Missing since Feb. 12

APSU student disappears, authorities still puzzled

Officials here had no new information early Tuesday morning about the disappearance of 19-year old Austin Peay freshman Rodney Long.

Long, a splitend on the Governor football squad, has been missing since Friday. He was last seen leaving the Big Burger restaurant on College Street Friday at 12:30 a.m.

Long's roommate, Joey Vaughn, spoke to Long at 11 p.m. when he was leaving Rawlins Hall. Long told Vaughn that he was going to get something to eat. Authorities have been unable to determine where Long was between 11 p.m. and 12:30 a.m.

When Long didn't return to his room after his trip to the restaurant, his roommate contacted Emory Hale, Austin Peay's head football coach. Hale later contacted campus authorities when Long failed to report to football practice.

"Long is a dependable young man; he doesn't skip classes or meetings," said Athletic Director Johnny Miller, "this behavior isn't typical of him."

According to Barbara Mack, Long's mother, the freshman was supposed to go home (Gadsden, Ala.) for the weekend on Friday.

"He was supposed to call me Thursday night around 11 p.m. to let me know what time he would be able to leave on Friday. He was going to bring some friends home with him," Mack said, "Rodney never called. I know my son, he wouldn't do something like this. When he says he will do something, he does it."

Long was wearing blue jeans and a black and white referee shirt when last seen. He had refereed a girl's church basketball team earlier in the evening.

Long is six feet tall and weighs about 175 pounds. He has brown hair and brown eyes.

He was driving a 1974 two-door, dark brown Charger with a beige top. The car has an Alabama National Guard license plate 18117.

Anyone with information concerning Long's disappearance should contact APSU Public Safety officials, the Montgomery County's Sheriff's Department, or the Clarksville Police Department.

MISSING--Rodney Long, Austin Peay freshman, has been missing since Friday (Feb. 12) at 12:30 a.m. Long was last seen leaving the Big Burger restaurant on College Street. ## Increase in tuition and fees now 'inevitable'

A 10-20 percent increase in tuition and fees is inevitable now that the governor has used the recommended increase to calculate the budget, according to Chancellor Roy Nicks of the State Board of Regents.

The increase was recommended to Gov. Lamar Alexander at the November meeting of the Tennessee Education Commission and was based on THEC's policy of indexing tuition and fees at no more than 32 percent of the state appropriation for universities and 26 percent for technical institutions.

The recommended tuition and fee increases are:

- * 15 percent for undergraduate, in-state students at Memphis State University and the University of Tennessee-Knoxville and law, graduate and out-of-state students.

- * 10 percent for undergraduate, in-state students at all other universities and community colleges.

- * 20 percent for students at technical institutional and medical and veterinary-medicine students.

"The fee increase will be necessary for keeping up with inflation—supplies and materials cost, equipment replacement and possibly some small salary increase, above the 7 percent (recommended by the governor), for merit purposes," Nicks said Thursday.

Tuition and fees at Board of Regents schools have risen dramatically in the past two years in order to bring them in line with fees in the UT system.

Last year, undergraduate fees increased 28.2 percent at SBR universities, except for MSU which experienced a 34.1 percent increase. This increase was preceded by an 18.1 percent increase the year before.

As of last fall, MSU fees are equal to UT-Knoxville fees, and other SBR university fees are equal to UT-Chattanooga fees.

Out-of-state tuition increased 52 percent over the past two years. Graduate fees have increased 74 percent (77 percent at MSU), and fees at community colleges have increased 55 percent.

The governor also recommended that each institution have an average salary increase of at least 7 percent. However, only 5 percent of this increase is to come from state appropriations. The other 2 percent must come from a reduction in personnel costs which must average 2 percent for the SBR system.

Because this reduction in personnel costs will be averaged for the system, Nicks said, the reduction probably will not be equal for all schools. Some may have to cut back more than 2 percent and others less.

"We are currently reviewing the positions of our institutions and considering several factors," he said.

These factors include overall staffing, teaching loads, class size, the percentage of the budget spent for payroll and the projected increase in next year's appropriation.

As an example of how one of these factors might affect the percentage of personnel reductions at an institution, Nicks compared Middle Tennessee State, which received a relatively large appropriation increase, and MSU, which did not fare so well.

Because of MTSU's growth, it might not be required to cut back as much as MSU, which would have to cut back more in order to balance its budget.

A comparison of recommended appropriations for operating funds at SBR schools shows MTSU, with an increase of $1.3 million, would receive the largest increase among the universities.

Chattanooga State would receive the greatest increase among the community colleges, with $298,900. The governor has proposed that two universities and two community colleges receive less for operations next year. Tennessee State would lose $953,700, MSU would lose $70,400, Shelby State would lose $225,400 and Cleveland State would lose $10,200.

Recommended increases for the other schools are:

- * Austin Peay - $268,800
- * East Tennessee State - $189,500
- * Tennessee Tech - $1,148,100
- * Columbus State - $22,100
- * Dyersburg State - $181,600
- * Jackson State - $170,300
- * Motlow State - $31,100
- * Roane State - $25,800
- * Volunteer State - $115,600
- * Walters State - $12,600

Prof. publishes article

Dr. Richard P. Gildrie, Austin Peay history professor, has recently published an article in the "New England Historical and Genealogical Register."

