SGA Senate questions moves

The Student Government Association Senate meeting ended in controversy Thursday night over the selection of student representatives to search committee for a new dean of students and the selection of an election board chairman.

Junior Class Vice-President Kip Stevens questioned whether President Robert O. Riggs intended for SGA President Wayne Mosely to appoint five students to the search committee without Senate approval.

Mosely said he was asked to select the five students for the committee by the president. He said there was nothing said about getting Senate approval.

Junior class President John Lilly said it was his understanding from the president's forum held earlier that day that the list of names would be brought to the Senate for approval.

After heated argument Mosely left the meeting and later returned with a list of approximately 19 names which he said the student committee would be picked from.

Stevens told Mosely he did not want his name included on the list, "you obviously don't think I'm qualified."

"You said you wanted your name in the pot," Mosely replied. "Does anyone here think you know what's going on better than me?"

Mosely was questioned about the cross section of students the committee would be picked from.

"I don't think you need the average Joe who just goes to class and goes home," Mosely said.

"I don't know where everyone heard this rumor that there was a list of myself and four others who would vote the way I wanted them to vote," Mosely said, "puppets, in other words."

Lobbyists seek to raise legal drinking age

by Mike Lynch
Editor-in-Chief

A Nashville-based lobbying group is backing a bill in the Tennessee House and Senate which seeks to raise the legal drinking age in the state from 19 to 21.

The United Tennessee League supported similar legislation in the 1979 session of the Tennessee General Assembly to get the legal age of purchasing alcoholic beverages raised to 21 from 18 years.

After much maneuvering by liquor lobbyists and college students, a compromise bill raising the age to 19 years was passed on the last day of the legislature, according to the November, 1982 issue of the league's newsletter.

The UTL and the Tennessee Congress of Parents and Teachers circulated petitions in the latter part of 1982, citing statistics from the National Transportation Safety Board and the state of Michigan, urging the State Legislature to pass the drinking age bill.

"The sentiment all across the United States at the present time is that the age should be 21 years," said Phil Padgett, the league's executive director.

A study released by the National Highway Safety Administration in May of last year said almost 60 per cent of fatally injured teenage drivers were found to have alcohol in their blood systems prior to their crash, with 43 per cent at legally intoxicated levels.

Prior to raising the legal drinking age to 19 in 1979, Tennessee was one of 15 states which had a minimum age of 18. Nine states had adopted 19 as the legal drinking age while two recognized 20.

The other 24 states and the District of Columbia set the legal drinking age at 21. Eleven of those states allow 18-year-olds to purchase beer and four allowed for the purchase of wine.

Illinois allows 19-year-olds to purchase beer and wine.

On July 22, 1982, the National Transportation Safety Board recommended that 35 states, including Tennessee, raise the legal drinking and purchasing age to 21 years to cut the highway death toll.

Tennessee's traffic accident report for 1981 (the last year for which total figures are available) shows that drinking was a known contributing factor in 245 of 978 fatal accidents.

In 1980, drinking was a contributing factor in 211 of 1,014 fatal accidents.

The report by the Tennessee Department of Safety admits that whether or not a driver has been drinking cannot always be determined at the scene of the accident and says it is generally impossible to determine the drivers who have had one or a few drinks.

According to the report, 120 traffic fatalities last year involved persons between the age of 18 and 20. Statistics on the percentage of these who might have been drinking were not provided.

The petition presented to the General Assembly by the league states that alcohol is involved in 27 of 43 percent of the crimes and misdemeanors committed by youths between the ages of 13 and 19.

LEGAL DRINKING
AGE:
19 or 21?

The United Tennessee League also supported a bill passed by the legislature in 1982, which mandated fines and jail terms for persons convicted of driving under the influence.

The statute, which is regarded as one of the toughest in the nation, has been embroiled in controversy since a general sessions judge in Nashville ruled it unconstitutional because in interfered with the judge's right to set fines and penalties.

Force tryouts set

Auditions for the Austin Peay Playhouse production of She Stoops To Conquer, a farcical play by Oliver Goldsmith, will be held at 7:15 in the Truhren Theatre Feb. 17 and 18.

The play was first produced in the last eighteenth century. It remains one of the most popular productions among community, educational and professional theatre groups due to its ringing humor.

The cast calls for 15 males and four females, with some of the male roles being interchangeable. The plot centers around the Hardcastle family and the mistaken identities which occur when their daughter's beau, the wealthy, young Marlow, is made the lump of a nasty by Tony Lumpkin, a boisterous, belligerent boomer.

John Griffin of the speech, communication and theatre faculty is directing the show and invites to audition.

Tax book available

The Woodward Library has just received a copy of the Internal Revenue Service's Reproducible Federal Tax Forms for Use in Libraries. This publication contains master copies of all current federal tax forms. Copies made from these masters on a library photocopier may then be used in filing tax returns.

