Merry Christmas

No Christmas This Year..

BY TOM MAPES

It's Christmas Eve, but there will be no Christmas this year.

No parades, and the streets are silent and still. The lights do not shine as they did before, and darkness is king. The Christmas card messages will not be fulfilled, and the hustle and bustle of the yuletide season has come to an early end. There is no music filling the air and none of the traditional Christmas carols to be gently sung.

Santa Claus will not make his trip this year to deliver his great stockpile of toys to good boys and girls. The children will never get to enjoy the presents they had asked Santa to bring. There is no one to enjoy the beauty of the decorated trees, and the snowman has melted away, never to come again.

There is no one to kiss under the mistletoe. The gift wrappings are blowing away, the wind has torn from the packages all the colored paper and ribbons, and the stores are not crowded with late shoppers. The stockings are hung, but no one will fill them. The moon is shining brightly on the new fallen snow. It is a smooth, clean and beautiful snow and it is untraced as it will stay. The hush evergreen reach out to gather the snow and then hold it as gently as a mother would hold a newly born child. There is a haunting beauty about the ruins of a church where Christmas services were to be held. A soft breeze stirs the brick air, and a row of Christmas bells tinkle gently, but no one hears the wonderful sounds. The sky is clear, and the heavens gleam above. Yes, this is Christmas Eve, but there is no one here to enjoy it. There will be no Christmas this year — no good will to men, but there is Peace on Earth.

Young Drivers Are Speedy

Here is the substance of three separate reports recently released which come to the same conclusion — young drivers are responsible for far more than their proportionate share of accidents.

A study of two University of Nebraska professors in which they clocked cars by radar, found that drivers in the 16-25 age group have the least regard for speed laws.

Drivers 25 and under held only 17.5 per cent of the licenses among the drivers checked, but they were responsible for 36 per cent of the speed law violations. The survey also shows that 30 per cent of the total violators were under 30 years of age.

Continuing reports from the Province of Ontario shows that drivers in the 18-24 age group were involved in almost twice as many accidents as the average of the other age groups.

A report from the State of Minnesota shows that the 15-24 age group has 17.4 per cent of the drivers in that state, but they accounted for 23.7 per cent of all accidents.

Accident trends: (1) Unless averages and patterns of the past are changed, half of the Americans now living are fated to experience some form of injury or to die in automobile accidents.

(2) Dr. Luther Terry, surgeon general of the United States, says, "If you drive a car, chances are seven out of 10 that you will be involved in a traffic accident in the next five years."

Speaks To Farmers

Harry L. Law, Sr., professor of geography and geology, was guest speaker at the seventh annual banquet December 2 of the Montgomery County Soil Conservation District.

Mr. Law has taught conservation of natural resources for many years. He pointed out that farmers have the great responsibility of conserving the nation's natural resources for the future, in addition to holding present production up to support today's population.

The farmer, he said, needs a good education to perform his many tasks properly.

Leaders Attend Meeting

President Halbert Harvill and Felix G. Woodward, Dean of Faculty and Graduate School, attended the sixty-sixth annual meeting of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools in Miami Beach, Fla.

The meeting began December 4 and ended December 7. There were four general sessions of the Association.

Woodward is in charge of APSC's self-study underway here now. Institutions in the association began intensive self-studies

APSC To Test Milk

Meiburn Mayfield, chairman of the Austin Peay State Physics Department, told the Tennessee Academy of Science that the college will soon begin testing milk and water for radium.

The college has been conducting atmospheric testing for the past year.

Mayfield stated, on November 24, that the Halbert Harvill Nuclear Physics Laboratory is being tripled in size this winter, although it is only a year old.

Radioactivity in the Clarksville area, normally insignificant, rose sharply after the Russian bomb tests began and, on November 3, reached a level which would have been dangerous if it had lasted. It fell off the next day, however, then zoomed up again November 12 and 13, and has been only moderately high since then.

