

President envisions change at the Peay during coming year

By JEFF BIBB

There is not a whole lot that a new college president can specifically promise while in the first week on the job.

This, of course, also applies to Austin Peay's new president Dr. Robert O. Riggs who took over the chief executive's office Monday morning.

HOWEVER, in an interview with The All State Sunday evening, the 33-year-old president did promise one big generality. CHANGE at Austin Peay State University. He also hinted at a few specific events that will take place during his administration.

"There's a lot more going for Austin Peay than people on the outside recognize," commented Riggs, who is APSU's fifth president since the institution's inception in 1929. "There is much potential for growth. However, to grow we have to crystallize the pride of the institution."

Riggs pointed out that this could be done several ways.

"WE NEED more of an emphasis on maintenance of the physical plant," noted the new president. "We must have more pride in the campus and its appearance."

"Now this might sound like an unscholarly and unlofty kind of goal. But this can have a very tangible result as far as perception of the campus is concerned."

Riggs also pointed to the need for more attractive publications by the university, pointing out that the faculty handbook and recruitment brochures "don't measure up to those published by other institutions. Again, this is a mundane type of thing, but it can make a big difference in a university."

THE PRESIDENT feels that changes of this type can be made within the current resource limits of APSU.

Concerning more long-range goals of his administration, Riggs commented, "I am going to pull together the committee on long-range role and scope and we will try to have a written document which delineates exactly what our inspirations as a university are. I hope this is accomplished by the end of the quarter."

Riggs continued on long-range planning aspects by stating, "I want to get a real good look at what we're doing in campus development and get a good-quality campus architect to come in to look at the parking situation, street layout and the general makeup of the campus. We need to make adjustments that are aesthetically pleasing."

DR. RIGGS then turned to what he termed the "essence of the institution, the quality of the academic program."

He noted that the key individual in academic development in his administration would be the vice president for academic affairs. The academic vice presidency is currently occupied by Dr. Herbert Stallworth. However, Stallworth announced his resignation during the fall quarter, which will be effective in August.

That puts Riggs in the market for what will be his "top man."

"I WILL APPOINT an advisory committee in the next couple of weeks consisting of Student mothers speak out

Lack of facilities termed 'unfair'

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second and final of a series of articles concerning day care centers for students at APSU. Students in Peay Forum, contact editor.

By FAM ROBERTS

Whether married, divorced or single, mothers who want to further their education have problems.

In the words of one APSU undergraduate, married and the mother of two children, "Not having a day care center is unfair on the part of Austin Peay because it makes it difficult for most mothers to attend school and impossible for low-income mothers."

THIS PARTICULAR student mother pays $20 per month for pre-school child care.

Sharon Vaughn, parent of one child, recently received her master's degree from APSU. She commented, "The university ought to provide the opportunity for all students to receive an education. Married women with children do not have that opportunity as much as men because they must find something to do with their children."

"IT IS A disservice to the students of APSU not to provide this needed service."

An even greater problem than the lack of a campus day care service is the total absence of evening child care facilities in the Clarksville area.

Thus, mothers without private babysitters cannot pursue an education in the evenings by taking night classes.

"THE UNIVERSITY has done nothing to make this [evening class education] physically possible for mothers. This is ironic, since teachers are encouraged to pursue graduate degrees," Vaughn added.

As a suggestion Vaughn stated,

"I hope the university sets up a day-evening care center to ease the financial and emotional struggle of higher education for mothers."

The first step in the direction of realizing Vaughn's hope may be taken tomorrow night as the Student Government Association Senate acts on legislation concerning an Austin Peay day care center.

THE LEGISLATION, sponsored by David Mason, president of the sophomore class, is in the form of a resolution asking the administration to commission the University Community Planning and Coordinating Committee to investigate the feasibility of a university-run day-evening care center.

Mason is sponsoring the resolution "because there is a sincere need for adequate day care for children of students who are also parents."

"I don't know why someone didn't think of it before now," Mason added.

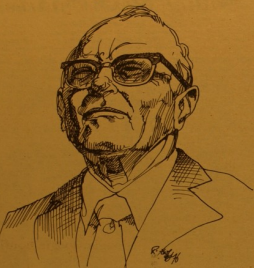

The All State gets new flag

With the new year comes a change in the appearance of the front page of The All State—a new flag designed by Ron Fontes, a staff artist for the newspaper.

Fontes' design replaces the old The All State flag which first appeared Jan. 12, 1966. The design was altered only slightly since that time.

It is hoped the design will signify the progressive efforts of The All State in presenting news to the Austin Peay University community.

Frats increase memberships

Frolics offend blacks, women

(CPS) - A mood on campus that's "more conducive to fun" has been the root of a 30 percent membership increase for the country's fraternities, according to a national fraternity chapter. But some of the fraternity fun has left blacks, women and a bear in the nation's colleges unamused.

Blacks in Dekalb, Ill., were incensed after fraternity members hung a statue of a black lawn coachman from the window of the Phi Kappa Theta house at Northern Illinois University (NIU). Student Affairs Vice President Harry Cannon said that in addition to the lawn coachman, a sign on the door of the fraternity had a picture of a burning cross and the letters KKK printed on it.

CANON, who called the display distinctly racist, asked the fraternity to make an apology to NIU's black community. The fraternity refused.

A NIU commission is studying the case and reviewing testimony.

New Mexico State University co-eds were seething early in October over a fraternity stunt they considered derogatory to women. Members of the school's Interfraternity Council had placed two large balloons depicting breasts on the second floor of a University building.

A sign below the balloons read, "If you like these mountains, then go to A Mountain tomorrow." Fraternity members at the school point an "A" for Arizona on a nearby mountain each year.

A woman history instructor at the university called the display obscene and offensive to women, while another university woman said it was "an obvious indication of the way in which fraternity men regard women. They view them as sexual objects."

AFTER a protest by students and faculty members, fraternity members removed the balloons, although one member observed that "it did the thing it was intended to do, and that was to get a large amount of attention."

In Ohio, a bear was the victim of Greek hi jinks. Members of the Alpha Chi Omega sorority opened their door one morning in September and found a decapitated and badly mutilated young bear on the porch. The bear was placed on the sorority porch by members of a neighboring fraternity.

Fraternity members said the bear was left on their porch during the night. The Ohio Department of Wildlife is considering taking legal action in the case.

In spite of these and other incidents on college campuses, membership in fraternities has increased steadily since a low point hit in 1960 and 1970.

A YEARLY survey by the National Interfraternity Conference (NIC) shows that since a membership upswing in 1973, membership has jumped by about 30 per cent. There is an average of 42 members at each of the 4500 fraternity chapters in the U.S. and Canada.

A national officer of the Zeta Psi Fraternity of North America said the reason for increased membership is that "the mood on campus has changed to one more conducive to fun. We're not being as heavy as we were during the war."

Abortions are legalized but study finds problems

(CPS) - Although abortion has been legalized for more than a year, thousands of women are still unable to obtain abortions in America, according to a study by the Alan Guttmacher Institute, the research arm of Planned Parenthood Federation of America.

