All State to survey student opinion

By Lisa Jackson

This quarter The All State will present to the student body a series of polls.

The first of the series to be completed is a survey of the opinions of students regarding the registration process of last winter quarter.

Thirty-five students were randomly selected from the Austin Peay telephone directory. Each of these students was telephoned and asked to answer the following question, "How would you rate the winter quarter registration; please use the following scale: A-Excellent, B-Good, C-Average, D-Inferior, and F-Failure."

One student out of the 35 said that registration this quarter deserved an A rating. "I advance paid, so I say that it went excellently," said the student.

Eleven students rated the process "good" or B. One of these students said that it did not run quite as well as it could have, but that it went fairly smoothly.

Another student in this group said "It went very well, but there should have been less hassle in the pay lines." Two students in this category expressed the feeling than an extra pay line might have made the registration receive an A rating.

Average, or C, ratings were given by nine of the questioned students. "Too many people were passing line, making it difficult to advance," said one student. Another student said "More information about the registration process should be given to the students. Freshman students in particular should be more informed." Another student said that more than one day should be allotted to the process.

Eight students rated the process of winter quarter "inferior" or D. "The financial aid lines should have been more organized. People who got financial aid had to go to several tables. I think one table would have done all of the necessary processes," commented one student.

"Everybody ended up having to pay fees at the same time," one student said. Another student suggested more pay lines and more specific directions to students in lines. "The whole process was bad," a student said.

"Fall quarter was much more organized," he continued. Another suggestion was more workers during registration.

Six students said that they considered the registration a failure. "The lines were entirely too long," one student said. Another student who rated the process F said, "The use of signs could make the process run much more smoothly."

One particular student said that he attended other schools which had much more efficient processes. "I think AFSU could look at any other school in Tennessee and figure out a better way to run registration," he said.

More students rated the registration process "good" than any other score. Thirty-four percent of the students gave registration a B. However, the inferior and failure group combined represented 40 percent of the students polled, while the excellent and good groups added together make up only 34.29 percent. Twenty-five percent of those polled rated the process average.

'All-Nighter' coming

By Ken Knapp

Starting at 8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 13 and lasting until 8 a.m. Saturday, Austin Peay's "All-Nighter" is now being planned by the intramural department.

Included in the night's schedule of activities are the egg toss, tug-of-war, frisbee throw, the Stroh's case-stacking contest, pizza eating contest and several other events.

Besides these team events, individual competition will take place at the "All-Nighter" so that all students can participate.

"Past participation has been fantastic," said Artie Manning, director of special events and co-director of the event. Buddy Bumgarner, director of student activities, is also directing the "All-Nighter."

Manning said that 600-800 students participated at one time or another in last year's "All-Nighter."

"The 'All-Nighter' is designed specifically for the students," said Manning. "It breaks the monotony and is purposely planned for the winter quarter when the students can't spend much time outdoors."

Manning said that the "All-Nighter" promotes "whole-hearted fun," and that the students always have a great time.

"It's good for students to participate in something that they can laugh about themselves. The whole purpose of the thing is to have a good time."

There is no entry fee for the event, and prizes will be given to the individual and team winners. Prizes for the team winners are as follows: first prize, $100; second prize, $50; and third prize, $25.

Each team may have ten members, and rosters can be obtained at the intramural office. The first sixteen men's and women's teams to sign up will be able to participate. Rosters are due by Wednesday, Feb. 11 at noon. Individual participants will sign up for events at 8:45 p.m. on the night of the "All-Nighter."

Clarksville radio station WJZM will be at the event from start to finish to give a live remote broadcast. The radio station will also give away albums.

Merchants who have made donations for the "All-Nighter" are Ideal Distributing Co., Wendy's, The Library, The Works, Action Athletics of Clarksville, WJZM, Coca-Cola, Hawkeye Camera Center, "That's All" Levis, B&B Lion Service Station and Plaza California Concept.

For more information, call 648-7664 or go to the intramural office.

Ground breaking signals beginning of new building

Groundbreaking ceremonies were held Friday, Jan. 30, for the new business buildings at Austin Peay State University. The building is located at the corner of Marion and Henry street.

Attending the ceremony were former Sen. Halbert Harvill, Sen. Riley Darnell, Rep. Roscoe Pickery, Rep. David Ussery, Rufus Johnson, architect, Dr. Robert O. Riggs, president of APSU, and Dr. J. F. Barney, dean of the college of business and professional programs.

While breaking ground, Riggs quipped to Ussery, "See what the Democrats got us, Dave. We are waiting for the Republicans to come across with a building."

Ussery is a recently elected Republican representative.

Base and Associates of Murfreesboro, contractor for the new business building, provided the low bid for the capital project—$2.2 million. Project completion date for the two-story, L-shaped building with 32,000 square feet is April, 1982.

