Library Dispute Continues

"The library does not take, as its mission, standing in the way of your education," said Dr. Robert Simmons, head librarian, at last week's Student Government Association Senate meeting.

Simmons and Dr. James Sawrey, vice president for academic affairs, appeared before the Senate to discuss the issue of library hours. According to Sawrey and Simmons, the Woodward library does not have sufficient personnel to operate more than it currently does.

According to Sawrey, the library has not had a sufficient budget in the past. "We're playing catch up," said Sawrey.

In reference to the library not being a study hall,

Simmons said it was "unfortunate that people grabbed the expression." Simmons said that the use of the library is generated in the classroom.

Asked how much money would be needed to open the library until midnight everynight, Sawrey said that $40,000 to $70,000 would be necessary.

According to Sawrey, libraries have changed from study halls to resource centers. Simmons said that the library is more than a "glorified study hall." The two suggested that space be provided for a student study area.

When asked about the problem of where a student can study, Simmons said, "There are other places you can study. I am not trying to discourage you from doing that."

Simmons said that student needs were considered before library hours were cut.

Rowan Entertains Crowd During Black History Week

By PAIGE CHARGOIS

Carl T. Rowan, noted columnist and political commentator, visited APSU Monday speaking in the Clement auditorium and the University Center.

"It's quite a jump from sitting on the curb as a young boy and throwing mudballs at police cars to now throwing sentences at the president of the United States," Rowan stated as he partially retraced his history from McMinnville, Tenn.

A questioning audience kept him busy during both sessions. From the Allan Bakke case to the Panama Canal, from South Africa to Vanderbilt University to situations in big cities in the United States, from tennis matches to supreme court decisions, Rowan fielded questions.

"I have come here to talk about current black history," he stated, opening his first appearance here.

"Jimmy Carter is flirting with being a one-term president," Rowan expressed disillusionment with Carter as a direct result of Carter's change of priorities after becoming president. He stated that polls indicated 94 percent of the black population voted for Carter partially on his promise of unemployment as a national priority. Statistics show that approximately 6 and one-half percent of white America is unemployed compared with 12 and one-half percent of black America.

After Carter being in office a year, Rowan stated that the president's policies have taken 918,000 whites off the unemployment rolls while adding 105,000 blacks.

CARL T. ROWAN

That brought the figure from 12.5 percent to 12.7 percent among blacks. Carter, says Rowan, no longer lists joblessness as the number one priority, but instead he lists inflation and balancing the budget as respective priorities.

Concerning Carter's foreign policy, Rowan stated, "I am in favor of a declaration of human rights, but Carter has not put any teeth in that policy. It is ridiculous to make pious statements, lay some restrictions on business," Rowan continued.

Relative to education, Rowan mentioned that 23 million American adults cannot read and are even read the antislavery on a bottle of poisonous medicine that their child may have ingested. The right to read program does not reach enough Americans although Head Start and Upward Bound have proven to be great educational tools particularly for black Americans.

Rowan admitted that educating all Americans to the extent needed and desired is a complicated problem. However, he added that "a proper part of education is to have races rub shoulders—even foreigners" with one another. On any educational level, Rowan believes that basic curricula should include contributions that blacks have made through the ages.

Wroth General Honored In ROTC Lunch

Brig. Gen. James M. Wroth of Headquarters, 2nd ROTC Region was honored at a luncheon during his visit to APSU while conducting a periodic inspection.

Dr. Robert O. Riggs, APSU president, was presented a plaque by Wroth on behalf of ROTC, readings follow: "His support and cooperation are an integral part of our success and are indicative of his sincere interest and involvement in ROTC activities."

In Wroth's 30 years with the army, this was his first visit to the area. He now commands 68 institutions in eight states within central United States. He is deeply involved in making personnel policy for both the army and ROTC at the Department of Army level.

Statistics indicate that ROTC has shown a steady comeback since the Vietnam upheaval, and Wroth stated "Your (APSU) program has been very impressive."

Honors and recognition were also bestowed upon eight ROTC members who were accepted as commissioned officers in the Regular Army.

They were Rita Elshorpe, Don Blazek, Jerome Daigud, Greg Kidwell, Warren Sowell, Donna Woodard, Paul Roberts and Ken Russell.

Lt. Col. Harold F. Debolt stated that "No other Tennessee school received 100 percent acceptance of its cadets for RA." It was noted that nationwide, schools only receive RA commissions for 50 percent of the names submitted to the Department of the Army.

What sets these ROTC cadets apart? Those seven

VISITS CAMPUS—Brig. Gen. James M. Wroth attended a luncheon in the Harvill cafeteria and presented APSU President Robert O. Riggs with a plaque.

APSU cadets demonstrate academic excellence along with leadership qualities and responsibility cited Wroth and their superiors.

"Success is a reflection of the attitude and support of the administration, they take a great deal of credit," stated Wroth.

Capt. Raymond W. Early, coordinator of the event, commented on what makes any ROTC program a good one. He stated "a lot of training makes the program successful—a program that is diverse, challenging, stimulating, and motivating."

"You must have quality students," he continued, "and lack of retention can have a very detrimental effect. Backing the college campus and the civilian community is also important."

It was pointed out that APSU/ROTC has the third highest student body enrollment in Tennessee and Kentucky, exceeded only by Carson Newman, an engineering school, and Eastern Kentucky University.

During Wroth's visit, he also viewed the APSU award winning drill team.

Debolt also stated that the cadre officers and advisors of ROTC appreciate APSU and "the strength of the program is the cadets and students, and that cadre is only the caretakers of your ROTC program."

