Opinion page root of our democracy

By ALICIA MOOREHEAD
editor-in-chief

Hmmm, the opinion of The All State. Not only that but the OFFICIAL opinion of The All State. Certainly an actual newspaper, the actual paper it is printed on, can not have an opinion. It must be that the official opinion, then, the official opinion of the staff members.

That is an interesting concept. One I have tried to discern and make sense out of for a while now. So far I haven't been able to get very far.

I have tried to determine what the "official" opinion of The All State actually is. During staff meetings I ask if anyone has an editorial idea. A few are pitched and we quickly discover that no one agrees on anything. And if we do agree on it, chances are that it is not even worth writing about. So what is an editor to do?

I have looked through some old issues of The All State as well as issues of other college papers. What I have found is either the paper does not run an official editorial at all, or it prints something dealing with national news that has little to do with either campus or the students.

I have tried to focus more on the students and the university in the editorials this year. By doing that, however, sometimes our columns and editorials are a little mundane. Okay, so maybe they can be outright boring. But boring doesn't always mean bad. We try to bring about change for the good, and if that means boring then be it. Often I have caught myself and my opinion editor writing what we think sounds good or what we think students and/or the administration want to hear.

We often times don't write what we think because we know that come Wednesday morning there will be several thousand people reading our thoughts. That ultimately is why I do not write opinion very often. I think that in order to write a good opinion column, one has to open up, and many of us do not feel comfortable doing that.

"You may not agree with what we print on this page, but it is not your job to agree with it, it is to think about it."

We are standing in front of thousands of people, ready to be ridiculed or applauded, whether it be silently, through letters to the editor, or just by word of mouth.

Everyone on this campus knows that more is said about The All State in the University Center, the classroom and the library than our staff members ever hear.

Last semester, one of our columnists, who was just a guest writer then, sparked a small controversy. Many people on this campus couldn't believe we printed a particular column.

There were meetings where what was printed was being discussed. The funny thing is, never once, was I, the editor-in-chief, asked why I printed that column.

My answer would have been this: I believe in freedom of speech. The opinion/editorial page of a newspaper is a place for letters to the editor and personal columns. I think that freedom of speech is more relevant on a college campus than it is in most places. Isn't that where we are being educated about the first amendment and the freedom of speech?

I believe that all students, no matter what their outlet, be allowed to express their opinions. Isn't that what democracy is all about?

Thomas Nilsen once wrote that "If democracy is to function, ideas need to be expressed; the ideas need to be critically examined, the best ideas be found. For the expression of ideas we have freedom of speech and assembly, and freedom of the press."

That is what The All State staff and I try to provide this campus -- freedom of the press and a place to express their ideas. By expressing ideas and opinions, we can examine them and then find the best ones.

You may not agree with what is written on our opinion page, but your job is not to agree with it, it is to think about it. If something you read makes you mad, then our job is done. We have made you think.

Govs claim first in OVC with win over Murray St.

By SCOTT HOSKINS
sports editor

As the Murray State fans left the Dunn Center Monday night amid Austin Peay cheers of "OVC," the Governors claimed sole position of first place in the Ohio Valley Conference with a 79-67 victory over the Racers.

In a mismatch between first and second place teams in the OVC in front of 5,073 fans, Austin Peay pulled out the victory despite trailing 21-9 with 11 minutes remaining in the first half.

Murray's Vincent Rainey came out on fire, burning the Governors' zone defense for nine first-half points.

Murray State went on a 10-0 run that put them ahead 19-9 with 12:54 to go in the first half.

APSU then countered with an 8-2 run themselves to pull them within six at 23-17.

"Our game plan was to focus on Rainey," Austin Peay head coach Dave Looe said.

After Rainey's early hot shooting, Looe decided to go with Bubba Wells defensively on Rainey.

"We either had to go into a zone, or put Bubba on Rainey," Looe said. "Bubba said 'I want him.'

APSU turned up the pressure defense and promptly went on a 10-2 run to end the half and put them ahead 35-31 at halftime.

While Rainey was leading Murray State, Peay's Wells and Reggie Crenshaw combined for 21 total first half points. At the half, APSU was shooting 47 percent, while the Racers were bombing the Govs with 54 percent from the field.

In the second half, Austin Peay went ahead 48-37 on a Joe Sibbitt 3-pointer with 15:55 left in the contest.

Every Murray challenge in the second half was turned back by the Governors. The Racers managed to cut the APSU lead to eight at 60-52 with 7:45 remaining, but the Govs turned the visitors away with a 6-0 run to push the lead to 14.

MSU could get no closer than 11 the rest of the way.

Colby Pierce hit 4-of-6 free throws and Wells converted 1-of-2 in the final minute of the game to give the Govs the victory and first place in the OVC.

