

The All State

Serving the Austin Peay Community since 1929

Volume LXVII, Issue 6

September 25, 1996

8 pages

Building Unveiled

State Building Commission gives approval to start construction phase

Austin Peay has taken the second major step toward making in new science building reality.

On Thursday, Sept. 12, the state Building Commission approved the design and gave approval to commence the construction phase of the new science building, which is designed to be built on the corner of Eighth and Main streets.

The building will house classrooms, laboratories and faculty offices for the Center for Field Biology, the departments of biology, chemistry and physics and Medical Technology program. Jerry Clark and Associates Architects Inc. and Rudy Johnson & Rufus Johnson Associates, both of Clarksville, are the architects for the building.

As a first step, in January 1995, the university received pre-planning money for the building. Rep. Tommy Head said, "The science building at Austin Peay has been a needed facility for many years. I was successful in securing the first $500,000 in the 1996 fiscal year for the first phase of pre-planning. I knew then that we were on our way to seeing this facility completed. I am looking forward to the groundbreaking in the very near future."

The model presented last week in the state Building Commission shows a three-story structure encompassing 172,826 square feet with a brick exterior that complements other Georgian architecture on campus.

Dr. Sal Rinella, president of APSU, said, "I am pleased for our faculty and students that this new facility is moving to the working drawing phase. I also am pleased about the design of the building. The architect has designed a 21st-century facility with an exterior that is consistent with the 18th-century design of the other buildings on campus."

According to Mounce, the projected cost of the building is between $25.527 million, depending on inflation prior to the date of construction. This estimate includes fixed equipment. Mounce said, "The architects compared the cost of 15 new science buildings nationwide of equivalent programs and size. Our building, as designed, falls within the lower one-third of that comparison. This means we have a very efficiently designed building."

A modern science building, according to Mounce, has to be completely vented every six minutes under requirements of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). She said, "This fact, along with the expense of science laboratories, necessarily makes this building more expensive than the traditional classroom building."

Wade named director of center

BY CARINDA BASSO
assistant news editor

"I wanted to come back home and finish my professional career," said Dr. Jacqueline E. Wade, the new director of the African American Cultural Center.

That's exactly what Wade has done. Wade replaces Dr. Ruth Dennis, who has been serving as interim director for the past year. Wade is founder and chief executive officer of Wade Educational Programming and Consulting Services, Antioch, and was an adjunct faculty member at Middle Tennessee State University.

She has several plans for the future of the center but her most immediate plan is to do more cultural programming while bringing distinguished African Americans as well as world scholars, artisans, social activists and other notable personalities to the campus. She also plans to have movie nights and a talent night where the students can showcase their talents.

The calendar is full now of activities and events but her focus remains at one purpose, to educate the students.

"We live in a global world, so students would be remiss in their education if they didn't take advantage to learn about African American culture, as well as other cultures that are represented here on this campus, so that they can have a holistic sense of what this world really is," said Wade.

Wade earned her doctorate in education and her master's degree in social work from the University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia. Her bachelor's degree is from Fisk University in Nashville. Wade has been published in several professional journals. Among her titles are "Race and Raceness: A Theoretical Perspective of the Black American Experience" and "Using a Social Work School for Campus Wide Racism Awareness Training."

Among her professional memberships are the African American Heritage Studies Association, American Association for Higher Education, American Personnel and Guidance Association, National Association of Black Social Workers, National Association of Student Personnel Administrators, National Council for Black Studies Inc., National Women's Studies Association and Phi Delta Kappa.

She has been a consultant and evaluator to the Conrad Hilton Foundation on women abuse programs in the state of Tennessee and has served as a consultant to various university and college campuses on race issues.

Wade has also done several professional presentations such as "African-American Women in Leadership: Empowering the Community" at the Fifth Annual Ida B. Wells Lecture Series, West Virginia University, and "Weaving a Stronger Fabric with Diverse Threads" at the Tennessee Advancement Resources Council Conference.

Students and local ministers have been gathering items since May that will be auctioned off. The supper starts at 4:30 p.m. and will run until 6:30.

Tickets for the dinner are $5 a plate and can be purchased from any Wesley student in advance or at the door Saturday evening. Children under 12 can eat for $3. The Wesley Foundation is the United Methodist Student Center

A model of Austin Peay's new science building is shown below. The State Building Commission recently gave approval to start the construction drawing phase of the $25.27 million facility. The architectural rendering of the building which will be the new home of the Center for field biology as well as the departments of physics, chemistry, biology and medical technology is pictured at right.

Professor Speaks on NPR

By KELLY WILKERSON
news editor

Dr. D'ann Campbell, professor of history at Austin Peay, recently spoke on National Public Radio (NPR) on the issue of allowing women into what have been traditionally all-male military institutions.

Campbell appeared on "Talk of the Nation," a national program that presents currently breaking issues to the public. Discussion primarily centered on the Supreme Court decision declaring the Virginia Military Institute's exclusion of women from its traditionally all-male institution unconstitutional.

Campbell, along with Elizabeth Foy Carter, who testified before the Supreme Court during the VMI case, and Colonel Terence Leedon, director of public relations at the Citadel, debated the issue and received calls in questions from the public.

The Citadel has already changed its formerly restrictive policy and currently has four female students attending the institution.

The Virginia Military Institute, ending 157 years of tradition, decided this weekend to also allow women into the institution. Women will

Campbell

join the ranks in fall 1997.

After considering privatization, the VMI Board of Visitors, after several days of debate, voted 9-8 to allow women. Privatization would have cost the school $200 million because of state funding the school would have lost.

"This decision may not be groundbreaking, but it is reflecting what was already going to happen," Campbell said of the Citadel's decision to allow women.

Individuals attending these institutions are not necessarily attending for the military experience, Campbell suggested. "When you deny women access to VMI and the Citadel, inadvertently you deny them the leadership and powerful positions in the state," Campbell said. Women want to go to these schools to gain the leadership experience and community involvement.

Campbell, along with Elizabeth Foy Carter, who testified before the Supreme Court during the VMI case, and Colonel Terence Leedon, director of public relations at the Citadel, debated the issue and received calls in questions from the public.

The Citadel has already changed its formerly restrictive policy and currently has four female students attending the institution.

The Virginia Military Institute, ending 157

years of tradition, decided this weekend to also allow women into the institution. Women will

join the ranks in fall 1997.

After considering privatization, the VMI Board of Visitors, after several days of debate,

voted 9-8 to allow women. Privatization would have cost the school $200 million because of state funding the school would have lost.

"This decision may not be groundbreaking, but it is reflecting what was already going to happen," Campbell said of the Citadel's decision to allow women.

Individuals attending these institutions are not necessarily attending for the military experience, Campbell suggested. "When you deny women access to VMI and the Citadel, inadvertently you deny them the leadership and powerful positions in the state," Campbell said. Women want to go to these schools to gain the leadership experience and community involvement.

Campbell, along with Elizabeth Foy Carter, who testified before the Supreme Court during the VMI case, and Colonel Terence Leedon, director of public relations at the Citadel, debated the issue and received calls in questions from the public.

The Citadel has already changed its formerly

restrictive policy and currently has four female

students attending the institution.

The Virginia Military Institute, ending 157

years of tradition, decided this weekend to also

allow women into the institution. Women will

join the ranks in fall 1997.

After considering privatization, the VMI

Board of Visitors, after several days of debate,

voted 9-8 to allow women. Privatization would have cost the school $200 million because of state funding the school would have lost.

"This decision may not be groundbreaking, but it is reflecting what was already going to happen," Campbell said of the Citadel's decision to allow women.

Individuals attending these institutions are not necessarily attending for the military experience, Campbell suggested. "When you deny women access to VMI and the Citadel, inadvertently you deny them the leadership and powerful positions in the state," Campbell said. Women want to go to these schools to gain the leadership experience and community involvement.

Campbell, along with Elizabeth Foy Carter, who testified before the Supreme Court during the VMI case, and Colonel Terence Leedon, director of public relations at the Citadel, debated the issue and received calls in questions from the public.

The Citadel has already changed its formerly

restrictive policy and currently has four female

students attending the institution.

The Virginia Military Institute, ending 157

years of tradition, decided this weekend to also

allow women into the institution. Women will

join the ranks in fall 1997.

