Alpha Phi charter revoked, president requests appeal

by Mike Lynch
Editor-in-Chief

Austin Peay once again has only five women's social organizations on campus despite the recent addition of Alpha Delta Pi.

University officials were notified last week the Alpha Phi International Fraternity had withdrawn the Epsilon Omicron charter, effective March 21.

Dr. Roscoe Shain, interim dean of students, said he and University President Robert O. Riggs had only learned of the action on March 16.

According to chapter President Pat Ziolkowski, the Austin Peay chapter was placed on probation in October. She said knowledge of the probation was never passed along to administrators.

Ziolkowski said the national chapter revoked their charter because it failed to meet their enrollment standards.

She said the fraternity was told they would have to reach an enrollment of 40 to retain their charter. After ADPI was colonized, she said the figure was raised to 50.

Riggs has written to Nancy DeVoe, international president of Alpha Phi, requesting a personal appearance before the executive board to appeal the charter withdrawal.

In her letter to the local chapter DeVoe said, "It is the sincere conviction of the Executive Board that proceeding in the current circumstances would produce more frustration and disappointment and still fail to create the viable chapter that all of you deserve."

"Neither strong assistance from the Fraternity nor outstanding effort on the part of the collegiate members has been able to keep the chapter from remaining the smallest on campus."

DeVoe said the chapter could initiate any pledges "who deserve to become members of Alpha Phi International Fraternity."

Other pledges are released and are free to pledge another sorority.

Efforts have been underway all year to colonize ADPI at Austin Peay. Administrators cited a 10-year lack of growth in the Panhellenic Council as the major reason for the new sorority.

Jazz Festival March 31, April 1

The 22nd Annual Mid-South Jazz Festival, sponsored by Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia fraternity, will be held March 31 and April 1 in the Clement Auditorium at 7:00 p.m. each night.

The featured guest artist this year is Phil Wilson, well-known jazz trombonist from the Berkley School of Music in Boston. Wilson has played with such celebrated jazz bands as Woody Herman and Tommy Dorsey.

Wilson will perform with the APSU Jazz Collegians during the festival.

The Mainstream Band of Nashville, a group of professional jazz band members, will be included in the Thursday concert and will be followed by a second professional group.

Shane Williams, Phi Mu Alpha member from Clarksville, said Friday will be a day filled with jazz competition as more than 200 high school jazz musicians will converge on the APSU campus of contests.

Many professional, college and high school bands from Tennessee, Kentucky and Alabama will be featured at the festival.

Seven school bands will play in jazz competition on Friday. The competition will last for most of the day. Judges of the competition will be Wilson, David Converse and Glenn Martin, owner of Laisses Faire publishing company.

They will be judging the bands on such things as ensemble balance, intonation, dynamics and overall general effect.

The band winning the high school jazz band competition will open the Friday evening concert, according to Williams. The concert begins at 7 p.m. in Clement Auditorium and will include Tennessee State University's jazz band, Andy Widders-Ellis playing a 10-string jazz instrument he invented, and the AP Jazz Collegians with Wilson as guest soloist.

Admission to the evening performances is $3.00 each night and $5.00 for both nights. Proceeds go towards scholarships and other music-related projects.

Orientation leaders wanted

Applications are available in the Student Life Office for Summer Orientation leaders. Applicants must have a 2.0 GPA and be available to work during the orientation sessions in July.

Other qualifications include: excellent communication skills, ability to work with groups of students and an enthusiasm for APSU and the orientation program.

Deadline for applications is April 18, 1983. Return applications to Student Life Office, Ellington Hall.

Scholarships available

The General Scholarship Committee is now accepting applications for the Richard M. Hawkins Memorial Scholarship and the Edward M. Norman Scholarship.

Students receiving the maximum amount of financial aid for which they are eligible are ineligible for these scholarships.

Applicants must have attained junior status. The deadline for applications is April 15.

Interested students should contact Dr. Floyd Ford, chairman of the General Scholarship Committee, McCord 215, phone 648-7781.

Welker presents paper

Austin Peay State University's associate professor of French has been notified a paper he has written has been accepted for presentation.