Austin Peay State is the first of the state colleges to measure radioactivity on a regular basis, Mayfield said. The project was undertaken in cooperation with the Clarksville City Council, which bought the initial measuring devices. The air is sampled every morning in the same place so that day-to-day differences can be recorded.

If funds can be made available, Mayfield hopes to purchase a second air sampler. This could be moved around to provide comparisons of radioactivity in different areas and might explain differences in measurement found on several occasions between Clarksville, Fort Campbell and Nashville.

within the past four years. The self-study is to be made once each ten years. The local self-study began this year. Fifty have completed the program and 50 began during 1960-61; and 40 are expected to complete their studies in time for the committee visit during the 1961-62 year.

Highlighting the program December 4 was an address by Frank R. Barnett of the Richardson Foundation, Inc. of Greenvboro, N. C. and New York, N. Y. At the December 5 session, President Andrew D. Holt of the University of Tennessee delivered the address.

Future Editor Training

Trudy Lynn Rice, a freshman from Lebanon, Tenn., has been appointed assistant editor of The All State.

Miss Rice will be an editor of the local daily paper, presented a plaque for the year's best fish pond in 1961. That was one of four conservation awards

An art major, she has also been securing news concerning the Art Department. She is now training to become associate editor next year and editor the Spring Quarter of next year. The present editor, Roy Rogers Price, expects to graduate at the end of the Winter Quarter.

Miss Rice was earlier selected Circle K Sweetheart for the year.

Merry Xmas From Paper Staff

The All State staff wishes a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to all Austin Peay State College students and faculty members reading this Christmas edition of the APSC paper. We also extend the best wishes to our off-campus readers throughout Tennessee and even into other states.

Tomorrow, Thursday, is the last day of final examinations for the Fall Quarter. By Friday the campus will be deserted by students on their way home. May their time between quarters be more than just a respite from school work. May they be able to enjoy the Christmas season in the way that it really should be enjoyed. This does not refer to any commercial way which has arisen through the years and subordinated the celebration of Christ's birthday.

The editor is glad that most students have a good home, loving parents, and good friends to go home for between quarters. It has been said, "Home is the place where, when you have to go there, they have to take you in." We can be thankful that this is not the definition for most homes.

Judy Cheers Cold Situations

Judy Graves has been selected "Miss December." I remember quite well that last year she was chosen to reign over the Valentine Dance. When a picture of her and Bobby Baumgartner was taken, ice pulled branches es down and snow covered the campus. It's nice to have Judy coming to lend cheer to cold situations.

Judy has, like the other persons selected for the monthly honor, contributed much to this college's student life.

Miss Rice Has Editor Qualities

This editor is proud to announce the appointment of Trudy Rice, freshman from Lebanon, as assistant editor of The All State. Trudy is the feature writer who does the stories on persons selected for the "Man of the Month" and "Woman of the Month" series.

Trudy, in our opinion, does one of the best jobs of any person on this staff—and this year's paper staff is the best. The All State has had during the past four years, I think. She shows promise of continuing to do a good job and she has many of the qualities so necessary in putting out a college newspaper.

She will continue her columns on the persons who make outstanding contributions to the college. Also, she will be undergoing extensive journalistic training so that she may be associate editor the first two quarters next year and editor after then.

The associate editor position is one which was created this year and is presently held by Nancy English. The position is a working position and not a learning position. The associate editor has far less responsibility and quite fewer duties than the editor.

However, The All State staff has been in a transitory period for the past few years. As the paper is improved, it is expected that changes will continue to be made. We feel that the paper has improved much during the past few years; we also feel that there is yet a long way to go. One of the greatest areas for improvement.

The time has come (as some dumb walrus said) for all good colleges to participate in self study. Well, I don't know whether or not all good colleges are studying themselves, but I know that we are here at State. We are self-studying our curriculum, our administration, our campus, our student government, etc.

Since I am a firm believer in student participation, I say to you, "Student, know thyself." And, if you don't know thyself, learn thyself. You may have noticed that, in order to avoid confusion, the Student Council has this year provided both a Harvest Ball and a Christmas Dance for your edification and enjoyment. Now we hope that you can remember which one was which.

