Student Affairs undergoes alterations

by Mike Lynch

Through a series of moves, the entire structure and personnel of the division of student affairs at Austin Peay State University was altered this past summer. In the past, the division was administered by a vice president, a dean and two directors. It will now be run by a dean and three directors, with a new person filling each position.

The changes followed the resignation of two key administrators in June. Dr. Bob Nettles, dean of students, advised the university that he would not be returning this fall, in order to take a similar post in Georgia.

Dr. Charles N. Boehms, vice president of student affairs, submitted his resignation on June 28. Boehms, who came to Austin Peay as a biology instructor in 1957, said it was his intention to return to a full-time teaching position.

Following his transfer to the biology department as a full professor, Boehms said, "For some time I have considered returning to the field of my professional training. I am a professional biologist and a teacher." "I look forward to the opportunity to return to the highest level of academic employment," he added, "full professional rank, in a substantive academic department."

Two days after Boehms' resignation, President Robert O. Riggs announced the restructuring of the student affairs division. The major change did away with the vice presidency which Boehms had held. Under the new plan, the dean of students became the university's chief student personnel officer.

According to a release from the university's Public Affairs Office, Riggs consulted with members of the student affairs staff and the presidents of the University Assembly and faculty senate before making the changes.

"Simply, what we have done is change the structure from a vice president, dean and two directors to a dean and three directors, and shifted a few responsibilities to other administrators," Riggs said. "The number of professional positions remains unchanged."

Dr. Roscoe Shain was selected by Riggs to serve as interim dean of students. Shain, who had been with the university as an assistant professor of general business, assumed the new post of August 1.

Following the appointment, Riggs said, "I am pleased that a member of our faculty was qualified and willing to accept the responsibilities of the position. His appointment received strong and enthusiastic endorsement from the student leadership."

Shain came to Austin Peay in 1978. Prior to that he served as public service coordinator at the University of Tennessee in Nashville.

Holder of a doctorate of jurisprudence degree, Shain was a recipient of the Big Apple Award in 1978. He serves as advisor to the Sigma Chi fraternity, John Jay Society and Alpha Kappa Psi business fraternity.

The dean of students' office is now located in the office formerly occupied by the vice president in the Browning Building.

Commenting on the changes, Riggs said, "Our intent is to allow the chief personnel officer to focus more directly on student needs. The dean will be able to totally commit his or her time to student developmental needs."

"By streamlining the dean's position, this individual will be able to focus on cultural, recreational and social opportunities for students, as well as student development," he added. A time limit has not been set for appointing a permanent dean.

Three new directors were also named to the student affairs division. The directors of student activities and student life will report directly to the dean of students, while the director of auxiliary enterprises will be responsible to the university's business manager, Sandra Bright.

Artie Manning was selected to fill the post of student activities director. The position was created by Dr. Boehms' office last spring, following the decision not to retain Evie Ravenhorst as director of student life.

Manning will be responsible for coordinating various social and intramural activities, including the upcoming '38 Special concert. He stated that he plans to continue many programs which have been successful in the past.

"The key of student activities is to provide the students with as much of a choice of activities as we can with what we have," Manning said. "This is the extra-curricular life and so we try to offer informal recreation, organization, intramural and special events in the University Center."

The hiring of Beth Edwards to act as director of student life was announced on July 14. Edwards will be responsible for residence halls and various student organizations, including fraternities and sororities. She holds a masters degree in education from Mississippi State University, where she worked in various areas of student life.

Martha Henry was named to fill the post of auxiliary enterprises in August. Her responsibilities include housing, food service, the bookstore, post office and game room.

Other responsibilities, which formerly fell under the supervision of the vice president of student affairs, will be delegated to other areas within the administration. Recruitment has been shifted to the vice president of administration and development. Financial aid is now administered by the dean of admissions and records.

Business building opened

by John Saint-Amant

The new College of Business Building was completed this summer and an official open house was held to initiate the $2.7 million facility into the community. The open house allowed the public to view the building and to meet several men for their efforts in acquiring the building.

The new building contains only business related studies, relieving other buildings from the load, and also centralizing the business department. University President Robert O. Riggs said at the opening, "The world is moving to a more modern, computerized business environment. Austin Peay now has the equipment and the facilities to prepare the students for a successful role in that business environment."

Dr. J.F. Burney, dean of the college of business and professional programs, said the business building will enhance the faculty's instruction of business and professional curriculum. "For the first time, we have the opportunity to have all areas of the college of business and professional programs together in a

FOR HE'S A JOLLY GOOD FELLOW—Dr.

Charles Boehms, former vice president of student affairs, was the man of the hour last Thursday, Sept. 16. Nearly 200 people came to a surprise party honoring Boehms' 14 years of service to the Austin Peay administration. Why did he leave after 14 years? Biology, his first love. "To put it in your basic nutshell," Boehms said, "a teaching position was open in the biology department and I decided that it would be more gratifying to return to my field of professional training and interest."

.38 Special to give AP performance

The southern rock group .38 Special will perform at Austin Peay October 27 at 8 p.m. in the Dunn Center.

Jim Townsend, university social activities board chairman, said that the concert will be "the biggest concert Austin Peay has ever seen."

Contract negotiations began in July and the final draft was finally signed in mid-September.

Spys, a band consisting of former members from the rock group Foreigner, will open for .38 Special. "Caught up in You" and "Rockin' Into the Night" are two of .38 Special's top ten hits. "Caught Up in You" was number one on the charts for several weeks.

Townsend said that the USAB expects more than 8,000 to come to the concert.

"Southern rock is very popular in this area," Townsend said, "and they should go over very well."

Tickets will be on sale Sept. 27 in the Dunn Center and U. Center at Austin Peay, and at the Fort Campbell, Hopkinsville and Clarksville Sound Shop record stores.

briefly

Jazz musicians needed

Musicians are currently needed for the 1982-83 Jazz Collegians, a jazz band composed of Austin Peay students. Musicians needed are trumpet, trombone, saxophone and rhythm (piano, bass, drums, guitar and auxiliary percussion) players.

Interested students should contact Dr. Aaron Schmidt at 648-7818 or in room 111 of the Clement Building.

APSU discounts given

WKVL Radio and several local merchants have prepared a special package for Austin Peay students. A booklet containing sports schedules, a directory of important telephone numbers and discount coupons from participating businesses, will be given to each student when he or she rents text books.

The booklets also will be at WKVL's remote studio, which will be set up outside the student center as they broadcast live from 3 to 6 p.m. during Wednesday's registration.

Refrigerators for rent

Refrigerators are currently being rented in the rear of the Memorial Health Building. The cost is $15 per quarter or $30 per year. A $15 deposit is required on all rentals.

Hours of operation are Monday, September 20, from 10 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m. Rental hours are from 1 to 4 p.m., Tuesday through Friday.

State Regents to meet

The State Board of Regents will meet in regular session at 9:30 a.m. on Sept. 24, 1982 in the Truhren Building. The committee of finance and business operations will review audit reports released recently by the State Comptroller's Office for Austin Peay and several other universities on Sept. 23.

U.S. Army to drill

The United States Army Drill Team (Old Guard) will present a short exhibition of military marching and precision weapons display at Austin Peay. The display has been scheduled for 1:45 Sept. 27 and will be held at Austin Peay's ROTC Army.

"One of the most elite and distinguished groups in the U.S. Army" is what Capt. Bryan Wiles, asset, professor of military science at Austin Peay, called the group. The 22 men in the organization are stationed in Fort Meyer, Virginia.

Play auditions held

Auditions for Inherit The Wind will be held Monday and Tuesday (September 27 and 28) in the Truhren Theatre. The drama by Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee is the Austin Peay Playhouse's first major production of the 1982-83 season.