Although the library is not distributing tax forms or information booklets, it does have copies of all the various IRS tax information booklets, it does have copies of all the various IRS tax information publications. All of these IRS publications and the master forms are at the information desk for your use in the library.

The new edition of Tax Guide for College Teachers and Other College Personnel has been ordered but has not yet arrived. When the library receives the new edition, it will be available at the reserve desk.

tained the names of Moseley, Donna Woodall, Mike Lynch, Evelyn White and one graduate student.

The committee is being set up by Riggs to consider applicants for the job which Dr. Roscoe Shain holds on an interim basis. Riggs said it was his understanding that Shain would be an applicant for the permanent post.

Moseley also announced his intention at the Jan. 27 meeting to recommend himself for the post of election board chairman for next year's SGA election.

Stevens called such an act a conflict of interest because of Moseley's personal feelings toward some members of the Senate. Debate on the matter ended when Moseley stormed out of the Senate chamber.

Veteran's Affairs serves 800

by Angela Fabrizio
Staff Reporter

Helen Frazier's role of coordinator for the veteran's affairs office requires an active interest in the scholastic and economic welfare of over 800 students.

"We want to inform veterans that there are various benefits available to them, and we help them utilize those benefits to their best advantage," she said.

The students are not the only ones who profit from Frazier's efforts. APSU's veterans, about 20 percent of its student body, will receive between $3.5 and $4 million in benefits this year.

"It is obvious what a boost that gives Austin Peay's economy. Actually, the veterans help Clarksville's economy, too," stated Frazier.

Funded by a federal grant, the veteran's program was originally established as an outreach service to attract more students to universities.

All veterans who attend college must be certified with the government, and it is Frazier's job to see that certification is kept up to date.

"I am liaison between students and the Veteran's Administration," the coordinator stated.

So that veterans may be notified of certain information and events, Frazier's office publishes a newsletter each quarter.

According to Frazier, many students are not aware of exactly how extensive their entitlements are.

Veterans can seek tutorial assistance if they have difficulty passing a course, and the V.A. will pay up to $76 per month for their additional instruction. This service in no way affects the veteran's regular monthly check.

The number of veterans at APSU has consistently increased during the past few years, and Frazier says she hopes the trend will continue.

"We want to help veterans make their college experiences successful," she said. "We're always willing to do whatever we can to achieve this goal."

Miss APSU Pageant Friday night

Nine women from Austin Peay State University will compete Friday night for the title of Miss APSU.

The 7 p.m. pageant will be held in Austin Peay's Clement Auditorium with entrants competing in swimsuit, evening gown and talent. In addition, judges will interview each contestant prior to the pageant Friday night.

The pageant was originally scheduled for Jan. 21 but postponed because of inclement weather.

Serving as master of ceremonies for the pageant will be Austin Peay alumnus Rick Forest, who recently took over as program director for WMOT radio in Murfreesboro. He was a member of Phi Mu Alpha, which sponsors the pageant, while at Austin Peay.

The pageant will include not only competition but also production numbers involving singers and musicians from Phi Mu Alpha and Austin Peay. Howard Scudder, Phi Mu Alpha member, said the pageant will last approximately two hours.

The Miss APSU pageant serves as a preliminary pageant for the Miss Tennessee-America pageant. Miss Tennessee competition will be held in Jackson later this spring with Miss APSU among the contestants.

Last year's winner, Suzanne Norris of Clarksville, went on to win the state talent competition. The 1981

Miss APSU, Brenda Miller, placed among the 10 finalists for the title of Miss Tennessee.

The winner of the 1983

Miss APSU pageant will receive her entry to the state contest, a scholarship to be used at Austin Peay, trophy and crown.

APSU's fall figures drop

Austin Peay State University was one of only two colleges in Tennessee to have its enrollment drop during the fall quarter, while statewide enrollment rose 3.4 percent.

According to figures compiled by the State Board of Regents, 5002 students enrolled for the fall quarter of 1982 at Austin Peay, compared to an enrollment of 5156 a year ago.

The decline in enrollment marked the second consecutive year enrollment at the Clarksville campus fell about 3 percent.

East Tennessee State University in Johnson City was the only other college in the 16-school system to have its enrollment decline. ETSU's enrollment fell from 9472 in 1981 to 9429, a drop of 0.5 percent.

Middle Tennessee State University saw the smallest growth in enrollment, with only two more students registering for classes this fall.

Enrollment at the state's 10 junior colleges jumped 7.3 percent.

The quarter enrollment statistical report issued by the office of admissions and records shows 96.17 percent of Austin Peay's enrollment is composed of Tennessee residents or students from neighboring states who pay in-state tuition on the graduate level.

Each of the 35 students in the University's graduate program fall into this category.

