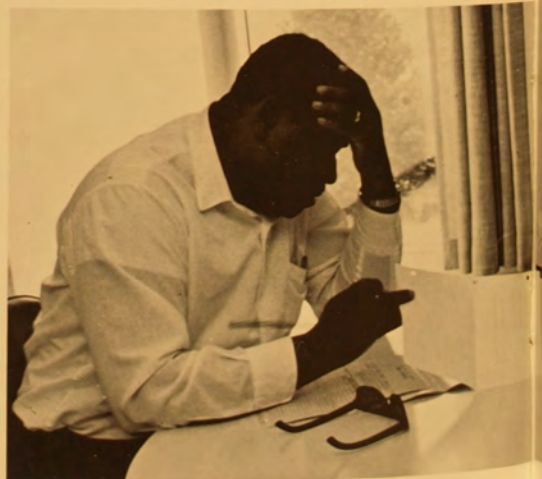

STUDENT INVOLVEMENT reached into all areas, with many of the APSU community participating in affairs ranging from an Ugliest Man on Campus dance to formation of a Union for Women's Rights. Just as diverse and just as interesting were all forms of campus elections and involvement in all student affairs. There were many people who participated—despite conditions of weather and anything else.

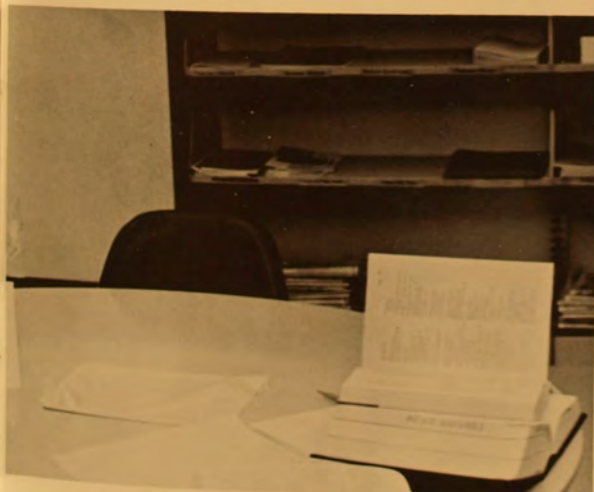

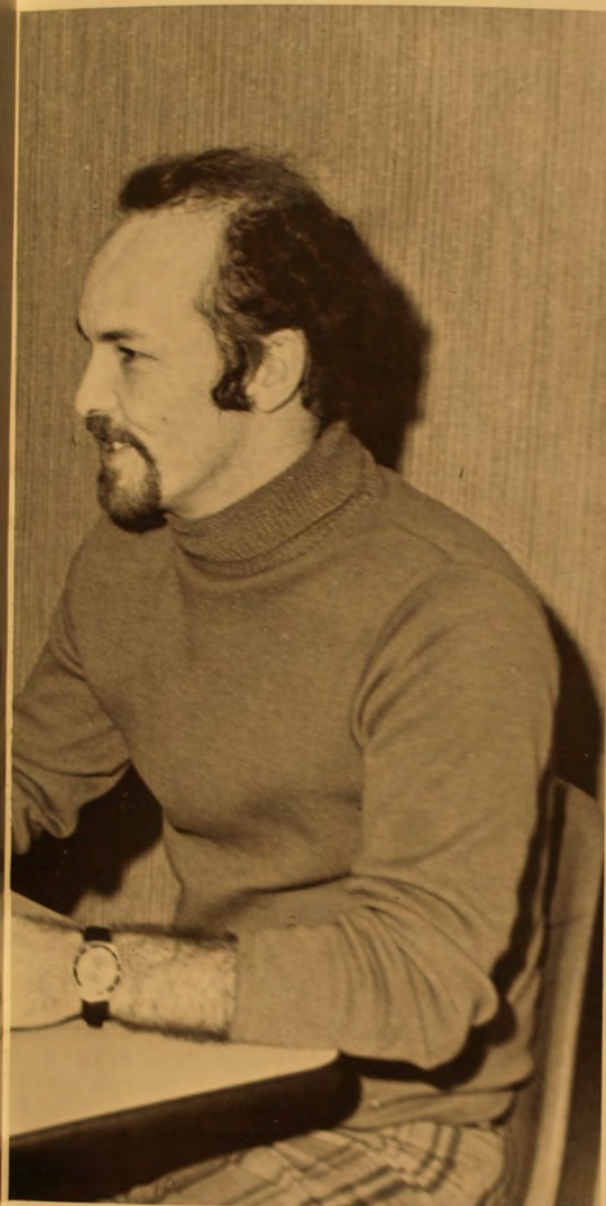

THE RHYTHM OF LIFE went on as the involvement grew. While some were protesting through marches and sit-ins, others preferred to just sleep or study—the basics of collegiate living. Some became active in student government or entered into newer fields, such as campus security work. Others were content to merely enjoy the company of one special person. To each, his own thing was still most important.

NEARLY FORGOTTEN AMONG APSU students were those of that special breed who had either come back to college after stints elsewhere or who had decided to make a try of it later than most. They were a unique group; they were the ones who could be seen most often with an armload of books. Other than their domination of the library facilities, this group was just like everyone else and had only one distinction—seniority.

FINAL EXAM WEEK instilled in students a sense of camaraderie, a firm determination and fear of the unknown. Of course, studying seemed to come a little easier when there was someone by to help and give words of encouragement like "This is hopeless!"

