Cotham, Sanders, Grizzard Will Lead APSC Classes in '56-'57 School Year

By Suzi Crockrell

All over the nation folks are polling, and the students at Austin Peay are no different. For on May 2, the class officers for the '56-'57 school year were elected by the various classes.

The freshman class turned to Clarksvillians for their leadership, electing three out of five of their officers from hometown folks. Tommy Grizzard, a Clarksville high graduate and a chemistry major here at college, was chosen to lead the class as their president next year. For vice-president, the class elected Bill Crouch who hails from Cooke, Tennessee. Bill is taking a pre-dental curriculum. Another familiar face, that of Lynda Clement, is seen among the group of newly elected officers. Lynda will serve as secretary-treasurer for the class. She, though a native of Dickson, Tennessee, was graduated from Clarksville High School and is a biology major at A. P.

A pre-medical major who comes from Dickson, Tennessee, is Clarence Sanders whom the sophomore class chose to serve them as President next year. To assist him in his duties, Roy Woodward, a native of Clarksville, is majoring in physical education and health. Another physical education major, Janell Crain, from Dover, Tennessee, was elected secretary and treasurer.

The future senior class made a wise choice in selecting James Cothan to lead them as their president during the coming year. Jimmy, a business major, is a hometown boy. Billy Perry was chosen to serve in the capacity of vice-president of the senior class of '54. Also a Clarksvillian, Bill is a physical education major. As secretary and treasurer, the class elected Fran Miller from Dickson, Tennessee. Fran is taking a distributive major in business.

The classes also elected their class council representative for the coming school year. Each class could elect a boy and a girl to serve on the council. Representing the freshman class are Charles Oates, an engineering major from Vermilion, Alabama; and Sara Evans, an elementary education major from Clarksville. The sophomore chose Wynne Chester, who is a social studies major from Camden, Tennessee; and Doris

New AP Cafeteria Will Soon Be Begun At Tennis Courts

The new cafeteria will be under way on the Austin Peay State College campus at the location of the present tennis courts. Costing approximately $243,000, the new cafeteria, to be built under contract with Mr. L. L. Poe who is also the contractor for the new men's dormitory now under construction. The time allotted for the completion of the new building is 300 calendar days from the time of signing the contract. The plans for the new cafeteria give promise of a splendid building which will be able to accommodate not only the present student body but the increasing enrollment expected at APSC in the next ten or more years. The present tennis courts will be replaced by the new building of the Memorial Health Building toward Main Street.

Faculty Attend Various Meetings Over County

If you can't find the faculty these days, they might be out doing their favorite sport - traveling to conventions.

Mrs. Joseph Trahern, Dr. Joseph Thomas, Miss Johanne Givens and Miss Olive Brane, Dr. C. O. McKee, and Dean M. P. Bowman, have all recently been to various conventions.

Mrs. Trahern, instructor in art, went to the University of Mississippi at Oxford as a weekend member of teachers of art.

Dr. Thomas, assistant professor of languages, traveled to Chicago May 4 for a two-day meeting of the Central States Meeting of the Teachers Association.

Miss Givens, assistant professor of library science, and Miss Brane, assistant librarian, went to Knoxville April 28 for a three day meeting of the Tennessee Librarians Association.

Miss Givens was elected chairman of the College Division of Tennessee Library Association.

Dr. McKee, associate professor of education, was recently elected chairman of Tennessee Professors of Education Administration. Their next convention will be held at Austin Peay.

Dean M. P. Bowman journeyed to the annual meeting of the American Association of College Registrars and Administrators Officers.

Folk Lit To Use Dr. Boswell's Book

Dr. George Boswell's book "Survey of Folk Literature" will be used this summer in the course, Folk Literature.

Folk Literature is numbered English 425 and 425G and is a graduate and undergraduate course. The purpose of the course, will be taught by Dr. Boswell.

This will be the first time the textbook has been used, but it is expected to use in two other colleges next fall.

