Council proposes new courses

Presently under review by President Joe Morgan are new proposals for the APSU curriculum, according to Dr. Herbert Stallworth, chairman of the academic council.

These new proposals were presented at the Academic Council meeting on Jan. 9.

A proposal from the department of psychology that would add a new endorsement in the area of Personnel Services, was proposed by Dr. Garland Blair, professor and chairman of the department of psychology.

The new endorsement would be that of elementary school counselor. This would require the addition of four new courses in the psychology department.

These new courses would be Information Services in Elementary Schools, Counseling, Consulting and Coordinating Techniques for Elementary Counselors, Group Methods in Elementary Guidance and Practicum in Elementary School Guidance and Counseling.

The addition of these new courses, along with courses already offered at APSU, are required for endorsement as an elementary school counselor by Tennessee certification regulations.

Dr. James Corgan, professor and chairman of the department of geology, presented to the Council a proposal for two new majors. These majors will be earth science and a distributive major in earth science.

A proposed starting date for the two majors is September 1973. According to this proposal, earth science has become widespread in Tennessee schools, therefore APSU would be fulfilling its role as a teacher preparation institution by offering a major in earth science.

There would be no increase in the total offering in geology with the adoption of the new major. Instead, established courses would be dropped to add the nine quarter hours for the new major.

When the major is offered and has become well established an estimated 12 to 20 students would graduate each year.

According to the proposal [4] of the 169 public school systems in Tennessee have adopted a junior high school earth science textbook for the 1970-73 period. Only nine public school systems in Tennessee had adopted the text in 1969-70.

Purchase cost for supplies for these courses would be nominal and could be handled by a modest expansion of the geology department's budget.

The major in earth science requires 45 quarter hours with the inclusion of three new courses: Structural Geology, Mineralogy and Petrology. The distributive earth science major would require 75 quarter hours.

These new proposals were approved by the Academic Council and the Council for Teacher Education and then sent to President Morgan for approval.

If the president approves the proposal for the two new majors, it will be sent for approval to the Board of Regents and the Tennessee Higher Education Commission.

Approval for the new endorsement must be made by President Morgan, the Board of Regents and the State Board of Education.

On the agenda for the next meeting of the Academic Council is the study of the core requirements.

In November 1970 Dr. William H. Ellis, who was then dean of facilities, along with the ad hoc committee, proposed "to study possible revision of the core of all baccalaureate programs of the University."

The recommendations of this committee centered around two basic concepts, a university wide core of general studies and the lessening of rigidity associated with present core requirements.

The same month the report was received by the Academic Council, who after discussion decided to table the matter.

Upon the motion made by Dr. Bryan Crutcher, professor of education, it was decided to remove the study from the table and place it on the agenda for the next meeting of the Academic Council.

Winning debate group enters state tournament

This coming weekend, the Austin Peay State University speech department will have 12 participants in the annual Tennessee Intercollegiate Forensics State Tournament, which will be held this year at Morlow State Community College in Tullahoma.

The APSU team will be competing against various Tennessee junior and senior colleges, including Vanderbilt, University of Tennessee and Memphis State.

Among the participants will be the four debaters who recently walked off with top honors at the Tennessee Tech University Novice Debate Tournament. Competing against such schools as UT, MTSU, Tennessee Tech, Western Kentucky, and University of Kentucky, Mike Allen, Debbie Thomas, Keith Grace and Gary Bonds received the overall trophy for the best four man team.

They also took first place in the following divisions: negative team, beginning negative team, four man team, negative speaker (Mike Allen), and overall speaker (Mike Allen).

The debate team placed second in two divisions: negative speaker (Debbie Thomas) and overall speaker (Debbie Thomas) and took one third place honor for affirmative speaker (Keith Grace).

Other students planning to attend the intercollegiate tournament are Doyle Moore, Jerry Winnett, Christie Mayor, Roger Luther, Dayton Leferink, Tony Butler, Stacie Malone and Ken Bass. They will be competing in the divisions of extemporaneous speaking, after-dinner speaking, persuasive speaking and poetry and prose interpretation.

The debate team is being coached by Mike McDonald, instructor of speech, and Dr. Reese Elliott, assistant professor of speech.

