MAN WITH A PLAN - Gov. Winfield Dunn (center) answers questions from an APSU student delegation after his April 1 breakfast-conference in Clarksville. Several students went to Nashville again the next day to lobby the legislators for increased appropriations to higher education in the state.

For 'field house'

Meeting focuses on funding

The proposed APSU health and physical education facility, more commonly known as the "field house," was discussed at length by President Joe Morgan at the first of a series of weekly meetings held jointly on March 19 by Morgan and SGA President Bob Huber.

A question from the audience as to whether or not APSU will get the proposed facility, in light of current legislative appropriations, prompted Morgan's attention to the matter.

Every month that the construction of the building is delayed, the cost of construction is increased by $60,000, as a result of inflationary costs, he disclosed.

The first estimates as to the building's cost were in the neighborhood of $4 million, however the addition of space for APSU's ROTC program and inflation since the time of the estimate have driven the cost up to a considerably higher level.

It is now estimated that the cost, including such incidentals as architect's fees, paving and equipment, would be more than $7 million.

Although both a new drama and fine arts building and the health facility at APSU were in the state legislature's prime group for project appropriations, only the drama building was approved for funding.

This resulted when the amount for prime group projects was cut from the proposed $50 million to $25 million by Governor Winfield Dunn before its submission to the legislature.

*See editorial STUDENT LETTERS COULD AID BUDGET REQUESTS on page 2 and letter to editor on page 3, column 1.

Morgan pointed out that, while other state higher education institutions were granted funds for 50 per cent or more of their projects included in the prime priority group, only 21 per cent was granted for those of Austin Peay State University.

"When will we get the facility?" concluded Morgan. "I don't know."

Another student asked Morgan why the drama and fine arts building would be funded before the health and physical education facility.

Two reasons were given for this. In the first place, the drama building is much less expensive. Secondly, the university already has a great proportion of the funds needed for this building.

"The drama and art facility is badly needed," Morgan stated, "to relieve the Clement Building of the space required for these two departments."

SGA Senate asks Morgan to review 2 student reforms

Resolutions supporting definite outlines for a faculty evaluation and a non-compulsory class attendance policy, both aspects of the student proposal for university reform, were passed by the SGA senate in its session last Thursday.

The proposals have now been submitted to Joe Morgan, APSU president, for his action on the measures.

The senate recommended that a faculty evaluation, consisting of ratings in the areas of instructional competencies and techniques, evaluation and grading, organization and management and relationship with students, be submitted to students in each class annually. It was also proposed that the results of the evaluations be made available to the general student population for their benefit.

The proposal concerning APSU's class attendance policy suggested that a non-compulsory one be initiated for sophomores, juniors and seniors in their electives, core requirements and upper division courses.

Under the proposal, attendance policies for freshmen and for all students in physical education and other activities courses, such as public speaking and discussion, would be continued as they now exist.

Both resolutions, faculty evaluation and compulsory class attendance, were submitted to the student body earlier in the year in the form of an SGA questionnaire. The policies governing the two areas were formulated by the SGA taking into account the preferences of students as shown in this poll.

Voting for the compulsory class attendance proposal were 24 senators, with one abstaining and one opposed. Twenty supported the faculty evaluation proposal, while two abstained and three opposed.

The senate has asked that the Academic Council and President Morgan act on the two proposals in sufficient time to allow for their presentation to the Board of Education for consideration at its next meeting, on May 7.

Regulations for senate races listed

Petitions will be available Monday, April 19, at 8 a.m. for candidates desiring to run for class offices or senate seats. The petitions must be turned back in with signatures of 50 students before campaigning can begin. The deadline for this is 5 p.m. on Thursday, April 22, unless no one has filed for office. In this case the deadline will be extended.

Campaigning may begin no earlier than April 23 at 12:01 a.m. There must be a meeting of candidates with the SGA president and the election board chairman before campaigning begins. Failure to attend will result in disqualification.

The time and place of the meeting will be posted at the time petitions go out.

Voting will be held from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on May 3. If at any precinct, however, there has been a 100 per cent turnout, the polls may close.

Voting will be done in the following precincts: Cross Hall and Ball Village, Rawlins Hall, Killebrew Hall, Miller and Ellington Halls, Sevier Hall, Blount Hall, Harned Hall, Harvill Hall and the University Center. There will be no absentee ballots.