Riggs expressed his pleasure at having ROTC on this campus and that he was proud of its accomplishments, as he accepted the plaque of appreciation.

The luncheon, held in the Catherine E. Harvill cafeteria, was well attended by faculty, students and citizens of the Clarksville community.

Student Teaching

No Spring Break

Education majors who chose winter quarter to student teach are in a predicament similar to the one faced by student teachers during the winter quarter of 1977.

Almost three weeks of an unexpected vacation for student teachers will mean no spring break.

According to Dr. Ron Grosselove, assistant professor of education, student teachers at Fort Campbell, who have only missed a few days because of snow, will face no additional teaching days, but student teachers elsewhere will be affected.

Art, physical education and music majors, who divide their teaching experiences between the elementary and secondary situations, will change schools on March 1.

For all student teachers, March 22, the day of spring quarter registration, will be the final teaching day.

While the Clarksville-Montgomery schools have been out, student teachers have been developing unit programs, working on bulletin boards and constructing learning centers.

Student teachers are not happy about giving up spring break, but they are adjusting.

Said, A. J. Book, who is student teaching in English, "Although we've missed 20 days, there still is time left to learn what the university requires."

Book said that he was not really disappointed with the extension, but he felt that the time schools were closed could have been spent in a learning situation.

About the snow days, Book offered, "It's going to happen anyway in teaching."

Team Is Third

The APSU Forensic Team received third place in the Tennessee Intercollegiate Forensic Association State Tournament last weekend. The senior variety debate team of Sandra Watkins and Michael Gettcher won second place in the state on the strength of a 4-2 record. Watkins also received the first place speaker trophy.

In competitive individual speaking, SGA Vice President David Mason won first place in extemporaneous speaking and second place in persuasive speaking. The duo dramatic interpretation team of Belinda Boyd and Michael McGuire received third in the state.

In addition to those who placed, the following students qualified for the National Forensic Tournament to be held in the spring: Marie Zeek, in prose interpretation; Roy Buchanan and Rick Harley competed in persuasive speaking.

Sarah Hemmrich, Darryl Osborne and Michael of 14 students and is coached by Dr. James Holm, who is in his first year here. The assistant coach is Jerry Merriweather.

Holm said "The speech team has great potential. Our success has added impact when one considers the relative youthfulness of the team. We have the potential to become a nationally competitive team, but that depends on how hard we work to develop that potential and our financial capabilities."

Austin Peay had competitors in seven events at the state tournament. Marie Zeek, Sarah Hemmrich, Belinda Boyd and Paige Chargois competed in prose interpretation.

David Mason, Roy Buchanan, Gary Broadrick and Rick Harley competed in poetry interpretation. David Mason, Roy Buchanan and Rick Harley competed in persuasive speaking.

EDMONDS AND CURLEY—The comedy team will perform at Austin Peay on Monday.

Edmonds, Curley To Visit With Two Performances

The comedy team of Edmonds and Curley, which has been seen on the "Tonight Show," "Mike Douglas" and "Merv Griffin," and will be seen on up coming appearances of "Saturday Night Live," will be appearing at Austin Peay Monday, Feb. 20.

In concert, Edmonds and Curley have performed as the opening act for such stars as Melissa Manchester, B.B. King, John Denver, Harry Chapin and Billy Joel.

During the past six years, Edmonds and Curley have become the number one comedy team in college appearances.

Over 1,000 college performances in 46 states and Canada have kept Edmonds and Curley in front of their favorite audiences.

Joey Edmonds and Thom Curley, originally from Oakbrook, Wis., have drawn constant laughs in their fast paced performance.

The duo has been traveling for about seven years.

One of the top routines features Curley as a pilot and Edmonds as a co-pilot for a small airplane.

Another is a daytime soap opera with commercials. This is followed by parody on commercials, including those suggested by audiences.

"Closer," a skit about a first date, casts a female from the audience as the gal, Edmonds as the guy and Curley as the guy's friend and the driver of the car.

Mouthed sound effects are appreciated tools that keep the act moving to the delight of the crowd.

The comedy team will be at APSU for two performances on Monday, Feb. 20, at 11 a.m. in the University Center and noon in the cafeteria. This event is sponsored by the USAIB.

Sticky Situation

Handling Of Controversial Quote

Deciding what is news and how to publish it often places a newspaper in a sticky situation. Questions of ethics and responsible journalism arise.

This past week, The All State was involved in one rather messy situation, and we want our readers to know the story. Rumors and wild conclusions stem from misinterpretations of the facts.

Last Wednesday Tim Miller, a student, interviewed Judy Riggs, wife of the president of this university. (Miller had complained about lack of coverage in the newspaper recently and when asked to be a reporter, agreed to write for us.)

During the interview with Judy Riggs, Miller asked if there was any special reason why the Riggs' children attended Clarksville Academy.

The following excerpt of the answer transcribed from the tape is taken out of context, but it is from these lines that the controversy arose:

Riggs: "The only reason is, uh, well the reason is because they, uh, well, it's convenient for one thing, and uh, I don't want to get tripped up here."

Miller: "I don't want to trip you up either."

Riggs: "I would say, I mean this is, we are of course zoned for, I think for a school that is unrealistic in its, uh, ratio, uh..."

Miller: "Of blacks to whites?"

Riggs: "Right."

Miller: "Okay, that's Burt School?"