John W. Welker has learned his research paper entitled "Louis-Philippe, King of France as a Literary Figure" has been accepted for presentation at the annual University of Cincinnati Conference on Romance Languages and Literature.

Welker will read the paper at the May 12-16 conference. The paper is a result of a series of summers spent in France researching the subject at the Paris National Library and the National Archives.

ISO meets April 1

The International Students Organization will meet Thursday at 4 p.m. in Room 313 of the University Center. All ISO members and other interested persons are urged to attend. For more information contact Dr. Paul Hsu in the sociology department at 7730.

Library hosts sale

The Friends of the Public Library will be having their Spring Book Sale on April 7-9. The library, at 239 Main St. will be accepting the donation of books for the sale through April 7.

IFC revises constitution

by John St. Amant
Managing Editor

The Inter-Fraternity Council has been reconstructing its constitution during the past quarter with completion forecasted to be this spring. One major revision will include rush guidelines.

Fraternity rush, which is the acquiring of new members, will most likely become more structured.

Presently a committee to revise the constitution has discussed every part of the constitution except rush guidelines. Some changes discussed may be a rush fee on persons going through rush, specific time period including a pinning date and a limit on the number of parties.

Mike Trent, chairman of the IFC constitution committee, said, "Our objectives are to clarify the constitution in certain foggy areas."

The IFC election of officers has been postponed until the constitution is revised. "This will allow the incoming officers to come in with a fresh start rather than being faced with a new constitution mid-stream,"

Trent said.

The constitution was revised approximately a year ago, but a need was seen in writing a constitution that included a structured rush.

Artie Manning, university director of student activities and advisor to the IFC, explained the purpose of a structured rush as being a means of "bettering the fraternity system at Austin Peay."

Manning further explained that structured rush would put the fraternity system in the modern age.

A special forum for all fraternity members was held to address the topic of structured rush. The March forum drew several fraternity members to the discussion and debate lasted close to two hours.

No actual plans for rush have been made constitutional law. The guidelines will be discussed later in committee meetings to come.

The actual time the rush guidelines will take place has been tentatively set for fall quarter 1983.

Considerable discussion has also been conducted on hazing. The present hazing policy has been loosely enforced according to a few people.

Former Interior Aide to lecture on resources in America

The woman who coordinated establishment of the Alaskan pipeline and who has served as an energy and natural resources consultant in private industry and for the nation will be guest speaker at Austin Peay State University April 13.

Barbara M. Heller, guest lecturer at the 11 a.m. program in Austin Peay's Clement Auditorium, is hosted by Austin Peay's Visiting Artists and Speakers Committee.

"Natural Resources in a Changing America" is Ms. Heller's topic for the lecture and reflects her work with the Secretary of the Interior on water resource management and with the Congressional Office of Technology Assessment on resource and economic impacts of the MX Missile System. She is a contributing author for "Audubon Magazine."

Heller worked extensively with the Outer Continental Shelf oil and gas programs while serving as Deputy Under Secretary for the U.S. Department of the Interior from 1977 to 1979. Her work included coordination of responsibilities in the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act, the Alcan Gas Pipeline, Trans-Alaska Pipeline, Alaska lands and other issues concerning Alaska.

She terms her major accomplishment while working with the Department of the Interior as development of legislation and Administration policy that met the needs of the nation in Outer Continental Shelf energy production with the economic, environmental and jurisdictional interests of coastal states and communities.

Heller also worked in negotiations with Indian resource conflicts in the United States and was a principal Department of the Interior representative to major government, industry and public-interest organizations, including the steering committee of the United Nations Conference on Science and Technology for Developing Countries and the White House Task Force on Women.

A guest lecturer at Harvard University, Princeton University, Stanford University and the University of Wyoming, Ms. Heller has spoken before the Democratic Party Platform Committee. She is a graduate of Boston University.

COMP test required

Graduating seniors will be required this year to take an ACT College Outcome Measurement Project (COMP) before receiving their diplomas. Failure to take the COMP may result in postponement of graduation.

The COMP is a measurement of students' ability to send and receive information, define and solve problems, identify the values of society and self, identify the institutions found in society, to understand the impact of technology on culture, and to understand the impact of art on society.