Disinterest causes lack of petitions

When the polls open at 8 a.m. next Tuesday, April 13 for the election of Student Government Association officers the choice of candidates will not be a problem.

As of yesterday morning only six students had taken petitions for the four offices of president, vice-president, secretary and chief justice.

Classes will be dismissed next Monday from 11 to 11:50 to give students an opportunity to hear the candidates speak on their platform. The speeches will be given in the University Center Ballroom.

Monday night at 6:30 the contenders will debate issues of

Rites of spring shorten week

Classes will be dismissed all day on Friday and Saturday of this week in observance of the Easter holidays.

The University Center will also be closed on Friday and Saturday this week, but will be open as usual on Sunday. The snack bar will be open on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, but students will have to enter by the patio door.

Student letters could aid budget requests

The Tennessee State Legislature is presently considering Governor Winfield Dunn's 1971-72 budget requests and, consequently, the financial request of APSU. By taking a look at the amount of money Dunn has recommended for Austin Peay, in comparison with the recommendations for the other state universities, one can get the impression that APSU is once again at the receiving end of the "royal shaft."

President Joe Morgan and the university asked the state for approximately $4.4 million for capital outlay (building expenses) for 1971-72. This request, after being thoroughly reviewed by the Tennessee Higher Education Commission, was sent on to the governor's office—it had been reduced to $3.8 million already and was to be cut even more drastically by the governor. APSU had asked for a new drama and fine arts facility, a health and physical education complex and various urban renewal and renovation projects to be approved and funded.

Dunn Cuts Requests

The Higher Education commission concurred with the university on most of these, but, by the time the requests had been reviewed by the governor's office, APSU was informed that only the drama and fine arts building was to be included in the university's request before the legislature.

One might uphold the action of the governor by pointing out the state of the economy as a deterrent to more funds for APSU building programs. However, when a comparison made between this university and other state schools, it is found that Austin Peay has simply been "left at the bottom of the bucket" once again. The following facts justify our lamentation.

The difference between what the Higher Education Commission recommended for APSU and what the governor has asked the legislature for amounts to exactly $3 million. In other words, APSU is scheduled to receive only 21 per cent of the funds which the HEC recommended. It is amazing how the governor's budget aides managed to slice so much off this campus' requests, while UT Martin, UT Chattanooga and Tennessee State were practically untouched.

APSU Funds Hit

Other facts in the governor's proposed budget show that, whereas higher education requests as a whole were reduced 52 percent, the APSU request alone was cut 79 per cent. Also, Austin Peay is to receive only 3.3 per cent of the governor's total outlay budget—the lowest percentage for any four-year state school. While this is true, Memphis State (10.5), UT Chattanooga (21.0), UT Knoxville (11.1) and UT Martin (15.4) are going to be getting the larger percentages of the administration's requested funds from the state. It goes back to the old adage of "the poor getting poorer, the rich getting richer."

If one is not a student either at Memphis State or at the University of Tennessee system, then he faces a certain dilemma. Either he is content with being assigned to a certain status in the state's higher education setup or he can go elsewhere. Of course, there is one other alternative that really can be made to work; that is petitioning your local legislator to realize the situation and to help the smaller universities. We feel that this one channel does remain open.

Letters Show Concern

Each in-state student at this university is represented by a local legislator in the 87th General Assembly. That representative is responsible to you, to your parents and to the welfare of future voters in his constituency. Your pressure, can make that legislator act favorably if applied firmly and in a diplomatic manner. That is why THE ALL STATE is printing the names and addresses of Tennessee legislators in this issue. We are also printing the list of recommendations by the Higher Education Commission in comparison to the requests to the General Assembly by Governor Dunn. It is hoped that each constituent will study this brief summation of the budget situation as THE ALL STATE sees it and give the matter sincere thought.

Austin Peay State University is no longer prepared to wait at the bottom of the barrel for the crumbs. A university has developed in Clarksville, and it must not be allowed to deteriorate while other schools continue to grow. The city of Clarksville has shown concern, the local legislators have finally shown concern and now it is up to each student here to help awaken his representative to the problems which do confront APSU financially.

Groups Should Join Efforts

It is sincerely hoped that a large number of students will take a small amount of their time to write the state representatives from their home counties and municipalities. Express to them what the capital outlay requests (printed below) have shown us. Express concern and now it is up to each student here to help awaken his representative to the problems which do confront APSU financially.

fraternities, sororities, and student civic groups such as Circle K, Collegiate Civitan and Alpha Phi Omega to organize themselves into a productive lobbying force upon the Tennessee State Legislature.