Dr. Endicott will speak in Clement

An authority in the field of career counseling, Dr. Frank Endicott will speak Feb. 14 at 10 a.m. in the Clement Auditorium.

Classes meeting at this time will be dismissed for the Visiting Speakers and Artists Committee program.

Dr. Endicott retired last spring as director of placement and professor of education at Northwestern University.

To prepare for his courses in guidance and personnel work, he has made annual surveys on the job market in the U.S. The university has asked him to continue these surveys.

Among his publications are "How to Plan for College," "A College Student's Guide to Career Planning" and "Parent's Guide to College Planning."

In 1969, "How to Find the Right Job and Keep It" was published by Management Information Center, Miami, Fla.

He has written several books on guidance and counseling in (Continued on Page 3, Col. 5)

Opryland seeks talent for summer

Today Opryland U. S. A. will hold auditions for its live shows for the 1973 season from 12 p.m. to 5 p.m. in the University Center Ballroom.

According to Joe Pezzi, manager of live entertainment, Opryland is seeking persons between the ages of 18 and 25 who can sing, dance or play musical instruments.

Pezzi also said puppeteers, magicians, folk groups and any other persons with presentable talent are also welcome to audition.

"All of our live stage presentations are professionally produced for Opryland especially," said Pezzi, "and we are looking for young people who are serious about performing."

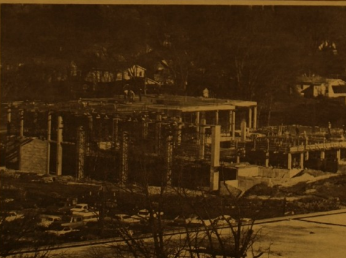

He said each of the shows are double cast and persons selected must be available to work both evening and morning shifts on a weekly rotating basis.

All auditions and interviews will be given on a first-come first-served basis. No special auditions can be granted.

An accompanist will be available for all auditions, though you may bring your own if desired. A record player and tape recorder will also be provided.

Interviews for technical positions will be held at the same time.

Opryland U. S. A. opens for the 1973 season on April 22, weekends only until Memorial Day when it will begin a seven day a week schedule.

CURTAIN GOING UP—Construction workers are preparing the "stage" for the "grand opening" of the Drama and Fine Arts Building to be completed by the fall of 1973.

THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTHERN IOWA The Northern Iowa, Cedar Falls, Iowa—What group do you want to appear in the spring semester? At the University of Northern Iowa, the students are being given a chance to decide by popular vote who they want for the spring semester concert.

The Union Activities Board has put before the students the listings of groups and prices they come for. There is also the fact that there is a limited budget to work with which has a minimum range of $9,000. The students are given this budget to work with and ask to see what they can come up with for the concert that will please the majority of the people plus be within the established budget.

Editor defines letter policies

THE ALL STATE welcomes comment from readers both on its editorial statements and on other topics.

Students wishing to write letters must submit them by 5 p.m. Friday for publication the following Wednesday. The letters should be restricted to one subject and must be signed.

The General Policies of the Board of Student Publications prohibit the printing of unsigned letters, however names may be withheld upon request and will be held in strictest confidence.

We reserve the right to edit or not publish any letter for reasons of taste or space limitations.

THE ALL STATE has published every letter it has received this year. We plan to continue printing all letters sent to the editor.

Black studies need expanding at APSU

Black studies are offered on over 600 campuses across the nation. These courses came out of the racial conflicts that erupted at universities in the late 1960's.

Courses in Black studies range from African tribalism to U.S. urban problems. Enrollment in Black studies, however, is leveling off nationwide—and declining in some places. Qualified teachers for many of the courses are hard to find.

The expansion of the Black studies program at APSU is greatly needed. At the present there is only one Black history course and two sociology courses dealing with Blacks, one of which is the Black Family, the other a study of minority groups in general. Two Black courses are also offered in the political science department. They are Black Politics and African Government and Politics.

Proposals for Black Literature, Swahili linguistics, Black Rhetoric and Black Philosophy are being considered. Other courses being mentioned as possibilities are Black Art and Black Economics.

Expansion of Black studies at APSU has been motivated by the political science department, the sociology department, the history department and the members of the Black Studies Association who collected a thousand signatures petitioning for more Black studies.