Wells led APSU in scoring once again, finishing with 35 points and five rebounds. His 35 points moved him into 8th place all-time in OVC scoring.

Crenshaw scored 19 points and pulled down 10 rebounds, another double-double for the junior from Gwinnett, Ga.

Pierce had 10 points and seven assists in the winning effort, while Jake Powers hit the boards for seven rebounds.

Bubba, Crenshaw and Jake really went to the hard board for us," Looe said. "Pierce also."

The Govs finished the game shooting 54 percent, including 65 percent in the second half, while holding the Racers to only 39 percent in the second half.

The Govs improve to 13-12 overall and 10-5 in the OVC after the victory.

Saturday's 92-75 victory over the Tennessee-Martin Skyhawks set up the first-place showdown.

Once again, Bubba Wells lit up the opposition, this time for 35 points, going over the 2,000 career point mark.

Wells and Sibbitt combined for 13 3-pointers against the Skyhawks' porous defense.

Tennessee-Martin took an early lead over the Govs, thanks in part to hot shooting. The Skyhawks shot 50 percent in the first half to the Govs' 40 percent, and had a 33-32 lead at the half.

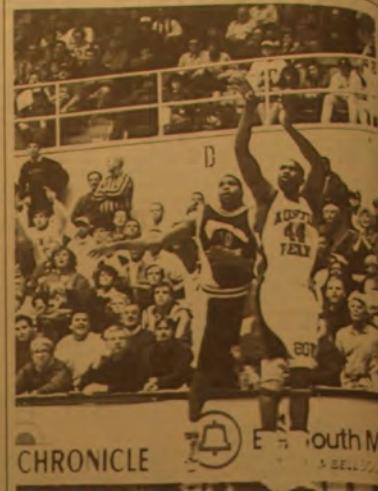

The game turned in the second half, however.

The Govs' defensive pressure forced the Skyhawks into 18 turnovers for the game, as the offensive solved Martin's zone defense.

Outscoring Martin 60-42 in the second half, Austin Peay shot 63 percent from the field. UT-Martin actually shot 54 percent for the half, but couldn't keep up with the Govs' torrid shooting.

The Govs are home for the next two games starting Saturday against Tennessee State, followed by Tennessee Tech on Feb. 20.

Editor's note: The first round of the OVC Tournament may be held at APSU, Tuesday, Feb. 25. Austin Peay students wishing to attend this game must purchase a reserved seat at the student price of $5 by presenting a valid APSU student ID at the ticket window.

Lady Govs volleyball signs four

Austin Peay's volleyball program announced the signing of four players for the 1997 season: Laura Mitchell, of Wheaton, Ill.; Becky Sowinski, of Milwaukee, Wis.; Amber Grindhoefer, of Dale, Ind.; and Annie Gleiber, of Brookfield, Wis.

"This is our largest crop of freshmen since 1988 and I hope it's an omen," said a very pleased Lady Govs head coach Cheryl Holt. "As seniors in 1991, that group went on to win an Ohio Valley Conference title."

Mitchell, a 5-foot-10 outside hitter, attends Wheaton North High School. She won numerous awards during both her junior and senior years, including Best Hitter Award, academic all conference, Daily Herald All-area, Falcon Classic All-tournament and DuPage Area All-tournament.

"Laura is one of the most versatile players I have ever seen," said Holt.

Grindhoefer, a 5-10 middle blocker, attends Heritage Hills High School. Last year she led her team to its second regional title while setting personal records for most blocks in a match and season.

Sowinski, a 5-8 outside hitter, attends Wisconsin Lutheran High School. As a senior, Sowinski led her team to a 44-2 record while earning first-team all-conference and all-state honors. She had 212 kills, 275 digs, 42 block solos and 25 service aces last season.

Gleiber, a 5-8 setter, attends Plus XI High School. She helped her team to a state championship her sophomore year, then second and third-place finishes her junior and senior years. Last season Gleiber earned first-team all-conference and second-team all-state honors.

"Annie has great hands," said Holt. "She's the complete package."

Holt sees unlimited promise with a talented group of freshman who will get the opportunity to grow together over the course of three or four seasons.

"It says something about the caliber of these recruits," she said. "They come from highly successful high school volleyball programs."

Lady Govs win 6th straight

By SCOTT HOSKINS
Sports editor

Austin Peay's Lady Govs won their sixth straight contest Monday night against the Lady Racers from Murray State by the score of 70-66.

The victory boosts the Lady Govs' overall record to 16-8 and 2-3 in the Ohio Valley Conference.

In scoring 24 points, Peay's Amanda Behrenbrinker surpassed the 1,000 career point mark.

