Sylvia Gregory Is Miss Home Economics

MISS HOME ECONOMICS SELECTED—Sylvia Gregory, Miss Home Economics of 1963-64, is congratulated by Mrs. Adolf Hach, professional home economist, as Mrs. Doris Milton looks on. (Staff photo by Jim Alsop.)

Sylvia Gregory was selected Miss Home Economics last Friday by the members of the Home Economics Club.

The contest, held in conjunction with Tennessee Home Economics Week, March 4-11, required that the girls competing have a 3.00 average in Home Economics, that they be Home Economics majors and be active in local and state club activities. Sylvia, a junior from Clarksville, is president of the Home Economics Club at Austin Peay State and a member of the SNEA and the Delta Club.

The winner of the voting was announced by Mrs. Adolf Hach, a professional home economist who has appeared on "Kitchen Kollege," a Nashville television program.

Sylvia is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Gregory of Clarksville.

'Tower' Staff Announced

Jim Phillips and Suzanne Mitchell have been selected as co-editors of "The Tower," an anthology of student writings sponsored annually by the English Club.

Joan Overton will serve as poetry editor; Billy St. John will act as short story editor; Ruth Fuller will be essay editor; John Martin and Paulette Scott will be business managers.

Essays, poems, and short fiction may be given to any member of the English Department. The deadline for the material is April 5. Any material will be greatly appreciated.

There will be a $10 first prize given for the best work in each division.

This year "The Tower" will feature art work by art students outside the regular illustrations.

Buy Tags For Retarded

"One is happiest when serving his fellowman." That will be the motto of the SNEA next quarter when they sponsor a drive to collect money for the Volunteer State Vocational Training Center for the Mentally Retarded of Montgomery County.

The first two weeks of Spring Quarter the SNEA will be selling AFSC license tags to raise funds for the general operation of the Center.

The tags will be two inches by ten inches with "AFSC the GOVERNMENT'S OWN 1963" printed in red letters on a white background. They will be sold for 50 cents each and can be attached to the regular license plate.

Since one of the purposes of the SNEA is to be a service organization to the community, the group felt that this project would best carry out that purpose.

Everyone is urged to help make it a success.

Savage Delivers Kick-Off Speech

Dr. Tom Savage, dean of students and professor of education at Austin Peay State College, delivered the kick-off talk March 2, at the Conference on Elementary School Teacher Education for Tennessee College Staff Members.

The title of Dr. Savage's talk was "Student Personnel Programs: Problems and Promising Practices." The talk was centered around the evaluation prepared at AFSC for the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education.

Dr. Savage discussed four areas in his talk. The areas were: (1) Recruitment, (2) Selection and Recommendation, (3) Advising, and (4) Placement and Follow-up.

Bryan Crutcher, assistant professor of education at AFSC, also represented Austin Peay State at the conference.

The two day conference, which was held last Friday and Saturday in Knoxville, was sponsored by the Department of Curriculum and Instruction, College of Education, the University of Tennessee.

Other featured speakers during the conference were Dr. T. M. Stinson, assistant executive secretary of the National Education Association; A. B. Cooper director of certification, Tennessee Department of Education; Dr. Rodney Tillman, professor of education at George Peabody College; Dr. George Dove, director of the School of Arts and Sciences at East Tennessee State College.

Dean Savage served as chairman of the committee on the Student Personnel Program of the College in the self-study conducted at AFSC. He also was the editor of "A Self-Survey of Teacher Education at Austin Peay State College" which was a report prepared for NCATE.

Attend For APSC

"Attend campus functions! Take part in the activities of APSC! Support your school!"

These cries echo unceasingly through the halls of Austin Peay State College and the call is out again. Attend the NCAA tournament in Louisville this weekend and support the Governors as they try to take the title.

Our basketball team will be playing under conditions that will make it more difficult for them to make a good showing. That is why it is important that we go to the games and show them that win or lose we are behind them.

True, it is the weekend before final exams, but we hope that everyone has gotten caught up and there won't be too much last minute cramming for exams. So if it is at all possible try to attend and put in a few "Ye, team's" for our side.

While we're on the subject of attending, we'd like to say that those of you who missed the second annual Mid-South Jazz Festival Thursday night will never know what a tremendous experience it was. (All of the groups who played were very good, and Mr. Covington, who acted as master of ceremonies, was at his best!) The attendance for the Festival was exceptional, to say the least, and it is hoped that this will lead to the two day affair that will bring in many groups from all over the country.

These are the things that will make Austin Peay State College known. Academically, our school is already finding a name for itself among the better colleges. With the added appeal and publicity of such events as this, anyone will be proud to say that he attended or graduated from Austin Peay State College. And our support will make these events possible.

How's Your Vision?

Some time ago, Bertrand Russell illustrated the collection of irregular verbs by the following example:
I am firm
You are obstinate.
He is a pig-headed fool.