There is much talk of student involvement, and an equal amount of talk about student apathy. It will be interesting, now, to see just how far APSU has come from the days of "Apathy UT" to the present-day involvement of concerned student in all factions of the university. The Student Government Association has taken the lead in this matter by going in groups to lobby the legislature. Now is the time for the rest of the student body to follow suit.

The college scene

by PAM WILLIAMS

WESTERN KENTUCKY UNIVERSITY, College Heights, Herald, Bowling Green, Ky. One of the local legends of Western says that the ghost of a murdered Whiststone coed returns to haunt the second floor of the dorm each spring break.

The validity of the legend has never been proven, but most Whiststone coeds do not say they don't believe in ghosts. Each spring upperclassmen take their frustrations out on the freshmen girls of this dorm by calmly telling them all the details of the girl's murder and the annual return of her ghost.

UNIVERSITY OF TENNESSEE, UT Daily News, Knoxville, Tenn. — A test which may reduce from five years to one month the time required to determine the success or failure of a cancer patient's surgery has been developed by UT scientists.

Dr. Joseph H. Coggins, UT Knoxville microbiologist who directed the research, said the test will alert physicians to begin immediate treatment of surgical patient whose cancer has not been eliminated, possibly saving their lives.

The test, perfected with the use of animals, is now being tested for humans.

SGA should serve campus

by JOHN GALLARDO

As this is being written, about a week and a half is left until we are subjected to the traditional "trag-comedy" called "The SGA Elections."

I would like to suggest that this time we begin the process of making the SGA serve the needs of the campus community.

It is true that student government inherently suffers from many weaknesses. The constituency is aware that they will spend only a short time at APSU.

The SGA exists at the discretion of the university (within certain requirements stay accredited). SGA officials must remain in school. The basic decisions concerning the education itself are not made by the SGA.

However, that does not necessarily mean that the SGA cannot be functional. It simply means that an imaginative program which taps the resources that do exist is necessary.

It is foolish to assume that one person alone must do the job. One person simply cannot do all that is required. If the SGA begins by having enough able assistants, the job will get done and it will not be a crushing weight to the SGA officials.

What is there to talk about? If the SGA begins by proposing solutions, our needs can be met. Every member of this campus personally knows what problems face him. We don't need groups to see what the problems are.

We are called apathetic when we don't play the SGA game. I "deeply" resent the word "apathetic" being used as an epithet. Why should we participate on any level whatsoever?

It will not give better grades. It won't get one a better education. It won't get one a better job after graduation. It won't even supply jobs so that attendance itself is possible.

This year let the candidates beware. They will be expected to have a program as a reason for running. They will be expected to know the basic functions to be performed. We will not expect anyone on the basis of a promise to come up with some ideas later on.

I suggest that we begin by eliminating the elitism in the SGA. Some people are prevented from participation for totally irrelevant reasons such as GPA or preceding quarter's grades.

I suggest that links be established between the Clarksville community and the school community. There are tremendous resources that are not even on the list to be tapped. We have a right to expect businessmen to return a small portion of the huge sum that is spent by the school community every year.

There are also many needs that exist in the Clarksville community that we can do something about. There is a tremendous pool of skills on the campus that can be used to help the surrounding community.

Whatever the outcome of the election, let us not be fools and be taken in by candidates who have nothing to offer but meaningless slogans.

by Rick Mitzi

(Editor's Note: This nationally syndicated column, by Rick Mitzi, a senior at the University of Minnesota, will be appearing from time to time in THE ALL STATE. It deals with varied topics of today's generation—the trends, changing directions, philosophies of college students. "It's the Right Time" appears in the student newspapers of more than 300 colleges in 34 states.)

Whatever happened to student government?

It used to be something solid, something which would involve well-groomed and idealistic law students. They got into student government not so much to change the system, but to further their own careers... something to dash down on the old dossier.

Whatever happened to student government?

"Nothing," responds a girl who worked with the National Student Association for many years. "Things have changed," she says. "But, for the most part, student government is as ineffectual as ever."

Whatever happened to student government?

"Oh, they're still mouthing off here," a University of Texas coed said. "This is a very rural, very unprogressive school. Our student government's working to lower the tuition. But it's not going to work. Student government just has no bearing on anything."