Dr. Joe Pilippo, chairman of the department of speech and communication and theatre, will direct the play, which is loosely based on the Scopes Monkey Trial. Auditions will begin at 7:15 each evening. Technical director and designer for the show is Dr. Thomas A. Pellen. Robin Cole will serve as assistant director.

The three-act drama has speaking roles for 25 males and seven females. Production dates are November 3-6. Scripts can be checked out in advance from the speech communication and theatre office in the Truhren Fine Arts Building.

Congress to blame Red tape hurts financial aid

This has been another busy summer in the Student Financial Aid Office. There have been more changes in guidelines from the federal government which adversely affected the financial aid application process at Austin Peay and resulted in more red tape for students and the university.

The original intention of the Department of Education to require income verification from all Pell Grant applicants was revised downward, by congressional action, so that approximately 60 percent of all financial aid applicants have been required to provide copies of their (or their parents) 1040 or 1040A income tax forms.

Financial Facts by Susan Ikard

Students who did not have the necessary records on hand have found that it has taken considerably longer to have their applications processed.

However, the Internal Revenue Service has assisted in the validation process by providing a listing of tax information on request, which takes about three weeks to obtain, as opposed to eight to ten weeks for a photostat copy of the 1040 or 1040A. If a student is still lacking this information to complete his/her financial aid application, the SFAO has available IRS Form 4506, Request for Copy of Tax Form.

There are too many who have created a high degree of impact on Austin Peay students regarding the financial aid process for 1982-83. The Pell Grant processor was unable to employ any extra personnel to help process the approximately 5 million applications which flow through their operation annually.

This resulted in a 10 to 12 week delay in processing the Pell Grant Student Aid Report (SAR) during the late spring and early summer. Now that the peak period has passed, the turn-around time is about four to six weeks.

Business Building

cohesive unit. Each area of the business and professional studies is interrelated, and being together in a single building allows our faculty members and our students to interact. That means we can all work together as a team to prepare our students for a future in the modern world."

Along with Riggs and Burney were Ben Kimbrough, Rep. Roscoe Pickering, Rep. David L. Ussery, Sen. Riley Darnell and former Sen. Halbert Harvill, all of whom played key roles in securing the new building. Kimbrough, former vice chairman of the State Board of Regents and later University of Tennessee trustee, was especially praised by Riggs in his efforts. "Behind the scenes, Mr. Kimbrough worked to bring a modern and resourceful college of business and professional programs building to the Clarksville community and to our campus," Riggs said.

Architects Rufus Johnson and Associates of Clarksville designed the facility, and Bass and Associates, of Murfreesboro, constructed the addition to Austin Peay. The 25,000 square foot building contains 10 classrooms, seminar and conference rooms and a 116 seat auditorium. There are 26 offices set aside for the faculty, including suites for departmental chairpersons.

The other area which impacted a large group of Austin Peay students was the decision to use veteran's benefits and Social Security educational benefits as an offset against the Pell Grant cost of education. As it appears now, no student receiving veteran's benefits under chapter 34 or 35 of the U.S. Code (GI Bill) will be awarded Pell Grant.

Also, many students who are receiving Social Security educational benefits from a deceased parent have had their Pell Grant entitlement reduced or eliminated. The financial aid office has attempted to compensate for this loss by awarding a National Direct Student Loan (NDSL) and Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant (SEOG) whenever possible.

There is one bright note at the moment. Both the Senate and the House of Representatives last week voted to override President Reagan's veto of a continuing resolution which contained, in part, additional funds for financial aid. Consequently, many Pell Grant awards may be increased, and additional SEOG funds may be available. The SFAO will have more information on this subject at a later date.

Students are also reminded of the fact that the deadline to apply for aid for 1982-83 academic year is March 15, 1983. Financial aid awards can be made retroactively, and are determined by the student's enrollment status each quarter, as well as financial need.

Students who have had their financial aid cancelled for violation of the aid retention policy may meet with the Financial Aid Committee on Sept. 28, 1982, at 1:30. An appointment should be made with Ms. Nancy Pickett in the Student Financial Aid Office (648-7907) by Friday, Sept. 24, 1982. The Financial Facts column will appear every other week in The All State. Students having specific questions which can be addressed through the column should contact Susan Ikard, financial aid counselor.

SGA executives prepare for fall

by Robert Boswell

Freshman orientation, homecoming and the beginning of a new school year. These are the major projects that have busied the Student Government Association executives this past summer.

President Wayne Mosley and Vice-President Mike Trent have offered unending hours of work for the success and completion of the projects the SGA has undertaken during the summer months.

The largest of the activities was the freshman orientation program. Orientation for freshmen and transfer students was held in three two-day sessions during the final three weeks of July.

According to Mosley, 657 students participated in the program. "Approximately three-fifths of this year's incoming freshmen have already been pre-registered," Mosley said.

Impressed by the participation and attendance at the program, Mosley commented, "for a first-time program, we have had a huge success. I believe we impressed the new students and faculty, as well as ourselves."

Included in the two-day sessions, was a special program for parents. The student's parents were given the opportunity to tour the campus, and were briefed on items pertinent to the student's career at Austin Peay State University.

Between the final two sessions, Trent and Mosley attended the American Student Association convention in Washington, D.C.

During the four day convention, the SGA executives were exposed to various programs and seminars, promoting new ideas for American college campuses.

"In Washington, we learned a lot of things that will be beneficial to the APSU students," Mosley said.

Two items of high interest, according to Mosley, were a rape prevention seminar and the introduction of a new loan system for college students.

"Security has never been a big problem at Austin Peay," Mosley said, "but, we should always stay on top of the latest security methods, and the rape prevention seminar could add a great deal of insight into what security measures should be taken here."

Brought into practice by Boston College, the new loan program gives the student an opportunity to borrow money and little trouble with paying the money back.

Upon leaving the school, the Internal Revenue Service would tax the former student's income a certain percentage based on his or her earnings.

The tax collected by the IRS would eventually repay the loan. In total, the student would repay one and one-half times the amount of the loan. However, with no set time limit to repay the money, it is not expected that a burden should be felt by the student.

Referring to the loan system, Mosley added that, "if you only make $10,000 a year or less you are exempt from the tax."

Mosley said that although the program is not yet available to APSU students, he feels it will only be a matter of time before it does reach the Austin Peay campus.

Plans for this year's Homecoming celebration and the disappointment of the loss of the proposed food plan, have also placed a burden on Mosley and Trent's shoulders.

According to Mosley, last year's controversial food plan is dead. "What we knew last year is gone," he added.

I was told by President Riggs that the faculty did not approve of the previous plan," Mosley stated, "I guess they didn't want to lose the Gov's Grill."

A lack of knowledge of the food plan, by both students and faculty, is what Mosley said caused the food plan's termination. In discussing the fact that Austin Peay is one of the few schools without a food plan, Mosley said, "I don't know why we can consider ourselves right and them (universities with a food plan) wrong."

We will be starting a food plan here in January, and I hope it will be similar to the last one that was proposed. We need a definite food plan, one we can all benefit from," he added.

Mosley and Trent have been working with the Austin Peay Alumni Association in an attempt to create an "unforgettable" Homecoming experience this year.

"We are planning a party in the Dunn Center the night before Homecoming and the Pikes are sponsoring a party Homecoming night at the Clarksville Jaycee Center," Trent said.

Building school spirit through a Homecoming celebration is just one way the SGA foresees a new and fresh school spirit at Austin Peay. They also want to rent buses for transportation to away games.