The test will be administered on three different dates. Seniors can take the test April 12, 13 or 14 at either 9 a.m. or 1 p.m. The test was implemented under instructions from the State Board of Regents.

The State Board of Regents Chancellor appointed a committee to assess general core programs and evaluate their effectiveness. The purpose is not to determine who should and who should not graduate. It simply evaluates the general core requirements.

Seniors should be aware that COMP scores will not affect the awarding of diplomas, and that test scores will not be recorded on transcripts.

Psych meeting draws APSU group

by Margaret Langford
Associate Editor

Psychology students and faculty members and one sociology professor attended the 29th annual meeting of the Southeastern Psychological Association in Atlanta, Georgia last week, March 24-26.

This meeting is a convention of psychologists from all over the Southeast who hear and present research papers, hold and attend workshops, symposiums, and discussion groups, and hear lectures by psychologists of national prominence, according to Dr. Buddy Grah, APSU psychology professor.

Psychology graduate student Evelyn Florio, along with Professor Anthony J. Golden, presented a study of the effects of chronic tartrazine administration on pinealectomized rats. This study is her masters thesis.

Students Josie Gonzales, Marcia Wood, Dagnar Nye, Karen Margulies, and Herb McGrath also attended the meeting.

Faculty members who attended the meeting are Drs. Linda Rudolph, Susan Kupisch, Bob Nevels, Tony Golden, Cy Sadowski, Pat Chappell, and Buddy Grah of the psychology department, and Dr. Ellen Weed of the sociology department.

Kupisch, Rudolph and Weed presented a symposium on the disrupted family, which was selected as one of seven presentations at the meeting to be highlighted.

Rudolph said the theme of the symposium was divorce and its creation of more than one type of family. She said, "The nuclear family has been the model for measuring 'normal' adjustment, but with the high divorce rate, 40-50% of children live in single parent homes or reorganized families."

Rudolph went on to say the stereotype of the broken home is that the children involved are at a disadvantage. "We need to find new models for our new types of families and remove these negative stereotypes that may interfere with the adjustment of parents and children," she said.

Sadowski presented two papers to the convention. One was a study of the relationship of the location of bars in neighborhoods and the frequency of assaults. Sadowski says his paper supports the theory that bars tend to attract violence in the neighborhood.

Sadowski's other paper was a field study to determine whether different styles of teaching affect student motivation. He said, "Teachers who are seen as helpful in teaching students to set their own goals motivate students to accept responsibility for their academic performance, both for success and failure. It seems that helping them accept failure is much more critical."

Chappell also presented a paper entitled "The time-dependence of neonatal response during interaction." It concerns the interaction between an infant and its caretaker in the first few hours after birth, according to Grah.

Grah said this meeting is valuable for students and professors because they are able to keep up with current research in the field of psychology.

Margulies said as a student she found the convention "a good exposure to research going on in different schools and in different areas of psychology."

SGA "finds" $7,000, senate surprised

"Cover-up!"

The beginning of this editorial did not start with a main topic. This was done on purpose to keep your attention. The real topic is the student government association.

FRANKLY SPEAKING

Now you know why I didn't begin this editorial with the SGA because many people are turned off as soon as they hear the SGA mentioned.

Everyone realizes that a student government exists, but let's face it, not many people care what happens.

Many people think the SGA has no real power. SGA does not represent the student body.

At the last regular SGA meeting in winter quarter, Wayne Mosley, SGA president announced that the SGA has "$7000" in the student government fund.

This news startled even the senate members who thought only a few hundred dollars were present in the student fund!

The student government gets $1 from each full-time student. It seems to me that the treasurer, Sandra Manners, or Mosley would tell their fellow students how much money we had in our account!!!

Mosley's excuse for not revealing to the senate the amount of the newfound money was, "The money is in a special account. We told you (the senate) about it at the beginning of the year."

Questioning the senate, Senator Tim Cleveland asked, "How many people knew we had $7000 in an account?"

As a result, not one hand raised to affirm the question.

Funny, isn't it???

Mosley informed the senate that the money was in a special account which was developed a few years ago. The account is designed to purchase something "the whole school can use." Mosley gave the example of the large screen T.V. in the University Center.

If you are curious, make up your own mind. Go talk to Mosley at the SGA office or phone 648-7282 or call Sandra Manners at the same number, they are the only ones who knew about the "hidden" account.