We now have this little patch of Sara Albright tried to pay for a 12-cent hamburger at the White House, using her college meal book. Alas! That wasn't it. I think I'll take my Top Value stamps with me to Hollander's and see if I can't cash them in.

I think the Governors deserve some sort of special award for services above and beyond the call of duty. Neither does, nor snow, nor dark night can deter them from their duty. They marched in freezing rain at the Blanket Bowl, the Charity Bowl and again at the Christmas parade. They're got more in the way of intestinal fortitude than I have.

Speaking of the parade, it is

There are some men students who have been getting scalded in the showers because others didn't have the courtesy to give warning before flushing. The natural thing for the person in the shower to do is to jump. And that's dangerous too, because those walls are hard when your head hits one.

I noticed in several issues of The Howard Crimston that a girl complained "... Howard boys do not date Howard girls, if they date at all. I am now a sophomore and have yet to have my first date on this campus. This proves that something is wrong with the customs around Howard."

Letter to the Editor

To The Editor:

I should like to answer, in my opinion, the statements found in Mr. Hall's letter.

I feel his trouble is a vast ignorance of rules. As in all society, the society of Austin Peay State has rules by which its participants must abide. If the rules are abided, by each of us with unlimited freedom. We may do what we dare, fail or succeed, open or close our minds. All we desire may be done within the limits of rules.

Applying this to our paper, it is a fine publication. It is the voice of the students and abides within the rules. The rules here apply to ethics, custom and manner. Our paper is well written and has an intellectual level that can be understood by all its readers.

Mr. Hall possesses powers far superior to those of the faculty and student body. However, I feel, to attach a publication which fulfills its purpose is not a sign of intellectual efforts but perhaps an effort for personal personification.

I believe that Mr. Hall has a year at this school. Perhaps he would like to be editor and then we could sit back and praise his efforts. I think it strange to find this literary giant's name absent from The All State staff.

Well in only two more weeks that little jolly round man (and I don't mean Dean Bowman) will be coming to town.

Yes, old Santa's night is rapidly approaching and there seems to be a bashed expectancy as all of us await his jolly laughter and his yearly gifts. I've heard that Santa does not let his favors only if you've been good all year. If this is true I'm afraid most of you people are out of luck.

The adage that the pen is mightier than the sword has been recently illustrated in the verbal clash between our Mr. Price and

I'd like to thank my sultimates and comrades for the great honor they recently bestowed upon me. I'd like to, but I'm not going to, because the whole story's unprintable. (I hope.)

I do dearly love dormitory showers. They're so encouraging. You have the water at just the right temperature and are relaxing quietly when suddenly somebody turns on the cold water at the sink. This leaves your shower with only hot water and leaves you feeling like a lobster.

A certain young man came home with a grievously unusable factory report card in January. "Oh, dear," said his mother. "What is the trouble?"

"There isn't any trouble," said the youngster. "You know how it is yourself; things are always marked down after the holidays."

Hope this doesn't happen to you. Good luck on those final exams, and have the happiest of holiday seasons.

the Mr. Hall. There always seems to be a certain element that enjoys condemnation of the administration and faculty. It seems as if they think that this is fashionable and is expected. Well, if you're this dissatisfied with our ill old college at the end of your eighth week, you're going to be miserable by the end of the year.

If any of you are responsible for choosing the records on our Student Center placards, hang your head. Anyone that would choose a record such as "God, My Country, and My Baby" should be automatically rejected to the seventh grade.

If true, said Chancy could lose his bell for this act as the fish was not a recognized specimen due to size and weight.

We have a lot in common but there seems to be a few pitfalls facing our relationship. Her uncle is a Rabbi and my dad is a Crimston Master of the local Klu Klux Klan movement. My mother is a sister of Adolph Eichmann and her mom secondly is a Jew. We can't do love can triumph and would appreciate your assistance and advice."