Riggs: "No, Moore. We would be just delighted and would just love to have them go to Barksdale or East Montgomery. But, uh, it's just a kind of unfair percentage. I think a kind of unfair percentage. I think, for them to be in, and we are more or less just like any parent-protective-and, uh, it was suggested and recommended to us."

Judy Riggs went on to say how she and her husband were public school oriented.

Originally the story on Judy Riggs was intended to be a feature on the president's wife as a student, and the excerpt would probably have appeared in the story.

Since Miller's interview, many people have learned of the incident, and in our opinion, an explanation is warranted.

Miller played the tape from the Riggs' interview in the political science department and made a transcription from the tape of the lines which appear in this editorial.

He did this prior to letting the editor of The All State hear the tape and did not inform her that he had done so.

Consequently, at least one member of the Student Government Association, three administrators and one faculty member learned of the information.

In our opinion, the information was the property of The All State until printed, and Miller was in the wrong. For this reason, he was told by the editor that he would no longer be a reporter for the newspaper.

In view of the situation, we decided that we must print what was fair to the students and what was fair to Judy Riggs.

Riggs had willingly consented to the interview and knew that she was being recorded; therefore, we were under no obligation to keep what she had said confidential.

But what would be fair to Judy Riggs?

We decided that she would be reinterviewed and could clarify her remarks if she wished.

The story appears in this issue and Judy Riggs has also submitted a letter to the editor.

We hope that this atypical editorial and the printing of the feature story on Judy Riggs will restate one of our basic principles.

The All State is the student newspaper of Austin Peay State University, and its content is determined solely by the students who comprise the editorial staff.

The old saying about hindsight applies here. If Judy Riggs had chosen her words more carefully, if Tim Miller had gone to The All State office to transcribe the tape, if individuals had heard the entire story, if people (students and administrators) had been more open-minded and shown some small degree of confidence in the staff of this newspaper, this mess would not have occurred.

So much for "ifs." We just hope that our readers believe us and are supportive of our decision in presenting the facts.

A Matter Of Ethics

Foreign Languages Neglected

On June 2, 1978 approximately five percent of the graduating class of this university will receive the Bachelor of Arts degree.

One reason for this meager percentage is the language requirement for this honor.

The 1977-78 AFSU Undergraduate Graduate Bulletin spells this out on page 59: "Bachelor of Arts candidates are required to complete any modern language sequence, 200 level or above nine hours."

Other than the language requirement there is no difference between the B.A. and the Bachelor of Science degree.

Considering the frequently cited economic benefits and mental liberation of language study, why is the study of foreign languages so blatantly neglected?

To answer this question, some information about the modern language department is necessary.

German and French are the main languages taught. Spanish has been revived. English as a foreign language, Latin and Greek etymology and linguistics complete the offerings of the department.

The Spanish courses have attracted an encouraging number of students; however, only the introductory and intermediate series are offered, and these are alternated every year. This precludes a regular flow of enrollment and is an inconvenience to serious students.

The foreign languages are taught by two professors.

Two professors cannot be expected to cultivate interest in and aid in acquisition of language skills at any full university.

Additional faculty must be hired. Economically, this cannot be justified without higher enrollments. Therefore, support from students in the form of increased enrollment in foreign language courses is necessary. Student support can be acquired in part by recruiting, but more significantly by each student's determination to achieve the most liberating education possible at this liberal arts university.

If enrollment rises the university would have to adjust. The adjustment could logically result in the hiring of more language professors. Ideally, the new language teachers would/should be bi- or multi-lingual. In this way, the department could expand enrollment, courses and languages.

Film Reviews Blasted

Dear Editor:
Re: Your "Movie Reviews." This letter written in contemplation of his "reviews" of "The Spy Who Loved Me" and "Close Encounters of the Third Kind"—those being his most outstanding.

If you're to have someone review films, at least try to find a person who can write a coherent essay on a mature level (discussing trivial things like theme, treatment, etc.) knows something about film and cinematic technique (besides "good photography"). It has an LQ over 80.

Your present "reviewer," like most of your staff, obviously does not qualify on any of these points.

Contemptuously,
Ron Fontes

Dear Ron Fontes:

I hope I'm not setting a precedent by answering your letter, but this one was just too good to pass up.

Mr. Jones' review may not be written on a technical level, but he does write with one redeeming quality.

He is not afraid to sign his work (unlike one writer/cartoonist who submitted a very critical review of a dress rehearsal of a play and refused to allow his real name to appear with it).

Thank You For Your Letter
The Editor

Dear Editor:

Thank you for printing my recent letter. I would like your readers to know that it was printed as written, except for the paraphrasing, which was not mine.

Carolyn Reese-Dukes

Dear Editor:

Recently questions have been raised within the university community concerning the consideration which led to the placement of our son in a private school.

Although I regard this as a private matter, I believe it beneficial to the welfare of all concerned to make the following statement.

The selection of a school for our son was based entirely upon a desire to provide the best possible educational environment for his unique needs and capabilities. The ethnic composition of the school was not a factor considered in this decision.

Sincerely,

Jody Riggs

(Mrs. Robert O. Riggs)

Dear Editor:

The more idleness and deprivation in a society from the highest to those in the lowest brackets, the more "mafia" it generates.

When a system of social life is in a process of decay, all kinds of evils spring forth, naturally.

Homosexuality, lesbianism and pornography, let alone crime and corruption, have a field day every day along with teenage prostitution and venereal disease.

I do not subscribe to a breakdown of moral values in pursuance of freedom. Some people make the issue of freedom paramount. Freedom for good as well as freedom for evil is needed in society as well as some form of regulation for the tender years of its people.

