SEEMS LIKE OLD TIMES—Alumni visiting the Austin Peay campus this week for Homecoming may have a lapse of deja vu. Harned Hall's exterior has been restored and appears as it did when it served the university years ago. Interior renovations are needed to complete restoration and allow the building to be used once again.

Parade marches down new route

Final plans are being made for Austin Peay State University's annual Homecoming parade, slated to begin at 9:30 a.m., Saturday, Oct. 20.

The route has been altered from last year. The parade will commence on Drane Street and conclude on Eighth Street. From Drane, it will turn right on College Street, left onto Second Street, and left again at Franklin Street. A short march along Sixth Street will bring participants back to College Street and then to Eighth.

Float and car judges are Bobby and Ann Byrd, Terry and Janell Byrd and Lori Martin. An alumnus of Austin Peay, Bobby Byrd is retired superintendent of schools from Flat Rock, Mich. Ann Byrd is a retired school teacher. Terry Byrd, who earned both his bachelor's and master's degrees from Austin Peay, is a retired school principal from Flat Rock, Mich. Janell Byrd, an APSU alumna, is a teacher with the Flat Rock School System. The men are brothers from Stewart County.

Lori Martin, also an alumna of Austin Peay, is a graduate assistant in the department of languages and literature.

The theme for the parade is "The Magic Is Back!"

Homecoming reception set for center

As part of Homecoming '90, Austin Peay State University alumni, students, staff, faculty and friends are invited to a reception in the new African-American Center.

The reception will be held immediately following the Homecoming game on Saturday, Oct. 20, in Clement 101. A formal open house to dedicate the center will be held at a later date.

Regarding the reception, Barbara Jackson, director of minority affairs, said, "This reception is a way to have a special event that reflects the university's interest in the African-American population and also to let everyone know that the Center is now a reality."

According to Ms. Jackson, the purpose of the African-American Cultural Center is to promote an appreciation and understanding of the African-American culture. She said, "It has both an educational and academic mission."

Rotary Club offers scholarship program

The Clarksville Noon Rotary Club has established a $100,000 scholarship endowment at Austin Peay State University, with first scholarships to be awarded during the Fall 1991 semester.

Scholarship endowment funds have come from proceeds from the Rotary Club auction.

APSU President Oscar C. Page said, "The generous scholarship endowment that has been established by the Noon Rotary Club is the single largest gift ever made to our scholarship program, other than through bequests. Scholarship support from the private sector is critical to the success of the programs at Austin Peay."

According to Gene Washer, president of the Noon Rotary Club, at the end of a four-year period, the club will be awarding seven scholarships yearly - two President's Emerging Leaders Program scholarships and five Rotary scholarships, with one designated for sports and two for rising juniors and seniors.

Washer said, "The Rotary Club currently has seven students on scholarship. We have awarded scholarships during the past several years worth in excess of $100,000. The board felt the new endowment approach would make sure that our club has Rotary scholarships forever despite what might happen to the auction or the economy. We have had a good scholarship program in the past, but this will give us an even stronger program." Washer said that he hopes future Rotary boards increase the endowment.

He said, "The President's Emerging Leaders Program is in tune with what Rotary is all about - quality community leadership."

Page said, "The establishment of endowed scholarships creates a level of stability for the President's Emerging Leaders Program that is important to its long-term success. We are preparing students as leaders for this community, the state of Tennessee and southern Kentucky. We see this as an important part of our mission. This endowment will assure us of appropriate support to continue this important effort."

"The faculty, students and administration of Austin Peay are appreciative of the fact that the Rotary Club recognizes the need for scholarships and is willing to make a commitment to help us create endowed scholarships," Page said.

Students receiving the President's Emerging Leaders Program scholarships funded by Rotary must be from Montgomery County and must meet selection criteria including a requirement for a 3.0 GPA and must have exhibited significant participation in high school and community activities.

Students receiving other Rotary scholarships must be a graduate of a Montgomery County high school and have a "B" average in high school or a 2.75 GPA for rising juniors and seniors.

Crime Scene

By JEANA MCCULLOUGH
staff writer

Last week's crimes ranged from vandalism and theft to aggravated burglary, carrying a weapon on school property and an assault on a local pizza delivery man.

• Two students have been referred to Montgomery County General Sessions Court and may face disciplinary charges on campus for criminal trespass.

According to Phil Weast, dean of student affairs, Greg Poynter, 310 Killebrew Hall, and Timothy Lewis, 205 Rawlins Hall, were arrested and face a mandatory court date 9 a.m. tomorrow.

The two students are accused of entering Kelly Griffith's dorm room twice during the early morning hours of Oct. 8.

In an offense report filed by Public Safety Officer James K. Tarpein, Griffith said she was awakened about 1 a.m. to see two men, one black and one white, standing in her Cross Hall room.