Mosley said the buses are fun for those who ride to the games and are safer than driving. "Many of us would benefit from the buses. Some with cars would have transportation and others who might drive and celebrate would be able to do so without driving," he noted.

According to Mosley, many new jobs are sure to engulf the SGA in the next few weeks. "The most important thing to do now is to welcome the new students to Austin Peay," Mosley said.

"Austin Peay is for the student. I encourage the freshman to get involved and make their college career meaningful."

Good news and bad news: Austin Peay has new phones

First the good news: new phones have been installed in the dormitories at Austin Peay. Now the bad news: the new phone system is inconvenient, unnecessary and unfair.

If you ask anybody from administration they will tell you that the students come first. "Without students we would be out of a job" is nice to know.

But it would have been even nicer to know about this telephone system when it was first being considered. According to Sandra Bright, business manager at APSU, Dr. Bob Nettles, former APSU dean of students, first proposed the system last spring.

"I don't know why the residents were not informed," Bright said. "I assumed Dr. Nettles had talked to the students."

Nettles is now working for the University of Georgia at Athens. It's unfortunate that he isn't around any more; there are a lot of questions that a lot of surprised students would like to ask him. These students found out about the new telephone system only when they returned this past weekend.

According to Bright, the new telephone system was implemented to save money. Students who save the same suite in a dorm also share the same telephone number.

And although Bright said $12,000 a quarter will be saved by the new system, she also said that the savings will not be noticed for a couple of years since it cost so much to install the new phones. Bright was unable to show The All State any documents that would show us anything at all about the cost of the new phones.

Mrs. Dean Pennington, Nettles' secretary, was also unable to find the documents in her files. Mrs. Carylon Wooten, Dr. Charles Boehms' (former vice president of student affairs) secretary, said that her documents were missing from her files, too.

Sound fishy? You bet it does.

Mrs. Elizabeth Ivy, director of institutional research at APSU, said Nettles promised her that he would send questionnaires to students about the new system.

"I was against the proposal when he (Nettles) sent it to me," she said, "because I thought it was unfair to the students. He insisted though, that the students would like it and asked me to find out how much the new system would cost."

Ivy called Carter Jones from the University of Tennessee of Knoxville and asked about their phone system since they use a party-line system, too. According to Ivy, the system turned out to be financially sound.

Since Ivy also serves as the manager of telephone communications at Austin Peay, she was forced to make a managerial decision even though she did not agree with what was going on.

"It would have been unprofessional of me to tell Dr. Nettles that I didn't agree with the proposal unless it was managerially unsound," Ivy said.

Ivy wasn't the only person who became trapped by "ethics." Bright also disagreed with the idea of having the new phone system.

"I signed the contract because, financially speaking, it was a sound thing to do," Bright said. The questionnaire that Nettles promised to send to the students never got sent. He was unavailable for comment.

About $12,000 a quarter was supposed to have been saved by using the new phone system. Bright said that the only alternative was to raise the cost of housing by another five dollars.

The All State surveyed 140 students from Rawlins, Cross and Killebrew Hall about the new phone system. Only 15 of those students said they would be unwilling to pay five extra dollars a quarter for a private phone.

In other words, 88 percent of the students surveyed would rather pay five dollars extra a quarter for a private phone than to have the present phone system.

The opinions of the students who live at Austin Peay have been ignored by an administration who would be jobless without them.

There have been a lot of administrative changes since Nettles left Austin Peay. Maybe the new administration members will respect the views of the students more than they have been in the past.

"Gonna be a whopper..."

Big Mama breaks foot in two places

If your summer had its dull moments, I'd like to welcome you to the club, but we may get stimulated now that we're back on campus. I don't know about you, but I've got my fingers crossed in hopes that someone in the administration will do something really stupid this year. Excitementville, oh yeah.

I hope you enjoy my column this year. If you ever decide that one of my columns just doesn't cut it, slip on the 2D glasses that are included in this issue and if you don't laugh at my column then I'm sure someone will laugh at you. Happiness is my only concern, it doesn't matter why or from where the laughs come.

in 2D

Last year, I wrote a column on Angeline Parchman, better known as Big Mama. She is responsible for keeping Cross Hall and Ball Village (campus dorms) clean and making sure the students there have plenty of toilet paper.

Big Mama told me last year that she slipped and fell once coming down the Cross Hall steps. "I almost broke my damn neck," she told me.

Unfortunately, Big Mama has slipped again. She didn't break her neck, but she did break her foot in two places. And, according to Big Mama, "It hurt like hell...I cussed up a storm, baby."

She and other maintenance workers were cleaning Killebrew Hall this summer when the accident occurred. The steps were slick because of rain.

"It felt like hell," Big Mama said, "I had to lay there on the cold concrete for 10 minutes before they'd let me up."

Big Mama has since seen a bone specialist and should return to work by mid-October. She will see her doctor in early October to see if her foot has healed enough so that her cast can be removed.

George S. Hicks, Tennessee Occupational Safety, Health and Accident/Facilities Inspector at Austin Peay, said that Big Mama's accident was unfortunate. "It's just one of those things. It could happen to anyone," he said.

Hicks is responsible for the safety of students and faculty members while they are on campus. He said that reconstruction of the Killebrew or Cross Hall steps wouldn't help.

"The only thing we can do is clean the ice and snow off as fast as we can get to it. We really can't make the steps much more anti-skid," Hicks said.

Big Mama got her name several years ago while working in a restaurant. And she says her name may be changed again.

"Big Mama, hell, I'm gonna be a whopper when I come back to school," she said. "All I can do is eat, drink and watch soap operas."

Big Mama keeps busy by watching All My Children and General Hospital.

"You see that Luke (the star of General Hospital)? He's crazier 'n hell. Ain't got no sense," she said.

Big Mama, we all miss you. Get well soon. (If you'd like to give Big Mama a card or flowers, etc., call 648-6154 or 648-7376.)

Harry Motley R. Moeller

This cartoon is a public service announcement brought to you by a grant from the B.S. Corporation.

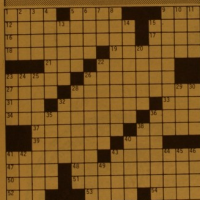

During the last few weeks of the 1982 Spring Quarter, I was upset to see the various slanders portrayed within this artist's strip, such as my alleged connection with organized crime. The man, Harry Motley, as seen through the eyes of this Coke machine, has abused his rights as an American citizen. I don't know what should be done about this, but I do know that a machine is innocent until proven guilty....

In response to the previous public service announcement, and since I was so deeply moved by Mr. Coke Machine's speech, I would like to offer this apology....

Sorority rush schedule starts Sunday

by Carole R. Hedden
Office of Public Affairs

Amid the hustle of figuring out schedules, finding their way around campus and meeting new friends, a group of Austin Peay State University coeds will begin what is known as formal sorority rush Sunday evening. Sorority rush is a host of parties, skits and songs crowded into a few evenings. The result is that the girls attending the parties, known as rushees, will become members of one of the Greek letter organizations.

At Austin Peay, three national sorority chapters participate in formal fall rush, which will end this year on Saturday when bids of membership are given to the young women.

Belonging to a Greek organization is "in" again, according to Beth Edwards, director of student life at Austin Peay. "During the 1960s and 70s it wasn't the thing to do to belong to anything. Now, that has changed and most college sororities and fraternities are experiencing growth in membership again."

The reason for that growth is fairly simple, according to Nataasha Yochum. "There is a sense of belonging in a sorority that most people our age seem to want. The sororities let you become involved in one activity and experience a lot instead of joining several groups and spreading yourself too thin."