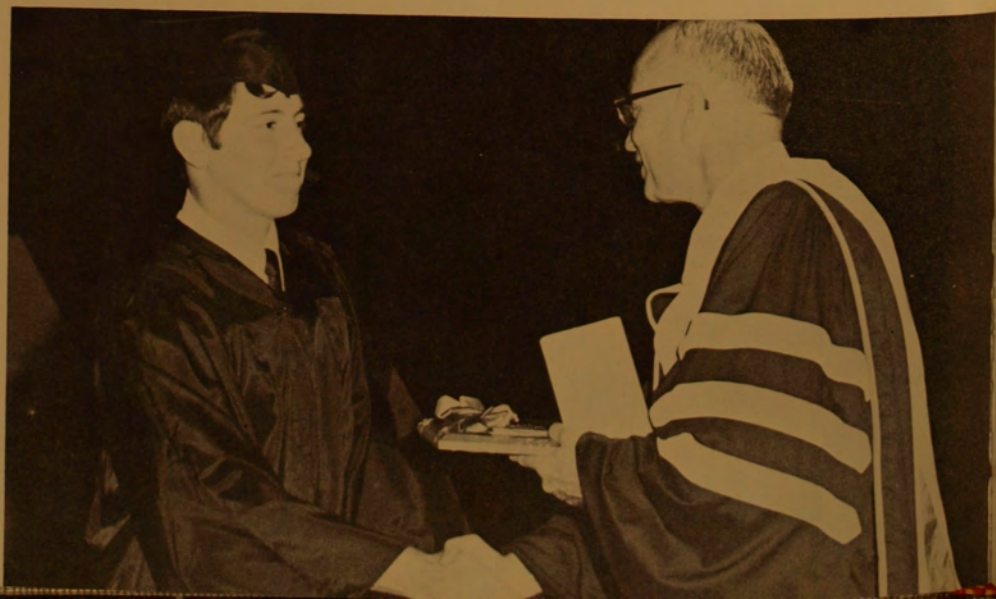

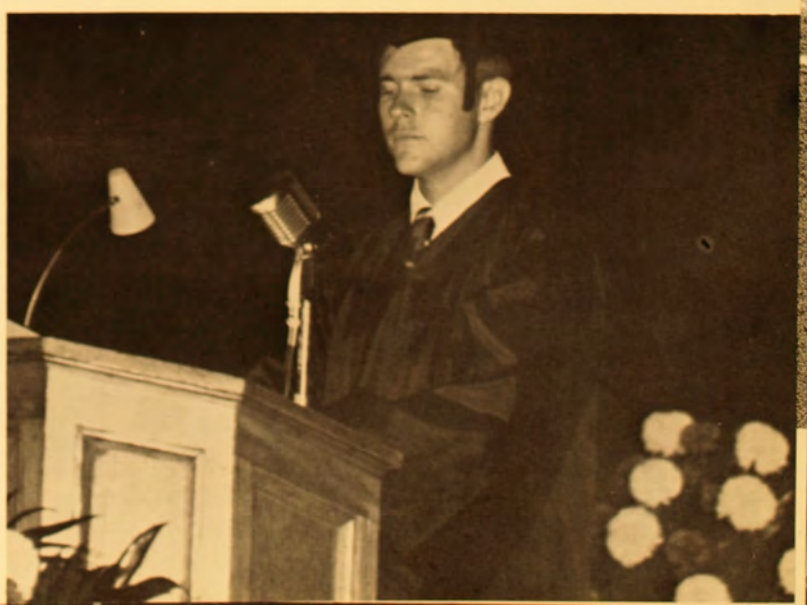

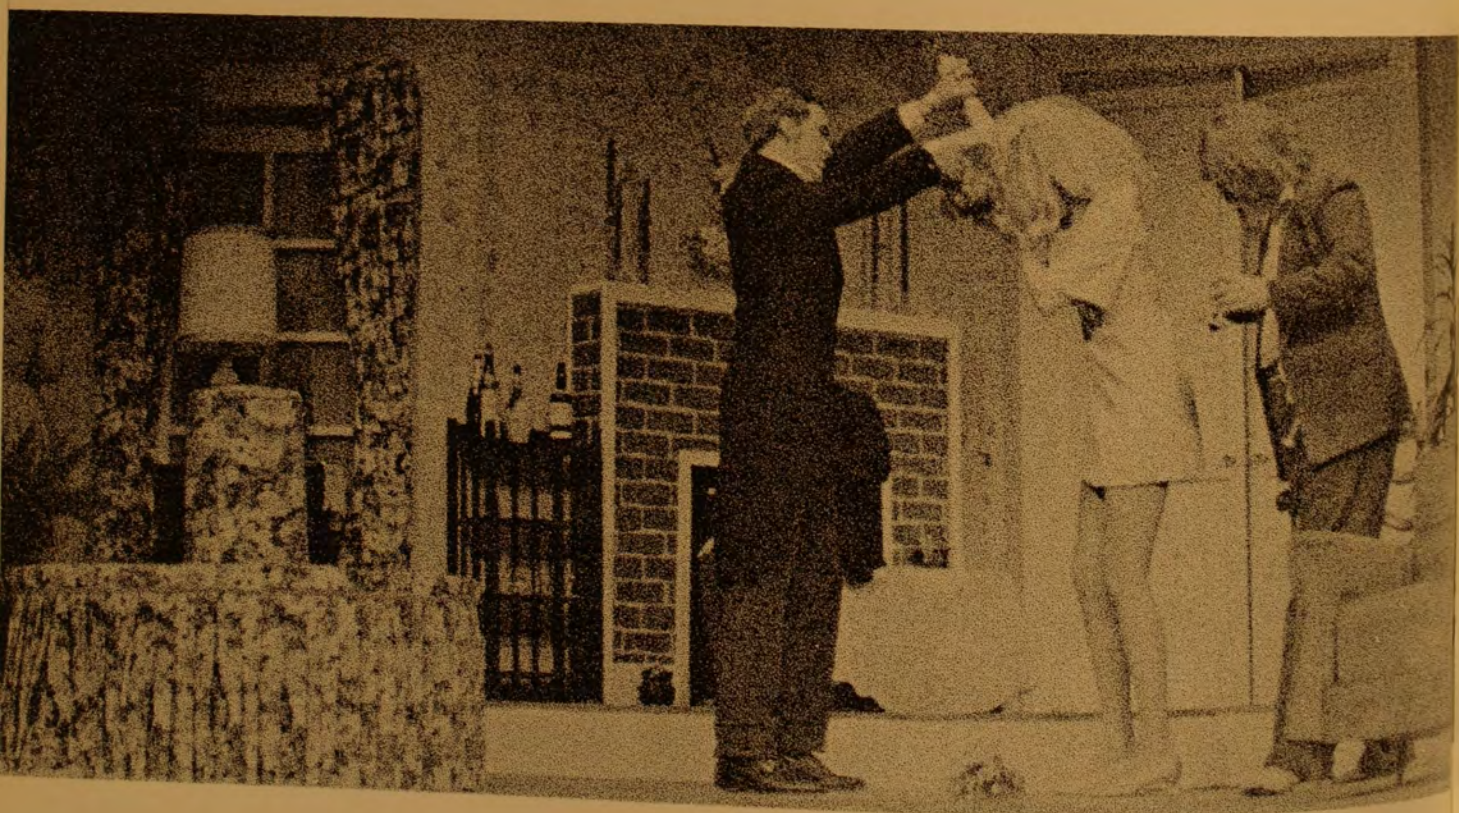

THE JUNE DEPARTURE left a certain emptiness, a feeling which is heightened by a room no longer cluttered with personal effects or by packed luggage waiting to be transported. Some students headed for home, others for far away places and new adventures. But, for every undergraduate, APSU remains silently intact—waiting for the inevitable event of the following September.

STUDENT LIFE ENDS for many APSU scholars on a quiet evening each May. Five hundred and eighty-two such students went the way of thousands more in the annual commencement exercises in 1970, and another record number were to have received degrees in the university's 42nd commencement this year.

A few of these graduates stay at APSU in various positions or study, but the majority go on, hopefully well-prepared, for a different type of life; one in which the hectic pace of collegiate living does not exist. All that remains for these is the nostalgia of it all.

RECOGNIZING A YEARBOOK is at once a record of the school year, a reference and memory book, a public relations medium and a student project, the 1971 FAREWELL & HAIL tried to carry out all these ideals under its traditional theme.

Named one of the 1970 All-American yearbooks and for the third consecutive year, the editors planned this 26th volume with past fundamentals of production in mind as well as current trends.

CHANGES IN COVER DESIGN, the number of photographs included and the amount of formality in the pictures gave the FAREWELL & HAIL a finished, modern look. Other changes included the breakdown of the organizations section into regular clubs and honor societies. Layout and design was determined as early as last summer, and production and assembly went on until late spring.

CREATIVE ENERGY in the form of poetry, short stories, essays, photography and art work was channeled through The Tower, APSU's literary magazine. Students and faculty were eligible to submit material to be considered for publication. The annual spring quarter publication awarded cash prizes in each major literary and art category, as well as for best cover design. Under the sponsorship of the English department, The Tower endeavored to provide students with a diverse selection of campus work of literary and artistic merit.

RATED AS ONE of the best in the country, The All State was awarded an All-American rating for the fifth straight year. The student weekly was given a Mark of Distinction by the Associated Collegiate Press judges in the areas of writing and editing, editorial leadership, physical appearance and photography.

Operating under the Board of Student Publications, the newspaper reported and discussed events of topical and future interest to the students, faculty, alumni and university community.

EDITORIAL LEADERSHIP of the paper changed before winter quarter. Rebecca Taylor, editor-in-chief, left the staff to marry former editor of The All State, David Bibb, under whom she was associate editor in 1969-70.

Throughout the year the newsweekly attempted to bring students up-to-date, accurate coverage of happenings pertinent to campus life. The news was distilled and purified through the editing and rewriting process before it actually came out in print.

SIGMA TAU OMEGA began the year by accepting the position of sister sorority to the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity. Highlights of 1970-71 included a coffee hour during homecoming for sorority alumnae, and the annual rush during winter quarter. Sigma Tau Omega was represented at the ISC's Greek Follies with a skit portraying the antics of the Crump Family.

THETA PHI EPSILON, promoter of high ideals and server of the campus community, worked as a sorority for the increased enjoyment and range of social life at APSU. In addition, the sorority sponsored Pickle Day, a pie throw and painting of trash cans. A favorite service project was visiting patients at the Ft. Campbell hospital. Pledges were easily recognized by their blue and white wardrobe, beanies and a goodie box under their arm.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA was officially installed as a national colony in early February after being organized in the fall as Zeta Phi Alpha, a local fraternity. The fraternity then established residence in a house and adopted a sister sorority, Sigma Tau Omega. The colony's activities included winning the spirit stick for their support at basketball games, an open house and an invitational basketball tournament.

KAPPA SIGMA PHI, the first local fraternity to establish on campus, has set its sights on "going national" with the Sigma Chi social fraternity. Kappa Sigma Phi laid the groundwork for national fraternities at APSU through the establishment of other locals in the fall.

Frat members played the basketball team of the Kentucky State Penitentiary in February; the result was a Valentine's Day massacre for the inmates.

PI KAPPA ALPHA used the song "We Are The Men of PI K A" when the local Phi Delta fraternity colonized with the international fraternity in early February. During Greek Week in February, the Pikes boasted a fine record by having all the rushees they sent bids accept membership. The colony distributed food baskets during Thanksgiving; hosted a Christmas party for 70 needy children; coordinated an inter-fraternity tennis match during the spring; and planned to attend a summer leadership training program in Memphis.

SIGMA PHI EPSILON, the third local fraternity to colonize with a national, was Phi Sigma Chi until they were installed in early March. They announced their colonization by distributing book marks to students and faculty.

Sig Ep members participated in all of the rush activities of Greek Week, and their first major service project was the sponsorship of a foster child from Brazil.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA, national service fraternity, climaxed a busy year with their second annual "Ugly Man On Campus" contest. Proceeds from the event went to a scholarship fund.

APO donated a flagpole to APSU's new baseball stadium by selling deeds to its parts.

The ball on top of the pole was auctioned to campus organizations and the proceeds went to the Cerebral Palsy telethon. Pi Kappa Alpha submitted the top bid and received a plaque.

CIRCLE K, a service organization sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Clarksville, again held a high school basketball tournament to provide a high school senior from each participating school with a scholarship. The 50-member organization acted as parade marshals at the homecoming and Christmas parades, and sold tickets for Kiwanis Pancake Day. The club also took an active part in the donkey basketball game and the annual pizza-eating contest.

THE COLLEGIATE CIVITAN CLUB hosted a district convention in May at which Tennessee Gov. Winfield Dunn was scheduled as keynote speaker was a highlight of the year. Fifteen colleges and universities throughout the state attended the two-day event.

Builders of good citizenship, the Civitans also sponsored a car wash, a spaghetti supper and a banquet for new members. Service projects included planting irises around the campus flagpole and helping with the Cerebral Palsy telethon in Jackson.

THE AP PLAYHOUSE staged several outstanding productions including "Halfway Up A Tree," "A Majority Of One," "Clouds," "The Last of the Leprechauns" and "The Birthday Party." Student-directed one-act plays and presentation of Max Awards to outstanding members spotlighted Playhouse activities. Members also helped stage the Oberammegau Passion Play and the Miss Hat and Cane pageant.

STUDENT NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION, an organization open to students interested in a career as an educator, helped prepare future teachers through discussion and application of educational topics and trends. Meetings were held in the cafeteria, and after a meal and fellowship, a short program relevant to the field was presented. As an example, Dr. Allan S. Williams presented a talk to the members on his trip to South America.

MUSIC EDUCATORS NATIONAL CONFERENCE provided opportunities for professional development for college students interested in the field of music education. The conference made it possible for students to further their education through participation in state, division and national meetings of the organization.

Membership was open to all students enrolled in a music education curriculum, but who were not employed in the field of music.

THE PHYSICAL EDUCATION AND HEALTH CLUB attended the national convention of the American Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation in Detroit. Six members attended, and the club sponsored a car wash to defray convention expenses. The club also sponsored the annual 'A' Day activities in Pettus Park, where students competed in such events as tug-of-war and an egg throw.

THE UNION FOR WOMEN'S RIGHTS was organized during the fall. This women's liberation group was open to both student and faculty members. The union sponsored a petition calling for the state legislature to oppose the Bates' sterilization bill. An abortion panel defining information on procedure, counseling and legal and psychological aspects was sponsored by the organization. Panelists included Rita Geier, attorney; Dr. T. J. Montgomery, Dr. Elizabeth Stokes, psychology professor; and Joanne Cooke, editor of Motive magazine.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS, attempting to aid and foster the growth of the Republican party and help better the community, worked in the 1970 gubernatorial and senatorial races in Tennessee.