Griffith, who reported the incident around 4 p.m., said the men disappeared after she told them to leave.

At approximately 2 a.m., she said the black male returned.

Tarpein said he found her window unlocked.

No other information was available at press time.

• A student apparently upset over a late pizza delivery assaulted Steven E. Fisher, a driver for Domino's Pizza, 1495 Madison St., last Wednesday.

Manager Jerry Bailey told Public Safety Officer John Hahn that Dwayne Thomas Moore, 310 Killebrew, became irate when Fisher delivered the pizza at 12:20 a.m.

He said Moore grabbed Fisher by the collar of his shirt and ordered him to return more change than he had coming to him.

Moore gave Fisher a $10 bill for a $5.40 pizza and demanded $8 in return. Fisher complied.

Bailey said Moore called the restaurant before the delivery to find out the whereabouts of his pizza. He told him then he would not receive a $3 refund, which is given to customers if their pizza is more than 30 minutes late, because it was an Austin Peay - only special.

Fisher told Hahn he would press charges.

• A non-student, who asked Public Safety to unlock his car, was arrested and charged with carrying a weapon on school property Oct. 6.

Robert N. Spicer, Jr., address not available, was scheduled to appear in Montgomery County General Sessions Court last Thursday.

According to an offense report filed by Public Safety Sgt. Ronald Bailey, Spicer asked him and Officer Jon Hahn to unlock his 1990 Chevrolet Lumina parked in the armory lot around 3:40 p.m.

Bailey said he observed part of a pistol hidden under the floormat when he opened the door.

Spicer, 41, told the officers that he had purchased the loaded .25 automatic pistol for his wife's protection as she drove to work at night.

Because possession of a weapon on campus is a felony, Spicer was taken into custody and the gun was confiscated.

Spicer faces a maximum of five years in prison and a $50,000 fine.

Republican Club plans meeting

The Collegiate Republican Club will meet on Wednesday, Oct. 17, at 3:30 p.m. in the Archwood conference room. All students interested in joining the club are encouraged to attend.

GPA strategies for improvement

A workshop entitled "When Your GPA is Spelled O-U-T" will be held Monday, Oct. 22 from 3:30 - 4:30 p.m. in room 285 of the Dunn Center. It will cover strategies for staying out of academic trouble and provide aid to those already in academic trouble.

NAA announces event schedule

The NAA has planned several events for its members. On Wednesday, Oct. 17, the student chapter will meet at 1 p.m. A program from Certified Managerial Accounting field will follow the meeting. On Thursday, Oct. 18, the student chapter will meet at 7:15 a.m. The activities committee will sponsor a float during Homecoming. Anybody interested in helping needs to attend one of the meetings for more information.

Seminar's focus: older students

A workshop entitled "The Non-Traditional Student: What APSU Has To Offer" will be held Monday, Oct. 29 from 3:30-4:30 p.m. in Room 285 of the Dunn Center. It describes the programs and activities APSU offers for the older student.

Workshop offers Lotus program

Austin Peay State University, through the College of Business, will offer computer workshops for users of Lotus.

The DOS Pre-Lotus 1-2-3 Workshop is designed for people with no experience with the IBM PC or compatible machines. Its primary purpose is to familiarize people with the basic operations of the microcomputer before covering of the Lotus 1-2-3 software. The workshop will be held from 6 - 9 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 13, in Kimbrough 214. The workshop costs $25.

A hands-on course, titled "Business Applications of Lotus 1-2-3," is designed to provide the basic concepts for preparing and presenting spreadsheet instructions. These concepts will be illustrated through the use of business applications. The course will be taught Nov. 15, 20, 27 and 29 from 6 - 9 p.m. in Kimbrough 214. Cost of this course is $125.

Dr. Joyce Kilpatrick, APSU professor of accounting, will teach the course. She teaches computer courses at Austin Peay and is a certified public accountant and certified internal auditor.

Participation is limited and is on a first-come, first-served basis. Deadline for registration is Nov. 5. All fees are payable in advance.

For more information, telephone Dr. Rex Galloway, dean of the College of Business, at 648-7674.

Workshop focus on self-esteem

A workshop entitled "Self-Esteem: How Much Are You Worth?" will be held Thursday, Oct. 25 from 3:30-4:30 p.m. in Room 285 of the Dunn Center. It will stress the importance of a good self-concept on personal and academic success. It will focus on strategies that will assist students in recognizing and developing a healthy self-esteem.

Men's basketball tryouts set

The men's basketball team will hold try-outs Wednesday, Oct. 17 and Thursday, Oct. 18, at 6:30 p.m. in the Dunn Center. Anyone who wants to try out must see Coach Collins by Wednesday morning. He can be reached at 648-7706. The team is also looking for managers, male or female. Those interested should contact Todd Mayes at 648-7615.