Specialized schools could hurt APSU

Governor Lamar Alexander's task force on education presented a plan in December suggesting that Tennessee take a look at specializing each of the four-year schools in the Board of Regents system.

Under such a plan, Tennessee Tech would emphasize studies in the sciences or industrial arts while Memphis State might concentrate on the arts.

The exact breakdown of emphasis would logically be dependent on where each school's strengths now lie.

The task force also called for combining the medical schools at Memphis State and East Tennessee and cutting enrollment in professional graduate programs.

The whole plan is aimed at saving the state money. If you send all mass communications majors to Middle Tennessee, you won't have to build a radio station at each university, is their reasoning.

The plan would also allow universities to cut their faculty size, which is what such a plan would mean to Austin Peay State University.

Fall Quarter statistics, strongly point to business and education as the programs with the most students.

Austin Peay has escaped the bastard-son status it enjoyed with the state of Tennessee up until the early 1970s.

This is evidenced by the recently-completed business building, renovations to the Memorial Health Building and Ellington Hall, new Greek organizations and plans to add a radio station and mass communications major to the university.

However, Austin Peay continues to have the smallest enrollment of all four-year schools in the state and the enrollment is steadily declining each year.

If Austin Peay was termed a teachers' college (as was the case 60 to 80 years ago), its questionable whether the university could maintain its already low enrollment.

The task force has a seemingly sound economic theory behind their plan. However, with the bottom line on economic survival, Austin Peay and East Tennessee would go down as attrition.

American explains Latin love

Dear Editor:

We are Americans who have made our home in Latin America for seven years. Lately, we are seeing much distorted news about the Americas coming out of the U.S. and would like to set the record straight for All State readers.

When we first moved to Costa Rica bag, baggage, grandmother, teenagers and pets, we spoke no Spanish and knew little about the country.

But, soon, our rural neighbors accepted us and graciously taught us their language, culture, and how a city-bred family could enjoy ranch life in a foreign land. Truly, our delightful adventures there merit a book, at least!

My husband's love for the sea (Pearl Harbor survivor, retired Navy), prompted a further move two years ago, to Colombia's Caribbean coast.

We found a lovely, old coconut plantation on the Pan American Highway near Santa Marta, the oldest (457 years), most fascinating city in all of the Americas.

Imagine, green palms waving in gentle ocean breezes, blue sea and sky, pounding surf and golden sand and, towering 19,000 feet over all and snow-capped the year 'round, majestic Mount Columbus.

We feel we have much incomparable beauty, fine neighbors, perfect climate, a stable, democratic government and a satisfyingly-low cost of living.

Like Columbus, we have discovered a new frontier, with a vast potential and, being human, are driven to tell others about our dream-come-true.

If you are interested in the future of the Americas...and the Birds...write us by international air mail (35¢ a half-ounce) at Post Office Box 5222, Santa Marta, Colombia. It may take a while, but we promise to answer.

Now, from beautiful Santa Marta, we wish you salud (health), posetas (wealth), amor (love) and the time to enjoy them all!

Ackerman discusses foreign visits

My roommate was at it again. He was telling me his philosophy on various subjects.

"You know a lot of instructors here at Austin Peay are pretty interesting. I'm sure a lot of them Peay are pretty interesting. I'm sure a lot of them write and travel."

I replied, "I'm sure you are right." I was trying to agree with him just to pass the time on the way to class. Sometimes you have to force yourself to agree with him so he won't start an argument.

"I'm serious! Why don't you hear of anyone who goes anyplace or does something spectacular?"

Well, my mind went at it and I decided to find someone here at Austin Peay that has been around the world or something. I found such a person in the history department. Hugh Ackerman was the obvious choice. The conversation went as follows:

John: "Where did you receive your education?"

Hugh: "University of Florida and Duke University."

John: "How did you receive your position here at Austin Peay?"

Hugh: "At the employment agency at Duke University they had a list of colleges that needed jobs filled and Austin Peay was one of them."

John: "What do you feel is the purpose of the historian in today's society?"

Hugh: "I think he is very important in today's society. He relates the present to the past and is in the position to judge what is going on now in many areas like political developments. I think in several areas he can supply valuable advice to political leaders and I think the general public would be in a risky situation if historians did not have some access to people like Ronald Reagan and other leaders."

John: "What particular periods of history do you like?"

Hugh: "Well, the ones I taught usually. The ones I've had courses in are European history, Latin American history and even Far Eastern history. I've gotten more interested in those."

John: "You get along with most of your students..."

Hugh: "Is this a question or are you telling me this (laughter)?"

John: "It is a noted fact (more laughter)."

Hugh: "I really like younger people, I don't know if it is that I have basically a childish mind or what."

John: "List some of the places you have travelled to."