WRITING HOME—Sandy Waggoner, a sophomore from Elktion, conducts some business in the university post office. Waggoner is a speech major at APSU.

Flu hits AP campus

The beginning of winter quarter brought with it a semi-epidemic flu virus to the campus of APSU.

Diane Berty, nurse practitioner in the infirmary, said that they had seen approximately 200 cases of the virus since the winter quarter began.

"The flu virus is characterized by a sore throat, cough, headache, and aching between the shoulder blades," explained Berty. She also said that anyone experiencing the illness ran a temperature of around 102 to 104 degrees, and that the virus lasted approximately two to four days.

Berty said that the treatment suggested to the student with influenza was bed rest coupled with regular administration of aspirin. The nurse explained that in some cases students residing in residence halls have been sent home to prevent further spreading of the illness.

Berty suggested to students who have not been ill with the virus to get plenty of sleep and to be sure to eat properly. "The main preventive measure for students who have not been ill is to stay away from their friends who are sick," suggested Berty.

Berty said that during the past few days they have seen fewer cases of the virus.

America welcomes 52

Journalist remains hostage

The All State rejoiced with the rest of the country when the 52 hostages were freed on Jan. 20. But, calmly at first, and now with more insistence, we ask, "What about Cynthia Dwyer?"

Cynthia Dwyer is a free lance editor and journalist who left the states last April for Iran. According to People magazine, "Dwyer hoped to write articles on her return that would contribute to an understanding of the Iranian people and thus help to free the 52 captive Americans."

Within a month of Dwyer's arrival she was arrested in her hotel room and charged with spying for the CIA.

Dwyer has been imprisoned since that day. As of Jan. 19 her family had received only four letters from her. The family consists of a husband and three children between the ages of nine and 14.

Shortly before the hostages' release, John Dwyer, her husband, was quoted as saying, "I don't want her left behind when the other 52 come home. I wouldn't want Cynthia's case in any way to delay their return, but I also don't want people to forget her."

Which seems to be exactly what is happening. The irony of the case is that the national media, who so doggedly keep us up to date on the other 52 hostages, have practically ignored Dwyer, a medium member.

Where is Dwyer now? How many citizens are actually aware that there is an American still imprisoned on Iranian soil?

The threats of breaking treaty negotiations might be discussed in a different light if the public is made aware that a journalist from the United States awaits trial in Iran.

Dwyer had often expressed a contempt for the CIA's role in Iran, and for the Shah. It is unbelievable that Iran could use such a case as CIA involvement to retain her.

While rejoicing for the return of the public 52, The All State urges its readers to become aware of number 53. Cynthia Dwyer should not be forgotten.

The media in general seem to be ignoring her case. It is time for citizens to speak to their elected officials and remind them of the woman who may soon become the forgotten hostage.

Letters policy

As in years past, The All State staff encourages student opinion on major or not so major issues on campus.

We strongly urge any student or faculty member who wishes to express his opinions to write to the editor of The All State.

Philosophers plan several events

Dear Editor:

Several years ago, the Philosophy Club quietly and slowly engaged in an act of involuntary indirect euthanasia as it slipped into a coma. However, the prognosis was not terminal, for there have been heard some faint stirrings of hope and belief that the patient might be resurrected from a state of unconsciousness.

Therefore, in the hope of things unseen, Drs. (Metaphysicians) Forderhaas and Randall invite all "Lovers of Wisdom" to join in the pursuit of "Sophia." Our second activity of the year will be an examination of John Steinbeck's East of Eden. On Feb. 8, 7-10 p.m., Feb. 9, 8-10 p.m., and Feb. 11, 7-10 p.m. ABC television will present an eight-hour production of this American classic. Steinbeck sets the state for Eden in these words: "I believe there is only one story in the world, and only one... Human are caught - in their lives, in their thoughts, in their hungers and ambitions, in their avarice and cruelty, and in their kindness and generosity too - in a net of good and evil."

Those who are interested, i.e. the conscious and wise, should watch the performances on Feb. 8 and 9 at any available T.V. On Feb. 11, come to the media center (basement of the library) before 7 p.m. We will watch the final three-hour performance on the wide-screen T.V. at the center. Afterward, those interested are invited to gather at the Honors House for an informal discussion of this production. So come, bring your own "embodied consciousness" and that of another.

Other events which are planned for the coming months are: 1) a viewing and discussion of "Steamboat" - a play "somewhat similar" to Sartre's "No Exit"; 2) a spring picnic.