Thanking you,

Would someone please direct a letter of protest to me as I feel unneeded and ignored; besides I'd read me something to answer next time.

Xmas Spirit From Judy

BY TRUDY LYNN RICE

Christmas has a special significance to every individual.

To Judy Graves, appropriately chosen "Miss December," it has a most significant double meaning which she related, "To me Christmas means the remembrance of the birth of Christ. It is also a happy time of being with my family and friends."

This characteristic attitude not only applies to her Christmas spirit, but it also extends into her everyday life on campus. This is revealed in her statement that she has received the most benefit from college because "the opportunity of meeting and knowing so many different people, and the friendships which have developed."

Everyone faces times of depression during college, and Judy has been no exception. Her solution for this problem was, "When I find myself starting to get depressed, I begin counting my blessings. In comparison I find there is really nothing to be depressed about. Faith and belief in God have steered me through the gloomy days."

Judy has several assets to her personality which can be considered as "blessings," and one of the most obvious is her outstanding character that has won her several honors at Austin Peay State College. Among them are secretary of her junior and senior classes, senior alternate homecoming 1961; Queen of Hearts 1960; and a member of the Business, Home Economic and Delta Chab.

Know the Word; Help Yourself

This week we continue a new game, vocabulary building.

Readers are asked to help with their own education and, at the same time, have a little fun. They are asked either to supply from present knowledge or to look up in a good dictionary each of the following words or terms, being sure that, whenever possible, they have both a common definition and a specialized one.

They are reminded that familiarity with such a word as analogy, for example, does not necessarily mean that they have a clear understanding of the several senses of the word. In short, our readers are urged to study the derivations of words as well as their definitions.

This list comes from the English Department. It contains expressions that any decently educated person should know. Subsequent editions to The All State will contain similar lists from people in other large subject areas or academic disciplines of the college.

A copy of the word lists used in each issue will be available at the reference desk in the library.

"Shades of Andy Griffith and saluting toilet lups."

These were the words of Nancy English when she was crowned "Latrine Queen" of Harvill Hall's second floor on Monday night. Miss English was honored by her dormmates for her part in the cleanup before Tuesday morning's room check by Matron Martha Reeves.

Each Monday night the girls in Harvill Hall scrub down their rooms for room inspection the next day. As the rooms are arranged by suites, the chores are usually carried out on a rotating basis. This particular Monday night was Nancy's turn to clean the bath in her suite.

She scrubbed and scraped until her nails were bare of polish. "Surely," she thought, "we'll win the inspection prize this time." To guarantee a win, she posted "The Kind To Rubroom Wood" and "Mr. Clean Is Watching You" signs on the walls.

Not to be tripped by these deeds of originality, Nancy's dorm-mates fashioned a crown from rolls of toilet paper, a scepter from a mop handle, and a floral nosegay from a collection of artificial flowers. The crowning was conducted on a makeshift throne and the ceremony was climaxed with all singing an adapted version of the "Miss America" song.

In the darkened halls after lights-out that night, a mournful refrain could be heard — "Use Ajax, the foaming cleaner..."

Delta's Held Xmas Party

HARVILL HALL —

The Delta Club Christmas party was held December 7 in the recreation room.

The constitution has now been compiled and ratified by the members of the Delta Club.

Three Delta girls are receiving their M.R.S. degrees during the Christmas holidays. They are Gail Grammer, Christine Rogers and Annette Murphy.

Harvill Hall has "Diamond-Sporties" like Gloria Clevenger, Laura Swift, Molly Landis, Ann Underwood and Patsy Walker.

HARNED HALL —

A Christmas dance sponsored by Harned Hall will be held December 11 from 8:30-10:30 for the girls and their dates. Dean Woodward read the Christmas story before the dance. There was also a door decoration contest. The girls decorated their doors in various Christmas themes and the best decoration was chosen by the judges. The judges were the ladies of the library staff.

politics. Henry Ford and the American Cyanamid Company were interested in the Muscle Shoals project as a private industry, but neither gained a foothold on the system.