The study estimated that between 400,000 and 900,000 women were denied abortions in 1974, most of them poor and many under the age of 20.

THE REPORT showed that only 15 per cent of public hospitals performed "even a single abortion" in the first three months of 1974. The response in many hospitals to the legalization of abortion "was so limited as to be tantamount to no response at all."

The total nationwide need for abortions in 1974 was estimated at 1.3 to 1.8 million. The total estimated number of abortions performed was only 82,000.

The report also showed that abortion services vary widely from region to region and are much more accessible to middle and upper-income women.

"UNLESS THESE inequities are corrected," the investigators concluded, "women who are poor or very young and those who live in smaller cities will continue to find it difficult to obtain safe, legal abortions."

Morgan commended for progress made

President Harry Truman had a sign on his desk that said "The buck stops here." It meant, of course, that the president has the final responsibility for many decisions that have a great effect on the welfare of the nation.

In a similar way, the president of a university, through his official actions, bears a great deal of responsibility for the success or failure of that institution.

THE FACTS show clearly the great progress which Austin Peay has made under the administration of Dr. Joe Morgan.

During his 13 years as president of Austin Peay, it has grown from a teacher's college to a multi-purpose university with a budget of over $7 million. The student body has doubled in size, from approximately 2,000 to 4,000 students, while faculty and administration have grown from approximately 120 to 190 members.

Several buildings have been completed, including the Woodward Library, the University Center, the Dunn Center, and a number of classroom buildings and dormitories.

BUT DR. MORGAN'S contribution to APSU goes far beyond facts and figures. His stature is shown by the respect and esteem felt for him by all elements of the university community-administration, faculty, students and alumni.

This does not mean that Dr. Morgan has seen eye-to-eye with every group on every issue. However, none of those who have worked closely with him over the years have ever had reason to doubt his fairness, his sincerity or his determination to do what was best for the university.

WE COMMEND Dr. Morgan for his 13 years of distinguished service to the university. We wish for Dr. and Ms. Morgan success and happiness in the years to come.

Dorm dwellers win right to drink in room privacy

(CPS) - While the specter of alcoholism is haunting more college campuses these days, many universities are relaxing their rules prohibiting drinking in residence halls and campus bars.

In recent months, universities in at least four states have edged toward or approved limited drinking on campus. One of the arguments frequently given for liberalized on-campus drinking policies is that drinking in dorm rooms is so widespread that it might as well be legal.

IN FACT, out of every 20 college students is a problem drinker according to statistics of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. And almost half the college students surveyed recently by a Chicago-based advertising agency said they bought carry-out liquor at least once a month.

The liquor can now be consumed in the privacy of a student's own dorm room at Oregon State University where students 21 years and older were given permission to drink in their rooms last summer. The new rule at Oregon State forbids drinking in public places like lounges or dining halls.

Title IX and bookstore draws reader comments

Dear Editor:

I have followed with much interest the continuing dialogue in The All State concerning Title IX. Realizing the source of some of your quotes, I had been able to refrain from futile attempts at another point of view. However, Mr. Wright's article in the Nov. 19 edition of The All State has caused me so much agitation I am no longer able to continue silently.

I was astounded by some of the comments from the young black athletes. The attitudes they expressed are the same that kept them (us) from competing in years past. I am saddened that they do not see the parallel between the attitudes they are expressing and racism.

Discrimination is discrimination, no matter how you shape or color it. The fact of the matter is that women are discriminated against in intercollegiate athletics, as in other areas, and there can be no "same approach" until the inequities are removed.

Many of the comments I have read in The All State seem to be directed toward placing Title IX and women's athletics in the realm of charitable endeavors. Well, I, as do many of your readers, support many charities - APSU football is a prime example.

It seems to me there can be no valid distinction between providing large amounts of funds toward the development of a competitive football squad and equal expenditures of funds toward developing competitive women's athletics. The idea is utter nonsense and those who advocate such a position are engaging in the folly of circular reasoning that perpetuates all discrimination.

I think there are serious questions surrounding the usefulness of all college athletics. And once all the rhetoric is waded through, the only positive benefit of college athletics I find is that it sometimes provides an opportunity for an otherwise unattainable education. This one benefit rightfully belongs to women also.

Fullton editorial draws fire

Editor:

After witnessing the hangings in front of the library last quarter, after reading the foolishness written about Title IX in a tasteless display of ignorance, and after thinking about these events, I found myself faced with three questions:

- 1) Who is Andy Fullton?
- 2) Who cares about his views?
- 3) Who cares about him?

Books available from SGA

Dear Editor:

For the past two quarters the SGA has sponsored a used paperback bookstore located in the tribunal office on third floor of the University Center.

The idea to purchase required paperbacks in good condition from students at one-third the original price and reselling them at one-half the original price was proposed in spring of 1975 by the senate. The slight markup in price is intended to be used to stock the books required by university courses and all profits go into the general fund of the SGA.

This quarter has brought a definite increase in the use of the bookstore service and several people have offered much of their time to help sell and buy books.

I would especially like to thank Martin Abraham, Maggie Warner, and Bonita Wilson for their help this year as well as all the students who have used the bookstore services.

I apologize to those people for whom we could not provide the required paperbacks and hope that more people will take advantage of our services in the future.

Since it is necessary for the stock to be prepared for spring quarter, I would urge any student with books required in spring quarter to bring them in to the bookstore.

Thank you,
Patsy Simmons
SGA Bookstore Manager

Editorial letter policy stated

The All State welcomes editorial comment by letter by all those involved in campus society. There are, however, several general style practices that all letters must follow.

Letters to the editor should be submitted to The All State office, room 110, Ellington Hall, no later than noon Friday for publication the following Wednesday. They must be less than 300 words in length and free from violence or libelous material.

Looking for original excuses?

Cutting class requires class

Coming up with excuses for cutting classes becomes increasingly difficult as one goes through school. Excuses are particularly hard to think of at the beginning of the quarter when one's mind is really not functioning very well anyway.

There are some definite rules to follow when making up alibis for not attending class. The first and most important is to be creative.

Run-of-the-mill excuses are a dime a dozen. Never tell an instructor that a relative died. If one did die. Few things are as commonplace as death, and practically no excuse is as overused.

I HEARD one professor comment that last quarter had been a particularly bad one for grandfathers. Nearly every member of his class had lost at least one.

"I had a cold" is another oldie. This explanation is always accompanied by a hacking cough, periodic sniffles and overall sad look.

If you've been sick, for the sake of heaven make up something that sounds 1) unusual, 2) very serious, and most important of all, 3) contagious. Even the words "intestinal flu" have lost their impact in getting sympathy. They never did get too much use.

This excuse is most effective if you breath down the instructor's collar while reciting your symptoms. The terrified individual may even ask you not to bother to attend class for a few days. Spinal meningitis is usually a good choice.

NEVER TELL an instructor that you had any kind of car trouble unless your automobile blew completely up and there is absolutely nothing left. That is different.

Try not to ever blame your absence on your alarm clock's malfunctioning. Everybody's alarm clock has failed at one time or another and most professors find that to be a second class excuse.

It seems that a popular excuse could soon be that of being trampled in the confusion resulting from a bomb scare. If you use this one, wear bandages.