Hugh: "I've travelled to most of the European countries, about 20 of them, all the American States except Alaska, plus all of the Canadian provinces except Newfoundland, most of the states in Mexico, Guatemala and most of the countries in South America, you notice I list several exceptions rather than actual places. I've been to seven African countries ranging from South Africa to Egypt, India, China, Japan, Thailand, Korea, Singapore, Indonesia, New Zealand, Tahiti, Hong Kong. I've been to more than enough, well at least 50 foreign countries and I've traveled extensively around this country."

John: "Tell me about China."

Hugh: "China is one of my chief interests now because I've been wanting to go there for a long time and China has been very difficult to go to.

They are just gradually opening up the country. What I did think was particularly interesting was I did get into some areas that were opened for the first time this summer. Places like Sichuan Province which used to be forbidden for tourists to visit. Of course, the Chinese government still has large parts of the country closed off. But I think I traveled to some of the areas that are new and that was fascinating because the people were very startled and followed us around since we were the first Westerners they saw for the first time was fascinating."

John: "Where do you hope to travel to after China?"

Hugh: "I'll cut down on travelling after that and stay here and write. I'm very interested in fiction writing, and there are a lot of things I'd like to revise and write about."

Editor looks at crime, classes, corner, Cosell

Crime is alive and well at Austin Peay State University. Just ask the women who have been accosted by the low-life(s) lurking in the halls of the McCord Building and some of the dormitories.

So far none of the women in the five reported cases has been injured and security has arrested one man (I use that term very loosely).

Security has made it mandatory for visitors to sign in at the women's dorms in an attempt to alleviate the unwelcome scum which has been seeping into the halls.

Another example of crime on campus is The All State office. As of Sunday, Jan. 30, our office has been burglarized three times since the week of fall quarter exams.

The list of stolen goods includes two typewriters, an electric heater, an electric pencil sharpener and 20 rolls of 35 mm film.

Austin Peay Security has been successful in recovering one of the typewriters and police are looking for the former All State editor whose I.D. card was used to pawn it.

The burglary which netted thieves the 20 rolls of film must have set a new university record. New locks (costing more than $300) had been put on the office doors less than 48 hours before the break-in.

It's amazing the thieves were able to find the one door where the lock was installed backwards. I wonder how hard it is to break out of an office?

The following are some little-known facts about Austin Peay State University which were included in statistical reports for fall quarter issued by the office of admissions and records:

Three undergraduate majors with the largest enrollment:

1). OTHER-12.76 percent of all Austin Peay undergraduates have listed this as their major field of study.

2). ELEMENTARY EDUCATION-7.10 percent.
3). UNDECLARED-6.83 percent.

Two most popular minors:
1). UNDECLARED-75.47 percent.
2). UNDECIDED-10.29 percent.

This week The All State is adding a new feature called the Greek Corner. It's designed to keep the campus population informed on our fraternities and sororities.

I would like to thank the people responsible for formulating and nurturing the idea for the column, John St. Amant, John Lilly and Beth Edwards.

Last fall I criticized Howard Cosell for his absurd indictment of professional boxing in the wake of the death of a Korean boxer. The next day Cosell said he would never call another boxing match.

It would be ridiculous to assume that my criticism had anything to do with Cosell's decisions. Nevertheless, if that's what it takes, I'll be more than glad to criticize his work on football, baseball, the Olympics and his talk show.

DeLuca reviewed

Touring hypnotist entrances audience

by Margaret Langford
Staff Reporter

Hypnotist-entertainer Tom DeLuca once again entranced an Austin Peay audience with his Jan. 25 performance in Clement Auditorium.

In this return engagement DeLuca misled the aid of his audience for his two-act show. He performed for and with his audience, so their responses along with the volunteers on stage helped to create his act.

Quick-witted DeLuca calls his show a "comic parody of the imagination." Encompassed in this title is his demonstration of BSP (with emphasis on the first two letters) which spoofs those entertainers who claim powers of ESP.

The second act of DeLuca's parody demonstrates how hypnotism and suggestion can create an illusion of reality.

DeLuca has a classier act than some in his profession, which prompted him to advise volunteers he would not have them "quack like a duck, bark like a dog, or become a chicken." Nor would he ask them any personal questions.

Of the 14 volunteers for hypnotism, only eight were able to reach a medium or deep level of hypnotic sleep.

Those who were able to achieve this level proved to be very uninhibited in their actions. DeLuca continually played to the audience by having those in deepest sleep imagine various situations.

Some of DeLuca's suggestions included smoking marijuana, which showed some people are rather selfish about that social custom, and being five years old, which proved the maturity level of some of our college students.

In another segment of the show DeLuca suggested they had lost their rear-ends. Some spent several minutes looking for these missing appendages.

The audience rolled with laughter at the antics of those on stage, and some of the more susceptible even felt a bit of the mood on stage.