Black peoples' contributions to America have been sadly excluded from the history books. Their culture, language, art and literature have been overlooked, thus denying students (Black and White) a very rich and rewarding insight into the heritage of their own culture.

The Black population has contributed greatly to the making of American history and culture. W.E.B. DuBois has been proven correct when he stated, in the 1890's, that "the problem of the Twentieth Century is the problem of the color line". To work toward solving our problems we must first understand the causes of them, not just their effects. Yet, in the past, only one side of the difficulties the U.S. must overcome has been given attention, that from the white perspective. Only when a synthesis of understanding is reached can the nation make more than cosmetic solutions. Black studies can help in achieving this understanding between the races by which not only academic, but social progress can be made and, hopefully, the United States can finally fulfill the ideals of liberty and equality of opportunity on which it was founded.

I hold that a little rebellion, now and then, is a good thing, and as necessary in the political world as storms in the physical.

A Pepsi Peace in Mideast?

by Jack Anderson

(Copyright 1973 by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON — Is Pepsi-Cola quietly at work trying to solve the Middle East crisis? Pepsi-Cola president Donald Kendall is trying to keep Egypt's most influential editor, Muhammad Heykal, together with White House foreign policy czar, Henry Kissinger.

Kendall first suggested to Heykal back in 1971 that he come to Washington for a visit with Kissinger, but Heykal turned down the invitation. Now, we understand, Heykal has expressed interest in meeting Kissinger.

The meeting would be significant, Heykal is known to have the ear of Egypt's President Sadat and could pave the way for a new peace approach in the Middle East.

Kendall, meanwhile, has been able to pull diplomatic strings in Cairo because he is known to be a personal friend of President Nixon. The Egyptian authorities remember that Nixon came to Cairo in 1953 as Kendall's representative guiding Pepsi-Cola.

Avoiding Cold Noon

Congressional leaders have issued an unshrinking host over President Nixon's encouragement on their constitutional authority. We have predicted, however, that the issue would be settled in the backrooms. This prediction already has started to come true.

The settlement of the Vietnam war has increased the President's prestige and has taken some of the steam out of his congressional opposition. He, in turn, has taken Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield aside and has promised to work out a better relationship with Congress. The President has indicated he will send his top aides, including Henry Kissinger, to give congressional groups regular private briefings. He may also join Congress in supporting, rather than opposing, restrictions on his war-making powers.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott has hinted he would support a war-powers bill that would require the President's right to respond to a military emergency. But it would require him to seek a declaration of war from Congress if he wanted to continue military action beyond 30 days.

The White House will take the attitude that the bill isn't aimed against President Nixon but is intended to prevent any future president from conducting undeclared, unlimited wars.

It may be more difficult, however, to settle the great spending battle. President Nixon is still insisting on his right to impose funds that Congress wants to spend. Congressional leaders claim this violates their constitutional power over the purse.

But this showdown, too, probably will never reach high noon. No issue is too great, if there's any risk of political embarrassment, that politicians of both parties won't settle the differences quietly in the backrooms.

Forked Tongue?

President Nixon in his inaugural address called for more volunteer action and less reliance on the government. Environmental groups had been doing exactly what the President advocated. Yet, astonishingly, the Nixon Administration has been working against citizen participation.

This is documented in an unreleased 400-page government-funded study, which offers the first comprehensive look at volunteer environmental groups around the country.

The trouble is that these groups have brought pressure on the government to crack down harder on industries that have been fouling the environment. Apparently, this wasn't the sort of citizen participation the President had in mind in his inaugural remarks. The 400-page report, therefore, has been kept quiet.

However, we have obtained a bootleg copy. It suggests that government agencies, especially the EPA, are "defaulting on their basic responsibility to aggressively promote citizen participation."

The report cites the frequent complaint of environmental groups that government agencies and private industries cooperate in refusing to release basic information that the volunteers need. Instead, government and industry prefer to swamp the volunteers with information that the report describes as "self-serving."

When useful information is squeezed out of the government, it usually is provided at the last possible moment. This is why many environmental groups seem so crisis-oriented. They are unable to act until the last stages of the decision-making process.

Meanwhile, citizen groups are forced to expose projects until they can evaluate them.