House dedication for fraternity

Austin Peay State University's chapter of Sigma Chi men's social fraternity will dedicate their newly-purchased house on Marion Street in a formal ceremony at 11:30 a.m., Saturday, Oct. 20.

The brothers invite everyone both in the campus and Clarksville communities to attend the ceremony.

• Two rings were taken from a plastic basket on top of Jennifer Lynn Brown's desk inside her room at 204 Cross Hall. Brown reported to Officer J.E. Scott that the rings, valued at $175, disappeared some time between 11:30 p.m. Oct. 7 and early Oct. 8.

According to the offense report, an unsuccessful search of the room was conducted. There was no sign of forced entry.

• A 1986 Pontiac Firebird was vandalized outside Rawlins Hall some time between 9 p.m. Oct. 9 and 1 p.m. Oct. 10.

The driver's side windshield wiper of the gray sports car, owned by Jamie Master, 205 Rawlins Hall, was bent. Masters also found scratches on the driver's door and left rear quarter panel.

The amount of damage had not been determined.

Staying healthy prevents colds

By MISSY CARROLL
assistant news editor

Sniff. Sniff. Ah-choo!

These sounds can be heard just about anywhere on campus now. The lower temperatures recently are causing many students to be catching colds.

During colder weather, people tend to be in enclosed buildings more. This provides an environment for spreading germs from person to person.

Congestion, drainage, sore throat and a low fever are the common symptoms. The cold usually lasts for five to seven days. More severe symptoms should be checked by a physician.

"We see a lot of people with just the general sniffles. We've seen a lot of it already - sore throats and sniffles and such," said Ken Jackson, director of Student Health Services.

"There are so many things that a person can do. We have over-the-counter medications available here (at Student Health Services).

"Just a decongestant, antihistamine, some cough medicine, Tylenol or Advil, plenty of time and rest is all you can do," Jackson said.

Nasal congestion often can be combated with steam or hot drinks. With fevers and chills, dehydration can occur. Drink lots of water and liquids to avoid this problem. Aspirin or aspirin substitutes may reduce pain or fever. Using a humidifier, steam or warm salt-water gargles or sucking hard candies or throat lozenges may soothe sore throats. "The better physical condition you're in when you catch (a cold), then, of course, the less severe it should be," said Jackson.

"Mega doses of Vitamin C don't really work," he added. A balanced diet should provide the needed vitamins. Balanced diets, plenty of rest and exercise are preventive measures that will lessen the effects of the common cold, he said.

"...stress, poor eating habits, little or no sleep...by the time flu season gets here our bodies are ready for it."

- Ken Jackson

The worst weather is yet to come. The end of the semester usually is the prime cold and flu season.

"This is also when our immune system is at its worst. When, given a full semester of stress, poor heating habits, little or no sleep, not to mention what other substances we may be consuming, by the time flu season gets here, our bodies are ready for it," warns Jackson.

Additional information about colds and flus is available in Student Health Services. The staff will be happy to provide this information and to answer any questions that students may have concerning their health.

"Celebration of the Arts" caters to the elite

Last week Austin Peay tried to kill two birds with one stone.

A fund-raising event for scholarships and the grand opening of the new music and mass communications building were thrown together and called the "Celebration of the Arts" gala.

Sounds pretty clever -- especially since the event raised $16,000 for AP scholarships in the arts. It is always nice to see the people of Clarksville and the campus community work together for the betterment of the university.

In fact, Austin Peay needs Clarksville's support. It is vital to the growth of this school, which is located in Tennessee's fifth largest city.

The music department prepared and delivered an evening of fine entertainment and people donated time and money. It seems everyone worked very hard to ensure this event's success.

When all the cards are stacked up, it's hard to find fault with such a "gala" event. But we do see a dark -- or maybe just a gray -- side to this evening.

The fund-raising gala was a terrific way to get needed scholarship funds, but a lousy way to open a building that will serve the entire campus.

In other words, tickets were appropriately priced for an elite fund-raising event, but not for a grand opening of an academic building which involves two major departments on this campus.

Many students felt left out or deprived. The music department's fabulous program and the opening of the building were of interest to many who could not afford the ticket price.

Maybe that's just tough luck, but we believe students should have been given more of an opportunity to attend an opening celebration or see some or all of the music program.

A ribbon-cutting event on the front steps with Dr. Page and several music groups would have encouraged involvement and spirit.

It is all over and done with and we believe that the stone may have killed two birds -- but one suffered long before the hour of death.

We hope administrators and committees will keep these ideas in mind in the future and not abandon a majority of their faithful supporters -- the students.

Growing up shouldn't be rushed, maturity will come in time

By SHERRI ADCOCK
staff writer

When I was 15, I couldn't wait to grow up. I was in love and I wanted to get married and growing up meant getting married. When I was 18, I was still in love and wanted to get married. When I was 19, my boyfriend and I broke up. I didn't get married.