Sen. George W. Norris was most instrumental in the passage of the Tennessee Valley Authority Act in 1933 during the Roosevelt administration. The federal government gained the ownership of the power and manufacturing business on the Tennessee River system.

Origins Of The TVA, written in the form of a research paper, is most enlightening and informative. The book can be found on the shelves of the AFSC library; it may be purchased in the AFSC bookstore.

By Valinda Hook

Dr. Preston J. Hubbard, associate professor of history and political science at AFSC, wrote Origins Of The TVA as his doctoral dissertation.

Dr. Hubbard's book, published in 1961 by Vanderbilt University Press, discusses the political and economic origins of the TVA.

The Muscle Shoals controversy originated during World War I as part of the program for national defense. The struggle for the control of the Tennessee River system continued from 1920 to 1962.

Nitrates for explosives were the original products of the powerful river system. Later developments were brought out in the long controversy. Among these developments were fertilizer for agriculture, better navigation, flood control and most important, later in the controversy, water power for the Tennessee Valley region.

The controversy became colored with partisan and sectional

Govs' Buccaneers

By Don Sargent

The Austin Peay State College Governors pushed their seasonal record to 2-1 with an unexpectedly easy win over the East Tennessee State College Buccaneers of Johnson City on December 8.

The Governors felt behind in the early stages of the ballgame but managed to take the lead with 14:14 remaining in the first half when Governor guard Henry Murry connected with a 15-foot jump shot. The Governors took advantage of the margin and never trailed the Buccaneers thereafter.

For the third consecutive game the Governors were led in the scoring column by ace forward Jim Desbears from Morton Gap, Ky. The freewheeling outpour connected for 10 field goals and hit 18 of 19 from the charity line, for a total of 30 markers. The Austin Peay State squad took the halftime lead at 40-20 and pushed their margin to 20 when guard Jackie Winders hit a 15-foot jump shot from the corner with 4:25 remaining in the half.

Dave Huntsinger, who performed brilliantly for the third consecutive time, faded out shortly after. The Elwood, Ind. star had 11 for the evening.

The Governors' widest margin for the night was at 21 points when Desbears hit a free throw to make the score 39-19. The Governors' last ground in the late stages of the game and finished with a 13-point margin.

The red hot Governors were paced in their first half surge by Desbears who had 17 at the half, and Jackie Winders who contributed 12. Winders ended the evening with a total of 22 points; the only other Governor to have it in the double figures was Dave Huntsinger, who had 11.

The Govs capitalized at the free throw line with 20 out of 41 while ETSC had only 13 of 22. Desbears has now hit 65 points in three games, for an average of 28.3 per game.

Austin Peay State connected on 25 of 36 field goal tries for a 67.5 average while the Buccaneers had only 23 of 73 for a 30.7 average.

Jim Riddick had 17 points for the losers and also paced his team in rebounds with nine. Sophomore Henry Murry was APSC's top man off the boards with 13 rebounds while David Huntsinger had 12.

Govs Beat Bethel

By DON SARGENT

Coach Dave Aaron's Austin Peay State College basketball team evened their seasonal record December 4 at 1-1 with a scintillating victory over conference foe Bethel at McKenzie.

The Governors were led by ace Jim Desbears who hit 15 field goals out of 31 attempts and added seven more from the free throw line for a total of 37 points.

Austin Peay State took a commanding 47-43 half-time lead and increased it to 13 midway the second half.

Bethel rallied to knot the count with 1:40 remaining. The "Big Red" held "11" for one shot. Desbears missed a 20 footer and big Walt Colusta tipped it in. He then added a free throw to provide the Governors with their three-point spread.

Dave Huntsinger had his second consecutive brilliant evening as many starts as he poured in 19 points and pulled down 12 rebounds. Walt Colusta added 19 to round out the Governor double figure scores.