After considering privatization, the VMI

Board of Visitors, after several days of debate,

voted 9-8 to allow women. Privatization would have cost the school $200 million because of state funding the school would have lost.

"This decision may not be groundbreaking, but it is reflecting what was already going to happen," Campbell said of the Citadel's decision to allow women.

Individuals attending these institutions are not necessarily attending for the military experience, Campbell suggested. "When you deny women access to VMI and the Citadel, inadvertently you deny them the leadership and powerful positions in the state," Campbell said. Women want to go to these schools to gain the leadership experience and community involvement.

Campbell, along with Elizabeth Foy Carter, who testified before the Supreme Court during the VMI case, and Colonel Terence Leedon, director of public relations at the Citadel, debated the issue and received calls in questions from the public.

The Citadel has already changed its formerly

restrictive policy and currently has four female

students attending the institution.

The Virginia Military Institute, ending 157

years of tradition, decided this weekend to also

allow women into the institution. Women will

join the ranks in fall 1997.

After considering privatization, the VMI

Board of Visitors, after several days of debate,

voted 9-8 to allow women. Privatization would have cost the school $200 million because of state funding the school would have lost.

"This decision may not be groundbreaking, but it is reflecting what was already going to happen," Campbell said of the Citadel's decision to allow women.

Individuals attending these institutions are not necessarily attending for the military experience, Campbell suggested. "When you deny women access to VMI and the Citadel, inadvertently you deny them the leadership and powerful positions in the state," Campbell said. Women want to go to these schools to gain the leadership experience and community involvement.

Campbell, along with Elizabeth Foy Carter, who testified before the Supreme Court during the VMI case, and Colonel Terence Leedon, director of public relations at the Citadel, debated the issue and received calls in questions from the public.

The Citadel has already changed its formerly

restrictive policy and currently has four female

students attending the institution.

The Virginia Military Institute, ending 157

years of tradition, decided this weekend to also

allow women into the institution. Women will

join the ranks in fall 1997.

After considering privatization, the VMI

Board of Visitors, after several days of debate,

voted 9-8 to allow women. Privatization would have cost the school $200 million because of state funding the school would have lost.

"This decision may not be groundbreaking, but it is reflecting what was already going to happen," Campbell said of the Citadel's decision to allow women.

Individuals attending these institutions are not necessarily attending for the military experience, Campbell suggested. "When you deny women access to VMI and the Citadel, inadvertently you deny them the leadership and powerful positions in the state," Campbell said. Women want to go to these schools to gain the leadership experience and community involvement.

Campbell, along with Elizabeth Foy Carter, who testified before the Supreme Court during the VMI case, and Colonel Terence Leedon, director of public relations at the Citadel, debated the issue and received calls in questions from the public.

The Citadel has already changed its formerly

restrictive policy and currently has four female

students attending the institution.

The Virginia Military Institute, ending 157

years of tradition, decided this weekend to also

allow women into the institution. Women will

join the ranks in fall 1997.

After considering privatization, the VMI

Board of Visitors, after several days of debate,

voted 9-8 to allow women. Privatization would have cost the school $200 million because of state funding the school would have lost.

"This decision may not be groundbreaking, but it is reflecting what was already going to happen," Campbell said of the Citadel's decision to allow women.

Individuals attending these institutions are not necessarily attending for the military experience, Campbell suggested. "When you deny women access to VMI and the Citadel, inadvertently you deny them the leadership and powerful positions in the state," Campbell said. Women want to go to these schools to gain the leadership experience and community involvement.

Campbell, along with Elizabeth Foy Carter, who testified before the Supreme Court during the VMI case, and Colonel Terence Leedon, director of public relations at the Citadel, debated the issue and received calls in questions from the public.

The Citadel has already changed its formerly

restrictive policy and currently has four female

students attending the institution.

The Virginia Military Institute, ending 157

years of tradition, decided this weekend to also

allow women into the institution. Women will

join the ranks in fall 1997.

After considering privatization, the VMI

Board of Visitors, after several days of debate,

voted 9-8 to allow women. Privatization would have cost the school $200 million because of state funding the school would have lost.

"This decision may not be groundbreaking, but it is reflecting what was already going to happen," Campbell said of the Citadel's decision to allow women.

Individuals attending these institutions are not necessarily attending for the military experience, Campbell suggested. "When you deny women access to VMI and the Citadel, inadvertently you deny them the leadership and powerful positions in the state," Campbell said. Women want to go to these schools to gain the leadership experience and community involvement.

Campbell, along with Elizabeth Foy Carter, who testified before the Supreme Court during the VMI case, and Colonel Terence Leedon, director of public relations at the Citadel, debated the issue and received calls in questions from the public.

The Citadel has already changed its formerly

restrictive policy and currently has four female

students attending the institution.

The Virginia Military Institute, ending 157

years of tradition, decided this weekend to also

allow women into the institution. Women will

join the ranks in fall 1997.

After considering privatization, the VMI

Board of Visitors, after several days of debate,

voted 9-8 to allow women. Privatization would have cost the school $200 million because of state funding the school would have lost.

"This decision may not be groundbreaking, but it is reflecting what was already going to happen," Campbell said of the Citadel's decision to allow women.

Individuals attending these institutions are not necessarily attending for the military experience, Campbell suggested. "When you deny women access to VMI and the Citadel, inadvertently you deny them the leadership and powerful positions in the state," Campbell said. Women want to go to these schools to gain the leadership experience and community involvement.

Campbell, along with Elizabeth Foy Carter, who testified before the Supreme Court during the VMI case, and Colonel Terence Leedon, director of public relations at the Citadel, debated the issue and received calls in questions from the public.

The Citadel has already changed its formerly

restrictive policy and currently has four female

students attending the institution.

The Virginia Military Institute, ending 157

years of tradition, decided this weekend to also

allow women into the institution. Women will

join the ranks in fall 1997.

After considering privatization, the VMI

Board of Visitors, after several days of debate,

voted 9-8 to allow women. Privatization would have cost the school $200 million because of state funding the school would have lost.

"This decision may not be groundbreaking, but it is reflecting what was already going to happen," Campbell said of the Citadel's decision to allow women.

Individuals attending these institutions are not necessarily attending for the military experience, Campbell suggested. "When you deny women access to VMI and the Citadel, inadvertently you deny them the leadership and powerful positions in the state," Campbell said. Women want to go to these schools to gain the leadership experience and community involvement.

Campbell, along with Elizabeth Foy Carter, who testified before the Supreme Court during the VMI case, and Colonel Terence Leedon, director of public relations at the Citadel, debated the issue and received calls in questions from the public.

The Citadel has already changed its formerly

restrictive policy and currently has four female

students attending the institution.

The Virginia Military Institute, ending 157

years of tradition, decided this weekend to also

allow women into the institution. Women will

join the ranks in fall 1997.

After considering privatization, the VMI

Board of Visitors, after several days of debate,

voted 9-8 to allow women. Privatization would have cost the school $200 million because of state funding the school would have lost.

"This decision may not be groundbreaking, but it is reflecting what was already going to happen," Campbell said of the Citadel's decision to allow women.

Individuals attending these institutions are not necessarily attending for the military experience, Campbell suggested. "When you deny women access to VMI and the Citadel, inadvertently you deny them the leadership and powerful positions in the state," Campbell said. Women want to go to these schools to gain the leadership experience and community involvement.

Campbell, along with Elizabeth Foy Carter, who testified before the Supreme Court during the VMI case, and Colonel Terence Leedon, director of public relations at the Citadel, debated the issue and received calls in questions from the public.

The Citadel has already changed its formerly

restrictive policy and currently has four female

students attending the institution.

The Virginia Military Institute, ending 157

years of tradition, decided this weekend to also

allow women into the institution. Women will

join the ranks in fall 1997.

After considering privatization, the VMI

Board of Visitors, after several days of debate,

voted 9-8 to allow women. Privatization would have cost the school $200 million because of state funding the school would have lost.

"This decision may not be groundbreaking, but it is reflecting what was already going to happen," Campbell said of the Citadel's decision to allow women.

Individuals attending these institutions are not necessarily attending for the military experience, Campbell suggested. "When you deny women access to VMI and the Citadel, inadvertently you deny them the leadership and powerful positions in the state," Campbell said. Women want to go to these schools to gain the leadership experience and community involvement.