That threw me in a tailspin for a while as I tried to figure where to go from there. Things change and they change fast. For almost four years, I was forever asserting my independence and maturity. When I was 16, I insisted I could have gotten married at 16 and handled it. I must have regressed between then and now because I sure couldn't handle it now.

In retrospect, I'm glad I didn't get married. For one reason, I'm selfish. I don't know whether that will change as I mature or not but it is a serious character flaw when it comes to my relationships. And the biggest reason I'm glad I didn't get married is that I still hadn't grown up enough yet. Maybe that is the same reason I'm selfish.

Before 19, I was not on my own, making my own money and taking care of myself, so I had no idea what it was like to be responsible. I thought what little responsibility I did have qualified me to be a competent wife.

Since 19, I've learned a lot. I've learned to do a lot of things for myself that my ex-boyfriend used to take care of for me, which incidentally was just about everything. But maturity has its price.

I don't know why I was in such a hurry to grow up. Growing old frightens me now. It means taking care of myself and maybe my own family someday. It means mom and dad will not always be there to take care of me and handle the problems that I can't.

Being independent now is not always such a picnic. It hurts to write that check for rent every month, that electric bill, etc. It especially hurts when the phone bill comes -- because of my talkative nature.

Even though I essentially pay my own way through school, I'm forever calling my parents and hinting for grocery or gas money -- something I would not have done as a "mature" 16-year-old. I have no shame now. I've done away with my facade. My parents know me.

Growing up also means other things besides bills and career. Growing up means a few physical changes here and there. Granted I'm only 20, but I think I've already begun to experience some of those demons of old age. Since I've been in college, about 15 pounds have mysteriously hopped onto me from out of nowhere.

In high school, when I'd gain weight, I'd just skip a couple of meals and lose it in a few days. Not so at 20. I've tried Slimfast, starvation, carrots and everything just short of exercise, (I simply refuse to do that). And absolutely no weight loss. If this is how it is at 20, I guess I can plan on only one meager meal a day at 40 and no in-between snacks. And what about those few gray hairs I see carefully hiding out? I guess those came from being yearbook editor.

I guess what I'm saying in all of this meandering is what many people who have gone before me have said. "Don't wish your life away."

Well, here is another wish. I wish I hadn't spent almost four years of my life working toward a single goal that I never achieved. I can't say that those four years were wasted because I enjoyed them. But a lot of opportunities and experiences passed me up during four of "the best years of my life." Now, I'm trying to make up for what I lost, trying to act like a grown up.

I don't know why it takes getting older to admit your immaturity, but I admit it. When I was 16, I fixed my hair and makeup like a 22-year-old. I did my best to talk and act like one. I wanted so much to be grown up and be treated as one. Now I just want to be my age. No younger, no older.

I constantly hear people say, "I can't wait until I'm out of school" and "I can't wait until I'm married." I think few people stop to think about the implications of what they are saying.

Time passes quickly enough. Every year seems to go by quicker and quicker.

I have no plans to grow up anytime soon. I've not got my future planned out -- I prefer to hang with it and see what happens tomorrow.

You can lose a lot of time nostalgically looking back, but you can also lose a lot constantly looking forward.

Thank goodness, I have no firm future plans for anything now. I'm not wishing for college to be over like I did high school. I'm comfortable where I am now. I'm not excited about getting married, and I don't want to know yet how having a child will further complicate my weight problems.

All these things are part of growing up. Lucky for me, I still have a few more years before I'm a true grown-up.

Question:
Do you think APSU Homecoming offers something for everyone?

Seriously, being new on campus, yes this campus offers enough for everybody compared to other campuses.

Carlos Clement, II

To be honest, no, otherwise more people would go to it. It's not exciting for some people.

Denver Mason

It should, but it's up to the student to get involved.

New judge may begin shifting Supreme Court toward right

By BRYAN LINK
staff writer

The first Monday of this month signaled the start of the new session of the U.S. Supreme Court, and around the country it has given rise to fearful anticipation from some and hopeful excitement from others. The appointment of David Souter to the U.S. Supreme Court has triggered these feelings because his presence gives conservative justices a 5-4 majority over liberal justices. Over the past 30 years, liberal justices have done their best to mangle the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, supposedly in an attempt to capture the spirit of the law intended in the actual text.

The results have been devastating: increased federal regulation at the hands of state power, limits on police methods of fighting crime and the importance of group rights instead of individual rights. Mr. Souter's appointment could give rise to a Supreme Court movement in an opposing direction, and the liberal ideas of William Brennan and Earl Warren could be thrown out the window.