The report also criticizes EPA and other federal agencies for the way they conduct environmental hearings. These hearings often provide the only opportunity for volunteers to participate in environmental decisions. Yet the report charges that hearings usually take place after the basic decisions are made.

The report concludes that despite the many achievements of the volunteers, "we often found a feeling of helplessness, and a deep sense of frustration and distrust that extends to the whole government process."

Headlines and Footnotes

MURDER UNSOLVED — Almost three years ago, Cole-

to MacDonald and her two children were brutally murdered at Fort Bragg, North Carolina. Coletti's husband Jeffrey, an Army captain at first was charged with the murder, but through the efforts of her father, Alfred Kasabab, the captain was cleared of all charges. Now, Mr. Kasabab is personally pressuring the Justice Department to keep the case open. He tells us that he is sure justice knows who the real killer is, but is not yet ready in bringing charges.

BOY SCOUT SUSIDY — Troops at Fort Lee, Virginia, were quietly converted into boy scout counselors last summer at taxpayer's expense. Post commander Gen. John MacDonnell ordered dozens of officers and enlisted men of the 96th Civil Affairs Battalion to troop up to Camp Brady Saunders in Oliveville, Va., to help the boy scouts. The soldiers, we have learned, prepared and served 31,000 meals, built numerous structures and conducted a total of 2,340 boys. The official estimate of costs to the Army: $32,000.

Faculty submits articles for new language journal

Watch Your Language is the name of APSU's foreign language journal published for the first time last week.

The journal, a collection of articles written in various languages, contains articles submitted by faculty at APSU.

"I had thought it would be one way we could present the good side of the languages department," said Dr. Joseph Thomas, chairman of the department of modern languages.

"It would show that language is interesting and that there are many things of meaning written in other languages."

"Christine Masters decided to start out with something literary and that the best contributors would be faculty members."

"There was a surprising interest in it. Various faculty members submitted things that they felt would be of general interest to people here at APSU.

"The editors are limited by budget. You might say the first was the deluxe edition. Subsequent editions might not be as extensive but we hope to produce at least one each quarter," said Thomas.

The next edition will contain the translations of the first edition. Students are welcome to contribute anything they think might be of interest to the journal's readers.

"I would like to send a copy to other professional publications like the 'Modern Language Journal' as a means of giving recognition to the APSU foreign language department."

"We hope to be able to place copies of future editions in the student center so the students can pick them up just as they do the college newspaper," added Thomas.

OPEN MOUTH, INSERT FOOT—Members of the Karate Club practice movements of self defense. The club meets Monday and Thursday nights from 7:30 to 9:30 in the Recreation Room of the Memorial Health Gymnasium.

Karate presents program for stamina, self defense

"I'll guarantee you'll use muscles you never thought you had," said Dr. Peter Minetos of the APSU psychology department, in describing the reasons for his sponsoring the recently formed APSU Karate Club. Through Karate the members of the club build up better physical stamina and develop an inner type of philosophy.

According to a survey by the Union for Women's Rights, several female students had expressed a need for a self defense course on campus. There is even thought of someday having a karate team, such as the one at Middle Tennessee State University.

Joseph Rippie is the instructor for the karate club which meets on Monday and Thursday nights from 7:30 to 9:30 in the Recreation Room of Memorial Gymnasium.

The meetings are open to all APSU students and faculty. There is a monthly fee, which may be lowered if more students join the club. The club is currently seeking new members to join. Students may come and participate in a trial meeting if they desire.

Miss Marmot wins crown at Ground Hog Parade

By CHUCK WOOD

"There she goes, Miss Sweet Hog — Our Ideal," crooned Pork Parks as he crowned the 1973 Miss Sweet Hog.

The crowning of Priscilla Marmot as Miss Sweet Hog climaxed the first annual Ground Hogs' Day parade held Friday, Feb. 2.

Commencing at 2 p.m., the entourage of 500 dancing ground hogs began their trip down Riverside Drive to the tunes of "Shadow of Your Smile," "That Sweet Hog of Mine," and the "Ground Hog Day Suite" in G minor, composed especially for the parade by Leonard Bernhog.

Featured bands in the parade, commemorating Ground Hogs' Day, were high school bands from Piggly Wiggly, Tenn.; Woodchuck, Ala.; and Hog's Tunnel, Ark.