"Our student government is well, let's just say it's, ah, dormant," said a former student leader at San Diego State College in California. "The student leaders here used to be all, well, you know, all politically concerned with national and international issues."

"But the students wanted more services. So now the student government's getting back to student issues—and the students don't think that's relevant. You can't win."

It doesn't look good for student government. But did it ever? Its history in the past 10 years shows that it's been laden with confusion and ambiguity, going through new trends and ideologies that have led to its present mixed-up state.

During the early '60s, student government concerned itself only with student services, things that would immediately please and benefit the student populace. The list included alleviating crowded parking problems, establishing record and book co-ops, augmenting housing and food services, getting money for programs such as homecoming, freshman orientation and student discount cards.

But while that student government was service oriented, leaders all over the country asked questions: Are students just students? Should they also be considered citizens or a special interest group?

Should students get involved in issues of national and international political scope?

The question was answered in 1965. The infamous Student Power movement began organizing. Today, Student Power is just another memory of the past, something that will one day join the ranks of Free Huey, Dump Johnson and Keep Kool with Coolidge.

And then in 1968 came the elections. And with them came the Eugene McCarthy campaign, in itself a political student-body movement. Students forgot about their hopes for classroom reform and focused their idealistic attention upon the state of the nation.

This decline of the student leader has held true for any campus causes. As students take over the administration building, official student government leaders fade into the crowd and non-official leaders emerge.

"Things are different now," said a student at the University of California in Berkeley. "Nobody listens to the student government people. It's dead. Student government is dead. We pick our own leaders—and they don't necessarily have to be elected."

Students Want Action

In an era when government is frowned upon, denounced by students for being fraudulent and hypocritical, it follows that students don't want elected leadership that's bureaucratic—all talk and no action.

"When students have needs that have to be met," the Berkeley sophomore said, "we make sure that our needs are known. We don't need some elected student body president to do that. There are other ways."

And those "other ways"—the sit-ins, the silent protests, the picketing—all are well-known. Along with sororities, fraternities and flapping sitting, student government looks as if, too, will soon be buried.

As colleges and universities are getting larger and less personal, it's gotten increasingly difficult for any student leader to represent the people. Students are impatient. They want action like instant coffee. They aren't willing to wait around for the pot to perk. Students don't want to be considered a large mass labeled Student Body. The emphasis is on individualism.

These are the times of the anti-hero—not the days of the polished and neat young law student who can sit back and pontificate about student representation, Student Power and more parking space.

There will always be student leaders. And students will continue to pick their leaders. But not necessarily at election time.

Dear Editor:

I am a 1968 alumnus of APSU and would like to show my concern for a problem confronting APSU.

As I perused the editorials in the local paper of March 23, 1971, I was struck by dismay that the present inadequate athletic fieldhouse was to be perpetuated in the name of lower taxes and that the proposed budget for higher education had been cut to less than half.

How can any citizen cognizant of the value of education allow this to pass without even token resistance?

It is time that the students and alumni made known their feelings about the new fieldhouse. Let us stand up together and oppose this deletion of funds.

You can write letters to Governor Dunn and the Tennessee Legislature. If enough are received, they must listen.

The government is for the people, hence they cannot afford to turn a deaf ear.

Let us stand together and make our wishes known. APSU needs this facility today.

Cordially yours,
William E. Cheate

Dear Editor:

The trial of Lt. William Calley Jr. is unprecedented in the history of U.S. military operations and is a new case in point throughout the centuries of world military campaigns.

The army saw fit to take action on its course without any outside pressure and to act as a judge upon itself. In a sense this is parallel to the United States President playing the triple role of executive, legislative and judicial functions, hence judging the constitutionality of his own actions.

No one can deny that killing is a necessary operation of war, declared or undeclared, whether it be in the form of massive bombing or air attack or by jungle warfare with or without

For 'legal rights'

5 circulate petition

A petition asserting "the right of any group to exist in this community as long as its methods are legal" was circulated by five students on the APSU campus late last week, receiving the signatures of nearly 200 students and approximately 15 university faculty members and employees.

The document concerned an advertisement, placed in The Clarksville Leaf Chronicle by the local Ministerial Association, which expressed that body's belief that the activities of the People's House in Clarksville are not in the best interests of the community.