Vet opposes mandatory housing

Dear Editor:

Even though it would not affect me, I was very upset to read about mandatory on campus housing. I have found that there are many things to learn that cannot be learned in a classroom. I feel it is very important for a man or woman to learn the "joys" of housekeeping. I am not married, but have come to understand that too many young people enter marriage without any idea of what it takes to run a house. I had no idea what I was in for when I left the Army. Academic learning is important. But, real life is more than "frat" parties and extracurricular activity.

Why, if the state and federal governments declare someone an adult should an institution take those rights and freedoms away? A basic understanding is that there is a difference between high school and college. It is up to the individual to be responsible to get their money's worth out of each class. When a person enters college, it is time to be an adult and to be treated as such.

With the economy being what it is today it is understandable that the college needs money. Dr. Nettles' response to the question or financial benefits seemed a little "political," as printed. It is hard for me to believe that the college won't make up some lost money. This seems to be a very underhanded way of generating revenue to offset inflation.

Placement up

Grads get jobs

Eighty-seven percent of the 1980 graduating class at Austin Peay State University located jobs within three months after commencement according to respondents to a survey conducted by Office of Placement Services.

"This reflects an 18 percent increase during the past two years," Douglas Barber, associate director of placement and university services, said.

Of the nearly one-third of the 581 graduates responding to the questionnaire, the major bulk of the graduates found jobs in accounting, business, industry, education and nursing within the Middle Tennessee-Southern Kentucky area.

Eighty-five percent of the graduates responding secured full-time employment related to their major concentration at APSU. Full-time employment comprised 65 percent of the respondents, while 18 percent of the graduates indicated part-time employment, continuing their education in graduate school or entering the military as their current status.

Many of the unemployed representing the other 17 percent were either engaged in job negotiations or changing positions at the time of study, Barber said.

Monetary theft rising

Smoke bombs cease

Attempts to throw smoke grenades into buildings have not been repeated, according to Bill Singerhoff, Director of Public Safety.

Early in the winter quarter, smoke grenades were thrown into the windows of an off-campus fraternity and a sorority suite in Harned Hall.

"There is one suspect but it is not legally sufficient to charge the individual at this time."

"If it were intended as a prank, it was a very poor choice. There are no ideas for motive or why those two (buildings) were chosen," Singerhoff said.

When asked what these crimes on campus should concern the students most, Singerhoff replied, "theft, theft, and theft."

"Often individuals leave their property unsecured."

Neither students, faculty, staff, or visitors are immune to theft, but it can be "reduced by more security awareness," according to Singerhoff.

"Theft of items by number count is down, but the monetary value of items stolen is up. It is a matter of economics and dollar loss is greater."

"There have been no reported rapes in 1980 or 81 on campus, knock on wood."

"In 1980, it appeared vandalism was down from 1979."

On the subject of parking, Singerhoff replied, "The biggest problem is if they (students) would stick to the ABC's of parking, then there would be no problem."

"We could definitely use a couple of more officers full-time," remarked Singerhoff.

Seventh 'Jam' receives national acclaim

More than 25 top names in music performed for more than eight hours before a sell-out crowd of over 10,000 at Charlie Daniels' seventh annual Volunteer Jam on Saturday, Jan. 17, at Nashville's Municipal Auditorium.

Volunteer Jam, which started out as a local music get-together, has since grown into a national event with musicians and audience coming from all over the country. This year's guests heard more than 82 songs, ranging all the way from Roy Acuff's rendition of "Wabash Cannonball," to Ted Nugent's version of "Land of a Thousand Dances," and Billy Joel's version of "Jailhouse Rock."

The audience was treated to a wide sampler of contemporary American popular music which included everything from Texas honky tonk and rhythm & blues to Cajun country and heavy metal rock.

The evening's line-up included: Grinders Switch, McGuffey Lane, The Winters Brothers Band, The Charlie Daniels Band, Colleen Peterson, Papa John Creach, Roy Acuff, The Jordanaires, Dobie Gray, Shakin' Stevens, Ted Nugent, Johnny Lee, Doug Gray, Kelly Harland, Billy Joel, Mickey Gilley, Ben Smathers and the Stony Mountain Cloggers, The Marshall Tucker Band (who are veterans of all seven jams), The Henry Paul Band, Bobby Bare, Jimmy Hall, Crystal Gayle, Jimmy C. Newman and Cajun Country, Delbert McClinton, Greg "Fingers" Taylor, Molly Hatchet and John McEwen.

Early in the show, the CDB played an hour and 46-minute set and then took to the stage numerous times during the course of the evening to accompany their musical guests. They closed the show out after 2 a.m. as they led a lengthy musical "jam" on songs like "C. C. Rider," "Kansas City," and finally, "Tennessee Waltz."

On some of these songs, as many as 23 musicians joined in.

A high point of this year's event was the appearance of Grand Ole Opry veteran Acuff. After singing "Wabash Cannonball," he presented Daniels with sheet music of all the songs he has sung on The Grand Ole Opry during his long career.