Campbell, along with Elizabeth Foy Carter, who testified before the Supreme Court during the VMI case, and Colonel Terence Leedon, director of public relations at the Citadel, debated the issue and received calls in questions from the public.

The Citadel has already changed its formerly

restrictive policy and currently has four female

students attending the institution.

The Virginia Military Institute, ending 157

years of tradition, decided this weekend to also

allow women into the institution. Women will

join the ranks in fall 1997.

After considering privatization, the VMI

Board of Visitors, after several days of debate,

voted 9-8 to allow women. Privatization would have cost the school $200 million because of state funding the school would have lost.

"This decision may not be groundbreaking, but it is reflecting what was already going to happen," Campbell said of the Citadel's decision to allow women.

Individuals attending these institutions are not necessarily attending for the military experience, Campbell suggested. "When you deny women access to VMI and the Citadel, inadvertently you deny them the leadership and powerful positions in the state," Campbell said. Women want to go to these schools to gain the leadership experience and community involvement.

Campbell, along with Elizabeth Foy Carter, who testified before the Supreme Court during the VMI case, and Colonel Terence Leedon, director of public relations at the Citadel, debated the issue and received calls in questions from the public.

The Citadel has already changed its formerly

restrictive policy and currently has four female

students attending the institution.

The Virginia Military Institute, ending 157

years of tradition, decided this weekend to also

allow women into the institution. Women will

join the ranks in fall 1997.

After considering privatization, the VMI

Board of Visitors, after several days of debate,

voted 9-8 to allow women. Privatization would have cost the school $200 million because of state funding the school would have lost.

"This decision may not be groundbreaking, but it is reflecting what was already going to happen," Campbell said of the Citadel's decision to allow women.

Individuals attending these institutions are not necessarily attending for the military experience, Campbell suggested. "When you deny women access to VMI and the Citadel, inadvertently you deny them the leadership and powerful positions in the state," Campbell said. Women want to go to these schools to gain the leadership experience and community involvement.

Campbell, along with Elizabeth Foy Carter, who testified before the Supreme Court during the VMI case, and Colonel Terence Leedon, director of public relations at the Citadel, debated the issue and received calls in questions from the public.

The Citadel has already changed its formerly

restrictive policy and currently has four female

students attending the institution.

The Virginia Military Institute, ending 157

years of tradition, decided this weekend to also

allow women into the institution. Women will

join the ranks in fall 1997.

News

September 25, 1996

Democrats kick off active year

By CARINDA BASSO
assistant news editor

go vote later," said Pendergrass.

The College Democrats offer involvement in politics and assistance to students who have never voted before, and they provide a general understanding of the issue. They achieve this by voting, attending their other campaigns and providing voter registration on campus.

They have worked on campaigns, held voter registration and are beginning several more opportunities for voter involvement on campus. The College Democrats are Emily Pendergrass, president; Brent Meredith, vice-president; Misti Floyd, secretary; and Matt Hooper, treasurer. They are sponsored by Dr. Vernon Wammack and Kelli McAllister.

"As much as we can get politically active now it's going to affect whether or not we bother to go out and be active to complain. So we have to make sure we do our part," said Pendergrass.

be vans available to take them to early voting. They also plan to do something to help increase voter turnout.

"A poll came out this weekend that said that less than 40 percent of Tennessee women were eligible to vote out and vote last time," said Pendergrass.

The College Democrats meet every Wednesday at 4 p.m. in Archwood for those interested. There are also voter registration forms available from the political science department until Oct. 4, as well as absentee ballots.

"Whether you're a Democrat or a Republican, if you don't vote out and be active to complain. So we have to make sure we do our part," said Pendergrass.

Peay Briefs

The International Student Organization, Multi-Services, and International Education will be sponsoring an International Festival on Thursday, Oct. 3 from 3-7 p.m. in the UC Ballroom. Come and enjoy the different cultures, music, food and dances.

The Office of Disability Issues is offering an information session Wednesday, Sept. 25 in the Main Lab of the Clement Building, room 104 from 4-5 p.m. The session will cover information about Vocational Rehabilitation, the Student Disabilities Support Group, the Employment Development Transition Program, accommodation requests, Barrier Awareness Day, and Snacks will be served.

The Office of Extended Education will be offering a course in Western Dancing Workshops beginning Oct. 19. For more information, contact Extended Education at 648-7816.

The Office of Extended Education will offer "The Mind Works" seminar focusing on characteristics employees look for in employees beginning Oct. 1. For more information, contact Extended education at 648-7816.

The Office of Extended Education will offer a course in Conversational German beginning Oct. 2. For more information, contact extended education at 648-7816.

The Office of Extended Education will offer "The Mind Works" seminar focusing on characteristics employees look for in employees beginning Oct. 1. For more information, contact Extended education at 648-7816.

VIDEO GAMES!
 We Trade, Buy & Sell Video Games.
Trade A Game - Your Cost $1

1598 Fort Campbell Blvd., North Park Shopping Center

Food Lion Mall, behind Radio Shack • 647-0873

MultiEthnic Services

Ellington 357

648-7004

FOCUS • Oct. 1 • 5:30-7:30 p.m.

Executive Dining Room (side Cafeteria)

"Getting off to a Good Start"

presented by Mary A. Davilla

ALL PROGRAM PARTICIPANTS SHOULD ATTEND.

(Any student of color who wants to participate in the FOCUS reception programs should contact the Office of Multietnic Services.)

International Festival • Oct. 3

sponsored by International Student Organization

& Hispanic Festival • Oct. 4

sponsored by Phi Nu

5-7 p.m., University Center

entertainment, displays, food, and more!

Special thanks to faculty, staff and graduate student mentors and all mentees for participation in the Mentor/Mentee 2000 Program. We are off to a great start and we want to build on the foundation!

NEED ONE MORE CLASS

TO GRADUATE? TO CATCH UP?
TO GET AHEAD? TO START OVER?

150 DIFFERENT COURSES WILL BE OFFERED IN EVENING AND WEEKEND CLASSES FROM OCT. 7 TO DEC. 8 AT THE FORT CAMPBELL CENTER.

ACCT 2010	GEOL 1120	MUS 2000	PM 5300	SOC 3200
ART 2000	GERMAN	PE 1310	PM 4320	SPANISH
BIOLOGY	HHP 1210	PHYS 1010	PM 4810	SPCH 1010
CHEM 1020	HIST 1010	PM 3200	PM 4860	SPCH 3200
COMM 490A	HIST 2010	PM 3230	PSCI 2010	SPED 2300
CSCI 1000	HIST 2020	PM 3235	PSY 1020	and others
CSCI 1010	MATH 1140	PM 3240	PSY 1030
CSCI 2010	MATH 1210	PM 3250	PSY 3120
ECON 2010	MATH 1220	PM 3760	PSY 3130
GEOG 1010	MATH 1330	PM 4120	SOC 2010

STUDENTS WHO ARE ENROLLED FOR AT LEAST 12 CREDITS ON THE MAIN CAMPUS WILL NOT PAY ADDITIONAL FEES FOR THE FORT CAMPBELL ENROLLMENT.

(You must bring a concurrent enrollment form.)

REGISTRATION: OCT. 3 AND 4

Get a class schedule and concurrent enrollment form at the Ellington Building or telephone 572-1400.

Austin Peay State University — A Tennessee Board of Regents Institution
Austin Peay State University is an equal opportunity employer committed to the education of a non-racially identifiable student body.

10% DISCOUNT WITH APSU I.D.

870 Kraft Street
Clarksville, TN 37040
(615) 645-5796Las Margaritas
GrillTWO
COMBINATION
DINNERS
$7.99Wednesday
$1.75
MARGARITAS DAY
16 oz.Lunch Menu
starting at $2.75
Try our specials
everyday!Reggae
RockTHE WAREHOUSE
BAR & GRILLDance Music
Blues

Your New Party Headquarters...