The course is offered the second six weeks from 11 to 12:15 every day except Wednesday.

The Middle Tennessee District, Lynda, Jimmy and Kate Ann will be presented at the Inauguration Ball, Friday, May 18 at Middle Tennessee State College. Lynda and her escort will reign over the ball.

Others attending the two-day convention were Kay Thompson, Mary Dinmore, Bill Gossett, Pat McCubbin, and Bill Alexander.

Band Concert To Feature Skits; Take-Off on Faculty and Campus

Governor Gayeties will not be presented this year due to unavoidable circumstances.

Because of the hard work which many of the students have put in several skits have been lifted out of the regular script and will be used as part of a band concert on the front lawn May 22.

Some of the musical numbers will be used, also. The band will play a medley of past Governor Gayeties numbers.

Vianne Noland Named Ambassador

By Carolyn Shaden

If you see a girl wandering around the campus with a jubilant smile on her lips and a rather dazed expression on her face, that's bound to be Vianne Noland. Last weekend, the selection committee, composed of interested Clarksvillians, announced to a surprised Vianne that she has been chosen to be this year's Community Ambassador.

A junior here at Austin Peay, Vianne is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Noland of Clarksville. She is studying in the elementary education curriculum. Barbara Darden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Byrns Darden also of Clarksville, had been selected as alternate.

Clarksville is participating in the Community Ambassador project for its fourth consecutive year. Under this plan, the winner applicant receives an expense-free trip to the country of his choice. Applicants are judged on the basis of their enthusiasm and general interest, and their ability to get along well with the people. Other qualifications taken into consideration are scholarship, citizenship, and experiences in outdoor living.

In the past, Clarksville has sent Lewis Segro and Ruth Crockrell to France and Carolyn Shaden to Austria. Vianne will be going to Finland.

The Community Ambassador project is an extension of the Experiment in International Living. This organization arranges to provide interesting experiences abroad to hundreds of students. Its purpose is to remove obstacles to international understanding by giving people in different nations an opportunity to become acquainted with one another. The primary objective of an Experiment in International Living is to create new friends.

Prior to her departure this summer, Vianne will receive a series of bulletins from the Experiment. This literature will include such things as clothing lists, travel hints,

The Gayeties is composed of D. C. Galt, Pat Hargis, Betty Rye Leach, Raoul Johnson, Al Caplinger, Mary Dinmore, Austin Peay choir and the Austin Peay Kampus Kids band.

The Gayeties will be riotous, laugh filled, gay, pulling performance but there will also be a serious side to the night.

Gayeties has become a tradition on the Austin Peay campus. It features students' interpretations of the faculty, administration and students. It gives the funny and light side of college set to music.

The musical revue is sponsored jointly by the music and drama departments and give the top talent of both.

Spirits will be high Monday, May 13, when THE GOVERNOR comes looking for the school spirit at Austin Peay, and who knows, he might find it.

Montgomery Bell Is The Scene Of All State Feed

The annual ALL STATE banquet was held at Montgomery Bell Inn Thursday, May 10 from 7:00 - 10:00.

The banquet opened with the invocation by Suzi Crockrell.

At the conclusion of the meal the awards were presented. These awards are keys given to any member who has served two years on the staff. Those receiving them were Robert Bradley, Rowell Hooks, Ruby Shoemaker, Claudette Sanders, Doris Sanders, Pat Hunt, Mary Dudley McClelland, and Ann Treary.

The 1956-57 editor, Robert Bradley, and the new business manager, Tommy Grizzard were introduced to the group. Each pledged to try to carry on the same excellent manner which has characterized the ALL STATE for the past years.

The editor presented gifts to the editorial staff and the staff presented the editor, Roger White, and the faculty sponsor, Charles Waters, with gifts.

White expressed his thanks to the staff for their wonderful cooperation throughout the year and wished the new editor luck in his coming year.