"I'm not giving you these songs because I want you to sing them," Acuff told Daniels. "I'm giving them to you as a keepsake. I want to be part of your life, and these songs are my life."

Tickets to Volunteer Jam VII had gone on sale in December, and had sold out in two hours. Colorful banners throughout the crowded auditorium Saturday night demonstrated that Jam enthusiasts from such far-away points as Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Canada had been able to obtain them.

In addition to the capacity audience in the main areas of the arena, another 1,500 guests of the CDB-entertainers, friends and family of the bandmembers, music business executives as well as dozens of press represented from all over the country—crowded into the backstage and downstairs areas of the Municipal Auditorium. According to at least one report, these guests consumed 400 gallons of wine and 6,000 glasses of beer.

For those fans who had not been able to get tickets, Volunteer Jam VII was broadcast on six different radio stations in Tennessee: WKKX and WRVU in Nashville;

Botanic Hall to house stars

Cheekwood's Botanic Hall becomes "home" for some of the most outstanding personalities in country music from now until March 4.

Jim McGuire's "Nashville Portraits" are on display in the photography gallery.

Included in the exhibition are portraits of such luminaries in the business as Minnie Pearl, Wilma Lee and Stony Cooper, Lester Flatt, Marty Robbins, Merle Travis, Doc Watson, Johnny Cash (here portrayed with Billy Graham) and Chet Atkins. Among the relative newcomers are John Hartford, David Bromberg, Jerry Jeff and Susan Walker, as well as one of the "newest comers" of all, Terry Bradshaw.

A focal point in the show is McGuire's nighttimes "portrait" of the shrine of country music—the Ryman Auditorium.

McGuire, a resident of Nashville, was born and raised in New Jersey where he developed his first real interest in photography.

After two years of study in Mechanical Engineering, he joined the United States Air Force as a weatherman; but it was the Air Force that turned him into a professional photographer, providing him with some training and a lot of opportunity in Viet Nam during 1964 and 1965.

After the service, he moved to New York City where he took up the study and practice of photography in earnest. He has served as the corporate staff photographer of United Airlines and, since 1968, has worked on a free-lance basis, shooting magazine, travel, advertising and music business photography. In 1972, he moved to Nashville where he has been working on the Nashville Portraits ever since. This is his first one-man show.

Greeks tuck in

Sigma Nu Fraternity will sponsor a unique fund-raising activity, according to fraternity member Jeff Eubanks. The week of Feb. 9-13, the colony will be participating in a "Tuck-in."

A "Tuck-in," according to Eubanks, will consist of the reading of a bedtime story and the tucking in of any female Austin Peay student for the small fee of $1.50. A special deal is offered to roommates; both can purchase the unusual service for $2.50.

Any woman interested in participating in the fund raiser may make reservations next week at the Sigma Nu table in the University Center or by calling Eubanks at 7988. He added that those women who wanted the service of a specific brother could request him or "you can just take pot-luck."

Senate takes four actions

Last Thursday night, the Student Government Association of Austin Peay State University approved four project requests to be aided by the student activity fund, passed a resolution, appointed a chairman for Austin Peay Week and referred an issue to a committee.

The Community Concert Association of Clarksville was given $667 from the student activity fund. Community Concerts are held during the fall and winter quarter, so the amounting given will be split between the two quarters. These concerts are free to Austin Peay students upon presentation of a valid ID. Regular tickets cost $5.

The Student National Education Association was awarded $200 to send Debbie Pardue, the organization's president, to the national convention of the organization.

Funds amounting to $800 were allotted to the AP Playhouse. This money, in addition to almost $1,200 raised by the organization, will send nine Austin Peay students to the Southeastern Theatre Conference finals in Orlando, Fla.

Barber said, "I expect these figures to increase during 1980-81." He indicates there is an increasing demand for students with training in the areas of computer science and industrial technology.

"Jobs are available in all areas," Barber said, "however the job market is highly competitive and many students are reluctant to leave the Middle Tennessee-Southern Kentucky area and this definitely restricts their opportunities to locate employment."

Barber said, "The placement office is continually seeking representatives from business, industry and education to employ APSU graduates."

Persons interested in further information about the APSU office of Placement Services should contact Barber by telephone at 648-7896.

Prices show dorms cheaper

By Dennis Martin

Statistics show that even with the increase last fall in the price of dormitory rental, it is much cheaper than getting an apartment.

The First Metropolitan Corp., which manages most of the apartment complexes in Clarksville, keeps a list of prices on each complex.

The Austin Peay student can go from the townhouse to the small efficiency. It depends on his or her taste, and money.