His article, "The Ceremonial Puritan: Days of Humiliation and Thanksgiving," is an attempt to use ideas from cultural anthropology to explain the social and political significance of civic and religious ceremonies in Puritan Massachusetts.

This article is part of a continuing effort by Gildrie to investigate the relationship between the Puritanism and popular culture in early America. Research on this general topic has been partially supported by the Tower Fund of Austin Peay State University.

Gildrie also assisted in a recent historic building survey co-sponsored by APSU and the Tennessee Historical Commission.

APSU may reduce payroll by $150,000

by Marie Rector

Austin Peay State University may be forced to reduce its payroll by $150,000, according to President Robert O. Riggs.

Riggs met with 150 employees last week to discuss the impact of Gov. Lamar Alexander's higher education budget for next year on the university.

Alexander is proposing $561 million for higher education. Austin Peay's budget is anticipated to be $14 million, of which $8.3 million is state appropriations. Riggs said, "In comparison to our state appropriations last year of $7.7 million, we're looking at only a $900,000 total increase in state funds. This increase, coupled with approximately $350,000 generated by higher student fee charges will enable APSU to continue to serve its students and the community well."

Alexander said that all state employees must receive a seven percent raise, but that state funds may only constitute five percent of the increase. Each institution must make up the remaining 2 percent from the reduction in personnel expenditure. According to Riggs, a 2 percent payroll reduction at Austin Peay would be $150,000.

Riggs said that the university expects to reduce expenses by not filling some currently vacant positions, by filling some of the positions at lower salaries than previously budgeted, and by not replacing some of the employees who leave. Riggs added, "We hope that this will account for most all of our $150,000 reduction. If not, we may be forced to cut personnel. We will only resort to this as a last step."

APSU officials met to prepare a plan to deal with the reduction, which will be submitted to the State Board of Regents. Riggs said no final action will be taken on this issue until the General Assembly approves it and the governor signs the Appropriations Bill into law prior to July 1.

Costume crew forced to 'sew play together'

by Mike Lynch

The time had finally come for all of the elements of the production to be put together this past weekend for tonight's opening of A Little Night Music by the AP Playhouse and Opera Theatre. The union was not complete but the promise was there for an outstanding performance.

A delay in the purchase of fabric for the show's costumes forced designer Annelise Beckman and her costume crew to undertake a series of all-night work sessions over the past two weeks to get the garments finished for tonight's performance. Though all of the garments were not ready for Friday's dress rehearsal, the crew, which consists of Pamela Cathey, Belinda Boyd, Melva Boyd, and other volunteers, planned a full weekend work party to complete the final details. From the appearance of the costumes which were on stage Friday, the others will be well worth the wait.

Friday's dress rehearsal was also the show's first rehearsal in two days. A choir convention in Birmingham, Ala. led directors Joe Filippo and Patrick Woliver of all but four members of the 20-person cast for two days.

The layoff was not evident in the rehearsal for most of the actors. A crisp pace was maintained by the

Food drive planned

The Mustard Seed is an agency that tries to meet the emergency needs of families in the Clarksville community. They receive requests for food from approximately 25 families a day. With dwindling food contributions, they are hard pressed to meet those needs and the organization is asking for the community's help.

Austin Peay has initiated a "Funds and Food Drive" in an effort to meet the growing needs of the community.

Austin Peay's student organizations have been encouraged to participate in the drive. This drive is in conjunction with and support of the Mustard Seed's efforts.

APSU's student organizations that want to help as part of this APSU community "Funds and Food Drive" need to collect their extra change and non-perishable food items. On Ash Wednesday—Feb. 24—at noon in the university center, an organization roll call will be held. At this time, contributions will be collected for delivery to the Mustard Seed.

Samuel Clemens on campus

Valentine re-creates Twain's character

by Gerry Tatham

Robert Valentine's production of "An Evening with Mark Twain" will be presented at Austin Peay by the University Women's Club in joint-sponsorship with the Visiting Speakers and Artists' Committee.

In two 50-minute acts, the traditionally white-suited, white-haired and mustached Twain—whose Huckleberry Finn was acclaimed by Ernest Hemingway as the most influential work of a twentieth-century American novelist—will come to life in all his witty, philosophical splendor.

That this same Samuel Clemens, born on November 30, 1835, in what he later called "the almost invisible village of Florida, Monroe County, Missouri" continues to remitate with 1980 audiences is to further emphasize Hemingway's pronouncement.

From the Hannibal, Missouri, of his boyhood to steamboat-piloting days on the Mississippi; from the pre-Civil-War South to the post-war nineteenth-century silverfields of Virginia City; from America to the continents of yesterday's and today's civilizations, the renowned author-lecturer-humorist continues to bring us the unique character of the American Frontier.