You can always say that you fell into one of the holes in Henry Street and barely managed to struggle out without the assistance of the fire department. Those craters really should be either repaired or stocked with fish.

I ONCE heard a girl tell an instructor that she could not come to class because the zipper on her only clean pair of jeans broke and she certainly could not attend class without clothes. The instructor had to agree. Whether the excuse was valid or not, didn't it sound nice?

"Personal problems" is a frequently used excuse that has many drawbacks. First of all, the professor probably does not relish the thought of bearing about your running away from home at the age of 27 or your second cousin's wife's (twice removed) pregnancy.

If you must say you have personal problems, either make up something really tragic or better yet, leave it to the individual's imagination. ALL IN ALL, it becomes apparent that one will have much less thinking to do attending class than he will have thinking up excuses not to.

Boogie woogie bonfire burns

(CPS) - About $2200 worth of rock records went up in smoke recently in the name of God and morality in Tallahassee, Fla.

Rev. Charles Boykin, youth director at Lakewood Baptist Church and organizer of the record fueled bonfire, said he had been shown statistics claiming that "of 1000 girls who became pregnant out of wedlock, 948 committed fornication while rock music was being played." He couldn't remember the source of those statistics, however.

BOYKIN ARRANGED the bonfire after prayer services at the Baptist church. He asked ten-agers to bring along records they felt unalashed carnal urges.

Poll participants tell lies

(CPS) - About five per cent of the American public surveyed lied when asked if they do anything to conserve energy, according to the Federal Energy Administration (FEA).

IN A RECENTLY conducted survey, the FEA asked questions about what Americans are doing to save fuel. Pollsters asked questions such as: "Are you using fewer lights?" or "Do you drive at 55 miles per hour?"

At the end of the interviews, pollsters asked, "Have you ever installed a thermidor in your automobile?" Five percent answered yes, FEA spokesperson said.

Thermidor, as in "lobster thermidor," is a gourmet dish.

Paperback book sales cause complications

By JOHN BUNNELL

"What in the hell? Renting one book for $8.50 is too much!"

Winter quarter 1976 opened this way for many unsuspecting students at fee time, finding that their instructors either ignored their rented texts, or worse, required numerous purchases of paperbacks.

FURTHER CONFUSION resulted for students, when required book lists in the bookstore rental stacks were at times inaccurate or at least outdated for one or two classes.

Jane Aaron, manager of the campus bookstore located in the Woodward Library basement, commented, "There have always been problems updating the lists of required texts. But this year has been especially difficult with the paperbacks."

When the bookstore's shelves of rental books was checked Wednesday, no shortages were spotted in books for basic courses such as History 201-202. However, inaccuracies and shortages were found in upper level courses and Philosophy 201. But considering past records, the rental supply was comparable by years past.

The real complication for students comes in the bookstore's paperback section.

WHILE MONITORING Wednesday's paperback lines, two students said they had either been misled or confused by their English professors in purchasing English paperbacks. The students refused to be quoted, lest their professor gain an unfavorable impression. They did say they were enrolled in an English 102 course, however.

The two students expressed a desire to have bookstore rental lists "more available, like in the registration lines."

In the afternoon, four students commented that they had difficulty in paying paperback costs. One of the foursome rendered, "We weren't prepared to buy that many books...I had no idea Speech 204 would cost $8.50 with the paperback texts."

WHEN ASKED if the SGA had tried to get published lists of rental and purchased books for courses, Patsy Simmons, manager of the SGA bookstore replied, "Ron Lollar (SGA president 1974-75) tried, but ran into some difficulties in getting an accurate list."

Present SGA president, Maggie Wagner, stated that she has hoped that some type of published list will be made available to students at the beginning of the spring quarter.

When asked to explain the difficulties incurred in securing a paperback list, Simmons stated, "It's hard to get an accurate list of the paperbacks because department heads change books for better coverage of their subjects."

Simmons commented that the administration was working on compiling lists for upper-division courses.

Stephanie Bellar, an SGA senator, conducted a survey concerning a book rental and paperback list.

"WE MADE A survey of all departments, asking whether or not they would oppose publishing a column in the registration bulletin. The column would indicate if a class text would be rented or purchased," Bellar stated. The response was "generally favorable, and now the question is before Dr. Boehms (vice president for student affairs)."

In a partial survey of department heads conducted by The All State last week, all who chose to respond expressed general approval of Bellar's concept. "If publishing the lists could be done, we would support it," replied Dr. Westworth Morris, chairman of the history department.

MORRIS ADDED, however, that posting paperback book titles and costs during registration would be "very nettle some."

Warren winner in local contest

Judy Warren, a senior from Clarksville, was the winner of $100 in a contest sponsored by El Palacio restaurant last quarter. THE PRIZE money won by Warren was awarded to APSU to go toward payment of her tuition this quarter.

According to Dick Demeree, manager of El Palacio, "We had a good response to the contest so we will be sponsoring it again this quarter."

The contest is open to any student who will be enrolled as a full-time student at APSU in the spring quarter. The $100 prize must be used to help defer tuition fees.

ETS changes testing program

Educational Testing Service (ETS) reports several major changes in two national testing programs whose scores are used as part of the admissions process in many of the nation's graduate schools.

Both programs, the newly-titled Graduate Management Admission Test (GMAT) and the Graduate Record Examinations (GRE), together test more than 400,000 prospective graduate students every year.

ETS SAYS the changes were made to help simplify the testing process by making it more accommodating for student candidates.

The GMAT formerly was called the Admission Test for Graduate Study in Business. The new name parallels a similar change in the sponsoring council's name, reflecting a trend among graduate business schools to broaden their curricula and degree titles to include other areas of administration, as well as business.

The program is developed and conducted by ETS for the Admission Council for Graduate Study in Management, a group representing 43 graduate schools of management.

ANOTHER significant change in the GMAT is an expanded admission ticket correction form that allows the candidate to verify, and correct if necessary, the accuracy of the information he or she provided ETS on the registration form. Walk-in registration, established during the 1974-75 academic year, also will be honored, space and material permitting.

There also are several new additions to the GRE. For the first time, a full-length sample GRE aptitude test is available to give candidates an accurate view of the scope of the test and the type of questions it contains.

The sample test is the same length and format as the currently used forms of the aptitude test, and contains questions previously used in past tests. An answer key is provided.

THE SAMPLE aptitude test may be ordered separately or as part of the Graduate Programs and Admissions Manual, which provides information about more than 500 institutions and their graduate programs. See the 1975-76 GRE Information Bulletin for more details.

The aptitude test also has been shortened by five minutes from the former three-hour total. And an estimated additional 15 minutes of student time at the test center has been saved by soliciting background information on the registration form rather than at the center.

For the first time, GRE candidates will be allowed at the time of the test administration to delete or change the list of institutions to which scores are to be sent.

THE GRE program also will continue to accept walk-in registrations, if center space and materials are available, and after all normally registered candidates have been admitted.

Both programs emphasize that walk-in registration for the GMAT and the GRE are being continued to provide a needed service to candidates who are unable to preregister because of circumstances beyond their control.