The following is a list of apartment complexes within easy driving range of Austin Peay. All information is courtesy of the First Metropolitan Corp.

- University Terrace (College Street)-1 bedroom apartment is $190 a month. Two bedrooms, $215 a month. There are also efficiencies available at $135 a month. An efficiency is a dorm-type setup where everything is in one room.

- Riverside Apartments (909 Riverside Drive)-One bedroom, $195. Two bedrooms, $215.

- Belmont Lodge (2190 Memorial Dr.)-One bedroom is $205 a month. Two bedrooms are $235 and three bedrooms are $285. There are also two bedroom townhouses available at $275 a month. These are two-level apartments.

- Maple Hills (545 12th St.)-One bedroom is $121; two bedrooms are $139.

All of the apartments managed by First Metropolitan are subject to a $150 security deposit, plus a 9 or 12-month lease. In all the above, no utilities are paid. Only trash removal and water are included in the rent.

In the fall of 1980, a price hike on the dorms at Austin Peay went into effect. A secretary at the housing office said that this price hike happens every fall and is enacted by the Dean of Students and the Business Manager. Utilities are the major reason for the hike.

Here is a list of dorm prices, from a pamphlet published by the Residence Hall Council of Austin Peay.

In the $210 per quarter range, there are Harned Hall, Ellington Hall, and Miller Hall. All three were at the $175 level in 1979.

Harvill Hall and Mount Hall are each $230. In 1979 they were $175 and $185, respectively.

Killebrew, Rawlins, Sevier and Cross Halls each run $250. They were $200 in 1979.

Ball Village, which now runs $265, was $210 in 1979. There is also a $25 damage deposit, which will be refunded when the student leaves the university. Telephone and all utilities in the dorms are covered with the one price.

Another factor contributing to the cost of apartment living is utility prices. This figure usually will run around $50 per month.

Dormitory prices, while they continue to rise, have not yet exceeded the price of apartment living.

The entire evening was also recorded live. Segments will be included in a live album of Volunteer Jan VII, to be released later this year.

The festivities concluded at a post-Jan party at the Hyatt Regency Hotel, which went on until the daylight hours. Those who were still awake at 7 a.m. heard the now traditional chorus of bag-calling echoing in the Hyatt's 24-story atrium.

It was Charlie Daniels himself who summed up Volunteer Jan VII when he declared from the stage, "There ain't no crowd in the world anything like a Volunteer Jan crowd!"

Students report $5,000 theft

An estimated $5,000 worth of personal property was stolen from the student lounge of the music department on either Dec. 24 or 25.

Musical instruments and camera gear stored in private lockers were stolen. Three students reported missing items. The lockers are located in the student lounge in the Clement building.

A student found a musical instrument in the bushes outside of the Clement building and reported the finding to the public safety department. Public safety investigated and found that some lockers had been broken into.

"We are investigating. We have the suspect's name and are trying to run him down. We have alerted local pawn shops," Bill Singerhoff, head of public safety, said.

Several minor break-ins have occurred in dormitory rooms this quarter. Singerhoff said that the theft in the music department was the first major theft this year.

Statistics give profile

The average Austin Peay State University student is a white female between the ages of 18 and 24 who commutes to school, according to the fall 1981 enrollment statistics.

The statistics show that females compose 56.1 percent of the student population, and males compose approximately 43.9 percent of the total population.

Three-quarters of the students at APSU are white. Blacks compose 18.3 percent of the population, 1.3 percent are Hispanic, 0.6 percent are Asian Americans, 0.3 percent are American Indians, and 78 percent are white. Foreign students of all races compose 1.5 percent of the population.

The age statistics show the majority of students are between the ages of 18 and 24. Students in this age range compose 62.6 percent of the population.

Students between the ages of 25 and 29 compose 15.4 percent of the population; 30 and 34, 9.5 percent; 35 and 39, 4.0 percent; 40 and 44, 4.1 percent; 45 and 49, 2.3 percent; 50 or above, 1.8 percent.

A total of 361 freshmen out of a class of 1,635 are 25 years of age or older. Thirty-six freshmen are 45 or older.

Less than 20 percent of APSU students live on campus. Of a total student population of more than 6,000, 947 students live on campus.

Sevier Hall has the most students—193. Killebrew has 182; Cross, 138; Ellington, 103; Rawlings, 90; Harned, 89; Blount, 91; Harvill, 66, and Ball Village has 35 residents.

The following national results were compiled from data received from a survey conducted by the American Council on Education and UCLA taken during fall quarter registration by 530 first-time, full-time freshmen.

Almost 10 percent of the freshmen are 20 or older and 2.3 percent of this group are 30 or older. Thirty-six percent of the freshmen ranked in the top 20 percent of their graduating class in high school, and slightly more than 56 percent ranked in the second and middle 20 percent of their graduating class respectively.