Tonight, Sept. 25
DEAN HALL &
THE LOOSE EELS
LOW DOUGH WEDNESDAY
$2 COVER

Friday, Sept. 27
& Saturday, Sept. 28
DOUBLE CROSS

Thursday, Sept. 26
Separate Checks

MONDAY NIGHT FOOTBALL
Dallas vs. Philadelphia
FREE Chili Dogs/CHEAP BEER

WATCH FOR DETAILS ON COLLEGE NIGHT

New Food Menu!
Appetizers & Entrees

20 McClure Street • 552-7078
Open 7 p.m.-3 a.m. Wednesday - Monday

A P E X

Advantage Program for EXcellence

A recent study conducted at APSU concluded that full attendance at the APEX program is one of the two most significant factors for predicting degree completion here at Austin Peay.*

Make the Move to Significance.

Apply to become an APEX Leader!

Applications are now available in the Office of Student Activities

UC 315

Call 648-7431 for more details.

APPLICATION DEADLINE IS SEPT. 26, 1996

*Results of a study conducted by Dr. CARLETTE HARDIN, DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION (1995).

Opinion

September 25, 1996

Wake up America, we all deserve equal treatment

A few months ago, after a long awaited decision, the U.S. Supreme Court declared it unconstitutional for the Virginia Military Institute to deny women the right to enter its program. VMI considered going private in an attempt to preserve its discipline and tradition. By going private, they would lose all public funds, forcing them to raise the money to keep the school in operation.

After several days of debate, the VMI board voted to admit women beginning in the fall of next year. While many VMI alumni do not agree with the decision of the board, and feel very strongly about preserving their tradition, The All State applauds the U.S. Supreme Court and these military institutions who are finally recognizing the importance of equality between men and women.

The Citadel, realizing the implications of the Supreme Court decision, immediately voted to allow women into their institution. Four women were welcomed into the tradition of military education at the Citadel in August and still remain active members of the institution.

The All State recognizes the importance of equality and applaud these four women in their efforts to overcome all obstacles that stand in their way of getting an education while at the institution.

Why has it taken years for our country to realize that women deserve equal treatment? Why is the issue of equality between men and women so hard for the United States to accept? Why is this such a controversial issue when it is just plain common sense?

Historically women have been the backbone of society. From the woman who picked up her gun and fought in the American Revolution, to the women of World War II they have served their country in numerous capacities, both militarily and domestic.

The great military organizations of the United States has allowed women into its ranks for years. Why would an institution of higher learning refuse to accept this, keeping American society from progressing toward a complete society, inclusive of all people, regardless of gender, race, sexual orientation, or religious beliefs?

Institutions such as VMI and the Citadel claim to be producing the leaders of our academic community, business world, and political arenas, but they have produced nothing but leaders who are male, when it is very obvious that women play an essential part of these areas and hold high positions in every job field.

Leadership is not inherently a male quality, it is a characteristic of an individual, be it male or female. Great leaders are to be found in the person, not in the gender.

If had these institutions refused to allow women, they would have been preventing some of the most capable individuals to achieve their true potential.

Now that all-male schools are unconstitutional, how do we convince the whole of American society to accept the equality between men and women as commonly as they accept the fact that you have to stop when the light is red?

What will it take for society to recognize the accomplishments of women and put them in the light that they deserve?

Maybe now that respected institutions such as VMI and the Citadel are recognizing the equality of women, the rest of society who currently think differently, will begin to view women for what they are...people...individuals...human beings who have thoughts and feelings, and possess abilities and the desire to improve our society and who want to be recognized for their efforts.

"Why is the issue of equality between men and women so hard for the United States to accept?"

The All State recognizes the importance of equality and applaud these four women in their efforts to overcome all obstacles that stand in their way of getting an education while at the institution.

Why has it taken years for our country to realize that women deserve equal treatment? Why is the issue of equality between men and women so hard for the United States to accept? Why is this such a controversial issue when it is just plain common sense?

Historically women have been the backbone of society. From the woman who picked up her gun and fought in the American Revolution, to the women of World War II they have served their

As I began to prepare the opinion section of The All State last Monday,

I came across a letter to the editor in response to what I had written a week before. The article I am referring to discussed the issue of same-sex marriage. When I read the letter I realized that Ms. Daniel was not understanding my point.

Her argument is that God does not approve of the lifestyle and while she doesn't "ostracize" or judge anyone (gay or lesbian), she states that anyone who embraces same sex relationships...will condemn themselves to hell." Now, I am confused. I thought Ms. Daniel didn't judge, yet the statement she made proves otherwise.

Ms. Daniel totally missed my point in my article. My point is that gays and lesbians are being discriminated against.

They do not receive the same treatment that heterosexuals do.

What Ms. Daniel needs to realize is that our American society abides by the Constitution, NOT the Bible.

The belief that same sex marriage is against God's will is irrelevant. As individuals in this country, we have the right to believe whatever we choose to believe in. That's what makes this country so wonderful. The freedom and opportunities that can be found by every individual. When I wrote the article, I was attempting to come from a political standpoint because that is what this is...a political/civil rights issue, not a moral one. If our society keeps confusing the two, we will never get anywhere.

Last week, I also came upon another situation which I thought would make an interesting article.

Last Friday there was a class in the circle outside the U.C. debating all issues of homosexuality. I heard statements suggesting that homosexuality was a socially learned behavior; therefore, gays and lesbians should not be in the education field. Some said that gays and lesbians didn't need any additional rights because they had just as much rights as anyone else.

There were some that did not consider gays and lesbians to be a minority. What upset me about this was the fact that those who agreed with that statement were a minority themselves...racially, that is.

That is the problem. People need to understand that being a minority isn't based upon the color of people's skin.

Minorities include any group of individuals who are oppressed by society.

This includes gays and lesbians.

They voiced their concerns about gays and lesbians being around children and what effect it could have on them. Yet, throughout the entire time they were talking, I never once heard them justify their reasoning...so I am assuming that they feel it is wrong due to religious beliefs.

Well, to make a long story short, I thought that I needed to clear up a few things. I raised my hand and asked if I could say a few words, even though I wasn't in the class. I told the group that the gay and lesbian community, or any oppressed group of individuals, needed support.

We don't have to agree on every issue because the world would be pretty dull if we did. What I suggested to the group was that they educate themselves on the issue.

Education provides the necessary tools that are needed to overcome all prejudices, stereotypes, and discrimination. As I sat on the steps listening, a woman, who seemed to have come out of nowhere, leaned over and said something that I will never forget. She said, "Remember, when children first begin to speak, they babble."

Words to live by, don't you think?

The All State

Austin Peay State University's official weekly student newspaper

Editor-in-Chief
Alicia Moorehead

News Editor
Kelly Wilkerson
assistant, Carinda Bass

Opinion Editor
John Alley
assistant, Lane Crawley

Features Editor
Lydia Melton

Copy Editor
Jim Keutzer

The All State is published every Wednesday of the academic year, except during final exams and holidays.

All editorials are the official opinions of The All State with the exception of letters to the editor and personal columns.

Letters to the editor should be less than 300 words and have the full name, address and phone number of the author. Letters must be received no later than 5 p.m. the Friday before the Wednesday printing. The All State is printed by The Leaf-Chronicle, Clarksville, Tenn.

In our 68th year of publication

Cartoonist
Chris Downes

Sports Editor
Scott Hoskins

Business Manager
James Jarmon

Advertising Manager
Merri Chardhart

Adviser
Marc L. Hooks

Circulation Manager
Sandra Brandon

A classmate remembers...

Student death tragic to all

By TIFFANY JOHNSON
staff writer

It was on Friday, Sept. 13, that my American History professor, nearing the end of his list, stopped reciting the names on his roll. He thought it odd that Penny Williams was not in her front row seat since she had not missed any classes to date.

She had not even so much as been a few minutes late to any class. Before calling the rest of his list, he asked that someone give her the weekend's assignment.

It wasn't until the following Wednesday that my classmates and I learned that Penny's name wouldn't be called out in our class again.

Williams was murdered in Texas by Dr. Rueben Ross, a man she had met on the Internet.

In the early morning hours of Sunday, Sept. 15, Williams was shot in the head at a farm meadow near Marshall, Texas. Ross then put her body in the trunk of his car. When a deputy approached Ross's car, Ross shot and killed himself.

Ross reportedly visited Williams in Clarksville over Labor Day Weekend. He was a third-year anesthesiology resident at LSU Medical Center in Shreveport.