Tomorrow night (Thursday) at 7:00 p.m. the SGA will hear Mosley's budget for spring. Now won't this be interesting. Why don't you go and hear what he has to say. The meetings are open to everyone.

Kappa Alpha Psi demands apology

(Editor's note: Despite numerous grammatical errors, the following letter is printed as it was submitted in order to avoid any alleged "errors in editing.")

Dear Editor:

We find it very hard to believe that you (an editor) would write an article as the one you wrote on March 9, 1983. In your article you stated that the men of Kappa Alpha Psi were the winners of the Fehble Follie award. Then you had the nerve to state that this group of young men were notorious liars and went around submitting articles to the student news paper without a shred of proof.

In your article you stated that Wayne Mosley did not make the statement "seek funds from the NAACP", that is correct. Through an error in editing our letter Wayne name was placed improperly. At this time the members of Kappa Alpha Psi would like to apologize to Wayne for the use of his name. The reason Wayne name was topped with the statement is because he had previously told the finance committee that Kappa Alpha Psi could not receive any money from the student fund because they were a social fraternity. That notion was quickly dissolved, so therefore it is not to presumptuous of this fraternity to assume Wayne planted the NAACP notion in the finance committee mind too.

The apology that this fraternity needs to make. To the charges you made about the pageant article, it was not clear if you were remarking about the quality of the article or if you were calling the Kappa's liar about the two or three week grace period that you stated it would take to run a feature article of that caliber. As to the quality, that's a matter of opinion, but as to the statement you made, let us try to refresh your memory. The note of Feb. 10, for whatever note it was before the deadline of the March 16, paper. One of the members of Kappa Alpha Psi came to you and asked if the picture's were ready for the newspaper, you told him that you would go in the dark room and see, but do to the time factor you then would not be able to run all of the ladies picture's, then you asked if we had a group picture that you could print. If you do not remember then we must say that you are the "Liar".

Since you actually did not call us a liar on the rest of the article, you only suspected. We feel at this time that proof is not necessary. We tried to have a meeting with you to present the proof to you but you declined. But if you wish to call Kappa Alpha Psi a Liar on the rest of the article and not "suspect" then we would be more than happy to supply you with all the proof you need.

You also stated of what a fine job that Marsha, Jack, and Sallie has done and we must agree, but there accomplishments are geared toward the majority not the minority which is fine as long as the minority is not completely over looked.

While trying to keep this letter as brief as possible we must reply to your article as a whole. As editor of a paper one should be a little more careful before stating that someone is using yellow journalism tactics. As a student organization here on this campus stating their problems we would ask that before you call someone a Liar that you would least check all of the sources out instead of just one and assuming the rest. We should be calling for your resignation but we're not, because we know that of the mentality that we are dealing with.

Our original letter was just to let you and the rest of Austin Peay know of the problems Kappa Alpha Psi and other black Greeks were having with facilities on this campus. But we see that we have caused some pain in doing so. What the heck; their pain will never amount to what we have suffered through the years.

Now Mr. Editor, we the members of Kappa Alpha Psi would like for you to retract those statements and tell your readers how you simply let your prejudice get the best of you. Now we are calling for your apology.

Kappa Alpha Psi
Fraternity

Editor tangles with ticketing traps

"Trap (trap) n. 2. any stratagem or ambush designed to catch or trick unsuspecting persons." (Webster's New World Dictionary, second edition, p. 1512).

If ever a phrase so accurately described the aspect of campus security during final exam week, this is it. I find the ticketing of vehicles at night difficult effort to pass some very touch-and-go classes (up to now I've always dropped them or said to hell with it).

I cannot recall a time I went in or out of Woodward without seeing a campus police car stopped behind the car of some student who had innocently parked in the blue zone around Clement and Claxton.

The general reaction to this ticketing was shock and dismay. There has never been a time in my five-year college career when tickets were so blatantly issued at night and even on the weekend.

In the pecking order, the students at Austin Peay have always had to suck hind-tit when it came to parking and similar privileges. I do not deny faculty members the right to park closer to the buildings than students, it undoubtedly cuts down on traffic congestion during the day.