Out of Clemens' Hannibal youth emerges the characters of Tom Sawyer, Huck Finn, Becky Thatcher, Injun Joe, and their fellow-villagers. His own uncle John A. Quarles becomes Tom Sawyer's Uncle Silas Phelps in both Huckleberry Finn and Tom Sawyer, Detective.

From Twain's autobiography comes the information that he moved to the Quarles' farm from four miles outside Florida, Missouri, to Arkansas. "It was all of six hundred miles but it was no trouble; it was not a very large farm—five hundred acres perhaps—but I could have done it if it had been twice as large. And as for the morality of it, I cared nothing for that; I would move a state if the exigencies of literature required it."

From his own life, Twain shares with us his improvident brother Orion, his steamboat-pilot instructor Horace Bixby, his fellow story-teller Bert Harte, his adored wife Livy, his children—all but one doomed to predecease him.

His reader experiences with him that carefree-tragic procession of years between the arrival of Halley's Comet at Samuel Clemens' birth to its return across the skies signalling his death 75 years later.

Through fiction, travel-tale, biography and The Autobiography of Mark Twain, readers have made the acquaintance of their own humanity through a perspective mostly humorous, often critical, sometimes bitterly satirical.

In all of literary history, no personality has emerged more eccentric than Twain's Emmeline Grangerford, with her poetic and "sadful" obituary-art; no youth more imaginative and delightful than Tom Sawyer; no character more affirmatively self-educated than Huck Finn; no slave more sympathetically and lovingly portrayed than Jim, Huck's fellow-escapee from civilization's cruelties.

Certainly, no story-teller to this day has given the world what Mark Twain gave: humanity in his, and continues to give us through his reincarnation in Robert Valentine's artistry.

"An Evening with Mark Twain" will be presented March 27 at 8:00 p.m.

performers and they appeared to have a better grasp on their lines than they had had before the last rehearsal.

One area that prospered during the layoff was the set. This allowed designer Tom Pallen two uninterrupted days of construction in the theatre. Pallen, crewhead Rex Harder, and board operator Randy Sullivan were also able to invest time into putting the finishing touches on lighting for the show. Since A Little Night Music flows from one scene into the next with little or no break, precise lighting cues are vital to its fluidity.

A Little Night Music will open at 8 this evening in the Truett Theatre before a sold-out crowd. The show, which is co-produced by the AP Playhouse and Opera Theatre, sold the last of the tickets for the performances, which run through Saturday, late last week. A waiting list is available for anyone who would still like to obtain tickets. Persons already holding reservations are asked to pick them up no later than 7:45 on the evening of the performance.

Groseclose attends national meeting

Dr. J. Ronald Groseclose, director of student teaching and field experience at Austin Peay, attended a national meeting Feb. 11, in Washington, D.C.

The meeting was sponsored by the U.S. Office of Education. Groseclose presented a paper entitled, "Innovations in Pre-Service Teacher Education." The paper dealt with (cont. on page 8)

Muir speaks at Lipscomb

by Anthony Shaw

Dr. Malcolm Muir, associate professor of history at Austin Peay, will give a talk on "American Civil War at Sea" before the Middle Tennessee Round Table at David Lipscomb College on Feb. 18.

Shelby Foot and Bell Wiley are both members of the Round Table and will also be featured speakers.

The Round Table is an organization that deals with the history of the Civil War.

Foot, a resident of Memphis, wrote three chapters on "Civil War and Narrative." Wiley, the author of Johnny, is a prominent Civil War historian.

Muir received his B.A. from Emory in Atlanta, his M.A. from Florida State University, and his Ph.D. from Ohio State University. He is originally from Pennsylvania.

Even though there are many factors that caused the South to lose the Civil War, Muir said that the naval forces of the North played a major role in their victory at Fort Donelson, which was the first decisive battle won by the North.

Issue looms and declines

Debate over gun-control endless, definition needed

The issue of gun-control seems to loom and then decline with the coming and going of unfortunate gun-related events. After the assassinations of John F. Kennedy, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., John Lennon and others, gun-control became a popular basis of debate. Too soon, though, people grew tired of the debate and the dispute ended as quickly as it had begun.

Whether gun-control would prohibit the use of any gun, limit the numbers of guns available to Americans, or just make guns available to certain citizens, The All State has been unable to ascertain.

Since the term "gun-control" is not clearly defined, it is impossible to guess whether it would create the positive effects that its advocates desire. The lack of a fixed outline of standards for gun-control is the reason why the debates will probably continue without end.

Some of those against gun-control argue that they need guns for protection. The need for protection is obvious; America is simply too crime-ridden. Ideally, police officers should offer all the protection that any community would need. Adequate police protection, though, has become all but impossible with the tremendous increase of gun-related crimes. It is unrealistic to assume that gun-control would bring crime in America to a halt. However, would gun-control be introduced the number of violent crimes like murder and armed robbery would decline.