Williams was a junior at Austin Peay, majoring in social work. A mother and a wife who was only 25, Penny Williams was a devoted student. Perhaps, I too, would be unaffected by her death if she had not sat in the chair next to me in American History 1010.

It wasn't until my professor pointed out the chair where Penny had sat once that her death became so personal. It wasn't until she was no longer in that chair that I realized that any one of us could be a victim of a horrific crime. After all, it happened to Penny.

I did not know her at all. I can remember an exchange of smiles, but I never spoke to her. Her image would always be as does her detailed notebook that I would have liked to have during the first test.

She was the kind of student that many of us can only hope to be. It was obvious that Penny wanted to be in school, as it was obvious that she would have been very successful out of school. I consider her death a loss to this university and a loss to this world.

What makes a superhero?

By NATHAN DAUGHERTY
guest writer

that's been casually tossed around these days: the label of superhero.

Obviously, you got Superman... I mean he's got "super" in his name. Aquaman can control sea animals. I don't even have to sneeze at all that Radioactive man can do.

Then you got my personal superhero, Bob Chung.

Now for the unsuperheroes, or costume wearing momma's boys who can't find a calendar to see that Halloween is over, as I like to call them. You got your Spidermans, your Power Rangers, Achilles, your Ticks, Eddie Vedder and your Cobra Commanders.

Then you got Batman, perhaps the biggest fraud of a superhero known to man.

All he is is a very a very athletic guy with good looks and awesome manners. If it weren't for his gadgets and stuff, all he'd do is go out with Batgirl. Instead of Batman, they should call him Good Lookin' Manner Man.

Then he could tell us all the difference, if there is one, between saying "thank you" and "thank you, too".

Alrighty, now I'll give you a little example of the types of things I hope to write about. My beef this week is with the label fall out of? With "holly this" and "holly that," it just proves that Robin isn't the only one fishing without a lure.

I guess I just wish that these people who give out these labels would consider who they're labeling. Let's research more, and stop giving in to all the sucking up these "heroes" do.

Instead of superheroes, call them suck up heroes. That ought learns them not to dive into a profession without first getting a degree as many basketball players do. Hey people, don't pay the fee, get your degree.

Well, that's about all I have to say on that subject. Now, I am always interested in my readers' opinions, so, if you have one, write me at my P.O. Box... not the All State's, but my box.

You'll have to look it up because I only want opinions that are strongly motivated, and the person will have to get me to see it.

If you're lucky, maybe I'll put your name in the paper, too.

That's all from this side.

I'm Nathan Daugherty, zipping up, flushing, and saying "Talk to ya later, Peay!"

Letters to the editor

Dr. Asanbe leaves legacy behind

Adieu, Joseph Asanbe.

Dr. Joseph Asanbe! What is left to say?

I doubt there is a noun or an adjective in the English language which has not at one time or another been applied to describe this authentically gentle and quiet man.

A legend, that has left a legacy by his teaching young minds.

He used education to light the path for students to be independent and challenged us (students) to always be at our best, for he believes that knowledge is power.

As a student in classes (1210,1220) he says, "with education, people, nations would be able to bring ignorance, fear, poverty and superstition to its lowest form."

He also realized that not all students are equally endowed, hence he would spend extra hours to teach with his students.

With his students, he had helped many to overcome. In his classes he allowed students to see both sides of the coin.

Nigeria has indeed lost a giant.

"Erin wo, Asanbe lo" ("The elephant has fallen, Asanbe is gone").

Young generation's dancing reflects their attitude

As a nontraditional student on this campus, I just want to comment on the way the younger generation acts.

One thing I don't get is how everybody wants to take it easy and not work as hard as people used to.

For example, what's up with the new dance or style of dancing. I will watch MTV with my son and I see these artists dancing like that you call it, and sometimes they just end up and down, and sometimes, if we, the viewer, are lucky, they might use their arms. This is such a weak dance.

What ever happened to the Charleston or the Boxtrot?

That dance is relevant to do. I'm being sarcastic. I know, Lee, let me make all of our songs out of three chords and just sit down and ram into each other until we can't get our breath and are dripping with sweat.

What ever happened to groups like Gwar, Metal Church, and Confederate Railroad? You know, groups that play many chords that you can dance to. Well, in conclusion I do not think that our younger generation is capable of working hard.

It's reflected in their dancing.

Jasper K. Nelson-Fitzpatrick

Friday Osaseri

September 25, 1996

Sports

Govs finished off in fourth

By SCOTT HOSKINS

sports editor

Three quarters into Saturday's game against Western Kentucky, Austin Peay's Governors were on their feet with the 15th-ranked Hilltoppers.

However, the first five minutes of the fourth quarter saw Western jump out to an insurmountable 27-2 lead. The Hilltoppers went on to add another touchdown before the carnage was over, and the final score was WKU 34, APSU 2.

Early on, it looked as if Western would dominate every aspect of the game as they marched 69 yards in 17 plays on their first possession to score on quarterback Willie Taggart's five-yard dash. The drive consumed 6:41 of the first quarter.

On the Govs' first drive of the game, they managed minus one yards on three plays and were forced to punt the ball.

After that, the Govs' defense took over the first half. In Western's next possession until the final drive of the second quarter, the Govs' defense allowed only 65 yards total offense. They forced the Hilltoppers to punt on three straight possessions, as well as stopping the visitors on a fourth-down play.

Once again, it was the Governor offense that failed to get the job done. For the third straight game, the offense sputtered to a complete standstill.

In the first half, the Governor offense totalled an anemic 62 yards, including a missed 37-yard field goal by junior David Young that would have brought the Govs to within four points of the Hilltoppers. Instead, the score remained 7-0 Western at the half.

The second half saw the same lethargic offense by the Govs. The first four offensive drives saw four punts by APSU. On their next offensive drives, the Govs had 13 yards and were held to three-and-out each time.

Once again it was the Austin Peay defense to the rescue. Western's first two drives of the second half ended after Peay's D held the Hilltoppers to three-and-out both times. WKU managed only 15 yards total offense on the drives.

The first play of the fourth quarter saw Western's Latravis Powell plunge into the endzone from 10 yards out after a 12-play, 56-yard drive. Jeff Poisel's kick gave Western a 24-7 lead.

Matt Austin Peay's next possession, quarterback Matt Hicks threw the first of his two interceptions of the night, and it could not have come at a worse moment.

As Hicks was trying to throw the ball away, he fell and the errant pass went into the hands of Hilltopper defensive end Brandon Egan, who returned the interception 27 yards for a touchdown and put the game out of reach.

It was due to the offense in its next possession that Hicks threw his second interception to Hilltopper Delvechio Wall, who scampered 26 yards to the Austin Peay 15.

From there, Antwan Floyd charged into the endzone from three yards out to cap off a flurry of Hilltopper scoring.

Peay's only points of the contest came after Jules Hewitt blocked Jeff Poisel's extra point attempt and Tyrone Wilson intercepted the ball and ran 20 yards for two points. The score was 27-2 in favor of Western Kentucky at the point.

After the Govs punted the ball on its next possession, losing 15 yards on three plays, Western Kentucky put the exclamation point on the rout by scoring again, this time on Dale Robinson's 10-yard run around the end. Poisel's kick made the score 34-2, Western Kentucky.

Western dominated the game in time of possession, keeping the ball for nearly 40 minutes. WKU racked up 291 net yards of offense.

The Governor offense managed only 137 total yards of offense. Matt Hicks struggled at the QB position, completing only 11 of 28 passes for 42 yards. The rushing game fared better, totalling 95 yards on 25 attempts. Once again freshman Terrence Tillman led the Govs in rushing with 68 yards on 11 carries.

Next week the Govs hit the road again for the OVC opener against Murray State.

Last year the Govs lost to the Indians 38-28. SEMO was blanked 16-0 last week by defending league champion Murray State. The next home game is Homecoming, Oct. 19, against OVC rival Tennessee Tech Golden Eagles.

Lady Govs lose OVC opener

By SCOTT HOSKINS
sports editor

The Middle Tennessee State Lady Raiders came to town last week to face the Lady Govs in the Ohio Valley Conference volleyball season opener for both teams.

The Lady Govs entered the match on a high note after winning three of four matches at the Memphis Invitational the previous weekend and looked to duplicate their improved play against the visitors from Murfreesboro.