Right now the more vocal homosexuals are making the loudest noise, clamoring for equal protection in our capitalist society. These people don't seem to have any quarrel with any other phase of our society.

At present they say, it is just to live in peace in their little world outside of closets. This is only to get a foot in the door.

Their immediate goal is legal protection to pursue their special "pastime" unmolested. They would like to operate out in the open and get around to "educate" the uneducated among the youth under the guise of freedom.

There will be no stopping them after getting legal protection. When it comes to agitation and propaganda, they are bolder and more brazen than the communists ever were in their field.

Labor honors the working woman whether in the home, factory or elsewhere. The "home" activity is an insult to women. For people to get involved in this sort of activity is an unhealthy state of mind.

Sincerely yours,
Frank Singewald

Dear Editor:

I have competed in many intramural events in the years that I have been at APSU. I feel that this past year, the intramural department has let the students down.

With the exception of one paper which presents the dates of events to come, no more on this topic has been published. If the intramural program expects to continue to grow, it will need to reach each student and make him aware of what events are coming up and when, not only ones but many, many times.

If it is impossible to do this, I would like to ask one question for myself and others concerned. Due to the building of the hand ball courts it was necessary to close the gym, which in turn cancelled women's intramural volleyball. Will this be rescheduled, and if so, when?

I would like to add a personal request to all students who are able to swim to start preparing now for the intramural swim meet to be held March 2 (rosters due March 1).

Last year, because of the lack of participation, the event was cancelled. It disappointed me very much.

Perhaps, if we as students show more interest in the intramural program by participating, then the intramural department might give its efforts into helping the students. But if the students aren't aware of what's happening, how can they participate?

Thank you,
"Eager to compete"

Letters to the editor will not be printed unless they are verified by phone or submitted in person.

Diversity Of Apoplexy

Is Murphy Responsible?

By ALLEN SCHUBERT

"Good grief! What's happening?" said Mark.

Sean Bunion's corpse, entangled in telephone cords, began to quiver, a process resembling flesh colored tomato sauce oozing through black spaghetti.

"How unabashedly gross," said Zakia.

Mark turned green. Serenity Jones gagged. Fat Wizard shook his head.

"He was a clone all this time," said Fat Wizard. "Clones run like that when they die."

"Let's close the door," whispered Zakia. With the door closed, the four could still hear the drip, drip of Bunion's flesh as it spilled from desk to floor.

Fat Wizard sighed. "I never knew. All these years I never knew..."

A moment of silence passed, then Serenity Jones faced the group. "I am leaving. Entirely too much has occurred in the past few months. Bad Karma, I know. And it's all because of Mark."

Mark dug his hands into his pockets.

"It's not your fault though," Jones ran his fingers through his hair. "Zakia's assessment of you is correct. You do nothing, Mark, but trouble happens where you are. A strange talent, not easily marketable, not under your control, consciously or unconsciously."

Jones briefly closed his eyes, then resumed. "My mystics business has suffered greatly of late. Mantra sales dropping, Karma Meters overstocked. I may even have to start a new campus religion again."

Serenity Jones dragged his feet to the door. Mark spoke up. "The mysticism. Some of it's true, isn't it?"

Serenity Jones stopped, looked partially over his shoulder and sniffed. Then he left the room and went down the hall.

Mark looked toward the door a moment, then turned to Fat Wizard and Zakia. Fat Wizard was intently studying a rusty filing cabinet while Zakia scowled at a blank wall. Mark opened his mouth but no words came out.

"He's got a point," Zakia nodded towards the door. "Life used to be better, right Fat Wizard?"

Fat Wizard turned his back toward them and quickly left the room for Bunion's office, fumbling with the doorknob as he closed the door behind him. Mark's mouth hung open and his stomach felt odd.

"Zakia..." Zakia glanced to one side, then went to a door and quickly opened it and slammed it shut behind her. Mark, alone, stared at the floor for several minutes.

"Oh, you're still here," Zakia peered around the door she had just exited through. She stepped from behind it. "I was a bit too hasty—though that doesn't change a thing I said." She tossed a few coat hangers and a coat behind the door and shot it, then left through the door Serenity Jones used.

Mark stiffly walked to a swivel chair behind a desk and fell into it. He spun around and looked out the window at the grey sky.

After several minutes he heard the sound of a great many footfalls approaching from the hall. The sound grew louder and suddenly a herd of people burst into the room. Mark spun around in the chair to face them.

"Him," shouted one of the mob. "He is the one responsible!"

The All State

Wednesday, February 15, 1978

March 6 is the last date to file on-time applications for admission or readmission for the 1978 spring quarter at Austin Peay State University.

Following the Monday, March 6, 4:30 p.m. deadline, applications will be termed as "late," according to Dick Littleton, director of admissions.

Registration for the spring quarter is Wednesday, March 22, after the spring vacation. Classes begin Thursday, March 23. Applications may be secured from the Admissions Office, Browning Building.

Alpha Mu Gamma, the foreign language club, requests translations, original writings and sketches. The club will publish the collection by quarter's end. Submit work to Tim Winking, P.O. Box 6135.

Master Class

Kenneth Kronholz and Herbert Dregalla, instructors in music, will conduct a master class for solo literature featuring the trumpet and clarinet Feb. 18 in the Clement auditorium.

The master class will begin at 10 a.m. and will conclude with an afternoon recital by Kronholz and Dregalla. The master class is admission free, and the public is invited to attend.