I am appalled by the fact students are ticketed for using those spots when relatively few faculty members have use for them. Even if students were to be ticketed during these lax hours, why wait until finals week?

The only incident which I can think of which rivals this in its lack of ethics is hunting at a watering hold. It's easy to knock off animals if you know you're at the only spot within miles where they can water. Fortunately, such action is illegal in most states, if not on college campuses.

Some people went out of their way to accommodate students during finals week. This is especially true of Marsha Reynolds, Larry Wakefield and their staffs who kept the student center and library open extra hours for students to study.

It cast a dim light on Austin Peay for many students to take advantage of these privileges only to be fined by security for doing so.

The exact reasoning behind this unprecedented ticketing, I don't know. It might have been an overzealous new cop on the force, or Austin Peay might need the money to make up for Lamar Alexander's budget impoundments.

Either way, I think a lot of students were betrayed or trapped by this action and security needs to set a firm policy so students will know what to expect in the future.

and on weekends deplorable, especially when it violates the previous precedent.

Catching unsuspecting persons is exactly what security did. To wait until finals week when library study was especially necessary for students is even more horrendous.

For the first time in my college career, I spent every night of finals week at the library in a last

Staff enjoys Big Apple, bagels

Spring break was the PITS! Snow, rain, clouds and two weekdays off. Wow! I had a blast!

I must admit I went to New York City with The All State, but nevertheless, the break was short and the weather was horrible.

You really can't get angry at the weather because we all know the university has nothing to do with the atmospheric conditions.

You can blame someone for the long break (I hope you noticed my sarcasm). We had a Friday temperatures. I can see one good point, those who had to stay with the miserable weather had to put up with it during a short "Spring Break!"

I am, of course, not angry at anyone for the weather. I just want to let off steam for the weather.

One other thing about Florida. People who didn't go said, "All it did in Florida was rain. I'm glad I didn't go!"

I even heard this a couple of days ago, "There is this big epidemic in Florida. I think it's the measles or something."

No matter, I hope this summer lasts long and the weather is warm.

I mentioned earlier about the New York trip. I would like to tell you about our trip.

The following staff members went: Mike Lynch, Margaret Langford, Steve Harmon, Janet Goad, and Malcolm Glass. Oh, I went, too.

Our purpose was to attend a journalism convention. Many seminars were planned. Some topics included: Advanced Writing Methods, More Life to Featured Stories and Attractive Photography for Newspapers and Yearbooks.

Now, what we really did.

As soon as we hit the city, we met up with this '410' taxi driver named Chris. Chris was an independent taxi driver who drove us to our hotel.

Along the way Chris told us of his family and his taxi. Very interesting.

When we arrived at the hotel we forked over cash to Chris and dropped our bags off in our room and left to check out the town. Well, around 11:30 p.m. on a Wednesday night wasn't the usual Crazy New York you hear about.

We walked and walked, looking for anything familiar or to find something interesting.

My first order of business was to find the New York food. Yes, you got it, the Bagel!

"You fool. Is that all you care about is a bagel? This is a big city, we will have time later to eat bagels," Mike Lynch, editor-in-chief, complained.

Later, I saw Mike, at 2:00 a.m., with a dozen bagels. I didn't say a word, even though I wanted to.

We, of course, saw a Broadway play, big buildings, and rode the subways. Most of our time was spent walking around getting a flavor of the city.

FOOD! New York has great food. It may have been expensive, but it was very tasty.

Sports editor, Steve Harmon, and myself found a great pizza place a couple of blocks from the hotel. Late at night you would find us munching out on "real pizza."

Steve had a rough time talking to the guys who worked there so he just yelled. "Why don't they speak English?" Steve asked.

Out of the entire group Malcolm Glass and Margaret Langford adjusted to the city the best. They walked through the city with great confidence. Malcolm even made a friend easily on Broadway. Although, she had a strange way of "shaking hands."

New York is also known for its many stores. Janet Goad, our advertising manager, found particular interest in the shops.

I think we all agree on one thing, pardon the cliché: We love New York.

See page 10 for more on our convention trip.

off then the weekend, which wasn't planned by the university. It just happened to fall during our break.