Bowl finals tonight

Tonight is the final night of the annual Laurel Wreath College Bowl.

Contests will resume at 5 p.m. in the conference room, top floor of the University Center. The championship contest is scheduled to begin at 8:30 p.m. There is no admission charge.

NINETEEN TEAMS are entered in this year's event. They include Chi Omega, Golden Hearts, Kappa Delta, Phi Kappa Phi, Alpha Tau Omega, Tri Kappa Alpha (2 teams), Sigma Chi (2 teams), Tri Beta, Del Square Psi, Galeis Math Club, Pi Kappa Delta, Phi Alpha Theta, John Jay Society, Political Science Association, The All State, ROTC and Senior Classical League.

The winning team will be offered the opportunity to represent Austin Peay at a college bowl sponsored by the University of Tennessee at Nashville on Feb. 13-14.

Warner reports past year 'excellent' for SGA

By JOEL FRYER

The Student Government Association (SGA) of APSU, taking advantage of the new year's infancy, is looking back to 1975 to see what benefits have been reaped from the old year. Maggie Warner, president of the SGA, reported that the past year has been an excellent one. One of the biggest SGA accomplishments was the birth of the used paperback book sales. Though the initial operation seemed a bit slow, Warner pointed out that $100 was made last week alone.

THE SGA president complimented the senators for added involvement in SGA affairs. A definite increase in the number of pieces of legislation brought to the SGA occurred during the fall quarter, according to the president.

Warner pointed out that hopefully by mid-term of winter quarter a published list of all legislation brought before the SGA will be made available to the students of APSU.

Warner is extremely pleased with the relationship that exists between the SGA and the APSU administration. One accomplishment noted in this area was the opening of administrative offices during the lunch hour. Warner reported that not only was the relationship between the SGA and the administration a working one, but also one in which both factors were concerned with openness to achieve beneficial solutions.

STUDENT REGISTRATION will soon become another limb of APSU which will benefit from the efforts of the SGA. Books needed in all courses will be made known to the student before the calculation of fees. In this way students may be able to save money, for not all courses require book rental.

There were also some disappointments for the SGA which seemed to have balanced the scales as heavily weighted by accomplishments. Warner stated that several upper division senators were dropping out of the SGA. Tight schedules and heavy work loads provided some of the reasons for the lack of participation.

Mary Dowlen, an SGA senator representing the junior class, confirmed the report made by Warner. She noted that in the junior class alone there are three vacancies which need to be filled.

Dowlen went on to say, "Most people don't realize what we do, and they don't bother to run."

DAVID MASON, sophomore class president, indicated that the SGA "hasn't been as productive as it should be."

Mason feels there is a definite communication breakdown between the SGA and the students of APSU. Mason stressed the importance of making student needs known to the administration.

Looking at 1976, Warner hopes to see more committee action by SGA members. She also urges all students to take a part in student government at APSU.

news in brief

Parking change noted

The department of safety and security advises all members of the university community to note the change in parking on the curb behind the Browning Building. Three spaces have been marked for use by maintenance, service vehicles and those persons transporting equipment and supplies into the Browning Building.

Parking in these spaces will be limited to 20 minutes. The area remaining along the curb will be closed to parking, and vehicles parking in the "No Parking" area will be towed at the owner's expense.

Grad changes requested

Applications for graduation from APSU should be turned into the office of admissions and records immediately, according to Betty Settle, assistant to the vice president for admissions and records.

Also, any student who has applied for graduation but has made changes in plans should contact the office because diplomas will be ordered immediately.

Evaluations nearing

Third quarter juniors and first quarter seniors may have their comprehensive evaluations completed Feb. 2-12.

Students who are planning to finish school by Aug. 31, 1976, must complete an evaluation during the Feb. 2-13 period.

Gray performs

Pat Gray will present a piano recital in Clement Auditorium on Friday at 8 p.m. Guest performer will be Mark Simcox, cellist.

Debaters honored

Two Austin Peay students, Terry Mangum and Bill Norris, won all three rounds of debate at Prince George's Community College Tournament held Dec. 4-7 in Largo, Md.

Mangum is a freshman from Harvey, Ill., and Norris is a freshman from Carlsview.

Entry deadline nearing for literary magazine

A larger magazine, open to the entire university community, with works by people of all persuasions is the goal of this year's The Tower, according to Lawson Mabry, editor-in-chief.

The literary magazine, published by the students of APSU, will be available to the university community by early May.

Mabry says he hopes this year's The Tower, "will be a little larger... about 50-60 pages. We hope to have a lot more of everything."

MABRY HAS a supporting cast of about a dozen staff members. Jerry Lemons is in charge of prose fiction, essays and drama while Taylor Grizzard is coordinating all graphics for the magazine.

"We want to publish as much quality literary material as possible," noted Mabry. "I would like to urge students from all fields of study at the university to contribute."

"The Tower has been made up of works by mostly student and art students in the past," continued the editor-in-chief. "I would like to make it accessible to everyone in submission of the administrative breakdown of the finished product."

ANY WORK THAT a student would like considered for publication should be submitted to the secretary of the English department in the Clement Building. The deadline for The Tower is Jan. 31.

All material submitted for publication will be screened by the entire staff according to Mabry. Material will be reviewed by the staff members, with the names omitted to prevent any kind of prejudice in selection of works.

Mabry asks that each person interested in having works published in the literary magazine to limit their entries to 10.

Morgan reviews term

University status cited as most important achievement during presidency

By JEFF BIBB

Dr. Joe Morgan will have plenty of room and time to think about his 46 years in public education, and more recently his just-completed 13-year term as president of Austin Peay State University during his retirement which began Monday.

Morgan, who was recently named president emeritus of APSU by the Tennessee Board of Regents, hopes "to live somewhat of a farmer's life," on 230 acres of land on the outskirts of Erwin.

IN AN interview Thursday, Morgan cited the attainment of University status on Sept. 1, 1967 as the event "with the most meaning" since he assumed the presidency in January of 1963.

The physical development of the institution is another area of which the 63-year-old Morgan speaks with pride of accomplishment when reflecting on his years at Austin Peay.

A massive urban renewal project in the late 60's allowed the university to "break out of the physical restraints surrounding the institution," commented Morgan. "The university had already begun to break out of the restraints on its own, but the urban renewal project helped it along."

A LONG-RANGE planning committee, organized by Morgan during his early years at the Peay, was instrumental in the physical growth of the campus. "The committee took its obligations seriously. There is not much of a written record of the committee's accomplishment," pointed out Morgan, "but the committee did a fine job planning and carrying out its function."

When Morgan came to APSU in 1963 he indicated that he had no specific goals outlined for the college. "I came here knowing less about Austin Peay than any of the other state regional institutions," Morgan had been the commissioner of education in Tennessee from 1959-62.

"I was very surprised at what I found here. There were many strengths I hadn't anticipated," reminisced the administrator. "There was an outstanding liberal arts component which has remained strong."

MORGAN SAID he's never regretted his decision to come to Austin Peay. "I didn't know how long I would stay when I first came, but I didn't plan on staying over 10 years. I thought 18 years per assignment was as long as I should stay in one position."