Miss Marmot beamed with pleasure as she was named Miss Sweet Hog.

"I knew I would get it! I knew I would get it!" she said, revealing her sparkling buck teeth.

The event was held jointly by the Students Against Monday Holidays (SAMH) and the Bureau for Understanding Ground Hogs (BUGH).

Distributive major offers summer intern program

A concentration in history for the "Urban Planning" major was approved last week by the Curriculum Committee of the College of Arts and Sciences.

This change plus a revision of required courses for the Distributive Major in Urban Affairs and Regional Development will now be presented to President Joe Morgan for approval.

The requirements for the major, offered jointly by the departments of economics, geography, history, political science and sociology have recently been restructured.

Under the present curriculum, a student selects a desired departmental concentration in which he completes 30 hours of core requirements.

The student also takes 54 hours in supporting courses from the other four departments and fifteen to eighteen hours of professional courses.

One recent change in the requirements is a planning internship which will be offered for the first time this summer. The internship, which will carry six to nine hours credit, will give the student an opportunity to work in a cooperating planning agency or consulting firm.

The distributive major was conceived in the fall of 1971 by Dr. C. James Dunigan, associate professor of sociology; Dr. Aaron Hutcherson, professor of economics; and Dr. Bernon Warren, associate professor of political science. The committee now includes Dr. Preston Hubbard, professor of history.

The program was approved last May and began operation last fall.

Jobs currently exist in public and private offices for planning experts, according to Dunigan. Planning technicians are needed in city and regional planning offices and in private firms.

Jack: We could go a long way

Howard Jackson feels that the Austin Peay Governors have what it takes to be a winner. And so far, the 6-7 junior forward from Lexington, Ky., ain't wrong.

"The team has the attitude we need to go a long way," points out the 1972 All-OVC performer. "That's really an important thing."

"We have a lot more shooters than we had last year. And we also have a lot more depth," says Jack. "When anybody gets tired all they have to do is say so and someone comes in the game that it just as good. Anybody could start."

"And our defense has come a long way," comments the Governor defensive ace.

Last year Howard carried the bulk of the APSU scoring load with an 18.3 average. But with the emergence of Fly Williams, Jackson hasn't had the pressure of scoring so much. Jackson is still the number two Gov scorer with an 11.3 average.

"I've been working harder on by defense and rebounding," says Jackson. "With all our good shooters, it really gives me more time to work on these areas of my game."

Howard is recognized as one of the premier defensive players in the league as a result of his hard work. "I like to try to shut people out," says the competitive Jackson.

Howard has a definite philosophy about his defense. "It's really pretty simple sounding," says Jackson. "I just try to keep my man from getting the ball. That's where defense begins. It's a lot easier than trying to defense a man after he has the ball. He's not going to score if he doesn't get the ball."

Who's the hardest man Jack's had to cover this year?

"I'd say Jimmy Powell of Middle Tennessee. He's almost as agile as Fly. He doesn't have all the moves that Fly has but he can move real well for a big man."

"Blue (Robert Earl) is tough, too," said Jackson about UNC Charlotte's slender forward. "Rich Stone (Tennessee Tech) is also hard to defense."

"We want to win for the fans"

"We feel we want to win for the fans," says Jack. "They have really given us a lift. It's just great the way the town and the students are supporting us. It especially helps out on the road when there are a lot of fans there behind you."

"We have a lot of togetherness on the team," says Jack. "I think coaching has a lot to do with that. We don't really have any big problems. When someone does have a problem they know to take it to the coaches and nothing more is ever heard of it."

As for personal goals, Howard Jackson would like to make it into the pros. "But winning the conference is the number one thing right now. All things come second to that."

And with winners like Howard Jackson, the dream of bringing the Ohio Valley Conference crown to Austin Peay may be realized.

Govs place it all on the line, host Eastern and Morehead

What can be said about one of the highest basketball weekends in the history of Austin Peay athletics, not to mention the most important of the season?

Nothing, except for the facts. And there are plenty.

Eastern Kentucky's Colonels will invade Clarksville Saturday night. Morehead will be in town Monday. Everybody knows that those two teams (along with Western Kentucky) have a share of the Ohio Valley Conference crown last season.