The next time one of the world's great citizens is assassinated you can expect to hear the debate over gun-control start again. Those supporting gun-control will huddle together, be called "radicals," and then after a few demonstrations the matter will be dropped. It is easy for people against gun-control to dismiss gun-control advocates as mere radicals letting off steam. They are not radicals; they are concerned citizens desperately trying to reduce violent crimes by establishing some type of restrictions on the availability of guns.

A clear-cut definition of gun-control must be established. Then and only then can people decide whether or not gun-control would reduce the number of gun-related crimes and deaths in America.

Reducing the number of gun-related crimes and deaths in America should be the concern of every citizen, whether for or against gun-control.

Letters to the editor

Chronicle's ethics blamed for death

Editor's note: The following letter was submitted to the Leaf-Chronicle by Glenn Carter Feb. 2, 1982. This letter was not published by the Leaf-Chronicle as Carter submitted it to The All State. This letter is directed toward the Leaf-Chronicle and not The All State.

Dear Editor:

I'm saddened but I'm also angry. The recent death of Pete Wenger is a tragedy for which I believe you (the Leaf-Chronicle) share some culpability. Your (the Leaf-Chronicle) constant sensationalizing of this whole episode makes one question your sense of journalistic ethics. Are you (the Leaf-Chronicle) trying to emulate the National Enquirer?

Your frequent front page attention to every detail concern the Trice Landing arrests, with your needless and unfair reference to "Austin Peay Professors", certainly intensified the homophobic atmosphere which already existed. What was your purpose in referring to the occupations of two of the accused while ignoring the occupations of the rest? Did you want to create pressure at Austin Peay to fire these men? To Austin Peay's credit, no moves were taken to pressure these men to resign, but your constant references must have added to the embarrassment in the classroom.

What a tragic waste to lose the talents and contributions of a useful member of the community as the result of a truly vicious crime. My God, it happened in August, and it still hasn't been resolved.

It's time that the charges against these men are dismissed before more tragedies occur. Who knows how much these men and their families have suffered over this? Enough! Surely the punishment greatly outweighs the crime.

It's also time our society learns to become more tolerant of people who are different. If people can be accepted for who they are, maybe they won't be forced to go to public parks to make contacts. In this Christian community of 91 churches maybe we can all show a little more understanding, compassion and acceptance of those who are different.

I certainly don't expect the Leaf-Chronicle to take the lead but hopefully you will show better judgement in the future.

Glenn Carter

Fan applauds support

Dear Editor:

I am a follower of Austin Peay's basketball team and have been a fan through the Governor's Sports Network broadcasts over WARD and other Kentucky FM stations since graduating in 1972.

Since the beginning of the OVC Television network broadcasts, I have been able to see Austin Peay games over the local KET station in Henderson, Ky. Before that I viewed the University of Evansville-Austin Peay game over Evansville TV Channel 14.

Our good years in basketball gave Austin Peay fame across my local area—during the "Fly Williams era." I see a lot of potential in our young team this year and hope for a better record soon.

Plasma Center a place for relaxation, life-savers

As I relaxed in one of the 36 brown luxury chairs that fill the Plasma Center my mind drifted. I couldn't help to think that it was 1960 or something and I was in Vietnam. I had been wounded when my hungry troops turned on me because I wouldn't share my box of Raisinettes with them.

I looked around the room and thought about when I first came to the Plasma Center. I was in dire straits at the time I read the ad offering $8 for my plasma, so I didn't need much persuasion. I figured that $8 was and the front door. While passing through them I made the mistake of quipping "drugies". One of them grabbed me by the arm.

"Hey, man, like we ain't no drugies. We kicked that term long ago. We are life-savers, you got it. Call us life-savers." The grip on my arm tightened.

"Life-savers. Okay, you're life savers." I was released. "Pompous life-savers" I said and slipped away from their tearing claws and into the safety of the Plasma Center.

The feeling of security soon vanished as I witnessed pricking of fingers, taking of weight, and sampling of urine when I entered. The clean smell of alcohol and the impure smell of used clothing battled each other. I turned and saw an elderly woman sitting and reading a book entitled The Basic Book of Autonyms and Synonyms. A nurse called her name and she got up saying "Oh, goody." The nurse handed her a clipboard and directed her to the rear of the room. The nurse then looked to me.

"May I help you?" she asked, wiggling her eyebrows up and down.

"Well, yes," I muttered, "I'd like to give blood, er... plasma. This is my first time."

The nurse handed me a pencil and said "Sign here," pointing to a spot under "new donors" as her eyebrows wiggled on.

Since then I've been to the Plasma Center many times. I never think too much of being a life-saver, but I guess I am.

The derelicts that I met my first day have reason to be pompous—many people depend on them and their plasma. Without their plasma many people would be in great distress. Donating plasma is not simply the difference between having $8 and not having $8, in many cases the difference is life and death.

Unlike whole blood, plasma can be given twice a week. Plasma, if I can remember correctly, is separated from your whole blood. The white blood cells are kept and the red blood cells are returned with a saline solution back into your body. I often get off on the cool feeling of the mixture as it goes back into my veins.