"However at the 10 year period, I felt conditions at the university were such that I didn't feel it would be right if I left. I would have left with a feeling of incompleteness."

Morgan revealed that he had a desire to go back to teaching before retirement and that he had "several options at the end of my first 10 years here."

Is teaching still in Dr. Morgan's future?

"I might do some part-time teaching. However, teaching requires a great deal of energy and preparation and I just don't want to spend the time," commented Morgan.

THERE HAVE been few major disappointments for APSU's chief administrator in the past 13 years. However, Morgan elaborated on one disappointment that he has incurred.

"I've never been able to pull the whole university community together with a feeling of common support and unity as I would have liked," stated Morgan thoughtfully. "Maybe I set an unrealistic goal in this area. The pulling together, working together hasn't fallen into place."

"There is a need to establish an agreement upon all parts of the university as to where the university should head," added Morgan. "If this was accomplished, it would enhance the future development of the university a great deal."

"WE'RE GOING to have to make a much more concentrated effort in serving the broader educational needs of the region than has been accomplished in the past," observed Morgan. "The educational needs of the region have widened to a considerable extent. We've started serving an age which is no longer considered the normal college age (18-22)."

Morgan said he thought APSU had done a pretty good job in keeping up with trends in the classroom. However, he indicated that APSU had only "made a small beginning in taking care of needs off campus."

What are the immediate needs of the campus?

"A small, but critical item is the expansion of the central power plant. Additional cooling compressors are needed and the expansion is estimated at $225,000.

"THE LIBRARY also needs to be expanded on the two floors it currently occupies."

Academically speaking, Morgan thinks APSU needs to add new programs in the applied arts and sciences. "This is the area that needs more emphasis. If developed, it will do a great deal in serving the needs of the region."

"Continued growth of liberal arts is also absolutely essential," noted Morgan.

Morgan has come in contact with "many memorable personalities" at APSU during his tenure but would mention only Felix Woodward.

"I found a most unusual individual in Dean Woodward," said Morgan. "He had a great deal to do with shaping this university's academic programs."

ONCE SETTLED in his retirement, Morgan says he may take to writing. "And if I write, it would very likely be in the area of education administration and higher education administration."

Morgan plans on keeping an on-campus office in the library basement, "to have a place to come to do office-type work."

Dr. Morgan feels he has accomplished his goals at APSU "to a reasonable extent. I feel I've made all the contribution I could make."

In closing the interview the president said he has a hope that Austin Peay "will become the outstanding institution of its kind and type in the United States. APSU is a sound institution. The basic things are here to have a really fine regional university. It must be developed into a university to serve the region from which it draws strength."

"Emphasis on programs in the applied arts and sciences, continuing education and a meaningful program of public service, combined with programs we already have here are essential for the university to meet the needs of the region."

Campus construction played a major role in the 13-year administration of Dr. Joe Morgan, who retired as APSU's president Sunday.

Married students' housing was increased in several phases at Emerald Hills.

Rawlins Hall was the first of three men's residence halls constructed during Morgan's reign.

Addition of buildings, new degrees, programs

Highlights of Morgan years reveal expansion

By VALERIE WATERS

How much can a college change in 13 years?

Those who have been associated with APSU for only a few years probably do not realize how much growth has occurred since President Joe Morgan took office in January, 1963.

Shortly after his appointment to the position of president of APSC, Morgan expressed a desire that "we will continue to make progress towards the improvement of this institution." Continuous work during the past 13 years has indeed improved both the external and internal structures of Austin Peay.

PHYSICAL changes have occurred rapidly on campus since 1963. In 1964 a 10-year expansion program was undertaken. At that time the college had 50 acres and 33 buildings (17 major buildings).

With the addition of nine major buildings, married students' housing and the purchase of surrounding land, APSU now consists of 50 buildings and 120 acres on the main campus. Student enrollment has jumped from 2,617 to 4,106.

The first buildings constructed under the expansion program were the Emerald Hill Apartments, Rawlins Hall, Sever Hall and Cross Hall.

FOLLOWING these buildings was the Felix G. Woodward Library, which opened in February 1967. One year later the long-awaited University Center opened. The Gaston Building was also completed during that time.

Killebrew Hall was built soon after these, and finally the Margaret F. Trahern Art and Drama Building and the Winfield Dunn Health and Physical Education Building and Convocation Center were completed in spring 1974 and fall 1973, respectively.

Other renovations took place during Morgan's presidency—the Browning Building was remodelled in 1969 and the Municipal Stadium was revamped in 1970. The Clement Building is now being renovated.

BESIDES THE previous buildings which are recent additions, three new religious centers have been added to the campus by their respective churches. The Baptist Student Center was completed in 1966, the Wesley Foundation in 1972 and the Church of Christ Center in 1975.

While all this construction was taking place, broadening of the curriculum also highlighted Morgan's years at APSU.

In 1964 the graduate program at APSC was expanded by the addition of eight new teaching majors. Since then, various other majors have been added, among which are philosophy, sociology and earth science.

The purchase of the National Guard Armory in 1966 paved the way for the initiation of the ROTC program at Austin Peay in 1971.

VARIOUS degrees have been added to the college offerings since 1963. The M.A. and M.S. degrees were first offered in 1967; after these came the A.A. in nursing, B.F.A., Ed. S. and master of music education.

One of the most important changes at Austin Peay was the acquisition of university status in 1967. This did not affect the structure of the university until July 1968 when the university was divided into the College of Arts and Sciences, College of Education, School of Business and Economics, Graduate School and the Division of Applied Arts and Sciences.

Along with obtaining university status came the much-debated question of a new name for the university. The most favored name was North Tennessee University; however the change was never effected.

PROBABLY the most outstanding sports highlight of Morgan's term of presidency was the 1972-73 basketball season. Led by the renowned "Fly" Williams, the Gears won the OVC championship for the first time since entering the OVC in 1963 and advanced into the second round of the NCAA post-season tournament.

Also momentous to APSU basketball fans were the last game in the "Little Red Barn" on Feb. 22, 1975 and the first game in the new Dunn Center on Dec. 1, 1975.

Besides the numerous clubs, fraternities and sororities formed since 1963, several organizations directly concerned with the students' needs have been established.

IN OCTOBER 1968 the Public Relations Board was formed to give students a greater voice in APSU's affairs. A month later the Men's Affairs Board (analogous to the Women's Student Government Council) was created "to promote the betterment of the male situation at APSU."

A valuable addition was made in 1969 with the formation of the Student Tribunal. This judicial organization was set up "to help support student development of self-responsibility and to assist in assuring the protection of the students concerning disciplinary actions."

RECENTLY formed was the Union for Women's Rights, an organization that seeks to rid the campus of discrimination against women.

In his "State of the University" message at the Alumni Banquet in 1969 Morgan commented on the growth and future of APSU.

The reason for APSU's progress under Morgan in the past 13 years can be found in his statement, "We have not and should not aspire to be another Harvard, another Yale, or even another Vanderbilt; we should and do aspire to do those things which are in the nature of a university in order to serve this region."

This panorama shows construction of the University Center which replaced the old Castle student union building.