It's also no secret that Morehead and Eastern are half of the four teams log-jammed at the top of the OVC standings. Austin Peay and Murray are the other two squads.

Morehead and Austin Peay are tied for first with 6-1 records. Eastern and Murray are 5-2. The Governors lost by two points on a last second shot at Morehead in the Gov's only season loss. Austin Peay barely skidded by Eastern 68-67 in overtime in Richmond.

However, as if all of this wasn't enough, there have been a few extra attractions thrown in to liven things up a bit more.

Eastern will have the services of their all-conference performer Charlie Mitchell this go around. Mitchell missed the earlier contest between the two teams due to illness. Eastern has not dropped a conference game since reacquiring Mitchell's services.

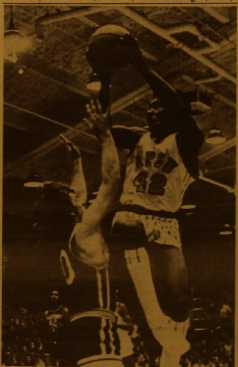

Morehead, on the other hand, has a few things going for them too that they didn't have when Austin Peay battled the Eagles four weeks ago.

Morehead now has a strong Ron Nicholson, big MSU center, saw limited action when he wasn't fully recovered from a broken hand in the first

APSU-Morehead game. The Eagles are now on a six game conference winning skid which is a plus for them. They had lost six straight before toppling

Austin Peay.

"We've got to win at home," is the tune Lake Kelly has been singing all season. "These two (Continued on Page 8, Col. 1)

Swimming, free throw, wrestling

IM event deadlines approach

Winter quarter intramural activities are nearing a peak with the approach of competition in swimming, the free throw contest and the IM wrestling tournament.

The swim meet which was originally scheduled for Wednesday, Feb. 28, has been changed due to the Austin Peay-Murray basketball game that night. The meet has been rescheduled for Feb. 27 with finals being March 1. The deadline for entries is Feb. 26.

The free throw contest is open to men and women Feb. 19 from 6-8 p.m. in the gymnasium. Only people representing an organization that is going for all-sports points need to enter a roster. All other participants need only to show up ready to shoot. Roster forms may be picked up in the IM office. The deadline is Feb. 19 at 5 p.m.

Wrestling tourney rosters are due Tuesday, Feb. 27 at 5 p.m. The meet will last March 6, 6 and 8. Complete information is available in the IM office.

Kelly praises Gov fans

Head basketball Lake Kelly summed up his feelings of the impact of the crowd during the Murray game in the following quote:

"Take a chocolate Sunday. That's what offense is. Now you're going to like that any time, if you're alone or there are a lot of people around, you'll still like it. Now take a diggin' a ditch. That's defense. That's not fun; it's hard work. But get a crowd around and see what happens. When the crowd gets going it spurs you on. The crowd will say, 'Look at that fellow shoot that dirt, isn't he great?' And the more the crowd applauds and gets going, the easier it is to dig that ditch. And that's what our crowd does for us when we're on defense. When they get going, we get going."

Kelly and the entire team had great praise for the crowd following the game. "You ought to give the crowd a whole page, they're great," exclaimed Kelly.

Athletic Director George Fisher chimed in by saying, "The crowd is really fabulous. The fans are maturing as the team is maturing. Both are great."

Govs spurred Racers to move into first

Murray's State's thoroughbred galloped into Memorial Gymnasium Saturday night but the Racers went back to Murray aching a little after a 105-74 spurting from the Austin Peay Governors.

The game was billed as the biggest of the year in the Ohio Valley Conference race. Both squads came into the contest in second place with identical 5-1 conference workweeks, one-half game behind league leading Morehead 6-11.

The first half was an example of the type game that was expected by the 4,000 plus crowd.

Neither team led by more than six at any point. The Governors held advantages of 13-0 and 32-26. Murray managed four point margins four times. However, Austin Peay held the lead at the end of the first stanza, 44-40.

Murray shot out of the starting gate in the second half to tie the score at 44-44 on an 18-foot jumper by freshman Jesse Williams. But that was the last time the contest was tied.

The Govs came back to take the lead 46-44 on a six-footer by Fly Williams. Austin Peay then pushed the bulge to as much as 14 before Murray started to cut into the Gov lead again. The Racers battled to pull within six with 8:18 left in the game (72-66.)