Ever since William Rehnquist took over as Chief Justice, the court has been moving in a more conservative direction, although very slowly. With the addition of Mr. Souter to the court, it is very possible that the opinions of the court could make a sharp turn "right." Hopefully this will happen, and the court can undo the dirty deeds of the past. More specifically, it is almost certain that the court will return to the police some of the power that has been taken away from it. For example, the testimony of illegally arrested suspects can still be used by police, and, although this didn't directly overturn the "Miranda" ruling, the use of illegally obtained evidence set a promising precedent in that direction.

Also, the curbing of the liberal idea of group rights over individual rights has taken place under the Rehnquist Court. During his tenure as Chief Justice, the court has done away with a number of methods of suing for discriminatory practices. This hopefully indicates the future downfall of affirmative action programs and racial quotas (which are inherently unconstitutional).

As we wait and see just exactly what Mr. Souter is going to do, everyone, including myself, is wondering if Mr. Souter is truly a man committed to the ideas of judicial restraint and strict interpretation of the Constitution, or if he is really a liberal-in-the-making. Crucial topics such as abortion, racial quotas, flag burning, etc. must be judicially addressed, and in David Souter I see the opportunity for that to happen.

Letters to the editor

To Members and Students of APSU:

We, the soldiers of B 326th Medical BN, who are presently stationed in Saudi Arabia, would like to exchange letters between ourselves and students of Austin Peay. As of October 1990, we have been over here about 32 days. The time over here goes very slow. Not much action is going on right now, just a lot of waiting and more waiting. At night, we think back of all the things we used to take for granted, such as going to a fast food restaurant or going to the movies or just jumping in your car and going anywhere. Being over here, we get news at least five days later, then it is not news anymore, but it's not as bad as it could be. We're currently living in tents. It's different I must say -- we don't have to worry about rain. It is starting to get a little cool at night, but that's something that we welcome very much. Well, I'll stop here before I start to bore you. If anyone would like to exchange letters with someone in our unit they can contact us at this address:

CPSC ready to "Walk-for-Life"

By KRIS PHILLIPS
executive editor

The Clarksville Pregnancy Support Center (CPSC) is holding its main fundraiser to raise the majority of its finances for the year.

"Walk-for-Life" will begin at 9 a.m. at the Montgomery County Court House and will entail a 5-mile walk that will culminate at the Memorial Drive Nazarene Church.

The Center is in desperate need of the communities support. This means you.

By pledging some money to a walker who is able to walk on Saturday, you will have done your part to help the center.

When you pledge, you are helping the center continue to give pregnancy tests, medical referrals, legal referral, post-abortion counseling, confidential counseling, clothing and furnishings and social services. All of the services are free.

CPSC offers an alternative for young women in need. It's a chance to have someone help them.

If you would like to walk, or think you would be interested in helping the center by volunteering your services in the future, don't hesitate. Call 645-2273.

Brothers lose mentor

DANIEL MURPH
sports editor

A great man passed away last week.

Vaughn Brothers was one of the warmest, most interesting men I have ever had the pleasure of meeting.

His two sons, Jeff and Jody, have been good friends of mine for some time. Jody played wide receiver for Austin Peay until a neck injury ended his career, and now he helps the team in other capacities. Jeff is a redshirt freshman quarterback at Vanderbilt.

Mr. Brothers loved football, civil war memorabilia, collecting guns, and country music. But most of all, he loved his sons.

Mr. Brothers, who once played baseball for the Govs, would often travel with Vanderbilt to a game, then drive to Clarksville that same day to see Austin Peay play.

I remember him even coming to the Red Barn to watch Jody's intramural basketball team play.

Hundreds of mourners attended the funeral last Thursday. What struck me was the number of young men at the service whose lives he had touched. These were friends of Jeff and Jody to whom Mr. Brothers treated like sons, and boys who he had treated as men.

One Austin Peay football player told me that he had first met Mr. Brothers after practice one day. He said the two of them talked for about half an hour, and that already he felt like he had known him all his life. That is how warm and sincere this man was.

I feel terrible for Jeff and Jody, but I know how greatly their lives have benefited from having had Mr. Brothers for a dad.

Last week, Jeff was thrust into the No. 2 quarterback role for Vandy after Marcus Wilson was injured in the previous game. Jeff elected to travel with the team to Auburn despite the death of his father, and said that his dad would have wanted him to go.

In a recent interview, Jeff said that there was never anything a coach had told him that he had not already heard from his father.

When starter Mike Healey went down early against Auburn, Jeff took the field to play his first game in a Vanderbilt uniform...and play he did! He showed remarkable poise and confidence in the pocket and went on to be named the Exxon Player of the Game.

It's common for players to write words of motivation on the tape around their wrists before a game. Last Saturday, Jeff had one word on his wrist tape... "dad".

No, Jeff's number one fan might not have been up in the stands Saturday to see him play his first college game.