Felix Woodward, namesake of APSU's library, stands at the front entrance of the facility in 1967 with Johnnie Givens, the head librarian, and Dr. Morgan.

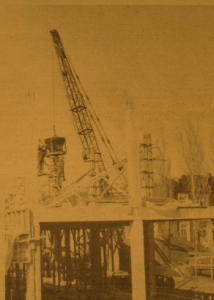

Construction of Sevier Hall highlighted women's dorm construction.

A troll bridge spanned the bowl during the University Center's construction.

students, faculty members and a couple of deans to begin the search for an academic vice president," asserted Riggs. The president indicated that he hoped to have a decision on the new vice president in April.

Riggs said that he would be hesitant to make any major academic changes before the new vice president was hired. Looking at the total administrative picture, Riggs made some statements that would lead to change in the near future.

"I THINK WE will have to do some reorganizing and maybe a little more streamlining," in the administrative ranks said Riggs. "I hope I am spending fewer dollars on administration on July 1 than I am today."

Riggs stated that before he started "streamlining" the administration that he would add one position...an executive assistant to the president, "in the next two or three weeks."

LOOKING BACK in 18 years, what does Riggs say he hopes will be accomplished?

"One, the development of a quality academic program with graduates out where I count doing a fine job. Secondly, I hope there is a social situation on this campus so that students can gain loyalty to the institution. And third, I want to have a beautiful campus, slick and attractive publications and winning athletic programs," concluded Riggs.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Next week The All State will devote only several additional pages with the president including his feelings toward The All State and other academic areas he hopes to add to APSU's curriculum.

Library displays book plates, early Tennessee notes, bond

If you've never seen a $3 bill, now's your chance.

Two exhibits of interest are presently on display in Felix G. Woodward Library.

THE GROUND floor display features a private collection of bookplates, as well as books on the subject and directories of collectors and designers of bookplates.

Said Arthur Goldsmith, Jr., head of the reference department of the library, "The exhibit is designed to promote student use of bookplates."

The bookplates range in design from those of certain colleges and universities including Austin Peay) to those of particular authors.

IN SIZE, the plates vary from miniature to full-page.

Placed on the inside cover of a book to identify the owner, the plates are "a good way to make sure you get loaned books back," said Goldsmith.

The second display, a collection of early Tennessee, Confederate and Revolutionary paper currency, is on display in the Tennessee room, second floor of the library.

THE COLLECTION, owned by a Clarksvillian, includes outdated bills from various Tennessee banks, such as the Occo Bank, the Central Bank and the Bank of Tennessee.

Several Revolutionary notes in denominations of pounds and shillings are in the display, along with some Confederate currency.

In addition to the early currency display, the Tennessee room also features an antique U.S. bond for the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company dating to the 1860's.

THE BOND, signed by former Tennessee Governor Brownlow, lost its value during the Civil War and is now a collector's item.

Both exhibits are expected to remain in the library for one month.

13 paintings shown

January display by Evans

Paintings by Bob Evans in the January display in "The Gallery" at the Trainers Art and Drama Building on Austin Peay State University's campus.

Bob Evans of Paducah, Ky. has long been recognized as one of the distinguished artists of the mid-south. His paintings and leadership support of the visual arts in western Kentucky place him among the who's who of Kentucky artists.

His friend, Max Hochstetler, of the Austin Peay art faculty says, "Bob Evans is a dedicated practitioner and scholar of painting, a rare breed of self-taught artists who demand the respect and admiration of all who know him."

Evans has 13 recent paintings in the exhibition. His high-keyed color in a technique of active brushwork, stemming from Impressionism is displayed on unstretched canvases that hang like tapestries.

The exhibition will hang from Jan. 12 - Jan. 30. Gallery hours are Monday - Friday, 8 a.m. - 7 p.m. Guided Gallery tours by special arrangement; call art department 648-7233 or 648-7334.

Cast announced for winter play

The Austin Peay speech and theatre department has announced the cast for The Roar of the Greasepaint - The Smell of the Crowd, the first show of the winter quarter to be produced Feb. 4-7.

Cast in the production are Tommy Thayer as Cockey and Tommy Winters as Sir. Also included in the cast are Carmello Roman, Jan Leslie Yankers, Barbara Hinkle, Mary Ann Daniel, Beverly Olson, Marie Taft and Candy Watts.

Reservation for the show, to be staged in the Truhers Building theater, may be made by calling the department of speech and theatre, 648-7378.

Brazilians coming to APSU

The Community Ambassador Organization is sponsoring seven Brazilians who will be on the campus of Austin Peay from Feb. 24, according to Arthur Goldsmith Jr., chairman of the Clarksville group.

Staying in dormitories, the 20-30-year-old Brazilians will be able to experience American college life first-hand.

The Brazilians will come to Clarksville from three weeks of orientation at the Experiment in International Living School in Vermont.

After one week's stay at APSU, the visitors will live in homes in the Clarksville area until Feb. 22 when they will begin their trip home.

Included on the agenda of activities for the Brazilians is a trip to the Grand Ole Opry on Feb. 7 and a Chamber of Commerce luncheon.

THE SPONSORING Community Ambassador Organization, affiliated with the United Givers Fund, each year hosts a group from another country. Each year they also select one person from the Clarksville area to send abroad as a "community ambassador."

During the 30 years of the organization's existence, persons have been sent to Japan, Germany, France, England and other places.

Last year Greg Forbes, an Austin Peay student, was Clarksville's ambassador to Mexico.

Forbes' two-month visit to Mexico began with three days of orientation in Guadalajara. One month was spent in the home of a Mexico City family.

Winding up the trip was a combined tour of the general area lasting one and a half weeks with other visitors from the U.S. Then it was back to Mexico City for a short stay before returning to Clarksville.

COMMENTING on the trip Forbes said, "It was like having five or six vacations in a row. Every place we stayed was like a whole new vacation."

"In spite of what some people believe, I found that the Mexicans are very friendly people."

Forbes had taken some Spanish in high school but said, "The trip improved my Spanish a lot." He also stated that it had increased his interest in Spanish.

The ambassador is chosen each spring from among applicants.

Morehead and Eastern next opponents for Gavs

By LARRY SCHMIDT

Saturday and Monday Austin Peay's Governors basketball team will open their home portion of the 1976 OVC basketball title race when they host Morehead and Eastern Kentucky.

Saturday, APSU will cross a milestone in basketball when they host Morehead State. The game will be the 1,000th game of the school's history and Saturday will also be collegiate basketball day across the nation.

Morehead will bring a 2-0 overall record and 8-1 workstate in OVC play and from all indications possess a much better ball club than the record shows.

Lake Kelly, APSU basketball coach, said he really didn't know much about the Eagles at press time but knew they were "playing pretty well."

"We know from last year that they are an excellent shooting team but they are not a big team," added Kelly.

MSU is led in scoring by Herbie Stamper and Ted Hundley.

Stamper, a 6-3 freshman guard, is setting the nets afire in his first collegiate season. The Brinkley, Ky. native is tossing in 22 points a game with his season high of 28 coming against UNC-Charlotte in the Eagles' season opener.