AKA

The Kappa Kappa chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority Inc. provided the girls at the Montgomery County Girls' Home with a little fun and entertainment with a Valentine Party on Sunday.

A Valentine's cake and other refreshments were served. The party ended as a happy note as the AKAs sang "Always and Forever We'll Love AKA."

Brass Choir

The University Brass Choir under the direction of Kenneth Kronholz will present an afternoon concert of antiphonal music for brass choir Feb. 19 at 3 p.m. in the Clement auditorium. The public is invited to attend the admission free concert.

Scholarships

Recipients of three and one-half year Army ROTC scholarships from the senior class are Cadet Capt. Alicia Nyland and Cadet 1st Lt. Karen Russell.

Mike Nolms, Joe Uzelac and Larry Evans received scholarships from the sophomore class.

The cadet is chosen to be a scholarship recipient based on his or her grade point average, involvement in ROTC, military appearance and recommendation. The student must have a 2.0 grade point average to be eligible. The student is tested in his involvement in the ROTC by competing for such things as Rangers and Drill Team. Recommendations come from instructors and the professors of the military science department.

There are many different scholarships available. To be eligible, the student must be enrolled in the ROTC program. Each scholarship comes with the opportunity for a career in the Army upon graduation.

Media

APSU President Robert O. Rags has approved the recommendation that the director of supervision for the process of printing and publication services will reside with Dr. David Seiber, director of the media center.

Disco Dance

The University Social Activities Board will sponsor a dance Thursday, Feb. 16, in the Armory.

Robert Beattick, the master disc jockey "Him" from Louisville, Ky. will be present with a complete disco show.

The dance will be from 8 p.m. to midnight. Austin Peay students with valid I.D.s are invited.

Black Beauties

The public is invited to attend Kappa Alpha Psi's first Miss Black Clarksville pageant on Feb. 25.

The pageant will be held in the Clement auditorium at 7 p.m.

The winner will compete in the Miss Black Tennessee to be held in Memphis.

On Feb. 17, a jazz band clinic will be held in the Clement auditorium from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The clinic will be conducted by Dr. Aaron Schmidt, professor of music and will be attended by high school band directors and students.

The APSU Jazz Collegians will perform under Schmidt's direction.

Sociology

The Sociology Club will meet today at noon in room 10 of the library basement.

Speaker

Tom Beasley, state Republican chairman, will be at APSU Feb. 22. He will speak at noon in room 38 in the basement of the Woodward Library.

Beer Poll

The discussion class of the speech and theatre department is taking a poll to the effects of having beer on tap served at the University Center. Forms can be picked up at the post office.

JUDY RIGGS—The wife of APSU President Dr. Robert O. Riggs is interviewed at Archwood.

Judy, Not R.O.

By JAN AYLSWORTH

Judy and Robert Riggs have been married 10 years and according to Mrs. Riggs, they met in Memphis where she was a dental hygienist and he was pursuing graduate study at Memphis State University.

The future president of APSU was given the name of the future Mrs. Riggs by a mutual friend. He called in October, they had a date; and after dating steadily from that point on, they were married in July.

Mrs. Riggs called it a "quick romance."

Along the topic of Valentine's Day, Mrs. Riggs said that she agreed that there was a woman behind every successful man.

"They need us even though they might not think they do," she said.

What does Judy Riggs think makes a good marriage?

"Communication and forgetting the self," were offered by Austin Peay's first lady as having contributed to her happy marriage.

"You have to give a lot, but you get more. I know the more independent I get, the less we get along," she said.

The Riggs have two children, Robert O. Jr. (Rock), 7; and Susan Le, 4. The family is made complete by Bruce the schnauzer who predates Rock and Susan, and Chesty, a nine-month-old English bulldog.

The Riggs also have what Judy Riggs called an "it" cat named Kitty.

For the present, Judy Riggs sees her role as wife, mother and student. She plans to stay at home until her children are grown.

"That's part of the giving," she said.

But she is making plans for the future, currently enrolled as a full-time student at APSU. After 12 more hours at the university she plans to complete her bachelor's degree in dental hygiene by taking 17 hours of correspondence from the University of Tennessee.

Eventually she hopes to acquire a master's in that field and return to work when Rock and Susan are grown. "I don't feel like I can sleep late and play bridge while my husband is out paying the bills."

"I want to open my own doors," she said.

In the classroom, Judy Riggs perceives herself as a normal student and says that she has not been given preferential treatment.

Does she view herself as outpoken?

"Yes," she paused. "But I speak before I think."

Concerning speaking out on issues, she said she usually kept her opinions to herself.

As far as women's lib goes, she has not formed a definition of the subject.

On voicing her opinions, Mrs. Riggs referred to the transcribed portion of an earlier interview.

"What was on the tape does not at all reflect my opinion. I did not have time to elaborate."

Over the recent controversy about the quotes, she said that she felt like she had been taken advantage of.

What began as anger turned to hurt and an almost "paranoid" attitude about being open for fear of mistaking her views.

"When we came here, I was told I'd have to be thick-skinned. I thought I could be open, but now I know what thick-skinned means."

"We've been open, but now I don't feel like I can be. I guess we all want people to like us."

"I'm used to being open. I'm going to have to practice. If people would just give us a chance..."

What kind of social obligations does the wife of a university president have?

The Riggs are included in many Chamber of Commerce and Fort Campbell events.

"Quite a lot of it (social commitment) has been self-inflicted," Mrs. Riggs said. Judy Riggs summed it up.

"It's been two big years of entertainment."

McGill Award Offered

May 1 is the deadline for aspiring young Southern newspapermen and women to submit applications for Ralph McGill Scholarships.