Jim Townsend, chairman of the University Social Activities Board, said, "Tom is one of the best college circuit entertainers and puts on the best show for the price of the ticket."

Townsend said he likes DeLuca because, "He is very original and does stuff off the top of his head. He doesn't need gimmicks to do a show."

In intramurals we swept the championships in men's football, co-rec football, and the Little Sigmas won the women's volleyball championship. At Homecoming our candidate Beth Fletcher was crowned Queen and as fall quarter wrapped up we had our annual Christmas Party for underprivileged children.

As Winter Quarter gets underway, we are looking forward to more good times. We opened Rush with two parties on the 22 and 29th of January. February 4th is the date of our next open party at the house with Michael E's disco. Our rush smoker will be held February 10th at the Student Center, 9:00 p.m.

The Sigma Nu Fraternity recently held a basketball benefit for the Dream Factory in which the Sigma Nu Knights were hosts to the KX 104 Dirty Dribblers.

The game was held at the Dunn Center Jan. 13. A total of $200 was raised to benefit the Dream Factory.

Although the Sigma Nu Knights lost, the game was enjoyed by all.

The Sigma Nu Fraternity would like to thank all the Greek organizations and Clarksville area merchants for their support.

On Wed. Jan. 26 Paul "Bear" Bryant, an alumni of Sigma Nu, died. Bryant received the 1982 Alumnus of the Year award in recognition of his endeavors which reflected great credit upon this fraternity.

These endeavors have exemplified steadfast adherence to the Sigma Nu ideal of Love, Truth, and Honor, and for that the men of Sigma Nu shall grieve at the loss of such a fine brother.

Pi Kappa Alpha

The brothers of Pi Kappa Alpha are overwhelmed by the addition of our newest brother, Dr. Charles Boehms. Dr. Boehms is a professor in biology and a good friend to the school. We are very happy to have Dr. Boehms as a brother!

The Pikes have had an excellent quarter so far. Our continued success in rush and in Pike Open Dances have put our fraternity off to a good start. Our little sisters have also enjoyed a good quarter with their aid in rush parties and sponsoring various fund raisers.

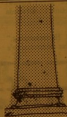

Our All-Pike under 6 ft. basketball team has been losing. Undeclared so far, the team has enjoyed victories over Last Pick, Sigma Chi and Alpha Phi Alpha. The team looks forward to many more victories.

The Pikes are presently sponsoring a raffle. With a $1 donation you can be entered into the drawing of a side of beef. Contact any brother to enter yourself in the drawing.

This weekend our fraternity is traveling to Memphis for a regional convention at our National Headquarters. The weekend will be filled with seminars, tours of National Headquarters and meeting brothers and little sisters from miles away.

Interested Greek organizations should submit material by Thursday 3:30 p.m. Material is to be brought by The All State office in Ellington Hall or P.O. Box 8334.

The column will run only if regular submission is turned into The All State.

Perry and Ragan named among outstanding women

by Tom Tarvin
Staff Reporter

Two Austin Peay seniors have recently been chosen Outstanding Young Women of America for 1982. The purpose of the award is to recognize women throughout America who have shown outstanding achievements and have given their time, talents and service to enrich the quality of American life.

Young women must be nominated to be considered. Ten women are chosen from each state and the District of Columbia to receive the honor.

Pam Ragan, a history and political science major, was nominated by Mary Kay Hinton, the recipient of last year's Drane Award.

Ragan is the current president of Pi Sigma Alpha, a political science honorary society. She is the vice president of Phi Kappa Phi, and a member of Phi Alpha Theta, Alpha Lambda Delta and Gamma Beta Phi.

Last year she won first place in the statewide undergraduate political science paper contest. She was selected for Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. She was also chosen Outstanding Young Community Leader of America.

"I am honored to be chosen," Ragan said. "I think all women should get involved as much as possible and assume leadership positions."

Amy Susan Perry, a health care management major, was nominated by Tony D. Marable, an APSU graduate who served as both vice president and secretary of the SGA.

Perry has served the American Red Cross for six years in Nashville hospitals and nursing homes. She has also served as a nursery attendant for the Dalewood Methodist Church in Nashville for five years.

At Austin Peay, she has served as secretary of the SGA. She has received the Mildred E. Deason Award and also the SGA Outstanding Service Award for 1982.

"It is an honor to be chosen as an Outstanding Young Woman of America," Perry said. "I will continue to live up to the standards of the award presented to me."

Sawrey gives 20 works to library

Expansion of and support of academic and educational programs is what Dr. James Sawrey has become most well known for since coming to Clarksville in 1976.

Vice-president for academic affairs at Austin Peay State University, Sawrey is an author who has provided insight and ideas for psychologists throughout the United States and South America.

A psychologist himself, Sawrey recently presented 20 books he authored to the Felix G. Woodward Library for inclusion in the University's collection of books written by University employees and alumni.

