

AMHERST, Mass. —(I.P.)— A new step toward elimination of harmful hazing practices in colleges was disclosed here recently with publication by the University of Massachusetts Inter-fraternity Council of rules governing so-called "Hell Week". In 1951, First, the name "Hell Week" is abolished. It is to be known henceforth as "Character Building Week."

Prohibited were rough play, vulgar or indecent practices, destruction of property and all activities involving personal harm or danger. Last year a dangerous hazing incident took place on this campus when several fraternity members were involved in a murder hoax.

WASHINGTON, D. C. —(I.P.)— Facilities of the nation's colleges and universities, which they can use to serve the needs of the armed services and the Federal Government for purposes of national defense, are being inventoried by the U. S. Office of Education.

GRANVILLE, O. —(I.P.)— Mixing practical business experience with the theory of management in college courses is helping Denton University students find better jobs, and is also making them better employees for business firms. A dozen Ohio companies have become "laboratories" where students may work during their vacation, visit on field trips and compare classroom theory with practical business operation.

IOWA CITY, Ia. —(I.P.)— Iowa's alumni are above the national average of 1.49 for the 171 colleges where the men of 1940 were reviewed, but its alumnae fall a little below with 1.15 for 129 for 123 classes of women of '40.

Volcano Creates Minor Panic Here

Last week, horror-stricken A. P. S. C. students listened to a low rumble coming from below the surface of the earth and wondered — could their doom be calling? People were shake and the rumble gained momentum. Then suddenly with no other warning the earth burst open and a mass of hot molten rock shot from the sky hole and rushed forward with great force.

Those nearest the blast could feel the heat of the eruption as all around people had their eyes from the brightness of the flames. A volcano on the campus of A. P. S. C. for five shaking minutes stood still for those who watched. Then, as suddenly as the blast had started, it stopped.

There were sighs of relief all around the room. "Well," someone said, "I'm sure glad that volcano Mr. Coburn rigged up worked so well."

"Yeah," joined another voice, "we would have been doomed if it hadn't. When his experiments don't work he takes it out on us."

Rehearsals Begin For Spring Comedy

Trouys were held last week for the spring play, "You Can't Take It With You." Rehearsals are scheduled to begin tonight.

A three act comedy by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman, the celebrated play will be presented in Waddell Hall April 19 and 20, Miss Margaret Ward, director, announced today.

The first troups were held last Tuesday in the Waddell auditorium and continued through Thursday. Any student, regardless of previous speech work or dramatic experience may try for a part, Miss Ward explained.

Anne Evans, junior speech and English major, will assist in directing the comedy. An active participant in speech department activities, she aided in the production of "Claudia," last spring's play, and "The Torchbearers," a presentation of last fall.

Others who have been named to assist in the play's production are Bill Buckner, stage manager, and Nancy Winery, and Carrie Hadley, publicity co-chairmen.

Casting for the play includes nine men, seven women, and three

Don't let exams get you down, keep your chin up, and smile you scholars. If you think you've got trouble, just grin and bear it, for this is National Smile Week.

All over the nation, from February 28 to March 3, the week is dedicated to brightening the gloom wherever it exists — in whatever shape, form, and fashion.

A smile can do the trick. Mop that smiler off your face and forget there is anything in the world to be grumpy about. If you feel like singing the blues after burning the midnight oil, or if you feel like kicking a kid, there is only one remedy — smile.

Students, don't just sit there and mope, wishing you had studied a week ago instead of the night before. Take a tip from all the grinning professors on the campus during examination periods. When your instructor stealthily dumps a blank test paper on your desk and chirps, "This hurts me worse than it does you," smile back and hope for the best.

According to Webster, a smile is a muscular movement taking place in the face. It is usually brought on by an upward curving of the mouth.

It doesn't cost anybody anything or call for a donation. You don't have to pay any dues.

All you have to do is smile.

Phys. Ed. Department Features Tumbling Acts At Assembly

By NELL MCCLAREN

Assembly at A.P.S.C. on Friday Feb. 16, was of such impact that authorities would not allow it to be held in the Waddell Auditorium, not only because the stage of the auditorium was too small, but also because the old building could not stand the "shock". Therefore, the faculty and student body swarmed the muddy campus to the Army for the yearly event presented by the P. E. Department of the College.