But, rest assured he was watching as proud as a father could be.

MAKING THE CALL—Head Coach John Palermo offers words of advice to Randy Murphree and Jason Jackson on the sideline.

Add Morehead to list of defeats

By DANIEL MURPH
sports writer

Morehead State stomped Austin Peay Saturday at Jayne Stadium by the score of 24-7 handing the Governor's their 18th consecutive loss.

The Govs' offense earned only eight first downs, four of which were a result of Morehead penalties, and was forced to punt 10 times. Only two passes were completed for 11 yards and only 57 yards were accumulated on the ground. To make matters worse, Austin Peay was flagged 10 times for a total loss of 97 yards.

Morehead's quarterback Chris Swartz completed 22 of 34 passes for 313 yards and three touchdowns, putting the Eagles on top 18-0 at halftime.

Morehead's first score came on their second drive of the game, when Swartz hit wide receiver Anthony White for a 34-yard diving touchdown catch. The PAT kick was blocked.

Three drives later, the Govs' defense fell apart. The Eagles had a third and 34 situation at midfield and completed a shovel pass for 20-yards to tailback Jerome Williams. Then, on 4th-and-14, Swartz hit wide receiver David Pingue across the middle for a 30-yard scoring play.

Two drives later, Morehead struck again. Starting at his own 46-yard line, Swartz completed passes of 21 and 13 yards to tight end Brandon Ford.

Then, Swartz capped off the drive with a 20-yard touchdown strike to Jerome Williams.

The Eagles held their ground in the second half. Austin Peay was forced to punt on their first possession and Morehead scored again after just two plays from scrimmage.

Swartz hit Pingue for 44-yards to the Govs' 20 and Williams took a simple delay right up the middle on the next snap. Morehead led 25-0.

With the Gov's offense unable to move the ball, and Austin Peay's defense unable to stay off the field, the Eagles kicked three consecutive Craig Bere field goals to boost their lead 34-0.

Then, lo and behold, Austin Peay got a break.

The Eagles' freshman quarterback Jeremy Holbrook fumbled and Govs' nose guard Jeff Crutchfield recovered the ball at the Morehead 11.

Three plays later, Govs' freshman Sammy Hillman busted in from the 1. Eric Gregory, Austin Peay's third quarterback used in the game, had the only two pass completions in 13 APSU attempts, for only 11 yards.

Austin Peay's quarterbacks were sacked six times for a total loss of 52 yards.

Derwin Wright lead the Govs' sputtering attack with 37 yards on seven carries.

On the other side of the ball, freshman inside linebacker Jeff Stec led Austin Peay's defense with nine tackles. Freshman outside linebacker Charles Woods was close behind with eight tackles.

Next week, the Govs return home to play rival Middle Tennessee. If you haven't heard, MT beat Austin Peay's first opponent, UT-Martin, 65-17, this past weekend.

Kick off is 1:30 p.m. at Municipal Stadium.

Lady Govs finish second at Murray

By KRIS PHILLIPS
executive editor

The Austin Peay Lady Govs' cross country team took second place at Murray State last weekend.

"We had a good weekend again," Forde said. "The weather was fine and we conquered a course that kicked our tails earlier this year."

Julie Dallman led the women, producing her best time ever on a 3.1-mile course. Her 19:43 was good enough for third place overall.

The rest of the women's team stayed bunched together, finishing 16-19 individually. This has the second-year coach searching for one of those women to break from the pack.

"I hope one of them takes the initiative to separate from the bunch," Forde said. "All were close to each other's time. Forty-five seconds at the least separated those four individuals."

Leading the foursome was Julie Sykes (16th place, 21:42). She was followed by Shelia Stennis (21:58), Joyce Marshall (22:14) and Deena Gas-

Volleyball team upsets defending OVC champs

By JULEE STONE
guest writer

The Lady Govs are coming off a week that saw them split four matches. APSU upset defending OVC tourney champ Murray State and then beat Tennessee-Martin the next night. However, they couldn't carry over that momentum into the weekend.

APSU lost in three games to Eastern Kentucky before falling in five games to Morehead State. That left the Lady Govs at 2-2 in the OVC, 9-10 overall entering the week.

In the laborious week, Holt saw strong performances from several key members.

"(Junior) Patty Kidd has come off the bench and has really executed well," Holt said. "Patty is a very consistent player and this was seen in her passing and blocking capabilities."

"Bobbi (Steiff) has also done a good job coming off the bench. She blocks well and she has had key serves at crucial points during the matches."

Holt, however, has been especially pleased with the work of her two setters—Amy Koontz and Stephanie Gerradi, who was forced to play exclusively when a thumb injury sidelined Koontz midway through the Murray State match and for the entire Tennessee-Martin match.

"Even though they are our setters, these two have played well on defense and have done a great job of setting the ball to our hitters," Holt said.