Members supported GOP candidates by distributing campaign literature, conducting a public opinion poll and working at local headquarters. During Christmas, the club collected money for the Salvation Army.

THE POLITICAL STUDIES ASSOCIATION sponsored a drive to obtain books for the Tennessee State Prison Library. The drive was climaxed by the kidnapping of the president and adviser of Phi Kappa Alpha and Alpha Tau Omega fraternities for a ransom of two books per member. A total of 700 books were raised.

The association also sponsored a pre-election ballot for students who could not otherwise have a vote in state elections. The result of the balloting was disputed and, consequently, voided by the PSA.

THE AFRO-AMERICAN ALLIANCE featured a soul food dinner during National Black History Week which included chitterlings, turnip greens and cornbread. During the week, members also put exhibits on display in the library and student center.

Focusing primarily on black interests, the alliance provided transportation to the polls during elections, and they sold black Christmas cards for the Martin Luther King Scholarship.

THE STUDENT WIVES CLUB awarded PHT (Putting Hubby Through) degrees to members with graduating husbands at their annual spring banquet in May. Monthly meetings of the wives included fashion shows, a wig demonstration, a homecoming breakfast and a talk on family planning and birth control. Members entered teams in the basketball and volleyball intramurals.

THE DOLPHINS, synchronized swimming group, presented "Sounds of the Seasons" for their spring show. Special lighting effects, costumes and seasonal songs accompanied the coordinated swimming routines. Swimmers started working on group drills and individual stunts for solos as early as the winter quarter. Pooling their efforts, the group gave a wet and wild performance for the university community.

THE BAPTIST STUDENT UNION opened the activities at the BSU convention in the fall with an original abstract drama. The play depicted man's search for identity through dialogue, pantomime, poetry and slides.

The union sponsored a Wednesday lunch, Noonspiration, for students. In addition, the members participated in overnight retreats aimed at spiritual renewal and personal commitment.

THE WESLEY FOUNDATION began Sunday morning worship services in January. Services featured contemporary music, favorite hymns and student-centered messages of concern. Students and faculty members were actively involved in the services of celebration, and guest speakers were invited about once each month. The foundation also continued its tutoring of elementary children from Bailey Cobb School. Members met with the students for one afternoon each week and helped them with problem areas of study, largely reading and mathematics.

ONE OF SIX TEAMS to be recognized for outstanding spirit at the Mississippi Cheering Camp last summer, the APSU cheerleaders attempted to personify enthusiasm. Weeks of practice during early fall turned out unique and polished cheers and routines for the home crowds at all football and basketball games. A three-week clinic conducted by the 1970 squad helped to select the cheerleaders for 1971.

THE HALFTIME PERFORMANCE of the APSU-Tennessee Tech football game was dedicated to Dr. Aaron Schmidt by the Marching Governors and Governettes. A plaque was also presented to the director of bands for his 15 years of service. The 168-member band and Governettes, a precision drill team, performed at APSU games, plus several parades. The Collegians, stage band, appeared on the WSM-TV "Noon Show" prior to playing as host band at the Mid-South Jazz Festival.

HIGH-LEVEL ABILITY students comprised the Symphonic Band, which was directed by Dr. Aaron Schmidt. Touring throughout the winter quarter, the Symphonic Band presented a concert at the end of several visits to area high schools. The musical organization also played for commencement, plus presenting a spring concert.

Under the direction of a graduate assistant, the Lab Band was a music experience group open to all university students.

THE BRASS CHOIR presented concerts and made a tour of high schools in Tennessee and Kentucky. Possessing the finest selected brass instrument performers, the Brass Choir was directed by John D. Larkin, instructor in music.

Adding to an already fine reputation as an outstanding brass ensemble, the Brass Choir toured three states last year.

THE ORCHESTRA, a combination of wind and string instruments, performed selections in a concert presented in March.

Pieces ranged from contemporary American composers to Beethoven and Haydn.

Under the direction of Dr. Solie Fott, instrumentalists from the local community and university students and faculty comprised the orchestra.

MUSIC FROM THE RENAISSANCE to the 20th Century composed the program of two concerts given by the University Choir. Under the direction of George Mabry, the fall concert featured music of the Christmas season. The 75-voice choir's spring concert was highlighted by the presentation of a special arrangement of the "Midnight Cowboy" theme.

The Chamber Singers, directed by Dr. Herman Keahey, were part of the University Choir's spring concert performed for the university community.

Jones, Jr., F. Thornton Strang, Edwin H. Kennedy, J. Frank Taylor. Right: Hon. Buford Ellington, governor of Tennessee.

ENROLLMENT in the state's higher education institutions showed an increase of 6,853 over the previous year; the growth has been greatly encouraged and aided by the efforts of Gov. Buford Ellington and the state board of education.

Gov. Ellington is an ex-officio member of the board, which is the governing body of Austin Peay State University.

The board serves over five other regional state universities, the state's community colleges, regional technical institutes, area vocational schools and is the policy-making and regulatory board for the public school system of Tennessee.

During this academic year, Ellington completed his second four-year term as governor. J. Howard Warf, commissioner of education and chairman of the board, completed eight years as the state's top education chief.

The state administration has shown great interest in the improvement of APSU through the sponsorship of its programs.

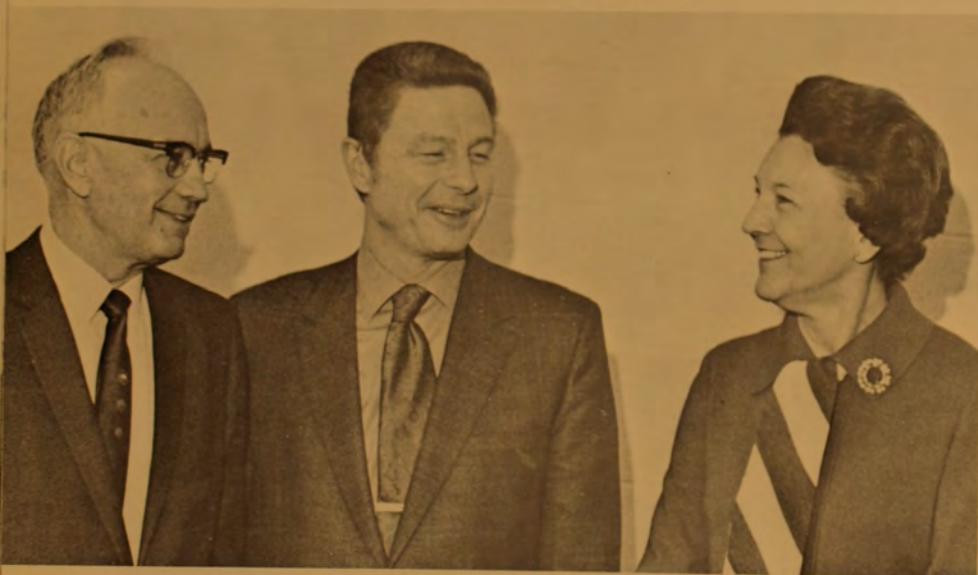

Below: Dr. Joe Morgan, president, points out a desired change in a document to Miss Frances Ogles, secretary. Below right: Dr. Morgan uses the telephone to discuss one of the many details which occupy his time as university chief executive. Bottom: Profile of the president is mirrored as he stands with Mrs. Morgan in the president's house.

UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT, Dr. Joe Morgan, has served APSU in this capacity since 1963. Expansion and improvement, both in academics and the physical structure, have been high priorities since his arrival.

A member of the Southern Region Education Board and a past state commissioner of education, the fourth president of APSU has worked diligently developing programs to make a greater university. Comparisons show tremendous gains in academic programs, degree expansion, student services, professional staff, enrollment, operating budget, capital outlay and university plant investment.

CHIEF ACADEMIC ADVISER, F. G. Woodward was honored in the fall with a 40-year service pin from Gov. Buford Ellington. One of two members of the original Austin Peay Normal School faculty still active, Woodward served his third year as assistant to the president. He was dean of faculty from 1946-68.

The scholarly Woodward taught some English classes; during his early career he was chairman of the department. His experience has enabled him to properly advise students in choice of curriculum, area of concentration and core requirements.

STEVE CASTLEBERRY joined the administrative staff as assistant to the dean of faculties during the summer. In the newly created position, he has helped Dr. William H. Ellis, dean of faculties, meet the increasing academic demands of this growing institution. Dr. Ellis continued to strengthen the educational program with the addition of 45 members of the faculty and professional staff. A research project, which sought to aid the administration in making better future decisions, was conducted in questionnaire form by Castleberry during the fall quarter. The questionnaire was distributed to five groups of people—students, faculty, alumni, administrators and Clarksville community leaders.

MRS. MARY G. WINDHAM became the director of nurse education in 1970, and immediately she set out to establish a sound program, which received accreditation from the state board of nursing. Dr. Wayne E. Stamper continued to supervise the expansion of the graduate program. The addition of much-sought-after degrees and improvement of methods of instruction are primary goals of Dean Stamper.

Dr. Tom K. Savage spent much of his time on National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education teams studying college and university programs, while Dr. J F Burney worked for the expansion of programs in the school of business and economics.

DEAN OF ADMISSIONS AND REGISTRAR

PRE-REGISTRATION entered its second year of consecutive operation during the winter quarter under the watchful eyes of Glenn S. Gentry, dean of admissions and registrar, and Leon Kennedy, director of computer center.

The practice, which was begun in earlier years but terminated, continued to be popular with the students.

Gentry has instigated much-welcomed changes in registration procedures, which have been made possible through the increased use of computerized equipment. The computer center started a practice of aiding faculty in the grading of examinations, in addition to its many other services.

Left: Walter N. Wilson, director of purchasing. Below: R. C. Shasteen, business manager. Below left: Two familiar individuals to students in the business office are Mrs. Alice Taylor, senior accountant, and Mrs. Frances Garland, assistant business manager.

BUSINESS AFFAIRS, always a vital area of the university, gained more attention due to the critical economic trend on both the state and national level.