The first part of the program was presented by Miss Ruth Garrison's women students. Donee, a tap were several numbers by members of the beginning class in tap under Miss Garrison's direction. Following this, individual members of the class presented original dances.

Among the presentations were "Clementine" by Billye Turnbow; "Alexander's Ragtime Band" by Marian Lemmons and Manry Ryker; "Tea for Two" by Nancy Winters, and "Put Your Arms Around Me" by Tula Carter and Trisxie Roberts.

There was little talent shown in the stunts and tumbling of the girls. However, it was amusing to see girls attempt to stand on their head only to fall and to see them attempt to do a backboard roll only to do a sideways roll. After almost three months in gym apparatus their muscles were in far worse shape than when they were back in pigtails and grammar school. Could the differences in the audience have had anything to do with it? Pigtails days girls try to impress boys with stunts by a show of strength. In college they try to im-

AATC Elects AP To Membership

Austin Peay State College has been accepted as a member of the American Association of Teachers Colleges.

Announcement of the selection was made at the AATC meeting in Atlantic City, New Jersey last week. Only four colleges in the nation were named to the association, according to Dean Felix G. Woodward who represented APSC at the meeting.

President Harvill said the American Association of Teachers Colleges is the highest accrediting association for teacher training colleges in the nation.

Austin Peay qualified for admission through its modern new building, its faculty and the record of its graduates, especially those who have gone on to do graduate work, Harvill said.

The college was recently examined by a committee from the association which included Dr. Karkner, president of the state college at Cape Girardeau, Mo., and Dr. Norton, president of Florence State College, Florence, Ala.

Other educational organizations to which Austin Peay belongs are the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, the Tennessee College Association, the American Council on Education, and the National Association of Business Teacher-Training Institutions.

Students To Plan Utopias

GAINEVILLE, Fla. —(I.P.)— Students will be given an opportunity to plan a Utopia, the course as part of a new course to be offered by the Sociology Department of the University of Florida beginning in February. Entitled "Social Ideas and Utopias," the course will be directed primarily to lectures and discussions on theoretical societies ranging from More's "Utopia" to the present day.

press boys with stunts by a show of limbs.

The second portion of the program was presented by Showboat Ray Darnell and his tumblers, Coach Aaron, who arranged the appearance of the great artist, told the audience they would not often have the privilege of seeing a group of talented men who were men of muscles. The program featured acts in stunts and tumbling which impressed everyone. "The Monkey Roll" still has every one die. Ben Fendly, whose talent Mr. Darnell is quite fortunate in having, was the star of the human dive. "He is the only man in history who can jump over eight men."

To add to the tension of the feat of muscles, the drum rolled with each climax in events. There was also some music of another source. From somewhere came the strains of "The Grand Ole Opry". This must have been to entertain those who did not care for a show of man power. Or, perhaps, the soothing strains of "Missouri Waltz" were to counteract the nerve-racking fall of the "Pyramid".

At any rate the music was somewhat of a relief. The crowd may have been more highly impressed at this rattle of fresh will that added ripple of music — So romantic!

Mr. Darnell and his band are now on tour.

Later in the year they are scheduled to go abroad. In May they will appear in Chattanooga, which is the home of Phil Krug, a foreign member of the group.

Only My Opinion

by Larry Gates

Well! The third time wasn't charm this year but two out of three tournament championships in three years is quite an enviable record.

When I told Mr. Editor I would fill in and write this column for this issue, I was ready to write up the championship game between Austin Peay and Union University. However, my predictions didn't turn out so well—some of my teams lost the first night.

In three of his best performances in three years, forward Bob Swope was certainly one of the outstanding players in the tournament. Austin Peay was honored to have Swope named on the VSAC All-Tournament five. In the three games Bob scored 43 points for an average of 14.3 per game.