As an author, Sawrey has helped scores of students learn about stress, learning, exceptional individuals and children through the 30 books, numerous papers and articles he has written.

Sawrey came to Clarksville as vice president in 1976 after serving at San Jose State University in California for 25 years. There he did research in the world of psychology while advancing from assistant professor of psychology to chairman of the psychology department to dean of the School of Social Sciences.

"I started out to be a lawyer," Sawrey said. "It took me about a year to get over that and go into psychology. But I never did foresee a future in writing."

After earning his doctoral degree from the University of North Dakota in 1948, Sawrey embarked on a career that was filled with both research and writing. His first book was published in 1968 with the most recent book, The Exceptional Individual published in 1981.

Sawrey said writing is an enjoyable experience. "One of the most difficult things about writing is the isolation. It's a lonesome job, very detailed and very time consuming."

Sawrey's psychology training is put to use at Austin Peay not only as an educator and author, but also as he oversees management of the University's academic curriculum and faculty.

"It's very rewarding to see the many new and different academic programs introduced at Austin Peay since 1976," Sawrey pointed out. These have included the four-year nursing program, programs in computer science and social welfare, and the master's degree in business administration and several others.

While Sawrey has been a motivator in the development of new programs at the University, he takes time to continue development in his own areas of interest. The study of prevention, production and cure of ulcers in rats has been an on-going project for more than 18 years.

In addition, Sawrey has amassed a great deal of knowledge about presidents of the United States.

"I have an academic hobby of studying the person who becomes president," Sawrey explained.

While the study habits and homework capabilities of Austin Peay students are of particular interest to Sawrey, so are those of the men who have served as leaders of the nation.

Sawrey said he reads numerous biographies on presidents, their personal accounts and those written by others, to discern this information.

"For example, Jimmy Carter took a speed reading course after he became president and then spent as much as 18 hours a day reading materials to keep him abreast of events," Sawrey noted.

Show opens Wednesday

The Subject Was Roses — Rosemary Foster and Jeff Hall rehearse for the Austin Peay Playhouse production which opens Wednesday, Feb. 9 in the Travern Theatre.

Frank Gilroy's Pulitzer prize-winning drama, The Subject Was Roses will come to life on the Travern Theater stage at Austin Peay State University Feb. 9-12.

A drama of family life following World War II, the play goes into intimate aspects of day-to-day life with the humor we all look for in the face of private anguish.

Presented by Austin Peay Playhouse, the drama is directed by Danny Armitage of Drummond, a playhouse veteran of campus productions such as Inherit the Wind, California Suite, and The Rainmaker.

The cast for the play includes Glen Pafford of Nashville, Rosemary Foster of Clarksville and Jeff Hall of Nashville. Pafford has appeared in nine of the last 11 Playhouse productions.

Foster, an alumnae of Austin Peay, has appeared in numerous productions. Hall, who performed in A Little Night Music, was involved in theater at McGavock High School in Nashville.

Angela Love of Clarksville is the assistant director for the production, and Keith Wilson of Clarksville is stage manager. Dr. Joe Filippio, department chairman, is faculty supervisor.

Peay clubbed at MTSU and Murray

By Steve Harmon

Sports Editor

Austin Peay showcased a much-improved basketball team to Ohio Valley Conference frontrunner Murray State last Saturday night after league doormat Middle Tennessee had disposed of the Gova, 81-66, only the night before.

However, the end result was much of the same as the APSU losing streak reached five games.

Shaking off a disheartening loss to MTSU, winless in four OVC attempts this season prior to the APSU matchup, the Governors gave defending OVC co-champion Murray State everything the Racers could have expected from a team as victory-starved as Austin Peay.

The Gova scraped and fought their way to a 42-32 halftime lead in Racer Arena, largely on the three-point field goal shooting of Springfield, Tn. freshman, Lonnie West. The 5-11 gunner threw in five-of-seven bombs in first half action to stun an overflow crowd of 5,500.

"Their defense gave us the outside shots," Governor coach Ron Bargatz said of the tightly-packed Murray zone.

Some inopportune free throw misses by the Gova in the second half provided all the impetus that Murray State needed to stage a rally.

Holding a 71-63 lead with 4:27 to play, the Gova were outscored 18-6 in the final moments as the visitors failed to convert the front end of three bonus situations.

"Murray hit some phenomenal shots near the end," Bargatz said of the Racers surge.

Bargatz was referring to the wakening of all-OVC guard, Lamont Sietsa, who tossed in seven of his 13 points on the evening in the final three minutes to spark the MSU victory.

"We had a few breakdowns late in the game," noted West, who tallied 18 points in the game, "noted West.

"We wanted to score—to take it to 'em," Peay's Greg Andrews said of the Governors' strategy to attack the second half pressure of the Racers. "We just didn't get the breaks. We can't seem to get over the hump."