APSU freshmen ranked higher than the national norm of freshmen in other public colleges in such areas as an "A" average in high school, academic rank in the top 20 percent of their graduating class and lack of need for remedial work in English, reading, mathematics, social studies, science and foreign language.

College dormitory living still dominated the preferred and planned residence of the respondents.

Important reasons for deciding to go to college are (1) get a better job, (2) make more money, (3) learn more about things, (4) gain general education and (5) meet new and interesting people.

Primary reasons for selecting APSU include (1) financial assistance, (2) good academic reputation, (3) low tuition, (4) close to home and (5) special education programs.

Major fields of study and rank chosen by the incoming freshmen include (1) business administration, (2) nursing, (3) accounting, (4) elementary education and (5) physical education/recreation. Also ranking high are computer science, data processing, programming, psychology, social work, sociology, professional health technology, premedicine-medicine-veterinary, therapy, pharmacy; management, fine and applied art; marketing; and political science.

WHAT NOW?—J.W. Hunt, a senior from Chattanooga appears to be at a loss for things to do as he leans on a couch in the Joe Morgan University Center. Hunt is majoring in Business Administration.

New service does mending

Various signs around campus are now offering a service titled "Rent-a-Mom, Inc." Rent-a-Mom, according to the advertisement, specializes in mending and "acting in mom's capacity."

Sandra Lankford, a senior commercial art major, is the "mom" that does the mending. Lankford said that the idea for her service came about when she saw ragged freshmen walking around campus, and realized that many were away from mom's sewing abilities for the first time.

Students wishing to use Rent-a-Mom's services may call Lankford between 7 and 10 p.m. on weekdays only. The customers are responsible for delivering their goods to Lankford, and picking up the finished product.

The usual pick up date is one week from delivery.

However, Lankford said that some of the more difficult items may take two weeks or longer.

Lankford does the mending advertised in Rent-a-Mom during her spare time. "It's a supplementary income for personal items," she said.

The business seems to be doing moderately well, according to Lankford. If business begins to boom, she plans to add an assistant.

Prices include $1 for patching, ripped seams, and hems; and $3 for application of zippers.

Penick said that she thought Rent-a-Mom is a "grand idea." Penick stated, "Rent-a-Mom would help in so many ways, especially price wise. My sister took a pair of jeans with a broken zipper to a local seamstress. They wanted to charge her $7 to fix them."

Penick concluded, "I hope the business gets circulated enough so that people will know about it, her sewing incorporation is something worthwhile."

NO WHERE TO GO—Tech's Pete Abula is confronted by Governor forward Al Bellenfant as Roosevelt Sanders and Dennis Palmer help to clog the lane. Peay slipped by Tech 60-67 in Cookeville last Thursday night.

Peay snaps tailspin; wins two

By Steve Harmon

The road-weary Governors claimed revenge as their motive in snapping a five-game losing streak this past weekend.

After opening the new year with two OVC victories (Tech and Eastern), the Gavs dropped five consecutive conference tilts, the most recent being a humiliating 79-66 setback versus Akron.

The APSU seniors (Andrew Burton, Roosevelt Sanders, Michael Shunick, and Tim Thomas) were determined to stop the tailspin, however.

Following a hard-fought 69-67 victory over arch-rival Tennessee Tech at Cookeville's Hooper Eblen Center on Thursday night, the Governors initiated their Bob Rupert dirt boards for the long trek to Icelandic Akron, Ohio.

You see, Rupert, the Akron coach, was the villain who called two timeouts in the last 1:27 of the APSU-AU game on Jan. 22 in Clarksville with his team leading by a near 20 point margin.

The men from Clarksville were steadfast on their mission of teaching Coach Rupert a lesson in professional courtesy.

"That kind of rubbed it in our faces a little bit," coach Ron Bargatz said of the two Akron timeouts in the waning moments of the Jan. 22 encounter. "It's not unethical, but it's a little off-color," the APSU strategist continued. "We reminded our players of that several times before the game. It helped get us fired up," Bargatz related.

Fired up they were as the Gavs escaped from Akron's Memorial Hall, a place that makes Clarksville High's gym look like the Pontiac Silverdome, as OVC scoring leader Drew "Mr. Clutch" Burton canned two free throws with only seven seconds to play, capping a 58-57 comeback victory.

Akron had built a 46-38 lead with 8:43 to play after the score was tied at 26 all at the half.

"We just continued to work for the shots that we wanted and shifted the momentum our way," analyzed Bargatz of the second half deficit.

With the Gavs down 55-54 and under a minute to play, All-OVC Roosevelt Sanders stole the ball and was immediately fouled.