The APSU coed is president of the governing body for the Greek sororities at Austin Peay, the Panhellenic Council. "I really think belonging to a sorority makes adjusting to college life a little easier," she added. Yochum said this year about 100 girls are expected to participate in the formal sorority rush staged by members of Alpha Phi, Chi Omega and Kappa Delta sororities.

Those sorority members have been working throughout the past year to boost the name of the organization and to organize skits and parties for fall rush.

The first night, Sunday, will consist of an information tea at the Joe Morgan University Center with Edwards. A slide presentation about Greek life will be shown, and Panhellenic advisers help the girls throughout rush, answering questions and listening," Edwards said. "For that week, they aren't members of any sorority. They're just representing this University's Greek system."

Tuesday will be the first night of parties with each rushee visiting the three sorority suites on the third floor of Ellington Hall. Edwards and Yochum said the suites, which were prepared during the summer months by the University and the sororities, have caused excitement among the sorority members about this year's rush. Previously, the suites were located in Harned Hall.

After the first night of parties, the rushees should know some of the members of each organization as well as something about the sororities' programs and benefits to members.

Thursday night, they will return to the sorority suites again, with the chapter members presenting skits and musical productions that further explain the sorority.

"The themes of the skits are kept secret until the night of the parties," Yochum explained. "In the past, the skits have had all kinds of themes, from country to Broadway shows."

Those skits are originated by collegiate members of national sororities, according to Edwards. Many chapters choose to write their own skits. Other will choose to use a skit that has been successful for the sorority's chapter at some other college or university.

Following the Thursday parties, each rushee must choose two houses to return to Friday night. According to Edwards, the parties on Friday night will take on a more serious note as rushees are encouraged by sorority members to remain open-minded and choose the sorority that best fits with their plans and their personalities.

"The girls are reminded constantly to choose a sorority where they will be comfortable, where they'll be happy for the next four years they're at Austin Peay," Edwards said.

After the Friday night parties, the rushees sign what is known as a preferential sheet, indicated which sorority they would most like to be a member of.

"Bids, which match up the rushees' choices with the sororities' choices of members, will be given out at 10:00 Saturday morning," Edwards said.

National Research Council has minority fellowships

The National Research Council plans to award approximately 35 Postdoctoral Fellowships for Minorities in a program designed to provide opportunities for continued education and experience in research to American Indians and Alaskan Natives (Eskimo or Aleut), Black Americans, Mexican Americans/Chicanos and Puerto Ricans.

Fellowship recipients will be selected from among scientists, engineers and scholars in the humanities who show greatest promise of future achievement in academic research and scholarship in higher education.

In this national competition sponsored by the Ford Foundation, citizens of the United States who are members of one of the designated minority groups, who are preparing for or already engaged in college or university teaching, and who hold doctoral degrees may apply for a fellowship award of one year's duration.

Awards will be made in the areas of behavioral and social sciences, humanities, EMP fields (engineering sciences, mathematics, physical sciences), life sciences and for interdisciplinary programs of study.

Awards will not be made in professions such as medicine, law or social work, or in such areas as educational administration, curriculum supervision or personnel and guidance.

Tenure of fellowship provides postdoctoral research experience at an appropriate nonprofit institution of the Fellow's choice, such as research university, government laboratory, national laboratory, privately-sponsored nonprofit institute or a center for advanced study.

The deadline date for the submission materials may be obtained from the Fellowship Office, National Research Council, 2101 Constitution Avenue, Washington, D.C. 20418.

Ducks...kill while the killing's good

The next two days afford an excellent opportunity for outdoorsmen to get in on some of the best duck hunting they'll see before the winter winds set in. The states of Tennessee and Kentucky have set aside five days to allow duck hunters to bag their share of teal and wood ducks before they head south for the winter.

Until just a couple of years ago, many of our southern woodsmen missed out on the woodies and bluewings that settle into the marshes about this time of year. Along about the time regular duck season would open up, they'd have done down the coup for warmer climes.

Then, a couple of years back, a great sportsman and true humanitarian by the name of Frank Bowers, with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, convinced his higher-ups that it wouldn't hurt the woodie population one bit to allow a little September harvesting.

With states like Tennessee, Kentucky and Mississippi clamoring for the special season, the feds gave in back about 1980. What they agreed to was a three-year experimental plan. If the web-footed population appears to be holding up pretty well after 1983's September season, you can expect to see it expanded to some of our southern neighbors.

While the special season got underway this past Saturday, early morning rain storms put a damper on hunting prospects. By afternoon, the effects of the tropical storm battering the gulf was dissipating and hunters in the Land Between the Lakes region were able to start pulling in their limits of the migratory fowl.

Along about Sunday afternoon, I started getting the itch to go out and bag my share of the woodies and teal. However, when you're working under tight deadlines, it ain't always easy to head out to the more popular duck hunting spots.

So I took the advice of a friend who once told me about the success he had enjoyed at a spot right close to home. This spot holds one of the largest concentrations of ducks in Clarksville. Swan Lake seemed to be the ideal spot for a little Sunday afternoon hunting.

Any sportsman will tell you that you have to consider every obstacle before you set out on your expedition, no matter how large or small scale it might be.

Since Swan Lake is situated within the city limits, one should be aware of the city's gun laws. Here, you're faced with something of a problem, because the city code bans the firing of weapons within the city limits.

However, anyone who knows a hook from a sinker will tell you that when two laws contradict each other, the law of the higher authority rules. If the state and federal government says you can hunt duck, you can hunt duck.

Outdoors
with
Mike Lynch

This was one case, however, where you could make everybody happy. The law says you can hunt duck, but it doesn't say you have to shoot. There are alternate ways of killing ducks.

By 5:30 Sunday afternoon, I had my baseball bat, lasso, umbrella, rocks of assorted sizes and nine-iron loaded in the car. Like that great sportsman and true humanitarian Bubba Smith once said, "Those great sportsman and true once said, 'Those little things sure can move.'"

Swan Lake's duck population was spread in four groups across the lake. The larger flocks were settle in close to shore. Several sportsmen apparently shared my idea, as many were lofting golf balls at the birds from the number 10 tee. They enjoyed little success and soon headed across the lake in search of other birdies.

Just about any decent duck hunting magazine will tell you that you'll have your best success if you set out decoys. However, you'll find that ducks don't have any more common sense or better eyesight than your basic Irish Setter. It's ridiculous to set out a dozen decoys if you're only going to kill a few ducks.

For these reasons, I took along an Italian-made plastic dove that retails for $1.99 at Grandpa's. This is more than enough for the September season, since you can only bag four ducks a day, three of which must be woodies and/or teal.

A quick scrutiny told me that we had about two dozen teal on the lake, 18 woodies, 12 of other species and three tranvestities. What I refer to as tranvestities are these little ducks who don't really know what they are. Some are actually pretending to be other species, in order not to fall prey to a September hunter. I set my sights on those three cowards.

With my decoy in place, I settled in along the bank for what promised to be an exhilarating afternoon of hunting with my baseball bat and lasso. The three tranvestities were obviously attracted to my decoy, but then they were attracted to just about anything on the lake that didn't move. While they wandered close to my hiding place a few times, they never quite came within reach of the baseball bat or lasso.

One important thing to remember if you go in for hunting during this special season is that the marshy areas which the ducks are indigenous to also attract mosquitoes.

Along about 7 p.m., the sun was setting and the ducks were becoming scarce. The three tranvestities had withdrawn to a private part of the lake. It was time to pack in the Italian-made dove and call it a day. It was sad to forsake the thrill of the hunt.

Cadets place third

by Carole R. Hedden
Office of Public Affairs

Cadets representing Austin Peay State University's Reserve Officer Training Corps brought home a third place overall skills rating from summer advanced camp, held at Fort Lewis, Wash.