In all his long career as a mathematician and logician, Russell never made a more useful discovery. It is a device for seeing ourselves as others see us, as if through a telescope, and more often than not through the wrong end. A British newspaper demonstrated its general utility by collecting from its readers other examples:
I am a moderate progressive in educational matters.
Aren't your views a bit extreme?
He is on the lunatic fringe.
I am active in area service.
You haven't been on campus much lately, have you?
He neglects his classes to junket around the countryside.
I believe in the educational essentials.
Your views seem to lie on the conservative side.
He should go back to the little red school house.
I am devoted to academic freedom.
You shouldn't stick out your neck.
He's a campus red.

I try to understand all points of view.
You should make up your mind.
He's a fence-straddling compromiser.
I think our program should be better coordinated.
You shouldn't attempt to impose patterns on people.
He's trying to be another Hitler.

Student Forum

By RONALD ARVIN

A NOTE OF EXPLANATION—There have been several inquiries recently concerning the nature of the Student Forum. Basically, they may be summed up in three questions: (1) Who writes it? (2) What topics are acceptable? (3) In what form is it to be written?

The Student Forum is NOT written by regular staff members. Its author is you, the interested student. The article must be signed but the name may be withheld at your request.

The choice of topics is left to your discretion, but it should be in taste. The article may advocate that a special night on which only the religious clubs will meet be established, that assemblies be placed on voluntary attendance or that your favorite cause be supported. The forum is, in fact, your loudspeaker.

The Student Forum is an informal essay of either a serious or satirical nature. It usually follows the general-to-specific form. This means that its main idea is expressed first in a general statement and then supported by more specific references. You should also state logical reasons for supporting your cause. Beyond this, the article is limited only by your imagination.

The Student Forum is you and your ideas. If it is challenging, it is because you are challenging. If it is interesting, it is because you are interesting. The Forum can be nothing more nor nothing less than what you make it. It can exist only as long as you continue to support it with your articles.

In addition to the students selected for the summer, one student may be selected to take part in the project for the remainder of the year.

HAIL TO THE DEAN!

Today let us examine that much maligned, widely misunderstood, grossly overworked, wholly dedicated campus figure—the dean.

The dean (from the Latin Deamus—to expel) is not, as many think, primarily a disciplinary officer. He is a counselor and guide, a haven and refuge for the troubled student. The dean (from the Greek Deamus—to skewer) is characterized chiefly by sympathy, wisdom, patience, forbearance, and a fondness for homely pleasures like community singing, farina, spellbooks, and Marlboro Cigarettes. The dean (from the German Deamus—to poop a party) is fond of Marlboro for the same reason that all men of good will are fond of Marlboro—because Marlboro is an honest cigarette. Those good Marlboro tobacco are honestly good, honestly aged to the peak of perfection, honestly blended for the best of all possible flavors. Marlboro honestly comes in two different containers—a soft pack which is honestly soft and a Flip-Top box which honestly flips. You too will flip when next you try an honest Marlboro, which, one honestly hopes, will be soon.

There is not a dry eye in Yutah

But I digress. We were learning how a dean helps poor, troubled undergraduates. To illustrate, let us take a typical case from the files of Dean S. . . . of the University of Y. . . . (Oh, why be so mysterious? The dean's name is Sigafoss and the University is Yutah.)

Wise, kindly Dean Sigafoss was visited one day by a freshman named Walter Agunnoort who came to ask permission to marry one Emma Blensheim, his dormitory landress. To the dean the marriage seemed ill-advised, for Walter was only 18 years old and Emma was 91. Walter agreed with the dean, but said he felt obligated to go through with it because Emma had invested her life savings in a transparent rhinoid to protect her from the mist at Niagara Falls, where they planned to spend their honeymoon. If Walter called off the wedding, what use would the poor woman possibly have for a rhinoid in Yutah? The wise, kindly dean pondered briefly and came up with a brilliant answer: let Walter punch holes in the back of Emma's steam iron. With steam billowing back at the old lady, she would find a rhinoid very useful—possibly even essential. Whispering with gratitude, Walter kissed the dean's Phi Beta Kappa key and hastened away to follow his advice—and the results, I am pleased to report, were madly successful!

Today Emma is a happy woman—singing lustily, wearing her rhinoid, eating soft-center chocolates, and ironing clothes—twice as happy, to be candid, than she has married Walter. . . . And what of Walter? He is happy too. Freed from his unwanted liaison with Emma, he married a girl much nearer his own age—Agnes Yucca, 72. Walter is now the proud father—stepfather, to be perfectly accurate—of three fine, healthy boys from Agnes's first marriage—Everett, 38; Wilhelm, 43; and Irving, 55—and when Walter puts the boys on a lead and takes them for a stroll in the park on Sunday afternoon, you may be sure there is not a dry eye in Yutah.

And Dean Sigafoss? He too is happy—happy to spend long, tiring hours in his little office, giving counsel without stint and without complaint, doing his bit to set the young, uncertain feet of his charges on the path to a brighter tomorrow.