The process of donating plasma lasts about one and one-half hours, which may seem a long time to some. The time spent donating plasma is never dull, though. I usually write or read or watch C.J. (a nurse) order the other nurses around. C.J. is an army milites and often wears large black boots and a stiff upper lip.

The needle that is "stuck" into your arm when you give plasma is fairly large but causes little pain ("discomfort" they call it). If someone offers you $8 to get thirty you'd probably take it. Getting thirsty is comparable to the discomfort caused when you give plasma. And after the initial stick of the needle there is no further discomfort.

If the derelicts are keeping you away from the Plasma Center, don't worry. Just remember they are life-savers. You got it?

enough money for nearly 60 peanut butter and mayonnaise sandwiches, with enough change left over for a can of fruit cocktail.

Although the idea of having someone jab a needle into my arm was not too pleasant, I decided that the fruit cocktail was too tempting (i.e. beneficial, rewarding). I slowly got into my car and drove toward the Plasma Center.

When I got there several derelicts stood between me

Ladies on the loose

Women travelers depicted by their letters

by Chris McGary

Reporter's Note: This is my third article for The All State and I would like to mention that all of the books I discuss are available at the Woodward Library. I usually find them on the new acquisitions shelf, brand new and circulating for the first time. The title of William Plummer's biography of Neal Cassady, The Holy Goo!, was inadvertently omitted last week.

Ladies On the Loose is not about a weekend in Nashville! This book contains excerpts of letters from women travelers of the 18th and 19th centuries, edited by Lou Hamalian, who candidly admits that he chose those most interesting to him.

The lady traveler of these centuries (the 1700s and 1800s) was unusual, since travel abroad was generally the exclusive province of men engaged in study, war, exploration, or diplomatic intelligence gathering. Travel for women of the time was a gesture of independence, a yearning for freedom of thought and action. Improvement was the standard of the Age of Enlightenment and the Victorian Era, and a few brave women sought new experiences and observed strange customs and foreign cultures.

The seventeen voyagers represented in this collection journeyed through Europe, the Middle East, the Far East, and Africa. I found the author's organization of material excellent as the subject matter becomes increasingly exotic as the reader progresses. Mary Kingsley's description of coming upon a leopard in the midst of a tropical tornado in an Africa jungle raised the hairs on my neck. "He was crouching on the ground, with his magnificent head thrown back and his eyes shut. His forepaws were spread out in front of him and he lashed the ground with his tail, and I grieve to say, in face of that awful danger—I don't mean me, but the tornado—that creature awoke, softly but repeatedly and profoundly." What a contrast to the bag lists of male hunters on safari! This is the only woman in the collection who deals with wild animals, the rest focus on the people in the far lands to which they traveled.

Mary Wollstonecraft, the mother of Mary Shelley, displays real wit in her descriptions of the baths of Finland. The language of these letters is not marred by the passage of decades; they read very well and tend to pull one into the lively scene of adventure these ladies had to maintain. Travel then was not what it is now. The Dutch beforea Alene Tine, whose poem "Gondokoro" tells of beating to the head of the Nile, was shot to death by a marauding Taurig tribesman, while attempting to become the first woman to cross the Sahara Desert.

Harriet Martineau describes the "Secrets of the Harem", a penetrating look into the lives of Egyptian women. She perceived their bondage to be even more immoral than that of the slaves of antebellum America.

Kate Field, one of the two American writers represented, decided that "the entire Spanish nation begins and ends in smoke" since their cigarettes caused her endless delays. In "Hassies in Spain", she details the peculiar logic of customs agents who quarantined her trunk, but allowed her to remove all her articles and bundle them along in her arms like "a receiver of stolen goods."

I found Ladies on the Loose very entertaining reading, and accede to the author's viewpoint that ladies were the first masters of the genre of travel writing. Tune in next week when I examine Marie Winn's book on television, The Plug In Drug.

Other side of Dunn Center found

by Sue Beard

Editor's Note: This article is the second in a series to acquaint the reader with the academic functions of the Dunn Center—the other side of the Dunn Center.

The Dunn Center is one of the newest buildings on campus. Its architecture is striking and its function is to serve the student, the university, and the community. There are basketball games, concerts, and physical education and health classes, but beyond that is the Dunn Center just a place for "jocks" to hang out?

Within the Dunn Center is the department of health and physical education, "a growing, vital element in the university with a great deal of potential for community service," said Dr. Joseph T. Miller, an associate professor in the department.

Miller's responsibilities include overseeing the Health Care Management program both on the undergraduate and graduate levels. Miller, who is active in community affairs, serves on the board of management for the Armed Forces YMCA and the board of directors of the Hilldale Kiwanis.

The Health Care Management program offers students of APSU the only course of instruction in the state recognized by the Tennessee Board of Public Health, and has influenced the development of better qualified people for nursing home management, said Miller.

"Internships are an important part of the curriculum and provide an opportunity for community involvement. APSU interns work with many local health agencies giving the student a chance to work and observe in the real world, and making contributions to those agencies," added Miller.