The Lady Govs were intent on keeping their improved play alive in the first set when they defeated the Lady Raiders 15-11.

The title was turned in the second set, however, and the tone was established for the remainder of the match. In what proved to be a huge momentum killer, the Lady Govs dropped a heartbreaker to the visitors 14-16.

The Lady Govs now stand at 5-5 for the season and 0-1 in Ohio Valley Conference play. The next home match is Oct. 11 against the Eastern Kentucky Lady Colonels.

Middle continued to play well in the third set. Having lost the edge, the Lady Govs were dominated by the Lady Raiders and managed to win only six points in the game. MTSU took the game 15-6.

The fourth game saw the Lady Govs manage a complete turnaround from the previous set. They played with determination and knotted the match at two games each by winning the third set 15-6.

The fifth and deciding set kept the crowd at 100 on the edge of their seats for the whole set. The Lady Govs appeared ready to make a terrific comeback from the brink of elimination. They played well, but in the end the Lady Raiders played better and won the set 16-14 and the match three sets to two.

The Lady Govs now stand at 5-5 for the season and 0-1 in Ohio Valley Conference play. The next home match is Oct. 11 against the Eastern Kentucky Lady Colonels.

The Sports Corner: what's wrong with the Govs?

sports opinion
By SCOTT HOSKINS
sports editor

Having sat through a debacle called a football game on Saturday night, I feel that I am entitled to my opinion on Austin Peay football.

First, let's state the facts:

The last winning team Austin Peay had was in 1984 when the Govs were 7-4-0 under Emory Hall. This makes eleven straight losing seasons. It appears that we're headed for a 12th straight this season.

The last year Austin Peay even came close to having a winning record was in 1991, Roy Gregory's first season at the helm of the Govs.

Since 1991, the football program has won a total of 11 games while losing 30.

In Austin Peay's football history, the school has amassed a 225-349 record, a winning percentage of .381.

So what could be wrong with the APSU football program?

Looking at the statistics, it appears that Austin Peay's football program has never had success. Does that heritage excuse them from always having a losing record? It shouldn't. Still, eleven years in a row without a winning record?

Why shouldn't Austin Peay be enjoying the success that schools such as MTSU, Eastern Kentucky and Murray State have?

I believe that the solution to the problem has to start at the top. Austin Peay has to commit itself to winning if it is to have any chance of being competitive. This school goes year after year contended with a third-rate team.

I know that Roy Gregory is a very good person, and an asset to our community. He is also an excellent defensive coach. This year he has devoted more time to the defensive side of the ball, and for the people who have been at the games, it shows.

But realistically, I think coach Gregory would make a much better defensive coordinator than a head coach. What this school needs is a strong defensive coordinator as Gregory, and a head coach who specializes in offense. History tells us that coaches who come from the defensive side of the ball do not make good head coaches. The head coaches are often minded.

The offense is what is to a good football team. The offense is terrible, and I mean awful. It moves the ball with effectiveness at all.

Matt Hicks has proved that he has the arm to throw the ball, but hasn't exhibited the intelligence that a quarterback must possess to be a leader. The offense is interceptions and one touchbacks on the season does not make intelligent quarterback.

Coach Gregory is in charge of throwing the ball, yet the team has had more success on the ground.

In the past, APSU has had success running the ball. The team can get a quarterback to move the ball in the pocket, which should keep the ball on the ground.

Daniel Williams is an excellent runner. I say let him have a running the offense. It may not be the best, but it's better than nothing.

Also, the kicking game is not great. David Young has yet to prove that he can kick a 25-yard field goal. He is only 1-3 this season.

I know that Austin Peay has players to win, it's just a matter of utilizing them to their abilities. The failure to utilize the players must fall on the heads of the coaching staff. I think that coach's sixth season, the school should show improvement. That hasn't happened, however, and at the time he comes to act for loyalty, Austin Peay will continue to lose fans if the team remains this way.

Also, the kicking game is not great. David Young has yet to prove that he can kick a 25-yard field goal. He is only 1-3 this season.

I know that Austin Peay has

INTRAMURALS

THIS WEEK'S FLAG FOOTBALL GAMES

Wednesday, Sept. 25

6 p.m.: AGR Gang Green vs. Pikes Garnet & M.F. Gainers vs. Pi Mu Alpha

7 p.m.: Sig Ep Red vs. Kappa Sigma Gators & Sigma Chi Gold vs. Bud Boys

Thursday, Sept. 26

6:30 p.m.: Alpha Delta Pi vs. Chi Omega

Monday, Sept. 30

6 p.m.: Ex Black vs. AGR Gang Green & Bud Boys vs. M.F. Gainers

7 p.m.: Pikes Garnet vs. Sig Ep Red & N.W.O. vs. Sigma Chi Gold

COMING SOON!
Men's & Women's Soccer
&
Men's, Women's & Co-Rec Volleyball

Journey beyond the edge of reality.

Terry Pratchett, England's number one bestselling author, brings his unique sense of humor and fantasy to his latest work. Set in his bizarre and beloved Discworld, Feet of Clay follows the Commander of the Ankh Morpork City Guard, Sir Samuel Vimes and his Dwarf companion, Corporal Cheery Littlebottom on the trail of an invisible killer. Their highly unusual investigation leads them to the one thing the city could do without—a King.

Feet of Clay, one of more than a dozen Discworld titles.

HarperPrism
An Imprint of HarperCollins
<http://www.harpercollins.com>

RUGBY'S

SPORTS BAR

'HOME TO THE ARMCHAIR QUARTERBACK'

111 Franklin Street • 503-0416

SIGMA CHI BENEFIT

for the Children's Miracle Network

Sept. 26th

featuring

"The Party Favors"

Doors open at 8 p.m.

$5 to get in

All proceeds go to the Children's Miracle Network

Come in For a Chance to Win Two Tickets
to the Superbowl!

Rugby's is the Place
for Football!!!
See EVERY NFL
GAME!

Q108 Every
Monday Night
Lots of Giveaways

Food &
Drink
Specials
Every Night

Under
New Management

547 Main Street • 648-3090

Monda
Night
Footba

Happy Ho

'till 10 p.m.

Hours: 4 p.m.-2 a.m.

Tuesday:

College Night

75¢ Draft

Happy Hour 'till 10 p.m.

Hours: 4 p.m.-2 a.m.

Wednesday: Ladies Night

$1.50 bottles/$1 drafts

Hours: 4 p.m.-2 a.m.

Thursday: Deck Party

$1.50 bottles/$1 drafts (NO COVER)

Hours: 4 p.m.-2 a.m.

Friday: Live Music w/ Drink Specials

Hours: 4 p.m.-3 a.m.

Saturday: Live Music

Hours: 4 p.m.-3 a.m.

Sunday: Football (Happy Hour All Day)

Hours: 12 p.m.-12 a.m.

NOTHING TO DO ON THE WEEKENDS?

GO CAVING!

Experience Mammoth Cave National Park.

October 26, 1996.

Seats are going fast, only 20 left. Must sign up no later than October 18.

At a price you can't beat: $20.00*

This advertisement is brought to you by the letters U, P and C, the University Programs Council. Contact UPC at 648-7007 or the Office of Student Activities at 648-7431 for more information. U.P.C. - Putting the Pieces Back into Quality Programming.

*Must be 18 or older. Must provide proof of insurance. Faculty and Staff cost is a mere $22.00.

The ARC
Thrift Store
1694 Ft. Campbell Blvd. • 905-0900
(between the Super Wal-Mart & 101st Parkway)
New & Used Clothing, Furniture, Housewares & More

SUPER SALE EVERY DAY!
Check Our Prices on Athletic Shoes & Levi's!
Open Monday - Saturday 9 a.m.-5 p.m.
All proceeds benefit retarded citizens of Montgomery Co.