Guests of honor were Dean and Mrs. Felix Woodward, Dean Mabel and Mrs. C. C. Shaden, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Shaden, and Mrs. Charles Waters.

At the conclusion of the banquet, the group danced and was glassed in patio of Montgomery Bell Inn.

Sanders, a native of Trenton, Kentucky, who is majoring in history. For the juniors James Curl, a physical education major from Redsville, Georgia; and Brenda Moore, likewise a physical education major from Dover, Tennessee, were chosen as members of the council.

Cotham and Clement Get TACSG Honors

Jimmy Cothan has been elected President of the Middle Tennessee District of the Tennessee Association Collegiate Student Government. Lynda Clement, at the same convention, was elected Miss Campus. The convention was held at Belmont College May 4 and 5. Jimmy, a junior at Austin Peay, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Cothan Jr. of Clarksville. His duty as president will be to organize the Middle Tennessee District student government convention.

Lynda, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Clement Jr., of Dickson, is a freshman.

She competed with ten other girls on the basis of poise, beauty and charm. Each school in the district was represented by one or two girls. Mary Dinmore also represented Austin Peay.

After the contest there was a reception where Lynda and Mr. Cothan were honored. Jimmy and Mary Dinmore were presented. Jimmy appointed Kate Ann Murphy, A.P.S.C. Junior as secretary of

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

By Dick Bibler

- space filler -

by Raoul Johnson

It all began long, long ago. No, wait! I think it just seems that way. It really must have happened in only a fraction of a second, the kind of second that seems to age you a hundred years. If I could only remember all of it. Let's see, I was getting into bed after a hard day at the office. I had been in the apartment down the hall with a few of the boys from my department, and we had had a few drinks. By the time I got to my room I was ready for a good night's sleep. As I sat on the side of the bed taking off my shoes, I was suddenly startled by a deafening roar and what sounded like a thousand cannons going off all at once. I ran to the window and what I saw made me freeze to the spot. The sky was ablaze as if the earth had hit the sun. It was blinding. Then I remembered getting control of myself and running into the hall. It was packed with people trying to get out. Finally I fought my way to the head of the stairs, but as I started down, I felt a searing pain in my head. Everything went black . . . for a while.

The mud was gagging me when I awoke. I picked myself up painfully and began brushing the mud off my clothes. Then I suddenly realized how dark and quiet it was. I looked up hoping to see some stars in the sky or some light from the moon, but there was none. There was no light at all. I stood motionless for a moment, straining to hear some sound but there was none. There was no light, no sound, no breeze . . . nothing except myself and the dust-dustling of my clothes. As I stood there, I tried to collect my wits. The only thing that I could think of was, an atomic attack. I thought that must have been what it was, only I had never expected it to effect everything this way. I had never pictured myself as being hit only once, and I must have been the only one because I couldn't hear a thing that even sounded like it was alive.

Hours seemed to have passed. The silence was getting to me. I yelled but I couldn't even hear myself. I began to run, almost hoping that I would run into someone. Suddenly I was myself senseless so that I could forget that unholy silence, but I didn't. I ran until I felt the mud under my feet become firmer. I fell to my knees and ran my hands over the ground. It felt like rock, melted rock. I suddenly came to my mind. I was getting close to where the bomb went off, if it was a bomb. I got up and began to walk slowly. I seemed to have been going up a rise as I continued. It got steeper and steeper until I was almost on my hands and knees again trying to get up. It suddenly seemed I was getting close to the top, for I began tumbling down what seemed to have been the other side. When I finally stopped, a sudden realization came to me. I could hear something. I could hear some hissing sounds coming from the ground. I saw hundreds of huge fires. They must have been people's homes burning, but the fires were so intense. But at least I could see. The idea of finding somebody else alive then filled my mind. I began to yell and run among the fires, trying to see someone. Suddenly I was stopped in my tracks. A group of people was marching towards me. I ran up to one and grabbed him.

"I'm glad to see you, fella. You don't know how glad I thought everyone was dead. Do you know what it's all about?"