R. C. Shasteen, business manager, kept a close tab on the record budget and the fiscal affairs. As chief officer of business affairs, Shasteen's responsibilities included audits, accounting, purchasing, payrolls and several other related areas.

Walter N. Wilson, director of purchasing, continued very efficiently to issue orders for supplies, equipment and services required by the university.

Services to the business office by the computer center were enhanced by the renovation of the Browning Building.

TWO NEW MEMBERS joined the area of student personnel, one as an addition and another as a replacement. Bobby D. Wall joined the staff as director of housing and security to expand student services in these areas. David L. Watson replaced Larry Richardson as director of the University Center.

Doytt D. Redmond, director of men's affairs, was instrumental in the organization of three new men's fraternities and operation of the existing frat. Miss Mildred Deason, director of women's affairs, continued to work closely with women students in advisement and counseling.

In his third year as dean of students, Charles N. Boehms directed the student personnel services.

PUBLIC RELATIONS, an all-encompassing term, for the university was led by Earl E. Sexton, director of development and field services. Sexton had the general responsibility of coordinating the functions of public information, alumni relations and placement. In addition, he initiated and coordinated development programs and student recruitment, and he administered the student financial aid program. Henry C. Malone coordinated the activities of the highly successful homecoming, served as tour host on the alumni-sponsored European trip and concentrated on student recruitment in Kentucky. Although the job market was down for graduating seniors across the country, Mrs. Wanda Pinckley continued to find employment for APSU students.

PROMOTION of the university through the news media and preparation and advisement of publications kept Sherwin Clift, director of public information; John R. Martin, Jr., sports information director; and Gerald L. Tenney, director of photographic services, quite busy. Clift served his third year as state chairman of the National Council of College Publications Advisers, and he directed the award-winning newspaper and yearbook. Martin's football pressbook won top honors in NCAA District 3 for the second straight year, and Tenney was re-elected secretary of the University Photographers of America.

THE STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION, the branch of the university administration comprised solely of members of the student body, found itself in the role of both initiator and peacemaker for the campus community. In a day when student governments have become centers of controversy around the nation's campuses, the local SGA attempted to serve as a balancing force during the fall quarter with the Police-Student Co-Operation Program. Responsibility for the approval or rejection of student organizations on campus continued as a flurry of groups were formed.

THE PROGRAM BOARD of the University Center found itself with added responsibilities as a result of the new Student Government Association constitution. All university entertainment comes under the auspices of the board, while members continue to supervise events in the University Center.

Ken McGregor began the year as chairman of the program board; he was succeeded in the middle of the fall quarter by Tommy Burney. Greg Damms won the chairmanship in a January 27 election to be primarily responsible for all entertainment next year.

Seven committee chairmen and four members-at-large complete the membership of the board, which is watchdog over the student center.

THE STUDENT TRIBUNAL, highest student court in the university, heard cases and held various sessions during its second year of existence.

Major function of the tribunal is to assure the student and the university that their rights shall be maintained. Under the Student Tribunal operate two lower branches of the campus judicial system—the Men's Affairs Board and the Women's Affairs Board.

THE WOMEN'S AFFAIRS BOARD, formerly known as the Women's Student Government Council, considered changes in regulations of residence halls during the spring quarter. During the year, the body experimented with different sign-out systems; the WAB also considered self-determined hours for upperclassmen.

Below, clockwise: Women's Affairs Board—Babs Sears, Judy Hollis, Emily Aaron, Sandy Strohl, Jeannie Jordan, Miss Mildred Deason, Viva Smith and Diane Measells. Bottom: Miss Mildred Deason, director of women's affairs, chats with board members Emily Aaron and Sandy Strohl prior to a meeting of the group.

THE MEN'S AFFAIRS BOARD heard a number of disciplinary cases during the year, which greatly reduced the number of cases to be taken to the Student Tribunal. Composed of representatives from all men's residence halls and male commuting students, the board assisted in the operation of the dormitory program and worked to improve living conditions in the male residence halls. Promotion and improvement in the co-curricular and extracurricular life of the male students continued to be one of the primary objectives of the MAB. The board also made resolutions, standard rules and regulations to govern the male students. The body made recommendations concerning programs and activities relating to male students to the director of men's affairs and dean of students.

Left: Jackie Womack and Joan Twigg, ISC representatives, assist council adviser Miss Mildred Deason with plans for a fall quarter activity.

TWO COUNCILS, the Inter-Fraternity Council and the Inter-Sorority Council, were strengthened during the academic year as fraternities and sororities flourished as never before in the history of APSU. The Inter-Fraternity Council, comprised of representatives of the social fraternities, operated within the guidelines published by the Advisory Committee.

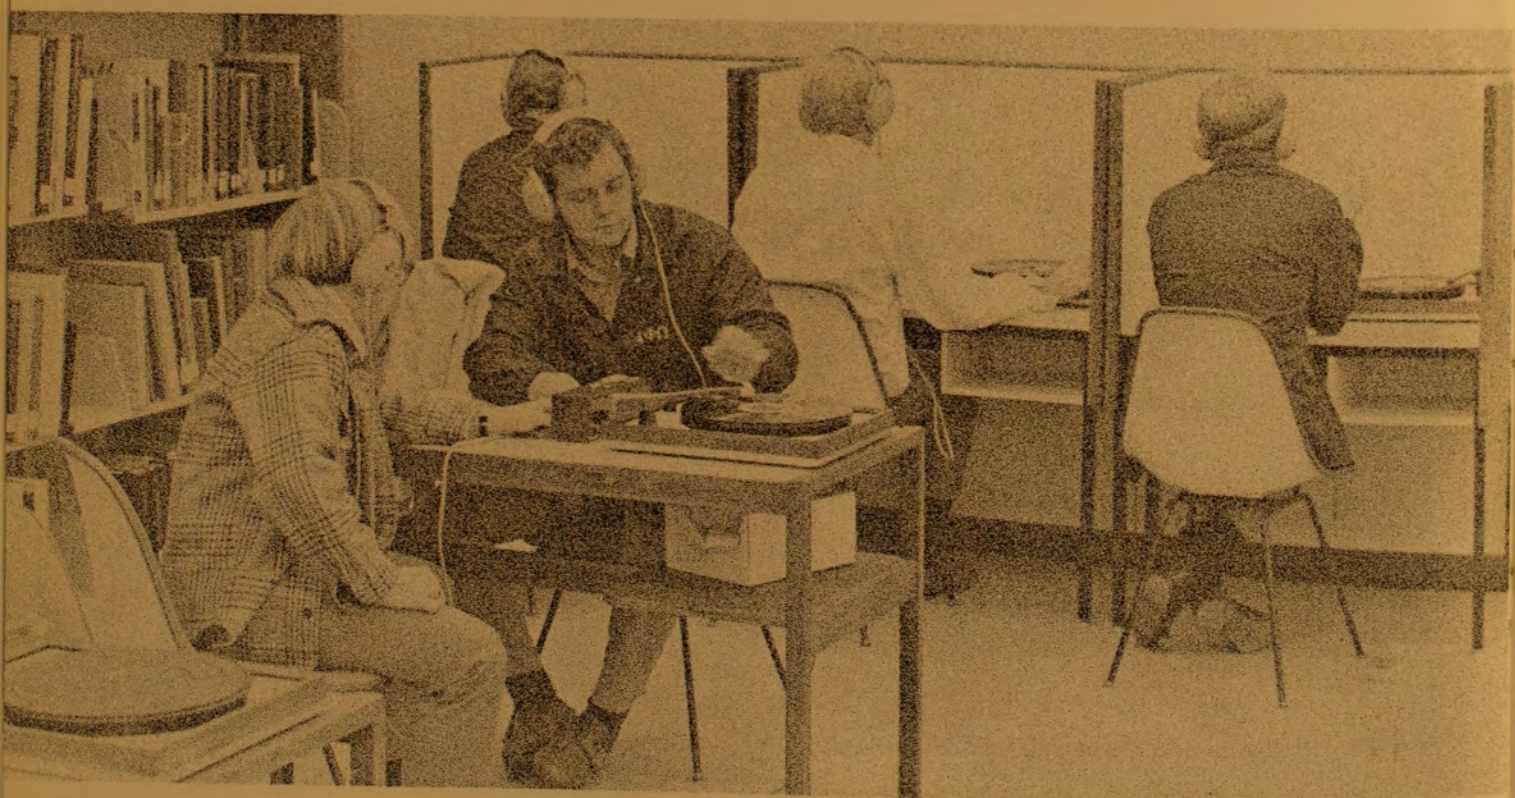

Governing body of the social sororities, the Inter-Sorority Council sponsored the Valentine Dance, the Presentation Ball and the Greek Follies. The council participated in homecoming and all activities concerned with Greek life.

THE BOARD OF STUDENT PUBLICATIONS continued to exercise supervision over student publications and to help maintain the best standards of collegiate journalism. The 13-member board has jurisdiction over the FAREWELL & HAIL, The All State and The Tower. All organizations and individuals were required by the general policies of the board to notify the board of their intent to publish or distribute printed material for general, campus-wide student consumption. Floyd Brown, associate professor of biology, was elected chairman of the board; he replaced Charles M. Waters, associate professor of English. Membership included seven students and six members from the faculty and administrative personnel.

THE ART DEPARTMENT, showing growing pains, will be housed in the drama-fine arts building for which ground was broken. The $1 million-plus facility will house all of the department, which became spread out across the campus due to increased enrollment.

Original works by noted artists were on display and for sale in the Trahern Gallery in early January. Student shows also continued to draw considerable university interest.

CHEMISTRY ENLARGED its department by adding John D. Foote, assistant professor, to the staff. The department boasts four doctorates, whose degrees were earned at Alabama, Tennessee, Ohio State and Vanderbilt universities. John B. Bond, professor, was presented a 40-year service pin by Gov. Buford Ellington in the governor's office during the fall. Bond, a native of Bastrop, Tex., came to AP Normal School in 1929. He holds the bachelor of science and master of arts degrees from George Peabody College.