Footballers Cite Sims

By DON SARGENT

Clifford Sims

Clifford Sims, who performed brilliantly for the Austin Peay State College Governor football squad this year, received honorable mention on Williamson's annual Little All-America Football team.

This was the second such honor which has been bestowed on Cliff thus far this year. Earlier he was named as unanimous choice if the head coaches on the all-Volunteer State Athletic Conference football team.

Sims led all pass receivers in the SVAAC most of the year and was a tremendous defensive stand-out during the entire campaign.

SPORTRAITS

By Buddy Norton

Already many people are asking about our basketball team's chances for the coming 1961-62 season. Of course you will find some that say a team can't lose eight seniors from a squad and come back with a winning team the next season. It is true that we did lose eight boys and believe me, they were good ones. No team can lose that caliber of players and not feel it. But to those who feel they are authorities on athletics let me say that there are plenty of positions open for coaches.

So regardless of what people have to say about the Govs' chances, I think they are pretty good. They got a taste of really winning last year when they captured the regional NCAA tournament here in the Austin Peay State gym. Memories like those can really carry over.

Possibly lack of height may hurt Dave Aaron's team slightly. But if the going gets tough, there is one boy who can be counted on to really scrap under the boards. He is David Huntsinger, a senior from the basketball playing state of Indiana. Not a big man by basketball standards, Dave is a sturdy boy who won't be pushed around under the boards.

Captain Tom Durrah is a capable performer at either the guard or forward position. If things begin to go the wrong way for the Govs, Tom is the type of boy who will stay in there and give his all. He seems to follow the trend of good captains of Austin Peay State basketball teams.

Briggenman is a clown

The alternate captain of the team is John Briggenman, a junior. seldom ever has a team had a boy who pulls such antics during a game. But John is a real asset to the ball club with his career attitude. But don't let this fool you, he wants to win as much as anyone else. He was elected a captain of the team, so this should be proof.

"WELL, I DON'T KNOW. THE LAST TIME I WENT ON A BLIND DATE THE GUY WAS A TERRIBLE WOLF... BUT YOU CAN'T ALWAYS BE THAT LUCKY."

Lantz Story Is Action

By Warren Chaney

One of the chief sports writers and reporters of The All State, college newspaper of Austin Peay State College, is shown composing another article for the paper. His name — George Peter Lantz!

Lantz, a native of New York City, born — so he is told and a fact which he firmly believes —

March 22, 1942, has been residing in the country where coffee is king, Brazil. While living there, George became the only American sports writer in Southern Brazil.

During the time that he attended school he was quite active in sports, being a star player on both the baseball and basketball teams at the American school in Sao Paulo. His endeavors were not, however, limited to only physical activities.

He founded and organized the Fire Expeditionary Squad which although seemingly unimportant it is, is quite a significant factor to those where fire is a constant hazard.

There were several other crowning achievements that occurred during his brief career but George, being of a rather modest nature, refused to let them be put into print.

At Austin Peay State College, George Lantz has kept and main tained a near 2.1 average. Amidst his studies he has found time to organize the popular intramural football team "The Bakensius Sides" along with being a member of the Business Club, the newspaper staff, the movie committee and the Austin Peay Playhouse.

George, working toward his degree in business administration, plans to return to Brazil as an industrial supervisor. So in closing, good luck George, although we don't think that you will need it.

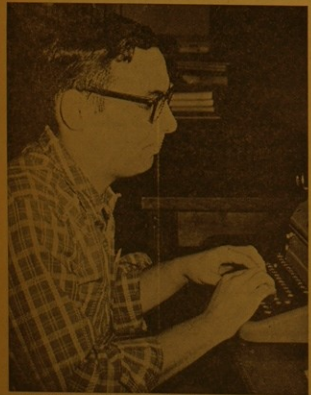

Tired of being a conference dormat, a certain college president decided to lend a hand in the recruitment of football players.

Returning, he told the coach, "I saw a team that went undefeated, with a line that averages 145, backs weighing 135, and with no outstanding passer or kicker."