Then we had a Monday off. Unless you didn't pre-register, you had Tuesday off.

Okay, so that was it. That was the time we had off to relax, see the dog, get some sun and find some money for tuition.

Two or three days plus a weekend is not time enough to see your dog and relax!!!

Now, for those who went to Florida, apologize right now to those who didn't go.

Those who didn't go to Florida, or other sunny shores, had to stay with overcast skies and cool

April 1 is priority deadline for aid

Students should now be in the process of applying for financial aid for the 1983-84 academic year. April 1 is the priority deadline which the Student Financial Aid Office uses in making awards for the following year.

Financial Facts by Susan Iward

One of the most common questions a student encounters in filling out the ACT Family Financial Statement is whether he should consider himself dependent or independent.

According to federal guidelines, a self-supporting student is one who, for 1982 and 1983, has not or will not receive more than $750 in assistance from his parents, live with his parents for more than six weeks (42 days), or be claimed as an exemption on the parents' U.S. income tax return.

U.S. income tax return.

If a student is married, the three criteria need be met only for 1982.

Those $750 in support includes any type of assistance, including food, clothing, transportation, etc. Even if the student pays room and board to the parents, he/she is still considered dependent for purposes of determining eligibility for the Pell Grant program.

Students who are married but recently separated and move home, even with their own children, would be considered dependent if they live with their parents more than six weeks.

A parent is defined as the natural or adoptive parent of a student. Guardians are considered parents for purposes of the application only if they are court-appointed legal guardians who support the student from their own (the guardians') resources.

Another area of concern is who should fill out the FFS if the parents are divorced, and whether or not to include a step-parent's income. If the student's parents are divorced, the student should include the income of the parent with whom he/she lived most during the last twelve months.

If the student didn't live with either parent, or lived with both parents an equal number of days, the income of the parent who provided the most support should be used.

The step-parent's income is included if the student lives with the stepparent and the parent for more than six weeks, or if the student did or will receive assistance worth more than $750 for 1982 or 1983.

James Anderson and Lori Petty prepare for the opening of She Stoops to Conquer

AP Playhouse "Stoops"

The Austin Peay Playhouse is currently in rehearsal for its third major production of the year. John Griffin is directing She Stoops to Conquer, a restoration comedy by Oliver Goldsmith.

The action takes place in the home of Squire Hardcastle and family. Two gentlemen, Marlow and Hastings, visit the country in order to meet Marlow's future bride, Kate Hardcastle.

Before reaching the Hardcastle's, they stop at an alehouse to seek lodging for the night. Hardcastle's mischievous step-son, Tony, is there and sends the two to Liberty Hall, an old inn, which is actually the Hardcastle home.

Marlow and Hastings arrive and immediately assume Mr. and Mrs.

Hardcastle are merely innkeepers. The action continues with additional and humorous cases of mistaken identity until all is naturally resolved in the end.

The roles of Marlow and Hastings are played by James Anderson and Sam Weakley. Kate Hardcastle is portrayed by Lori Petty while Tom Griffin plays Tony.

Squire Hardcastle and wife are portrayed by Eddie Powers and Jane Carpenter and LuElln Boyer plays Constance Neville, Kate's cousin.

Other cast members include Wayne Martin,

Ellis Adames, Belinda Boyd, Tommy Winters, Lori Harris, and Bobby Harper.

Production dates are April 6-9 in Austin Peay's Traphern Theatre at 8:00 p.m. For reservations and additional information call 648-7379.

Brooks takes over as housing coordinator

Students returning to Austin Peay State University last week were greeted by a new coordinator of student housing.

Walter Stuart Brooks assumed his duties Monday at Austin Peay. Formerly a staff assistant in the department of housing at the University of Tennessee-Martin, Brooks holds a bachelor's degree in secondary education, majoring in English and history, and earned his master's degree in education administration and supervision at UT-Martin in 1982.

Brooks is responsible for Austin Peay's 1,100 on-campus residents living in nine residence halls and student apartments, and also works with off-campus housing.

Brooks replaces Ken Moseley who left the university in February to accept a position in private business.

ALD cites frosh scholars

"The purpose of Alpha Lambda Delta is to recognize outstanding scholarship among students in their freshman year," said Julie DeVera, president of ALD.