"I don't know," I said, my head and kept on marching. They didn't speak.

They marched past me and soon I lost sight of them among the fires. I felt so empty and useless. For the first time I could remember, I felt completely beaten and didn't care any more for anything. I felt that I was in a tardily resigned to my fate, not even knowing what it was.

Finally I began walking again. The ground seemed to glow under my feet and burn my every step forever into my thoughts. If only I could have known. If only I could have seen . . . before now.

I came to a high mountain enveloped in smoke. Then as the place where I stood the smoke suddenly parted and two huge doors faced me. Slowly they opened and I shuddered at what I saw. There before me stood a bulky figure that seemed to be constantly changing its shape. Once it looked like a kind old man, then it took on a form that seemed to look like the very personification of evil. I knew then, when it spoke.

"Welcome, my friend, to my domain," said the devil.

What do you think?

(ACP) — Is the average American student capable of expressing himself with good writing? Apparently not, says this editorial reprinted from the Miami Hurricane.

"WRITING ACTION GOOD — There's some tightening up going on in the College of Arts and Sciences and in the school of Education. It is good that it is being done, but there is at least a small element of sadness that there is a need for it on the university level.

The tightening is being performed on standards of writing competence. The two schools are asking professors to report any students who consistently turn in grammatically poor papers.

There is one thing behind all this. It is that standards generally accepted for the writing of college graduates have not been met.

Dean E. Morton Miller of Arts and Sciences points out that employers and businessmen have been complaining about the poor writing of college graduates from many institutions.

There is obviously just one goal for this program. That is improvement in writing, a meeting of standards.

But it seems a little sad that the need exists in the first place.

Some people have been so extreme to argue that language is, per se, thought. Whether you accept this view or not, it is least a little sad that language is a major tool of thought.

This being the case, it seems tragic that people with at least a high school education in this land of plenty should be so sadly lacking in this basic tool of thought and communication.

College students everywhere are perplexed with what to do with their spare time. If you don't believe us, listen to this story with a Moral from the BIBLE.

There do you do you with your spare time; the time that you are not in class? (Editor's note: Obviously inferring that some people have spare time in classes.) Some people work here on campus; others commute or work on weekends. But there is still another class that just comes to school.

A lot of students spend their free time socializing or wrecking the rec room. This is a lot of fun and is very enjoyable, but have you thought that you should be "writing" that term paper instead of watching "The Little Rascals"? (Ed's note: always listen to Radio because you can at least hold a book in front of you).

If you have a boy or girl friend going to school here, it is needless to say where all your time goes. (Here at the ALL STATE we lose more good staff members that way.)

Card playing seems to be the chief occupation of many students' time. Some are even becoming "sharks" at Rook, Canasta, Tonk, and various other games. (At AP, since 99.44% of us are pure broke there is never any money on or under the table).

There are several people on campus who study more than almost constantly. In fact, as we peer beyond the inked ribbon, we see two people who seem to be searching for four-leaf clovers.

If the above musings bear any similarity to and if it is coincidental. The names have been removed of course to protect the guilty. And we are reasonably sure that this program will not be heard at the same time or on the same station.

In closing we would like to say don't write editorials in your spare time because they usually turn out too controversial to be printed. (Ed's note: after proofing the last section of this "editorial" we have concluded that if you aren't crazy when you enslave yourself as chief you soon will dig you own little pit).

Comments From Election Winners

ESTES

I wish to extend a sincere thank you to the students here at Austin Peay State College for their support and influence in the recent election.

I am deeply honored to have been chosen as your president. In order to prove that your choice was a worthy one I will put forth every effort in the coming year.

SMITH

Since the smoke has cleared away from the political battlefield I would like to take this opportunity to thank all the students who voted in the election. Needless to say, I am quite happy with the outcome of the election. I hope I can carry over my selection for Vice president by giving you a year of good student government.