Although the Lady Racers scored first, the Lady Govs quickly responded to a 13-2 lead with 15:26 to go in the first half.

After a timeout, Murray State went on a 17-7 run to cut the Peay lead to 19-19 with 8:35 in the half. At the half the Lady Govs had a slim 32-30 lead, while shooting 50 percent from the field.

After the Lady Govs went ahead 39-32 at the 7:25 mark on a free throw from Tracy Doss, the Lady Racers went on a 12-6 run to take its first lead of the game, 49-47 with 12:11 left in the game.

It would be the Lady Racers' last lead of the game, however, as the Lady Govs went ahead 61-54 on another free throw from Dosschel.

Murray State refused to die, though, cutting the APSU lead to just two with five minutes to go.

Again Peay responded with a jumper and two free throws from Simone Caldwell to boost their lead to five.

The teams traded baskets for the rest of the game and the Lady Govs won its sixth straight game.

The Lady Govs' next contest is Saturday against TSU. They are looking to avenge an earlier loss against the Lady Tigers in Nashville.

Just one year ago the Lady Govs had never beaten their nemesis from Middle Tennessee State, losing 41 consecutive matchups. Last week the Lady Govs rolled over MTSU 66-62 for its first victory ever in the Murphy Center, after losing 21 straight games at Murfreesboro.

In addition, the Lady Govs now own a four-game winning streak against the Lady Raiders (6-17, 4-9 OVC).

In winning the game against Middle, the Lady Govs swept the three-game road trip, all against OVC opponents.

After finding themselves down at the half 31-27, the Lady Govs came out fired up in the second half, outscoring their opponent 39-31.

Pegy had a 10-point lead with just five minutes to play.

Middle, however, would not give up.

The Lady Raiders were forced to foul in the end, and managed to cut the APSU lead to just three with under 25 seconds remaining in the contest.

Caldwell hit a free throw with 9.2 seconds left to ice the game for the Lady Govs.

Behrenbrinker led the Lady Govs with 17 points and 13 rebounds, while Miller chipped in 16 and Caldwell added 13 points and five steals.

Intramural News

Saturday, Feb. 15, will be National Youth Sports Program Night at the APSU vs. TSU basketball game. According to Drew Simmons, project administrator of Intramurals, the athletic department has donated some 200 tickets to the 1996 NYSP participants and their parents.

Simmons also said the 1996 NYSP received the second place award for Best New Program in 1996 at the National Workshop held in Orlando, Fla., Jan. 19-22. Yale University received the first place award. APSU's group also recognized on the program agenda at the workshop.

Tentative 1997 NYSP dates are June 5-July 10. Other APSU personnel involved in the success of the grant are Dr. Victor Ukpolo, executive assistant to the president; Linda Freed, grants coordinator; Chuck Kimmel, athletic trainer and Chris Reed, auxiliary director. "We want to thank the university for supporting this particular program," Simmons said.

Track and Field

Austin Peay's women's track team finished third in the Middle Tennessee Indoor Invitational Sunday in Murfreesboro. Host Middle Tennessee State University won the seven-team meet.

Peay had two members win events. Talene Davis won the shot put with a toss of 40-feet-11 inches and Evette Edwards won the long jump with a jump of 5-feet-2-inches.

"I think overall I was very pleased," APSU coach Elvis Forde said. "I was very pleased with the run of Kenya Avant."

Avant finished second in the 800 meter run.

Tennis

Tennessee-Martin swept both matches with Austin Peay last weekend in an OVC tennis match.

The Lady Skyhawks beat APSU 7 matches to 0, while the Govs' men's tennis squad dropped the match 4 matches to 3.

The Govs' tennis teams are now 0-2 on the season.

AP Playhouse's 'Tomfoolery' opens February 19

By TRACY SHEARON
guest writer

"If after hearing these songs, just one human being is inspired to say something nasty to a friend, or perhaps to strike a loved one, then it will have been worthwhile."

These are just a few words that set the tone for Tom Lehrer's musical comedy Tomfoolery, the third show of the 1996-97 AP Playhouse season at Austin Peay.

Lehrer is a Harvard math professor who created satirical musical numbers based on ideas ranging from Oedipus and chemistry to poisoning pigeons. Switching from exuberant marches to minor ballads, Tomfoolery is an obvious winner.

Presented by the APSU Center for the Creative Arts, Tomfoolery runs Feb. 19-23 in Trabern Theatre. Performances are at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday, with a 2 p.m. matinee on Sunday. Admission is $5 for adults and $3 for students. Tickets may be purchased at the Theatre Box Office from 2-6 p.m. weekdays beginning Feb. 10. This production is recommended for mature audiences only.