IN THE BIOLOGY DEPARTMENT, plans for the opening of an environmental science program in the fall of 1971 were announced. As part of the $2.1 million newly established Center for Teachers program, the five-year pilot project will provide for future high school teachers in the area, plus in-service assistance to teachers in 21 school systems.

A popular department on campus, biology was staffed with seven doctorates. In addition, three others have completed all course work for the doctorate.

ENGLISH witnessed the addition of six new faculty members to take care of the 6,091 hours registered for by students in the fall quarter. Joining the department were William Barnette, Albert Bekus, Don Der, Clarence Ikerd, James Lester and Franklin Williams. Dr. Charles C. Holt was promoted to associate professor, and Malcolm S. Glass, another associate professor, worked on a unique project which involved the writing of poetry to blend with art work done by a graduate student, Dianne B. Harris.

THE DEPARTMENT OF HISTORY increased its offerings by two when courses No. 407 and No. 408 were reinstated. The department added Richard Gildrie, assistant professor, who holds the master of arts degree from the University of Virginia. Dr. Paul Hyatt also returned to teaching in the department; he had been serving as acting chairman of the sociology department.

GEOGRAPHY AND GEOLOGY added two doctorates, Charles W. Dimmick and James Dunigan. A minor in earth science was added, and will begin in the fall of 1971. Dr. James X. Corgan, associate professor, will direct the program, which is under the Center for Teachers program. Some of the new courses for the minor include astrogeology, volcanology and elements of seismology.

MATHEMATICS continued to receive support of the National Science Foundation, and was funded more than $28,000 in grants during the school year.

The department also revived the Galois Club, which had been inactive for the past several years. The club was reorganized with the aims of promoting better understanding between faculty and students, and gaining more comprehensive understanding of mathematics outside the classroom.

Joining the faculty were Dr. C. Bruce Myers, assistant professor, and James Ronald Gupton, instructor.

MODERN LANGUAGES received an honor when Dr. Joseph V. Thomas, departmental chairman, was elected national president of Alpha Mu Gamma at the organization's biennial convention in Albany, N.Y., in April. The national collegiate foreign language honor society consists of 163 active chapters located at colleges and universities in all parts of the country.

Below: Members of the Philosophy Club listen as president Harry Hunter leads an outdoor discussion during a club meeting. Panel: Donald Mikula, chairman; Earl D. Forderhase. Bottom: Dr. Donald Mikula receives exam paper from student in office amid a discussion with another student.

THE PHILOSOPHY DEPARTMENT saw Dr. Donald M. Mikula return as chairman to replace Dr. Floyd D. Crenshaw, who left for a position in Colorado.

Attempting to encourage students to develop curiosity and concern about man and the relation to his existence in the world, the department not only offered a major but provided a strong background for graduate work in the area of concentration.

Special value was available for students preparing for careers in government, law and education.

THE PHYSICS DEPARTMENT continued involvement in the Center for Teachers, a unique science and mathematics project. Approval of a $1.3 million grant from the National Science Foundation, plus the university's part in the five-year pilot project, pushed the total cost for the entire project and building preparation to $2.1 million.

Melburn R. Mayfield became director of the project, and Sara Wood was named acting chairman of the physics department. The center will be staffed by 10 full-time members, and 22 APSU faculty members will be involved, some working with the center on a part-time basis.

Pre-service preparation for future high school teachers of chemistry, earth science, environmental science, mathematics and physics, plus in-service assistance to all high school science and mathematics teachers in both Tennessee and Kentucky, will be included in the project.

THE POLITICAL SCIENCE chairmanship changed when Dr. Vernon C. Warren, Jr., succeeded Dr. Edwin L. Cobb. Dr. Warren was appointed acting chairman of the department, and Thomas Pinckney was added as an instructor.

Course structure of the department allowed the student to pursue not only a departmental major, but also a distributive major in international relations. Development of political philosophy, ideology and science were examined in the courses offered, as well as present-day government and politics of newly developing nations.

With emphasis placed on political problems of current importance, the department encouraged the student to broaden his understanding of political science as a discipline and as a profession.

A MAJOR IN SOCIOLOGY will be offered at the outset of the 1971 fall quarter, pending approval from the Higher Education Commission. After receiving approval from the Academic Council and Dr. Joe Morgan, president, the proposal was approved by the state board.

Roy E. Neeley, Jr., joined the staff in the fall as an assistant professor; he holds a master's degree from Florida State University.

SPEECH AND THEATRE offered students opportunities to participate in the various organizations of the department, in addition to the regular instruction.

These department-sponsored organizations were the AP Playhouse, Alpha Psi Omega and the debate team. The AP Playhouse presented several productions during the year, and the debate team worked primarily in the field of interpretation.

Above: Drama students rehearse a scene from the AP Playhouse production of "A Majority of One." Panel: I. Joe Filippio, chairman; John G. Griffin, Linda G. Jackson.

THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION acquired new projectors, video equipment and more than $5,000 of duplication and projection equipment to help students develop their skills.

Three doctorates were added; these included Marguerite J. Boercker, George M. Rawlins, III, and Richard C. Yarbrow.

Dr. Allan S. Williams, associate professor, was appointed to the editorial board of The Educational Catalyst, a new publication which will have distribution in 10 southeastern states.

Newly initiated courses were aimed at the needs of the mentally retarded, and the problems found in this area of study.

HEALTH AND PHYSICAL EDUCATION planned for the future with the proposal for a new facility to cost approximately $3.5 million. The proposed building never got underway as the state administration deleted the structure from APSU's capital outlay funds after the Higher Education Commission had recommended it. An extension of time from two to three years was allowed students to complete their six quarter hours of physical education requirements. Still, each of the six quarter hours must be earned during a different quarter.

ADDITIONS TO PSYCHOLOGY were Dr. Peter Minetos, a graduate of the University of Alabama, and Beulah Murray. Both were named assistant professors.

A course in personality appraisals was offered for the first time to expand the departmental offerings.

Headed by Dr. Garland E. Blair, the department continued to prepare teachers and guidance counselors. Orientation to the scientific study of human behavior was a prerequisite to most of the courses. Covering all areas of human development, normal and abnormal, the department also offered opportunities for directed individual study.

Above: Dr. Garland Blair watches psychology students work with a pair of white rats, which are being trained for students wishing to gain experience in animal behavior and learning. Above right: Students listen to human development lecture in psychology lab. Panel, top row: Garland E. LIBRARY SCIENCE expanded its basic training program with the development of two new courses. Bibliography and Reference Materials, plus Principles of Librarianship, were added for the benefit of students who plan to enter graduate school. Steady acquisition of equipment, such as record players and reproductions of masterpieces, aided the work of the area of instruction. A fund-raising project during the year made it possible to purchase new draperies for classrooms.

SCIENCE, an area of instruction, gained Dr. Carlton H. Stedman, assistant professor, to direct the program. Stedman, who holds the Ed.D. from Indiana University, replaced Sue H. Duncan, resigned.

Instruction in the area included study of problems concerning the earth and its atmosphere, physical and chemical phenomena and living things.

Direct teaching experience in large group instruction was provided in 301, while small group and individualized activities were used in 302. Courses were designed for the preparation of an individualized instructional package, which were field tested on elementary pupils.

school of business and economics

ACCOUNTING possessed three certified public accountants in the department. These included J F Burney, chairman; Lawrence F. Baggett and Jerry Weatherspoon.

Five students participated in Emory University's sixth annual Intercollegiate Business Game at Atlanta. The team, supervised by Baggett, made decisions in 19 areas against other top undergraduate business students from 40 colleges and universities throughout the country. Decisions included selling stock, adding salesmen trainees and pricing and advertising for the computerized imaginary company.

INTEREST IN BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION by students and ever-increasing employment in certain areas spurred the addition of two courses. Concerning principles and policies of management, the new courses aimed at giving students an analytical approach to business problems. Three new members were added to the departmental faculty. They were Donald Boren, assistant professor; Hershel Camp, instructor; and O. J. Jennings, instructor. Another member of the department, Billy E. Thompson, was selected to appear in the 1970 edition of "Outstanding Young Men of America" on the basis of his achievements in the field. He was nominated by Belmont College, his alma mater. The department boasted the largest undergraduate enrollment by major in the university with 339 during the winter quarter and 322 in the spring quarter.

ECONOMICS CHAIRMAN Dr. Aaron A. Hutcheson was promoted from associate professor to professor, and Delmar R. Frazier returned from Indiana University, where he had been working toward his doctorate. The third member of the staff was John McKittrick, who joined the department in 1969.

Economic theory, interdisciplinary aspects of economics and applied economics were the specialization areas of the trio.

BUSINESS EDUCATION acquired the "secretarial pool" look during the winter quarter when office-style desks, secretarial chairs and colorful typewriters were added to one classroom. Students also worked with modern, up-to-date office machines, such as duplicators, rotary calculators, 10-key adding machines and many different brand-name typewriters. Secretarial and business education students attended the Certified Professional Secretary Seminar held at Clarksville High School during the fall quarter. During the winter quarter, local businessmen and current films were brought into the classrooms, and students visited offices and interviewed prominent secretaries in the area.

MARKETING added two instructors, one a replacement for the resigned Robert S. Stretcher, and the other an addition. A. J. Taylor and Lee Fury were the two new instructors.

The field did not require a minor for a major, and it was designed for the student seeking employment in advertising agencies, wholesale and retail establishments and in various departments of distributing and manufacturing concerns. Members of the Marketing Club toured the facilities of WLAC-TV in the fall; they viewed actual production as it was taking place.

THE AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT expanded and progressed in several areas. Two new courses were offered; these were in the areas of applied animal nutrition and soil classification. New laboratory equipment was purchased for the analysis of feed for various nutrients. The equipment will continue to be used in conjunction with the nutrition courses required in the agriculture curriculum.

Dr. Gaines Hunt was added to the department. He received his B.S. from APSU and his Ph.D. from Mississippi State University. He joined the staff after the year began as an assistant professor.