Alpha Lambda Delta was founded in 1924 at the University of Illinois as an honor society for freshman women. With the creation of additional chapters, it soon became a national organization. Men were first admitted to membership in 1975.

"We provide qualified students with the opportunity to develop friendships and work with other students who have serious academic interests," said DeVera.

To be eligible for membership, students must be attending Austin Peay full time and have attained a cumulative grade point average of 3.5 or better in the first quarter of their freshman year.

Pledging and initiation will take place in the spring quarter after all qualified freshman students starting college in the winter quarter have been invited to join. Election of new officers for the group will also take place at this time.

Dr. Stephen Ryan, an English professor at Austin Peay, is the faculty advisor and also a member of Alpha Lambda Delta.

"I am proud to be a member of Alpha Lambda Delta and to have served as its president," DeVera said. "It's a really good organization and it's done a lot for me."

Exhibit opens

A Bardonia, Ky., artist will be guest exhibitor in April at Austin Peay State University's Trahern Art Gallery.

Jim Cantrell, studio potter and painter and former art professor, will exhibit his works April 4-22 at the Trahern Gallery. He will discuss his works and meet the public in two sessions April 22 at 8:30 a.m. and again at 1 p.m.

Cantrell has shown his works in shows from Massachusetts to Nebraska since 1963, including a show entitled "Faces of Kentucky: Variation II" sponsored by the Kentucky Arts Commission.

He received the Stephen Foster Drama Association Purchase Award for painting and pottery and the Kentucky Arts & Crafts Exhibition's Outstanding Artist Award.

Where have the red M&M's gone?

KNOXVILLE—Open a packet of M&M's and what do you find? Chocolate candy that won't melt in your hand in colors of orange, green, yellow, and brown.

All that could change if a University of Tennessee student's national crusade is successful. Paul Hethmon is battling the odds to bring back those now-extinct treats, red M&M's.

He is president and chairman of the board of the Society of the Restoration and Preservation of Red M&M's, a group with a growing membership on the UT-Knoxville campus.

You may not have noticed, but red M&M's disappeared in 1976, the victim of fears about cancer-causing red dyes. The Mars Co. tested various forms of safe red dyes, but didn't like the results, so red was eliminated.

That decision set a dangerous precedent, says Hethmon. The Food and Drug Administration could one day rule that orange M&M's cause cancer, or green ones. The result could be colorless candy.

But not if Hethmon can succeed. He's encouraging other M&M fans to write M&M Mars Co. (Division of Mars, Inc., Hackensack, NJ 07640), the FDA commissioner (5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857) and of course, President Reagan (the White House, 1600 Pennsylvania Ave., Washington DC 20500).

If this campaign works, Hethmon knows what's next. He'd like to see blue M&M's.

Bluegrass looks green

"Tickets" emerges as sure winner

To the average Joe, last Thursday's NCAA Mideast regional semifinal game between Arkansas and Louisville in Knoxville may have been little more than an excuse to rid himself of the wife for an evening and take in the action with the boys down at the corner pub. "Honey, I'll be down at Lefty's watching the game," millions of loyal husbands must have said going out the door.

Chances are that when Scooter McCray's tip-in with one second to play gave Louisville a hard-fought 65-63 victory against the Hogs, it was no better time than to set up another round of drinks for the boys. Maybe a few dollars exchanged hands amongst friends.

But, McCray's game-winner flashed more than just two points on the scoreboard of a friend of mine, who I'll call Sal D. Tickets. What it meant was that Louisville would meet Kentucky in the Bluegrass state championship, a game avoided for 24 years.

More importantly for Tickets, though, was the price of admission to the long-awaited Cardinal and Blue zoo in Knoxville's Stokely Center.

"When the pairings came out and I found out that Kentucky and Louisville might play, I called the (University of Tennessee) ticket office and they were sold out.

"So, I called Arkansas (a Mideast regional entrant) because I knew they didn't have a real big following," Tickets said.

His scavenging efforts uncovered 16 at $30 each. His retail sales efforts produced a net profit of "about $700-750" after the $510 original investment for the tickets and phone bills were subtracted from the estimated $1200 gross from the Kentucky and Louisville fans.