At that point head coach Lake Kelly called time out to try to do something about the Murray surge. Apparently what ever he told his Governors was effective as APSU quickly outscored Murray 6-0 to command a 12 point lead and never looked back. From the point where Murray came within six, Austin Peay outscored the Racers 22-10. That included a spree where the Govs pumped in 12 points to nine for Murray in the last 1:44 of the game.

The win was no doubt the biggest of the year for the young Governors. And one of the biggest for Austin Peay since entering the OVC in 1963.

"I can't say how much this means to us," said a thoroughly satisfied Lake Kelly in the winners' dressing room. "This group has more character than anyone can imagine."

"The kids did a great job," said Kelly. "What can you say about that defensive effort?"

The defensive effort Kelly spoke of forced Murray into 23 floor errors while the Governor total was 14. Thirteen of the Racers errors came in the second half.

Fly Williams kept up his national scoring pace with 34 points. The Brooklyn Bomber hit 14 of 33 from the field and two-of-two from the line. Fly was followed by the other four starters all of which hit double figures. Percy Howard bucketed 19 points, Eddie Childress 18, Howard Jackson 12 and playmaker Danny Odums had 10.

"Jack" yanked down nine rebounds to lead Austin Peay while Howard, Odums, and Williams, were credited with six.

Childress had five rebounds. Childress and Odums were nothing short of spectacular in the assist department with 10 each.

Govs begin early drills, Bushofsky checks talent

Austin Peay State University got the jump on perhaps every college in the nation Monday when they opened spring football practice.

"There are a number of reasons we are holding practice so early," new head coach Jack Bushofsky stated in announcing the opening of spring practice.

"We need to get a quick look at our personnel, find out who can do what, make changes in personnel and then try to recruit the players we need for key positions."

"We are anxious to see just what we have returning from last year's team and figure this is the best way to find out," the former Villanova assistant pointed out.

"We will put each player in his respective position, evaluate each player and make whatever changes we think will benefit the team. After we get the players where we think they can best perform, we'll work on putting in our offense and defense."

Bushofsky indicated that his offense will center around the Houston Veer and the drop-back pass while the defense will be "what we like to call a 50 Defense," the coach stated.

"At the present time, no player has a position sewed up by any means," Bushofsky said. "We will let each player determine who is running with which unit on a day-to-day basis."

"We have a depth chart set which is based on the winter weight program and the evaluation from last season. However, it will change following each workout."

The schedule calls for the team to practice Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons and Saturday morning. "We hope to be finished by March 3," Bushofsky concluded.

Ohio Valley Outlook

It is a four team OVC race

By RICKEY BENTLEY

All eight teams in the OVC have been taking a break from conference play this week as no league tilts were played Monday. But when conference play does get going again this Saturday it will get going in a big way. The top four teams in the OVC (Morehead, Austin Peay, Eastern Kentucky and Murray) will be going off against each other in four of the most important games of the year.

Saturday night Eastern Kentucky will travel to Austin Peay while Murray will be having Morehead Monday night. Eastern will switch with Morehead and take on Murray while the current league leaders fly at each other. Both Murray and Austin Peay post undefeated marks at home while Eastern is undefeated in conference play on the road. Morehead's only loss on the road was to Eastern. These four games are crucial to all four teams.

First place is no stranger to three of the four teams that are still in contention. Murray, Eastern Kentucky and Morehead all boast two conference championships since Austin Peay entered the conference. The closest the Governors have been was in the 63-64 season when they ended in fourth place with a conference record of 3-7. Western Kentucky holds the all time high of five titles.

The other four teams may be out of the race but they are still in a position to play the "spoiler". The coaches feel that Tennessee Tech has the greatest chance to upset one of the "Big Four."

With half of the season in the record books now the conference race is getting even more exciting and these last 20 OVC matches should be as exciting as the first 20.

games are issues for us." Will the fact that the Governors have already defeated Eastern Kentucky and knocked them off on the road cause them to overlook the Colonels and set their sights on Morehead Monday night?

Kelly says, "No. We know that Eastern will be tougher with Mitchell. The players are definitely aware of it."

"We've got to take these games one at a time," points out Kelly. "Anybody can knock anybody else off on a given night."