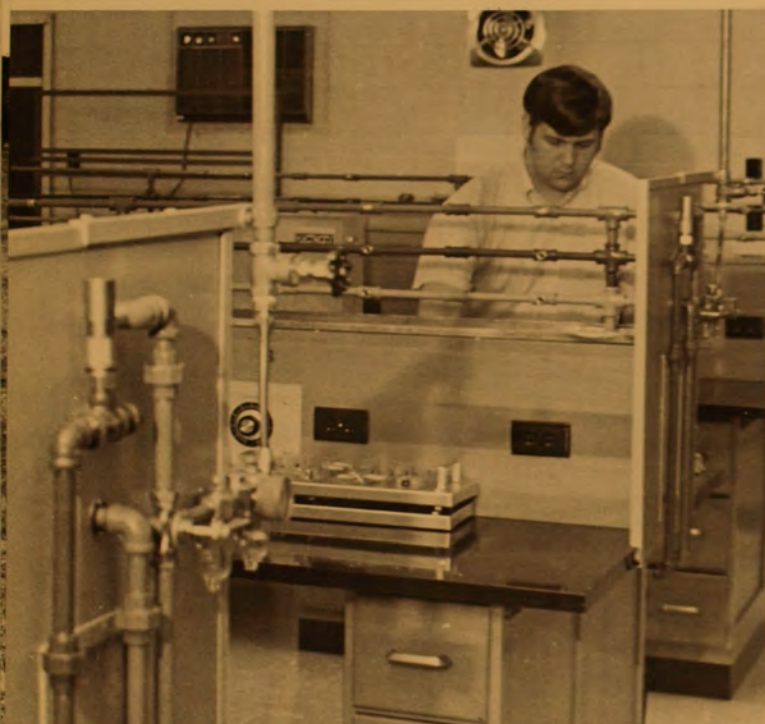

Above left: Students survey the countryside in an agriculture class designed to give special emphasis to this field. Above: Majors start counting their chickens as they hatch at the incubator at the APSU Farm. Panel: James D. Hamilton, chairman; Frank D. Hinton.

HOME ECONOMICS added international flavor to the department when Dr. Sanobar Qureshi was added as an assistant professor. She holds the B.Sc. and M.Sc. degrees from the University of Sind in Pakistan, the M.S. from Columbia University and the Ph.D. from Texas Woman's University.

Instructor Beverly McNair supervised the APSU Nursery School in conjunction with the department. Ten children, mostly three-year-olds, were enrolled during the year. The children, five boys and five girls, received supervision from majors and observation from psychology students.

THE EXPANDING INDUSTRIAL ARTS facilities were enhanced by the acquisition of new equipment for use in instruction in several courses.

Materials included all new equipment in the course on fluid power, new sandblasters, a heat-treating furnace, equipment in plastics and welding, harness testers and a new jigsaw.

In addition to instruction by the four regular members of the department, Dr. Wayne Stamper, dean of the graduate school, taught a class in metallurgy.

NURSE EDUCATION was reinstated as a two-year accredited program, and studies began during the winter quarter under the leadership of Mary G. Windham, director. Outlook for the program grew brighter when plans for the expansion of program quarters in the renovated McReynolds Building were announced during the winter. Originally scheduled to begin in 1969, the program was abandoned temporarily when an attempt to complete the staffing with necessary degrees was unsuccessful. Ginger R. Alessi and Elizabeth B. Keele joined the program in the fall.

JOURNALISM, an area of instruction, offered the student an opportunity to learn both in the classroom and in a practical situation in the series of one-hour courses taught by Sherwin Clift, director of public information.

Students learned the basics of journalistic writing, and then applied their training by writing for the campus weekly newspaper.

Most of the classroom work came in a three-hour course taught by Charles M. Waters in the spring.

Right: Student from the practicum course in journalism gets her weekly assignment and a feature story for the newspaper in an interview. Below: Sherwin Clift, director of public information, reviews basic newspaper style in an informal session.

THE LIBRARY STAFF, under the limitation of budgets, began a management study for staff utilization in order to bring about more efficient development of service. As a result, all departments were reorganized with some staff positions being upgraded and others redefined.

Johnnie Givens, head librarian, conducted a national study to determine what has been or what is being done to integrate the library service program with the instructional program of institutions.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL did the unusual; more students were enrolled during the spring quarter than in the fall quarter, largely due to the efforts of Dr. Wayne E. Stamper, dean. Four degrees were offered, including the master of arts in education, master of arts, master of science and master of music education. The established graduate program added courses to fit the needs of students and teachers in the region.

"WHO'S WHO Among Students in American Universities and Colleges" numbered 33, and these seniors appeared in the 1971 edition of the publication. The students were selected on the basis of scholastic zeal, industry, reliability and cooperation.

Chosen by a ballot of the faculty, each possessed a grade-point average of 3.0 or above. APSU's seniors joined a group of outstanding students selected from all of the 50 states, the District of Columbia and several foreign countries.

professional and honor societies

ALPHA BETA ALPHA, the honorary society for undergraduates in the field of library science, visited the East Montgomery Elementary School in early November to further professional knowledge.

Members went to a Christmas dinner, hosted by Miss Hazel K. Griffin, adviser, and another highlight was the initiation of new members on January 7.

Purpose of the Alpha Rho chapter, which completed its second academic year, was to further the professional knowledge of its members, to promote fellowship and to serve as a recruiting agency for librarians.

ALPHA KAPPA PSI, professional business fraternity, began a new project for their pledges during the fall—selling mum corsages for the homecoming football game. Complete with red and white ribbon, net, pins and wrappings, the 16 initiates sold the mums as part of the beginning of an annual pledge project. The pledge class (Lambda) period lasted five weeks. Membership requirements were a major in either accounting, marketing, economics, business administration or business education, plus being at least a third-quarter freshman in classification. Murry Hawkins, an APSU graduate and a vice-president at the Northern Bank of Tennessee, spoke to the organization on "Current Trends and Conflicts in the Banking System in Relation to the Local and National Economy." The fall quarter speech was followed by a question-answer session with the fraternity members.

ALPHA MU GAMMA, foreign language honor society, and the INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS ASSOCIATION encouraged an interest in the study of foreign language and international relations respectively.

Observing National Foreign Language Week, the society held a book sale, heard guest speakers and staged the initiation banquet on May 12.

An exotic meal was prepared by the International Students Association and served buffet style during the winter quarter. Foods from Persia, China, England, France, Ethiopia, Germany and America were on the menu.

ALPHA PSI OMEGA, national honor theatre fraternity, promoted the advancement and improvement of theatre at APSU, and again presented acting awards at the spring quarter banquet.

Membership requirements included only those who had earned 50 points in the work of departmental productions, held a 2.0 grade-point average and who received approval from three-fourths of the active members.

Acting awards for 1970 went to Charles Compton, best actor, "Tartuffe;" Barbara Wesner, best actress, "Streetcar Named Desire;" Gary Wesner, best supporting actor, "Tartuffe;" and Suella Dillard, best supporting actress, "Tartuffe."

BETA BETA BETA, an honor and professional society for students of biological science, was involved in several top-notch events including a fall picnic, science fair, winter formal banquet and initiation and a spring picnic and initiation. Attendance at the Tennessee Academy of Science and the national convention in Chicago also highlighted the year. Strict membership requirements of a 3.0 average in biology and a good over-all academic standing were continued.

CHI EPSILON MU, a society comprised of students who are chemistry majors or minors, promoted interest in chemistry and the life sciences. During the fall quarter, the 20-member group discussed the new Center for Teachers and the training program for high school chemistry teachers.

Besides regular meetings, Chi Epsilon Mu participated in the homecoming festivities in the fall, and in the spring the organization held a picnic at the home of the departmental chairman, Dr. Harry L. McLeod.

Membership was divided into two categories, active and associate. An active member had to be enrolled at least three quarters and be a chemistry major.

SOCIETY OF PHYSICS STUDENTS sponsored the late January appearance of John Darrell Kennedy, a Harvard graduate and a representative of the Students International Meditation Society. The organization which Kennedy represented was started five years ago by the world-famous Maharishi Mahesh Yogi. "Transcendental Meditation" was the topic on which Kennedy spoke.

Membership in the Society of Physics Students required only an interest in physics. Students who had a 3.0 grade-point average in physics and a 2.8 over-all standing, plus being a junior by classification, could hold an honorary position and become a member of Sigma Pi Sigma. Del Square Psi membership was limited to those who received an invitation from Society of Physics Students members.

Purposes of the society were to promote educational activities for all students interested in physics, to award recognition and distinction to students who have achieved high scholarship in physics and to thank those who are interested and help promote physics.

Above: Society of Physics Students—Front row: James Bramlett, Linda Harper, Paulette Christoph, Kenneth Jannotta. DELTA TAU ALPHA, national agriculture honor society, and the AGRICULTURE CLUB worked to promote a better understanding of agriculture and its related fields.

Active in the sponsorship of events, the two organizations co-sponsored a February 24 donkey basketball game and the annual pizza-eating contest. The Ag Club's float entry placed second in club competition; the group also participated in dairy, livestock and soil judging contests throughout the year.

All majors or minors interested in agriculture were eligible to join the Agriculture Club, while students with 18-quarter hours in agriculture and a minimum 2.5 average could seek approval from Delta Tau Alpha.

EPSILON PI TAU, the international honorary industrial arts fraternity, and the INDUSTRIAL ARTS CLUB worked to promote their area of concentration.

Highlighting the year of the Industrial Arts Club was their float in the homecoming parade, "Music To Train Racers By," which captured the Alumni Victory Award as the most outstanding entry.

Eligibility for membership in the Beta Eta chapter of Epsilon Pi Tau was being a third-quarter sophomore and having at least a 2.75 scholastic average.

GAMMA THETA UPSILON, professional fraternity in the field of geography, sponsored a February 11 program entitled "The School of Planning and Its Opportunities." Craig Covey, director of the Regional Planning Commission, and an assistant, Roger Neiswinder, spoke to the group and led an open discussion on planning.

Composed of 15 members, the group attempted to further professional interest in geography by affording a common organization for those interested in the field. To become a regular member an initiate had to complete at least three courses in geography with a 3.0 average and have a 2.5 over-all.