The Ralph McGill Scholarship Fund offers scholarships of up to $1,500 each to students who have completed at least two years of college, and who have demonstrated a long time interest in the news and editorial phase of newspapering.

Jack Tucker, chairman of the fund's advisory committee, said scholars are limited to those young men and women whose roots lie in the South.

Applicants must also convince the Awards Committee that they firmly intend to pursue a career in daily or weekly newspapering. Tucker said the Awards Committee wants to give scholarships to those who are likely to become leaders in the newspaper field.

Gotcher competed in after dinner speaking. In duo interpretation the APSU teams were Debbie Ham and Gary Broadrick, Belinda Boyd and Mike McGuire, Darryl Osborne and Tommie Griffin, and Sarah Hemmrich and Marie Zeck.

David Mason and Michael Gotcher competed in extemporaneous speaking. The debate teams were; Rick Harley and Roy Buchanan in junior varsity and Michael Gotcher and Sandra Watkins in senior varsity.

The state tournament was the eighth tournament for the team this year. Tentatively scheduled tournaments included two regional tournaments and the national tournament. The team is also sponsoring the Governor's Classic High School Tournament this weekend, as well as the high school district tournament later this quarter.

Ha Exhibits Graphics

By WILLIAM SHELTON

An art exhibit, entitled "Graphics by Yeung Ha," opened Feb. 12 in the Truhren Gallery and will run through Mar. 10. The exhibit is open to the public. Ha is an assistant professor in the art department at Austin Peay and teaches graphics, drawing and photography.

She was born in Korea and lived most of her childhood in Seoul. She came to the United States with her family in 1965.

After finishing high school, Ha entered Illinois State University and from there transferred to the University of Wisconsin at Madison, where she received her M.A. in art in 1975 and her M.F.A. in 1977. She began teaching at Austin Peay in September.

Ha explains that her art is "semi-abstract" and open for interpretation. She stated that rather than tell someone what her art is about, she would prefer to have someone experience it and form conclusions for himself.

The exhibit consists of Ha's works from 1975 to the present. Color prints, including lithograph, intaglio and silk screen are being shown as well as drawings and photographs.

The gallery is open from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. Admission is free.

PLASMA: The Gift That Saves Lives

Plasma. What is it? Who gives it? How is it collected?

Plasma is the liquid portion of whole blood. It is collected at centers, like the one here in Clarksville, and sent to a laboratory to be turned into life-saving drugs.

Plasma can be compared to petroleum. In the fact that many products come from one source. Plasma is a universal state is used to treat shock victims. As a refined product it is used to combat such diseases as mumps, measles, rabies, whooping cough, hepatitis, and tetanus. Plasma is also used to treat burn victims.

Plasma is a derivative is a drug for treating hemorrhophiles (bleeders). Before the drug was developed, hemorrhophiles had no way to make their blood clot; they could die from a simple cut. Now they are able to undergo surgery.

The vast majority of people at the Plasma Center, 301 Ft. Campbell Blvd., are young, healthy and in need of funds.

They don't sell their blood. They rest it to 30 minutes.

Then they get it back about 30 degrees colder but every 10 as red. Each week about 200-300 college students, military personnel, housewives and people out of work have blood withdrawn and then relax or read in the comfortable couches at the center while their blood is put in a centrifuge, which spins it to separate the plasma (protein content). The plasma is extracted and frozen and the blood is returned to the donor.

Because the body replaces the lost portion in 36 to 48 hours, the donors can give plasma twice a week indefinitely. And many persons do just that. This center and others like it have had people coming twice a week for several months, even two or three years.

For instance, Martha Michel in Colorado Springs has given plasma twice a month for two years. She dedicates the money she earns to the Missionary program of her church.

Locality Rlyth Thomas

has donated 48 times in the last 6 months to add to his income. Many housewives take advantage of the center to get a break during the day and increase the family budget. Whatever the reason, everyone is happy with the arrangement. The donors get $6 for their first visit and $10 for the second visit within a week.

Not only is the general public healthier because of the plasma donor - the donors benefit too. "Our donors health is monitored more closely than anyone's is here," claims Norman Martin, local manager. Each donor is given a free, thorough physical examination by a physician who is on duty at the center, all during the hours of operation.

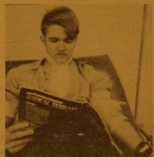

The physical is repeated annually for regular donors; if a person gives six months without donating he must undergo the exam again.

Each time a person gives plasma, his pulse, blood pressure and temperature is taken and he is tested for anemia, protein deficiency, syphilis and hepatitis. If a problem is found, the person is not allowed to give plasma and is referred to his personal physician or a local clinic.

Each new donor is offered a tetanus shot. If he accepts, the center pays him an additional dollar because his plasma can then be used to combat tetanus.

Employees at the center are careful to warn their clients that certain risks do exist in giving plasma. To prevent this the center exercises stringent controls to keep this from happening. Each donor has a permanent donor number assigned to him. In addition, each bag of blood has the donor's name, permanent donor number and a control number. Before any blood is returned to the center, the technician checks the name and numbers on the bag with the donor's to make sure they correspond to his name, permanent donor number and control number for that donation.

Theron Lawrence, Local Resident

To give plasma, a person must meet the following Food and Drug Administration regulations:

- Show proof of identification.
- Be 18 to 65 years old.
- Have no prior history of hepatitis.
- Pass the center's physical exam.
- Not be pregnant or have

- had a child within six months.
- Not be under a doctor's care or taking any medications.
- Not have had surgery, a tattoo, or even their ears pierced within the last 6 months.
- The process of giving plasma takes about 1 1/2 hours.