25¢ Drinks
w/ APSU ID

419 N. Riverside Drive 3497 Ft. Campbell Blvd.
552-3620 431-5008
Late Night Drive Thru Fri. & Sat. 'till 2 a.m.
Breakfast & Dinner Served 11 p.m.-2 a.m.
2 pc. Meal for $2.99
or 2 Chicken Biscuits for $3
with this coupon • Expires 10/31/96

The All State Classifieds

STUDENT ASSISTANT wanted in Developmental Studies Program approx. 10-20 hrs per wk. Must have good oral and written communication skills. Proper telephone etiquette necessary. Must be able to maintain confidentiality. All applicants must now be enrolled in Developmental Studies courses. Duties include filing; answering telephones and directing calls; operating copier for duplicating; running campus errands and performing other duties as assigned.

presents The Franklin St Music Festival

Saturday September 28, 1996
12noon - 8pm

appearing live:
THE BEAGLES
AMERICAN REGGAE
&
STARBILLY

lower parking lot on Franklin St.

proceeds to benefit

BETTY'S BEAUTY SHOP
820 College Street
645-8336
Specializing in ethnic hair
Ask for Valerie

FREE T-SHIRT
+$1000
Credit Card fundraisers for fraternities, sororities & groups. Any campus organization can raise up to $1000 by earning a whopping $5.00/VISA call!
Call 1-800-932-0526 ext. 65
Qualified callers receive
FREE T-SHIRT

September 25, 1996

Features

Movie Review

Despite Dole, 'Trainspotting' on right track

By LYDIA MELTON
features editor

"Trainspotting." One of the year's most controversial movies, Bob Dole condemned it (even though he hasn't seen it). Of course, I had to see it.

I bought "Trainspotting" the book this summer and tried to read it. I couldn't make it past page two. The book is written in dialect. I couldn't figure out what was going on. Well, now I know.

"Trainspotting" is the story of Mark Renton (Ewan McGregor)

and his heroin junkie friends. They are slackers who spend most of their days trying to score drugs and the rest of their time getting high. Renton has given up several times to get clean, but his friends keep dragging him back into the lifestyle even after he moves to London to escape it and them.

Yes, this is a very disturbing movie. I would not recommend this movie to everyone. Some scenes are very graphic but, given the subject matter of the film, they have to be.

"Trainspotting" is a really funny movie. Most of the comic dialogue is written by one of Renton's buddies, Sick Boy (Johnny Lee Miller) who has an obsession with things Sean Connery.

Some people, like Dole and other critics, say this movie glorifies drug use by showing the extreme highs that heroin can give. What these people fail to mention is that it also shows the terrible lows that drug use causes.

"Trainspotting" graphically and realistically portrays the damage that drugs can do. From stealing from family and friends to overdosing and AIDS, nothing is taboo. How anyone can think that this movie glamorizes drugs is beyond me. If anything, I would say it has a strong anti-drug message.

Jennifer Mackey (left) as Mrs. Gibbs and Mitch Diehr as the Stage Manager discuss a scene from the upcoming AP Playhouse production of "Our Town" with stage manager Samantha Townsel (right). For more details see Art Scene below.

HEY!

ALL STUDENT ORGANIZATION
PRESIDENTS AND ADVISORS!
(Those who missed the meeting)

Please stop by the SDC to pick up the forms needed to officially register your organization for the upcoming year.

The forms are to be submitted by
September 27, 1996.

Ellington 214

Thank you for your help!

For more information, call 648-6242

Local bands to play Franklin
Street festival

The First Annual Franklin Street Music Festival kicks off this Saturday, Sept. 28. The festival, which will feature music from The Beagles, The Great American Reggae Band and Starbilly begins at 12 noon and will be held in the parking lot next to the Roxy Theater on Franklin Street.

Organizers Jeff Robinson and Michael Salver have put this event on for two reasons. First they hope to bring more people to downtown Clarksville. Second, they are raising money for the downtown Clarksville Mainstreet. Mainstreet Clarksville is an organization that strives to improve the downtown area while maintaining its historic integrity.

This year's sponsors are Bud Light Party 102.5 and The Blackhorse Brewery. The sponsors have enabled the event to bring good music to the stage for all three performances.

Local favorites The Beagles lead off at 2 p.m. They are followed by The American Reggae Band from Memphis at 4 p.m., and Starbilly from Louisville will close the show, playing from 6 to 8 p.m.

There will also be plenty of food and beverages to enjoy at the festival. Cajun cuisine will be cooking at the Front Page Deli booth. Rugby's booth will feature hot wings. The Franklin Street Pub will have a booth serving barbecue and more.

The event is expected to draw approximately 1,000 people.

Art Scene

Upcoming Art Events for Sept. 25-Oct. 2

* "Brushworks" Exhibit

A selection of oil and acrylic works from the APSU permanent collection is now on display in the Harned Gallery throughout the semester. Gallery hours are from 8 a.m.-4 p.m., Mon.-Fri. It is free and open to the public. For more information, call 648-7333.

* AP Playhouse presents "Our Town"

Tickets are now on sale at the theatre box office for the 1996-97 AP Playhouse season-opening production of "Our Town," which runs Oct. 2-6 at the Trathen Theatre. Performances are at 7:30 p.m., Wed. Sat., 2 p.m. on Sun. Admission is $5 for adults and $3 for students. Box office hours are 2-6 p.m., Mon.-Fri. For more information, call 648-7379.

* Jeffrey Wood-Stanley Yates Faculty Recital — CANCELED for Sept. 26.

The recital will be rescheduled at a later date. For more information, call the APSU department of music at 648-7818.

* Art Exhibit — Suzanne Stryk and Marilyn Nelson

Sculptures by Suzanne Stryk and paintings by Marilyn Nelson will be on display Sept. 20-Oct. 27 at the Trathen Gallery. The opening reception is Sept. 30 from 7-8:30 p.m. Gallery hours are 9 a.m.-4 p.m., Mon.-Fri., 10 a.m.-2 p.m., Sat., 1-4 p.m., Sun. It is free and open to the public.

PRINCIPLES of SOUND RETIREMENT INVESTING

EVERYONE WILL GIVE YOU
THEIR TWO CENTS WORTH, BUT WILL
THAT BE ENOUGH TO RETIRE ON?

Today there seems to be an investment expert or financial advisor almost everywhere you turn. But just how qualified are all these experts?

Peace of mind about your future comes from solid planning. From investments and services designed and managed with your needs and retirement security specifically in mind. The kind of investments and services TIAA-CREF has been providing for more than 75 years.

WE'LL HELP YOU BUILD A REWARDING RETIREMENT.

Our counselors are trained retirement professionals who have only you and your future in mind. So you're treated as the unique person you are, with special needs and concerns about retirement. And that makes for an understanding, comfortable relationship.

With TIAA-CREF you have plenty of choice and flexibility in building your retirement nest egg — from TIAA's guaranteed traditional annuity to the investment opportunities of CREF's seven variable annuity accounts. And we're nonprofit, so our expense charges are among the lowest in the insurance and mutual fund industries! That means more of your money is where it should be — working for you.

TIAA-CREF is now the largest private pension system in the world, based on assets under management — managing more than $150 billion in assets for more than one and a half million people throughout the nation.

TIAA-CREF: THE CHOICE THAT MAKES SENSE.

It's tough to wade through all the "advice" to find a reliable pension plan provider. But as a member of the education and research community, your best choice is simple: TIAA-CREF. Because when it comes to helping you prepare for retirement, our annuities will add up to more than spare change.

For more information about how TIAA-CREF can help you prepare for the future, call our Enrollment Hotline at 1-800 842-2888.

Mr. Gatti's

647-7728
1807 Madison Street

All-You-Can-Eat Lunch Buffet

$2.99

Mondays from 11-2 p.m.

"Pizza, Pasta, Salad and Dessert Pizza"

APSU Chapter 191 of the Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi invites all Juniors and Seniors to attend a valuable Graduate School workshop

IS GRAD SCHOOL IN YOUR FUTURE?

Thursday, September 26, 1996

Time: 3:30-5:30 p.m.

Gentry Auditorium of Kimbrough Building

Program

"Why Attend Graduate School?"

Dr. Steven K. Pontius, VPA

"Graduate School: How to Get There From Here"
Dr. Barbara Tarter, Asst. VP for Enrollment Management

"At Your Fingertips: Library Resources to Assist With Graduate School Decisions"
Ms. Lori Buchanan, Woodward Library

"Living Proof: It Can Be Done"
Ms. Loretta Griffy, Asst. Professor of DSP
Current Graduate Student

Ensuring the future
for those who shape it™

Standard & Poor's Investment Rating Analysis 1995. Listed Individual Investor for Large-Diversified Analysis. © 1995 TIAA-CREF. All rights reserved.
TIAA-CREF is a registered trademark of TIAA-CREF Individual and Institutional Investors.