KAPPA DELTA PI, honorary educational society, emphasized "Education for the Seventies" by using it as the theme for its programs during the academic year. Dr. Brooks Major, an APSU alumnus and an administrator at the Hopkinsville (Ky.) Community College, addressed the society at its May 17 banquet on the theme. Other speakers during the year were Fred Newton, Ft. Campbell, Ky., Dependent Schools, "Micro Teaching;" Mrs. Sandra Crain, Ft. Campbell, "Greater Cleveland Social Science Program;" and Dr. Jack Miller, professor at George Peabody College, Nashville, "Man, A Course of Study."

KAPPA OMICRON PHI, home economics honor society, and the HOME ECONOMICS CLUB were active during the year. Wanda Stringer, president of the Beta Phi chapter, served as leader of the program planning session at Kappa Omicron Phi's regional conference in Florence, Ala.

Seven colleges and universities from Tennessee were represented at a November 21 home economics meeting held on the APSU campus to plan the work program for 1970-71. Other activities of the society included a tea for prospective members, a pledge ceremony and Founders Day program.

PHI ALPHA THETA, history society, hosted the state convention during the spring quarter. Members from several colleges and universities across the state attended the Saturday meeting. Numbering nearly 40, the society's membership requirements included a 3.0 grade-point average in history and a 2.75 over-all average. Purpose of the organization was to bring together those who had a love for history and had shown academic proficiency in the field.

Officers for the year were Dale Cherry, president; Robert (Wick) Kincheloe, vice-president; Brenda Harron, secretary-treasurer; and Monte Caywood, historian. Hugh Akerman, Jr., assistant professor, served as adviser to the group.

PHI MU ALPHA SINFONIA, music fraternity, sponsored the 10th annual Mid-South Jazz Festival during mid-March. The popular festival drew six university stage bands including Evansville, Fisk, Morehead State, Murray State, Tennessee Tech and APSU's own Collegians. Also on the program were a high school band from Memphis and the 81st Army Band from Ft. Campbell, Ky. Proceeds from the jazz festival went toward the Theta Tau chapter's scholarship fund for incoming high school seniors. Other activities of the fraternity included the American Music Concert on February 21, the annual homecoming alumni banquet on November 7 and various concerts held during the year. Membership into the fraternity required participating in a pledge period of six to 10 weeks.

PHI MU KAPPA, pre-medical honor society, programs during the year were varied and included guest speaker physicians, hospital video tapes, demonstration of cardiogram, tour of hospital laboratories and films on differing medical aspects. Four types of membership were continued by Phi Mu Kappa; these were full, associate, alumni and honorary. For full membership into the society, a 3.0 grade-point average in biology and a 2.0 over-all average were required. David Owen served as president of the 30-member organization.

SIGMA ALPHA IOTA, a fraternity comprised of coed music students, undertook a worthy endeavor called the Bold Notes Project. The project entailed transcribing music in larger print for partially sighted people. It was done for the Library of Congress in Nashville and for the campus library since there are some partially sighted persons enrolled at APSU. Active throughout the year, the fraternity decorated the doors of the music faculty at Christmas, gave a Christmas party for the music faculty, students and families, assisted with the American Music Concert and ushered for the Mid-South Jazz Festival.

APSU FOOTBALL, 1970 STYLE, was a sore disappointment, although the Governors did finish the season strong to post a 3-7-0 record. Opening road losses to Troy State and Western Kentucky were the beginning of a nightmarish six-game loss skein, and the Gobs dropped to 0-4 with home defeats at the hands of Eastern Kentucky and Morehead State. UT Martin and Middle Tennessee added to the frustration before APSU ended its futile attempts with a triumph over Northwood on the AstroTurf of Municipal Stadium. An exciting homecoming drubbing over Murray State, followed by a 10-6 upset of Tennessee Tech, closed out the winning efforts as powerful East Tennessee rolled over the Gobs by a wide 45-14 margin on foreign soil in the season finale.

FOUR SENIORS closed out their collegiate careers with the 1970 season, and one, Harold (Red) Roberts left a trail of records for his successors to challenge. The other seniors included Jim Hardie, Terry Johnson and Jim Ogden.

Roberts finished a brilliant four-year stint for the Governors by being named to the Associated Press Little All-America first team, selected to the All-Ohio Valley Conference twinkle team for the fourth year and signing a professional contract with the Philadelphia Eagles. He became only the seventh player to catch more than 200 passes during the 101-year history of the college game. His jersey, No. 84, was retired after he established 13 school records, seven OVC marks and one NCAA standard. Hardie set a NCAA record also with 223 career punts; Johnson topped the squad in defensive statistics; and Ogden was another defensive standout. Other key players were offensive performers Danny Hunley, Kenny Johnson, Art Hicks, David Walker and Mike Johnson.

TROY STATE 28, APSU 0—Pin-point passing by Troy State quarterback Al Head and a stubborn Red Wave defense combined to give the Alabama squad a shutout victory in the Govs' season opener. Trailing 21-0 at halftime, APSU played without the services of several regulars who were injured in pre-season practice. Six freshmen were forced to fill positions, and senior punter Jim Hardie got a good workout as he set a new OVC mark with 13 punts; he averaged nearly 40 yards per kick.

WESTERN KENTUCKY 28, APSU 9—Played before more than 11,000 rain-soaked fans in Bowling Green, Ky., the game in the mud went to the hosting Hilltoppers in the initial OVC game. The injury-riddled Gobs held the defending conference champion at bay throughout much of the first half.

The Colonels from Eastern Kentucky rolled up 381 yards on total offense and went across twice in every quarter, except the third, to score a convincing victory. Eastern's sophomore quarterback Bob Fricker and speedy tailback Jimmy Brooks accounted for UT MARTIN 22, APSU 21—A closing-minute touchdown by Nate Holmes thwarted APSU's attempt to break the loss string, which reached five with the heartbreaking UT Martin defeat. The Govs held leads of 14-10 and 21-13 before the Holmes' clincher.

All-OVC quarterback Larry Graham guided the Buccaneers in the early stages by passing for a score and running for another. Jim Ogden and Landon Pickett returned interceptions for the Gov touchdowns. FRESHMAN FOOTBALL came of age in 1970 as the Governor yearlings finished the campaign with a 3-3-0 record, the best in the three-year existence of frosh football. David Walker, who also starred with the varsity, paced the team with 460 yards total offense. He threw for six touchdowns, five of which were caught by talented end Paul Nadeau. David Almand and Chip McMinn were the squad's top rushers, each averaging more than three and one-half yards per carry. Topping the defense was Tommy Westbrook, who also served as the team punter, in punt returns, kickoff returns and interceptions. Other defensive notables were Clarence Hicks, Paul Cooley and Daryl Page; each had 30 or more individual tackles in the six-game season.

A NEW HEAD COACH came on the scene to guide the 1970 cross-country team, which compiled a 2-4 won-lost record in dual meets. The Gov runners, tutored by Dr. Jim Jordan via the University of Alabama, failed to climb above last place in the tough Ohio Valley Conference, however. The harriers, relatively young with but three seniors, did manage to finish sixth in the Franklin Invitational. The APSU squad tied with Vanderbilt of the Southeastern Conference in the 10-team meet, which was won by David Lipscomb. Convincing losses at the hands of Lipscomb and Tennessee Tech in the first two meets disheartened the squad in a rebuilding season. After a close 23-32 (low score wins in cross-country) defeat at the hands of UT Martin, the Gov harriers reeled off wins at the expense of Southwestern at Memphis and Sewanee. APSU closed the dual meet season with a loss to OVC power Murray State. In the OVC meet, APSU finished with 218 points, which was 175 more than low-scoring champion East Tennessee.

VARSITY BASKETBALL in 1970-71 was an up-and-down season as the rebuilding Governors finished the campaign with a 10-14 record, doubling the wins over the previous year.

George Fisher, head coach, announced his intent to get out of the coaching ranks before the beginning of the season; his successor after the season was Lake Kelly, assistant.

Senior and top scorer was Larry Noble, who carried a 19.3 scoring average and was named to the All-Ohio Valley Conference team. Big 6-9 Greg Kinman was one of the nation's leading rebounders during the early season; he gathered in a school record 28 in the opening game of the season in leading APSU to a 94-91 win over UT Chattanooga.

APSU took three of the four opening games, all played in Memorial Gymnasium. The Gobs lost to North Carolina at Charlotte 86-84, spilled UT Martin 97-83 and dumped Carson-Newman 105-95.

FOR THE SECOND STRAIGHT YEAR a holiday road trip proved disastrous. A second loss to North Carolina at Charlotte was followed by defeats at UT Chattanooga and Pan American.

Opening conference play, APSU took to the road in January and stopped Morehead State 90-84. Eastern Kentucky blitzed the Gobs 115-89 to end the six-game road trip.

APSU returned home only to find Tennessee Tech waiting as a roadblock to Gov winning hopes. After being dashed 81-79, the cagers turned the tables on highly favored East Tennessee by the same score.

A one-point victory at Bellarmine was followed by a thrilling 71-70 decision over rival Middle Tennessee as Dan Smith hit a last-second shot before a home crowd.

RIDING THE CREST of a three-game win streak and owning a 7-6 over-all mark, APSU traveled to Western Kentucky and suffered their worst defeat in history (117-72). The embarrassing loss to the nationally-ranked Hilltoppers sent the Govs into a six-game nosedive.

Murray State, ranked in the top twenty, dropped APSU 90-76 at home. Road losses to Carson-Newman (121-83) and Murray State (81-58), plus home defeats at the hands of Eastern Kentucky (99-72) and Morehead State (103-77), sent the reeling squad to a 7-12 record.

WITH MEMORIAL GYMNASIUM only half full and interest in Gov basketball sagging, APSU entertained Bellarmine in early February. The visitors, who had given APSU a close call earlier, were never in the contest as the Govs broke out of their doldrums for a 93-71 win. Visits to Tennessee Tech and East Tennessee put a quick damper on Gov hopes for a .500 or better season, however, as Tech's Golden Eagles posted a late-stage 102-91 win and the Bucs in the eaststate used a great second-half surge to post a 72-54 victory.