"Stephanie has done a tremendous job coming in as a freshman and making the adjustments well. Amy continually does a superb job of getting into position to allow us the opportunity to stay in control of the game and set up good shots for the attack-hitters."

Holt is hopeful the Lady Govs mid-season improvement will continue into the Tennessee Tech match.

"Good passing, accurate serving and fundamental execution are key elements that will help enable us to win some of our upcoming matches—especially with OVC rivals such as Middle (Tennessee) and (Tennessee) Tech," said Holt.

Earlier in the week, the Lady Govs were scheduled to travel to Murfreesboro to face Middle Tennessee.

The volleyball team, hoping to improve its Ohio Valley Conference standings, will play host to rival Tennessee Tech, 7 p.m., Friday in the Dunn Center/Dave Aaron Arena.

"Tennessee Tech is probably itchin' for a win as they've played close matches against Morehead, Murray, and Eastern Kentucky," said APSU Coach Cheryl Holt. "There will be a high level of competition and (Tennessee) Tech will be pumped up ready to win."

"There will be a high level of competition..."

"We have always been big rivals and it's generally come down between the two schools as to who will finish in the top four or the bottom four. Everyone that I've talked to says that Tech is a solid team and is one of the best in the conference this year...they just seem to keep coming up with the short end of the stick."

Holt believes defense will key the Lady Govs' chances to win.

"The key to winning this match will be to counterattack against their quick offense," Holt said. "Tech usually runs a fast offense that throws the defense off and leaves their opponents unsettled."

Leading the way again for the men was Dennis Santiago, who ended a respectable seventh place. Forde said he was pleased with the senior's performance in that it was his best Murray course time in three seasons.

"The competition was better, and running better doesn't mean finishing in the top five," Forde said. "There was good competition from Bradley, Memphis State and Belmont."

Both teams will have light training sessions in the coming two weeks. Forde believes his teams should fine tune their skills before the conference championships.

"We're going to be tapering off somewhat to get prepared better for the conference," Forde said. "(The training) sessions will be short but the intensity will be up there quite a bit more."

The reason for this is Forde has set four goals to accomplish in preparing for the OVC championships.

"We have to stay sharp, instill confidence, relax and focus on what we want to do in the conference," he said.

Coach Elvis Forde basically has offered his team a challenge this Saturday in their final regular-season meet at Vanderbilt.

"They have a chance to prove if they really want to compete in the conference championships," Forde said.

This will be the final tune up for both teams before the Oct. 27 Ohio Valley Conference championships in Richmond, Ky. Forde believes the Vanderbilt competition will be a chance for his runners to work on different aspects of their running, without constant pressure from him.

"It's their race of the season," he said. "I'm not really keen on how they do. I'm going to take them and will be there if they need me."

For the men, who are coming off a sixth-place showing at the Murray State Racer Invitational last Saturday, it will offer a different type of challenge.

"Vanderbilt offers a chance to get in a fast race," Forde said. "It is different because the men only run four miles."

The men are used to running a five-mile course. Meanwhile, The women will run their usual 3.1 miles in Nashville.

Saturday's race will culminate a regular season that has produced two significantly improved squads.

APSULutes put it all together for Cabaret Night

By JEFF WHITE
features editor

The musical highlight of Homecoming week is the annual performance of the APSULute Singers during Cabaret Night, and this year's group is showing signs of even more variety than usual for a wide appeal.

This week is an especially busy time for the members of the group, with nightly rehearsals to polish their act for what promises to be an exciting performance.

"It's all exciting," second-year member Marla Crow said. "A lot of the program is popular music that is on the charts right now."

The group will be sporting a new look this year, with several first-year members, a new auditorium, more costume changes than before and a new director.

The APSULute Singers are now under the direction of Kenneth Lee.

"He is a very talented and patient man," returning tenor Kenneth Grace said. "He is very well-rounded."

"We have a new director and a whole new group," Crow said. "I like the music and the choreography a lot better this year. We've got some good dancers in the group this year with Deborah (Robinson) and Catherine (Crockett).

Crow added she believes the show could be sacrificing the usual personal touch of interacting with the crowd for the improved sound of the new concert hall. Cabaret has traditionally been held in the ballroom of the University Center in the past.

In addition to the tight harmony sounds of the nine-member ensemble, the night offers some individual spotlight time with several solo numbers.

The group has been gearing up for the big weekend with several performances under their collective belt since the beginning of the semester.

"We've done a lot of stuff this year," Crow said. "We're working with the United Way this year, helping them to raise one million dollars. We're doing a radio broadcast with them."

Leigh Averitt

APSULute SINGERS—Performing in the annual "Cabaret Night" will be the APSULute Singers. Members include (left to right) Jayson Chitwood; Catherine Crockett (seated); (standing) Melisa McCoy; Kenneth Grace; Deborah Robinson; Jerry Costa; Bill Schult; Marla Crow; and Jonathan Riggs.