Features

September 25, 1996

New Zealand artist lands at APSU

A visual artist from Wellington, New Zealand, is in residence at the Department of Art at Austin Peay.

Leigh Tracy Anderson is on a year-long International Fellowship and Residency Program of the Mid-American Alliances United States Commission Agency. A high school teacher in New Zealand, she is a recent graduate of Waitemata Polytechnic in Wellington where she received a diploma in craft design and also received a teaching diploma from Wellington College of Education.

Anderson was one of three artists chosen from 88 New Zealand entries and one of 23 artists from around the world selected to participate in this program.

The program follows a two-year cycle. During the first year, nominations are received, applications are reviewed by a nationally recognized panel, award recipients are announced to arts institutions across the United States. Award applications are solicited from potential residency sites. In the second year, 30-day individual tours of the United States are conducted for the international fellowship recipients, who then spend 45-day residencies at university and college art departments and artists' communities.

During her residency, Anderson has been housed in an open artists' studio primarily working on drawings and free-standing works where the viewer will have some type of interaction with her pieces. She works in mixed media, utilizing a variety of materials in different situations to give viewers multiple opportunities to alter their view of her work by offering a range of materials, layers or other elements superimposed over one another.

The purpose of the International Fellowship and Residency Program is to further an international exchange of contemporary artistic viewpoints by providing international artists with the opportunity to live and work in the United States.

For more information, telephone the APSU department of art at 648-7333.

Phone volunteers draw new students

In the afternoons, after most people have left for the day, a small group of students remains on campus burning up the telephone trying to recruit prospective students for the university.

They are called correspondent representatives, and their job is to prospective students who have expressed an interest in Austin Peay to see if they have any questions about housing, financial aid and admissions requirements.

Robert Biggers, assistant director of admissions, is in charge of correspondent representatives and cannot say enough good things about the work they do.

"Often we get students who say, 'it's one of the reasons I chose Austin Peay, because of the personal contact that I was given at the University.' Other universities may not contact them except by letter if they have been accepted. We take it a step further. We call the students and families to see if there is any personal information they need," said Biggers.

Biggers said that students and parents are often reluctant to ask questions of counselors and feel an movie and thought it was great or it sucked? Well write about it. Send your movie reviews to The All State.

more comfortable talking to the current students. Correspondent representatives can also schedule visits to campus.

Biggers said the representatives follow up with the students who have been reached by admissions, counselors and recruiters. "The correspondent representatives have a printout of prospective students statewide and covering four counties in Kentucky," he explained. The correspondent representatives "are a tremendous help because of that personal touch," he said. Parents and students have given the university positive feedback on the work of the representatives, he said.

Most of the correspondent representatives are scholarship students. This year's representatives are Jennifer Rachels, Amy O'Rear, Rich Gentzler, Misty Baggett, Caryn Darwin, Melody Lewis, Mandy Elkins, Dawn Whitlock, Rakel Swofford, Sandra Zerr, Melanie Cox, Sarah Reed, Crissy Hester and Jennifer Madden.

"The correspondent representatives are good for the university," concluded.

UNIVERSITY OF TENNESSEE, MEMPHIS COLLEGE OF ALLIED HEALTH SCIENCES

"Education for Tennessee's good health"

Representatives will be on campus Monday, September 30, 1996 in the McCord Building from 1-3:00 pm. to tell you about career opportunities in Allied Health.

UT MEMPHIS offers degrees in:

- Cytotechnology, B.S.
- Dental Hygiene, B.S.
- Health Information Management, B.S.
- Medical Technology, B.S.
- Occupational Therapy, B.S.
- Physical Therapy, B.S., M.S.

College of Allied Health Sciences

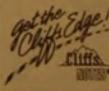

822 Beale Street
Memphis, TN 38163
901/448-5581
FAX 901/448-7545

UT Memphis is an EEO/AA/Title IX/Section 504/AADA Institution.

Think Quick.

When you need help preparing for a test, think quick. Cliffs Quick Reviews are from the leader in study guides: Cliffs Notes. Cliffs Quick Review guides are written to help better understand introductory courses. They are perfect for use as general course notes and for review before quizzes, midterms and finals.

Available at:
Book and Supply Store

Current titles include:
Algebra I • Algebra II • Basic Math & Pre-Algebra •
Biology • Calculus • Chemistry • Differential Equations •
Economics • Geometry • Physics • Statistics • Trigonometry

Introducing BLESSID UNION OF SOULS Homecoming Concert

Saturday, Oct. 19
8 p.m. · Dunn Center

presented by
Office of Student Activities
More Details Forthcoming

With your help,
MDA is building a tomorrow
without neuromuscular diseases.

MDA • Muscular Dystrophy Association • 1-800-572-1717

CRAWFISH BOIL

At the
Franklin Street Festival • Sept. 28
& Every Friday & Saturday Night!

BEER BUCKET SPECIALS TOO!

3RD & COMMERCE STREETS
(CADDY CORNER TO THE LEAF-CHRONICLE & COURT HOUSE)
503-0325

FRONT PAGE DELI NEWS

Free
DeliveryBetter Ingredients.
Better Pizza.

South Clarksville &
APSU CAMPUS
551-3000

Introducing...
THIN CRUST
PIZZA

Large One Topping
Thin Crust $8.99

Expires 30 days. Not valid with any other offer. Valid only at participating locations. Customer pays all applicable sales tax. Additional toppings extra.
One Large
Two Toppings$7.99One Large with The Works™$10.99Two Large
Two Toppings$14.99
Expires 30 days. Not valid with any other offer. Valid only at participating locations. Customer pays all applicable sales tax. Additional toppings extra.
Expires 30 days. Not valid with any other offer. Valid only at participating locations. Customer pays all applicable sales tax. Additional toppings extra.

Now Accepting Visa & Mastercard

CAREER FAIR

JOBS! JOBS! JOBS! JOBS!

WHERE?

Austin Peay State University
Career Services 1996-97
Career Fair

Register for free prizes to be given away by Career Services.

When: Monday, Oct. 7, 1996

Where: University Center Ballroom

Time: 10 a.m. - 3 p.m.

FOR A LIST OF COMPANIES,
PLEASE SEE
OTHER SIDE

1996-97 CAREER FAIR PARTICIPANTS

Organizations

@work Futures Employment Service Inc.
ADT Security Systems
Advanced Receivables Strategy Inc.
American General Finance
APSU ROTC
Bankers Trust
Becker CPA
CCA Metro Davidson County Detention Facility
Emro Marketing
Enterprise Rent-A-Car
Federal Bureau of Investigation
The Finish Line
Kentucky Fried Chicken
Meldisco/Kmart Footwear
The New England
O'Dowd Enterprises Inc
Primus Automotive Financial Services
Principal Financial Group
Radio Shack/Tandy Corporation
Sherwin-Williams
State of Tennessee Treasury Dept.
State of Tennessee-Office for Information Resources
Target
Tennessee Air National Guard
Tennessee Dept. of Audit

Tennessee Dept. of Environment & Conservation
Tennessee Dept. of Human Services
Tennessee Dept. of Revenue
Tennessee Society of CPAs
The United Methodist Publishing House
U. S. Air Force
U. S. Army
U. S. Marine Corp
U. S. Navy
Woodmen of the World

Graduate Schools

Middle Tennessee State University
Murray State University-College of Business
Tennessee Tech. University, Division of MBA Studies
Trevecca Nazarene University
The University of Memphis-Graduate School
The University of Memphis-Law Admissions
University of Tennessee - Knoxville College of Law
University of Tennessee - Knoxville Graduate School
Western Kentucky University-Graduate School

*ADDITIONAL COMPANIES MAY SIGN UP LATE.

How to make the most of the Career Fair!!!!

1. Professional dress for the event is a must. You don't get a second chance to make a first impression.
2. Be prepared. Have plenty of current resumes and documents at hand.
3. Come early.
4. Research your companies.
5. Make sure you note your interviewer's name (get his/her card). You should respond within a week with a thank you letter.

Austin Peay State University is an equal opportunity employer committed to the education of a non-racially identifiable student body.
Austin Peay State University
A Tennessee Board of Regents Institution
AP-182/9-96