PLAYING INSPIRED BASKETBALL, the Gobs whipped Middle Tennessee 81-75 in the final road game. APSU then posted their greatest cage triumph in history by upsetting Western Kentucky, eventual NCAA third-place finisher, in George Fisher's last game as head coach. Before an overflow crowd, APSU outscored the vaunted 'Toppers 10-0 in the final 1:34 of the game to win 96-94.

THE FRESHMAN BASKETBALL SQUAD, short on scholarship players, posted only three wins in 16 outings during the 1970-71 season. The Govs, coached by Buddy Sivills, captured two of their first three games. Nine losses in a row closed the season for the team, which posted wins over UT Martin, Motlow State and Middle Tennessee.

APSU ended with a 1-7 worksheet against Ohio Valley Conference freshman competition, and only captured one of three battles against state community colleges.

AN UNDEFEATED SEASON, first for APSU in any sport in 30 years, and capturing of the state intercollegiate crown were highlights of the 1969-70 season. The Gov linksmen, under 10-year coach Sherwin Clift, went 15-0-1 in matches and finished third or better in four tournaments.

Tied only by Southern Illinois in the season finale, APSU won the Tennessee Intercollegiate championship with a record sizzling six-under-par team total. The Govs were second in the Murray State Invitational, runner-up in the Sewanee Invitational, third in the Furman Invitational, but a disappointing fifth in the Ohio Valley Conference 54-hole affair.

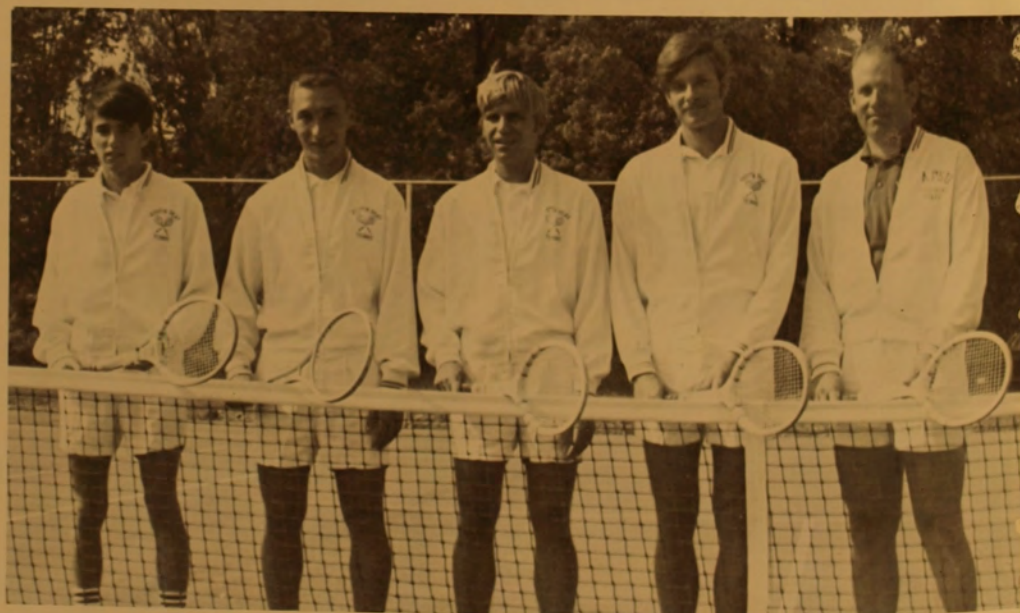

Team balance helped the Govs run their match winning streak to 17 and their string of non-conference victories to an amazing 37.

POSTING A TENNIS RECORD of 10-9, the 1970 squad was the second in history to show a winning mark. Competing against tougher opposition, the team joined the golf squad as the only other athletic winner for the academic year. Paced by Richard Fraser (13-9) and John Rogers (12-9) in singles play, the netters were 1-7 against Ohio Valley Conference teams and finished last in conference play. The squad was fifth in the University Division of the Tennessee Intercollegiate tournament.

THE GOV TRACK SQUAD posted a 2-3 dual mark in 1970, but still failed to finish out of the cellar in the Ohio Valley Conference meet. In other multiple meets, the squad was fourth in both the Brownsville Invitational and the Tennessee Intercollegiate and fifth in the David Lipscomb Invitational.

Two new school records were set by jumper Ronnie Fuqua. He posted new standards in the long jump (24 feet, 2¼ inches) and the triple jump (44-10½). Fuqua also led the team in scoring with 81¼ points. Other leading point-getters for the Andy Toombs-coached team were Alvin Hicks 72½, Mike Sullivan 42¾, Rusty Beard 38, Jerry Wanstrath 28¼, Billy Sundy 26, Chuck Nelson 21, Eddie Richbourg 20¼ and Dan Seifert 20.

WOMEN'S INTERCOLLEGIATE BASKETBALL returned to APSU as a squad, coached by Lin Dunn, represented the university. The lady Governors finished the season with a 3-4 mark. Composed of interested campus females, the team was comprised mainly of former high school basketballers. Two victories over Memphis State and a triumph over Jackson State Community College highlighted the campaign.

MEN'S INTRAMURAL FOOTBALL interest continued to rise and began to rival the always popular basketball intramural competition. Duper's Troopers, a team heavily laden with former university athletes, defeated the Nashville Cats 7-0 in late November for the championship.

The championship game, witnessed by more than 200 spectators, was a rough and tumble affair. Duper's Troopers scored in the second quarter on a 65-yard running play in the defensive battle to capture the title game and finish the season with a perfect 13-0 record.

THE LADIES, TOO, found football to be quite exciting, and females organized an intramural league. Competition became very keen as the women displayed skills usually associated with the opposite sex.

INTRAMURAL BASKETBALL grew to 31 teams in men's play with the addition of more clubs and fraternities. Held during the winter quarter, the teams were divided into four divisions. The two top clubs in each division were selected to play in the championship tournament.

Bill's Bombing Bods, a perennial title threat, again proved the master and put on a powerful show to capture the championship. Other top squads included the Ballers, Untouchables and the Brotherhood of Soul—all divisional winners.

In women's intramural basketball competition, the D&S Twelve edged out the Omega Owls for the ladies' championship.

THE 42nd ACADEMIC YEAR WAS, to a certain extent, a culmination of all of that which had transpired over the other 41 years. The traditions, atmosphere, diversity and growth of the past became interwoven in 1970-71, and the result was a progressive, peaceful university.

APSU left behind the long-worn tag of "just another small school," and took on the role of a distinctive, medium-sized institution of higher education. The university has gone major in many areas, such as academics, athletics and student life. This academic year helped to fortify these established areas and others. With last-minute preparations for final examinations giving way to the exciting search for the grade among those posted, the end came for many; for others, just a three-month rest. For all, it was a time to stop and re-examine goals and directions. Thus it was with the university, also.

THE 26TH VOLUME OF THE FAREWELL & HAIL was printed in Nashville, Tenn., by the Benson Printing Co., Inc. The first 32 pages of the book are Falmouth finish enamel. The book was produced by the offset process. Copy type faces used on the dull enamel were Compacta Bold for heads, 18 pt. Gothic Extra Condensed for subheads, 12 pt. Helvetica for body, 8 pt. Helvetica for captions and identifications, 10 pt. Helvetica for names and hometowns in the class section, 8 pt. Helvetica Italics for designation of degrees and 10 pt. Vogue Bold for folios.

Process color appears on pages 1-32. Mezzotint appears on pages 12, 13, 82, 83, 118, 119, 138, 139, 184, 185, 202, 203, 242 and 243. Remainder of the book is printed in black ink. Credit for the bulk of the photography in this production of the FAREWELL & HAIL must go to Gerald Tenney, director of photographic services. His innumerable hours of work and interest were an outstanding feature of our work.

All of the color and all those black and white photos, not otherwise credited to persons later, were made by him. Also, certain faculty portraits were made by him.

Other credit for selected black and white photos must go to Steve Glassmeyer (60, 208, 213, 219, 220), Bill Hill (53, 54, 55, 114, 115, 116, 117), Bill Leech (73, 129, 179, 180, 181), Alan Mayor (101), Eddie Patterson (160, 207, 212, 214, 215, 277), D. D. Redmond (39, 99, 107, 202, 206, 207, 209, 211, 213, 286, 308), Bill Sites (39, 84, 98, 99, 117, 208, 210, 212, 246, 252, 253, 286), Rappoport Studios, Inc., New York City (class and faculty portraits) and the Governor's Office (120).

Few persons realize the immense amount of time and work invested by the adviser to this yearbook. It is for his most sound advice, which we consider second to none, and his unrelenting attempts to make the FAREWELL & HAIL a quality production, that we express our most sincere appreciation to Sherwin Clift. Special thanks are in order to Mrs. Betty Jo Wall, secretary for the Public Information Office. Mrs. Wall typed all of the manuscript, and she assisted in arranging numerous photos. Few know of the important role which she played in this and other productions of the FAREWELL & HAIL. We sincerely thank her for providing the atmosphere which kept a sometimes-low-morale staff on their toes.

Thanks are also in order to the following individuals for their help in completing the 26th FAREWELL & HAIL: Charene Watson, administration; Cheryl Pugh, Cindy Ownby and Barbara Molder, student life; Gloria Inman, superlatives; Becky Thomas, organizations; Patricia Johnson, index and directories; Claudette Dias, copy work; and Wendy Dabbs, organizations. Each spent many hours, without compensation, working toward the completion of this yearbook. The gratitude for this group cannot be expressed.

Finally, we note Steve Frost, a veteran of the newspaper staff, who worked as associate editor during the spring quarter. It was his responsible and enthusiastic attitude that added a touch of spirit to the late work on the book. His service was simply invaluable. When work on this edition began late in the summer of 1970, we the editors, set out to prepare the most outstanding yearbook ever produced by the university. Our goals were to update the FAREWELL & HAIL to meet the demands of a modern campus; to incorporate into 308 pages all of what happened over the past few months; and to do this in a frank, but positive manner. Our major mission was to relate the tradition, atmosphere, diversity and growth of 41 years to the student of 1971. Our mission is accomplished if, in the eyes of our student body, we have met our goals.