"The petition does not in any way support the ideology or activities of the People's House," stated a spokesman for the group, "but we believe that the nature of the comments made by the Ministerial Association was such that students at Austin Peay could suffer consequences."

"The situation is similar to that in the days of the Salem witch hunts. Even if the specifically mentioned 'undesirable elements' were to leave town, that feeling would still exist and would then be directed toward students, longhairs or any hapless victim."

The document stated, in part, that "if a series of allegations that do not include proof of illegitimate, detrimental and subversive activities continues to be presented to the people of the Clarksville community, an atmosphere will be created which repudiates the essence of democracy."

Copies of the petition were sent last Friday to APSU President Joe Morgan and to the Ministerial Association. The document was accompanied by a request that a meeting be set for representatives from the People's House, members of the Ministerial Association and APSU students to discuss the issue.

Business frat holds smoker

Zeta Phi chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi, the nation's largest professional business fraternity, has announced its first smoker for prospective members, to be held tonight at 8 in the University Center Conference Room.

The smoker is open to all students who are at least third quarter freshman, have a minimum 2.0 overall average and have declared their intention to follow a course of study in the school of business and economics.

Pledge period for the rushers will be from April 15 until May 4. The time and place for a second smoker will be announced later.

THE REAL THING - The score may not be, but the new 51,300 scoreboard on the baseball field is indeed, thanks to the Coca-Cola Co. Watching it light up are (l-r) President Joe Morgan, Tom Wonderling, baseball coach, Jim Hodges, Coca-Cola route supervisor, and Dave Aaron, director of athletics.

Countries featured in display, contest

A collection of cultural objects, from various countries of the world will be on display through Friday in the window of the modern language department (Library basement) in observance of National Foreign Language Week, April 12-18.

Sponsored by Alpha Mu Gamma, the national collegiate foreign language society, the display contained artifacts from such countries as Denmark, France, Germany, England, Japan, Thailand, Vietnam, Laos, Mexico, Hong Kong and the Philippine Islands.

Also in conjunction with National Foreign Language Week, a language identification contest is being sponsored by the society. Entry blanks are available from the modern language department located in the Library basement.

Entry deadline is Wednesday, April 14th. The top two entries will receive several books as prizes.

The Gamma Iota Chapter of Alpha Mu Gamma was chartered at APSU in June, 1965. Its purposes are to recognize achievement in the field of foreign languages, to encourage an interest in the study of foreign languages and civilizations and to stimulate the understanding of other peoples.

Qualifications for membership include two A's and one B in college study of foreign language, for full membership; associate membership is acquired by one quarter with a grade of B in a foreign language.

Lexxi Cummings, president, and Velma Cross, vice-president, encourage all qualified students to join the society.

SID named All-American

The Churchman's Sports Review, the official publication of the Churchmen's Sports Hall of Fame, Inc., of Tullahoma, Tenn., has recently named an "All-American Sports Information Directors" team in order to honor the men behind the scenes who are responsible for the dissemination of all sports news from each college and university. On that team, at "quarterback", is APSU's sports info man, John Martin.

Martin, is considered to be one of the tops, if not the best, in the Ohio Valley Conference in the SID racket. His annual brochures of APSU football, basketball, golf, track and tennis have won him past honors from the national SID organization and his most recent brochures prove why he has been so honored.

Martin keeps tabs on all APSU sports action throughout the entire year and is responsible for records of all sports. The Gov SID also follows the APSU athletic squads on road trips and manages, most efficiently, the APSU press section in Memorial Gymnasium during basketball season, the Municipal Stadium press box during football, and the press box at the new APSU baseball stadium.

Netters here, then away for three on road

The Austin Peay State tennis team will meet Kentucky Wesleyan tomorrow on the Governors home court at 1:30 p.m. They will then travel to Bowling Green, Ky. where they will meet Edinboro State Friday and Western Kentucky Saturday. After a brief two day rest the Red and White net squad will travel to Nashville Tuesday for a match with David Lipscomb College.

In last weeks action the Gov netters dropped two decisions. One was a 9-0 loss at the hands of Memphis State University last Saturday morning, and the other being a 5-4 squaker to Indiana State University.

During the Indiana State match, Noel Phillips, playing number one singles for the second time this season, defeated Roger Converse 3-6, 1-6, 4-1. In the second singles match, Erasmo Sanhueza defeated Dan Bigg 6-3 6-4 to give the Governors their only two points in singles competition.