There has been response from the community also. Mrs. Fran Warren, of Clarksville, administrator of the Palmyra Intermediate Care facility and member of the board of directors of the Tennessee Health Care Education Foundation, has arranged for the foundation to offer $1000 in scholarships for health care students. Mrs. Warren said "anyone wishing further information about these scholarships may get in touch with me."

In conclusion, Miller said "wellness and fitness with as emphasis on preventive medicine is the philosophy of this department."

I would like to comment on the article entitled "Dunn Center an asset, may become a liability" in the Jan. 22 issue of The All State. I believe it did a lot of good. The crowd attendance at the University of Evansville game and the Marshall games was very disappointing. Not only does it harm the team's enthusiasm but it is harmful to Public Relations. I was so pleased to see the 7200 crowd at the Murray State game!

It sure looks better to the public to see the city of Clarksville and the student body supporting our team—NOT TO MENTION WHAT IT DID TO OUR TEAM! 63-61! I'm sorry we were on the losing side but I believe the crowd helped the team perform better due to the feeling they get from a supportive crowd.

This was the best Murray State team in years and I believe our team played its best game this year. 120 miles is too far to travel to every game but I do attend a few. Thanks to the Governor's Sports Network and the OVC Game of the Week, I can follow the Governors.

Remember the days of the "Little Red Barn" Not all who wished to could see the game. Now all who wishes to see the games can. Clarksville and students—Let's support the Governors!

Sincerely,
Greg Richmond

General

Recently assigned to this region, the primary purpose for the general's visit to Austin Peay was to acquaint himself with the ROTC attachment on this campus.

In addition to familiarizing himself with the facilities at Austin Peay, Smith met briefly with the cadets, faculty, and Dr. Robert O. Riggs, president of the university.

During his stay, the ROTC commander applauded this attachment for their achievements. Two certificates of achievement were awarded to members of this facility for their superior performance during advanced training exercises at Fort Lewis, WA and for the outstanding results of the annual general inspection, the cadets received certificates.

Impressed with the facilities on this campus, the general's staff will forward copies of the certificates to President Riggs.

Smith spoke on some of the requirements necessary for commission in the United States Army, saying "It is a privilege for you (the cadets) to be permitted to serve in an elite society; this society is based on special trust and confidence needed to be an officer."

Among his many duties and responsibilities, Smith coordinates, plans, and provides guidance for the ROTC attachments. He also provides each attachment with guidelines for making ready the more than 1,200 cadets seeking enlistment.

Smith will continue to make annual visits to the ROTC representatives throughout the second region.

innovations that Groseclose developed with pre-student teachers who have access to the federally-funded Teacher Center in Clarksville.

His program also included a Skill Exercise Workshop, "Using a Teacher Center for Pre-Service Teacher Education." The College of Education of APSU has three members on the policy board of the Teacher Center and works closely with the Clarksville-Montgomery County Teacher Center.

Delegates from all fifty states attended seeking ideas on how to better prepare pre-service teachers.

The Skill Exercise Workshop dealt with standards for programs in teacher education. The concept was "How can a Teacher Center work effectively in conjunction with a teacher education institution in developing standards for all pre-service education majors?" Groseclose has identified 12 standards for programs in teacher education.

Groseclose's background includes public school teaching (elementary and secondary),

Director of the "Right-to-Read" Program and Assistant Director of the School of Continuing Education at the University of Virginia before coming to APSU. He holds a doctorate from East Tennessee State University and has done advance study in Europe. He is a member of the Board of Directors of the Tennessee Education Association. Groseclose states that there is only one higher education person on this twenty-member board, which is the official professional policy-maker for 40,000 teachers in Tennessee.

Sheila Brigham, last year's Miss Black America of Clarksville, presented a special singing performance.

Romona Wilson was first runner-up; Vita Dennis was second runner-up; Linda Doss was third runner-up. Wilson and Dennis are both freshmen at Austin Peay and Doss attends Northeast High School.

Peay prepares to 'do it all night'

So you say there's nothing to do on the campus of Austin Peay State University on the weekends? For the hundreds of suitcase-totin' dorm dwellers who flee the Peay enmass every Friday afternoon, mark Friday Feb. 26 on your calendar.

This is the date the Intramural Department, in conjunction with the University Special Events Committee, will remedy the problem.

These hard-working folks will stage the Fourth Annual All-Niter—an evening of fun and games which will take place in "the little red barn." However, this year's event will have a twist to it.

"This year, the event is running from 8 p.m. until 2 a.m.," said Intramural Director Artie Manning. "Over the past years, we've had a problem containing the crowd all morning," he said of the event which had lasted until about 6 a.m. in years past.

Hale happy with football prospects

A total of 15 high school football players have signed with Austin Peay, according to a statement released by the APSU football coaches earlier this week.

Head coach Emory Hale said he was pleased with the quality of his recruits and in the apparent success of his first college recruiting season.

The prospects for next season appears good as the Governors will lose only 11 seniors from this fall's 5-5 squad.

Hale and his staff are expected to sign as many as four more recruits within the next week or so. Although National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) rules permit 30 new scholarships per year, Hale plans to save about 11 to be awarded to deserving walk-ons during the spring practice session.