The Governors ended up in sixth place in the tournament. Possibly, Austin Peay would have been in the upper four if it hadn't been for the wrist injury Richard Covington received about two weeks ago. In the last seven or eight games, "Snooky" has definitely been one of the sparkplugs for the Aaronmen. In one game he hit nine of ten free throws in the last half to keep the Governors in the close game with Memphis State.

Austin Peay ended the season with a 12 win, 10 loss record.

By the way, Spring football will be here next week!

Austin Peay Loses VSAC Crown

LMU Upsets Govs

A last half rally by the Governors failed to stop Lincoln Memorial University in the first round of VSAC tourney play at David Lipscomb last week. The Railsplitters topped the fourth seeded Governors, 61-58.

The loss ended the two year reign of Austin Peay as VSAC tourney champs. They won the 1948-49 tournament held in Clarksville, and then repeated last year at Harrogate.

LMU built up a 14 point halftime advantage, 35-21, and fought off a desperate second half rally by the Governors.

During the final half Austin Peay hit 15 of 44 field goal attempts for 34 per cent accuracy, contrasting with an extremely cold showing the first period.

The Governors won their first game of the consolation bracket by lashing the Milligan Buffalos 81-66. Coming from behind a halftime score of 29-25, the Aaronmen put on a blistering second half attack.

Bob Swope led the rally with 19 points and took scoring honors in the game with 23 markers. Dick Hays, George Hoffman, and Bill Covington were the second half point makers, contributing 12, 12, and 8 points respectively to the Governor rally.

Mack Chandler played a fine defensive game, and with Hays and Swope, controlled both boards during the second half.

Union Rumps 59-57

Union University, third seeded team in the VSAC, won fifth place in the consolation finals by edging the Governors, 59-57.

Though Austin Peay had stopped the Bulldogs twice during the regular season, the Aaronmen lacked the fire to win the tourney tilt.

Austin Peay led at halftime but Union went ahead in the final ten minutes and clinched the game with ball-controlling tactics.

Order in which the top teams finished the tourney was Lipscomb, first; East Tenn. State, second; LMU, third; and MTSC, fourth. Bob Swope, a consistent point-maker and a good defensive man during the meet, was named to the All-Tournament team.

Waldo Binkley Signs Grid Pact With NY Giants

Waldo Binkley, grid star for the last four years, has received, signed, and returned a 1951 contract with the new York Giants of the professional Football league.

A 240 pound offensive tackle, Binkley was drafted by the Giants recently at the pro-player draft. Terms of the contract were not disclosed by Binkley.

As former Clarksville High School star and starter for Austin Peay during the 1947, '48, and '49 seasons and a star each year, sat out most of last year's games with one sprained foot, he received two broken toes in an early game and was kept from the lineup by the injury.

W. T. Mara of the Giants enclosed with the contract a copy of the player regulations, explaining the strict training which the Giant players are asked to undergo.

The regulations, in part, stated: "Player shall at all times conform his personal conduct to standards of good citizenship and good sportsmanship, keep himself in first-class physical condition and during the training and playing seasons conform to the training rules prescribed by the Club."

A May 1951 graduate at Austin Peay, Binkley is majoring in health and physical education.

AATC Membership

Austin Peay State College continues its march of progress toward an unexcelled school for teacher training. Being selected as a member of the American Association of Teachers Colleges is an outstanding stamp of approval for a fast-growing institution.

Such national recognition is important to every student attending this school, especially to those who plan to graduate as prospective teachers or candidates for graduate school. Credits obtained in an AATC member school are readily accepted in graduate institutions throughout the nation. To have been chosen for the highly-selective membership is indicative of the tremendous growth of the college in the past few years and points to even greater expansion in the future.

Governor Basketball

The VSAC crown has fallen from the Governors' head but they are still champs in a very important way. Their monopoly of the VSAC conference championship was severed with no indication of defeat for the high-spirited Aaron-men. An even greater victory was won by the good sportsmanship shown in losing. The Governors' ability to fight to the final gun and to threaten the opponent even after the odds seem insurmountable, has established them as a feared team in the conference. Regardless of the won-lost record, the Governors have continued to uphold their prestige in the VSAC and remain a powerhouse in the smaller college circuit.