"We played about as good as we could've played," Bargatz said of the APSU effort.

The Gova shot 51 per cent from the floor (33-of-65) and outscored the hosts 45 to 33, but were outscored at the charity stripe, 13 to 1.

"We're gonna be a good team," the Peay mentor said of his junior-dominated squad. "Somewhere along the way we're gonna learn how to win and it will help us along the way."

Lenny Manning led the Gova with 25 points, while Randy Harris added 14 counters to join West in double figures. Joe Parker pulled down 12 rebounds for APSU. All-OVC, Glen Green, paced the Racers with 26 points.

With the two losses on the weekend, Austin Peay drops to 8-11 on the season and 1-6 in the OVC.

Murray State continues to hold the top spot in the league with a 7-0 mark. The Racers are 15-2 overall.

Parker (14), Harris (13), and Manning (10) hit for double figures versus MTSU in Murfreesboro the previous night.

The Gova continue their current road trip in "Death Valley" this weekend. Peay visits Eastern Kentucky Friday night before squaring off against Morehead State Saturday night.

Both contests tip off at 6:30 p.m. CST.

The Gova follow the "Death Valley" trip with a return engagement against Southwest Missouri Monday evening.

The non-conference game is slated for a 7:30 p.m. CST tip-off.

All games will be aired on WJZM-AM 1400 and WAED-FM 107.9 with Bill Herndon providing the play-to-play.

Gov tailspin persists

Students render opinions

To be perfectly honest with you, it's beyond me.

The status of the Austin Peay basketball teams has perplexed all involved to the extent of disbelief.

Now it's their turn. "What's wrong with the Gova?"

I set out to approach the students of Austin Peay with the question. A little door-to-door peddling of my inquisition and some last-minute snooping in the student center before my Monday deadline produced some interesting, yet highly predictable, results.

The students of Austin Peay have reached a conclusion. A consistent conclusion.

They're not happy with their teams' play.

I questioned 130 respondents with the simple probe, "What's wrong with the Gova?" Those questioned are APSU students and have attended at least one Governor basketball game this season.

While Gallup may refute the validity of my study, it does meet my primary objectives—to hear the student voice.

The responses were varied to the degree of seriousness. Some were even derogatory (of which I took the liberty of editing).

Billed as legitimate pre-season contenders for the OVC crown, the APSU men have dropped their last five games to fall to 8-11 on the campaign and 1-6 in league play. The women have reached greater depths; eight successive losses to mark a 1-17 year (0-5 in the OVC).

So, having reached wits' end, I put the question to the students. After all, they've been reading what I've had to say all season long, as well as some of the insights of players and coaches.

McGlory, sprint medley lead Gov runners

by Michael L. Tharpe
Staff Reporter

Austin Peay's Prentiss McGlory and the Lady Govs' sprint medley relay team were the top finishers for the Govs in the Mason-Dixon Relay meet held last Friday in Louisville, Ky.

Senior sprinter Prentiss McGlory was the Govs' top finisher as he took third in the 60 meter dash. McGlory ran the sprint in a time of 6.94 seconds.

The Lady Govs sprint relay team took a third place finish with a time of 4 minutes 20 seconds. The sprint medley team consisted of Pat Avery, Cynthia Miller, Sophia McClellan and Debra Colvett.

"I'm really proud of Prentiss and our sprint medley team," explained head coach Mike Howard. "All of our kids did a good job compared to the stiff competition we were in," continued Howard.

The Govs mile relay team consisting of Roland Scruggs, Randall Fayne, Terry Taylor and Ron Springer also finished fourth for the Govs with a time of 3:21.6.

According to Howard, the meet was mainly a relay meet. "There were only three individual races," Howard explained. "I feel we could have had more top finishers if there had been more individual races," he added. The meet was the first event of the year for the Govs and the second for the Lady Govs. "We did a very comparable job in the meet, but we were up against some great competition," said Howard. Top schools that were competing in the meet included Ohio St., Georgia Tech, Air Force and Michigan St.

No scores were kept at the meet, but medals were awarded to the top three places.

The Govs next meet will be this weekend as they travel to Bloomington, Ind. to compete in the Indiana Relays. The meet will be held both Friday and Saturday.

"I think we'll do better this weekend considering there will be more individual races," Howard said.

Thirty teams are expected to be competing in the IU relays.

Peay netters in tri-match

by Steve Harmon

Austin Peay's men's tennis team will challenge Mississippi State and host Murray State in an indoor match on the Racers courts Friday in Murray, Ky.

The Govs are scheduled to play Mississippi State at noon before meeting defending OVC champion Murray State at 6 p.m.

The Govs' indoor record stands at 0-1 after a season-opening loss to Vanderbilt. A match with University of the South last Friday was cancelled.