The following players have committed to Austin Peay for next year: Alan Dunnam, 6'4" 215 lbs. linebacker, Gallatin (Gallatin), Tenn., Regal Summers, 6'1" 220 lbs. noseguard, Cincinnati (Moeller), Ohio; Dusty Stoy, 6'2" 235 lbs. offensive lineman, Cincinnati (Moeller), Ohio; Rob Senft, 6'2" 185 lbs. wide receiver-defensive back, Cincinnati (Coleman), Ohio; Garnett Roby, running back-defensive back, Old Hickory (Mt. Juliet), Tenn., signed by Coach Greg Johnson.

Mike Land, 6'5" 245 lbs. defensive tackle, Dunlap (Sequatchie Co.), Tenn.
Mike Hamilton, 6'2" 206 lbs. linebacker, Brooksville (Hernando), Fla. signed by Coach "Chick" Granning.

Lanny Newman, 6'0" 195 lbs. running back defensive back, Murfreesboro (Oakland), Tenn.; Jeff King, 6'0" 205 lbs. running back-defensive back, Murfreesboro (Riverdale) Tenn., signed by Coach Paul Brewster.

Mike Adrangna, 6'5" lbs. defensive tackle, Massapequa Park (Long Island) N.Y.; Mike Mignone, 6'4" 230 lbs. defensive tackle-offensive tackle, Farmingville

"We'll be having the same amount of activities," Manning continued, "but we want to keep it moving and have everybody involved."

Involvement should be no problem at all.

Some of the contests to be held will be pie eating, pizza eating, free throw shooting, frisbee toss, a "Mellow-Yellow" chug-a-lug, tug-o-war, Stroh's case stacking, a dart throw and an egg toss, to name a few.

A gameroom competition featuring backgammon, spades, bingo and checkers will also be presented.

Competition will be held in open divisions as well as for teams of participants.

Manning is encouraging all dorms, fraternities, sororities and other organizations to compete for the top three cash prizes of 100, 50 and 25 dollars, respectively.

Some of the more prominent local businesses to offer sponsorship of the All-Niter include: Ideal Distributing Co., Coca-Cola, Pizza Hut, First National Bank, Acme Boot Co., Jenkins and Wynne, Page and Taylor's Clarksville Sporting Goods, The Works and The Library.

Radio station WJZM 1400 will broadcast the event in its entirety.

Reason enough to stick around for the weekend?
Then let the Peay see if you can "do it all night"

Season nears end for Lady Govs

by Clint Ervin

Things are looking dreary for the followers of Austin Peay's Lady Governors. They dropped two games against OVC opponents last week to send their overall record to 7-17, and their conference slate to 2-8. They have now lost seven consecutive games and have only two remaining before the TCWSF Tournament in Chattanooga that begins on Feb. 28.

Morehead State's Lady Eagles relied on seniors Donna Stephens, who hit 19 points, and Robin Harmon, who contributed 17, to take care of the Lady Govs last Saturday night and keep them atop first place in the OVC with a 7-2 mark. Their 72-61 victory at home over Austin Peay keeps them in the chase, along with Tennessee Tech and Western Kentucky for the conference crown.

The Lady Eagles took their time in the first half, and led by as much as 14 before the intermission. The Lady Govs, down 35-26 at the half, were once again played by a poor shooting percentage. 32.4. Vanderbilt transfer Gayle Kinzer totaled half of the Lady Govs' point total in the half, 13. Lillian Cain, who played so well last week against Murray hit only one of seven from the field during the half and picked up three personal fouls.

Austin Peay played much better in the second half, but they could not manage to erase their first half deficit completely. They pulled to within two points of the Lady Eagles on a Connie Sinks jump shot with 7:46 to play, but their luck wouldn't hold out. Sinks played an excellent second half, hitting five of nine from the field to bring her game total up to 12 after only two points in the first half.

Gayle Kinzer added eight during the Lady Govs' comeback to bring her game leading total to 21 points. Lillian Cain also added seven more before fouling out with 1:37 to play.

Eastern Kentucky, the last foe that the Lady Govs whipped, did not allow it to happen twice in one season. They avenged their Jan. 14 loss in the Dunn Center with a crushing 79-62 defeat of Austin Peay in their own Alumni Coliseum.

The Lady Colonels exploded for 54 second half points to end Peay's dreams of victory. Chancellor Dugan responded with 16 second half points, her total was equaled by Lisa Bodkin and Sandra Mikes canned another 14. Gayle Kinzer set off some offensive fireworks of her own with 20 second half points, over half of the Lady Govs' total during the second period.

The Lady Govs' final two conference games will be played this week at home. Tennessee Tech visits the Dunn Center tomorrow night at 5:15, and MTSU's Lady Raiders will be in town at the same time on Saturday.

Jolly claims Governor Indoor

by Donna Holder

The second annual Governor Invitational Tennis Tournament was held this past weekend in the Dunn Center, and the AP tennis team won both the singles and doubles events.