Hundley is the big man for Morehead and leads the team in rebounding averaging 18 an outing. The 6-4 junior is pouring in better than 20 points a game and should be a strong candidate for All-OVC honors at the season's end.

Morehead is coached by Jack Scholow in his second season as the Eagles head mentor. Last season he guided MSU to a 13-13 record.

This will be the 25th meeting between the two schools with Morehead with the advantage 14-10. In the last game the Gavs won 78-66.

Game time is 7:30 p.m. in the Dunn Center.

Monday's game with Eastern Kentucky will match the Gavs against one of the early leaders in the Ohio Valley Conference race. The Colonels carry an overall record of 4-4 but are 1-0 in conference play.

"We again know very little about Eastern at this point," said Kelly. "We know they are strong because they beat Morehead. We regard them as very strong and dangerous."

The Colonels are paced in scoring by Carl Brown. The pre-season All-OVC forward is averaging 16.6 points an outing. Brown stands 6-4 and tips the scales at 220.

Backing up Brown in offensive point production is 6-7 forward-center Darryl Young. The sophomore is tossing in 10 points a game while grabbing seven rebounds to lead in that department.

The playmaker for the Colonels is sophomore guard Tyrone "Too Small" Jones. Jones, a sophomore, runs the offense for EKU and is contributing nine points a game.

Eastern Kentucky is coached by Bob Mulcahy who is in his third year in this position. Last season, the Colonels posted a 7-18 record with a seventh place finish in the OVC.

This will be the 72th game between the two schools with EKU holding the upper hand 16-18.

Game time is 7:30 p.m. in the Dunn Center.

"If somebody had told me I was going to play in the Super Bowl, I'd told them they were crazy"

Lady Gavs face

Western tonight

By JANE KARHU

On Tuesday of last week the Lady Gavs met the Sycamores of Indiana State. Half time the score was tied at 28, but the second half APSU fell 67-48.

High scorer for Austin Peay was returning regular, Cheryl West. The 5-4 forward was good for 13 points with Cheryl Williams, a 6-3 newcomer close behind with 10 points.

Leading rebounds went to 6-0 forward and center Linda Highfill grabbing nine rebounds for the Gavs. Right behind Highfill was once again Cheryl Williams who had five rebounds.

Wrapping it up Sally Shute, women's basketball coach, stated, "While we played a good defense the shooting was way off shooting only 11 percent in the second half while Indiana shot 50 percent."

The Lady Governors will stay home for the next three games, hosting the Hilltoppers of Western Kentucky tonight, game time 7 p.m. in the Dunn Center. On Friday it will be the Gavs up against the Vols of UT-Knoxville, with game time at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 26 APSU will host the Rebels of Belmont College, starting at 7:30 p.m.

A YEAR AGO next Sunday, Percy Howard was sitting in a motel in Morehead, Ky. awaiting Monday's opponent Morehead State in an Ohio Valley Conference basketball game.

Sunday he will play in the Championships of championships, the professional football battle extraordinaire where the ultimate title is sought by the two-worthy opponents—the Super Bowl.

Instead of warming up by shooting jump shots, he will be practicing his tackling. Instead of a power hook shot he will be thinking of catching a touchdown pass.

Not only Percy Howard of Austin Peay fame, but Percy Howard of the Dallas Cowboys.

LAST YEAR WHILE in the motel room he watched as the Minnesota Vikings and the Pittsburgh battle in Super Bowl IX. Never once did he think that "someday I'd be there. If somebody had told me that I would have told them they were crazy."

But crazy as it may have seemed to Howard at the time, Sunday he will be there.

"What's even harder for me to believe is that we're going home to play the Super Bowl," said Howard. "My home is Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. We're not only playing in the Super Bowl just down the road in Miami, but we're spending the training week in my home."

INSTEAD OF WEARING the scarlet and white, Howard will be uniformed by the silver and blue of the Cowboys when he stands on the field Sunday. On his back a number of 81 is his identification where 23 once was located.

Howard is considered to have great potential by the Cowboys' coaches and this season he has been given the Hager Head Hunting aware for fierceness on the Cowboy specialty teams.

In a game with the Philadelphia Eagles, Howard made two solo tackles while playing on the kickoff teams.

Howard noted that he was surprised to find himself making tackles. In fact, he said, "that's what surprised everyone else...me, a basketball player, making tackles."

IN THE PAST three weeks, the ex All-Ohio Valley Conference basketball player has made almost as much as he made the entire season. In the playoffs he has collected $16,000, just $4,000 less than his seasonal contract.

When this interview was made Howard was in the process of purchasing a townhouse in one of the classier neighborhoods in the Dallas area.

"When I signed my contract with the Cowboys, they told me that they were rebuilding their way back to the Super Bowl, and I could go there with them. I didn't think it would be this soon but we are just now gaining momentum."

SO SUNDAY AN Austin Peay basketball player will be playing in the championship. Not just any championship, but the Super Bowl.

Fishback 21st in balloting

Charlie Fishback, Austin Peay's All-OVC guard, was ranked 21st of the 62 names that appear on the East ballot in voting for the fifth annual Pizza Hut Basketball Classic which will be held in Las Vegas April 5.

And in an effort to garner more votes for APSU's 5-10 star, the local Pizza Huts are sponsoring inter-Greek competition.

Fraternity and sorority representatives may pick up ballots at any of the three Clarksville Pizza Huts and mark as many ballots as possible. Ballots should be turned in by rat representatives each week to the Madison Street Pizza Hut.

The Greeks to log the most votes for Fishback will receive a special bonus at the end of the competition.

According to Ricky Hollis of Alpha Kappa Psi, the winning group will have one night at a Pizza Hut "on the house." The Pizza Hut will be opened up to the members for all the free pizza and drink that they can consume.

Eight players will be selected to the East and West squads by a vote of the fans for the all-star game.

Tim Siaseros of Middle Tennessee was listed fourth on the latest release with a total of 12,542 votes while Frank Jones of Tennessee Tech was listed in the seventh slot with 11,441 votes. Johnny Britt of Western is the only other OVC candidate on the list with 4,077 votes, listed in the 42nd position.

Fishback has received 8,921 votes to date.

Indiana's Scott May leads the East's voting with 13,280 followed by Vanderbilt's Burch Feyer with 13,214, Wisconsin's Dale Koshier with 13,175, Siaseros, Vandy's Jeff Fossum with 12,135 votes, Indiana's Quinn Buckner with 12,048 and Jones.

Gary Brewster of Texas-El Paso leads the West's balloting with 12,672 followed closely by Chuckie Williams of Kansas State with 11,951.

Indoor track season opens today at Senior Bowl

By DONNIE EZEKIEL

As the sports scene progresses on the Austin Peay campus, indoor track is attracting attention around this time of the year.

APSU coach Wayne Williams feels that this could be a very promising season for his track squad. Even though the team has had difficulty finding a place to practice, Williams feels that each member of the team has the ability to win his event.

Among the athletes on the team this year are Tony Carter, a senior who came in third in the nation in the long jump and earned All-American honors. Considered the top long jumper in the OVC, Carter's best jump was measured at 26 feet and 2 inches. Corvick Moody, also a football player, is one of the fastest hundred yarders on the team, as his best time is 9.4.