In your class elections you have elected officers of good caliber who are capable of doing a fine job. These people form the nucleus of your student council, what we accomplish can only be done with your co-operation. So let's all work together for a program of better student government in the coming year.

I would like to thank the present officers of the student council for the commendable way in which they conducted the election this year. I also wish to thank the ALL STATE for their splendid coverage of the election and the following they did. Again, I express my deepest thanks to the student who voted and made all this possible.

MURPHY

When I say "thank you" for showing such enthusiasm and for casting a larger number of votes than in previous elections, I feel sure that I speak for all the candidates involved in the recent election.

I feel that being elected to serve you next year as your secretary is a big honor and I do appreciate your years of confidence. If the interest of the student body shown in the election could be continued through next year, we could make it one of the best years yet at AP-S.C.

Sandra Vick stalled her car, at a traffic light on a winter day. She stamped on the starter, tried again, choked her engine, while behind her an impatient citizen honked his horn steadily. Finally she got out and walked back.

"I'm awfully sorry, but I don't seem to be able to start my car," she told the driver of the other car. "If you will go up and start it for me, I'll stay here and learn on your horn."

Science

Tommy Hayes has been elected president of the newly formed Science Club.

Vice-Presidents are Clarence Sanders and Charles Pollard; Secretary is Bert Sanders; and Treasurer is Ann Usery.

The Club meets the fourth Monday night of the month in Science 201. Mr. Leo Weeks is the faculty sponsor.

Miss Bernice Hopkins, Director of Dietetics at Vanderbilt University, spoke to the Austin Peay Dietetics Economic Club, April 27.

Two Dietetics interns, Miss Bosworth of New York and Miss Beardslee of the Philippines, helped Miss Hopkins explain the general plan of dietetics and the present field at Vanderbilt.

The girls attending the State Home Economics Convention in Cleveland, Ohio, returned with a very profitable trip. Another social event was the coffee hour served to the faculty members attending the Mathematics Tournament.

The Home Ec girls served coffee and doughnuts to approximately 35 teachers from the Mid-state area. The club members are looking forward to their next regular meeting with a program presented by Mrs. Mac Lane Galt, representative of TVA.

The Executive Committee of Yale College, headed by Dean Carroll, proposed the new regulations to the Yale College faculty, which formally adopted them. The members of this committee decided to reduce the size of the honor list arbitrarily rather than to try reducing the number of students receiving marks in the 80s and 90s. Their reasoning was that classroom standards at Yale are already high enough, and that grades cannot be legislated by administrative order.

Wildroot Cream-Oil Gave Him Confidence

Sheedy's handy hair giving him the cold shoulder. "This is more than I can bear! Why not be nice?" he moaned. "What fur?" she demanded. "I'll be a frosty Friday before I date you again. And just in glacier wondering why, take a look at your shaggy hair." This made Sheedy's fur bristles and paws and think. So he got Wildroot Cream-Oil and found out he's the picture of good looks and his hair is handsome and healthy looking, neat but not messy. Wildroot contains the heart of Lanolin, Nature's finest hair and scalp conditioner. Take Sheedy's advice. Whether your hair is straight or curly, blonde, red, black or brown, keep it soft with Wildroot Cream-Oil. In bottles or handy tins! It's the hush!

Joe Grisham Runs 440 Yard Dash In AP Record Time - 53.1 Seconds

Although the Austin Peay track team has an unimpressive track record this year (five new school records have been set, Joe Neal Grisham ran the 440 yard dash in record time of 53.1 seconds in the Quadrangular meet involving Austin Peay, David Lipscomb, Union and Middle Tenn. State, Davis Wood, top point getter for the Gavs, set a new record for the 120 yds. High Hurdles in the time of 15.4 seconds. This was in the fourth way meet. Don Woods set a new record for the shot put throw when he threw it 43 feet 9 inches against Murray State. Rodger Estes threw the discus 123 feet

9 inches in the Quadrangular meet, also setting a new record. Cunningham Crow, passing, quarterback on the football team, threw the javelin 164 feet 1 1/4 inches in the Quadrangular meet. The mile relay team which lost one of its event last year set a new record of 3:35 against Murray State. The mile relay team is composed of Ted Smith, Al Rogers, Virgil Hill Joe Neal Grisham. The Gavs have captured only one meet this year, that was the quadrangular meet which was held two weeks ago. The AP thiathlons have lost single meets to Sewanee, Vanderbilt, and Murray State; they also finished last in a triangular season meets involving Middle Tenn. State, Austin Peay and Murray State.