"You didn't waste any scholarships on those little guys, I hope," said the coach.

"No," replied the president.

"But I hired their coach as your successor."

Top Hair Styles Told

By LONNIE LEE STITT

The votes are in, the goal is set. Here is your hair style information.

Girls, the girls of Austin Peay State agree unanimously that they prefer long hair. They detest bleached hair. Any color is fine with them as long as it is natural. The most popular color was brunette with blond coming in close for redheads.

There is an even divide between the simple and complicated hair styles. Most like simple for school wear, a complicated style for evening and party wear. Almost all of the boys notice when a girl has a new hair style. That will keep us on our toes for these new styles, girls.

Boys, here is your information. The girls agree that the hair style depends on the boy. Most girls do like flattops, with a few votes for medium long hair.

Bunger Attends Regional Meet

Dr. Fred Bunger, assistant professor of education, attended the Second Regional meeting of Association of Student Teaching on December 8 and 9. The meeting was held in Knoxville. Dr. Bunger studied ways to change the practice teaching to all day teaching.

Dr. George Ackley spoke at Nashville to the Tennessee Association for Children Under Six. He was interviewed by Billy Jean Dorrin on the Noon Show, WSM in November.

Ways To Kill A Club

1. Don't attend meetings, but if you do, arrive late.
2. Be sure to leave before the meeting is closed. You may be at the end of the supper line.
3. Never have anything to say at the meetings—wait till you get to your dorm.
4. When at the meeting, vote to do everything, then do nothing.
5. The next day, find fault with the officers and other members. This keeps people on their feet.
6. Take no part in the organization's affairs.
7. Be sure to sit in the back, so you can sleep without disturbing others.
8. Get all the organization will give you, but don't give the organization anything.
9. Never ask anyone to join the organization.
10. At every opportunity, threaten to resign.
11. If asked to help, say you don't have time.
12. Never read anything pertaining to the organization. It will make you prejudiced.
13. Never accept an office — it's easier to criticize than to do things.
14. If appointed to a committee, never give any service to it. They might meet during supper.
15. If you receive a bill for dues, ignore it. You'll be going to the laundry.
16. Don't do any more than you have to, and when the others willingly and uselessly use their ability to help the good cause along, then howl that the organization is run by a clique.

Xmas Dance Held

The annual Christmas dance was held December 4.

It was termed a success by all who attended. Troyce Hutchinson's band provided music to dream or dance by.

The decorations this year were very original. The background was overlaid in white parachutes. Red glitter letters spelled out Merry Christmas. Next to the band there was a lighted Christmas tree. Under it were Christmas presents wrapped pretty enough to tempt anyone.

'Love' Is The Big Item

This story is related by a famous comedian, who at one time was a teacher. It tells how this man and his wife were so involved in rules of wisdom that they forgot the one big item that is most important in a child's life, "love."

The story begins shortly after Sam and his wife have had their first child. They were so happy and so wanted the child to be the end product of the very long time in raising their child that they followed his progress right by the written word of the book. If the baby sneezed, they looked it up in the book to find out what to do, and sure enough it had instructions on what to do and say.

Then early one morning the child awoke screaming and crying. Sam and his wife immediately ran to the rescue. They frantically turned through the pages of the book, but could find nothing that described the symptoms. The child were present. Meanwhile in the shadow of the doorway stood Grandmother, who had heard the commotion and came to see what was happening. When she appeared she saw the two young parents frantically looking the pages of their book of knowledge.

When they had turned the last page, Sam's wife cried, "It does not have anything to say about what to do!" Then Grandmother appeared out of the shadow of the doorway and quietly said, "Put down the book and pick up the child." Sam and his wife brushed aside these words like a rain drop falling in a well.

Put Faith In Your Life

By CHRISTINE ROGERS

"O thou of little faith," Christ told his doubting disciples.