The group's final performance of the year, the annual Candlelight Ball fundraiser, promises to be exciting for the singers. The event is scheduled to be held on the General Jackson Showboat this year.

The group is backed by the Austin Peay Jazz Combo, under the direction of David Steinquest.

Choreography is by Cindy Bedwell, of the Clarksville Dance Studio.

Tickets for the event are $5 for non-students and $3 for students and are available in advance at the Music Ticket Office in the music/mass communication building Monday through Friday from 2-6 p.m. All seats are reserved. Tickets will also be available at the performance. For reservations and/or information, call the ticket office at 648-7001.

Fraternities, sororities plan events for Homecoming week

By GARLAN SMITH
assistant features editor

During this week many of the fraternities and sororities will be participating in the 1990 Homecoming festivities. From barbeques to alumni parties, each organization has something "magic" planned for the upcoming weekend.

Tonight the Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity will be sponsoring a pre-Homecoming party at Texas East. A cookout with the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity is planned for Thursday from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m.. Not only will they be sponsoring two teams of mules in the parade, they will also be having an alumni dinner and party on Saturday night.

This Homecoming will mark a special event for the brothers of the Sigma Chi fraternity. At 11:30a.m. on Saturday the new fraternity house on Marion street will be dedicated. Also the fraternity will be co-sponsoring a float with the Alpha Delta Pi sorority and a riverboat party Saturday night at 9 p.m..

Alpha Phi Alpha's Homecoming festivities will begin on Friday night with a party at the 911 club. After the game there will be a banquet for all fraternity members, dates and parents. Later that night there will be a Step Show in the Clement auditorium.

On Saturday the Sigma Nu fraternity will be sponsoring a float in the Homecoming parade. That afternoon a barbeque will be held and later that night an alumni dinner.

From a Founder's Day celebration to Clarksville Museum. An alumni dance will be held that night at the officer's club in Ft. Campbell.

Besides the barbeque with the Alpha Gamma Rhos, the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity will be sponsoring an alumni/active mixer Friday night at 8 p.m.. On Saturday they will be sponsoring a suite and visit with the active members. After the game, they will be having a post-Homecoming dinner and party.

This year the Alpha Delta Pi sorority will be celebrating Homecoming with the brothers of Sigma Chi. Not only will they be having the riverboat party and co-sponsoring a float, the sisters plan to ride a fire engine in the parade. From 11:30a.m. to 1:30p.m. on Saturday there will be an alumni tea in the sororities suite.

The Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority will also be participating in the Homecoming activities planned. They will be riding trucks Saturday morning in the parade and participating in the Alpha Phi Alpha's Step Show Saturday night.

Besides sponsoring a Homecoming float, the Chi Omega sorority will be having an alumni brunch Saturday after the parade. There will also be a Chi Omega banner hanging in the UC during the week.

The Kappa Delta sorority will be co-sponsoring a float with the Kappa Sigma fraternity for the parade. They will also be hanging a banner in the UC during Homecoming week.

Kappa Alpha Psi and Delta Sigma Theta were unable to be contacted for comment at press time.

a wine and cheese party, the Kappa Sigma fraternity has many activities planned for the weekend. On Friday, at 8 p.m., a Founder's Day party will be held at the Holiday Inn in St. Bethlehem. After the parade on Saturday, there will be a brunch buffet, tailgate party, and a wine and chesse party held at the float in the Homecoming parade and later at 7 p.m., an alumni dinner will be held at Texas East. At 10 p.m. the party will be opened to the public.

After sponsoring a float, the Alpha Omicron Pi sorority will be having an open house at 12 p.m.. All alumni and their family are invited to come to the Program to enhance skills

A new program is being developed at Austin Peay to help staff deal more effectively with students and their needs by improving communication skills.

The new program is called Connections, and it is geared toward the University staff who work on "front lines," or in those offices dealing directly with students and members of the community.

The program was originally the brainchild of Dr. Linda Rudolph, assistant vice president for planning and institutional effectiveness, and Dr. Philip Weast, vice president for student affairs. The two learned of a similar program at a workshop last spring and brought the idea home to APSU for consideration.

Given the go-ahead by university administrators, Director of Personnel Bob Bird will head the project, with the steering committee consisting of Dr. Aleeta Christian of developmental studies; Ms. Elaine Horn, adult student services counselor, and Dr. Corrine Mabry, professor of psychology.

According to Ms. Rudolph, Bird and the committee first met about two weeks ago and began planning. Committee members received specific assignments on which to begin working to make the Connections program a reality on APSU's campus.

"Connections is part of the University's ongoing efforts to serve students in a better, more effective manner," Ms. Rudolph said.