John Eddies, the favorite to win in the shot put competition this year, finished second in the OVC last year. Giving Eddies competition this year will be Dave Wallus, who Williams figures should score well in the shot put events, and Roger Degorges, a transfer student from Tennessee. Degorges is also expected to win the OVC discus competition.

Heading the way for the hurdlers should be Mike Bernikow, the defending champion in the 440 intermediate hurdles, and Dan Tallion, the defending OVC champion in the 120 yard high hurdles competition.

Rounding out the hurdlers for Williams' squad will be Sandy Thomas, the Tennessee High School State Champ last year, Joe Jackson, Pete Reed and Pat Fogarty.

Johnny Williams and Bernard Lykes, a junior college transfer, are two of the top sprints this year. Williams is a freshman with times of 9.4 seconds in the hundred yard dash and 20.8 seconds in the 220 yard run, while Lykes excels in middle distance runs and placed second in the junior college nationals last year.

The remainder of the team includes half and quarter miler George Hood, distance runners Oscar Morgan, Robert Arndt and Royce Williams, high jumper Steve Welch and pole vaulter John Paul Lyon.

The team goes on the road with their first meet today when they compete in the Senior Bowl Invitational in Mobile, Ala. Some of the teams in the meet are Florida, Auburn, Florida State, Mississippi State, Alabama and a national team from Russia.

As a new event to the OVC schedule, the OVC will hold an indoor meet.

Saturday, the Gov trackmen travel to Jackson, Miss. for the Jackson STAFF meet.

Govs win OVC opener from Murray 74-70

By LARRY SCHMIDT

MURRAY, Ky.—Austin Peay senior guard Charlie Fishback summed it up best in the dressing room after the Govs fought for their life and came up on top 74-70 against a stubborn Murray State team Monday night.

"I'm telling you guys that the OVC ain't like the rest of those games," said APSPU captain and one of two seniors on the Governors' squad. "There will be alot of games like this one tonight."

Throughout the entire 40 minutes of game action, the leads changed hands as easily as trading on the New York stock market. The game was tied seven times during the duration and neither team was able to muster a large advantage.

The Govs went ahead by six twice in the contest. Sam

Drummer hit a 25 foot jump shot with 15:27 remaining in the first stanza to put APSPU out front 11-5 and with 1:29 left in the game, Fishback spread the Governors in the four corner offense, he found Drummer who hit a layup which put the Ohio Valley Conference championship favorites up again with a six point bulge in their favor at 22-46.

Murray, on the other hand, had the Govs down by three twice in the game. Both advantages were in the second half when with 14:17 left Victor Jordan hit two free throws to put the Racers ahead 44-11. But it was Grover Woodard that put the pressure on APSPU when he hit one end of a bonus situation from the charity stripe and MSU lead 62-29 with 5:48 left.

Regardless of the fluctuations in the game, it was APSPU's Fishback who put the icing on the game when in the final two minutes he scored five of the final seven points on the Governors' side of the scoreboard.

Austin Peay went into the four corner stall with three minutes remaining in the game. The 5-10 Governor guard dribbled by the Murray defense and wiggled through the land of giants in the Racers backcourt, hit a layup, and was fouled by Zake Blassingame. Fishback converted the three point play and put APSPU in front 74-46 with 2:15 remaining.

The final blow to the Racers' plan of upsetting the Govs came when Fishback hit a one-and-one with six seconds on the clock to notch APSPU's 10th win of the season against two losses and 1-0 in OVC play.

Shortly before Fishback's victory conversion at the free throw line, the Bowling Green, Ky. native fired a 26 foot jumper from the top of the free throw circle which hit the back iron and rifled straight up past the top of the backboard. It was then Drummer made his biggest rebound of his collegiate career to keep the Govs in possession of the basketball.

"I saw Sam (Drummer) go up and it looked as though he jumped in the rafters to get that rebound," said Lake Kelly, APSPU basketball coach.

"When I was at the free throw line, I knew we had it won. Heck, if we came this far and all I had to do was sink a couple of free, we had it made," said Fishback who is hitting on 79 per cent from the line this season.

The Governors hit 49.2 per cent from the field and 83.3 per cent from the foul line while Murray hit 45.3 per cent from the field and 80 per cent from the line.

Govs win easily

Austin Peay's offense was explosive but the bomb scare wasn't

By LARRY SCHMIDT

In Saturday's game with Palm Beach Atlantic, there was a some-thingness in the air. Once Salilfish forward Kennoch Stevenson took a free punch at APSU's Otis Howard and the grand finale was a bomb threat that fortunately didn't exist.

During the ball game, which Austin Peay won 89-54, a bomb threat was called in at the Montgomery County Sheriff's department. With 3:17 remaining APSU security, along with the Clarksville City Police, emptied the 3,000 fans in the Dunn Center watching the ball game, only to have a search to find a bomb ending fruitlessly.

These two incidents were the only excitement in the prank-shortened game. From the very start the Govs handled Palm Beach Atlantic as easy as a fisherman throwing his bait in a water full of half-starved fish. In the first half the Govs held the Salilfish to less than 20 points as APSU held a 44-19 edge at the intermission.

In the second half, Austin Peay's starting five consisting of Sam Drummer, Charlie Fishback, Ralph Garner, Otis Howard and Norman Jackson led by as much as 37 when the Govs went ahead 87-50 with 4:26 showing on the scoreboard clock. Lake Kelly substituted freely during the game using every man sitting in uniform on the Governor bench.

"It's a terrible thing that people do things like this," said APSU coach Lake Kelly after his team had been escorted out of the Dunn Center.

Going back to the play of his Ohio Valley Conference favorites, he felt that they had played well "most of the night" and being able to substitute freely, something he regards as good preparation of the Ohio Valley Conference season. He did however say that there were a few things that he was displeased with.

Palm Beach Atlantic coach George Perides, whose team had lost to Middle Tennessee Friday night 83-68, said he felt that Austin Peay had a better team.

"Austin Peay is a better shooting team and quicker than Middle Tennessee at the present," said Perides.

In the prank-shortened contest, Austin Peay was led in scoring by Drummer, who hit 12 of 24 attempts from the field and tallied 24 points to capture game scoring honors. The 6-6 freshman forward grabbed seven rebounds.

Rounding out the Govs' scoring attack was Howard who tossed in a dozen while Jackson had 10.

For the Salilfish Charlie Fidd had 12 while Reginald Williams and Jerry Troutman tossed in 10. Austin Peay shot 53 per cent from the field while the best PBAC could muster was a cool 38 per cent.

The win upped the Governors' overall mark to 9-2 with the OVC opener Monday while the Salilfish dropped to 9-5.

Govs win OVC opener

The loss dropped Murray to 3-7 for the year and 0-1 in OVC play.

Drummer was the leading scorer for the Govs tossing in 26 points while Fishback and Ralph Garner had 19 each. Garner was APSU's leading rebounder with 13.

Murray was paced by Woodard with 21 points and 14 rebounds, while Williams tossed in 20 and Jordan 13.