Thinclads out for second win in Sewanee

The APSU track squad will be after its second win of the season when they travel to Sewanee on Tuesday.

The Gov thinclads have a 1-3 mark for the season after taking a triangular win over Carson-Newman and UT Martin.

Gov diamond nine starts week-long home outing

Wisconsin State here

The APSU baseball team broke the school single-season win record by defeating Capital University 1-0 and 6-2 in a Monday double-header at the Gov's park. APSU added its mark to 16-6 with the twin win and was to have played another double-header with Wisconsin State yesterday.

The APSU baseball squad will play at home for the next seven days, playing host to six teams for a total of 14 games.

The Gov squad will start off the week with a double header today with Wisconsin State at Lacrosse at 1 p.m.

Thursday they will meet Wisconsin State at Plateville for an additional double header on the new baseball field on the north edge of the campus on the site of the old Montgomery County fairgrounds.

Saturday the Governors will host the Mid-South Baseball Classic. The teams featured in the tournament will be Bradley University, Tennessee Tech, Western Kentucky and APSU.

The following day the Governors will face Bradley for two additional games. Monday the Goves will meet Quincy College for a double header and Tuesday they will meet Eastern Michigan for an additional double header.

All of the contests will begin at 1 p.m. excluding the Mid-South Classic.

Last Saturday and Sunday the Governors handed Millikin University four straight defeats. They defeated Millikin on the first day by scores of 6-0 and 6-1, and on the second day of action they won 9-5 and 4-0 to push their overall record to 14-6.

Earlier in the week the Governors dropped a 2-4 decision to Western Kentucky, and then came back to grab the second game 1-0 in Bowling Green.

The Red and White have been led in recent games in hitting by Bo Bo Elliott and Jim Knox who are hitting at a .361 and .345 clip respectively. Knox connected on three of six in Sunday's contest with Millikin.

In the pitching department, Mike Ramsey and Ed Inman lead the Governors with a spotless 4-0 worksheet. Inman threw a one hitter in the second game Sunday. He has a 9-31 earned run average, and he has whiffed 28 of the opposing batters.

Ramsey has a 1.19 earned run average. He has pitched 22 innings thus far this season and has struck out 38 opposing batters.

In the utility department, Kenny Johnson, who hit a homerun in the second game Sunday, and Larry Ward, who went two for three in the first game Sunday and is batting .364 for the season, seems to be pushing for starting berth.

As a team the Goves are holding an earned run average at a 1.33 mark for the season.

Link squad win streak on line today

Placing their five-match winning streak on the line, APSU's golf squad will meet Vanderbilt, Tennessee Tech and Middle Tennessee today in a quadrangular in Nashville.

The Goves will also participate in the third annual Mid-South Intercollegiate Golf Classic Friday and Saturday at Sewanee.

APSU, 8-2 on the season, holds consecutive wins over Carson-Newman, Fisk, Union, Belmont and UT Martin. Earlier in the season, coach Sherwin Clift's linkers disposed of the University of Tennessee, Gardner-Webb and Wofford. The losses came at the hands of Furman and East Tennessee.

"Today's quadrangular is the first of three such events against Vanderbilt, Middle Tennessee and Tennessee Tech," Clift said. "Competition will be very keen since all three teams are rivals."

Clift will select a six-man team from seniors John Eddington, Jerry LaBarbera and Terry Stewart, Juniors Leo Hayden and Dirk Schmidt, sophomore Dennis Rice and freshman Mike Carn.

The tournament in Sewanee will find 14 teams vying for top honors. The schools include APSU, Belmont, Carson-Newman, David Lipscomb, Illinois State, Indiana State, Middle Tennessee, Morehead State, Sewanee, Southern Illinois, Southwestern at Memphis, Tennessee Tech, UT Martin and Vanderbilt.

APSU finished 11th among 23 teams in the Furman Invitational at Greenville, S. C., this past weekend. The Goves were third in the 21-team tourney two years ago.

Georgia Southern topped the team title and host Furman was second.

Pacing APSU was Carn with a 76-77-153 total, good for 15th place among the 136 collegians. Rice followed with a 79-79-156 total over the demanding 6,712-yard, Furman University Golf Course.

IN THE SPRING SWING — Terry Stewart, a Gov linkman, Erasmo Sanhueza, a leading net member and Ed Inman, an APSU hurler who sports a 4-0 record, seem to be moving right along as the Governors' spring sports program goes into the fourth week of competition.