He also was speaking to us in another time and place. We have no faith in ourselves. The security that comes from a lower paying, less challenging job is what we prefer. We have no faith in each other. We surround ourselves with our good friends and are not friendly to the friendsless. Fear of people might be the cause, but it will not shield anyone from the hurts of life. It prevents a pleasant friendship from being yours. What has happened to our faith in God? Let it not fade away as a childish whim, but let it help broaden the wide horizons.

Program Set For Women Grads

A program of graduate study through which mature college women, 35 years of age or older, may qualify themselves for teaching, research or administration in higher education was recently announced by the American Association of University Women Educational Foundation.

This program, financed by a $225,000 grant from the Rockefeller Brothers Fund, will be initiated over a three-year period in 11 southern states.

The program will help relieve the acute shortage of trained college personnel and will provide unusual opportunities for mature women to embark on a professional career in higher education.

Approximately 30 candidates who hold the Bachelor's or Master's Degree will be selected each year for further education in one of the cooperating graduate schools.

The first group under the program will enroll in September 1962. Applications should be made not later than April 15, 1962. Application blanks may be obtained by writing to Eleanor F. Dolan, AAUW Educational Foundation, 2401 Virginia Ave., N.W., Washington 7, D.C.

Little did Grandmother's young friends know, as Sam told later, of her great wisdom. Her wisdom and knowledge didn't come from any book; it came from her heart. Sam goes on to say that no matter what the age of the child is, 5 or 15, pick the child up, hold him close. Don't be angry at the child, but be angry at the source of his problem and love the child.

Young Speaks Here

Dr. R. C. Young, retired educator who came to the United States from Scotland shortly after World War I, spoke to Austin Peay State College students November 27 concerning what America offers them.

He emphasized the importance of character in dealing with others.

At the age of 10, he had a small job. At his mother's request, he was the first at work and the last to leave; he turned the gas lights off and made sure no faucets were dripping.

In later years, his former employer recommended him as a person who was willing to do more than was required.

When he came to the United States after World War I, he started work as a laborer. He said he was rich then and didn't know it, because he had character.

Dr. Young pointed out the danger of taking things for granted, even the commonplace things.

He commented that a unique fact about today's corporations is that they are staffed by executives who rose from the ranks. Dr. Young pointed the United States out as the only country which has taken common laborers and made them into an aristocracy.

Dr. Young said the American way to conquer is by superior

Methodists Will Build Program

Next quarter the Methodist Student Movement will start the new year with a full schedule of funds for the students of Austin Peay State.

Among these will be weekly study groups for all students regardless of their religious affiliations. No one will receive academic credit for these courses, but the information gained will be invaluable.

The first course of study begins on the Tuesday following winter registration at 4:30 p.m. till 5:30 p.m. in the Audio-Visual room. The subject for the study is Gods of the Campus. The group will be taught by Floyd Ford. Students interested in this class should contact Fay Shearson for further information.

A second study course begins on the first Thursday following registration. The subject for study is The History of the Christian Church and will be taught by the Rev. Thomas Cook. Students interested should contact Carl Hart.

In addition to the establishment of the two study groups, the MSM is organizing several other activities for the students and faculty of APSC. Next quarter the MSM will arrange a Married Couples Fellowship. This is to provide more social activities for the married couples on campus.

There will also be a group called the Wesley Ministerial Society for pre-ministerial students on campus.

Another group to be organized is the Christian Faculty Movement, composed of the teachers on campus who are Methodists.

Next quarter the MSM worship services will be held in the Choral Room of the Clement building each Monday and Wednesday at 7 a.m.

The first group meeting will be held Tuesday night, January 16. There will be a film, Church of the Campus, and a guest speaker.

On January 19 at 6 p.m. in the cafeteria the MSM is sponsoring a book review of current best sellers.

A challenge for academic competition has been directed to small colleges in the proximity of Austin Peay State.

Ray Barty, President of the APSC Student Council, has proposed active competition between area colleges according to a format similar to the television "College Bowl."

"The Student Council invites those from interested area colleges and from members of the Austin Peay State student body