Hilltoppers, Govs In Key Matchup

By KENNETH KLEIN

Austin Peay will travel to Bowling Green, Ky. Saturday to play the number three team in the Ohio Valley Conference title race, the Hilltoppers of Western Kentucky.

Senior forward-center James Johnson is currently pacing the Hilltoppers and fourth place in the conference in scoring with his 19.2 per game average. Johnson also follows Howard in rebounding in the OVC averaging 9.8 per game in his second place spot. Howard holds the lead with a 19.9 average.

The 6-7 Hilltopper also ranks in the field goal percentage area of the OVC as his is fourth with a .557 percentage.

Guard Darryl Turner is close behind Johnson in scoring with his 17.5 game average. Turner is extremely quick and has a tremendous all around ability for the game.

Greg Jackson, a transfer from Oklahoma City Southwest Junior college, posts a 14.6 point average along with an average of 8.5 rebounds per game. The 6-5 junior has an outstanding jumping ability and proves to be aggressive on the boards.

Averaging 12.3 points and 8.5 rebounds per game for Western is 6-7 junior Aaron Bryant. Bryant was voted to All-Ohio Valley Conference status last season and is the main ingredient in Western's fast break.

Sophomore starter for the Hilltoppers with a 10.2 scoring average is 6-5 Mike Prince, who started all 26 games last season for Western and maintained a 14.8 scoring average.

Steve Abby, starting guard for the Hilltoppers, has an 8.3 scoring average and leads Western in assists with a total of 78.

Riggs Wants To Move Up

Austin Peay's decision to petition the National Collegiate Athletic Association for admittance into the newly formed Division I-AA along with the remaining members of the Ohio Valley Conference is by far the most exciting thing to happen in the university athletic program since the Peay authorized women's athletics.

This move will enable the football team to offer more scholarships as well as have an opportunity to play on regional television and possibly national television.

This would pour money into the dwindling coffins of the university which has almost overextended and overspent its resources.

Now, don't get excited and expect this new move to help the situation at Austin Peay immediately because it will not even go before the NCAA for a vote until its next meeting which is almost one year away.

Dr. Robert O. Riggs, President of Austin Peay State University, was very pleased with the OVC presidents vote to petition the NCAA. While reluctant in the beginning Riggs now feels that the move to the new division will be proper for the university.

"I made the motion to petition the NCAA for admittance to Division I-AA," Riggs stated. "Since the other OVC schools were so firm in respect to the move, I felt that I should follow suit."

Riggs pointed out that it is essential for Austin Peay to remain a member of the OVC because the conference is such a fine one.

As one of Austin Peay's most influential fans, Riggs has committed himself and the university to attaining the highest covering all fields

By Billy Fields
The All State Sports Editor

quality in athletics. In his opinion this will help the cause of the entire athletic department, as well as exchange the image of the university as a whole.

Dr. Joe Brown, athletic director for APSU, stated that no changes will take place until the NCAA takes action. At the NCAA meeting, which will be held in San Francisco, Cal., in 1979, the criteria for the division will be made; and Austin Peay, through its commitment along with the other OVC schools, will be able to participate in the action.

"In my opinion the chances are good that we will be admitted to Division I-AA of the NCAA," Brown said. "There may be a possible 75 or 80 scholarships available for the football team; however, if this were to occur then the OVC could still limit the number of scholarships."

This move may appear to play favorites with the football program; but, it must be made clear that this will improve the rest of the athletic programs at football revenue, which could be increased through television, would allow more money to be spent in the other programs.

Riggs said at a recent basketball game where he was interviewed, "I don't know where Boots Donnelly is right now, but I'll bet you he is smiling." That should go without saying—Boots is a very happy man and he has good reason to be!

LOOKING FOR A BASKET—Determination can be read all over the face of freshman guard Carol Wood as she lays in a basket against UT-Martin while Elaine Swafford sizes up the situation.

New Record Set

Govs Sink Eagles

By KENNETH KLEIN

Austin Peay defeated the Eagles of Morehead State Monday night 73-54 in the Wetherby Gymnasium in Morehead, Ky, and set a new school record in the process.

The Governors, led by the 22 total points of Otis Howard, broke the previous school record of field goal percentage set in 1959 by posting a blistering 68 percentage mark from the floor.

Surprise starters Alfred Barney and Clarence Mason both aided tremendously to the effort with Barney scoring 10, all of which came in the first half, and Mason scoring seven and pulling seven rebounds. Norman Jackson and Dennis Fagan were the only other Governors in double figures with each scoring 10.

Herbie Stamper, now second in the OVC in scoring with a 23.5 mark, paced the Eagles with a 26-point total. Butch Keller and Brad LeMaster had 10 and nine, respectively.

Stamper initiated the scoring for the game on a shot from the foul line. Morehead led by as much as three, then with 13:19 left in the first half, the Eagles enjoyed their last lead of the night of 20-19. The half ended with the Governors on top 25-23.

Austin Peay stayed ahead throughout the second half as the Eagles only managed to pull within seven points three times for the remainder of the game. The Governors led by as much as 23 points in the game, and the two teams retired to their dressing rooms with Austin Peay victorious, 73-54.

"Our shot selection was extremely well for the game," commented head basketball coach Ed Thompson. "I don't think it has been better all year."