For five weeks, the Austin Peay cadets joined officer candidates representing more than 90 schools from throughout the country at the advances training session and in overall competition.

"Areas used to determine the ratings were physical training, test scores, land navigation scores, subjective ratings by superiors, application of tactics, military skills tests and peer evaluations," according to Capt. Thomas Patty of the Austin Peay military science department.

In addition to the third place overall rating, Cadets Julio Alvarez of Clarksville, Jaime Bonano of Chicago, Ill., and Johnny Boyd of Dermont, Ark., received number one ratings in their individual platoons at advanced camp. "They were three of 30 cadets who were recognized as top performers at the camp," Patty said.

ers at the camp," Patty said.

Austin Peay cadets ranking in the top 10 percent at camp were Mike Latham of Elkhart, Ky., Printice McGlory of Nashville and Fred Shaw of Dover.

Other cadets at Fort Lewis earning Austin Peay's third place overall rating were Don Board, Deborah Boardman, John Brunt, Jr., Carolyn Covington, Calvin Gager, Jerl Hannah, Loretta Heckler, James Lemons, Michi McKinney, Thomas Mercer, John Miller, Edil Pelican, Monty Powers, Gregory Riley, Danny Troutman and Edward Vaughn.

Following advanced camp, several cadets were selected to take part in further training, Patty said. This is the last formal training they will receive before being commissioned as second lieutenants in the military in the spring.

According to Patty, once cadet completed air assault school at Fort Campbell, while six cadets attended airborne school at Fort Benning, GA. Four cadets took part in cadet leadership training at Fort Campbell and Fort Knox, KY.

GO GOVS, GO!—Over 7,200 people crammed into the Municipal Stadium Saturday night to see the Gova play ball. Last year's Homecoming game against MTSU didn't even draw a bigger crowd.

Language lives at APSU

Arma virumque cano. Latin will once more be heard in the halls of Austin Peay State University. Dr. Richard Covington, chairman of the department of languages and literature, announced the revitalization of foreign language instruction at Austin Peay.

The modern language department was absorbed into the department of languages and literature two years ago.

President Robert O. Riggs directed the department to fill the foreign language vacancy this year. They responded by hiring Dr. Ramon Magrana. Magrana comes to Austin Peay from the University of Wisconsin at Oshkosh. Originally from Cuba, Magrana received his Ph.D. from Texas Technological College in Lubbock.

Covington says the emphasis in the instruction of modern languages will be on business translation, in order to offer students more marketable skills. A multi-language program will be available soon, he added. English as a second language will also be continued.

French and Spanish will be offered in the fall. Latin will begin, at an intermediate level, in winter quarter. German will be offered as a class at Fort Campbell and as an independent study course at the main campus.

Welcome from the President

President and Mrs. Riggs would like to welcome you to Austin Peay State University. They are hosting a reception for all new students on Thursday, September 30, and would like for you to attend. The reception will be held in the Joe Morgan University Center ballroom from 4 to 6 p.m. Dress is casual. Please drop by and meet the Riggs and other members of the University community.

Greek cookout Tuesday

The Interfraternity Council and the Panhellenic Council will co-sponsor a lunch cook-out Tuesday, Sept. 21, from 11:30 p.m. to 1 p.m. The fraternities and sororities will donate food and drinks for the cook-out in front of the University Center. Hot dogs, chips and drinks will be served at the cook-out that will introduce members of the Greek system to the students.

Dogs hit Nashville in record numbers

The Nashville Kennel Club sponsored a dog show in Nashville Municipal Stadium yesterday morning.

A story in the Tennessean reported that over 900 of man's best friends were entered in the event. The dog show started at 8 a.m.

The Tennessean noted that awards for over 100 breeds were to be given in the contest, "as well as five classes and a Best of Show trophy."

Welcome to Austin Peay State University

Dear Students:

I am pleased to welcome you to the 1982-83 academic year at Austin Peay State University. My hope is that you have had a very pleasant summer and that the academic term you are now beginning will be just as rewarding.

While at Austin Peay, your future is the main concern for you, your academic advisers and your instructors. We are a student-centered University that cares about you, your studies, your career and your happiness.

And while we believe there is no substitute for hard work and hard study to meet the high standards expected in today's world, we also recognize the need for your development in other areas.

For that reason, Austin Peay offers you a wide variety of activities—from organized athletic teams in the Ohio Valley Conference to honor societies for various majors. We're a diversified University, and that diversity is the result of you, our students.

There have been some physical changes to the campus in the past three months. Those of you studying business-related fields will be attending classes in our College of Business Building which was completed this summer. There you will find outstanding new computer and word processing equipment, allowing us to significantly strengthen the quality of your education in the College of Business.

Another change which revolves around student life is the establishment of new sorority suites for the five national sororities on our campus. The suites are now located on the top floor of Ellington Hall, affording the sororities with better facilities and more room for growth.

New faculty members have arrived and will work with you in preparation for your future. That future continues to be our main concern as the job market becomes more and more competitive. We urge students to take advantage of our career planning facilities to make the path to the future career a little less trying.

Commuting students will notice the improved parking lots near the Mabel Meacham Apartments (the new student apartments) on West Avenue, and we've added more security lighting for your safety when on our campus. The lighting has been placed in areas around the Memorial Health Building and Blount and Sevier Halls—places where our students indicated the need.

The construction of the Memorial Health Building indoor swimming pool, along with a patio adjacent to the pool to provide for a leisure location for our students will be underway in the next few weeks.

We hope you will quickly become acquainted with our various student activities. Student Services was reorganized in an effort to better serve you. Dean Roscoe Shain and his staff have planned many stimulated programs and activities for the coming year. I hope that your schedule enables you to take advantage of as many of these as possible. It is our hope that there will be something for everyone, whether a student wanting to become involved in the Student Government Association or the Twenty-five Plus Club.

All in all, we have had a productive summer at Austin Peay, and I am sure the faculty and entire staff join me in welcoming you back to the University. We believe we are going to have a very good year in 1982-83, a year filled with learning, fun and preparation for your future.

Sincerely,

Robert O. Riggs

Robert O. Riggs
President

Fellow Students:

Let me take this opportunity to welcome you to OUR university as we begin this school year together. I trust that your summer was both enjoyable and memorable and that his break sparked your enthusiasm for the year.

After the chaos of moving into your dorm, locating old friends and just getting settled in general has subsided, it's my hope that we can all redirect our efforts toward a better Austin Peay.

Austin Peay has so very much to offer, and it is up to us as students here to work together to create an atmosphere that will reflect what Austin Peay is—a great university complete with a professional faculty, enthusiastic student body and an exciting campus. After all, if we can't be proud and show pride in our university, who can?

Although college entails many hours of classroom work, note-taking, studying and testing, let's not forget that we are entitled to a good time occasionally. Austin Peay doesn't forget its trivents, and throughout the year, many activities are planned and carried out for our entertainment and enjoyment. In order to benefit from all that is here, you must participate and become involved.

Involvement is the key to success anywhere. More than half of your time this year will be spent outside the classroom, so take part of this time to get involved with OUR university. Positive involvement of this type not only benefits the university, but will benefit you, as a student, as well.

Throughout the course of the year, if there is anyway that the Student Government Association can help you, please call us or come by our office. After all, we are all in this together.

For a better Austin Peay,

Wayne Mosley
SGA President

Dear Students:

I would like to take this opportunity to welcome you students to Austin Peay campus. We in the Student Services Division are looking forward to an exciting and productive school year. I am also looking forward to meeting all new and transfer students, and renewing acquaintances with all you returning students.