Football recruiting progresses

Three football players from Lockland High School in Cincinnati, Ohio, have signed football grants-in-aid to attend Austin Peay State University.

The three players include fullback Richard Babcock, halfback Roger Lawson and linebacker Tommy Cook.

Babcock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Babcock, packs 190 pounds on a 6-1 frame. Two times he earned All-Hamilton County Suburban League honors—once as a linebacker and the other time as a fullback.

Lawson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lawson, operated as both an offensive and defensive back at Lockland High.

The 6-0, 160-pound speedster scored 13 TD's from his halfback slot including nine touchdowns on runs of 60 yards or more. He finished the season with 760 yards rushing, caught 10 passes for 411 yards and scored four extra points.

Lawson was a member of this year's All-League team and was a three-team All-State performer.

Cook, a 6-1, 195-pound linebacker-fullback, was third member of the tremendously well-balanced backfield at Lockland High this past football season.

The future wearer of the scarlet and white gained 600 yards rushing, caught eight passes for 200 yards and scored nine TD's. He also scored on three extra points attempts.

Wayne Coverdale, All-Metro football player at Father Ryan High School (Nashville, Tenn.), has also an Ohio Valley Conference grant-in-aid with Austin Peay State University.

Student Wives Club plans tour

A tour of the home of President Joe Morgan will be among the activities planned at the April 12 meeting of the Student Wives Club, to be held in the University Center Conference Room at 7 p.m.

Plans will also be made for a spring banquet, a rummage sale and the annual Putting Hubby Through (PHT) degrees.

An election of officers for the upcoming year will conclude the session.

Wives who will be here next year and who would accept an office in the club are urged to contact Brenda Martin (648-7586) or another club officer.

All wives who will be receiving PHT degrees this spring should also contact Mrs. Martin.

BEVY OF BEAUTIES—Seven of the 21 contestants in the Miss Hat and Cane pageant look over photographs to be used for publicity. The annual spring beauty contest will get underway on April 15, with the winner and finalists to be announced the next evening. Talent, beauty and poise are the major criteria for judging.

Miss Hat and Cane

21 lovelies vie for title

Appreciators of beauty and polish should make plans to attend the 1971 Miss Hat and Cane Pageant, Thursday and Friday, April 15 and 16 in the Clement Auditorium at 7:30 p.m.

Of the 21 campus lovelies vying for this year's crown, one will have a chance at the Miss Tennessee title.

"The girls have been practicing since January and really look professional in their talent presentations," observed Barbara Syme, pageant director.

"Memories," the theme of this year's pageant, will be carried out in the songs, music and group performances of the contestants. The University Singers will also give their annual pageant performance.

Don Devenler, an actor and producer from San Francisco, will serve as master of ceremonies for the parade of lovelies which will include last year's Miss Hat and Cane, Debra Kesler. After her farewell speech Miss Kesler will crown the coed chosen as APSU's loveliest.

This year two more judges have been added to the customary panel of three which is faced with selecting just one girl to represent APSU in the Miss Tennessee Pageant. For the first time, two of the five panel members will be judges from the Miss Tennessee Pageant.

This year's contestants are: Christi Carroll, Debbie Carver, Stella Dillard, Nita Ferguson, Cheryl Gibbs, Kathy Graves, Brenda Harper, Frances Luther, Terry Mason, Judy Meeks, Barbara Ocasar, Linda Patterson, Linda Pearson, Elaine Reiber, Viva Smith, Vicki Stephenson, Candy Terry, Teresa Tucker, Susan Wallace, Mary Watson and Barbara West.

Thursday night the first group of girls will present their talent and the second group will appear in swimsuit and evening gown competition. Friday night, the procedure will be reversed.

To publicize the pageant the 21 contestants will soon appear on WSM-TV's "Noon Show".

Tickets for the pageant are available for Thursday night. Friday night or both. Student tickets for Thursday night are $1.50; Friday night, $2; both nights, $3. Adult tickets for Thursday night are $2; Friday night, $2.50; both nights, $4.

ISC auctions pledges today

"What am I bid for this lovely young pledge? She walks, she talks, she..." and thus will go the auctioneering today from 11:45 until 1 a.m. as the Inter Sorority Council "sells" approximately 35 pledges in front of the University Center.