Tomfoolery is directed by Dr. Sara Gotcher, associate professor of theatre. Beth Duncan, a junior theatre major from Nashville, is serving as assistant director. Nancy Slaughter is the musical director and pianist. Kate Granger designed the set and Jessica Norris, a senior communication arts major, is choreographing this high-energy show.

Shanoya Maxie leads the technical crew as stage manager, with Samantha Townsel as assistant stage manager.

Art Conn, Lacy Ignacio and Benny Jones, along with Karl Tinsley from Torrance, Calif., have been cast in this politically incorrect production.*

Barrymore shines in Allen's 'Everyone Says I Love You'

College Press Services

Drew Barrymore has sure come a long way.

The actress rocketed to fame in "E.T.," then starred in a video store-shelf worth of clinkers. A classic Hollywood wild child, Barrymore boozed, smoked, partied and sizzled cocaine all before turning 12. Since then her autobiography, a few years back, the clean and sober Barrymore has soared at the box office in "Pocahontas," "Batman Forever," "Boys on the Side," and "Scream."

"Scream" continues to scare up major bucks at the box office. But arguably Barrymore's most impressive film career is unspooling at the atres "Batione" and that is a Woody Allen's offbeat musical-comedy, "Everyone Says I Love You."

Allen cast Barrymore as the preppy Schlesier, a college kid from a wealthy family on Manhattan's Upper East Side. Schlesier finds herself engaged to the droll Edward Norton, but attracted to Tim Roth as a con man who's just been freed from prison.

To say that Barrymore was a bit intimidated by Allen would be the understatement of the year. "Oh, you're kidding me?" exclaims Barrymore during an interview at a Manhattan hotel. "I was so nervous you just so excited that he had an open enough mind to ask me to audition."

"I didn't know he knew I was even alive! My God, he's my hero," adds Barrymore. "I really did have to jump onto a lot of hoops to prove myself and get the part; I thank God that in the end, Woody believed in me. If that isn't the biggest compliment, I don't know what is."

Barrymore, an avowed Allen fan, also sports "Annie Hall" and "Radio Days" among her favorites of the filmmaker's outings, reports that she loved spending time on the set watching him work.

Clearly, Barrymore is having fun now, shifting between independent films and studio pictures, and playing flashy roles and more challenging parts...

One of the best things about what gets her to do is that we can be chameleons," she says. "I think with every role you should change your hair and your wardrobe and everything about yourself. If you don't, that's lame, I think. I get irritated with people who look exactly the same in every movie. You just know it's them. It's not surprising."

Barrymore sounds as happy about her personal life as she does about her career. Part of being able to get on with her life after her early problems was sharing her life in her autobiography, "Little Girl Lost." Revealing so much of herself was easy, but it helped her past behind her.

"I'm better in many ways, but it was also very scary to put myself so out there to be vulnerable with people," she says. "The truth is that with me you always know what you're getting. You're getting me. I'd imagine it would take a lot more energy to hide and not be yourself."

I think this industry is an incredibly shallow, mean place. The benefits are getting to do a Woody Allen movie, getting to be on sets, but the glory and the aftermath are just...whatever. I'm not in it for all that. I'm in it to be a good employee, and I feel very fortunate to do a job I find creative and fulfilling."

Art Conn, Lacy Ignacio, Benny Jones and Karl Tinsley star in "Tomfoolery."

Chamber Singers to perform at convention in San Diego

were chosen.

The Chamber Singers also will serve at the convention as a demonstration choir for one of the interest sessions on Choral Conducting.

To raise the remaining funds needed to make this special trip, the Chamber Singers will appear in a special concert performance on Friday, Feb. 21, at 8 p.m. in the Concert Theatre of the Music Mass Communication Building.

General admission tickets are $5 each for adults and students will be admitted free of charge. Tickets will be available at the music ticket office, 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Friday. The program will also feature guest faculty artists Sharon Mabry, soprano; and Sally Ahner, soprano.

Austin Peay's 10-voice group will deliver three performances for 6,000 members of the ACDA. A total of 34 performing organizations from the United States and around the world will sing. Only six university choirs in the nation that excellence in art, dedication and hard work, and a payoff comes when beautiful music is the result," said Mabry.

The Chamber Singers previously have been invited to perform at regional ACDA conventions in year for the Southern ACDA convention in Norfolk, Va., and for Music Educators National Conference in Kansas City, Mo.

The selection process for the national convention began less than a year ago when Mabry submitted a tape recording of the Chamber Singers that was being during a blind audition by a panel of state and regional ACDA judges, and then by a national panel of renowned choral musicians.

The success of our program is due to an abundance of wonderfully talented students who recognize