I hope you have an exciting school year.

Sincerely yours,
Roscoe Shain
Interim Dean of Students

Cheerleaders reap ribbons

by Carol R. Hedden
Austin Peay State University's cheerleading squad returned with ribbons and awards from a workshop held at Memphis State University August 9-13.

According to Janie Simpson, advisor for the squad, Austin Peay was named to the finalist category in competition between the 78 schools represented at the Universal Cheerleaders Association Clinic. More than 1,200 students attended.

To compete in the finals, Austin Peay performed a cheer taught at the camp before other squads and was awarded a blue ribbon. Other schools named to the finals included Clemson, Central Florida State University, North Carolina State University, University of Missouri, Louisiana State University, University of Alabama, Auburn and Murray (KY) State University.

Simpson said the finals competition was won by North Carolina State University.

However, the Governor cheerleaders did capture a spirit stick awarded to selected squads. After winning a squad spirit stick, given to squads exemplifying what cheerleading spirit is all about, Austin Peay was awarded one of the painted sticks along with ribbons during an awards ceremony.

"We were the only Ohio Valley Conference School to take home a spirit stick," said Simpson. Other OVC schools attending the camp were Murray State, Middle Tennessee State University and Akron.

Other awards won by the Austin Peay rabble rousers included two red ribbons for an original cheer and a cheer taught by instructors at the clinic. The Austin Peay group also took a first place ribbon for its fight song routine and a blue ribbon for sideline chant.

Stephanie Coates, chosen as governor mascot, won two blue ribbons and two gold superior ribbons during the competition on the clinic's closing day.

"This is the first time we've worked together as a unit and we learned so much," said Simpson.

"But no matter how many ribbons are won at a clinic, what counts is how we apply what was learned throughout the year."

The squad is led by Ken Harrison of Clarksville, captain, and Carol Walden of Kingston, co-captain. Members are Shea Clardy, Clarksville; Wendy Gunn, Clarksville; Tracy Pilkinton, Dickson; Tina Roth, Gallatin; Maria Singers, Fort Campbell; Trent Knott, Erin; Greg Palevo, Clarksville; Mike Latham, Elkton, Ky; and John Tankersley of Nashville. Coates is squad mascot.

HONORABLE FIGURE—Stephanie Coates was chosen as Austin Peay's 1982-83 mascot and lead the cheerleading squad in an August 9-13 workshop held at Memphis State University. Austin Peay won more prizes at the workshop than any other school with equal enrollment.

BECOME A 4-LETTER MAN.

Why are a lot of college men and women becoming buddies in Army ROTC?

Probably because Army ROTC is full of the kind of people other people go out of their way to meet.

ROTC students tend to be high achievers who are interested in more than their studies. They're popular students with a serious side, but who like to have a good time, too.

In other words, when people join Army ROTC they often meet people a lot like themselves.

Harned closed Sorority suites move

The high cost of renovation and a potential safety hazard to sorority members have led to the closing of Harned Hall. However, Harned, the oldest building on the Austin Peay campus, will not be demolished. The Panhellenic sororities, meanwhile, will be moved to the newly-repaired third floor of Ellington Hall.

According to Donn Brown, director of the physical plant, there were several reasons behind the action. Repairs had been made to Harned, however, the university only had approval to use it as a dormitory until the summer quarter of 1981.

"The base cost of doing the required renovation would call for $2 million. So it was decided to move the sororities out and place the old building in a dormant, custodial status until funds are acquired," Brown said.

Even more paramount was the safety factor. With so many rooms vacant and the sororities scattered, there appeared to be a potential safety hazard for the sorority members. In addition, parking spaces were felt to be too far away and dimly lit.

"We planned the move so that the sorority suites would be located in an area having more general use," Brown stated.

The sorority suites will be located on the third floor of Ellington Hall, which has been renovated to meet existing fire regulations. Fire alarms have been installed on the second floor, which will remain locked and unused, as an added precaution.

When asked about the move, Beth Edwards, Director of Student Affairs, said, "I'm very happy about it. I think the idea of having all the sororities located in the same general area will help foster Panhellenic spirit." Edwards envisioned hall displays by the various sororities and a closer working harmony among the groups.

The move will take place during Rush Week and an open house is scheduled for Parents' Day, October 16.

Meanwhile, frequent safety and maintenance inspections will be made on Harvill Hall to keep it in the best possible condition. Brown noted, "There are many plans afoot for the use of the building when monies are allocated for the needed repairs, so we'll wait and keep her in good condition."

Gous picked seventh

Colonels given command in Ohio Valley

Do you remember how Ohio State and Michigan used to dominate the Big Ten Conference football race year in and year out? How Oklahoma and Nebraska would beat up on all the other schools in the Big Eight? Preseason polls were about as difficult for writers to make as an extra-point is to a kicker. Not to it. Carbon copy of the last time out.

FROM
TO GREEN

by Steve Harmon

In the Ohio Valley Conference, Eastern and Western Kentucky are perennial poll sitters atop the loop's annual grid race. To say the two intrastate rivals won't be in the title chase come November is about as haphazard as playing without a helmet.

However, this November that's all going to change. No prediction, just plain fact.

You see, Western Kentucky, a charter member of the OVC in 1948, has switched allegiance to the Sun Belt Conference. School officials place faith in a lucrative Sun Belt basketball television package propelling them into the national spotlight, at the expense of their football team competing as an independent (the Sun Belt does not sponsor football). But, that's another story.

The immediate problem at hand is who can knock Eastern's General's, er, Colonel's out of command in the Ohio Valley?

EKU boasts three consecutive appearances in the NCAA Division I-AA national championship. The Colonels won the crown in 1979, before settling for runnersup honors in the two subsequent campaigns. Last year, the Colonels carved out a 12-2 slate, including a perfect 8-0 mark against OVC foes en route to the 1981 conference crown. With the bulk of that unit returning intact, the coming of autumn could fall hard on the other league members.

So, who's going to step up and assume the role of contender? League officials point toward Murray State and/or resurgent Youngstown State to apply the pressure. Looking past those three schools, the rest of the conference will be fighting for a first-division finish.

Since I'm not much on predicting the outcome of a conference race (at the end of the season, nobody remembers who was picked where, anyway), I thought it would be nice if I polled the sports information director at each OVC school to try to put this thing into perspective.

On an eight points for first-place vote, seven for second, etc. system, the 1982 Ohio Valley

Conference football season is previewed as follows:

School	Points (out of 56 possible)
1. Eastern Kentucky	54
2. Youngstown State	47
3. Murray State	44
4. Middle Tennessee	30
5. Tennessee Tech	28
6. Akron	26
7. Austin Peay	15
8. Morehead State	10

SCHOOL 1981 RECORD

EASTERN KENTUCKY—12-2 overall, 8-0 (1st) in OVC:

When Eastern Kentucky won the 1981 OVC football title last fall, it was the first time in six years that a preseason poll of coaches correctly picked the OVC titleists. The coaches may have started a new forecasting trend as the league's tacticians have again labeled EKU as the team to beat.

On paper, at least, the Colonels seem a logical choice to successfully defend their crown. Thirty-six lettermen, including 14 starters, return for coach Roy Kidd, who will enter his nineteenth season as ranking officer in the Colonel chain of command.

All-OVC tailback Terence Thompson (1,237 yds., 13 TDs) will follow the blocks of all-conference guard Chris Taylor (6-3, 235), while all-leaguers Alex Dominguez (5-0, 215) and Randy Taylor (6-4, 230) return on the other side of the ball as EKU seeks an unprecedented fourth consecutive appearance in the NCAA Division I-AA playoffs.