Hal Jolley, AP's No. 1 player, defeated Dick Johannsson, 6-2, 6-0, in the finals held on Saturday to take the championship. Johannsson plays for Trevecca.

Austin Peay's Hartmut Jungbahn and Brad Properjohn defeated

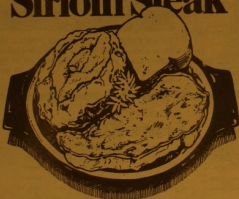

Graham Harris and Mark Tullock in the finals of the doubles competition by a score of 5-7, 7-6, 7-6. Harris and Tullock play on MTSU's tennis team.

Four colleges participated in the tennis tournament. The schools were APSU, MTSU, Western Kentucky, and Trevecca. Each of these schools sent their top two players, and the winner of the tournament was determined by the number of points earned by each team. One point was given for each match victory.

In team totals, Austin Peay won five matches, Middle Tennessee won two, Trevecca won two, and Western Kentucky had one victory.

Gova split in 'Death Valley'

by Steve Harmon

There are two ways of looking at Austin Peay's recent trip to Eastern Kentucky and Morehead State.

While the Governors ended a five-game tail spin with a 51-50 Ohio Valley Conference basketball triumph at Eastern last Thursday night, they also sidetracked from the victory trail at the next stop—a 85-68 setback in Morehead, Ky.

The win at Eastern was the Governors' first road victory of the season, after ten futile attempts.

APSU now stands at 3-9 in the OVC, 5-17 overall. Peay shot 56 percent from the floor as Lenny Manning led the charge with 21 points in one of his typically stellar performances.

Cecil Felts added ten points and eight rebounds, while Mandell Stockton and Pat Day tallied nine points each for the APSU cause.

The Governors' final stopover on their "Death Valley" tour proved to be less adventurous.

Thrown into a cage with hot-shooting Morehead State University Eagles, the Gova were clawed, 85-68.

The hosts shot a torrid 60 percent from the field in a game MSU Head Coach Wayne Martin said "was the best we've played all year."

"Morehead really took us out of our game," said APSU dean Ron Bargatz. "They knocked the lights out of it from all over the court," he added.

Consequently, Austin Peay's 51-22 rebounding edge was negated.

Morehead was bolstered by five players in double-digit scoring, while Lenny Manning (14), Pat Day (14), Larry Smith (13), and Cecil Felts (12) led the Peay attack.

"I don't think I've seen any team do a better job on Lenny (Manning) than they did tonight, said Bargatz of the Eagles' defensive effort on his premier forward.

Manning fouled out with 3:45 to play.

The Governors were also hampered by illnesses as Alvin Ingle was slowed by the flu and Donnie Bell and Al Bellefontaine failed to make the trip.

Peay hosts league rivals Tennessee Tech tomorrow night and Middle Tennessee on Saturday.

Tip-off for both contests will be at 7:30 p.m. CST.

Peay runners successful

by Clint Ervin

Austin Peay's Indoor Track Team is nearing the end of a very successful season, highlighted by outstanding performances by both the mens' and womens' teams in the Indiana Athletic Congress Meet at the University of Indiana and the Mason-Dixon Games in Louisville, Kentucky.

Sprinters Prentice McGlory and Roland Scruggs turned in spectacular performances at the University of Indiana's meet, finishing first and second, respectively, with times of 6.35 and 6.38 in the 60 yard dash. High jumper Barry Crawford also did well, finishing third in his event. Marbella Williams turned in a time of 7.04 seconds in the 60 yard dash to place third in the meet. Her time barely missed the 7.04 required for participation in the ALAAW national indoor meet. Coach Joey Haines is very impressed with her. "She's outstanding, especially considering that she's a freshman and that the 60 yard dash is not really her event."

In the Mason-Dixon Games, defending OVC Champion LaRon Springer placed second in the 600 yard dash with a time of 1:13.5, and Prentice McGlory and Roland Scruggs finished fifth and sixth, respectively in the 60 yard dash. The Two Mile Relay team of Coderick Wright, Terry Taylor, Frank Coates, and David Reagan placed fourth; and pole vaulter Rodney Allison placed fifth.

The Women's Sprint Medley Relay team of Pat

Avery, Marbella Williams, Lisa Schooler, and Mary Johnson turned in an excellent third place performance behind only Michigan State and Ohio State, and the women's 880 relay team placed fifth in the meet.

The ladies will head to Murfreesboro this weekend for the Blue Raider Invitational, while the men have two solid weeks of practice before the OVC meet on Feb. 26 and 27.

What a Lunch! What a Lunch! What a Lunch! What a Lunch! What a Lunch!

On the side, our new Kentucky Fries! Big potato wedges with the skin left on. We fry 'em up golden brown. So they come out crispy outside, but stay nice and fluffy inside.

Our great big, juicy Chicken Sandwich. It's a real breast fillet! Nothing chopped, pressed or rolled. We make it the Colonel's special way to seal in his secret blend of 11 herbs and spices. Add an ice cold drink, and you've got the kind of lunch that makes you want to shout, "What a lunch!"