The Gavs have only two regular season meets left; they are with Tenn. Tech on May 14th and Murray State on May 20th. The Gavs carried a ten man traveling squad to Sewanee for the Tennessee Intercollegiate Athletic Meet. They were Joe Neal Grisham, Al Rogers, Don Woods, Virgil Hill, Dave Wood, Rodger Estes, Cunningham Crow, Milton Darden, Bill Lax, and Ted Smith. On May 12th the Governor's thiathlons will enter the W.S.A.C. meet which will be held at Middle Tenn. State College.

On board ship, there will be provided an intensive orientation program. The orientation staff will consist of a large group of men, both European and American, who have been selected for their knowledge of European life and problems. Language classes will be available as well as film strips and various lecture periods. Thus, Vienna will find herself well-prepared to step into her new country.

Vianna will spend about two months in Finland. She and about ten other Americans will travel to the same town where each will move into a different home. The major portion of the summer will be spent with a family. In her home, there will undoubtedly be brothers or sisters near her own age. After several weeks in the "home town" the American group will invite their brothers or sisters to travel with them through the country. During this informal four-week trip the group will visit important cities in Finland and have a chance to see its beautiful scenery.

During this summer, Vianna will share her experiences by writing frequent letters to the LEAF. CHRONICLE. After her return this fall, she will present programs to various civic groups and interested organizations in this community.

Only My Opinion

By Dick Sullivan

Going into this afternoon's game with the Murray State Thoroughbreds, the Governor baseball squad will be attempting to improve their third 6 and 4 record. In registering these 6 wins, the booming Governor batters have compiled a team batting average of .306, which has produced 11 runs per game.

With little doubt, Phil Brown is the player who has shown the greatest amount of improvement over last season. Phil's .426 batting average makes him the club's leading hitter. However, his ability is far from limited to his hitting chores. Philip is the Gavs' starting pitcher and owns five of the team's six wins. He has lost one. His 1.80 earned run average is by far the lowest on the staff. When awarding awards for the team's success, Mr. Brown will rate high on any list.

The Governor's big first baseman, Tom Morgan, is the second of three regulars to exhibit an average over .400. Tom is hitting .408. Also a pitcher, Tom has the other Governor win in the important run-batted-in column. Morgan has produced ten.

The work-horse of the team is Buddy Martin, now in his fourth year as the Gavs' backstop. Buddy is carrying a .404 batting average and is the team's leading run producer with 23 RBIs. In his catching duties, Buddy handles many more fielding chances than any other player but with only 2 errors, he rates first place in this department with a .974 average.

Ken Gerards is the other regular in the 300 class. The Gov's starting shortstop sports a .347 average. Hooper, first line pinch hitter, stands in with a .272 average. Defensive ace, centerfielder Sam Coker, sports a .394. Lloyd Collier, our amiable fielding second baseman, clubs the ball at a .256 rate. Johnny Crow is batting an even .250 with 19 RBIs. Howard Hawkins is a much better hitter than his present .210 average, as his 12 runs-batted-in will show. Al McClearen is off to a slow start with a .153 average.

With a power plus batting order and a pitching staff which has given up an average (earned) of 3.82 runs per game, there is little doubt that this Governor's baseball will be winning baseball at Austin Peay. The only discouraging situation is the team's .334 fielding average. The Gavs have committed 43 errors in 10 games.