Lady Gavs Whip UT-M

By BILLY FIELDS

The Lady Gavs made it two in a row against the University of Tennessee at Martin with a stunning 66-61 victory over the Lady Pacers in the Dunn Center Monday night.

Austin Peay was paced by the hot hands of guards Brenda McFarlin and Carol Wood who accounted for 19 and 18 points, respectively. The Lady Gavs had another bright spot as Guilena Rucker pulled down 21 rebounds to lead in that category and help APSU out rebound the Lady Pacers 60-31.

The first half was APSU all the way as the Lady Gavs blistered the nets with a 48 percent shooting clip, while UT Martin could only muster 36 percent. The women controlled the boards as well with a 29 to 17 margin.

The second half was even in scoring, but again the Lady Gavs controlled the boards as they out rebounded their west Tennessee neighbors 31 to 19. Rucker passed the board attack as 12 of her 21 rebounds came in the second period.

The last time the Peay and UT Martin got together, the Lady Gavs came out the victor with a close 60-57 win in overtime at the Lady Pacer gym.

In a weekend contest the Lady Gavs fell to the Vanderbilt Lady Commodores 75-50 in overtime after Austin Peay led the entire game.

Austin Peay could not put it together in the overtime game as Vandy outscored them 10 to 5 in the extra six-minute period. Rucker was the high point person in the game for APSU with 15 points, while teammate Carol Wood and Sheila Smotherman had 12 apiece.

Rucker had another exceptional evening under the boards as she cleared the glass for 20 rebounds. The Lady Gavs will play Morehead State University at 4:30 p.m. today in the Dunn Center.

Morehead, 4-2 in the conference while having a 11-4 record overall.

Morehead is 4-2 in the conference while having a 11-4 record overall. The Eaglesites boast the top scorer in the conference in Donna Murphy who is currently averaging 21 points per game in addition to being the top rebounder with 16.2 per game. In addition to these leads, Murphy is 11th in regard to field goal percentage with a 45 percent tally and has a 65 percent free throw average to hold down ninth in the OVC.

Tip off will be 4:30 p.m. in the Dunn Center with the Lady Gavs trying to improve their 6-11 overall mark.

Anyone interested in intramural wrestling should go by the Intramural Recreation Office located in the Memorial Health Building. Tentative plans have been set for the tournament to be held Feb. 28 or possibly Feb. 27. "If participation is not there, then we won't have a tournament," stated intramural recreation director Buddy Bumgarner.

Track Team Hampered By Weather

By BILLY FIELDS

The Governors will go into the Ohio Valley Conference Indoor Track meet this weekend a little behind schedule in regard to many of the other conference schools.

The bad weather forced the trackmen from the outdoors to the confines of the Dunn Center which has no facilities to speak of for a track program. This is only a small part of the trouble. With one of the other problems being the fact that they have been unable to travel to the big indoor meets across the south. This, according to coach Wayne Williams, puts the Governors behind.

"Actually we are three weeks behind in real workouts and two weeks behind in meets," Williams commented. "It's a shame that the OVC meet is this weekend because we aren't ready in many respects."

Williams was referring to his team's having been to two less meets than most other OVC schools. In considering the idea of Austin Peay taking honors at the meet, Williams stated that the Gove are talented enough, but will have to be highly motivated to take top honors at the OVC affair due to the lack of work.

The bright spots for Austin Peay so far this season have been the freshman in many ways, as they have excelled to the greatest expectations of Williams.

Jeff Wallace, Keith Shank and Barry Crawford have done exceptional jobs for their first half season.

In a recent meet (United States Track and Field Federation) in Montgomery, Ala., the Governors took to first, second or even third place finishes; however, they did impress their coach. The runners and field events people gave their all, according to Williams, and this is what has brightened the Gove future for the remaining weeks of the season.

An interesting note from the USTAATF was the fact that senior sprinter Coveak Moody finished only a step behind Harvey Glance, who is considered to be the world's fastest human. This is according to Williams can be misleading as he states "To a race like this you could use a yardstick to measure the distance in the finish." Williams went on to say that Moody is having a fine winter season and may qualify for the NCAA meet later in the season.

"Our kids, despite the many problems which they have had to hurdle, have kept a good attitude," Williams said. "They have been in the competition from the beginning, and when we get to East Tennessee (the site for the OVC meet this weekend) we will not lay down."

We will be scraping for everything we can get. That is a promise."

Rowan

Responding to questions concerning the Davis Cup tennis match at Vanderbilt, Rowan stated "South Africa is the most grievous example of violation of human rights in the world."

"It is totally irrelevant that a black has been added to the South African team, that's not the argument—he probably won't even hit a fall, Rowan continued. The proper position toward South Africa is total isolation.

Concerning the Panama Canal, Rowan's answers to questions posed to him included such expressions as:

"We need good relations with Panama and Latin America."

"Military reasons are not valid because one mistake would knock it out."

"The treaty is important because we must recognize Panama and its people as sovereign."

Addressing himself to the Medicaid for abortions controversy, "I think it's an atrocious decision of Congress; people who must have babies once pregnant usually are the least educated, the least sophisticated."

What verbal legacy did Rowan leave here in light of this week's celebration of Black History Week? "Make no little plans, make big plans and let no one deter you because perseverance is one of the great qualities of life."

Western

The 6-0 senior became a starter last season after two years in a reserve role and has started every game this year except one.

Earlier this season, Western defeated the Governors 91-83 in the Dunn Center. Austin Peay is one-half game behind the Hilltoppers and this is a crucial game for the Gove, since only the top four teams in the conference play in the final tournament.