Based on a 1979 championship and runnersup finishes the last two seasons, Eastern's solid core of returnees may have the poise to reach the Division I-AA playoffs again.

YOUNGSTOWN STATE—7-4 overall, 5-3 (Tie for 2nd) in OVC:

Youngstown State University was a team bent on overcoming the odds last season. The Penguins snubbed their ninth-place preseason OVC ranking to finish in a tie for second in the loop, including an impressive 5-1 record on the road.

This year, however, coach Bill Narduzzi's squad is picked to finish near the top of the league, largely because of All-America tailback Paris Wicks. The 5-8, 166 pounder rushed for 1363 yards and 17 touchdowns to lead the OVC in both categories as Youngstown improved from a 2-9 slate to last year's 7-4 mark.

All-OVC defensive end Tom Cullen (6-2, 235) returns to anchor a solid defensive front. With 20 players returning who started at some point in 1981, the Penguins could possibly christen their new Arnold D. Stambaugh Sports Complex with an OVC championship.

MURRAY STATE—8-3 overall, 5-3 (Tie for 2nd) in OVC:

Second-year head coach Frank Beamer sees his 1982 Racers as a definite OVC title contender this fall. "We're going to be in the championship chase," Beamer confidently assessed in an MSU press release. A solid offensive line, headed by All-OVC tackle Phil Poirier (6-3, 255) will offer protection to quarterback Winston Ford (6-2, 185), who served the last two seasons as a backup for 1981 OVC offensive Player of the Year Gino Gibbs. Across the line, a Racers defense which yielded only six touchdowns rushing last season will be bolstered by the return of All-American end Glenn Jones (5-10, 205), who was side-lined all of last season with an injury. All told, the Racers seem ready to extend a winning tradition that has amassed 26 victories in the past three seasons.

NOSE FOR THE BALL—Governor receivers Kenny Richardson (33) and Sal Shields (88) relax next to a basket of practice balls during the first half of Saturday's 17-14 loss to UT-Martin in Municipal Stadium. The two combined for five catches on the evening.

Record even at 1-1

Govs step too far with UT- Martin

by Steve Harmon

Anytime a team loses a game to a rival school it hurts.

When a team drops a hard-fought battle on a controversial late-game call, the wound is even deeper.

That was the situation in Municipal Stadium last Saturday night as the host Austin Peay Governors fell short on a last-second stab at victory over the UT-Martin Pacers before 7,200 fans in Peay's 1982 home opener.

Trailing 17-14 with a mere 0:11 on the clock and the ball on the UTM 5-yard line, APSU quarterback Mike Katzman lofted an aerial in the direction of Governor wide receiver Kenny Richardson at the back of the end zone. The leaping Richardson out-fought two UTM defenders to pull down an apparent game-winning catch as the partisan crowd erupted. However, the officials ruled that Richardson was out of bounds when he landed, nullifying the score.

"We saw the film today and you can clearly see that I was in bounds," Richardson debated. "I came down with both feet in and then brushed the (endzone) flag," he added.

The play was diagramed to take advantage of Richardson's leaping ability. "It was a '62 elant' (quick post)," Richardson described. "We all thought he was in," added APSU wide out Tommy Michaels. In fact, it was Michaels who would have averted some post-game anguish had Richardson's touchdown been allowed. On the final play of the game, with only four seconds remaining, Michaels was the target of Peay's last chance at victory over Martin, a rivalry which is the oldest in AP football history.

However, the 5-9, 167 pound junior was unable to hold on to Katzman's pass as the Pacers escaped with a 17-14 win.

After leading 14-7 at halftime, the Govs surrendered a third period field goal and the subsequent game-winning score as Pacer wide out Tony Champion streaked under a 58-yard bomb from UTM quarterback David Carter early in the fourth stanza.

With 1:24 to play in the game, UTM punter Peter Lutz went down on one knee at the UTM 41-yard line to field a low snap from center. The mistake gave the Govs new life as the hosts marched 36 yards in five plays, only to see their drive aborted at the five-yard line.

The loss evened the Govs record at 1-1 after their season-opening 31-24 win at Kentucky State. UT-Martin is now 2-0.

In Frankfort, Ky. on Sept. 11, APSU rallied with 21 points early in the fourth quarter to erase a 17-10 deficit and name the Thorobreds. A fumble recovery for touchdown by rover back Mike Owens, a 12-yard TD jaunt from tailback Roland Shields and a Rob Christopher-to-Kenny Richardson scoring pass gave Peay its fuel for the fourth quarter fire.

The Govs return to action this Saturday afternoon for a 1 p.m. CST tilt against Western Kentucky in Bowling Green, Ky.

AP NOTES: Senior rover back Mike Owens was named Ohio Valley Conference Defensive Player of the Week for his 12 tackles and fourth quarter fumble recovery for a touchdown in last week's 31-24 win over Kentucky State. Freshman outside linebacker Pat Wilson grabbed OVC Rookie of the Week honors for his six tackles (four for losses) against K-State.

Sigs sponsor APSU athletic fund-raiser

Sigma Chi fraternity, in conjunction with The Camelot lounge in Clarksville, will sponsor a fund raiser for the APSU Athletic Scholarship Fund on Tuesday Sept. 28 at the Madison Street nightclub.

Buckets with names of various campus organizations will be placed at the door. The group with the most money from the $1 admission will win a free keg of beer from Ajax Distributing Co.

Johnny Miller, president of Sigma Chi and campus representative for Pabst beer said the first annual event is the culmination of his fraternity's search to become more active on campus as opposed to in the community.

"We (Sigma Chi) wanted a fund raising event to benefit the campus," Miller said. "This benefit for Austin Peay athletics is good for our campus image," he added.

Miller and fraternity brother Mike Zember, who is co-chairman of the event, expect to make $300 for the APSU general athletic fund.

The festivities, scheduled to start at 8 p.m., will feature music and a disc jockey provided by WJZM radio of Clarksville.

Drinks are happy hour priced from 8-12 midnight and door prizes will be given away throughout the evening.

OVC preview

MIDDLE TENNESSEE--6-5 overall, 4-4 (Tie for fourth) in OVC:

DEFENSE will be the cry from Blue Raider fans this autumn as MTSU returns 10 defensive starters, including All-OVC end Dennis Mix (5-11, 190), tackle Samuel Toles (6-3, 205) and free safety James Griffin (6-2, 190). Offensively, head coach James "Boots" Donnelly must fill some gaps, but All-OVC place-kicker Kelly Potter is back if the Raider machine stalls.

Last season's winning record should provide some incentive for the '82 Blue Raiders. It was the first time in ten years that MTSU bettered the .500 mark.

TENNESSEE TECH--6-5 overall, 4-4 (Tie for fourth) in OVC:

Coach Don Wade enters his fifteenth season in Cookeville with a renewed feeling of optimism. The Golden Eagles return a total of 19 starters that have reinstated winning football at Tech. Headlining the cast will be junior quarterback Tony Constantine (6-1, 175), who threw for 1321 yards and 11 TD's last fall warranting a 1982 pre-season All-OVC selection.

Senior center Mike Chmela (6-0, 230) and junior guard Mike Brown (6-2, 224) lead a strong Tech line, while senior defensive back Billy Blaylock (5-11, 180) leads nine returnees on defense. Another winning season should be within reach for the Techsters.

AKRON--5-5 overall, 4-4 (Tie for fourth) in OVC:

Building upon a season which saw the U of A Zips win four of their last five games to finish in the top half of the OVC, Akron head coach Jim Dennison is looking forward to a much better season than pre-season forecasts have in store for his squad. Nineteen starters return for the Zips, not to mention their entire kicking game.