However, Tickets says that this year's Mideast regional, which is annually one of the most competitive brackets, has not lived up to all its pre-tournament hooplah—at least from his vantage point.

"Last year we sold 22 tickets at $150 or more," he compared to this season's petty gross. "But, last year Kentucky fans knew that UK only had to get

Claverie leads Peay netters

by Steve Harmon
Sports Editor

Austin Peay's No. 1 tennis player, Carlos Claverie, is making a name for himself on the United States collegiate circuit.

The 20-year-old Caracas, Venezuela native ran his singles record to 9-3 with two wins in three outings during the Governors recent play in the Crimson Tide Classic at Tuscaloosa, Ala.

Claverie, who was unseeded in the tournament, tripped up No. 4 seed Stefan Olsson of Alabama, 6-3, 3-6, 6-1 in the opening round before gaining the finals of the singles competition with a 6-2, 3-6, 7-5 win against No. 2 seed Mike Messing of Ohio State.

Claverie fell to No. 1 seed John McLean of Florida State, 6-3, 6-4 in the championship match as the Governors finished fifth in team standings in the prestigious nine-team field. Claverie had defeated McLean earlier in the week during a dual match against the Seminoles.

Billy Henry, the Governors head coach, is pleased with the progress of his top player. "He's playing up to his potential. He had some great wins on the spring trip," Henry said.

Although the Gove team mark stands at a lackluster 3-6, Peay has faced some of the best teams in the South, Henry added. APSU lost to Florida (8-1), Florida State (7-2) and Auburn (5-4) prior to the Alabama tournament.

"For us to have a player in the finals of the Tide Classic speaks well of Austin Peay," Henry said.

APSU begins its quest for an Ohio Valley Conference championship this weekend as the Goves travel to Murfreesboro for two seeding matches for the upcoming OVC tournament to be hosted by Austin Peay in April.

The Goves play Eastern Kentucky Friday and Youngstown State Saturday.

"The seeding matches are important in terms of the conference and what we expect to do," Henry previewed. "We haven't seen Eastern or Youngstown yet, but we'll be anxious to go."

IM tennis meets tonight

Intramural tennis, an event unprecedented at Austin Peay, is set to begin spring quarter with a team captain's meeting tonight at 6 p.m. in room 107 of the IM complex.

The April 4-8 tournament will consist of divisions for men, women and mixed doubles play.

Rosters are available for the Pabst Blue Ribbon Softball Tournament April 14-16 to be held on the Killebrew Field. A captain's meeting is scheduled April 12 at 6 p.m. in room 107 of the IM complex to determine the tournament pairing for the second annual event.

T-shirts are to be given to all participants in both the men's and women's divisions. Most Valuable Player awards and individual awards will be given to members of the winning team in each division.

Play is limited to 12 teams in the men's league and eight teams in the women's division. The Pikes are the defending champions in the men's division.

Lady Gov netters complete spring trip unscathed

by Steve Harmon
Sports Editor

Plenty of game experience may have been just what the doctor ordered for Austin Peay's women's tennis team as the Lady Govs completed their recent spring trip to Florida with an unblemished 2-0 record in official matches. Peay's season mark stands at 2-1.

But, if the doctor prescribed rest this week for Coach Cheryl Holt's netters, they won't be listening. Following Monday's match at Belmont College in Nashville, the Lady Govs were scheduled to play UT-Chattanooga on the road tomorrow.

"Right now we're tired," Holt said. "We've had lots of play-lots of matches. We're getting stronger."

APSU defeated St. Leo College by a 6-3 count Mar. 18. T.J. Kleynhans, Cynthia McGuffee, Sandy Cross, Miriam Brown and Linda Hylton won singles matches for the Lady Govs while the Hylton-McGuffee team won a doubles match for APSU.

Following a few days of exhibition matches and practicing, the Lady Govs blanked Eckerd College, 9-0, Mar. 22. Kleynhans, McGuffee, Elana Callis, Diane Koch, Brown and Hylton won singles matches. The teams of Kleynhans-Cross, Callis Koch and Brown-McGuffee notched doubles victories for Peay. All of the matches were won in straight sets.

"We've picked up on our confidence," assistant coach Debbie Southern noted.