The girls will be auctioned off to the highest bidder to work for one hour cleaning a room, polishing shoes, washing a car, ironing, typing or doing anything else within reason.

The proceeds from the annual spring activity of Auction Day are used for the ISC's Presentation Ball, where the pledges formally complete their pledgeship and enter the world of sisterhood.

The ball is scheduled this year from 8 to 12 p.m. April 17 in the University Center Ballroom.

"Groups are permitted to make a mass purchase or one person may buy a horde," said ISC president Joan Twigg. "There is no limit to the amount you can get."

Writer blasts editorial

Dear Editor:

As an instructor of journalism at this university, I have striven for over 20 years to instill into journalism students the necessity and importance of checking the facts before jumping to conclusions in both news stories and editorials.

I hope you can understand my distress when I read your recent editorial in which you charged that two faculty members were forced to resign because of their views. You printed the president's denial of the charge and then accused him of lying. Evidently because one student deduced that these two members were forced to leave, your editorial writer jumps to the conclusion that the student was right, and without checking at all he blasts away at the administration and refuses to accept the president's statement printed on the page facing the editorial.

This is not only irresponsible journalism; it is in miserable taste and is treading near libel to publish a statement saying that the president of Austin Peay State University did not tell the truth.

I sincerely hope that the editors will be called upon to prove their allegations. You have not used freedom of the press; you have mistaken freedom for a license to accuse and damn without fact.

I was also amused by another part of the editorial. The writer denounces the faculty for not supporting the proposed university reforms.

I wonder if the faculty was asked to support the reforms. The only organization, the Faculty Council, was this body asked to support the reforms? To the best of my knowledge, it was not.

Mr. Editor, will you please check your facts before blasting away. Or do you want to be confused by the facts? I realize that a checking of facts will many times destroy what looks like a good editorial, but a responsible journalist will always check his facts.

I am sorry to have to write this letter for I have great love for THE ALL STATE. Having served as editor and sponsor of the paper, I am hurt to see it indulge in the manufacture of straw men to set up and then knock down. Please check the facts.

Respectfully yours,
Charles Waters
Assoc. Prof. of English

(Editor's Note: A similar letter was received from Head Librarian Jeanne Givens, but because of a lack of space, we were unable to print both. In reply to the statements of both writers, we wish to point out that we in no way made the "charges" they have mentioned. What we expressed is merely what many students are thinking on this campus—students with whom we doubt either Miss Givens or Mr. Waters have ever come into close contact. We like to think that the ALL STATE is a student newspaper set up just to inform students of campus news, but also to question when the average student is unable to do so. We assert the right of the student body of a university in the 1970's to know about it which affects it in any way. It is hoped that such has been accomplished by our editorial of the previous issue. We wish to state that we are not interested in the commentary of THE ALL STATE.)

Mama Mia! meal hosted by Civitans

"Mama Mia! That's a some spaghetti supper!"

Or so our friend Tony would say when the Collegiate Civitan Club has their spaghetti supper on April 14 at the Fellowship Hall of the First Presbyterian Church, 213 Main St.

The meals will be served between 5:30 p.m. and 7:30. Tickets, $1.25 each, may be purchased from a member of the club or at their table in the University Center.

Far from the atmosphere of sunny Italy, five Collegiate Civitans spent last week-end in Jackson, Tenn. helping with that city's Cerebral Palsy Telethon. Emma Gray, Rita Murphy, Nell Northington, Marsha Savage and Karen Smith participated in this Collegiate Civitan district project.

All was not work, however, for the girls found time to talk to and even eat dinner with the television celebrities, James Brolin of the Marcus Welby, M.D. television series and Rosie Greer, former Los Angeles Ram.

Virgin matures via adventures

You're A Big Boy Now may have been what your mother used to tell you whenever you wet your pants, but now it's the title of the motion picture to be shown tonight at 8 in the University Center Ballroom. Admission is 75 cents.

The movie tells the story of one innocent, virginal boy, played by Peter Kastner, who has a postessive suburban mother, Geraldine Page, and a father, Rip Torn, who is the curator of the erotica collection at the New York Public Library.

The boy desperately needs to grow up, so he moves away from home into an apartment that has a weird landlady, played by Julie Harris, who keeps a pet rooster.

Nothing he does turns out right, especially his pursuit of a beautiful, sexy man-hater, who tries to make a victim of him.

Next Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. the film Diabolique will be shown in the Ballroom. Admission is 75 cents.