"This will be a good experience for us since we play two matches in one day," coach Billy Henry said. "It should help our conditioning for the spring."

OVC tennis

The Governors will probably take eight players to Murray, Henry previewed, and substitute at the No. 3 doubles position.

The "Carnegie Connection" of Venezuelan natives Carlos Claverie and Hartmut Jungbahn will man the No. 1 and 2 singles positions, respectively, for the Govs. "The bottom four positions are open as I see it," Henry said.

Mississippi State has a "much-improved" team, according to Henry, while Murray State represents the lone obstacle that stood between APSU and the OVC title last spring.

The Governors finished second to the Racers last May in the conference championships, held in Murray, after Peay had won the mythical regular-season title with an unblemished record.

Lady Gavs continue skid

The Austin Peay Lady Gavs lost a pair of games this past weekend on the road as Ohio Valley Conference rivals, Middle Tennessee and Murray State added to Peay's troubles.

MTSU claimed a 74-52 verdict over Peay in Murfreesboro Friday night as all-OVC center, Holly Hoover, dropped in 21 points for the league-leading Lady Raiders.

The Lady Gavs were led by freshman, Amy Davis, with 12 points, while Jennifer Brown added 11 and Valerie Malone netted 10.

The following night, it appeared as if the Lady Gavs might notch their first OVC win of the season.

After leading by as many as 10 points in the first half against Murray State in Racer Arena, APSU held a 32-30 edge at the intermission.

However, a red-hot Lady Racer squad fired a 64 per cent shooting accuracy in the final stanza to salvage a 81-72 win for the hosts.

The losses dropped APSU to 1-17 on the season and 0-5 in the loop.

Davis paced the Lady Gavs in scoring with 18 points. Michele McKinnon added 16 points, while Melony Waller contributed 13 and six assists.

APSU visits Valley foes Eastern Kentucky and Morehead State this weekend on Friday and Saturday, respectively.

USAB schedules 'All-Niter'

Once again, sports fans, the University Student Activities Board has announced plans for an

The All-niter will start at 8 p.m. in the Intramural building and last, you guessed it, all nite.

Now and all-niter, for anyone who has never been up that late, is just one big party with all sorts of games and activities going on at once.

Jim Townsend, pres. of USAB, said any organization, dorm or individual could get up teams to participate. Just fill out the roster next week.

Games include pizza-and-pie-eating contests, Mello Yello chug-a-lug, bingo, spades, and free throw shooting, among other things.

Townsend said the USAB has provided three prizes for each division: men's, women's, and independents.

First prize in each category is $100, second is $75 and third is $50.

But don't think you have to win to get a prize. Townsend said, "Everybody gets a prize."

Tucker invades Oakland camp

by Steve Harmon
Sports Editor

Charles Tucker, a standout lineman on the Austin Peay State University football team, reported to the Oakland Invaders' training camp last Friday in preparation for the upcoming United States Football League (USFL) season.

The 6'9", 250-pound senior was named All-Ohio Valley Conference and Division I-AA Kodak All-American at offensive tackle this season for the Governors. Tucker was selected by Oakland in round 14 of the USFL draft in early January.

In a telephone interview from his Atlanta home last week, Tucker said he was "in the process of signing" a contract with the Invaders.

When asked to disclose terms of the contract, Tucker responded: "I'll just say it's comfortable."

The two-year pact includes an option to jump to the National Football League after his USFL commitment. Tucker added.

The inaugural season for the USFL will feature 12 teams. Three divisions of four teams comprise the league.

Oakland has invited about 105 prospects to their training camp, according to Tucker. The Invaders' 15-game schedule is to begin on March 6.

"With the (television) network coverage, I think the league can survive," Tucker predicted.

"Playing ball is what I want to do," Tucker said of his decision to withdraw from Austin Peay. "I'm looking forward to the sunshine on the West Coast."

Results of the Lady Gove's study were similar, although less students had seen games.
The intent was not to be critical, although I suspected from the onset that few compliments would be rendered.

Viewing the men's predicament, the lack of experience must be considered.

Of the seven players who log the most playing time, only three wore the Red and White last season. Peay has only one senior on the squad. He has logged just 15 minutes of playing time all season.

Injuries and two players who quit the squad early in the season have hampered the Lady Gove effort.

In defense of the coaching staff, both have proven track records. Ron Bargatzke became renowned for his recruiting at Vanderbilt in the mid-1970's, while Pam Davidson was a successful head coach at Mississippi.

Given the current situation, this weekend's "Death Valley" trip to Eastern and Morehead has added significance.

"We're determined to come back and represent the school well," Bargatzke said after Peay's recent loss to MTSU.

But, who knows? Maybe it is just the cafeteria food, afterall?

Cynthia,

Happy Valentine's Day

With love,

Steve