Sanders made good on both ends of a one and one situation, giving Peay a slim 56-55 advantage.

Former Cumberland Junior College star and Akron native Lance Bates zeroed in on a 20 foot jumper, giving the home team a 57-56 lead with 19 seconds to play, setting up Burton's last minute heroics.

Burton led all scorers in the Akron game as the 6-3 Chicago-native accounted for 22 points.

All-conference center Roosevelt Sanders added 14 points, while senior playmaker Michael Shunick, the other half of "The Chicago Connection," held Akron's David Mason to only seven points after the 6-5 forward had tallied 30 in Clarksville in the previous meeting.

Burton garnered scoring honors in the Tech victory as the senior swingman scored 24 points on nine of 14 shooting and 6 of 6 at the line.

Sanders and freshman Dennis Palmer added 11 points, while Shunick chipped in with 10 first half counters in Cookeville.

Peay will bring its 4-5 OVC mark and 11-9 overall record into a season-ending homestand in the Dunn Center.

The Gavs play five of their remaining six games at home, with only a Feb. 14 clash with MTSU in Murfreesboro sending the Running Red Men to the freeway.

Tomorrow night, Feb. 5, APSU will host the Eastern Kentucky Colonels. EKV owns a 5-3 OVC record and an 8-10 overall mark.

Saturday, Feb. 7, the Gavs will entertain the Morehead State Eagles. MSU claims a 3-6 conference slate and is 9-9 overall.

Governor netters fare well

By Steve Harmon

Pressman OVC favorite Austin Peay has shown the conference pollsters that they are, indeed, the tennis team to beat this spring.

Governor netter Hal Jolley captured the inaugural Governor Indoor Invitational this past weekend in the Dunn Center.

The wiry freshman from Detroit knocked off Mats Ljungman of Murray State, 6-7, 7-6, 6-2 in three sets to claim the crown.

Gov cagers romp; Jolley slighted

A successful week of basketball has overshadowed the accomplishments of Austin Peay netter Hal Jolley.

As APSU claimed narrow victories over conference ivala Tennessee Tech and Akron, Governor freshman Hal Jolley held off the best that the OVC had to offer as the Detroit native captured the singles title in the First Annual Governor Indoor Invitational this past weekend in the Dunn Center.

With the help of teammate Greg Carter, who knocked off pesky Phil Tuckniss of UT-Chattanooga, Jolley ousted the defending OVC singles champion Mats Ljungman of Murray State.

In an effort to save face, the sports staff of The All State, as well as the Sports Information and Public Information Departments, were committed to selecting Andy Burton as the "Athlete of the Week," based on his OVC "Player of the Week" distinction.

I'm not taking anything away from Drew, because he was the dominant force behind Peay's recent road victories, but I would like to acknowledge Jolley's performance as well.

Speaking of saving face, how 'bout my new mug shot?

Contrary to campus rumor, I was not hallucinating at the time of the old snapshot.

I was caught off guard as a result of an unannounced quiz in Tom Pinckney's 8 a.m. government class.

The OVC basketball race is heating up due to this past week's results.

Peay is knocking on the tournament door with a fifth place 4-5 OVC record.

MTSU and Tech were two-time losers last week as Western lengthened its stride with two more victories.

All of this sets up the APSU-EKV showdown tomorrow night at the Dunn Center. The Gavs are in a must-win situation as Eastern is in third place with a 5-3 record.

Tip-off is scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

in the OVC and was the champion of the Angry Red Invitational this past fall.

"Mats played well," said Jolley, "but I finally got things going in the second set."

Jolley advanced to the finals by defeating Danny Wallace of MTSU, 6-1, 6-2 in straight sets.

Greg Carter, an Oak Ridge junior, was the other Governor representative in the select field of eight singles players.

SKY'S THE LIMIT—Austin Peay's Dennis Palmer is outjumped by Tech's Carlton Hendrix in the two team's recent encounter in Cookeville. Hendrix and his teammates came down to earth, however, as the Gova prevailed 69-67.

Governor alumnus honored

By Steve Harmon

Former APSU football and basketball standout Andy Tombs has been named Florida High School Coach of the Year as he guided the Bayshore High School Bruins to an 8-2 regular season campaign after Bayshore had posted a 28 record in 1979. The Bradenton Herald reported recently, "Tombs, an All-OVC defensive back and basketball star at APSU during the 1964-65 through 1966-67 academic years, led Bayshore to its best season in history and the mythical Manatee County Championship title this fall."

A Clarksville native who prepped at Rantoul High School in Illinois, Tombs credited most of Bayshore's success to his staff and players.

"You know, you can 'X' and 'O' this, and 'X' and 'O' that, defense this, defense that. But, it's not worth a hill of beans if the players don't execute," Tombs prophesied.