Gone is two-time All-American linebacker Brad Reese, but the remainder of the defense appears solid and capable of filling any holes.

The key appears to be at quarterback, where returner Ron Gilha is recovering from off-season knee surgery. If the offense can move forward, so will the Zips.

AUSTIN PEAY--5-5 overall, 3-5 (eighth) in OVC:

Before the regular season had even opened, the Governors suffered two heartbreaking losses. Leading rusher Floyd Jones (1093 yds) and top 1982 pass catcher Ondra Woods (22 for 290 yds) were academic casualties. This all came on the heels of a tragic death to freshman wide receiver Rodney Long during the off-season.

Austin Peay defensive back Mike Owens was credited with 18 tackles and two fumble recoveries, one a touchdown, during non-conference action against Kentucky State and UT-Martin. ## IM department attractive to all students

For the majority of Austin Peay State University students who are not participating in intercollegiate athletics, the APSU intramural recreation program offers a competitive alternative for active students.

Beginning Wednesday Sept. 22, the IM department will sponsor numerous events throughout the school year. Selected sports feature competition in men's, women's, and co-educational divisions. Drew Simmons, holder of a master's degree in Health and P.E. from Middle Tennessee, enters his fourth year as coordinator of intramural recreation.

Simmons and his staff plan putt-putt golf and Miller High Life hole-in-one events on Wednesday during registration. A dunking machine, featuring APSU administrators and other campus personnel, will also be situated in the university center area. The contests are scheduled to begin on Sept. 22 at 8 a.m.

Simmons added that a tennis tournament is planned for the spring quarter, but dates are tentative due to renovation of the Rec Center swimming pool. "Much of what we do this year depends on how well the reconstruction of the pool goes," he said. The pool is expected to be closed from early October until the beginning of spring term, according to Simmons.

call at 10:45 a.m. or later to reserve afternoon or evening racquetball times, while faculty and staff should call after 9:45 a.m. to reserve lunch hour court times only.

NOTE: Entry deadline for men's and co-rec touch football is Sept. 29. Officials are needed for these and other intramural events. If interested, contact Drew Simmons at 648-7564.

OVC preview

However, head coach Emory Hale and the Governor staff have remolded the offensive unit (no. 3 in the OVC last year) into a challenge behind returning quarterback Mike Katman (6-2, 215).

If returning defenders Jody Herbert (left end), Chris Jenkins (noseguard), Zeb Purdie (cornerback), Mike Newton (strong safety) and Mike Owens (free safety) can solidify a suspect defense, the Goves can make 1982 the sixth straight season at 500 or better.

MOREHEAD STATE--1-9 overall, 0-8 (ninth) in OVC:

For the MSU Eagles, there is nowhere to go but up in 1982. Unfortunately, it's a long way to the top. Rookie head coach Steve Loney's baptism in fire last season produced a lone victory over non-conference foe Liberty Baptist (who?).

Leading the Eagles' flight from the cellar this year will be junior fullback David Thurkill (6-2, 237). The defense can ill-afford to give up anything near the 220 yards per game rushing it allowed in '81 if the Birds are to climb.

John Christopher, a man who had far too many attempts last season, returns a 43.7 yard punting average which earned him All-OVC and second-team All-America honors. Title contention doesn't appear in the 1982 gameplan.

Hours for the IM building are as follows: Mon.-Fri. 2-9 p.m.; Sat. 12-6 p.m.; Sun. 12-9 p.m. In addition to the above hours, faculty and staff only are permitted to use the facility on Mon.-Fri. from 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m.

Lady spikers prep for opener

by Jerry Ingram

Austin Peay State University women's volleyball season will officially start tomorrow night in Nashville at 7:30 at Trevecca College, Western Kentucky University will also make the visit to the Music City.

New head coach Cheryl Holt, an Ohio State graduate, has been in the coaching business for nearly 13 years is excited about the season. She was hired to coach the women's program as well.

How can she be two places at the same time?

"I have a graduate assistant, Debbie Southern. Where ever there may be a conflict, I will be with volleyball, since it's their season, while she will be with the tennis team," explained Holt.

Last year's team finished with a 23-14 mark.

September 7 was the opening day of practice, since then they have been practicing twice a day to get prepared for what they hope will be another winning campaign.

It will just be a wait and see situation.

The team has 12 players, eight of them returning from last season's winning bunch. "I was hired late, therefore, I couldn't recruit. We just have to work hard and go with what we have," Holt mentioned.

"We're going to take it slow in the beginning and play volleyball like it is supposed to be played," she continued.

The first three weeks were just the basics for Holt and company, working on consistency, running, passing and serving.

Of the four high schools in Clarksville, not one has a volleyball program. That leads Holt to recruit outside of Clarksville.

The Lady Governor's first home match will be at the Dunn Center, October, 15-16. They will host an invitational tournament, beginning at 10 a.m., on that Saturday.

FCA chapter invites more than athletes

by Jerry Ingram

The fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA), an organization on the campus of Austin Peay State University, is not only for athletes, but for anyone who is interested in the 30-member christianity group.

Dr. Billy Thompson, a faculty member in the business department, is in his sixth year as the advisor, while head football coach Emory Hale's wife, Vola is the director for the females, who have a small but strong-minded membership of 15. "There's always room for more," said Thompson. "That is an average number, but I wish we had more."

The association has planned several activities for this year. They include camping trips and picnics, while at the end of the season there will be an FCA camp on the university campus. Dates are tentative.

Steve Sorrells is president and Mark Leath is the vice president of the group. Both are members of the Governor's winning football team. They are the ones to see if interested in joining, or you may see Dr. Thompson.

Bob Heriges, the FCA publicity chairman, in his fourth year as the head Austin Peay football manager said, "The FCA chapter at APSU has grown due to coaching involvement. We're trying to open the chapter to everyone on campus. You don't have to be an athlete to be a member."

The first meeting of the 1982-83 academic year will be on Tuesday Sept. 22 at 9 p.m. in the Baptist Student Union.

Colonel golfers add Murray title to laurels

Eastern Kentucky University's golf team has picked up right where it left off last spring.

The Colonels, winners of the Ohio Valley Conference championship last May, have opened the 1982 fall season with a convincing win in the Sept. 17-18 Murray State Intercollegiate in Murray, Ky.

Individual medalist Pat Stephens paced EKU with 454 holes total of 208, eight under par for three trips over the Murray Country Club layout, as the Colonels posted a 1088 total to outdistance runnerup, Memphis State, who tallied a 1103 aggregate. Memphis State, who finish as runnersup for the second consecutive year, was followed by defending champion Western Kentucky, 1107, UT-Chattanooga, 1125; Southern Illinois, 1134; Murray State (Blue), 1137; Illinois State, 1148; Vanderbilt, 1158; Austin Peay, 1158; Murray State (Gold), 1162; and Evansville at 1180.

EKU's Stephens, who won the OVC medal last spring, fired rounds of 74-66-68 to win the Racers crown. Teammate Scott Simpson, UT-Chattanooga's Eric Landfried and Southern Illinois' Jan Janaco tied for second at 217.

Representing Austin Peay were Harry Tarpley, 75-78-76-229; Kevin Corriveau, 75-78-77-230; Steve Harmon, 76-75-81-232; Paul Ilg, 80-74-78-232; and Brad Van Kirk, 82-80-75-235.

"Stephens is the premiere player in the OVC," said APSU coach Mike Kellher. "I think he'll get a bid to the NCAA tournament this spring," Kellher noted.

The Governors next outing will be at Pickwick (Tenn.) State Park for the second annual Tri-State Classic on Oct. 10-12.