College Calendar

According to the 1951-1952 college calendar, the entrance date for the Winter Quarter next year is set for January 2. Christmas vacation will begin at the end of the fall quarter instead of interrupting the winter schedule as in the past. This is the schedule followed by most of the colleges and universities in this area and should prove to be a more efficient arrangement for Austin Peay.

Notice To Staff Members

Deadline for all copy for the next ALL STATE is March 6. The irregular schedule during registration will prevent any assignments being made, but each reporter may cover his regular beat. No copy will be accepted after 5:00 on the deadline date.

His Answer Was Logical

A Sunday school teacher had been telling a class of little boys about crowns of glory and heavenly rewards for good people.

"Now tell me," she said at the close of the lesson, "who will get the biggest crown?" There was silence for a while, then Johnnie the hatter's son, answered confidently: "The one that's got the biggest head."

Little Benjamin was being quizzed on American history.

"Tell me what you know about George Washington. Was he a soldier or a sailor?"

"I think he was a soldier," replied Benjamin.

"Why do you think that he was a soldier?" "I saw a picture of him when he crossed the Delaware. A sailor knows enough not to stand up in a rowboat."

By Buddy Davis

Bears and bulls both make money on the stock and commodity exchanges. Billions add up to trillions and still the debt accelerates. Children must be talked to rather than beat. Educators don't agree on anything, to quote the English department. The English department is taking a cold plunge in a frigid atmosphere, saith the education department. A conclusion has been reached that mathematics is good for absolutely nothing save to solve problems (Could it have ever been considered in another light!) Ministers have wed their crusade against legal beer with that of the racketeers. One prohibition should teach at least ten generations and influence another ten; but to crusade now, sundries sake, they walk blindly into a blind alley.

The above is almost verbatim what a schooling of mine told me was one day of schooling. He further explained it was very difficult to grasp anything real good from it. He went on to say that the future of mankind loomed forbodingly on the horizon of tomorrow.

To say the least it would be very easy to condense such a statement, but history in this case lends itself to the cause. In, take at random, any individual's lifetime of any particular age, and he and his society have considered themselves to be on the very verge of disaster for all time. It is only human to feel that at this particular time is the darkest, for it directly affects us. We can feel it closing in and oppressing our own personal lives. Therefore it has much more significance than another man's life in another age gone by. There is not nothing quite so dead as death. But I feel there is a brighter side to this apparent chain of dark events that hangs the heads of men heavy. That side is man's intelligence.

Random Thoughts

Intelligence is an invariable thing, once establishing itself in the mind of man, our psychologists tell us. Perhaps this is true if one takes a feeling look around himself. On the other hand, an intuitive, objective survey is a somewhat more suspicious one. Take once again at random a person of contemporary spirit and compare him with one of an age now past. The former is in every respect less violent. Just what does violence have to do with it? Violence, the lack of, is in every respect an indication of superior intelligence. This non-violent attitude is far more prevalent than in past times.

Most certainly there is much to be desired but progress has been made. India, and by India I say Ghandi, has perhaps done more to realize man's great potential intelligence than any other man. The very core of his philosophy was non-violence. Perhaps the orient yet is superior to us in recognizing just what the real significance of life is. Mind you, just perhaps, I say, for these are war years and people tag one with an "ism" complex on the slightest provocation.

Which leads one to the middle of the road philosophy, which smacks rankly of mediocrity and what is more disgusting than mediocrity in an individual unless it is a group of such creatures.

The aim is little.

The offense is none.

But the obvious is never the obvious.

At the end of the school term the teacher told the class: "I'm going to allow you to do your final examinations at home, and will trust you not to cheat. I want you to remember that it is difficult to cheat and live with yourself."

The next morning the paper of one of the students was letter perfect. At the bottom of the page was this explanation: "Dear Teacher: I find I can cheat and live with myself better than I can flunk and live with my father."

No matter how grouchy you're feeling, You will find the smile more or less healing.

Its grows in a wreath

All around the front teeth,

Thus preventing your face from congealing.