Sanders represents OVC

Austin Peay center Roosevelt Sanders has been nominated for election to the prestigious Pizza Hut Basketball Classic. The all-star event is scheduled for April 4 in the Las Vegas, Nevada Convention Center. The selection committee of eight sportswriters from across the nation singled out Sanders as the only OVC representative based on his 15.4 points, 6.6 rebounds, and all-conference honors of a year ago.

A panel of sportswriters, broadcasters, and coaches will select the eight players who will represent the East and West squads in Las Vegas. Two at-large players will be added to each squad to round out the selections.

Denny Crum of the University of Louisville will coach the East squad while UCLA's Larry Brown will head the West contingent.

Crum's Cardinals defeated Brown's Bruins 59-54 in the finals of the NCAA Tournament last season to claim the national title.

Lady Gouvs even record at 11-11

The APSU women's basketball team traveled to Memphis State, and UT-Martin this past week. The women were defeated last Thursday by Memphis State 84-61. However they came back with a victory over UT-Martin last Saturday night 60-55.

In the Memphis State game, APSU jumped out to an early lead, their biggest lead being 7 points. But with 9:33 remaining in the first half and the score at 20-15 APSU, the MSU Lady Tigers rattled off 18 unanswered points and took the lead 33-30.

"The full court press Memphis State installed just gave us too much trouble," quoted Lady Gov Coach Pam Davidson, "quoted Lady Gov Coach Pam Davidson.

Memphis State took charge at that point and Austin Peay was never able to get back into the game.

The leading scorer for the fourth consecutive game was Tina Cottle as she totaled 15 points. Cottle was followed by Joanne Arnold who hit for 11 points.

Austin Peay evened their overall record at 11-11 as they defeated UT-Martin at Martin last Saturday night.

The women were paced by Golena Rucker as she came off the bench to hit 20 points. Rucker hit 10 of 11 shots from the free throw line and 5 of 11 from the field.

"We have been having trouble at the free throw line the last five games," commented Davidson. "However, we turned that around at Martin as we shot 78.6 percent from the free throw line."

Beside Rucker, the women had three more players in double figures as Elaine Swafford, Connie Sinks, and Joanne Arnold each hit for 10 points.

APSU will take on Eastern Kentucky next Thursday night in the Dunn Center. The Lady Colonels are led by All-American candidate Lisa Goodwin.

Gov harriers divide; head north

The Governor track team will divide its ranks and head north to the Indiana University Invitational and the Mason-Dixon Games in Louisville, Ky.

"Normally, these two events are on different weekends, but since they're not this year, we decided to send runners to both meets," said APSU Coach Joey Haines.

"The Indiana Invitational has such a strong field and waiting list of teams to get in, that I'm afraid if we don't show up, we won't get invited back," Haines rationalized.

William McElroy, Premias McGlorey and Doug Taylor are four Gov sprinters who Coach Haines says can run a 9.5 or faster 100 yard dash.

"We have three solid high jumpers in Richard Parker, Barry Crawford, and Randy Singleton," Haines stated.

Norm Self should help to anchor the Peay's field events as he is the leading returning javelin thrower in the OVC.

"Since there are no team standings in most of the indoor meets, we're trying to get exposure for possible NCAA invitations," he concluded.

Both meets are indoor events, with the Indiana meet using yardages, while the Mason-Dixon Games will be measured in meters.

4, 7.6 game in the first round, before being ousted by Ljungman in the semi-finals, 6-4, 7-5. Tuckness was the player who defeated three APSU netters last week en route to the Music City Invitational Championship.

Brad Properjohn and Paul Gaff were two other Governors who fared well in the tourney.

The APSU doubles team upset the number one-seeded MTSU duo of Mark Tulloch and Graham Harris by a 6-3, 6-2 score in the semi-finals on Friday.

The team of Properjohn and Gaff lost to Murray's Tiege Person-Dan Swearing by a 7-6, 4-6 count in the doubles finals on Saturday afternoon.

"I thought we played well, overall," related APSU tennis coach Dennis Emery.

"Hal is a self-motivated individual who deserves everything he has achieved. His match with Ljungman could be a preview of the OVC singles championship this spring, if Hal plays number one for us," Emery added.

When asked if he was surprised at Austin Peay's selection as the preseason favorite to capture the OVC team crown, Emery said, "Sure. Murray is the defending champ and they have all of their players returning. But, I don't think that our selection as preseason favorite (by Tennis USA magazine) will put any added pressure on us," Emery predicted.

The Governors return to the courts on Feb. 20 when they will meet the University of Alabama in the first of a series of dual matches.

APSU will also face Louisiana State, Lamar, Houston, Texas A&M, Oklahoma State, and Arkansas on the remainder of their early spring trip.
